Dixon defends it in his letter to the Journal, because he says the incident has occurred. Doubtless; yet it is one of the rarest of all crimes, and least needs to be kept in the public mind. During the last fifty years the rape of white women by negroes has occurred ten to thirty times a year. That is, the chance that any particular Southern negro will commit the crime is not more than one in 10,000; and the chance that a particular Southern woman in her lifetime may be a victim is less than one in 20,000. This number of crimes would be much reduced but for the habit of lynching nearly every such criminal, and thus spreading abroad the details to the winds.

In not a single Northern community can the dwelling upon such a horrid crime in public exhibitions be necessary to arouse public opinion; for that particular crime has hardly been known in the North in half a century. Therefore, such pictures simply help to brutalize every community in which they are exhibited. Perhaps some of the people who read this letter are shocked by the frankness of its language, but it is not one-tenth as frank or as permanent as the pictures which are spread before men, matron, tender maiden, and artless child.

AIMS TO AROUSE RACE HATRED.

What is the object of the show? Why should a man like Dixon, against whose private character there are no charges, spend a lifetime in sowing fire brands throughout his country? It is impossible to be sure of the motives, but the effects are perfectly clear whether they were so intended or otherwise. The "Birth of a Nation," like the novels, "The Clansman," upon which it is founded, and "The Leopard's Spots," inculcates a gospel of hate towards the colored race.

Most of the negroes presented in these moving pictures are brutal in face, figure, and behavior. Men of the same type as Col. Shaw's soldier, pictured in that magnificent monument opposite the State House, are presented to you as unworthy of their uniforms! Not once, but twice, in the spectacle a brutal negro attempts to possess himself of a sweet and beautiful white girl.

Nobody who supposes these pictures to be a fair representation of things that actually happened can go away without carrying a poisonous distrust towards the negro—towards the negroes in his own neighborhood, towards the negroes all over the land, towards communities of negroes, who reprehend these dreadful crimes as much as any white man.

The country has already seen the effects of familiarizing growing boys and girls with road agents and escaped convicts and hold-up men and stage detectives. Yet, after all, you can see a man killed in a moving-picture fight without much emotion; there is no soot or smirch in it; you do not lay the crime to a single race. Rape, with all its horrors, is perfectly well known to white communities, and in numerous cases white men are the criminals. Yet nobody tries to fix upon a particular white race or community the responsibility for the crime. Nobody except the authors of such shows and such books (whether they mean it or mean something else) has such success in inducing thousands of their fellow-citizens to look with hate and apprehension upon a large class of their neighbors.

In some similar pictures, perhaps in the omitted reels, you get the smoke of the lynching and the charred stake, surrounded with its awful evidence that a crime has been committed by lynchers as well as by the negro.

STATE LAW IS DEFECTIVE.

Mr. Dixon is certain that the courts of Massachusetts "have sustained the play squarely on its merits." The courts have done nothing more than to show that the law of Massachusetts is defective. It ought to be the law that no play, spoken, acted, or pictured, should be admitted to any stage if it tends to incite public hatred against an innocent section of the community in which it is played. Mr. Dixon thinks that such a principle would have suppressed "Uncle Tom's Cabin." It would have suppressed, and did suppress it, in the Southern States where the slaves might possibly have been aroused against their masters. It did not suppress it in the North, where they were no slaves or slave-holding class to be aroused.

The influence of such an appeal to the passion is wide. Boston is not likely to be aroused to a lynching by any means as this, but the "Birth of a Nation" showed in Coatesville, Pa., or Springfield, Ill., might again literally kindle the fires of race hatred which have disgraced these places. In Indianapolis, or even on the West Side of New York, it might easily bring about a terrible race riot, because both the negroes and those who hate them are numerous in those cities.

DIXON'S HISTORY WEAK.

Mr. Dixon's letter to the Journal contains a number of statements which might be put upon an examination in American history, for the pupils to point out the misstatements. As a maker of a book for moving pictures, Mr. Dixon is a highly successful; if he would only leave the lust and the passion out, his show would be worth seeing. As a historian, he hardly invites dissent. Nobody will believe, surely, because he says so, that Thaddeus Stevens threatened to hang Andrew Johnson from the balcony of the White House; or that he set up Ben Wade to be dictator—how Ben Wade [illegible] for exploit supposed to be [illegible] ports of fairly large buying of old wheat [illegible] shorts covering, prompted partly by [illegible] a small rally, which was based partly on [illegible] able weather bureau. Later there was [illegible] crop of 876,000,000 bushels with favor- [illegible] 40,631,000, which would suggest a total [illegible] in many years, only 222,000 acres, leaving [illegible] that the area abandoned is the smallest [illegible] last month and 647 a year ago, and st[illegible] passed the condition of 641, against [illegible]

COTTON.

The day's prices were as follows:

	High-	Low-	day's	To-	Yeste-
May	9.72	9.50	9.50	9.82@9.[illegible]
July	10.96	10.63	10.63	10.06@10.[illegible]
Aug.	10.08	10.07	10.08	10.20@10.[illegible]
Oct.	10.28	9.98	9.98	10.33@10.[illegible]
Dec.	10.47	10.18	10.20	10.38@10.[illegible]

Gross Earnings.

Gross for fourth week of April:

	1914.	1915.
Chic. & Ohio	$1,176,942	$1,023,712
Chic. North.	420,000	303,100
Chic. & South.	290,619	277,314
Mo. K. & T.	178,124	614,408
Tex. & Pac.	410,608	424,271
West Maryl'd	230,397	209,900

Gross for month o April:

Chic. & Ohio	$3,620,310	$3,108,980
Chic. & South.	975,323	923,341
Mo. K. & T.	2,383,730	2,204,423
Tex. & Pac.	1,343,031	1,377,052
West Maryl'd	708,263	694,770

Gross from July 1:

Chic. & Ohio	$31,228,310	$31,108,302
Chic. North.	14,830,100	19,403,700
Chic. & South.	12,048,220	11,311,039
Mo. K. & T.	26,160,[illegible]	12,719,[illegible]
Tex. & Pac.	12,307,538	14,144,380
West Maryl'd	6,975,729	6,881,207

MATION (New York)

MAY 6 1915

[Vol. 100, No. 2601

THE REGULATION OF FILMS.

Wherever it goes, the "Birth of a Nation" film arouses widespread indignation. In Boston the excitement has been at white heat, because of a series of hearings before Mayor, Governor, and a committee of the Legislature. A judge has been found with authority and courage enough to cut out the most objectionable scene. The press has been full of arguments for and against the film and the proposed legislation. Many clergymen have preached about the play; and ex-President Eliot, speaking in a Cambridge church, was one of those who protested against its falsification of history. Never before have the colored people of Boston been so united and determined, or appeared to better advantage, and their white friends have rallied in great force to their aid. Gov. Walsh, ex-Congressman McCall, and Lieut.-Gov. Cushing have spoken out emphatically against permitting the play to continue, though the Mayor sided with the producers—as the Mayor of New York has failed to recognize in his utterances the gravity of the situation, or to rise to the emergency, being content with the promise of certain slight excisions, which appear to be of little or no value. The play continues to do its devilish work of misrepresentation and of arousing race hatred.

That Mayor Mitchel has had little legal authority to deal with the play is admitted, though there are differences of opinion as to just what powers were available. But this alleged lack of authority is to be remedied by an ordinance now before the Board of Aldermen to empower the Commissioner of Licenses to revoke, suspend, or annul any moving-picture license "for cause after a trial." The ordinance further reads:

CHICAGO (Ill.) JOURNAL
MAY 15, 1915

20

MAYOR FORBIDS PHOTO PLAY

"The Birth of a Nation" Not to Be Presented Publicly in Chicago

Mayor Thompson has vetoed the photoplay spectacle, "The Birth of a Nation," so far as its public presentation in Chicago is concerned.

The scenes depicting the assassination of President Lincoln and events in the reconstruction period immediately following the civil war are the ones on which the city executive bases his action.

The photoplay is based on "The Clansman," Thomas W. Dixon's novel. The story presents the argument that the south was much imposed upon in the days of the carpet-baggers following the war.

PUBLIC LEDGER
Philadelphia
MAY 4 1915

PHOTOPLAY CONDEMNED

Nearly 200 colored ministers at the concluding general sessions of the Delaware annual conference of the colored Methodist Episcopal Church in the Grace Memorial Church, 19th and Federal streets, yesterday unanimously condemned the photoplay, "The Birth of a Nation," said to deal with immoral phases of negro life. The ministers called upon the city and State authorities to prevent the pictures being shown, on the ground that it would "increase the prejudice of the white man." The conference also heard a strong plea for woman suffrage from Mrs. M. M. Griffin. Bishop B. T. Ruley presided. The conference will close today with an executive session.

RUTLAND (Vt.) HERALD
MAY 4, 1915

Not Designed to Deport Negroes.

With all due regard to the facts, most of the stuff written about the "object" of the bitterly attacked film, "The Birth of a Nation," is rubbish. The latest hectic allegation is that the film was made and designed for the purpose of furthering the deportation of negroes from this country.

This wonderful picture, in the opinion of those nearest the business of making such films for exhibition, is purely a commercial and artistic enterprise by D. W. Griffith, the big figure in the direction of film-making today. Whether it violates historical verity is a matter of opinion.

The exaggeration of the films for theatrical effect and the creation of suspense is admittedly one of their worst faults. A labor film shows an impossibly cruel employer. A war film shows unspeakable atrocities. A political film shows one side of a question only.

So this historical film, the biggest thing ever accomplished in massing large bodies of men and horses in effective battle scenes, for example, makes the negro a trifle worse than he really is. This seems to be inevitable, and the indignation of the black folks is nothing more than one might expect.

At the same time, the fault is dramatic, not political, and there isn't the slightest reason to suppose that it was designed to further any such propaganda as the more excitable press suggests.

CHICAGO (Ill.) POST
MAY 15, 1915

"BIRTH OF NATION" FILM BARRED BY THOMPSON

Mayor Refuses a Permit to Show Picture Dealing With Life in South Following Civil War.

Mayor Thompson, as a film critic, disagrees with Mrs. Carter H. Harrison. This was the chief topic of discussion today in official circles, in movie circles and along the Rialto, following the action of Mayor Thompson in refusing to allow "The Birth of a Nation," a photoplay, to be shown on the screens in Chicago.

The picture depicts life in the South during the reconstruction period in a manner said to be objectionable to the colored race, and for this reason Mayor Thompson acted. Under the administration of his predecessor a permit to show the reels, beginning May 1, at the Illinois Theater, was obtained. At that time Mayor Harrison asked Mrs. Harrison to act as censor. Mrs. Harrison and Charles C. Fitzmorris, the mayor's secretary, viewed the reel production. Afterward Secretary Fitzmorris issued the permit. The theater proprietors, however, thought it best to ask the new administration for a permit. "No," was Mayor Thompson's firm answer.

DUNKIRK (N. Y.) OBSERVER
MAY 6, 1915

[illegible] on what is claimed [illegible] authority that the [illegible] behind the photo-play "The [illegible] of a Nation," which has made [illegible] stir in many parts of the country, was to lead to the deportation of all negroes, leaving this country strictly in the hands of white men. It was indeed an ambitious undertaking and one that will fall very short of its mark. The negro is here to stay.

OAKLAND (Cal.) TRIBUNE 671

COLORED CITIZENS OBJECT TO FILM

Resolutions in Protest of "The Clansman" Adopted at Mass Meeting.

Resolutions adopted at a mass meeting of several thousand of the colored residents of Oakland were forwarded to the city officials today, in protest against the continued production of the photo-film, "The Clansmen," at a local theater. The resolutions call upon the chief of police, members of the city council and the mayor to either stop the production or cause certain alleged objectionable features to be eliminated from the film.

The resolutions were drawn up by a committee consisting of Miss Myra Simmons, Mrs. H. C. Richardson, J. F. Summers, E. Marshall and W. A. Butler. The meeting was held in Hamilton Hall. Another resolution was adopted, commending The Tribune for "the strong, fearless and impartial attitude which it has shown towards our people and things in general."

The resolution of protest is as follows:

"Whereas, a photo-drama, by name, 'The Clansman, or the Birth of a Nation,' is now being shown in this city at the Macdonough Theater against the protest of the colored citizens of Oakland and vicinity in general; not a small number of whom are taxpayers, and also against the voiced protest of many leading members of the dominant race in this city and

"Whereas, 'The Clansman or the Birth of a Nation" motion film is based on the play or book of one Thos. Dixon Jr., a writer whose novels deal with the Negro as being inferior from birth, and questionable as to the possession of a soul, and

"Whereas, 'The Clansman,' photodrama is advertised by its producer among other things, as presenting a problem of race conditions that are still unsolved in the South and to the end that war may be held in abhorrence and universal peace promoted, and

"Where, said 'Clansman' photo-drama through the subtleness of the spirit that characterizes the film and penetrates throughout the entire propoganda, in contradistinction to its alleged plea for universal peace wields a direful influence to the entire community and works an irreparable wrong and injustice to the Negro in particular, by misrepresentations of the true characteristics of the race, therefore be it

"Resolved, that we, the citizens and taxpayers of African or Negro descent throughout Oakland and Alameda county, here assembled in mass meeting, and representing the various religious, civic and fraternal organizations in the county, do hereby most unanimously protest against the continuance of the further production in this city of "The Clansman or the Birth of a Nation" photoplay.

"Resolved, that the play tends to destroy peaceful and harmonious relations now existing between the black and white races. (a) That it incites to contempt race prejudice and hatred of one race toward another. (b) That the principal features of the film pertaining to the Negro are misleading, vicious, a stigma upon the best element of colored people, and an insult to the entire colored community. (c) That no race is fairly judged by holding up as types for reprobation its most illiterate, traitorous and degraded specimens.

"Resolved, that the progress and comparatively unparalled achievements made by the Negro since his emancipation by his ambition, industry, educational attainments, accumulation of property holdings, etc., has more than counteracted the stigma that 'The Clansman' film tends to stamp upon the Negro and

"Resolved, that the citizens of African or Negro descent in this city will use every means and possible influence with those in authority to have 'The Clansman, or the Birth of a Nation' photoplay enjoined from proceeding, and further be it

"Resolved, that a copy of this resolution be sent to the mayor and press, and that a special vote of thanks be herewith extended to the Oakland Tribune for its impartial publications on this subject."

Signed by the committee on resolution.

OAKLAND (Cal.) TRIBUNE
May 14, 1915

BEATRICE McCALL FILES PROTEST ON "CLANSMAN"

To the Editor:—As one of my duties as secretary of the Woman's Protective Bureau of Oakland is to work toward the betterment of conditions in theaters, permit me to protest against "The Clansman."

While it is a beautiful and artistic production, at the same time it is a dreadful portrayal of murder and wrong-doing. Certainly no community can be benefited by fostering hatred between two races that have much to forgive and forget on both sides.

BEATRICE McCALL,
Secretary Woman's Protective Bureau.

Concord (N.H.) Monitor
May 7, 1915.

The feature picture at Conn's, tonight will be "The Mother of Men," in three parts, based on the story of "The Birth of a Nation."

MOVING PICTURE WORLD
New York City
MAY 8 1915

"BIRTH OF A NATION" GREAT SUCCESS.

The facility with which motion pictures can paint history has been graphically shown the past week in the big Griffith epic, "The Birth of a Nation," at the Liberty, New York. It is just fifty years since some of the most memorable events of American history associated with the Civil War took place. In this comprehensive screen drama, Griffith has been able to make these stirring occurrences live as faithfully as if one were participating in the actual events.

The production started Sunday, April 18th, upon its third month, and is going as strong as ever, having aroused more interest than any offering of the current season on the New York stage. Its success here has been duplicated in Boston, Los Angeles and San Francisco and plans are now shaping for a Chicago production. Nearly 125,000 people have seen the picture and the receipts have already passed the $100,000 mark in New York City. This is the biggest record of any theatrical offering in New York for this period.

PHILADELPHIA, (Pa.) TELEGRAPH
MAY 7 - 1915

PROTEST "MOVIE" FILM

Colored Delegation Asks Mayor to Prevent "Birth of a Nation."

A delegation of colored citizens called on Mayor Blankenburg at his office in City Hall today and asked him to prevent moving picture film called "The Birth of a Nation," from being exhibited at a Philadelphia theatre in November next. The delegation consisted of Dr. N. F. Mossell, of the Douglas Hospital; Rev. H. T. Cooper, Rev. N. G. Arnett, former Congressman George H. White, Dr. J. Max Barber, of the Society for the Advancement of Colored People; Rev. Spencer Carpenter and Mrs. N. F. Mossell. Mr. White, who headed the delegation, explained to the Mayor that the picture was a reproduction of the "Clansman," by Rev. Thomas Dixon, the production of which was stopped at a trial playhouse by Mayor Weaver, in 1905. The moving picture had been permitted to be presented in New York City and Boston, after several scenes, which it was thought would cause racial feelings had been eliminated. Mr. White said that the State Board of Censors of Pennsylvania had approved of the film of the production, but he asked the Mayor to prevent the picture being shown in Philadelphia.

The Mayor said that he would look into the matter, and see what authority he possessed in the face of the fact that the film had been approved by the State Board of Censors.

LA PORTE (Ind.) HERALD
MAY 12, 1915

Negroes Protest Against Film.

Special to the LaPorte Herald.

New York, May 12.—D. W. Griffith and H. E. Aitkins, managers of the film play, "The Birth of a Nation," appeared in court today for a hearing to decide whether or not the portrayal of the film may continue. The National Association for the Advancement of the Colored People has invoked the law in an effort to bar the sensational dramatization of "The Clansman."

PITTSBURG (Pa.) GAZETTE-TIMES
MAY 19, 1915

Incidental to a discussion of the photo-play deluge, it is interesting to note the sensational history of D. W. Griffith's now famous film called "The Birth of a Nation." When this photo-play was presented in New York it created all sorts of trouble. The picture uses as a basis Dixon's play, "The Clansman," for some of its scenes, and notwithstanding the fact that this play in vocal drama form had been acted all over the country without serious disturbance, its production on the screen brought a storm of protest from the negro population of New York. A newspaper controversy of great fierceness was carried on and threats were made of securing an injunction, but the excitement died down and the Liberty Theater continues to be crowded at $2 prices for the best seats. On three different occasions the pictures have been announced to go into Chicago for a summer run, but in each instance the announcement has been withcalled, showing that pressure is being brought to bear in that direction from some source.

Now comes the news that the state legislature of Massachusetts has been petitioned by a number of its citizens to pass a law prohibiting the exhibition of the pictures in that state.

Desirable advertising that.

PHILADELPHIA, (Pa.) PRESS
MAY 8 - 1915

COLORED MEN ASK MAYOR TO BAR A PICTURE PLAY

A delegation of colored men waited on Mayor Blankenburg yesterday, and asked him to prevent a movie film, entitled "Birth of A Nation," being shown in this city in November.

The visitors were led by Ex-Congressman George H. White, who told the Mayor that the picture was a reproduction of the "Clansman," the production of which Mayor Weaver stopped in 1905. He said the picture had been shown in New York and Boston after the elimination of several scenes, which it was thought might arouse racial feeling.

The picture, the speakers said, had been approved by the Board of Censors, but it was the wish of the colored people that it be kept from the screens in this city.

The Mayor said he would look into the matter carefully and see what authority he had to prevent the picture being shown after it had been approved by the censors.

Paper: Evening Star
Date .....
5-8-15

The new mayor, Wm. Hale Thompson, will have something to say about the showing of "The Birth of a Nation" in Chicago. Mr. Thompson spoke at the Institutional Church for Colored People on Sunday evening, April 25. Near the close of his address he said: "Two or three days ago two representatives of a motion picture concern came to me informally and said 'The Birth of a Nation' is to be shown at the Illinois theater at $2 prices, beginning May 3. Now, I am going to see that picture as soon as possible. If I find in it anything objectionable to my friends of this race, I cannot see how the film can be shown in Chicago."

MOVING PICTURE WORLD
New York City
MAY 8 1915

Race Prejudice Bill

Massachusetts Negroes Want State to Pass Bill Prohibiting Any Show Tending to Excite Race Prejudice—Neither State Nor Law Courts Had Power to Act Against the Griffith Film and Colored Folk Were Disappointed.

By Edwin H. McCloskey, New England Correspondent of Moving Picture World

DESPITE the strong protestations of the colored gentry of the city of Boston, "The Birth of a Nation" is still playing to capacity houses at the Tremont theater.

A futile appeal was made to Governor David I. Walsh by the colored people, but he was powerless to act, however, he advised the protestants to apply for a warrant for the arrest of the producers of the film and the manager of the theater. These were refused by Judge Thomas H. Dowd after he had witnessed the production. In their dying effort to prevent this film from continuing its successful engagement, the colored people and their supporters are endeavoring to secure the passage of a bill in the Legislature, which would prohibit the performance of "any show or entertainment which tends to excite racial prejudice or tends to a breach of the public peace."

In making their appeal to the governor, the colored protestants stormed the State House 1,000 strong. The governor received them after a conference with the attorney general, police commissioner and police superintendent. After listening to their pleading, he informed them that he was powerless to act and he suggested the request for a warrant on the ground that the entertainment was immoral and obscene. Among those who spoke were Anna Philips Wendell Williams, white, a niece of Wendell Phillips, Joshua Crawford, Alice W. McKane, Mrs. A. Sparrow, Dr. R. L. Roberts, Mrs. Agnes Adams, Mrs. E. Putnam and William D. Brigham. As the governor was leaving the executive chamber, the colored folks called their blessings to him. Several of them shook his hand and others knelt on their knees and exalted the executive.

The following day, the same army of colored folks stormed the municipal court at Boston and were granted a hearing by Judge Dowd. Warrants were asked for Joseph J. McCarthy, general manager for the Griffith Film Company and for John Schoeffel, manager of the Tremont theater. The witnesses heard were Dr. Horace Bumstead, former president of Atlanta University; the Rev. Samuel A. Brown, pastor of St. Mark's Congregational Church, Roxbury, and State Police Officer Harry Atkinson, the official censor of photoplays that are to be exhibited in this state on Sundays.

The colored element was represented by J. Mott Hallowell, while Attorney John F. Cusick represented the theatrical company. At the conclusion of the hearing, Judge Dowd announced that he would witness the film in the evening and announce his decision in the morning.

At the morning's session, the judge gave the film company twenty-four hours to cut out the cliff scene, in which Gus, the renegade negro chases a young girl over the cliff and she jumps to escape his clutches. He steadfastly refused to grant the warrant for the men named, claiming that with the elimination the show could not be classed as immoral or obscene.

With the elimination of this scene, the colored folks were not satisfied, declaring that the whole production ought to be stopped as it is historically incorrect. The bill which is now pending before the legislature was then presented. At the hearing on this bill several negroes and whites were present. Lieut. Governor Grafton D. Cushing and former Congressman Samuel W. McCall, were named among the protestants.

William H. Lewis, one of the leading colored citizens of the country, and assistant U. S. Attorney general under Roosevelt, was loudly applauded for his address in favor of the passage of the bill. He stated that an attempt is being made to degrade and belittle the negro in the eyes of his friends. The play has been brought to Boston to have Massachusetts put its stamp of approval on it. He continued, "We are not satisfied by what has been cut out by order of the court in the deletion of the "rape" scene. The place to cut off a snake's tail is at his neck. You have scenes disgusting and degrading in the play which never happened. Not only that but New England is held up to ridicule by the depiction of Thaddeus Stevens and Charles Sumner. We object to this play for the propaganda which it presents and which tends to raise prejudice against the negro. The bill which may be drawn makes no difference so long as we get relief. Massachusetts has a history to sustain and it lies with the Legislature as to whether it will sustain that history, or whether it will allow those illustrious men who have represented Massachusetts to be held up to ridicule. We do not mind the minstrel or the fun loving negro, but we shall protest forever against such a calumny as this upon the colored race."

Miss Adeline Moffat said that of all the plays she has seen, she had never seen anything so insidiously immoral. She cited two instances of reaction which she had heard. As a Southerner, she said that every family had some pride, but that there was not one which was willing to acknowledge an ancestor who was a member of the Ku Klux Klan, which has been pictured in an absolutely untruthful light.

Frank Hammond, secretary of the executive committee of the Bar Association, said that the present law left the licensing to the discretion of the authorities, and he thought that it might be better to make the laws so specific that there would be no room for such discretion.

Rev. Herbert S. Johnson suggested that all those interested in the question might get together and draw up a satisfactory bill. As to race prejudice, he said that not all of the indignation has come from the negro and that as much harm has been done to the morals of the white man as injustice to the negro. If this was a fight between Catholics and Protestants, that play would not be on the stage a week, he declared.

CHICAGO (Ill.) HERALD
MAY 16, 1915

MAYOR TO CENSOR MOVIES

Will Withhold Permits for Films Showing Race Antagonism.

Mayor Thompson yesterday stated his position as regards the issuance of permits for the production of certain kinds of motion pictures. The mayor was asked [illegible] for refusing a permit for "The Birth of a Nation."

"Whatever power there is in the mayor's office," said Mr. Thompson, "will be used to stop this film or any other films that reflect on any race or nationality. I won't grant any permit for the production of a picture [illegible] to give a theatrical man a chance [illegible] a week.

[illegible]

EMAND CENSORS ACT IMMEDIATELY

olored People to Insist That Board Stop "Birth of a Nation" at Once he Equal Rights League will lose me in insisting that 'The Birth of ation' be taken off at once," said Monroe Trotter last night, after a -hour's meeting of the local of- in the "Guardian" office.

e organization will have another ing today, and will send a delega- at once to wait upon Mayor Cur-

Bolster, the three censors, are the "neutrals" who are the bone of contention in the conflict.

But the three official censors are saying not a word. They have not yet met, but will do so today and will decide on a policy to be carried out not only as regards the present picture-play, which began the trouble, but as regards all future theatrical productions. Under the provisions of the

Think Photo-Play Is Safe

The theatre men yesterday expressed the belief that, unjust as such legislation as that just passed might be, the three censors named would not interfere with "The Birth of a Nation" since it did not come under the provisions of the statute.

The supporters of the bill, on the other hand, are jubilant over its passage and express the opinion that the censors must immediately suppress "The Birth of a Nation."

It is given out by leaders of the colored people that Mayor Curley has now no longer the excuse that there is "not sufficient law" to back up his prohibition of the movie play. They will ask him to act at once. If he does not the colored people will put the matter publicly up to the censors.

The Equal Rights League met last night at the offices of the newspaper, the Guardian, to discuss precise action in the matter.

The managers of the Tremont Theatre and the film concern are simply waiting for action. They declare, however, that the censors will favor them.

BILL NOW A LAW

ery performance heaps new un- ved ignominy upon the negro race, we think it should be stopped at We hope to let not a day elapse e we request the censors to act," lined Mr. Trotter last night, ing for the Equal Rights League, is a State branch of a national ctive association among the col- people.

"censorship bill" now being a the armies on both sides of the h of a Nation" war are recon- ing and massing their forces, ratory to beginning fresh hostilior Curley, Police Commissioner ara and Chief Justice Wilfred

MOTION PICTURE WORLD (N. Y. City)
MAY 22, 1915

THE RACE PREJUDICE BILL.

The so-called "Birth of a Nation" bill, roviding for a board of censors consisting of the Mayor of Boston, the Police Commissioner and the Chief Justice of he Municipal court to pass on theatrical exhibitions has been advanced to a third reading in the Massachusetts House of Representatives after a stormy debate by a vote of 94 to 31.

The opponents of the bill based their argument on the claim that this bill was founded entirely on the protest of he negroes against this certain film play. The members of the Committee on Judiciary, which reported the bill, declared that this was not the case.

Representative Kennard, chairman of the committee, explained that the committee found that the law is different in Boston from any other part of the state.

On other places, the local authorities may stop a film for any reason whatsoever, while in Boston, it may only be stopped when it is found to be obscene or immoral.

Representative Dowse declared that the picture is an insidious attack upon the North. He said, "If my nation was born when the Ku Klux Klan was organized, then I am willing to sell my birthright for a mess of pottage."

Representative Donovan of Boston opposed the bill and criticised the negroes for what he said was an attempt to start a riot in front of the theater the night many arrests were made. He said 80,000 persons have seen the picture and not one has been incited to crime. He said the Jew, the Irish, and the Italian have been ridiculed for years on the stage, but it is left for the negro to register the first complaint.

Representative Washburn of Worcester urged that the bill be not treated as one designed solely to remedy a possible wrong to the colored race, as it gives to properly and fairly constituted authorities power to prevent any production which ought to be prevented.

During the hearing the gallery was filled with colored people who caused the introduction of the bill.

Representative Washburn was loudly applauded when he declared "That the Republican party could not afford to turn its back on the colored people." He spoke for the silent minority he said.

This bill would give the power to the three officials to stop any production, but their vote as to whether a production should be stopped must be unanimous. Representative Rowley of Brookline, intends to submit an amendment which will allow the vote of two of the three members to stop the production.

Frank Brown, formerly of the Beacon theater, Boston, and the Mystic theater, Malden, has been appointed manager of the Allston theater, Allston, Mass.

New York Post. May 28, 1915

PING FROM Mirror
NEW YORK MAIL
MAY 20 1915

CHICAGO AND BOSTON AGAINST GRIFFITH FILM

Windy City Mayor Refuses License to the "Birth of a Nation."

SENATE OF MASS. ACTS

Passes Bill to Permit Boston Officials to Prevent Picture Being Shown.

Chicago has officially barred the film, "The Birth of a Nation," and the Massachusetts Senate has passed an act designed especially to keep the Griffith picture production out of Boston.

The bill adopted by the Bay State Senate makes the mayor and police commissioner of Boston and the chief justice of the municipal court a board to pass on the propriety of all theatrical productions.

This is called "The Birth of a Nation" bill, and, while designed immediately to keep that film out of the effete Hub, the legislation may be of great moment to producers of regular plays.

Mayor Thompson of Chicago personally has interposed an emphatic NO to "The Birth of a Nation" in the Windy City, where it was to have been shown in the Illinois Theatre.

"Not as long as I remain in the mayor's chair," said Mr. Thompson, "will this panorama starting with the importation of African slaves to this country and ending with the distressing tragedies of reconstruction days in the South after the Civil War be shown in a Chicago theatre."

Interesting in this connection is that Carter H. Harrison, Mr. Thompson's predecessor in the mayor's chair of Chicago, issued a license for "The Birth of a Nation" upon the advice of Mrs. Harrison.

When the question of the suitability of the film came up, Mr. Harrison asked his wife and Charles C. Fitzmaurice, his secretary, to see the film and report upon it.

Secretary Fitzmaurice then issued the permit. The theatre proprietors, however, thought it best to ask the new administration for a permit before going ahead and met with the new Mayor's resounding "No!"

Motion Picture World May 15, 1915

MOTION PICTURE WORLD (N. Y. City)
MAY 15, 1915

Mrs. Carter H. Harrison recently requested several Chicago dailies to publish that she did not approve of "The Birth of a Nation." "I do not approve of it and believe it should not be shown," she said. "While it is a great picture from the producer's standpoint, it is the most awful thing I have seen. It would arouse racial feeling. I am a Southerner and you really would expect me to oppose such pictures

DAYTON (O.) JOURNAL
MAY 19, 1915

PROTEST AGAINST FILMS.—In a communication to Mayor Shroyer, Secretary William O. Stokes, of the Dayton branch of the National Association for Advancement of Colored People, protest is made against showing "The Nigger," and "Birth of a Nation," in local picture houses.

(N. Y. City)

No State Censorship

In California, General Public Wants No State Interference with Censoring Films —Public Debate in Berkeley Shows Strong Opinion Against It—Press and Public Agree on Its Dangers—Local Authorities Have Ample Power.

By T. A. Church, San Francisco Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

THE agitation that has been under way in a number of California cities of late for the establishment of local boards of censorship does not seem to have made much headway, and it is not likely that any legislation will be passed for the formation of such bodies. The public debate on film censorship held recently at the Shattuck Hotel, Berkeley, Cal., a leading suburb of San Francisco, brought forcibly to the front the fact that the general public is not in favor of regulation of this character and practically all of the addresses that were made were against the proposition. That the present police powers in that city are ample to cope with any situation that may arise may be judged from the fact that the chief of police recently informed a leading exhibitor that it would be unwise for him to book "The Clansman" as the presentation of this production would not be allowed.

At Fresno, Cal., the agitation for local censorship has been even stronger than it has been at Berkeley, but from present indications there is no danger of adverse legislation along this line there. The press of that city, scenting in the agitation for film censorship a movement for the censorship of news, threw open the columns of the daily publications to discussions of the subject, and several splendid articles appeared from the pens of leading citizens expressing opposition to the plan. In other localities plans for censorship have been nipped in the bud and invariably the agitation has been stopped when it has been made clear that public opinion has been against the proposition.

CHICAGO (Ill.) TRIBUNE
MAY 16, 1915

'BIRTH OF THE NATION' FILM BARRED TO PREVENT RIOTS.

Mayor Tells Why He Forbid Production in Chicago of Photoplay Based on "The Clansman."

Mayor Thompson yesterday commented on his refusal to allow the exhibition of "The Birth of the Nation," a photoplay founded on Thomas Dixon's novel "The Clansman."

"Whatever power there is in the mayor's office," he said, "will be used to stop this film or any other films that reflect on any race or nationality. I won't grant my permission for the production of a picture just to give a theatrical man a chance to charge $2 a seat. Complaint was made to me that this particular photoplay was the cause of race riots in the east. We want nothing of that in Chicago."

The mayor authorized the auditing of the books in the city collector's office by the firm of Haskins & Sells. City Collector Forsberg made the request for the audit.

Eve. Telegraph, Philadelphia May 7, 1915

PROTEST "MOVIE" FILM

Colored Delegation Asks Mayor to Prevent "Birth of a Nation."

A delegation of colored citizens called upon Mayor Blankenburg at his office in City Hall today and asked him to prevent a moving picture film called "The Birth of a Nation," from being exhibited at a Philadelphia theatre in November next. The delegation consisted of Dr. N. F. Mossell, of the Douglas Hospital; Rev. H. H. Cooper, Rev. N. G. Arnett, former Congressman George H. White, Dr. J. Max Barber, of the Society for the Advancement of Colored People; Rev. Spencer Carpenter and Mrs. N. F. Mossell. Mr. White, who headed the delegation, explained to the Mayor that the picture was a reproduction of the "Clansman," by Rev. Thomas Dixon, the production of which was stopped at a trial playhouse by Mayor Weaver, in 1905. The moving picture had been permitted to be presented in New York City and Boston, after several scenes, which it was thought would cause racial feelings had been eliminated. Mr. White said that the State Board of Censors of Pennsylvania had approved of the film of the production, but he asked the Mayor to prevent the picture being shown in Philadelphia.

The Mayor said that he would look into the matter, and see what authority he possessed in the face of the fact that the film had been approved by the State Board of Censors.

New York Post. May 19, 1915

CENSORSHIP BILL BECOMES LAW.

Municipal Authorities in Massachusetts Can Now Control Film Plays.

The bill giving the power of censorship over moving-picture films to the Chief Magistrate, the Chief of Police, and the Mayor of a city has passed the Massachusetts Legislature and has been signed by the Governor, according to a statement issued to-day by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

An amendment advocated by the Boston branch of the Association was incorporated in the measure after a hard fight and is now a part of the law. It makes a majority instead of a unanimous vote necessary for a decision. The Boston branch will at once start its campaign to stop the film play "The Birth of a Nation."

In Mayor Thompson's unqualified refusal to permit the exhibition of "The Birth of a Nation" in Chicago, the opponents of the notorious photo-play gain a double victory. The promoters had made a barefaced plea that the spectacle has "a note of optimism, brotherly love, and readjustment of racial conditions intended to soothe and brighten," but this the press and the Mayor riddled. The play's exclusion must also assist in defeating a bill pending at Springfield to abolish the Chicago Board of Censorship, which has a reputation for great watchfulness and efficiency, and which is cordially hated by certain manufacturers. The spectacle of Chicago showing greater moral courage than Boston in this matter can scarcely please the sons of New England abolitionists. In Boston, however, Dr. Eliot and his supporters have gained a new success, the Senate having amended the Boston or bill so that two of the three censors may now revoke a license for a public entertainment. The former requirement was that the officers must unanimously agree. It is notable that speakers in Chicago hailed the play as having a "riot-provoking record"; it is beginning to carry a stamp that may yet cut short its career.

PRESIDENT WILSON DID NOT ENDORSE PICTURE

Griffith Picture Shown at White House Merely for Old Acquaintance.

"The Birth of a Nation" has not been given the endorsement of President Wilson, according to a statement issued last week from the White House, and efforts to make it appear that it had the approval of Mr. Wilson were met in a letter directed to Congressman Gallagher, of Massachusetts, by Secretary to the President, J. P. Tumulty, which reads as follows:

My Dear Mr. Gallagher: Replying to your recent letter and enclosures, I beg to say that it is true that "The Birth of a Nation" was produced before the President and his family at the White House, but the President was entirely unaware of the character of the play before it was presented, and has at no time expressed his approbation of it, the exhibition at the White House being a courtesy to an old acquaintance.

Sincerely yours,
J. P. TUMULTY.

The production was shown before months ago at a private exhibition at the White House, at which only a few members of the Cabinet, aside from the President and his immediate family were present, an account of which appeared in the Washington column of the World, by Thomas Dixon, the author of "The Clansman." Mr. Dixon and the President were classmates during their student days at the Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore, and, as Mr. Tumulty states in his letter, the affair was extended to a friend.

PORTSMOUTH (N. H.) HERALD
MAY 19, 1915

given out on what is claimed to be the best of authority the motive behind the photo-play, "The Birth of a Nation" which has made a decided stir in many parts of the country, was to lead to the deportation of all negroes, leaving the country strictly in the hands of white men. It was indeed

Could Not Interfere

Judge [illegible] Gives Hearing to Mayor on Protesting Against Griffith Film—Has Talk with City Officials, Finds Nothing That Would Give Him Right to Prohibit Its Showing, Said Mr. Jackson.

[illegible] Correspondent of [illegible] Post's Post's World.

[illegible] Chinaman," from [illegible] the play is taken, calling it a [illegible] [illegible] to Ameri[illegible] citizenship [illegible] the colored [illegible] Mr. Joseph Prince [illegible] Boston and [illegible] who claimed to have seen the [illegible] New York. He criticised the [illegible] the activities of the "Ku Klux K[illegible]" and other illicit [illegible] in the South [illegible] the war, which he portrayed in [illegible] pictures.

He was [illegible] the mayor that [illegible] could not be eliminated and that the best way to [illegible] such things would be to stop the [illegible] of histories.

William Monroe Trotter, publisher of a paper devoted to the interests of the colored race, whom President Wilson asserts insulting him in Washington, was the next speaker. In his speech he told how he had supported Curley for mayor and expected that the mayor would put the ban on the film. Dr. Francis H. Rowley, president of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, was the last speaker for the opposition.

Attorney John F. Cusack opened the case for the Griffith interests by stating that out of 200 persons appearing in opposition to the film, but three had seen it. He said the play shows the people what [illegible] are enjoying at the present time in contrast to the past. He also presented the final report of the National Board of Censorship.

[illegible] film was first presented [illegible] East room of the White House, before President Wilson and the members of his cabinet. He claimed that they declared it to be wonderful. At this point [illegible] in the assembly hissed loudly. The [illegible] gavel for order and [illegible] were required to cause [illegible] to continued to tell of the [illegible] personages in public and [illegible] who had witnessed the production and declared it to be superior to [illegible] had ever witnessed. These remarks were also hissed. David Wark Griffith was then introduced. He said that protestations of this kind were [illegible] that the Indians could protest [illegible] for in most Western pictures they are depicted killing white men. He read a letter from a Catholic priest [illegible] with the Columbiad, the official [illegible] of Columbus paper, commending [illegible] the film, also three letters from [illegible] New York wishing to [illegible] their parish schools to [illegible] in New York, also six [illegible] principals of New York educational institutions, who praised the play and wished their scholars to see it. The [illegible] asked him if he would be [illegible] to eliminate the cliff scene and [illegible] stated that he would if the officials thought it advisable after [illegible] the exhibition.

[illegible] then said: "My power is [illegible] matter. I do not want to [illegible] capital out of it and I do not want to hurt a legitimate firm doing [illegible] The people seem to want everything [illegible] to the negro eliminated from the film. Are there not good negroes [illegible] Are there not bad whites as [illegible] Do you want the assassination [illegible] but not? Why, the white [illegible] country would protest that. [illegible] remember that history cannot [illegible]

[illegible] the mayor was interrupted [illegible] William M. Trotter, who stated that [illegible] voters had supported the [illegible] who was elected to office. The [illegible] This photoplay [illegible] produced in this city. I will have [illegible] of the municipality [illegible] and I will notify the police commissioner to have his censor there. If this film violates the law it shall be stopped. I shall not take any hand in the matter. You people have stated your case. You have used no evidence that I could use in stopping at least one performance."

The first performance was given on Friday evening to an invited audience, composed of many public officials, theater men, newspaper men and others. The mayor was present and enjoyed the production immensely.

The official censors reported that the production was neither obscene or immoral. However, the mayor requested that many minor changes be made in the film. The statement which he issued follows:

"With the desire that the fullest possible measure of justice be accorded the colored citizenship of Boston, I attended the production last evening and to-day requested the management to eliminate the prefatory statement thrown on the screen at the opening of the performance, believing it unfair to the colored citizenship. The statement in question is as follows: 'The bringing of the African to America in the seventeenth century planted the first seed of disunion.' This request was complied with.

"I requested the elimination of a portion of the chase of the white girl by Gus. I further requested the management to eliminate at least five exhibitions of the face of Gus, to which objection had been made. I further requested certain scenes, while not immoral or obscene, yet might be offensive to certain of the public, descriptive of the visit of Charles Sumner to the home of Austin Stoneman and his meeting with the mulatto woman there be eliminated. I further requested that certain scenes between the mulatto woman and Austin Stoneman and between the mulatto woman and Silas Lynch be eliminated.

"I further requested that portions of the reels portraying scenes in the South Carolina House of Representatives where a member is shown removing his shoes and the consideration by such assembly of a motion requiring the member to replace his shoes, be eliminated.

"To these requests the management has assented. In addition thereto the changes made in the original films while exhibiting in New York will be in force in Boston."

CHICAGO (Ill.) TRIBUNE
MAY 19, 1915

RACE FILM BILL PASSES IN HOUSE ON NEGRO'S PLEA

Jackson Wins Votes Barring "Nigger," "Clansman," as Inciting to Riot.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Springfield, Ill., May 18.—[Special.]—"The Nigger," "The Clansman," and "The Birth of a Nation" movies will be barred from exhibition in Illinois by the terms of Representative Jackson's bill, which passed the house tonight by a vote of 111 to 2.

Representative Jackson is one of the two colored Republican members of the house from Chicago, representing in part the exclusive Kenwood district on the south side.

Speech Fires House.

He made a speech which set the house on fire, brought members to their feet, and won a decisive victory over those who were attempting to defeat the bill he had introduced.

Representative Jackson charged in closing the debate that the moving picture interests were behind the effort to kill his bill. The measure prohibits the exhibition of any film that shows a lynching or unlawful hanging and is based on the theory that presentation of such pictures tends to race hatred and to rioting.

Calls Bill Too Sweeping.

Representative Louis J. Pierson of Winnette led the fight against the bill. He made an extended argument, alleging that the bill as drawn affects much more than the negro race difficulties. He contended in his speech that the bill if it becomes a law prohibits in a religious way the use of any reproduction of the crucifixion in any church, any film which would raise the racial issue in any form, and in effect would put the movies out of business.

SAN FRANCISCO (Cal.) EXAMINER
MAY 19, 1915

Also [illegible] subject to "The Clansman."

In protest against further exhibitions of the motion picture film "The Clansman," being shown at the Bloodgood Theatre in Oakland, a delegation of Oakland negroes appeared before the city council yesterday. Mott explained that inasmuch as no section of the city ordinance governing theatrical or motion picture productions is being violated in the production, it is beyond the power of the censorship board to take any action.

BANGOR (Me.) COMMERCIAL
MAY 1, 1915

engaged in war, and that is not looked for here.

WM. H. LEWIS SEES THE PRESIDENT ABOUT FILM

Washington, May 1.—W. H. Lewis, a Boston negro and former assistant attorney general of the United States, and Bishop Alexander Walters of the African Methodist Episcopal church of New Jersey, called at the White House Friday to inquire about reports that President Wilson had given his endorsement to a moving picture film, depicting scenes during the reconstruction period, in a manner distasteful to negroes.

Secretary Tumulty showed them a letter to H. R. Thatcher of Massachusetts, saying that while the film was once shown at the White House as a courtesy to a former classmate of the President, the President was unaware of its character and has at no time expressed approbation of it.

[illegible] JOURNAL

WOULD BAN MOVIES THAT EXCITE RACES

Hopkins Resolution Makes Police Department Censor of City Pictures

OBJECTS TO TAKING INUNDATED HOUSES

[illegible]

Herald [illegible]

NOT INDORSED BY PRESIDENT.

Has Taken No Stand on "The Birth of a Nation."

HERALD BUREAU,
No. 1,342 H STREET, N. W.,
WASHINGTON, D. C., Friday.

President Wilson is experiencing some annoyance because of an impression which is gaining ground that he endorsed the photoplay, "The Birth of a Nation," which is said to reflect on the negro race. The motion picture was presented at the White House recently at a special performance attended by Mr. Wilson, several members of the Cabinet and their families.

In an effort to put an end to the report that the picture has Mr. Wilson's endorsement, Joseph P. Tumulty, secretary to the President, made public a letter to-day written to Representative Thomas C. Thatcher, of Massachusetts, which said:—

"MY DEAR MR. THATCHER:—Replying to your recent letter and inclosures, I beg to say that it is true that the "Birth of a Nation" was produced before the President and his family at the White House, but the President was entirely unaware of the character of the play before it was presented, and has at no time expressed his approbation of it. Its exhibition at the White House was a courtesy extended to an old acquaintance. Sincerely yours,

"J. P. TUMULTY."

"The Birth of a Nation" is based on Thomas Dixon's book, "The Clansman." Mr. Dixon was a classmate of Mr. Wilson at Johns Hopkins.

May 24, 1915

...h of Nation Case Dismi...

...ten adjournments, the summons against Harry E. Aitken and D. ...ith, producers of the film play "...th of a Nation," was dismissed ...tate Herbert in Jefferson Mar... ...rt to-day. The National Asso... for the Advancement of Colored ...caused the summons to be is... ...rging that the film was a public ... Some changes were made in ... and it was decided to withdraw ...plaint.

OAKLAND TRIBUNE
MAY 25, 1915

BOOKER T. WASHINGTON AND "THE CLANSMAN."

To the Editor: Kindly allow me space ...your excellent paper to give a state... ...nt from Booker T. Washington, in re... ...rds to "The Clansman." Rev. Camp... ...ll of the Congregational church, Thirty... ...th and Grove streets, delivered a lec... ...re recently as to his opinion as to what ...ooker T. Washington would say in re... ...rd to "The Clansman." Three days ...terwards Dr. Booker T. Washington ...t out a statement to the colored ...pers and the world in general. I quote ...part of it that the public may fully ...ow and feel as we of the colored race ...l towards the film.

"Tuskegee Institute, Alabama,
"May 21, 1915.

Editor of the Defender: I wish to urge ... people everywhere to take time by ... forelock and adopt in advance such ...asures as will prevent the production ...the photoplay "The Birth of a Na..." in any community, north or south. ...n each town where there is a possi... ...y of this play being put on, it would ...well to have a committee of citizens ...presenting the churches, the schools ... the business men take the initiative ...dging a suitable objection. The play ...ndamentally wrong in that it at... ...pts to deal with the development of ...rica since the abolition of slavery ...gnoring the substantial progress of ...negro race and emphasizing the cruel ...nderstandings of the readjustment ...d in which unfortunate individuals ...oth races figured.

...o matter how many other artistic ...historic features the play may have, ...ultimate result will be to intensify ...prejudice and thereby do great and ...g harm to both races.

"BOOKER T. WASHINGTON."

...may be of interest to the reading ... to know that Major R. R. Jackson, ...entative in the Illinois Legislature ... the third district, has just suc... ...d in introducing and have passed by ...e of 110 to 2, a bill to prevent the ...ction of such films. The first sec... ...f the bill reads as follows:

... It enacted by the people of the ... of Illinois, represented in the ...al Assembly, that any corporation, ... or combination of persons who ...advertise, publish, present or ex... ...r cause to be advertised, published, ...ted, or exhibited or cause to be ex... ... to any public place in this State ...tograph, drawing, picture play ... or sketch that tends to incite race ...r race hatred or that shall repre... ... purport to represent any hanging, ...g or burning of any human being ... by race hatred shall be guilty of ...demeanor and fined not less than ...or more than $1000 for each of...

... bill is known as House bill No. 131 ...he last session of the Senate of ... law was passed similar in effect.

D. L. REASU...

...P.GUS
...NY, N. Y.
...MAY 25 1915

...ite opposition from colored men ...y York, "The Birth of a Nation," ...avid Griffith feature film is ...ng the Liberty theatre to the ...every afternoon and night. It is ...lly regarded as the last word in ...m.

SACRAMENTO (Cal.) UNION
MAY 27, 1915

Negroes Ask City to Bar "Clansman"

Announcement of Strong Racial ... in Movies at Clunie Brings Forth Protest.

...'s "Clansman," a strong racial ... may not be shown in the movies at the Clunie theater during the next two weeks, as planned, as a delegation of Sacramento negro residents appeared before Commissioner E. J. Carraghar yesterday and asked that he bar the theater management from producing the work. Governor Johnson, who is credited in advertisements with having indorsed the picture, has told the local negroes that he has never approved the work and has always thought it could be productive of only prejudice and ill-feeling.

The National Board of Moving Picture Censors has approved the "Clansman," although the question causes a breach in its ranks. Carraghar will investigate before taking action.

The negro delegation that called on the commissioner yesterday consisted of R. A. Johnson, E. W. Robinson, F. J. Butler, P. F. O'Reilly, T. D. Walker, J. T. Beasley, F. A. Butler, W. B. Smith, E. D. Johnson, Rev. E. R. Guy, Rev. N. M. Dixon, James Brinson, W. H. De Claybrook, R. J. Fletcher, C. P. Allen, W. F. Taylor, J. T. Buchanan, W. L. Howard, L. F. Quinn, R. F. White, W. B. Kennedy, Mrs. E. W. Robinson, Mrs. F. A. Butler, Mrs. ... M. ...

ASK MAYOR FOR HEARING ON "THE BIRTH OF NATION"

A public hearing on the question of the presentation in Boston of the motion picture play, "The Birth of a Nation," has been asked of Mayor Curley. The request comes from the Boston branch of the Association for the Advancement of Colored People. This association passed resolutions saying that the film engendered race hatred, and was a libel on the negro race.

The resolutions have been signed by prominent Bostonians, including Francis J. Garrison and Rev. Horace Bumstead. The play is based on Rev. Thomas Dixon's "The Clansman," and deals with the reconstruction period after the Civil War.

Among the resolutions passed by the Society for the Advancement of the Colored Race was this one, which was sent to the Mayor:—

"My Dear Sir: At a meeting of the board of directors of Boston branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, held today, the enclosed resolution was unanimously adopted requesting a hearing for the purpose of opposing the production of "The Birth of a Nation" in Boston. And I respectfully request that such a hearing be granted at some early date prior to April 10, 1915."

BOSTON (Mass.) POST
MAY 31, 1915

NEWTON PASTOR SCORES "BIRTH OF A NATION"

The Rev. Harry Lutz, pastor of the Channing Unitarian Church, Newton, vigorously denounced the photo play "The Birth of a Nation," in his Memorial Day sermon, yesterday morning. He characterized the picture as being an untruthful depiction of history and declared that its motive is toward renewing the racial unequality of former days.

OAKLAND (Cal.) TRIBUNE
MAY 25, 1915

TRUTH ABOUT "THE CLANSMAN."

To the Editor: "The Clansman" presents the horrors of war and its long train of heart-breaking miseries in such striking realism that it almost seems that no argument for peace could equal the force of this play. How anyone can witness its battle scenes and afterward defend that sublimation of all woes and crimes called war is a mystery to the writer. Never before have the people of this generation been so close to the frightful years of our civil strife as in this "movie." If its influence shall be, as it ought to be, to increase our abhorence of all war, we can forgive much that is objectionable, and surely there is much to forgive.

"The Clansman's" distortions of history begin with the rise of the curtain and continue with consistency to the close. The inscriptions are rather worse than the pictures, and these are bad enough. The statement that "sovereignty" of any state was so much as threatened by Lincoln's election is now a universally admitted falsehood. As stated by Lincoln, in his first inaugural, he possessed no power, and felt no inclination to interfere with the domestic institutions of any state. African slavery, abhorent as it was to the mind of the North, was not imperilled in the least where it already existed by the triumph of the Republican party. This is now a known fact of history which no candid man disputes. So far were the Southern leaders masters of the situation that almost every demand made by them as conditional to the preservation of the Union was timidly granted by Congress and the country. No state was forced into secession. This fact should never be forgotten.

The presentation of Charles Sumner given in the play is enough to stir the resentment of all loyal Americans. So far from being the tool of Thaddeus Stevens, known in the play as Austin Stoneman, Sumner's great limitation was that he could never bend in the least to the opinions of others, and his only mistake was, as the distinguished Southerner, Justice Lamar, once said, that he was usually a year ahead of all his colleagues in seeing what must next be done.

The pictures given of the Ku Klux Klan constitute another monstrous perversion of truth and fact. It is not denied that at times these midnight riders defended the weak against the strong, but in the main the clans were a curse to the whole country, North and South. In the reign of terror which the Ku Klux inaugurated, the fact is that the best men often fared the worst. It was not alone the degenerate negro who met just punishment at the hands of these self-appointed guardians of the people, but the colored man whose industry, integrity and ability gave to him a little prominence, such men, wherever found, were the sure victims of the clan. Gentle ladies from the North who were giving their lives to teaching the freed-man to become self-supporting and self-respecting were the especial objects of wrath on the part of these sheeted villains. President Wilson is quoted in the inscriptions as approving the Ku Klux raiders, whereas in the very chapter from which these inscriptions are taken, Woodrow Wilson says: "Brutal crimes were committed; the innocent suffered with the guilty; a reign of terror was brought on, and society was infinitely more disturbed than defended." I respectfully suggest that the managers of "The Clansman" add these words to the misleading quotations they have so adroitly selected.

The worst distortion of the history of that dark time relates to the negro. In the character Gus, the African is misrepresented and cruelly maligned. The impression is given that the negro, above other men, is guilty of the most abominable of all crimes, the brutal treatment of woman. The fact is that all degenerate and ignorant men of all races and colors are liable to this monstrous indulgence of the passions, but that the negro is more guilty than others in this respect has never been proven. During the war the men of the South were often obliged to leave their women and children in the sole care and protection of their black slaves, and to the eternal honor of the negro, there was hardly a case in which that trust was abused.

The notion that the Ku Klux Klan were defenders of Southern civilization and saved southern women from the ravishing negro is abundantly disproved by the thirteen large volumes of sworn testimony, now to be found in the congressional library at Washington, proving conclusively that these supposed chivalrous gentlemen were guilty, again and again, of the worst crimes ever charged against the negro. If the people knew these facts, would they cheer these mounted marauders as they appear upon the screen?

From this review, it is evident that as history "The Clansman" is untrue, and its influence must therefore be evil. Its vivid presentation of the horrors of war to some extent atones for the evil, and for this we are thankful.

WILLIAM DAY SIMONDS.

Oakland, May 24, 1915.

SACRAMENTO (Cal.) UNION
MAY 28, 1915

CLANSMAN WILL BE EXPURGATED BY CENSOR

T. J. Carraghar, commissioner of education, last night gave Peter Wilson, manager of the Clunie theater, permission to run an abbreviated film showing Dixon's "Clansman" in movies for the next two weeks. When the announcement of the coming of the "Clansman" was made local colored people objected to Carraghar and convinced him that certain portions of the picture were objectionable and were liable to cause race hatred. With the objectionable portion of the reel eliminated the plot of the story is not affected, but is picked up at the breaking point and not missed.

MAY 28, 1915
PHOENIX (Ariz.) GAZETTE

OBJECT TO CLANSMAN.

The negro population of the city has decided to take concerted action against the proposed showing of the films illustrating "The Clansman" at a local theater. A petition is to be presented to the city commissioners tomorrow asking that the showing of the films be forbidden in Phoenix. It is claimed by the negro leaders that the book is a distorted and absolutely incorrect statement of facts and that the films exaggerate even the errors of the book.

...COUNCIL

Brooklyn, (N. Y.) Standard-Union

AUG 7 8

COLORED FOLKS OBJECT TO "BIRTH OF A NATION"

A petition signed by three hundred leading colored citizens of New York City was sent to Gov. Whitman last week protesting against the further continuance of "The Birth of a Nation," a moving picture play. The petition says that if continued it will spread a germ of race hatred that will further complicate the negro problem, and will eventually bring on a situation that will result in a riot. The petition was circulated by Cleveland G. Allen, of 252 West Fifty-third street, Manhattan. This protest to the Governor will be followed by one to Mayor Mitchel.

July 24 Eve. Post

PROTEST "BIRTH OF NATION" PICTURE

Complaint Lodged With City Commissioners by Colored League Members.

Protest against the production of "The Birth of a Nation," the motion picture dramatization of Thomas Dixon's "The Clansman," was lodged with the city commission this morning by a committee from the Colored Citizens' league, composed of Thomas A. A. Parrotte, E. C. Burgess and Dr. William J. Parks. The attitude of the colored citizens toward the showing of the picture here was explained by Mayor Clarence E. F. Hetrick, who said the protest would be referred to City Solicitor J. Otto Rhome for an immediate opinion.

"Will that be satisfactory?" the mayor asked of Mr. Parrotte, spokesman for the league committee.

Mr. Parrotte looked a bit puzzled. "Well, I don't know what else you can do unless you suppress the picture."

The commission didn't seem inclined to Trinish the picture from town without opinion from Mr. Rhome.

Mr. Parrotte opposed the picture on the grounds that it tends to degrade rather than elevate the colored race. Prejudice against the colored race is shown thruout the picture he said, and it should not be allowed to be produced either here or anywhere else.

When the question of beach concession advertisements was broached Commissioner William C. Burroughs asked the commission's attitude on the bathing privileges, and whether they should be advertised, inasmuch as the lease with Mitchell and Fry had been extended for another year by the old beach commission. The question will be discussed at Friday's meeting. It is likely at this time also the garbage contract may be awarded.

A petition of protest against the erection of a fence along the west side of the railroad at the main station and barring passage to west Cookman avenue, was presented by property owners of the affected territory, who claimed that the fence was in violation of a city ordinance providing for the extension of Cookman avenue west of the tracks. The petition bore 78 signatures. The commission was not sure that an ordinance extending the avenue had been adopted by the city and referred the matter to the city solicitor for immediate action.

George Bariscillo, acting as spokesman for the residents of west Cookman avenue, said erection of the fence, which is now partly completed, would depreciate the value of property in that section. All the residents there wanted, he said, was what they had had in the past. He questioned the legal right of the railroad company to put up the fence.

Mayor Hetrick informed the protestants the commission would do everything it could to keep the street open.

NEWPORT (R. I.) NEWS
AUG. 30, 1915

NOT TO BE SHOWN HERE.

Says Burlingame Would Oppose the Film, "The Birth of a Nation."

Manager Miller of the Opera House Abandons Plan, Another Theatre May Take It Up.

Manager Miller of the Opera House will not attempt to bring "The Birth of a Nation" to Newport, in consequence of the opposition to showing the film here. Instead, he is calling attention to another house of his circuit, running the picture in Fall River, which permits those Newporters who desire to see it by going there. Mayor Burlingame, after hearing many remonstrances against the display of the picture in Newport, states that he would oppose any effort to show it here, and as Manager Miller has received many protests at the Opera House he considers it poor policy to deal any further with the matter.

On the other hand, there is a possibility that later more may be heard about this picture in Newport, as another theatre manager suggests that it may not be necessary to abide by the agitation of a few objectors. He says the showing of the picture has been made an issue and the courts have approved it, and if he decides to run it he will procure an injunction to prevent interference by the authorities.

This is only prospective and apparently only a dim possibility, for a Providence theatre manager has desired to extend the showing in that city, and because of the bookings of the film in New England it was reported that he secured a continuance only by bringing a new film into New England and that it cost him $5,000 for the week, the largest price ever paid in this part of the country for a week's run of any picture.

BROOKLYN, (N. Y.) EAGLE

Date ..... AUG 8 1915

GRIFFITH FILM CONTINUES.

That arrangements may be made to enable school children of the borough and thousands of Brooklynites returning from their vacations, William H. Kemble of the Brighton Beach Music Hall, where "The Birth of a Nation" is being presented, has decided to keep the playhouse open until October 4. It was the original intention of the management to give the last performance of "The Birth of a Nation" on Labor Day. The heads of several private Brooklyn institutions wrote Mr. Kemble advising that he keep the Brighton Beach Music Hall open until after the schools begin their sessions that they might take their classes to see it in a body.

PITTSBURG (Pa.) POST
AUG. 31, 1915

PLAY IS PERMITTED TO START IN NIXON

Court Allows "The Birth of a Nation" to Open Pending Equity Argument Friday.

Pending a hearing Friday morning on equity proceedings instituted by the Nixon Theater Company to restrain Mayor Joseph G. Armstrong and the police department from interfering with the production of the motion picture play, "The Birth of a Nation," Judge Ambrose B. Reid in common pleas court yesterday gave the theater company permission to open the show, as scheduled, tomorrow evening.

In a bill in equity filed yesterday the theater company points out that the play has been passed and approved by the national board of censorship and contends that it does not engender racial prejudice. The play, it is claimed, is historical and has been shown in New York, Chicago, Brooklyn, Los Angeles, Milwaukee and Spokane without arousing race feeling. A certificate of the Pennsylvania board of censorship approving and licensing the play is attached to the bill.

When the paper was read before the court yesterday afternoon Judge Reid ordered the Nixon Theater Company to give bond in $300 for protection against possible violence which City Solicitor Charles A. O'Brien said might result.

The proceedings are the outcome of a statement made recently by Mayor Armstrong that negro residents of Pittsburgh had complained that the play tended to incite race hatred, therefore he could not permit its production. The show has been booked for six weeks from Septem-

HAVERHILL (Mass.) GAZETTE
AUG. 30, 1915

COLORED FOLKS PROTEST MOVIES

Appear Before Council Claiming Scenes in Birth of Nation are Objectionable

Rev. William L. Cousins and William H. Gundy, representing the colored citizens of Haverhill and members of a committee appointed to protest against the picture "Birth of a Nation" which are scheduled to be shown in the Colonial theatre next week, appeared before the city council this forenoon to voice their objections.

When the subject came before the council in a petition last week signed by the committee that the pictures not be permitted it was referred to Alderman Hoyt. Alderman Hoyt wrote a long letter to the committee stating that Mayor Bartlett and himself had seen the films and that there were no objectionable feature but that these had been cut out of the original production.

Rev. Mr. Cousins and Mr. Gundy both stated in response to questions by Mayor Bartlett that they had neither of them seen the performance but that they voiced their objections from the reported accounts of it. The mayor said that the petitioners could see the performance and that if there was anything objectionable to them that the management would cut it out and he said that this had been agreed to on the part of the managers of the theatre.

Mr. Gundy said that it was a question in his mind whether the judgment of Alderman Hoyt should overrule the 650 colored people in the city. He said he thought the council should have granted a hearing and have the defects in teh play pointed out.

"In my judgment," said Mr. Gundy, "this play is designed to destroy the good name of the colored people not only in this state but throughout the United States. It is doing as much harm or more harm than some books that have been written. It is not the better class of white people we have trouble with. In the south the rich man's child and the poor man's child are raised together. My mother perhaps nursed those children. But there is another element in your ranks coming in contact with them in these theatres which will get somebody into trouble."

Mr. Gundy read an account of the play from a clipping, but Mayor Bartlett and Alderman Hoyt said that the features referred to in the clipping had been cut out.

Mayor Bartlett said: "There is no member of this council who does not feel the greatest friendliness toward all races, yours as well as others. If there is anything in this play, after you have seen it, that is offensive to you, or considered an insult to your race, I think the theatre management will remove it."

Alderman Stickney said that he had not seen the play, but if there was anything in it the colored people object to, it should not be permitted.

Alderman Hoyt said that the management would cut out anything that the committee objected to after it had seen the play.

Rev. Mr. Cousins objected to a portion which depicted the legislature in session and the colored men drinking whiskey and eating peanuts. He said this was not true to history as he had read it.

"As law-abiding citizens of this city," said Rev. Mr. Cousins, "we ask that this play be not allowed to appear here."

It was decided that Rev. Mr. Cousins, Alderman Hoyt and Manager Elliott confer on the subject to decide what should be eliminated.

ST. LOUIS (Mo.) STAR
AUG. 30, 1915

"BIRTH OF A NATION" FILM GETS NEW PERMIT TO RUN

"The Birth of a Nation," the feature film which opened at the Olympic Theater last night under an injunction granted by Judge Kimmel will be shown again tonight and tomorrow night, as the judge today granted a continuance to the defendants in the suit brought by Prosecuting Attorney Howard Sidener to prevent the showing of the picture.

The continuance was granted until 2 p. m. Wednesday on the statement that the defense had not had time to arrange its plea.

Sidener, Associate City Counselor Charles B. Davis and W. R. Hill, a negro associate counselor, were present to prosecute. About fifty negroes were present to protest the showing of the film, which they claim is unfair to their race.

St. Louis Star
Aug. 27-1915

"BIRTH OF NATION," $2-A-SEAT PICTURE, BARRED BY SIDENER

Prosecuting Attorney Issues Order Against Film Following Receipt of Protest.

"The Birth of a Nation," the $2 motion picture which has been widely advertised to be produced at the Olympic Theater for the next five weeks, beginning tomorrow night, has been barred by Prosecuting Attorney Howard Sidener and the police notified today that the film must not be shown.

Protests by negro citizens and by committees of white residents, including the Civic League and other organizations, have been received by Sidener. It is claimed the film is likely to breed and foster race hatred.

The film has been running for a year in New York and has been shown for long periods in Boston and Chicago.

A committee of the St. Louis Branch of the National Association for the Advancement of the Colored People presented a lengthy petition to Sidener, which was signed by George B. Vashon, chairman, Roger N. Baldwin, who is secretary of the Civic League; W. P. Curtis, Paul W. Mosely and Gustavus Tuckerman, who is secretary of the City Club.

Sidener, after announcing the film could not run, issued the following statement:

"The character of the film production known as 'The Birth of a Nation' is, I find after careful investigation, calculated to incite disturbance of the peace and does not in any degree represent the true character of the negro of today. My function as a public official is distinctly that of a peace officer. St. Louis has a great negro citizenry which is law abiding. Delegations of intelligent negroes have waited upon my office and protested the presentation of the film. Delegations of white citizens have done the same, notably a committee representing the Civic League.

"Added to the protests of these representatives of both races in the community is a personal investigation I have made of the character of the film. I am convinced that it is in the interest of public peace and welfare to prohibit the production and shall so notify the police department."

The petition presented by the negroes called the film the "notorious film," and said it has been "labeled as heretical, indecent and nauseous in a score of orderly American cities."

"This play is an attempted glorification of the dastardly and murderous Ku Klux Klan," the petition continues.

The film employs 18,000 people and depicts the Civil War and events afterward.

AUG. 30, 1915
PITTSBURG (Pa.) SUN

Would Enjoin Mayor On Photo Play Order

"Birth of a Nation" Management Takes Court Action.

That the action of the mayor and the superintendent of police in prohibiting the display of the photoplay, "The Birth of a Nation," is arbitrary, and that the play has been passed and approved by both the Pennsylvania state board of censorship and the National board of censorship, are the arguments advanced by the Nixon Theater Company in a bill in equity filed this morning in common pleas court, in which they ask the court to issue an injunction against the mayor to restrain him from prohibiting the showing of the film.

The plaintiff also contends that the play does not engender racial prejudice, but is historical, and that it is licensed. By way of illustration the statement is offered that it has been shown in New York, Chicago, Brooklyn, Los Angeles, Milwaukee and Spokane without any race feeling arising. The certificate of the Pennsylvania board of censorship approving and licensing the play, is attached to the bill in equity.

The mayor and the superintendent of police had notified the company that the display of the film would be prohibited in the Nixon Theater, or any other theater in Pittsburgh. The bill in equity of the theater company then came as a result and for seeking relief from the police

ST. LOUIS (Mo.) STAR
AUG. 23, 1915

"BIRTH OF NATION," $2-A-SEAT PICTURE, BARRED BY SIDENER

Prosecuting Attorney Issues Order Against Film Following Receipt of Protest.

"The Birth of a Nation," the $2 motion picture which has been widely advertised to be produced at the Olympic Theater for the next five weeks, beginning tomorrow night, has been barred by Prosecuting Attorney Howard Sidener and the police notified today that the film must not be shown. Protests by negro citizens and by committees of white residents, including the Civic League and other organizations, have been received by Sidener. It is claimed the film is likely to breed and foster race hatred.

The film has been running for a year in New York and has been shown for long periods in Boston and Chicago.

A committee of the St. Louis Branch of the National Association for the Advancement of the Colored People presented a lengthy petition to Sidener, which was signed by George B. Vashon, chairman, Roger N. Baldwin, who is secretary of the Civic League; W. P. Curtis, Paul W. Mosely and Gustavus Tuckerman, who is secretary of the City Club.

Sidener, after announcing the film could not run, issued the following statement:

"The character of the film production known as 'The Birth of a Nation' is, I find after careful investigation, calculated to incite disturbance of the peace and does not in any degree represent the true character of the negro of today. My function as a public official is distinctly that of a peace officer. St. Louis has a great negro citizenry which is law abiding. Delegations of intelligent negroes have waited upon my office and protested the presentation of the film. Delegations of white citizens have done the same, notably a committee representing the Civic League.

"Added to the protests of these representatives of both races in the community is a personal investigation I have made of the character of the film. I am convinced that it is in the interest of public peace and welfare to prohibit the production and shall so notify the police department."

The petition presented by the negroes called the film the "notorious film," and said it has been "tabooed as heretical, indecent and mischievous in a score of orderly American cities."

"This play is an attempted glorification of the dastardly and murderous Ku Klux Klan," the petition continues.

The film employes 18,000 people and depicts the Civil War and events afterward.

PITTSBURG (Pa.) CHRONICLE
AUG. 30, 1915

SEEK TO RESTRAIN MAYOR STOPPING FILM

Nixon Theater, in Bill of Equity, Claims That Executive's Action Is Arbitrary.

That the action of the mayor and the superintendent of police in prohibiting the display of the photoplay, "The Birth of a Nation," is arbitrary, and that the ordinance has been passed and approved by both the Pennsylvania state board of censorship and the national board of censorship, are the arguments advanced by the Nixon Theater Co., in a bill in equity filed this morning in Common Pleas Court in which they ask the court to issue an injunction against the mayor to restrain him from prohibiting the showing of the film. The plaintiff also contends that the play does not engender racial prejudice, but is historical; that it is licensed, and offers by way of illustration the statement that it has been shown in other cities without any race arising. The certificate of the Pennsylvania board of censorship approving and licensing the play, which certificate was issued to the manufacturer of the film, is attached to the bill in equity.

The theater company advertised that it would produce the play for six weeks beginning September 1. The mayor and the superintendent of police then notified the management that the display of the film would be prohibited in the Nixon Theater, or any other theater in Pittsburgh. The bill in equity from the theater company then came as a means of seeking relief from the police order. The Nixon claims the producing rights for the Pittsburgh territory within a radius of 100 miles.

POLICE CAN'T STOP "BIRTH OF NATION"

Judge Kimmel Annuls Sidener's Order Prohibiting Exhibition of Film at Olympic.

WILL BE SHOWN TO-NIGHT

Prosecutor Must Show Cause To-Morrow Why Picture Should Not Be Presented.

"The Birth of a Nation" moving picture film will be produced at the Olympic Theater to-night as advertised, notwithstanding the order of Prosecuting Attorney Howard Sidener to the contrary, yesterday.

Circuit Judge Karl Kimmel last night issued a restraining order temporarily stopping the police from carrying out Sidener's order prohibiting the production.

Following an order issued late yesterday afternoon by Sidener prohibiting the exhibition of the film in St. Louis, the Epoch Producing Company, producer of the film, brought suit in the Circuit Court against Sidener, the Board of Police Commissioners, Chief of Police William Young and Chief of Detectives Samuel E. Allender, to restrain interference with the production.

Sidener Fears Race Trouble.

Regarding why he issued the order, Sidener said:

"My position in the matter is that the character of the film is such as is calculated to incite a disturbance of the peace nad to arouse racial troubles. It might even cause serious trouble between the whites and negroes of the city.

"I did not want to act arbitrarily, but my investigation has convinced me that the pictures are not in any way representative of the true situation.

"My request that certain portions to which objection was made by delegations of representative negroes and also by a committee from the Civic League, be eliminated, was refused, as was also my request that a private exhibition be given before Mayor Kiel, myself and a committee representing the people who requested that the exhibition be stopped."

Sidener said he was told that the pictures were kept out of Memphis, Tenn., and Pittsburg, Pa. In Chicago and Boston he said he understood the film was put on after the municipalities were enjoined from interfering with its exhibition.

It is stated in the petition of the Epoch Company, which was filed by the law firm of Leahy, Saunders & Barth, shortly before 9 o'clock last night, that the film was approved by the National Board of Censorship, declared it to be "a great step forward in motion-picture productions."

ALAMEDA (Cal.) TIMES-STAR
AUG. 25, 1915

THE CLANSMAN IS FLAYED BY PASTOR

REV. F. K. BAKER DECLARES FILM DRAMA ACTS AS A FIREBRAND

"The Clansman" or "The Birth of a Nation," which has been produced in Oakland and San Francisco, was mercilessly scored yesterday afternoon by Rev. F. K. Baker, pastor of the First Methodist church of this city, when he addressed the International White Slave Society at the First Presbyterian church on "Advancement of Colored People Under the Freedman's Aid Society." Dr. Baker spoke at length on the formation of the society and of the aid that has been given the negro race since the civil war. He also described the schools that have been established and the results that have been obtained.

Speaking of "The Clansman" he said: "As I witnessed this presentation for over three hours and as I watched the picturing of imaginary scenes before, during, and after the civil war, and saw vivid and cold-blooded preachments of racial hatred, and malice, rancor and murder, I could see no good reason why such a firebrand should be permitted night after night to be thrown in the midst of thousands of people of all nationalities and who broke out into uncontrolled applause. The 'Birth of a Nation' should no more be allowed to be presented to American spectators than Emma Goldman, the pronounced anarchist.

"The film drama is a dangerous agitator in these trying days when the unanimous cry of our people is for peace. It preaches and stirs up race hatred. A certain clergyman told me he never saw the face of the Christ in such a frightful, devilish and out-of-place environment as when it was thrown upon the screen at the close.

"We are a people with common interests today. As true American citizens we are interested in the best possible welfare of all our brothers, whether white or black. Our problems are common, but our brothers in the south especially need our friendship and wise aid in working out their problems. They will never be solved by throwing stones and making faces at each other."

LANTIC CITY (N. J.) REVIEW
AUG. 18, 1915

M DISPUTE AY BE SETTLED

Colored Clergy Have Amicable Meeting With Theatre Men

"The Birth of a Nation" dispute may be compromised.

With announcements yesterday that the would defend the injunction suit to prevent its stopping the "Birth Nation" play at the New Nixon and intimation that Mayor Riddle may pose to the City Commission on Thursday an alternative method of preting further production of the much of photo play, objected to by the colored colony, came simultaneously news of an amicable meeting by leaders the colored protestants with Samuel Nixon, lessee of the theatre at which was suggested that the features obted to might be eliminated.

Following a conference with pastors of colored churches in the city yesday, Mr. Nixon sent word to John McCarthy, representative of D. W. Griffith, owner of the "Birth of a Nation" films, telling him of the situation and asking him to get consent to cut certain scenes, and to arrange to here by next Thursday for a conence on the matter. Mr. Nixon believes that he will be able to announce on Thursday that the scenes objected to, such as "Gus, the Renegade," who drives a white maiden to death, and "Lynch," the negro Lieutenant Governor, who tries forcibly to marry the daughter of his benefactor, will be eliminated from the picture during the remainder of their production here.

Both Mr. Nixon and Manager Harry Brown declared last night that the interview with the colored ministers was amicable and satisfactory. These ministers were, Rev. W. W. Langford, Rev. Charles S. Douglas, Dr. Gregory and Dr. E. M. Clark, who all appeared before the City Commission last Thursday. Mr. Nixon said the colored delegates were very reasonable in their arguments, and while praising the play as very fine, declared they were only opposed to the scenes which they thought would excite race hatred. They urged that these be eliminated.

The earnestness of the colored clergymen and their reasonable attitude impressed the theatre men.

City Solicitor Theodore W. Schimpf is preparing an answer to the injunction suit brought by the theatre people to restrain the city from taking action to stop the play from proceeding. Argument will be heard on August 24 by Chancellor Walker at Trenton.

SPOKANE (Wash.) CHRONICLE 85
AUG. 18, 1915

"BIRTH OF NATION" A DANGER, HE SAYS

Robinson Fears Effect of the Play on Public Mind—Accuses Censor.

To the editor of the Chronicle: No negro in this city believes that the council in voting no protest to "The Birth of a Nation" by any means endorsed the sentiments or the point of the author or that of the producer. If negroes believed that, I quite agree with you, and would readily enter every negro home to dissuade him of it. The motion picture business has a very wide field and I believe the day is coming when it will exercise the same freedom as the press. But if the press were to say in words what is conveyed to the mind in "The Birth of a Nation," your protests in one day would make a Sunday edition.

While the police power was exercised in other cities to suppress "The Birth of a Nation," you say "Here in Spokane there appeared no such danger, nor has the result justified any fear of it."

Nevertheless it forms a source of danger and may make mischief. It is incendiary in tendency if not in effect. Because there appears no danger, is its effect thereby mitigated? Can you say of a verity, we have no Holt? Without the Marietta prison, there are thousands of minds as easily affected as the convict's who sought the life of Leo Frank. Why wait for some overt act?

As an appeal to passion and prejudice, "The Birth of a Nation" is a masterpiece. For you to ask a member of my race to come forward and combat it without appeal to passion is like asking the race to produce a Napoleon without permitting it to carry arms.

Negroes like true sportsmanship the same as whites, and they played the game fair.

The council by a unanimous vote ordered "The Birth of a Nation" censored here as it was censored by national board of censorship. From the first exhibition of "The Birth of a Nation" to this day it has not been so run, and the censor knows it.

Somebody hasn't "toted fair," but that's of little moment. Negroes now are trying to prevent "The Birth of a Nation" returning to Spokane, and in order to do so are using every peacable means at their command to effect it.

I am not a politician but my advice to my race has always been to break ranks at all elections. Everywhere in their fight against race calumny I am glad they present a solid phalanx. If the negro is to be chided for using the most effective means at his disposal for its suppression, then God help the negro.

For negroes of Spokane not to begin now to work against a possible return of "The Birth of a Nation" would be self stultification with a vengeance. And we know the council by its failure to protest did not in any way raise the question as to whether the members of the council hate negroes or believe them abused.

E. I. ROBINSON.

N711 Jefferson street.

Philadelphia, (Pa.) Public Ledger
Date 18

'BIRTH OF A NATION' TO BE CENSORED

Part of Film Objected to by Negroes Will Be Cut Out

From Public Ledger Bureau

ATLANTIC CITY, Aug. 17.—"The Birth of a Nation," the thrilling "Clansman" film drama appearing at a Boardwalk theatre, is to be censored.

Parts of the production which have stirred bitter resentment among Atlantic City's 12,000 negro residents, who last week, through a committee, called upon the City Commission to suppress the film play, are almost certain to be cut out. One of these is "Gus, the renegade," who pursues a child to her death; the other "Lynch."

Blocked in their efforts to have the police close the show, through an injunction issued by Chancellor Walker, forbidding city authorities to make any attempt to suppress Public Safety Director Bartlett's suppression order, negro pastors today scored a peaceful victory.

After negotiations for a peaceful settlement had been imperiled for 24 hours by a suggestion from Samuel F. Nixon, lessee of the New Nixon Theatre, where the show is being produced, that they should confer with his manager, heads of four of the largest negro congregations met Mr. Nixon at noon. They were the Rev. J. P. Gregory, Union Baptist Temple; the Rev. Charles D. Douglass, Second Baptist; the Rev. E. M. Clark, Jericho Presbyterian, and the Rev. W. M. Langford, of Zion Church, representing about 2400 parishioners.

After the conference Mr. Nixon said:

"The committee which called upon me was very fair. After hearing their objections to certain features of the "Birth of a Nation," I told them I believed the matter could be settled to their satisfaction. J. J. McCarthy, who represents Mr. Griffith, owner of the picture, has been summoned to come to Atlantic City on Thursday and meet the pastors."

Mr. Gregory, speaking for the Ministerial Committee, said:

"We were led to believe that two features of the film drama which hold up our race to shame and contempt and which cannot fail to incite race hatred are to be cut out. We asked also that the South Carolina Legislature scene, in which a majority of negro members are depicted in the act of passing intermarriage legislation, should also be cut out. We were assured, however, that so much of the production is dependent upon this scene that it could hardly be eliminated without destroying the whole

BIRTH OF A NATION

The Court sitting in Equity has decided that the "Birth of a Nation" shall proceed with its exhibitions in Pittsburgh and Allegheny County. The hearing developed nothing but an opinion from the Court, which, taken in its entirety, suggests to the Film Company that the exhibition is unfair to the Negro in that it fails to show any of the noble deeds performed by the Negroes during the reconstruction period. But this suggestion does not help the Negro.

It is agreed on all sides that the film is not doing the Negroes any good. And since there is no such thing as a statistical agency, the converse must be true. The exhibition is doing harm, and the Negroes are determined to put the matter before the Governor for a final ruling, since Pennsylvania is bigger than Allegheny County. We have been law abiding under the insult of the film; and although we have been told that the exhibition is a compliment to us as a race, we reserve the right to pass upon our compliments ourselves. Not until the last agency has been exhausted will we submit to "The Birth of a Nation" in Pennsylvania.

EXPRESSIONS OF INTEREST

A friend is he who comes to one's aid in time of necessity. Acts count, but expressions of interest and co-operation often clear the skies of the clouds and shadows.

The Allied Civic League in its effort to prevent the production of "The Birth of a Nation" solicited the co-operation of the better element of white people and the various civic organizations in the community. The letters which have been received in response to their appeal demonstrate the fact that every door is not shut to our entreaty and that there is sincere concern for our welfare. These expressions must be taken as an evidence of the fellowship of man, regardless of race or creed.

In another section of this issue will be found a letter from Bishop Canevin of the Pittsburgh Diocese. Expressions such as contained in this letter really make any effort for racial benefit and uplift worth while. It is sad indeed that the daily papers are so adverse to publishing such expressions. One such letter published in the daily press would have more influence with the general public than a thousand printed appeals distributed throughout the community, for it is the spoken word of a man of power and influence.

Such expressions of friendship cannot do other than give us hope that our efforts are not in vain, and must act as a spur to further endeavor.

Aug 30
Pittsburg Leader

"BIRTH OF A NATION" FIGHT NOW IN COURT; NIXON ASKS INJUNCTION

That the action of the mayor and the superintendent of police in prohibiting the display of the photo play, "The Birth of a Nation," is arbitrary, and that the play has been passed and approved by both the Pennsylvania state board of censorship and the national board of censorship, are the arguments advanced by the Nixon Theater company in a bill in equity filed today in common pleas court, in which the company asks the court to issue an injunction against the mayor to restrain him from prohibiting the showing of the film.

The plaintiff also contends that the play does not engender racial prejudice, but is historical; that it is licensed and offers by way of illustration the statement that it has been shown in New York, Chicago, Brooklyn, Los Angeles, Milwaukee and Spokane, without any race feeling arising. The certificate of the Pennsylvania board of censorship approving and licensing the play, which certificate was issued to the manufacturer of the film, is attached to the bill in equity.

The theater company advertised that it would produce the play for six weeks, beginning September 1. The mayor and the superintendent of police then notified the company that the display of the film would be prohibited in the Nixon theater, or any other theater in Pittsburg. The bill in equity from the theater company then came as a means for seeking relief from the police order.

The Nixon claims the producing rights for the Pittsburg territory within a radius of 100 miles.

JUNE 5, 1915
MOTION PICTURE NEWS (New York City)

ILLINOIS BILL AIMED AT RACE PREJUDICE FILMS

Indications are that the Illinois General Assembly will pass the bill introduced in the lower house by Representative Jackson, a negro member from Chicago, which bars from the state all films which tend to "incite race hatred or mob violence."

Representative Jackson's bill has passed the house and now is up for action in the senate. It will hit such photoplays as "The Nigger," "The Birth of a Nation," and other pictures supposed to arouse race prejudice.

NEWPORT (R. I.) NEWS
AUG. 28, 1915

DR. STORER PROTESTS.

Believes "The Birth of the Nation" Would Fan the Flame of Race Prejudice.

Cutting Off of Its Most Demoralizing Features Due to Insistence of White People Everywhere.

In connection with the protest entered before Mayor Burlingame by colored citizens, against the exhibition in this city of the picture play, "The Birth of the Nation," Dr. Horatio R. Storer has sent to the mayor the following open letter, registering his individual protest against the proposed production, with his reasons therefor:

58 Washington street, 27 August, 1915.

His Honor, Mayor Burlingame:

My Dear Sir: Without having in any way been approached upon the subject, permit me to protest against allowing the much discussed and really very objectionable play, "The Birth of the Nation," to be exhibited in this city.

Shorn though it may be of its most demoralizing features, this has only been accomplished through the forcible insistence of the best of our white people, everywhere. The intent of the play, to make money and to fan the flame of race prejudice, which of late years has been rapidly lessening, still remains. That the setting is spectacularly gorgeous, and that it has been installed at great expense, has nothing to do with the main question. This outlay has been re-paid manyfold through the attendance of crowds of careless and ill advised persons, who would equally flock, were it permitted by the law, to a representation of even the Crucifixion itself.

The real author, a peculiar kind of clergyman, is through his reprehensible books, "The Clansman," "The Leopard's Spots," etc., said to have become a millionaire. Who can estimate the harm these have done to us all in a national way? Who can compute the mental suffering and the check to their enlitment they have caused to our colored brethren?

Years ago I publicly protested against the circulation of these books by the Redwood and People's libraries, and years ago I used my best efforts towards preventing license of the similar play that then was striven for. That it was refused by our authorities gained great credit for Newport throughout the country.

That our city was then true to its best sense of public duty was in slight reparation for its old inglorious and most regretable history, of having been the creator and headquarters of the African slave trade. Think of the score of distilleries here before the American Revolution, changing molasses from the West Indian sugar plantations into New England rum and then of this being exchanged in Guinea for nude men and women, of the countless poor creatures brought to our wharves, the best of these forced immigrants, the direct ancestors of many of the present attendants at our four colored churches, retained here for home labor, while the remainder were sold South, or were sent to the Caribbean in purchase of the main staple of that accursed rum, which from a Newport pulpit has been denounced as the chief cause, originally and continuously since, of our city's decadence from its old comparative supremacy.

Think of all this, dear sir, you who best represent the sober-minded, and then encourage, if you can, the entrance here, even for a brief moment, of a virtual firebrand, inciting to dislike, personal affront, and even destruction, were this possible, of a large fraction of our people—no matter how it may be condoned as "now entirely unobjectionable," emasculated of its confessedly evil tendencies, and attractive even to the most refined." Every cent paid for admission would be to further encourage the worst negro hater in this country, and be a tribute to his prolonged defiance of all Christian precept, of every effort towards redeeming our past regarding the colored race, and his inordinate thirst for Northern money. If it be true, as this man insists, that the American nation was born from a womb of tyranny, immorality and most barbaric cruelty, should he be permitted, equally to blame, or it all, as he is, to flaunt under the specious guise of historic interest, miscalled representative of the community that it this odious fact of the "Birth of a Nation," in the very faces of our own white Americans, who at this late period, are not to be held accountable for the deeds of their misguided ancestors.

You will perhaps prevent me to print this letter, as it is to you as the representation and most insulting realism, has been written.

Yours sincerely,
Horatio R. Storer,
(M. D., LL.D.)

JUNE 5, 1915
MOTION PICTURE NEWS (New York City)

"The Colored Gentleman" in the Censorship Woodpile

"THE colored gentleman" is very literally "in the woodpile" in the censorship law the legislature of Massachusetts has just passed.

The history of that law is nothing but the story of the unholy reverence of the white politician for the black ballot.

It is one of the most notorious "studies in black and white" that we have had since the passage of the Levy law in New York State, forbidding discrimination by hotels and boarding houses upon any ground, against creed, race or color.

* * *

THE Levy law had many features to recommend it to fair-minded and broad-thinking people.

The Massachusetts censor law has nothing in its favor —not even the sincerity of the negroes—in their official complaint that their race is maligned and outraged by the events portrayed in "The Birth of a Nation," for the present agitation for a censor law and "The Birth of a Nation" made their appearance simultaneously in the Bay State.

* * *

IT is too late, at this time, to do anything but call attention to some facts and phases of the case that ought to be as widely known and understood as possible.

Motion picture censor bills have appeared before this session, and during this session, in Massachusetts. But there was never any immediate, living condition to give direction and impetus to the movement, and they died, one by one, or lapsed into a state of "suspended animation."

But the appearance of "The Birth of a Nation" gave the censorship agitators something to work on, something to rally around—and, worst of all, a powerful lever to manipulate the politicians with.

This lever was the negro.

THE "colored brother" was not the one who first took offense at the scenes in the Griffith film.

The ones who started the ball rolling were those members of the white race who love the negro and make his "wrongs (?)" their own, because of the negro's usefulness to them in getting what they want from other members of the white race.

* * *

"THE black man's friends" saw and were offended. So they hunted up the negro and informed him that it was his duty to be offended, too. They assured him that his race was being wronged and calumniated by this picture, and urged him to do his duty and defend his racial honor.

Now the negro knew, by experience, that it usually paid him to take the advice of his professional champions. So, with the faculty of his people for inducing any kind of an emotional state, he worked up a very creditable and impressive indignation in no time.

* * *

AS soon as his "friends" saw that he was full of the spirit of his part, they led him off for exhibition.

"Well, gentlemen, we've come for our censorship law. Our own arguments have failed in the past to convince you, and this time we've brought an eloquent advocate to speak in our behalf." And with these few words, they waited to allow the significance of the negro's presence to sink into the minds of the solons.

Of course, it was not done in exactly that fashion, nor were such words ever spoken. But that was the undercurrent of the movement from start to finish.

* * *

THE censor party and the Legislature had been "playing poker" for more than a year.

The censorites at length drew the "Black Jack" as the winning card, raised the Legislature out of their seats, and won.

So long as there are well-defined stories in circulation regarding the hiring of bands of negroes to create disturbances at the performances of "The Birth of a Nation," we shall refrain from taking any stock in the sincerity of the "colored brother's" racial pride or sensitiveness.

THE SURVEY, NEW YORK
1915

PROGRESSIVE PROTEST AGAINST ANTI-NEGRO FILM

STORMED at by the press, denounced by prominent individuals and public officials, and inveighed against by the whole Negro race, the film play The Birth of a Nation is meeting with almost unprecedented protest wherever it goes.

The story of this play, which is partially based on Thomas's Dixon's anti-Negro book, the Clansman, and which shows Negroes perpetrating one outrage against decency after another, from chasing white girls to voting with both hands on election day, was told in THE SURVEY of April 3, together with an account of the criticism that followed its presentation in New York city.

When the film opened in Boston Negroes threw eggs at the screen and there was some violence in a conflict with the police. The next morning some seven hundred colored people gathered on the steps of the State House and listened to speeches and sang songs. A committee waited upon the governor who promised that he would try to secure legislation to assist their protest.

Continuous newspaper publicity has been given to the protests of prominent New England people. Rolfe Cobleigh, assistant editor of the Congregationalist, declared that he had found from conversation with Thomas Dixon that the author's purpose was "the achieving of white supremacy and the getting rid of the colored people."

The law offered a means of attacking the film only on the ground of corruption of morals. On this ground, the scene where "Gus", the Negro, pursues the little white girl was eliminated by court order. The agitation for a law to enable the film to be stopped on account of its alleged stimulation of race hatred went so far that a bill was passed and signed by Governor Walsh, providing that the mayor, the police commissioner and the chief magistrate of the municipal court, or any two of them, might revoke or suspend licenses for public amusements at their pleasure. Meanwhile, public and political utterances are declared to have exaggerated greatly real public opinion in Boston about the film.

PITTSBURG (Pa.) SUN
JULY 4, 1915

MEMBERS OPPOSE FILM

[illegible]

PHOTOPLAY "BIRTH OF A NATION"

[illegible] Protest Meeting [illegible] Episcopal Church.

[illegible]

MOTION PICTURE WORLD (N. Y. City)

JUL 1 0 1915

Protest in Smoky City

Pittsburgh Darkies Determined to Fight Showing of "The Birth of a Nation" Film —Committee Appointed to Take Matter Up with the State Board of Censors—An Excitable City.

Special to Moving Picture World from Pittsburgh News Service.

In view of the information which has reached and been circulated in and about this city that the photoplay, "The Birth of a Nation," will show in Pittsburgh in the near future and for a period of two weeks, the Pittsburgh Courier, a weekly published in the interest of the colored race, immediately sounded warnings and admonished Afro-Americans to be vigilant, to be determined and to see that nothing is offered for public observation which bears even the slightest possibility of injury to the race.

In a recent issue of the Courier an article appeared stating that from a certain source of information they had learned that "The Birth of a Nation" was scheduled to be shown at the Miles theater, and immediately a committee was appointed to take the matter up with the State Board of Censors, in an effort to have the play suppressed in Pennsylvania. It also stated that another committee was appointed to arrange for a mass meeting to be held in the very near future, at which time the matter would be laid before the people generally and a combined effort made to enlist the good offices of the white civic bodies in the city in the plan to prevent the production of "this very injurious play."

Charles H. Miles immediately directed his managing director, William Moore Patch, to write a letter to the editor of the Courier requesting him to make known through his paper that Mr. Miles had made no arrangements whatsoever, for the depicting of "The Birth of a Nation."

Due to the antagonistic efforts of these various movements city council adopted a resolution introduced by Dr. Dillinager requesting the mayor to direct the Public Safety Department director to inaugurate a rigid censorship of all moving pictures in which the negro race is depicted, and to prevent the exhibition of such reels as "The Birth of a Nation" or any similar picture which tends to bring "disgrace, criticism or scorn" on the negroes.

All of this combined with the prohibiting of showing the "Nigger" in this city recently has put the Pittsburgh motion picture men on their toes and it is expected they will soon start some movement in an effort to overthrow the arguments of the colored race and their associates.

The Afro-Americans contend that in their struggle to advance they can ill afford to have anything portraying adversity submitted to the public, while the motion picture men hold that there is nothing of this sort depicted in such productions as "The Birth of a Nation," which would influence the broad-minded public.

Pittsburgh, by reason of its industrial population, is composed of a wide and diverse mass of humanity, a humanity that can be swayed one way or another.

MOTION PICTURE NEWS (New York City)

JUL 3 1915

Kansas City Kills "Race Hatred" Measure

IN Kansas City last week a number of negro politicians caused a bill to be introduced in the city council aimed at the moving pictures pertaining to race problems. Their hope was to suppress any further showing of William Fox's feature, "The Nigger," and the coming exhibition of "The Birth of a Nation," which has not as yet been shown there.

The bill was framed and introduced in the lower house of the city council, where it was passed by a large majority.

Very little publicity was given the bill before its introduction in the house, and but very few persons, except those who planned it, knew that it was coming up. The bill was to go to the upper house on Monday night.

A few of the film men got real busy on the Monday morning following the introduction and passage of the bill in the lower house, and rallied enough of the lawmakers in the upper house to practically kill the bill. The bill was referred to [illegible] which is the same as killing it for good.

Chas. W. Harden, manager of the Mutual Film Corporation, and Marion E. Willis, manager of the Mutual Film Corporation, deserve most of the credit for having this unjust measure suppressed.

The strongest argument against the measure was the fact that the city maintains a board of public welfare whose duty it is to review objectionable projects, and that it was not necessary to have a special ordinance and also maintain the welfare board for the same purpose.

SAN DIEGO (Cal.) UNION
JUNE [illegible]

"CLANSMAN" STIRS PROTEST; MAYOR'S BAN ASKED

Clergymen and Negroes Demand Action to Prevent Presentation.

Objecting to the presentation of "The Clansman," the spectacular motion picture which is scheduled to begin its San Diego engagement on Monday night at the Empress Theatre, a delegation of clergymen and negroes called on Mayor Edwin F. Capps yesterday.

"The Clansman" has met with some opposition wherever it has been shown, particularly in Boston, where an organization of colored people went to Mayor James Curley and nearly succeeded in having it banned because of alleged unfairness to the negro race. Such a rumpus was created that the newspapers printed front page stories day after day, but it finally demonstrated to the censors' satisfaction that the piece was of value, and it is running yet.

Efforts Prove Futile

In New York, much the same took place. In Los Angeles the board of censors saw nothing wrong with the piece, but an organization of negroes appealed to the City Council, which passed a special ordinance forbidding its presentation. The producers, however, got an injunction setting aside this action, and it already has played to 300,000 persons and continues to fill Clune's Auditorium. Chicago has not yet seen the piece.

T. A. Baker, who represents W. H. Clune in San Diego, said last night that he felt sure he could convince Mayor Capps and representative San Diegans that there was nothing objectionable in "The Clansman." Of this he was so sure that he was willing that a committee consisting of the managing editors of San Diego's three daily newspapers, who should in turn appoint four ministers or other citizens of recognized standing in the community, witness the first performance as his guests and make a report to the mayor.

Truths Depicted

"The Clansman," he said, "has nothing objectionable in it. On the other hand, it has much of historical interest. The greatest pains were taken that everything should be staged with accuracy. People cannot object to the truth. The play favors neither the North nor the South. It is absolutely impartial in showing the scenes that took place during the Civil war and in the reconstruction period scenes which follow. They merely are shown as they took place. It teaches history and should be seen by every student of history.

"It has wonderfully spectacular scenes. For instance, Sherman's march to the sea and the burning of Atlanta are amazingly well reproduced.

Prejudiced, Claim

"When the censors of every city where the play has been shown have been in favor of it, I am sure that there will be no real objection in San Diego. Most of the adverse criticism comes from persons who never have seen it, and whose remarks are obviously of little real value."

Opponents of the piece say that while it may be historically accurate it arouses old prejudices that should be forgotten; that it arouses mob spirit and racial feeling against the negroes; that as the North and South are reunited the bitterness of the war and period just after the war should be laid aside.

MILWAUKEE (Wis.) LEADER
JUNE 28, 1915

NEGROES PROTESTING FILM, "BIRTH OF NATION"

A protest against presentation of the moving picture, "The Birth of a Nation" in Milwaukee was made to Mayor Bading Monday by a delegation of negro race.

The committee was referred to the board of moving picture censors.

MOTION PICTURE WORLD (N. Y. City)

JUL 2 0 1915

NEGROES STILL PROTEST.

[illegible] the newly appointed board of [illegible] the city of Boston have refused [illegible] that the production of the photoplay "The Birth of a Nation" [illegible] negro protestants against the [illegible] still continuing their fight. The [illegible] committee of the Boston branch [illegible] National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, have adopted [illegible] protesting the board's refusal [illegible] film from further production [illegible]

CLUNE'S CIVIC LEAGUES OBJECT TO EXHIBITION OF "BIRTH OF A NATION"

[illegible]

BANGOR (Me.) COMMERCIAL
JUNE 12, 1915

PROTESTS ON PHOTO PLAY

New York Mayor Tells Negroes and Others That Films Will Be Cut

A delegation of negroes from the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, called on Mayor Mitchel of New York, Tuesday, and protested against certain features of the moving picture play, The Birth of a Nation, which was founded upon Thomas Dixon's book, The Clansman. The mayor granted a hearing in the Board of Estimate Chamber and after speeches were made by several negroes and others and by Rabbi Stephen Wise, Frederick C. Rowe, Commissioner of Immigration and Oswald Garrison Villard, the mayor said that at his own request the producers of the play had agreed to eliminate the parts that met with the most objection. He said the censored film would be run [illegible] first time last Tuesday night.

Rabbi Wise said in part:

"If it be true that the mayor has no power to stop this indescribably foul and loathsome libel on a race of human beings, then it is true that government has broken down. The Board of Censors which allowed this exhibition to go is stupid or worse. I regret I am a member."

Mr. Villard, vice-president of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, said he thought the production was "improper, immoral and unjust."

Commissioner Howe characterized the portrayal of the negro as a depraved creature as "cruel, vindictive and untrue." Miss Lillian D. Wald said, "It is impossible to measure the potential dangers that threaten us if the production is allowed to go on."

CAGO (Ill.) MOTOGRAPHY
MAY 29, 1915

The Too-Zealous Press Agent

T IS always possible to increase the attendance at any show by spreading a report that the show is not fit to be seen. The certain picture may be objectionable to some, but the fact that it has at least some kind of a public behind it must be worth seeing. Modern press agents are accounted with that style of human nature, and are trained to take advantage of it.

All of which may be legitimate from a business standpoint but in an account so subjected to outside interference as is the motion picture, the press agent's activities in this direction sometimes boomerang upon him and his picture.

By a vote of 111 to 2 the Illinois house of representatives has passed the Graham bill prohibiting the showing of lynchings and other hangings in pictures. The bill is obviously aimed at two or three feature films recently released which touch upon the hypothetical "negro problem."

Representative Jackson is a negro; but while his speech which carried the house was a masterpiece of oratory in which his race are so proficient, it does not appear that he has any personal objection to the films affected. Neither has it been shown that negroes in general, hundreds of whom have seen the pictures, are at all aroused by them. Everyone who has protested or forbidden their showing, including the mayor of Chicago, has been moved to that action by the fear that some one else will be affected or influenced. The attitude is as old as mankind: "It's all right for me, but it's bad for the other fellow."

The present official sentiment against these subjects which involve the "negro question" seems to have been forced into life not by the officials, not by the negro race, but by over zealous press agenting, which has dwelt too much upon a morbid interpretation of the subject. The films themselves could never "incite to riot"; but the press agent has not hesitated to use the suggestion as a crowd puller. It has worked the wrong way.

The Evening World

NEGRO PROGRESS.

THIS summer the Negro Business League of America will gather at Boston, Mass., for the celebration of its fifteenth anniversary.

What it has to celebrate is data found in the Federal Census of 1900 and 1910, with added figures compiled in the last five years.

Since the league was organized land and buildings owned by negroes in this country have increased in value 293 per cent.—from $69,636,420 to $273,501,865. Negro farm property has increased in value 177 per cent.; live stock, 107 per cent.; tools and machinery, 98 per cent.

In 1900 there were 20,000 negro business concerns in the country. The number is now 45,000. There are to-day 51 negro banks where fifteen years ago there were but two. Wholesale businesses owned by negroes have increased from 149 to 240, and retail stores from 10,000 to 25,000.

The above only proves in figures a progress of which everybody is aware in fact. We believe that a nation-wide knowledge of such fact is the best reason why no attempt to stir up race feeling, no exploitation of dark periods of his past, can at this day disturb the foundations the colored man has laid for himself.

It is a mistake to think that book, play or moving picture, dealing with the brutalities of the Reconstruction period, can do him harm. Such resurrections of the past only emphasize the distance he has travelled since then and the certainty that he will go further.

Last year circumstance forced upon Southerners an economic truth: The South can't eat cotton. The wisest thing it can do is to devote more of its land and energies to growing vegetables, grain and fodder. This is one of the most important lessons any section of the country ever had to learn. From what we hear, the negro farmer has been among the first to get it through his head.

PITTSBURG (Pa.) CHRONICLE
JUNE 8, 1915

PROTEST AGAINST SHOWING "BIRTH OF A NATION" HERE

Protesting against the proposed showing here of the "Birth of a Nation," a moving picture spectacle portraying certain conditions during the Civil War and the subsequent reconstruction period, a delegation visited Mayor Joseph G. Armstrong this morning. Mrs. Enoch Rauh, Miss Nannie Oppenheimer, Dr. Rudolph I. Coffee, Attorney William Randolph, the Rev. P. A. Scott, Mrs. L. A. Hamilton, Dr. James A. Page and Nicholas Richmond composed the [illegible]

PORTLAND (Ore.) OREGONIAN
JUNE 20, 1915

NEGROES PROTEST FILM

SHOWING OF "THE BIRTH OF A NATION" IS OPPOSED.

Play Also Known as "The Clansman" and Has Sanction of Most Rigid Censors of United States.

Protests from the colored people are the result of reports that the photoplay "The Birth of a Nation," known also as "The Clansman," is to be shown in Portland soon. Various people who have seen the production, it is said, praise it and managers of several local motion picture houses speak of it as a marvelous production.

A protest in the name of the Portland branch of the National Association for Advancement of Colored People has been made, and the secretary, Mrs. Edward D. Cannady, says: "I wish to make an appeal to the churches and societies of Portland against the showing of the vicious photoplay, 'The Birth of a Nation,' in the city.

"It seeks by false pictures of horrors to incite in the North hostile legislation against the colored man. We should protest against these pictures being shown here because they incite race rancor and prejudice. They offer false and erroneous excuses for discrimination and segregation, and display the worst side of the colored people. They poison the minds of the young, those with whom our young must work out their destinies.

"As citizens of Portland we must protest against this play because the peace and harmony that has existed between the two races may be destroyed. Portland cannot promote progress when 2500 citizens are held up to public shame and ridicule. Such National characters as Jane Addams, Governor Willis, Rabbi Stephen S. Wise and President Eliot call the play untrue and indecent."

The film has passed the most rigid censors of the United States. It is said to be educational.

MILWAUKEE (Wis.) JOURNAL
JUNE 24, 1915

[illegible] enormous values by the addition of labor to make pen knives or other commodities.

Holds Advancement Association.

John A. Hall was elected president of the Milwaukee branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, at a meeting held Wednesday night in St. Mark's African Methodist Episcopal church. Other officers are: Vice president, S. J. Fountaine; secretary, Marie Burgette; treasurer, R. A. Baylor; executive board, the Rev. J. S. Woods, Miss Jeannette Rueben, H. B. Kuaner, Mr. and Mrs. O. W. Horton. At a special meeting to be held at the church Friday night the members will take some action protesting against the showing of the film, The Birth of a Nation. It will be an open meeting and all interested in the work are invited to attend.

PITTSBURG (Pa.) PRESS
JUNE 8, 1915

PROTEST MADE AGAINST BIG MOVIE SPECTACLE

Protesting against the proposed showing here of the "Birth of a Nation," a big moving picture spectacle portraying certain conditions during the Civil war and the subsequent reconstruction period, a delegation of well-known citizens visited Mayor Armstrong this morning. The mayor said he would give them an answer later.

The pictures, it is alleged, show the worst type of negroes to the alleged detriment of the colored race.

Mrs. Enoch Rauh, Miss Nannie Oppenheimer, Dr. Rudolph I. Coffee, Attorney William Randolph, Rev. P. A. Scott, Mrs. L. A. Hamilton, Dr. James A. Page and Nicholas Richmond composed the delegation.

Mayor Thompson, of Chicago, recently prevented the pictures from showing in that city, following a protest by leading negroes.

OBJECTIONABLE FILMS.

Editor Ohio State Journal:

There have been attempts made lately in several states to exhibit films that are purely prejudice, producing efforts of crack-brained authors, who would inflame the minds of the coming generation. These attempts, with one exception, have been blocked, and we negroes, as a people, sincerely hope that the better-thinking and fairer-minded class of the first nation will stop to consider that we are a young race, practically just freed from the shackles of slavery, that we are human and, more than all, that we have certain inalienable rights that will be respected by those of any race who respect themselves.

It was with gratification and a mingled feeling of joy and optimism that I read the other day of Governor Willis' action in suppressing the exhibition of "The Nigger." This play, with the "The Clansman," and "The Governor's Daughter," and others of a like nature, while the acting is said to be superb, and one must admit that, as objectionable. The plays are ingeniously written, yet the underlying motive marks them fit only for the junk heap. "The Birth of a Nation," another of these worthless plays, is more disgusting than can be told. I was fortunate enough to secure a copy of the synopsis of this play, and, all the way through, the author has kept in mind the "usual crime" against Southern white women. In short, the play consists in advertising the colored man as a burly, cruel brute. Any sound-minded and just American citizen, whether he be black or white, is willing to concede that this is not the case. Every race on the globe has its good and bad citizens, and it is so with the brother in blacks, but it is not as bad as some of these fanatics would have you believe.

One scene in the above-mentioned film is particularly insulting to Afro-American intelligence and integrity; namely, colored Union soldiers are shown doing duty in a Southern city. A reign of terror exists. The soldiers, encouraged by their officers, are clubbing, with the butts of their guns, inoffensive women and children who dare to walk the streets, and if a white man dares to protest, he is summarily shot. This was the excuse for the gathering of the clansmen. From every direction they come, and soon the Union soldiers are driven out of town and many are shot down like dogs. Now, gentle reader, where in this good old America of ours could this occur? Another scene, fully as offensive and insulting, shows a burly colored man chasing a white girl. She runs up the side of a mountain to the top of a cliff; then, turning to her would-be assailant, and says, according to the lines on the screen, "The Southern woman always prefers death to dishonor." She leaps over the cliff. The next scene shows the pursuit and capture of the man, his trial by the clansmen, and it ends with the glowing embers of the fire where he has been burned, shown on the screen.

I condone my action in writing this article by the fact that we might have, right here in Ohio, other writers of this sort, who would try the same trick, and, while we may advertise the play by protesting against it, yet it is better to write against it, preach against it and pray against it than have it exhibited, for the interest in the play would be so plain, its influence for harm so evident. I do not think any colored person or any citizen who feels loyal to American law and order, or any soldier who has fought for the grand old Stars and Stripes could help but resent the insult its production carries with it.

O'CONNELL, TONER.

Columbus, July 13.

NEW YORK WORLD
Date .....

NEGROES SENT A PROTEST AGAINST FILM TO WHITMAN.

A petition containing the names of 30[illegible] negroes of New York was sent last night to Gov. Whitman, as a protest against the continuation of the moving picture spectacle, "The Birth of a Nation," which has been playing for some months at the Liberty Theatre. The petition, which asserts that the spectacle is a misrepresentation of a race and is likely to spread the germ of race hatred, was circulated by Cleveland G. Allen, No. 252 West Fifty-third [illegible]

PITTSBURG (Pa.) GAZETTE-TIMES
JULY 2, 1915

NEGROES PROTEST PLAY.

Allied Organizations Oppose Exhibition of Motion Picture in Pittsburgh.

The Allied Colored Civic League of Pittsburgh, of which John W. Anderson is chairman and Cinda Brown, secretary and treasurer, has issued a call for a community protest against the showing of the photoplay, "The Birth of a Nation," in Pittsburgh. The allied organization includes the Cosmopolitan Civic League, Pittsburgh Courier Publishing Company, Independent Equal Rights League, North Side Civic League, Young Women's Auxiliary, National A. A. C. People, Lucy Stone Suffrage League and the Fifth Ward Progressive [illegible]

CLIPPING FROM
NEW YORK WORLD
Date ..... AUG 8 - 1915

EPOCH CO. WINS

Geo. H. Davis, of San Francisco, has offered $100,000 for the rights of "The Birth of a Nation" for several Western States, but the proposition fell through because he would not bind himself to show the picture at a certain fixed scale of prices.

The case came before Supreme Court Justice Clarence J. Shearn a few days ago, who refused to grant an injunction restraining the Epoch Producing Co. from disposing of the Western rights to anyone except Davis.

[illegible] Universal to produce [illegible] wherever [illegible] the protest [illegible]

[illegible] themselves [illegible] that [illegible] world should still [illegible] among the colored [illegible] cule because of [illegible] was not [illegible]

PORTLAND (Ore.) JOURNAL
JULY 4, 1915

COLORED FOLK MAKE PROTEST AT DISPLAY OF RACE-HATE FILM

"Birth of Nation" Characterized as Vicious Play by Leader of Association.

"INFLAMES PREJUDICE"

Objection Made to Setting Up Reconstruction Period as Typifying the True Negro Character.

To the Editor of The Journal:

I wish to make an appeal through your valuable paper to the civic organizations, churches and societies of Portland to protest against the showing of the vicious photoplay, "The Birth of a Nation," anywhere in this city, which we have been informed is planned to be exhibited here shortly.

The film has been denounced throughout the country by many eminent historians, and in the country's most reliable publications, on the ground that it contains scenes untrue to history, misleading and revolting, especially designed to convict the Union soldier and the colored man of unspeakable crimes.

I think, as American citizens, it should be our highest civic duty to safeguard and protect the history and institutions of this nation. In this play there is a crafty attempt on the part of the author to change the true date of the nation's birth. It was in Independence hall, in Philadelphia, in 1776, where representatives from the thirteen original colonies resolved that America should become a separate and independent nation. This action was not born in the Civil War, nor at the reconstruction period.

Not True to History.

We should protest against this play because it has as its background the period of reconstruction, and by false representations, attempts to justify the cruelty resorted to by the Ku-Klux-Klan in order to intimidate the freedman. It seeks by false h . vivid pictures of the horrors of colored domination and official incapacity to secure the sympathy of the north and incite in the north hostile legislation against the colored man.

We should protest against this play because it stigmatizes that gallant class of men who saved this Union and made possible our freedom.

It places a blot on the character of these men whose deeds and names should ever be kept in fond remembrance. By cunning perversion of the truth, this play represents Union soldiers as aiding and protecting the colored man in their acts of immorality. In one scene it shows soldiers club- inoffensive women and children if dared to walk on the streets; an white man protested, he was m y shot.

Says Negroes Are Loyal.

We colored people honor our old soldiers; we are grateful to them beyond expression. We desire that coming generations will reverently honor them. We fear for their fair names and deeds when in a public place they are held up, as this play holds them up to ridicule and shame.

We should protest against these pictures being shown here because they revive and incite race rancor and prejudice. They offer a false and erroneous excuse for discrimination and segregation. They poison the minds of the young, those with whom our young must live and work out their destiny. They display the worst side of the life of the colored people—not of today, but of the period immediately following the Civil War—and characterize an entire race by the crimes of a few.

Another scene shows a "burly" colored man pursuing an innocent white girl, who jumps off a cliff and kills herself to escape him. The whole play is a grotesque scheme of false impressions, wrought by a master hand bent on prejudicing the public mind against the colored American, and utterly destroying him.

Another scene shows the pursuit and capture of the girl's assailant, his trial by the clansmen, and the scene ends with the glowing embers of the fire where he has been burned.

Womanhood Defamed.

The type of colored woman exhibited pre-eminently through the play is the woman who was acting as "housekeeper" for a northern statesman, and when Charles Sumner comes in contact with her at this man's residence her conduct is so immoral and her position so palpable that he is made to say on the screen, "Although I believe in human liberty, I cannot stand this" and he turns and leaves the house. All the colored men are pictured in pursuit of the women of the opposite race. The play is viciously constructed.

As citizens of Portland, we should protest against this play because the peace and harmony which has existed between the races may be destroyed. I know that you will agree that the perpetuation of amity in community conditions depends entirely on respectful friendliness of one race or group for another; also that you are favorable to the propagation of those things only which tend to strengthen rather than to weaken this feeling of friendliness. Portland cannot promote progress when 2500 of her citizens are held up to public ridicule and shame. We know that we will not be making a selfish protest against these pictures when such national characters as Jane Addams, Governor Willis, Rabbi Stephen S. Wise and President Eliot have characterized them as both untrue and indecent.

Should Voice Protest.

While we may not be successful as some have been in prohibiting the exhibition of these pictures, and while our efforts may help to advertise the play further, I think we as citizens owe it to ourselves to enter a protest and let it be known that the types of colored people shown and the American sentiment expressed do not meet our approval.

In the light of this condemnation, in the light of the very uphill struggle which the millions of colored people in this land are making; in the light of fairness and of equal chance for every man or woman, regardless of race or creed, we feel that our effort to enlist the cooperation of all well-thinking men and women in this city to suppress this play will not be in vain.

May we have your cooperation and aid in the suppression of this vicious photplay?

MRS. EDWARD D. CANNADY,
Secretary Portland Branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, 520 East Twenty-sixth street North.

NEW YORK WORLD
Date AUG 14 1915

"BIRTH OF A NATION" TABOO IN ATLANTIC CITY.

(Special to The World.)

ATLANTIC CITY, Aug. 13.—Fearing race riots, William Bartlett, Director of Public Safety, to-day issued an order forbidding the presentation of the movie drama "The Birth of a Nation." The film, which has been shown at the Nixon Theatre on the Boardwalk three weeks, caused such a ferment among the negroes that threats of violence were openly made where negroes assembled.

Acting under instructions from the City Commission, Director Bartlett sent to the theatre management notice of his intention to suppress the film after Sunday night by police measures, if necessary.

AUG 14 1915
Date

STOPS "BIRTH OF A NATION" FILM

Atlantic City, Aug. 14.—Fearing race riots William Bartlett, Director of Public Safety, yesterday issued an order forbidding the presentation of the movie drama "The Birth of a Nation." The film, which has been shown at the Nixon Theatre on the Boardwalk for the last three weeks, caused such opposition from negroes here that they threatened violence. Chief of Police Woodruff sent plain-clothes men through the negro belt to sound sentiment there. The detectives said they heard threats to attack the playhouse and destroy the films unless the authorities closed the drama.

TACOMA (Wash.) LEDGER
AUG 6 1915

Tacoma, Wash., August 5, 1915.

Editor Tacoma Ledger: I have never been more [illegible] than now reading your editorial in your issue of the 5th instant headed "Drawing the Half-Crescent," in which you discuss, among other things, "The Birth of a Nation" as a proper picture film. If an honest report of the meeting of the city council on Tuesday morning had been made you, I feel confident that you would not have fallen into such an egregious error. Under the circumstances I crave your indulgence for a few explanatory remarks.

Some time ago I was asked to oppose this outrageously false production in our city. I frankly stated that I knew nothing about it, and that I would not speak about it unless I could see it and judge for myself. I was not asked by the colored people to oppose it, and they did not know how I felt in regard to the matter until I had spoken before the social service board of this city, as I verily believe, nor have I received any fee nor am I to receive any fee for my services in the matter. As has been falsely insinuated, but all has been done freely and gladly in behalf of civic ethics and decency.

I went and witnessed the horrid spectacle, giving the most careful and critical attention. It requires over three hours to see it, and it is like a frightful phantasmagoria or hideous dream, haunting one for weeks after seeing it. I left with feelings of mingled horror and righteous indignation, to think that such a monstrous travesty upon history, truth, right and justice should be tolerated by any part of the American people.

It is a spectacle that should be tolerated only in the detested land of cock fights, bull fights and most frightful anarchy. It exhales anger, hate and other fouled and deadly poisons, like the baneful upas tree. It tears open anew the agonizing wounds of race, class and sectional hatred, which all good people have been trying for over 50 years to heal. It is a much greater insult to every Union soldier than it is to the colored people, and every Union soldier who has seen it and has a modicum of sense knows it.

Having seen it and formed my own opinion, I next begun an investigation to see what other cities, states and critics thought of it. I soon discovered that the legislature of Illinois had just passed a bill against it, by the extraordinary vote of 111 to 1, as a most obnoxious and injurious production. I found that the grand old states of Ohio and Iowa and others had passed rigid laws against it, as a most vicious and unwholesome spectacle.

I found that ex-Gov. Pillsbury and Gov. Walsh of Massachusetts are bitterly opposed to it and are doing everything in their power to suppress it, as a most vicious show. I discovered that Mayor Curley of Boston, George Foster Peabody, the great philanthropist of New York, Jane Addams and Mrs. Carter H. Harrison of Chicago, Rabbi Stephen S. Wise of New York and hundreds of others of the great critical, ethical lights throughout this broad land had arraigned it in as severe terms as those I have used. In fact, I found that it was the consensus of opinion of the competent that the damnable nightmare should be suppressed.

I quoted also from your own immaculate, infallible senator, Senator Wesley L. Jones, to the effect that it was so horrible that he could not sit through it, but "got up and left it at the end of the first act." Will you no longer respect his opinion in ethical matters? Many people said, during the late campaign, that his expressions in behalf of the colored people were nothing but political buncombe. Surely you do not indorse that sentiment, as would seem, from your editorial this morning.

All these names and all this evidence were brought out by me before the council and newspapermen at the public meeting on Tuesday morning. Why were they suppressed in your valuable paper this morning? Why were they not alluded to in your editorial and answered?

Having seen the play and having made all these very exhaustive and careful investigations, I gladly entered the lists against the vicious production. Was this "going off half-cocked" as you say, in your editorial? Was it not rather acting most cautiously, prudently, deliberately and wisely? Let me ask you, please: Have you been the infamous spectacle? Did you know when you were writing your editorial that it had been most bitterly condemned by all good and intelligent people who have seen it?

Suffice it to say that it does give offense to a very large part of our population, to whom it is a gross insult, and the management of no decent playhouse in the country will wish to exhibit it, such being the case, there is so much that is good, elevating, pure, clean, healthful, noble and ennobling in the world to occupy their time and attention.

We have our meat inspectors, our food inspectors, our milk inspectors and our literary critics and censors, and it has long been manifest that we need very badly some live, honest, intelligent censors for our now all too numerous "rotten picture shows." Very truly,

ALBERT E. JOAB.

Tacoma, Wash., August 5, 1915.

PORTLAND (Ore.) JOURNAL
AUG 11, 1915

Tacoma City Council Aims Blow at Film

Tacoma, Wash., Aug. 11.—The Tacoma city council today passed an ordinance directly aimed at the exhibition here of the feature film "The Birth of a Nation," which will be [illegible] ought to Portland in a few weeks.

The council's action [illegible] prompted by the protest of se[illegible] ed negro residents of Tacoma [illegible] med the picture tended to in[illegible] prejudice, and was not historically correct.

CLEMMER FILM STIRS BLACKS

Indignation Meeting Planned for August 15 at Church.

F. A. Stokes, a leader of the colored delegation which visited the city council recently to urge censoring of "The Birth of a Nation," now running at the Clemmer, announced yesterday that an indignation meeting to protest against plays that incur race hatred will be held Sunday night, August 15, at the Bethel A. M. E. church.

"Whites and colored people will be invited to this meeting, and we will ask that some legislation be enacted by the city to prevent future efforts to commercialize race prejudices and stir up race hatred," he said.

"We realize that in the case which we recently took before the council arrangements had previously been made to give that play. But we will ask that the repetition of performances that do an injustice to any one section of people, white or black, be prohibited."

CLIPPING FROM
TACOMA (Wash.) NEWS-HERALD

ABOUT MOVING PICTURES.

Good people generally sympathize with the colored folk in their efforts to elevate the race and prevent public exhibitions that might have a tendency to discredit them. There is large room for argument, however, on their demand for a regulation that would prevent the presentation of such spectacles as "The Birth of a Nation."

The same protests might be made by the white race against "Uncle Tom's Cabin" on the ground that, because it shows some of the slave owners to have been brutes that it is a reflection on the entire race. Down East Yankees, if they were inclined to be finicky, might with equal right, protest against "Shore Acres," because it characterizes them as they were 50 or 100 years ago and not as the Yankee of today. Once started, there is no telling where the thing would stop.

Philadelphia, (Pa.) North American
SEP 7

THREE EJECTED WHEN THEY HISS 'BIRTH OF NATION' FILM

Three negroes were ejected from the Forrest Theater last night and arrested when they refused to leave the vicinity when ordered to do so by Police Captain Tempest. They had shown their objection to certain scenes in "The Birth of a Nation," now being shown in the theater, by hissing.

The men gave their names as Lazarus Lewis, Sixteenth street near South, Richard Williams, Merion avenue, near Fifty-second street, and George Herbert Hocutt, Merion avenue near Fifty-second street. Earlier in the evening, about [illegible] negroes who attempted to organize a parade at Broad and Lombard streets were dispersed.

SPOKANE (Wash.) REVIEW
JULY 20, 1915

"BIRTH OF NATION" BRINGS A PROTEST

Ministers' Alliance, G. A. R. Post and Colored Church Object to Coming Film.

GLASGOW WILL CENSOR

City Commissioners Decide to Send Representative to Seattle to See Discussed Picture.

In response to a petition headed by the Spokane Ministerial Alliance, J. L. Reno Post, G. A. R., and various colored organizations, the city council yesterday afternoon voted to send Commissioner Samuel Glasgow, city amusement censor, to Seattle to see the motion picture, "The Birth of a Nation," which is to open in Spokane August 1, at the Clemmer theater for a three weeks' run. For two hours the city council heard a discussion of the play, in which it was scored by speakers and defended by Dr. H. S. Clemmer, manager of the playhouse to present it here. More than 100 colored people attended the session, and applauded all points by the speakers in opposition to the pictures.

For a time the council seemed undecided as to whether Mayor Fassett or Commissioner Glasgow should see the play. Commissioner Glasgow announced that he stood on the decision of the national board of censors, which had passed the picture, and unless something was wrong he would permit it to be shown here.

Fassett Opposes Exhibition.

Mayor Fassett said that he had heard that eliminations in motion pictures ordered by the national board had not been carried out, and, whether approved or otherwise, he would oppose giving permission to show such pictures as the petitioners alleged the one under discussion. In the vote the motion to send Mayor Fassett was lost, while a subsequent motion to have Commissioner Glasgow make the inspection prevailed.

Dr. H. S. Clemmer invited an inspection by Commissioner Glasgow, and assured the council that if the city censor were sent he would personally provide transportation.

Mayor Fassett frowned on the idea of Dr. Clemmer paying the fare, and said the city should more properly foot the bill.

"In pursuance to a request of my people I went to Seattle to see this play, and feel that I can truthfully tell the city council what it contains," said he. Rev. D. A. Graham, pastor of the Bethel A. M. E. church. "There is powerful influence and money behind it, and I realize, in addressing you, that we have an uphill fight ahead.

"Its chief purpose is to incite further prejudice and racial antipathy for the colored people, who already have a sufficiently hard row to travel. The play is based on 'The Clansman,' a book by Thomas Dixon, the presentation of which in dramatic form was suppressed in most cities of the south.

Claims Race Misrepresented.

"It greatly exaggerates and magnifies a notion that colored men in the south are given to excesses toward white women, thus breeding the spirit of mob violence. It attempts to glorify the spirit of the Ku-Klux Klan, a notorious organization prosecuted by the government in the reconstruction days. The legislature of Illinois, by a vote of 111 to 2, prohibited the showing of these pictures in that state, and some cities have taken similar action. In Spokane the white and colored people get along well together, and it is to be regretted that we now find it necessary to appear before your body to pray for action that may further continue this friendly feeling."

Judge Adolph Munter, who said that he appeared as a citizen rather than as an advocate, condemned the play. "I went through the Ku-Klux Klan period in Alabama," said he. "The acts of these night riders were not based on the outrages of white women by colored men, but upon an unreasoning prejudice toward the colored race. From personal knowledge the so-called historical facts portrayed are untrue."

The speaker said the pictures were "absolutely vicious," and were "the work of reptiles intent on casting slime and calumny against a supposedly defenseless race of people."

Protests for Children.

E. J. Robertson protested on the ground that thousands of children who could not discern between fiction and fact would be given wrong conceptions of the colored race, and that prejudices would be formed or awakened that would take years to wipe out.

Dr. H. S. Clemmer said that no serious protest had been made against the pictures in Seattle, where they have been shown for three weeks, and that the present opposition was fostered by New York, whence it had been carried to different cities. Aside from the two scenes objected to, which formed an incident to the story, he said the production was a masterpiece in the moving picture art.

Commissioner Kraft thinks that the colored people were greatly excited about the picture, and that they should withhold their judgment until it could be seen. By attacking the production at this time, he said, they would play into the hands of the motion picture men. Commissioner Kraft doubted the right of the city to stop the play if it so desired. Commissioner Fleming thought the play should be inspected on behalf of the city before a permit is given.

Commissioner Glasgow commended the support of the motion picture managers since he had acted as censor, and said that any changes ordered had cheerfully been made. He thought in the present case the matter could be adjusted.

Commissioner Kraft thought that the city council was competent to handle the question and that if it were found necessary the two objectionable scenes can be eliminated.

TACOMA (Wash.) TRIBUNE
JULY 22, 1915

ASKS COUNCIL TO BAR FILM PLAY

Branding the picture an erroneous visauization of the reconstruction period in the South, and an open inducement to race prejudice and hatred of the negro classes, Mrs. J. H. Asbery, a prominent colored resident of Tacoma, appealed to the mayor and council Wednesday to prevent "The Birth of a Nation"—a photodrama founded on "The Clansman"—being shown in this city.

ATLANTIC CITY (N. J.) PRESS
JULY 22, 1915

COLORED PEOPLE PROTEST PICTURE

Pastors Sign Petition Objecting to "Birth of a Nation"

Editor Press:

We earnestly protest against the play known as "The Birth of a Nation," being staged and played in Atlantic City, N. J., for the following reasons:

1. It tends to create friction between the races and to distroy the good work of our great government which has been brought about by the sacrificing of so many good and brave white and black men and women.

2. It serves to discourage the Negro race in the United States and to place them before the world as unfit for assimulation or to participate in any part of government under which we live.

3. Because we are striving hard to eliminate the objectionable condition under which we have lived far too long, such condition being chiefly brought about by the Negro being deprived of a fair chance and an equal opportunity in the race of life in America. Now if I read the signs of the times correctly I think it is high time that the people in the United States should pinch themselves and rub their eyes and wake up. And instead of wasting their energy and time in the way of encouraging and applauding the trouble maker it should be the desire of every American to work for a very closely united people as well as the United States; for to be united in name and not in heart and hand woefully fails to form that bulwark which serves to defend, love and serve the home, preserve the state, protect and defend one's country at all hazard whatever the sacrifice may be: for as Jesus prayed the Heavenly Father to make us believers one in Him, as He and the Father are one, even so I pray, if it be the will of God, that this nation should become one united in spirit and work for the uplift of all in order that this nation might perform the work which God has assigned to its hands to do, for a house devided against itself shall not stand. The same thing is true of a nation.

Now, hoping the Mayor and the proper officials will take the necessary steps to prohibit this diabolical play, we remain,

Respectfully yours,
JOHN W. LAND,
S. LeROY MORRIS,
President;
L. V. DOUGLAS,
Secretary;
Rev. EUGENE CLARK,
Rev. J. P. GREGORY,
All members of the N. L. of Equal Rights;
Dr. CHAS. D. DOUGLAS,
Pastor Second Baptist Church.

MOTION PICTURE WORLD (N. Y. City)
AUG 7 1915

GRIFFITH FILM DISCUSSION IN SPOKANE.

By Clark Patchine, Spokane Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

A MEETING of the city council at Spokane, Wash., on Monday afternoon, July 19, was held over the prospective presentation here for three weeks, starting August 1, of "The Birth Of A Nation" at the Clemmer theater.

Spokane being ruled by a commission form of government the matter was taken before the council, composed of five commissioners, by the Rev. D. A. Graham, pastor of the Bethel A. M. E. church, backed by about 100 colored people and an endorsement from the Spokane Ministerial Alliance and the J. L. Reno Post of the G. A. R. In an impassioned plea the Rev. Mr. Graham opposed the presentation, in Spokane, of the production and said that at least two scenes, depicting negro characters in an unfavorable light, should be stricken from the film if it were shown.

Dr. H. S. Clemmer spoke in favor of the presentation and Judge Adolph Munter (white) championed the cause of the colored people and declared that the play would do much to stir up race prejudice in Spokane and that it was the council's place to do all in its power to prevent any such feeling being stirred up.

After more than two hours of the time of the city fathers had been taken up in the discussion of the mammoth production, declared by Dr. Clemmer to be a moving picture masterpiece, the council voted to send the Commission of Public Affairs, Samuel Glasgow, to Seattle to view the production which is being shown in the Clemmer theater, Seattle.

During the discussion Commissioner Glasgow, who is the city censor and was recently made an advisory member of the National Board of Censorship, commended the support of the moving picture exhibitors since he has been censor and said that any changes ordered had been carefully made. He declared that he had been accustomed to allowing moving picture managers to show pictures here which had been passed by the National Board of Censorship, but that he would be quite willing that any part of "The Birth of a Nation" found objectionable should be stricken out.

Commissioner Glasgow announced that he stood on the decision of the National Board of Censors, which had passed the picture, and unless something was wrong he would permit the production to be presented here.

Judge Adolph Munter appeared as a citizen rather than as an advocate and condemned the play. He said: "I went through the Ku-Klux-Klan period in Alabama and the acts of these night riders were not based on the outrages of white women by colored men, but upon an unreasoning prejudice toward the colored race. From personal knowledge the so-called historical facts portrayed are untrue."

E. J. Robertson protested on the ground that thousands of children who could not discern between fiction and facts would be given wrong conceptions of the colored race and that prejudices would be formed or awakened that it would require years to wipe out.

VARIETY (New York City)
AUG 3 - 1915

BATTLING FOR BUSINESS.

For the first time in the history of New York theatricals, a Broadway theatre housing a hit is inviting comparison with a film.

The play is "Common Clay," at the Republic, and the film is "The Birth of a Nation," at the Liberty.

In reviewing the piece one of the critics used the following: "For dramatic intensity the third act of 'Common Clay' outdoes any of the scenes of 'The Birth of a Nation.'" This has been reproduced by paint and oilcloth in sign form and is placed at the corner of 42nd street and Seventh avenue, so as to catch the eye of almost every one who passes.

ATLANTIC CITY BARS "BIRTH OF A NATION"

Director of Public Safety, Fearing Race Riots, Orders Its Exhibition Ceased.

(Special Dispatch to The Morning Telegraph.)

ATLANTIC CITY, Aug. 13.

Fearing race riots Director of Public Safety Bartlett to-day issued an order forbidding the further presentation here of "The Birth of a Nation." The film, which has been shown at the Nixon Theatre on the Boardwalk for the last three weeks, caused a ferment among the negro element that gave rise to threats of violence wherever they gathered.

Acting under instructions from the City Commission, which yesterday listened to protests from more than 100 negro churchmen, who declared the show incited race hatred, Director Bartlett sent the theatre management notice of his intention to suppress the film after Sunday night next.

Director Bartlett's action, regardless of an opinion of City Solicitor Schimpf that he is without power to act, followed a conference with Chief of Police Woodruff who had sent plain clothes men through the neighborhood where nearly 10,000 negroes live to sound sentiment there and ascertain whether it was as represented by the ministers.

Atlantic City Press
July 26-1915

ANOTHER PROTEST AGAINST PICTURE

Editor Press:

The great picture play founded on Thomas Dickson's "Clansman," and entitled the "Birth of a Nation," is in point of scenic beauty all that could be disered, but in attempting to portray the colored man in the character of a brutish beast devoid of the higher and nobler attributes common to intelligent creatures it becomes a flagrant and contemptible exhibition of human depravity, reflecting discredit upon the common sense and decency of those responsible for its production. It is very evident that such pictures create a sentiment against the colored man and this sentiment inspires revenge which in time becomes the fundamental reason—rather excuse—for a continuation of the long-established policy of terrorism against the race in which neither the States nor the Federal Government have the moral right to interfere.

It is hard to believe the [illegible] says; review age of culture and refinement [illegible] of people who have struggled [illegible] to redeem themselves [illegible] that the world should still [illegible] on [illegible] cule because of [illegible] charge; the M. P. News with W. A. Johnston; the N. Y. Telegraph with a man in [illegible]. Next was MOTOGRAPHY with copies. N. G. Cawardine in charge. Then the Western Union Telegraph office.

The Art Slide Company, 964 Market street, San Francisco, with Al Williams, president, in charge, assisted by P. Young and Mabel Young, occupying a booth at the east end of the building with a display of slides, motion and still. Also a display of Baloption machines.

Next this was a double booth of American Photoplayers Sales Company, 130 Kearny street, San Francisco, with A. L. Abrams in charge. One big Fotoplayer in operation all day.

Tuesday afternoon a brief session of the convention was held at which the principal address was delivered by Walter Bloeser of the Chicago Tribune's advertising department. Mr. Bloeser spoke as follows:

Time does not permit me to say all the good things I would like to have you know—consequently I will try to confine my talk to a few words of cheer.

In this day of disturbed commercialism the question "Is business good?" is heard everywhere. As one exhibitor to another then, it reminds me of a short colloquy I had the pleasure of hearing over the shoulders of two exhibitors the other day. Jones queried of Smith, "Is business good?" And Smith replied curtly, "Even." Jones, somewhat befuddled with his answer inquired, "Just what d'ye mean, even?" And Smith retorted with a deal of surprise mixed with fury, "Why, old man, just this. Night before last I took in $400, and last night I lost $400."

So from this little anecdote, gentlemen, we can extract a nucleus for the exhibition business—a basis for its being, as it were. [illegible] business man, will not allow you to practice it. You would all like to, I know, but somehow it is proven that it can't be done. However, I am going to proclaim patience on your part and fraternalism not on the sleeve or lapel but in your very heart and soul. Rules and regulations never eliminated the crooks in any business. Laws are organized mummery on which a body of lawmakers batten and fatten. The only hope lies in what you yourself think, act and do. Don't worry about the "guy" who is crooked, the outsider who ventures into the business and makes it hard for you. He soon fall on his own sword because men by hard and painful who are untrue to a trust are a menace to themselves, a trial to their neighbors and a burden to their friends just in the proportion that they are crooked. About the business man with some money who ventures into the game and makes things hard for you—he should have no terrors for you. His end begins when he makes the first step into the game. And why worry? Because a man can pack the cards is no indication or proof that he can play. Isn't that true?

Consider, gentlemen, that you are in a business that is newer than any in the world and it is quite natural to assume that there is yet a lot of fixing, rearranging and constructing to be done. For instance, the steel business was not built and made in a day. The world was created in seven days, but you know—and don't you dare deny it—that it is still in a deplorable condition. So be hopeful and happy, gentlemen—get your smiles limbered up—let's have a little more real optimism and a clearer perception of the rosy side of things, for we know where there is one.

Now, gentlemen, I don't feel that I have told you anything new. Probably, though, I did tell you things you already know, but didn't know you knew. I did show you, I hope, how I appreciate what your work is and the hard part you have to play; and knowing this as I do, I can frankly say in a few words: Work on day by day—wear rose-colored spectacles when things look blue—await patiently the day of reconstruction in the film business which we are actually passing through right now and withal look to Truth as your standard and practice it whenever and wherever you can at all times and success is bound to be yours.

David W. Griffith's address on "The Rise and Fall of Free Speech and Personal Liberty in America," was given before one of the most enthusiastic assemblages for which a speaker might hope. Applause upon his arrival in the Civic Center Auditorium convention hall on the morning of July 15 was continued and hearty and when his talk was finished three cheers and a rising vote of thanks were accorded him.

The talk was the feature of the day's business session and was well delivered. President Marion S. Pearce, presiding at the meeting, introduced Mr. Griffith and afterward expressed the League's thanks to him for his presence and talk.

Mr. Griffith had the following to say:

Freedom of speech and publication is guaranteed in the Constitution of the United States and in the constitutions of practically all the states. Unjustifiable speech or publication may be punished, but cannot be forbidden in advance. The Supreme Court of California held that a regular theatrical production could be protected from injunction on the ground that it was a publication. Mayor Gaynor—that great purist who stood out from the ordinary, gallery-playing, hypocritical type of politician, who plays for that hydra-headed monster called "public clamor" in America, as a white rose stands out from a field of sewer-fed weeds, said in vetoing a censorship ordinance in the city of New York:

"Ours is a government of free speech and a free press. That is the corner-stone of free government. The phrase 'the press' includes all methods of expression by writing or pictures * * * if this (moving picture) ordinance be legal, then a similar ordinance in respect of the newspapers and the theaters generally would be legal."

We do not fear censorship, for we have no wish to offend with indecencies or obscenities, but we do demand as a right the liberty to show the dark side of wrong, that we may illuminate the bright side of virtue—the same liberty that is conceded to the art of the written word—that art to which we owe the Bible and the works of Shakespeare.

The rise and fall of free speech in America—add to this the rise and fall of Liberty in America—and when you go home tonight and have your glass of beer, which the long-haired angels of reform, walking through their [illegible]

CLEVELAND (O.) LEADER
AUG. 15, 1915

False reports spread broadcast that D. W. Griffith's great Civil war reconstruction spectacle, "The Birth of a Nation," would not be allowed to [illegible] in Chicago were dissipated when the drama started June 5 a run at the Illinois theater there, which will probably continue for the next six months or a year.

PHILADELPHIA, (PA.) PRE

AUG 1915

Embargo on "Birth of Nation" Off.

Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 14.—Chancellor Walker, of New Jersey, this afternoon in Trenton granted an injunction prohibiting the city of Atlantic City, the Director of Public Safety and the chief of police from interfering in any way with the presentation of "The Birth of a Nation" at the New Nixon Theater. The Director of Public Safety had issued orders that the picture could not be exhibited after Monday.

Philadelphia, (Pa.) Public Ledger

Date ..... AUG 1 1915

Oppose Birth of a Nation

Special Telegram to Public Ledger

ATLANTIC CITY, Aug. 11.—Every negro pastor and many negro hotel keepers and merchants have signed resolutions calling upon Mayor Riddle to forbid the presentation here of the "Birth of a Nation," on the ground that it incites race hatred.

PROVIDENCE (R. I.) JOURNAL
AUG 11, 1915

COLORED PEOPLE PROTEST PHOTOPLAY

Appear at Hearing Given by Police Commission.

ONE SCENE TO BE ELIMINATED

Private Exhibition to be Given Before Officials and Representatives of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

A hearing was conducted by the Board of Police Commissioners yesterday upon an application of Col. Felix R. Wendelschaefer, manager of the Providence Opera House, for a permit to show the Griffith photoplay, "The Birth of a Nation."

The session resulted in an agreement to produce the picture in this city if the exhibitors eliminate the negro assault scene, which has caused objection on the part of negro residents of other cities.

Col. Wendelschaefer announced yesterday that the film would be brought to this city this morning and a private exhibition of it given before the Police Commissioners and the representatives of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

The office of the board was crowded yesterday forenoon with lawyers, clergymen and doctors, while Col. Wendelschaefer was represented by Col. Frank Tillinghast.

At the close of the hearing Chairman Walter A. Presbrey announced that he would grant a permit for a showing of the picture here if this incident, which has been objected to by the colored representatives and those found not in keeping with the policy of the board are eliminated.

A permit to show the film was requested some weeks ago by the manager of the Providence Opera House, but, acting on information received by it from the National Board of Censorship and the New York Board of Censorship, the Police Board decided to withhold a decision until such time as objectionable portions of the reel were removed.

Chairman Presbrey said that, on the advice of a friend, he had recently seen the play in Boston. After scenes relating to the assault had been removed, he said, he saw nothing objectionable about it, and for that reason had again taken up the application of Col. Wendelschaefer.

Later Col. Wendelschaefer said that there was no reason why those portions of the picture to which the remonstrants objected could not be eliminated without hurting the plot of the story. He assented his willingness to do this to the approval of the board.

MOTION PICTURE NEWS (New York City

ATLANTA (Ga.) JOURNAL
AUG. 15, 1915

AGITATION in Philadelphia over the showing of "The Birth of a Nation" has reached the point where candidates in municipal elections must say they are in favor of it or not to get the votes of one side or another. This tremendous Griffith spectacle is booked for the Atlanta theater in December.

Spo[illegible]ane Is Hit by Agitation Stirred Up by Col[illegible] People Over "Birth of a Nation"

SPOKANE'S storm of protest over "The Birth of a Nation" small, has [illegible] echo of the [illegible] made in other cities in which the Griffith spectacle has been [illegible]

[illegible] film, signed by the Clemmer brothers, of Seattle and Spokane, for a run of two weeks in the former city and three weeks in the latter, has been running since late in June in the Clemmer theatre in Seattle, without objection. It is due in Spokane August 2.

The local [illegible] officers of colored [illegible] Graham of the African [illegible] to Seattle to witness a performance [illegible] back with a report [illegible] in moral and calculated to stir [illegible] He went before the Spokane [illegible] Association and [illegible] request to be permitted [illegible] against having the [illegible] show here. [illegible] Pastor [illegible] and by [illegible] declared they had lived in [illegible] Klan was operating [illegible] were [illegible] the work [illegible] amusements. He stated before the council that his policy always had been to O. K. all films which bore the stamp of the National Board of Censorship and that he probably would report favorably on "The Birth of a Nation" if he found the official approval of the board upon it.

[illegible] to Seattle [illegible] Glasgow to Seattle [illegible] long back a report [illegible] official censor [illegible]

Manager [illegible] Clemmer of the Clemmer theatre [illegible] to pay the expenses of the censor to the east and back, but this was declined by the council and the cost of the trip will come out of the municipal coffers.

"Base my protest upon four points," said the old pastor; "First, it is false history; second, it is calculated to create race prejudice; third, it shows the negro as an irresponsible degenerate; fourth, some of its scenes are certainly grossly immoral."

Manager Clemmer told the council that the scenes objected to were mere incidents and had little to do with the main theme of the picture.

TO GIVE NEGROES' SIDE.

Elaine Sterne Has Written Answer to "Birth of a Nation."

"Lincoln's Dream," which was written by Elaine Sterne as an answer to "The Birth of a Nation," will soon make its appearance. It is being produced with the backing and support of the National Association for the Advancement of the Colored People and will present their side of the reconstruction period.

This picture is intended to offset the effect of "The Birth of a Nation," which the negroes and their friends assert is against their best interests and derogatory to their ideals and traditions. Among those who are interested in the new film are Oswald Villard and Rabbi Stephen Wise.

NEW YORK TIMES

AUG 15 1915

Film on Trial Lifted.

Special to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

TRENTON, N. J., Aug. 14.—By an order made tonight by Chancellor Walker, City Commissioner William H. Bartlett, Director of Public Safety of Atlantic City, N. J., and other officials of that resort are restrained from interfering with the motion picture drama "The Birth of a Nation," being exhibited at the New Nixon Theatre. A rule to show cause why an injunction should not issue prohibiting the Atlantic City authorities from interfering with the production has been allowed. It is returnable Aug. 21. Mr. [illegible] has given notice that on and after Aug. 16 the exhibition will [illegible]

AUG. 16, 1915
SPOKANE (Wash.) REVIEW

TO WATCH FUTURE FILM

Colored Citizens Will Oppose Any Pictures With Race Prejudice.

With F. A. Stokes presiding and practically every seat in the Bethel A. M. E. church taken, members of the colored business men's league last night held a protest meeting regarding the moving picture film, "The Birth of a Nation."

After considerable discussion of "The Birth of a Nation" and an address by I. E. Robinson it was decided to request the city council to pass an ordinance prohibiting in the future any pictures that may incite race hatred or prejudice.

Mr. Stokes said that the main fight of the colored people was against Commissioner Samuel Glasgow, working film censor, for allowing the picture to be shown. He further said that it was the opinion of the colored people that if Mayor Fassett and some other member of the council had been interested the picture would not have been shown. W. R. Moten acted as secretary.

"If Germans, Jews or Gentiles were reflected upon by the film as the black race in The Birth of a Nation it would not be shown in Spokane," declared I. E. Robinson at the meeting.

The Crisis - 7/15

National Ass'n for the Advancement of Colored People

MEMBERS

During the month of May 465 new members were added to the Association, making a total enrollment of over 7,500. Of the many contributions which have recently come to the Association none is more eloquent of the spirit which animates the organization than a contribution from the colored sailors of the U. S. Steamship "Nebraska:"

U. S. S. NEBRASKA,
SOUTHERN DRILL GROUNDS,
April 25, 1915.

GENTLEMEN:

Enclosed you will find fourteen dollars which we the members of The Nebraska Social Club contribute to the N. A. A. C. P. to be used as you see fit. We are interested in the work of the N. A. A. C. P. and trust this mite will be a help to the cause. We represent the full number of the Negroes attached to this ship.

With best wishes for success in your work.

Respectfully,
THE NEBRASKA SOCIAL CLUB

BRANCHES

Ten new branches in the Middle West have been chartered by the N. A. A. C. P.: In Illinois, Cairo, Carbondale, Evansville, Jacksonville and Peoria; and Champaign and Urbana, forming the Twin City Branch; Columbus and Dayton, Ohio; and Terre Haute and Vincennes, Indiana.

Our branches continue to work to suppress the photoplay based on Dixon's "Clansman." From a reliable source we hear that protests against Sheldon's play "The Nigger," made by our Ohio branches, Mr. Harry C. Smith of the Cleveland Gazette, and the Ministers' Alliances, not only prevented the production of the play but discouraged the owners of the "Clansman" film from continuing their preparations to produce the latter in Ohio.

Boston was victorious in its effort in the Legislature which finally passed the bill creating a Board of Censorship consisting of the Mayor, the Chief of Police and the Chief Magistrate. A bitter fight was made over an amendment which the Branch and other friends finally succeeded in adding to the bill and which provided that a majority rather than a unanimous vote of the Board was necessary for a decision. The moving picture interests made desperate efforts to kill this amendment.

Immediately upon its appointment the new Board was petitioned for a public hearing against further production of the play in Boston. The Board decided that the license of the theatre should not be revoked or suspended but gave no reason and declined to state whether all three of its members agreed or whether there was a dissent. The Board rendered its decision without having given any public hearing except to hear arguments relating to the scope of its power and the rules which should govern its determination in cases which might come before it under this new act.

It is reported that the management is losing money on the production and that the attendance represents largely paper houses. That the Abolition spirit, however, is not dead in New England is indicated by the decision of the Mayor of Springfield who said he would license the play for that city only when the colored people had consented. It has been barred by the District Police in every city in Massachusetts for Sunday performance.

In Wilmington, Del., City Councilman John O. Hopkins, the only Negro member of that body, introduced an ordinance to prohibit the exhibition of any

SPOKANE (Wash.) REVIEW
AUG 11 1915

903 First avenue, Spokane.

EXPLAINS WHY NEGROES OBJECT

Resent "Birth of Nation" as Slur on Dark-Skinned Citizens of America.

To the Editor of The Spokesman-Review: Now that the people of Spokane have had more than a week in which to view the "Birth of a Nation," it is probable that they can better appreciate the protest of the negroes here and elsewhere.

The protest of the negroes of Spokane was not drawn in a moment of hysteria and undue excitement, as was said by one of the commissioners. It was made only after a calm and careful study of the effect it would produce and was intended to produce upon the minds of thousands of men, women and children likely to view it.

While we were prepared to hear the censor's favorable recommendation of the film, we were wholly unprepared for these, his views: "The colored people have the same grounds for objection to one or two parts or scenes in the 'Birth of a Nation' that the Irish and Jews ~~of Spokane have~~ had for objecting to shows and films that portrayed members of their races in ridiculous or unfavorable light."

We fail to see the analogy, unless, of course, one Jew scorned or one Irishman ridiculed equals the entire negro race slandered and made to appear beastly, vicious and irredeemable. We do not doubt his candor; his analysis is perfectly clear to himself and others but no negro agrees in his conclusion that the "scenes react to no detriment to the negro."

Mr. Dixon, in an interview with one of the editors of the Congregationalist, Boston, Mass., emphasized these three purposes of the "Birth of a Nation:"

He expressed his desire to teach his version of the reconstruction period, and urged at considerable length the virtues of the Ku Klux Klan, which, he said, was made up of the best white men of the south, including his father, a Baptist minister of North Carolina. Fancy that "secret, black and midnight" horde of lawless ruffians whose career of crime and outrage is part of the history of our country now clothed in the garb of crusaders!

To create a feeling of abhorrance for colored men in the hearts of white people, especially white women, in order to stop intermarriage.

He proceeds from his inference of white supremacy to argue his desire to secure the removal of all negroes from the United States. This as a solution of the race problem is so monstrous as to be almost inconceivable. He may as well attempt the colonization of the negroes on the planet of Mars, and if they were so colonized these ubiquitous Aryans would hunt him out just as he sought him from the sunny climes of Africa.

The negroes rightly protested against these false pictures, made to mislead those ignorant of the facts, to excite a feeling of hate against the negro and to strengthen an already strong band of prejudice.

NEW YORK SUN

AUG 10 1915

FILM GIVES NEGROES' SIDE.

Movie to Be Shown in Opposition to "Birth of Nation."

With the backing and support of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People an opposition film to "The Birth of a Nation" is soon to make its appearance on the screen. It is written by Elaine Sterne and is called "Lincoln's Dream."

This picture is intended as an answer to the Nation film, which the negroes and their friends assert is against their best interests and derogatory to their ideals and traditions. Among those who are interested in the new film are Oswald Villard and Rabbi Stephen Wise.

CLIPPING FROM NEW YORK TIMES
AUG 15

The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People is going to answer "The Birth of a Nation" in its own coin. When the film, based on Thomas Dixon's story of the South, was first produced the association carried on an agitation against it, which resulted in the elimination of some scenes considered objectionable, but which failed to accomplish its aim, since the picture was not placed under the censorial ban.

Elaine Sterne, who has won fame as a writer of scenarios, conceived the idea of answering "The Birth of a Nation" with a film in which the development of the colored race should be set forth. After interesting the association in her scheme, Miss Sterne went South to study the subject. "Lincoln's Dream" is the title she has given the scenario based on the material gathered. The Universal Film Company has arranged to produce the [illegible] which will be sent wherever there is [illegible] for the protest [illegible]

SPOKANE (Wash.) CHRONICLE
AUG 6, 1915 85

[illegible] commendation.

BOWLAND

TACOMA ASKED TO BAR GRIFFITH FILM

Ordinance Before City Council to Prevent Showing in Coast Community.

The city council of Tacoma is the latest to be forced into wrestling with the problem of whether the Griffith-Dixon spectacle, "The Birth of a Nation," should be exhibited.

An ordinance, drafted by Colonel A. E. Joab, has been laid before the city council here, aimed at prohibiting films that "tend to excite race prejudice." Final action on it has been postponed until next week.

Proponents of the ordinance admitted at a public hearing that it was intended chiefly to keep out "The Birth of a Nation," for the booking of which the Tacoma theater is negotiating.

Colored People to Protest.

Colored people of Spokane have arranged a meeting to protest against further booking of films or shows founded upon race hatred. It will be held at the Bethel A. M. E. church Sunday night, August 15.

"BIRTH OF NATION" IS BANNED

Director Bartlett Hearkens To Protests Of Colored Citizens

On the heels of the protest of a large delegation of the colored race in this city to the City Commission against "The Birth of a Nation" on Thursday and indications that disorder might be precipitated if the photo play were continued longer at the New Nixon, Director of Public Safety Bartlett last night notified the management of the New Nixon theatre to withdraw the production after Monday next.

It has been running here for four or five weeks and has created strong feelings of resentment among the colored population in this city.

This feeling came to a head on Thursday afternoon when about 200 colored men and women appeared before the City Commission and told the "rulers" the play was an insult and a false travesty of their race and was certain to provoke race hostility. They urged the Commissioners to prohibit the further production of the much talked of moving picture drama of past times. Mayor [illegible] moved a resolution requesting Director of Public Safety W. H. Bartlett to order its discontinuance.

Director Bartlett said he had not seen the show and asked that the matter be referred to him with power to act. Finally the Mayor withdrew his resolution and on Commissioner Bacharach's motion the matter was left with Bartlett.

Yesterday Director Bartlett attended performance of the show himself, [illegible] decided, in view of the [illegible] storm brewing among the colored [illegible] that the play was not [illegible]

Philadelphia, (Pa.) Public Ledger

Date AUG 14 1915

NEGRO PROTEST STOPS FILM PLAY

Atlantic City Director of Public Safety Suppresses "Birth of Nation"

THREATS OF VIOLENCE LEAD HIM TO ACT

Detectives Report That Racial Trouble Was Likely to Result

From Public Ledger Bureau

ATLANTIC CITY, Aug. 13.—Fearing race violence on the Boardwalk, William H. Bartlett, Director of Public Safety, late today issued an order forbidding the presentation of the "Birth of a Nation," a film drama, in Atlantic City.

The production, which has been shown for several weeks at the New Nixon, a Boardwalk playhouse owned and conducted by Philadelphians, deals with reconstruction times in the South and the Ku Klux Klan.

Acting under instructions from the City Commission, which yesterday heard burning protests from more than 100 negro churchmen, who declared the play incited race hatred, Director Bartlett sent to the Nixon Theatre management tonight notice of his intention to suppress the film drama after Sunday night next by police measures if necessary.

Director Bartlett's summary action, regardless of an informal opinion from City Solicitor Schimpf that he is without power to act, followed a conference with Chief of Police Woodruff. Woodruff early today sent plain-clothes men through the black belt of the city, where nearly 10,000 negroes have their homes, to sound sentiment and ascertain whether it is so bitter as colored pastors and laymen represented to the City Commission yesterday.

Detectives Hear Threats

Woodruff's men reported that they found sections of the back town in a ferment, with men, women and children congregating in the streets to talk about the film and the attack upon their race they claim it carries. Threats of violence were made freely in the saloons patronized by colored men. The detectives heard proposals to attack the Boardwalk playhouse.

Woodruff's reports reached Director Bartlett at 6 o'clock this evening and his order of suppression was drawn and signed 20 minutes later.

Earlier in the day Bartlett intimated the belief that agitators were seeking to make political capital out of the matter, and endeavoring to align the colored vote against him unless he took action without precedent in the city.

Reports of Woodruff's men changed the whole phase of the situation for him. "This matter is evidently serious," the Director said. "Whether police action is justified under a strict interpretation of law or not, we are going to do our utmost to suppress this cause of contention. We cannot afford to have violence in Atlantic City if it is possible to avert it, and that is the attitude we shall pursue."

There is much division of opinion among visitors here as to the film. Many believe that it teaches a lesson and should be shown as widely as possible. Others believe just as strongly that there is no reason for recalling the fearful conditions following the Rebellion in the Southland and arousing race prejudice.

Support Director's Action

One of the strongest scenes in the film drama shows a negro vagabond pursuing a small white girl through the woods. She finally leaps from a cliff and is killed. Then the Ku Klux Klan gathers by night and carries its death and destruction among the negroes.

Hotel men here indorsed Bartlett's action tonight. Nothing could be worse, many of them said, than to have any serious racial disturbance in Atlantic City with the midsummer season near its height. There are probably 20,000 Southern people in the city. Most of them have seen the Ku Klux pictures and declare them an educational achievement.

The fact that conditions in the negro sections should be sufficiently serious to call for the suppression order caused no little uneasiness. It was declared tonight that threats to start a stampede in the Boardwalk theatre were made in front of it yesterday while the Protest [illegible] demanding that the City

Philadelphia, (Pa.) Public Ledger

Date AUG 15 1915

COURT SUSTAINS FILM OWNERS

Production of "Birth of Nation" to Continue at Atlantic City

ORDER SHORE OFFICIALS NOT TO INTERFERE

Petition for Permanent Injunction to Be Argued on August 24

Special Telegram to Public Ledger

TRENTON, Aug. 14. — The Court of Chancery, through an injunction issued by Chancellor Walker at his home here tonight, temporarily restrained City Commissioner William H. Bartlett, Director of Public Safety of Atlantic City, and the Police Department of that city from interfering with the moving picture production, "The Birth of a Nation," now playing at the New Nixon Theatre.

Representing the Esplanade Amusement Company, owners of the theatre and the Epoch Producing Corporation, owners of the picture, ex-Assemblyman Emerson L. Richards and Ulysses G. Stryon appeared before the Chancellor and petitioned that the officials of Atlantic City be restrained from their contemplated action of stopping the exhibition of the picture.

Chancellor Walker allowed a rule to show cause, returnable Tuesday, August 24, why a permanent injunction should not be granted, and in the meantime the temporary restraint was allowed. The management of the theatre was notified yesterday by Commissioner Bartlett that on Monday the picture would be closed and no reason was assigned for the action.

The petition presented to the court called particular attention to the magnitude of the production; that it had cost a sum in excess of $100,000; that it had taken a year's time to produce it; that 18,000 persons and 3000 horses were used in the production; that there had been no attempt to engender racial or religious prejudices, but that, on the contrary, it is wholesome and elevating.

Another contention made by the complainants is that at present the picture is being exhibited in all parts of the country and that it was witnessed in February of this year by most distinguished persons in official life at the National Press Club in Washington, and the universal verdict was that it was a wonderful production.

PICTURE IS DELETED.

Objectionable Scenes Cut Out of "The Birth of a Nation."

(Special Dispatch to The Morning Telegraph.)

ATLANTIC CITY, Aug. 17.—The opposition to certain scenes in the photo-play spectacle, "The Birth of a Nation," showing here at the New Nixon Theatre, has been successful. After conferring with pastors of the four largest negro congregations of the resort, Samuel Nixon, lessee of the playhouse, agreed to delete the scene in which "Gus the Renegade" drives a white girl to death, and the one in which "Lynch," the negro Lieutenant Governor, tries to marry his benefactor's daughter. The pastors are understood to have mentioned the lynching of Leo Frank at the interview.

"What stronger argument could we have at this time than the terrible thing which happened in Georgia," said Rev. E. M. Clark of Jericho Presbyterian Church; "these same people lynch our people in the South on the flimsiest evidence."

[illegible] PICTURE NEWS (New York City)

COURT REFUSES BAN ON "NATION"

The injunction to prohibit the showing of "The Birth of a Nation" in Atlantic City, which was sought by Mayor Riddle has been refused by Chancellor Walker.

The reason for the request was that the great number of negroes in Atlantic City might be offended. Chancellor Walker said he saw nothing in the production could lead to harm.

N (Me.) JOURNAL AUG 20, 1915 467

MUCH OVERDONE

A Lewiston Man's Comments on Race Problems and "Birth of a Nation."

A Lewiston man, L. B. Morrell, thinks that if there hadn't been a "race-war" over the "The Birth of a Nation," it would never have been such a popular hit. He gives his impressions as follows:

About a month ago I went into the Tremont Theatre in Boston; shelled out a dollar and took a back seat in the rear of the house to see the war play, "The Birth of a Nation." The house was full to the doors. I had read a previous editorial from a New York newspaper and I was anxious to see the play. Two Colonial dames of 1860 period at the door dropped a courtesy and handed me a program. Before I had time to observe them closely I was pushed ahead and I only got a fair rubber at the low-necked dames. A general (presumably under Grant) seated your humble servant next to the door in the rear. The entire make-up was military—decided so. The orchestra played patriotic airs and even before the picture was shown I was way down in Ole Alabama.

Now it is not for me to criticise this play but looking at it as a stranger on the bleachers at a baseball game, I was a very unbiased person that sat in the back row, at a $1 per seat.

At eight sharp the picture commenced and lasted 3½ hours with a ten minute wait between the first and second part. It began by showing the life on a southern plantation with the Negroes playing the banjos, the ladies in pantalettes, birds in the trees, flowers and all the peace harmony in fact a good place to live. In fact it was overdone, staged to the minute. As a handicap they had it 4 ways for Sunday over the Garden of Eden. In comes the chariot from the train with Northern friends the hand shaking was overdone. The really and truly colonel was there to greet his guests, the robust matron the two daughters and two sons were there also. The daughters I noticed were remarkably good looking and with their looks never should have hailed from that place.

One of the Northerners falls madly in love with the oldest daughter. The youngest was the better looking. Of course these friends were to meet on the battlefield and refuse to shoot each other. I had that doped out before it happened.

Now clouds are gathering, and Lincoln is elected. We see Lincoln signing the declaration, the surroundings were supposed to be exact. Lincoln made a hit. His assassination at the Ford Theatre was an exact reproduction. The audience was spell bound it was so wonderfully carried out.

The end of the war comes, the Negroes in power with armed rifles. Negro officials and their abuse of the power they held was the cause of the Ku Klux Klan or night riders that afterward scare the niggers back to their original stalls. One direct cause of the night riders was the assault of a young girl and was the cause of her untimely death, of course by a Negro, who was found, punished by death and has so been punished that way ever since. So much for a rough outline of the story.

Now, the picture was beautiful and instructive. The battles were very realistic; but the real lesson is what I want to speak of. The Negroes at that time had no education at all. Who was to blame. They were ignorant and kept so by their owners.

Ignorance of the law is no excuse with the judge but it is some times with the jury. Thousands of the black race could not read, write or converse intelligently on any subject that our primary school boy could understand, and when the blacks were in power they knew not how to use it. They had been owned body and soul subject to their masters' bidding for generations, to slave in the fields and all at once were liberated. Salem witchcraft was more of a crime then than the outrage of the girl; because they were men from England with an education that taught them the difference between right and wrong. They persecuted when they knew they were persecu-

After the picture [illegible] the audience is shown [illegible] of the international institution, [illegible] and other authors, as a sort of a reputation for the mud thrown during the picture. The effect is to make the audience go looking for negroes after the show with a shot gun. The negro today as a class, is not the negro of Lincoln's day. The negro was what his master made him, and was not half as bad before his maker as the men who knew better.

This picture will eventually be shown here as soon as it gets away from its $.50 to $2 a seat capacity. It was modified before leaving New York. Puritanic Boston looked at it indifferently. It did a good business; is a masterpiece of stage technique, but if that scene I have spoken of had been eliminated it would have been better, for I will venture to say that the newspaper comments and the trouble it stirred up among the colored people were the cause in a great measure for its high prices and crowded houses. Idle curiosity must be satisfied. Anything that is talked about is a winner for the box office and this play would be at the regular ten cent houses now if it had not been for shrewdness on the part of the producers in starting something unusual. The ruse is transparent and as I have said before, much overdone.

MARINETTE (Wis.) EAGLE STAR AUG. 21, 1915

charge of Dr. Rosenbluth.

MEETS "BIRTH OF NATION"

National Association Preparing Answer to Dixon's Infamous Play

The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, which objected to the presentation of "The Birth of a Nation" on the ground that scenes in which white girls were attacked cast a reflection on the colored race, now is preparing a motion picture of Civil War times that will act as an answer to "The Birth of a Nation," and defend the colored race.

Charles M. Studin, one of the directors of the association, said yesterday that the association had conceived the project several weeks ago and had engaged Miss Elaine Sterne, a professional movie writer, to prepare a scenario. This is now ready, he said, and the association is trying to interest capital to back the venture.

PORTLAND (Ore.) OREGONIAN AUG. 21, 1915

'BIRTH OF NATION' OPPOSED

Veterans Oppose Showing of Film Scheduled to Appear Soon.

Not until a lively fuss is settled will Portland motion-picture theatergoers see the film, "The Birth of a Nation," to be shown in Portland in the near future.

The impending opposition to the film echoed yesterday before the Council, when a committee representing George Wright Post, No. 1, of the Grand Army of the Republic, entered a protest against its being shown. The committee comprised Rev. C. S. Cline, J. L. Atkinson and D. W. Butler. A protest has been made also by Mayor Alber by negroes of the city. They allege the film is of a character [illegible] race prejudice and stirs up [illegible] feeling against the negro in the northern states. This is emphatically [illegible] by the members of the Post. They [illegible] such a character that [illegible] to arouse [illegible]

Philadelphia, (Pa.) Public Ledger

Date [illegible]

PROTEST AGAINST "BIRTH OF A NATION"

"Dr." Moses Stern and Colored Pastor Address Mass Meeting on City Hall Plaza

The protest meeting on the City Hall plaza last night against the much-discussed film drama of the Civil War, "The Birth of a Nation," almost went up in smoke; that is, the theme of the discussion became clouded by the arguments of "Dr." Moses Stern—he of the "Ith." Sunday laws—against the particular brand of tobacco used by one of his auditors.

"Doctor" Stern's sympathies are broad, and he appeared last night to champion the cause of the colored population of the city who object to alleged misrepresentation of their race in "The Birth of a Nation." He had scarcely begun to speak, however, before the powerful aroma of a nearby pipe penetrated his nostrils. That was too much for "Doctor" Stern. He lost his temper and launched into a vigorous arraignment of smoking and smokers in general, and the tall individual in front of him, puffing at the noxious pipe, in particular.

Meanwhile the gentleman in question continued to smoke, and "Doctor" Stern relinquished the floor, or rather the soapbox, to his colleague, the picturesque colored orator, Dr. Caesar A. A. F. Taylor, who assailed "The Birth of a Nation" on the ground that it would arouse race prejudice and give all who witnessed it a false impression of the negro character. The crowd of several hundred persons assembled about the improvised platform was in good humor, so it appeared, with him and cheered warmly. But the point raised by "Doctor" Stern seemed to be of more general interest, for several impromptu speakers after Doctor Taylor expanded upon the merits and demerits of smoking.

The meeting was held under the auspices of the International Brotherhood Welfare Association, which plans a series of gatherings to protest against the showing of the Civil War photo-play. A [illegible] has been planned for next Sunday [illegible] Opponents of "The Birth of a Nation"

PORTLAND (Ore.) OREGONIAN
AUG. 20, 1915

CIVIL WAR FILM CONTROVERSY

Grand Army Post Opposes Exhibition of "Birth of a Nation."

PORTLAND, Or., Aug. 19.—(To the Editor.)—The following resolution were passed unanimously by George Wright Post, No. 1, Grand Army of the Republic, at a regular meeting Wednesday evening, August 18: "'The Clansman,' or 'The Birth of a Nation,' almost from beginning to end is a misrepresentation of facts and is presented in a manner so utterly exaggerated and misleading as to create in the minds of the young and of others thoroughly informed wrong impressions regarding the strife which once existed between the people of the Northern states and those of the Southern states and which finally resulted in the Civil War.

"Because of these misrepresentations and exaggerations the play can hardly fail to arouse to some extent the feelings of hatred which once existed between these peoples, but which in later years had largely died away, bringing peace and contentment to a once distracted Nation. We disapprove of all such exhibitions and believe they ought to be suppressed by the municipal authorities everywhere.

"'The Clansman' begins with a picture which conveys the idea that the New England people were responsible for the introduction of slavery into this country; whereas the truth is, according to any reputable history of the United States, that the first negro slaves brought to America were brought by a Dutch vessel in 1619 and landed at Jamestown, Va., where they were put to work on the tobacco plantations.

"The picture of the so-called burning of Atlanta is a misrepresentation, as it carries the idea that the whole city was destroyed, whereas only the buildings and their contents used by the Confederate government in the manufacture of things necessary for its armies, were destroyed.

"The character Stoneman, which claims to show the spirit of the United States Congress during the reconstruction period, is a vile misrepresentation, as no such period as that portrayed did exist in that Congress. It only sought to give the emancipated slaves their rights, as was already anticipated in the emancipation proclamation of Abraham Lincoln and which rights were first violently resisted by the whites of the former slave states themselves.

"The scene which represents the negro men armed to a man and shooting down the whole of the white population, unarmed and unprotected, is a shocking misrepresentation, as it conveys the idea that such a state of affairs existed wherever the former slaves had been given their liberty. Equally untrue is the idea conveyed that the so-called carpet-baggers' were generally looked upon approvingly by the people of the free states and also by the United States Government. They were simply adventurers, who on their own responsibility arrived to take advantage of the unsettled condition of affairs in the South, to feather, each for himself, their nests as best they could.

"The representation that the 'Ku Klux Klan' was organized especially to suppress certain outrages upon white women by negroes, and that they went in large bodies to carry out their intention, is false. The fact is that the Ku Klux Klan was organized before the close of the Civil War and for the purpose of suppressing the Union sentiment which was shown in certain portions of the South, especially in some of the border states; and further, that they even extended their infamous work into the states of Ohio, Indiana and Illinois. Union men were forcibly taken from their homes in the night and murdered in cold blood because they were loyal to their country and its flag, and instead of going in large bodies, as is represented in 'The Clansman,' they always went in small bodies, in order that they might accomplish their cowardly deeds as secretly as possible.

"One of the worst features of 'The Clansman' is that in which our martyred Lincoln is represented in the act of granting pardon to a Confederate officer who had been condemned to death by the military authorities; that is for the purpose of giving an air of truth and respectability to the rest of the play and thus to cause its pernicious influence to be more deeply impressed upon the minds of the uninformed.

"And now, let us ask why it is that in all this play of 'The Clansman' there is not even a hint of the awful massacre of the United States colored troops at Port Pillow nor of the villainous treatment of Union prisoners at Andersonville and other prisons nor of any other abhorrent acts of Southerners before, during and after the rebellion? Is it because to exaggerate them would be impossible?"

THOMAS A. JORDAN,
Commander George Wright Post.
A. C. SLOAN, Adjutant.

ALBANS (Vt.) MESSENGER
AUG. 24, 1915

ROW OVER MOVIE FILM.

Atlantic City Stages Battle in Court for "Birth of a Nation".

Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 24.—The "Birth of a Nation", which stirred up old Boston into theater riots and legislative action last spring, has Atlantic City by the ears. Through a temporary injunction the city officials are restrained from stopping the film. To-day a hearing is under way before the court of chancery as to whether the injunction will be made permanent.

The colored population resent the portrayal of the negro in the manner which the film producers chose, particularly objecting to the scene where the vicious negro chases the white girl, who jumps to death from a cliff rather than fall into his hands. When the objection was vojced vigorously at Boston, that scene was cut out. It is possible that a similar agreement will be reached here.

NEWARK (N. J.) NEWS
AUG. 24, 1915

ATLANTIC CITY CAN'T STOP "BIRTH OF A NATION" SHOW

Staff Correspondence.

TRENTON, Aug. 24.—The commissioners of Atlantic City were permanently enjoined by Chancellor Walker today from further interfering with the production of the moving picture film, known as "The Birth of a Nation," which is being shown at the new Nixon Theater in that city. A temporary injunction was granted by the court August 14 restraining the commissioners from prohibiting the production.

In an affidavit of William F. Hanstein, president of the Hotel Men's Association, read before the chancellor today, it was alleged that the action of the commissioners in prohibiting the production was an effort to corral the colored vote of Atlantic City. Mayor Riddle was credited in the affidavit as being chiefly responsible for the resolution adopted by the commissioners.

Mr. Hanstein stated that the picture was an object lesson, beneficial to the colored race as showing what might befall them in the hands of unscrupulous politicians.

Emerson L. Richards, who appeared for the managers of the theater read several affidavits from business men and colored preachers of Atlantic City commending the production and disclaiming that it was likely to create riot and disorder on the part of colored persons. In these affidavits it was denied that the picture had been productive of racial prejudice.

After hearing the testimony Chancellor Walker said it seemed peculair that the city commissioners should seek to restrain the production because they anticipated it might create disorder or riot. He pointed out that the position of the commissioners was in effect asking the court to censure a play without showing that the sense of propriety of the community had been outraged and without establishing legal grounds for judicial action.

PROVIDENCE (R. I.) EVE. TRIBUNE 726
AUG. 24, 1915

Still Protesting "The Birth of a Nation"

Continuing their protest against the photoplay, "The Birth of a Nation," some Providence colored people have issued "a statement of facts" urging prayer twice a day and a dignified protest. The statement, in part as follows, is fathered by the Providence branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored people:

"The photoplay is a dramatization of Thomas Dixon's book, the 'Clansman,' the avowed intentions of which are to create a condition in the North that will in a short time so strain the friendly relations of the colored and white races that it will be impossible to live side by side without violent friction.

"The leading reason why all self-respecting negroes should object to the play is that it is historically false, is a reflection on negro morals, honesty and loyalty, an insult to negro womanhood, a reflection on negro patriotism, an insult to the white man of the North who stood loyally by the negro in both anti-slavery days and during the reconstruction period, one more impediment to industrial advancement, and a menace to peaceful race relations."

The Police Board's action here is recited and the statement concludes:

"What shall we do about it? Continue to protest by letter, word and act. Make our attitude clear by handing one of the circulars to uninformed friends. Request your pastor to make some mention of this important matter every Sunday. Let our protest be dignified, uncompromising and unyielding. At the hours of 2 and 4, whether at home or work, lift your hearts in prayer to the Father of us all that He will interpose that justice may be accorded a people who from the real birth of the nation to the present day have been loyal and law-abiding citizens."

BIRTH OF A NATION

The unreasonable opposition to "The Birth of a Nation" has almost entirely disappeared. It is recognized that it depicts good as well as the bad characters of both the white and negro races. The showing of the carpet-bagger and negro excesses during the reconstruction period is counter-balanced by the marvelous depiction of the colored man's progress since reconstruction, particularly by the film showing scenes at the Hampton Institute.

TRENTON (N. J.) TIMES
AUG. 24, 1915

"BIRTH OF NATION" CAN'T BE STOPPED

Chancellor Walker Permanently Restrains Atlantic City Commission From Action

Chancellor Walker today granted a permanent injunction to restrain the City Commission of Atlantic City, through Director of Public Safety Bartlett, from interfering with the performances of the "Birth of a Nation," now being shown in moving pictures at the Nixon Theatre on the Boardwalk. The temporary injunction was allowed several weeks ago and the city was required to show cause today why it should not be made permanent.

The direct charge was made, in an affidavit by William F. Hanstein, president of the Hotel Men's Association, that the agitation against the picture was promoted by Mayor Riddle for the purpose of getting the colored vote at the next campaign. Hanstein said that he employed several hundred colored persons at the Royal Palace Hotel and he knew of a certainty that there was no disorder or ill-feeling caused by the picture. He said the picture should not be restrained for political reasons.

Theodore W. Schimpf appeared for the Atlantic City Commission and read an affidavit joined in by Mayor Riddle and Commissioner Bartlett. In this affidavit the commissioners said the picture "might likely create a disturbance." Chancellor Walker asked of Mr. Schimpf if he was not asking the court to sit as censor on the picture rather than of deliberating on the propriety of continuing the picture.

Affidavits were presented from the Rev. Robert A. Elwood, a colored minister and lecturer, and the Rev. William E. Allen, colored pastor of the Church of the Good Shepherd. They saw no reason to close the picture.

Former Assemblyman Emerson L. Richards appeared for the theatre and the owners of the picture. The hearing in court was attended by a number of colored persons from Atlantic City. The show will close in that city Labor Day.

ELIZABETH (N. J.) JOURNAL
AUG. 24, 1915

WON'T STOP MOVIES.

Court Refuses Atlantic City Injunction Against "Birth of the Nation."

(By Telegraph to the Journal.)

Trenton, Aug. 24.—Chancellor Walker to-day refused to act as a moving picture censor and stop the presentation of "The Birth of The Nation," a photo drama being displayed at Atlantic City. The chancellor recently issued a temporary injunction restraining the city commission of Atlantic City from prohibiting the Esplanade Amusement Company and the Epoch Producing Company from offering the photo-drama to the public. To-day he made the restraining order permanent.

City Solicitor Schimpf, of Atlantic City, contended that the picture which portrays the reconstruction days following the Civil War, shows incidents prejudicial to the negro race and is liable to incite race riots. Emerson L. Richards, counsel for the amusement company, contended that there had been no disturbances and that the proceedings were a political ruse of Mayor W. Riddle to capture the negro vote.

NEW YORK TRIBUNE
AUG 25 1915

...ate .....

Senator Francis G. Newlands is a close friend of Mr. Wilson and has the latter as his guest every time he comes to Reno from San Francisco.

Court O. K.'s 'Birth of Nation.'

Trenton, N. J., Aug. 24.—The injunction to prohibit the showing of "The Birth of a Nation" in Atlantic City, which was sought by Mayor Riddle, was refused to-day by Chancellor Walker. The reason for the request was that the great number of negroes in Atlantic City might be offended. Chancellor Walker said he saw nothing in the production which could lead to harm.

NEWARK (N. J.) NEWS
AUG. 24, 1915

ATLANTIC CITY CAN'T STOP "BIRTH OF A NATION" SHOW

Staff Correspondence.

TRENTON, Aug. 24.—The commissioners of Atlantic City were permanently enjoined by Chancellor Walker today from further interfering with the production of the moving picture film, known as "The Birth of a Nation," which is being shown at the new Nixon Theater in that city. A temporary injunction was granted by the court August 14 restraining the commissioners from prohibiting the production.

In an affidavit of William F. Hanstein, president of the Hotel Men's Association, read before the chancellor today, it was alleged that the action of the commissioners in prohibiting the production was an effort to corral the colored vote of Atlantic City. Mayor Riddle was credited in the affidavit as being chiefly responsible for the resolution adopted by the commissioners.

Mr. Hanstein stated that the picture was an object lesson, beneficial to the colored race as showing what might befall them in the hands of unscrupulous politicians.

Emerson L. Richards, who appeared for the managers of the theater read several affidavits from business men and colored preachers of Atlantic City commending the production and disclaiming that it was likely to create riot and disorder on the part of colored persons. In these affidavits it was denied that the picture had been productive of racial prejudice.

After hearing the testimony Chancellor Walker said it seemed peculair seek to restrain the production because they anticipated it might create disorder or riot. He pointed out that the position of the commissioners was in effect asking the court to censure a play without showing that the sense of propriety of the community had been outraged and without establishing legal grounds for judicial action.

AUG. 25, 1915
PITTSBURGH (Pa.) CHRONICLE

"BIRTH OF A NATION" BANNED BY MAYOR

Production of Race Strife Pictures in Theater Prohibited.

Mayor Joseph G. Armstrong today instructed Superintendent of Police Noble W. Matthews not to allow the moving pictures of "The Birth of a Nation" to be exhibited in this city, the pictures having been scheduled for a five weeks' run at the Nixon Theater. The mayor took this action following a protest by over a score of negro citizens who visited his office this morning. The mayor issued the following statement:

I have notified the superintendent of police that the moving picture, "The Birth of a Nation," will not be permitted to exhibit in Pittsburgh. I take this stand for the reason that I do not think that this picture or any other picture which tends to stir up racial feelings and to rehash events in history, the unpleasant features of which have been forgotten and should remain buried in the interest of a united people, should be permitted to show in this city. I am satisfied, from statements made to me by prominent citizens, and by a delegation which called on me this morning, that this picture is of the nature described. I have been besieged on all sides for some weeks by those who are opposed to the exhibition of the picture.

MOTION PICTURE NEWS (New York City)

AGITATION AGAINST "NATION" IN PHILADELPHIA

Already agitation is being started by the colored people of Philadelphia against the showing of "The Birth of a Nation" in the Quaker City. Though the famous picture is not scheduled to appear there until next October.

The fight in this particular instance is taking a rather unique form. Claiming that this photoplay is derogatory to the colored race, independent colored voters have decided to fight it at the polls. To this end they will refuse to support in the coming election for municipal office any candidate who will not declare himself against the showing of the film.

To ascertain the stand of each candidate, a canvass will be made in all wards.

The St. Silenia Association, a civic organization for the uplift of the race, numbering in its membership many prominent colored people, will

AUG. 25, 1915
PITTSBURG (Pa.) PRESS

MAYOR BARS "BIRTH OF A NATION" PICTURE FROM EXHIBITION IN PITTSBURG THEATER

Issues Order to Police Supt. Matthews in the Presence of a Big Delegation of Colored Citizens—Theater to Fight

Mayor Armstrong issued orders today to the police authorities to prevent the exhibition of the motion picture "The Birth of a Nation," in the Nixon theater.

The theater management had announced that the exhibition of the picture would begin next Wednesday.

The mayor made the statement that the theater would have to make a fight in the courts, if not disposed to obey the police order. This, it is supposed, means that the mayor is prepared to take drastic steps to prevent the exhibition of the picture. Thomas F. Kirk, Jr., manager of the theater, declined to make any statement when told of the announcement of the mayor. From another source it was learned that the theater management has planned to fight the mayor's order in the courts.

CALL FROM DELEGATION.

The action of the mayor was taken this morning during a visit of a delegation of about 75 colored men and women. When the delegation was announced the mayor telephoned for Police Superintendent Matthews. After hearing addresses by two members of the delegation and short remarks by two or three others, the mayor called Supt. Matthews before him and asked:

"Has any permit been issued for the exhibition of the picture, 'The Birth of a Nation'?"

"No," replied the superintendent, "and I find that there is no question of a permit involved. The Nixon theater proposes to exhibit the picture under its regular theater license."

"You tell the theater people," the mayor then said, "and any others interested in the showing of the picture that we will not permit it to be shown here and that if they insist on trying to show it they will have to make a fight in the courts."

When the mayor concluded the delegation broke into cheers and many pressed forward and shook hands with him. After the delegation had left the mayor issued the following statement:

"I have notified the superintendent of police that the moving picture, 'The Birth of a Nation,' will not be permitted to exhibit in Pittsburg. I take this stand for the reason that I do not think that this picture or any other picture which tends to stir up racial feelings, and to rehash events in history, the unpleasant features of which have been forgotten and should remain buried in the interest of a united people, should be permitted to show in this city. I am satisfied, from statements made to me by various prominent citizens, and by a delegation which called on me this morning that this picture is of the nature described. I have been besieged on all sides for some weeks by those who are opposed to the exhibition of the picture."

Rev. P. A. Scott, pastor of the Bethel A. M. E. church and S. R. Morsell, secretary of the colored Y. M. C. A., made the principal addresses on behalf of the delegation. They argued that the exhibition of the picture "tends to mar the peace and harmony of a united people in any community." They said that the picture does not give a correct impression of the scenes in the south during the reconstruction period and is designed, deliberately, they said to place the colored people in a bad light. They said that the scenes depicting the great progress made by the colored people since the reconstruction period do not offset other scenes in the picture.

AS TO CENSOR.

Mayor Armstrong asked if the picture had been approved by the state board of censors and the answer was that it had not been approved in its entirety. Several in the delegation said that some scenes had been stricken out but that some of the most objectionable had been allowed to remain. The mayor was told that the picture has been barred from a number of cities and that the governor of Ohio has said that he will do all in his power to prevent its being shown in that state.

Some time ago a move was made in the direction of having the picture shown here and protest was filed with the mayor by Rev. Dr. Rudolph I. Coffee, Mrs. Enoch Rauh and others. The city council, on June 15, also passed a resolution requesting the mayor to instruct the director of public safety not to allow the picture to be exhibited here.

AUG. 25, 1915
PITTSBURG (Pa.) LEADER

BIRTH OF A NATION BANNED BY MAYOR; CANNOT SHOW HERE

Mayor Joseph G. Armstrong today instructed Superintendent of Police W. Noble Matthews not to allow "The Birth of a Nation" moving pictures to be exhibited in this city, the pictures having been scheduled for a five weeks' run at the Nixon theater. The mayor took this action following a protest by over a score of prominent negro citizens who visited his office this morning.

Taking the stand that the pictures should not be shown here because they are derogatory to the colored race, the mayor issued the following statement:

"I have notified the superintendent of police that the moving picture 'The Birth of a Nation,' will not be permitted to exhibit in Pittsburg. I take this stand for the reason that I do not think that this picture or any other picture which tends to stir up racial feelings and to rehash events in history the unpleasant features of which have been forgotten and should remain buried in the interest of a united people, should be permitted to show in this city.

"I am satisfied, from statements made to me by various prominent citizens, and by a delegation which called on me this morning that this picture is of the nature described. I have been besieged on all sides for some weeks by those who are opposed to the exhibition of the picture."

Aug 26

CANNOT STOP BIRTH PICTURES

Jersey Chancellor Rules So; Mayor Armstrong Says He Will

Instructions were given yesterday by Mayor Armstrong to Police Superintendent W Noble Matthews to stop any attempt made here to show the moving picture film, "The Birth of a Nation," which is scheduled for a five weeks' run at the Nixon Theater. The Mayor said yesterday afternoon:

"The picture tends to excite racial discord and I am satisfied, from statements made to me by various residents of this city and by a delegation which called upon me this morning, that the picture is of a regrettable nature."

This situation in Pittsburg relative to the picture is of peculiar interest because of the action yesterday of Chancellor Walker of Trenton, N J, in insuring the continuance of the same film in Atlantic City, where it is now in the midst of an all-summer run. The chancellor granted a permanent injunction restraining the City Commission of Atlantic City from interfering with the performance, this replacing a temporary injunction granted August 14.

Among the affidavits presented in the case at Atlantic City was one by William F Hanselin, president of the Hotel Men's Association, that the agitation against the picture was prompted by Mayor Riddle for the purpose of securing to himself the Negro vote. Hanselin swore that he employed several hundred Negroes at his hotel and that he knew there was no disorder or ill-feeling caused by the picture. He stated that it should not be stopped simply for political reasons.

An affidavit also was presented by Rev William E Allen, the Negro pastor of the Church of the Good Shepherd, that he saw no reason why the picture should be stopped. "The Birth of a Nation," is now running in New York, Boston, Chicago, Milwaukee, San Francisco, Los Angeles and Atlantic City.

TRENTON (N. J.) GAZETTE
AUG. 25, 1915

BIRTH OF A NATION NOT TO BE BARRED

CHANCERY COURT RESTRAINS ATLANTIC CITY FROM INTERFERING.

WILL CLOSE ON LABOR DAY

The stupendous film production, "The Birth of a Nation," will be continued at the Nixon theatre, Atlantic City, despite the desires of the city commissioners of that resort, a permanent injunction restraining the officials from interfering being allowed yesterday in the court of chancery here by Chancellor Edwin Robert Walker. The production will be closed in Atlantic City on Labor day.

The action of yesterday followed the issuing of a temporary injunction about two weeks ago by the chancellor following a hearing in this city, when an application to prevent Director of Public Safety Bartlett, of Atlantic City, from closing the house in question was made by counsel for the owners of the film and the theatre. The chancellor at that time also signed an order to show cause returnable yesterday why the performance should not be continued.

It was claimed in an affidavit by William F. Hanselin, president of the Atlantic City Hotel Men's association, that Mayor William Riddle had started a protest against the production of the film in order to obtain the votes of the colored residents of the resort at the coming fall election, while he also stated in the papers to the court, that while he was the employer of a large number of colored people at the Royal Palace hotel, Atlantic City, he was positive that there was no ill-feeling or disorder created by that element against the showing of "The Birth of a Nation." He closed by declaring that the performance should not be prevented because of political agitation. It was shown in affidavits from Rev. William E. Allen, pastor of the colored Church of the Good Shepherd, and Rev. Robert A. Elwood, a colored clergyman and lecturer, that no good reason could be made against the film.

Mayor Riddle and Director Bartlett presented an affidavit to the court through Theodore Schimpf, counsel for Atlantic City, in which they said that the presentation of the picture might likely create a disturbance. The lawyer was then asked by the chancellor, if he were not asking the court to sit as censor rather than of deliberating on the propriety of continuing the film.

Counsel for the owners of the film and theatre was ex-Assemblyman Emerson L. Richards, of Atlantic City.

PPING FROM NEWARK, (N. J.) STAR
AUG 27 1915

PERMITS BIRTH OF NATION

Chancellor Walker Refuses to Prevent Exhibition of Film.

TRENTON, Aug. 26.—Chancellor Walker today refused to act as moving picture censor and stop the presentation of "The Birth of a Nation," a photo-drama being displayed at Atlantic City. The chancellor recently issued a temporary injunction restraining the City Commission of Atlantic City from prohibiting the Esplanade Amusement Company and the Epoch Producing Company from offering the photo-drama to the public. Today he made the restraining order permanent.

City Solicitor Schimpf, of Atlantic City, contended that the picture, which portrays the reconstruction days following the Civil War, shows incidents prejudicial to the negro race and is liable to incite riots. Emerson L. Richards, counsel for the amusement company, contended that there had been no disturbances and that the proceedings were a political ruse of Mayor William Riddle to capture the negro vote.

NEW YORK MAIL
AUG 26 1915

"The Birth of a Nation" [illegible] scored another victory against what is thought to be secret influences that are said to interfere with the presentations of Griffith's spectacle. Yesterday Chancellor Walker, the highest judicial officer in the state of New Jersey, issued a permanent injunction against Mayor [illegible] and commissioner of public safety [illegible] Atlantic City from in any way interfering with the production of the [illegible]

Philadelphia, (Pa.) Public Ledger

Date ..... AUG 25 1915 .....

'BIRTH OF NATION' WRIT PERMANENT

Atlantic City Commissioners Cannot Close Film Show, Chancellor Rules

RIDDLE IS ACCUSED OF PLAYING POLITICS

Affidavits Say He Tried to Influence Colored Voters—Court Declines to Be Censor

Special Telegram to Public Ledger

TRENTON, Aug. 24.—Allegations to the effect that for political reasons officials of Atlantic City had ordered the closing of the moving-picture film "The Birth of a Nation" at the New Nixon Theatre were argued before Chancellor Walker today by Emerson L. Richards, counsel for the Esplanade Amusement Company and the Epoch Producing Corporation, owners, respectively, of the theatre and the picture.

At the conclusion of the hearing the Chancellor made permanent the injunction restraining the Atlantic City Commission from interfering with the production. The temporary injunction was granted by the Chancellor, Saturday, August 14.

Several affidavits were read to the Court by Richards from prominent business men and colored ministers of the resort which commended the picture and argued that its production was a moral lesson. The men also thought it would not create disorder or disturbance nor tend to engender race prejudice. These affidavits were made by William F. Hanstein, president of the Hotelmen's Association, and one of the owners of the Royal Palace Hotel; the Rev. William E. Allen, pastor of the Church of the Good Shepherd, and the Rev. Robert A. Lockwood, a lecturer of Atlantic City.

Hanstein charged that the action of the City Commissioners in ordering the closing of the show was promoted by Mayor Riddle for the purpose of securing the support of the colored voters. The agitation on the part of the Commissioners was forced, he added, and was an object lesson of what might be done to colored persons at the hands of politicians. He said the picture should not be stopped for political reasons.

Hanstein said that the picture did not create any disorder or disturbance, and that he had several hundred colored persons in his employ who had witnessed the play, and from their attitude it did not cause racial prejudice.

Attorney Richards informed the court that Harry Brown, manager of the New Nixon Theatre, was in court, and if it cared to hear his testimony was ready to take the stand. At the time counsel made the suggestion the Court intimated that it was not necessary. It was also stated to the Court that the Commissioners of Atlantic City had issued a license to the theatre while the picture was in course of production, and that no move was made at that time to restrain the theatre from showing the play.

Theodore W. Schimpf, who appeared for the Atlantic City Commissioners, read a joint affidavit made by Mayor Riddle and William H. Bartlett, Director of Public Safety. After citing the various scenes in the picture the affidavit anticipated that the production of the picture would likely cause a riot or disturbance and therefore create a public nuisance. Here Schimpf was interrupted by the Chancellor, who asked if there was any actual disorder alleged in the affidavits of the two Commissioners, to which counsel replied in the negative.

Court Declined to Be Censor

When he had finished reading the affidavit, Chancellor Walker said that inasmuch as it was admitted by counsel for the commissioners that there was no disorder of any kind, it had been proved by the other side that no disturbance of any kind had taken place. Chancellor Walker characterized the attitude of the commissioners coming into court in support of its action as rather strange in anticipating what might happen as a result of the production of the picture play. He asked the attorney if his clients were not asking him to act as censor rather than in the capacity of a Judge.

"The proof of the pudding is the eating thereof," said the Chancellor. "You have not shown me that the sense of propriety of the community has been outraged, but that it might naturally arise. It may be that the scenes are reprehensive, but I don't think I ought to censor the play, and I should not restrain the show as a matter of law. The dire calamities which you anticipate have not occurred, and I am forced to make the injunction permanent."

The action of the commission, Schimpf continued, was the outcome of a protest filed with the officials by certain representative colored clergymen protesting against the picture.

PORTLAND (Me.) ... 7.2

horse feed and bedding are to be rejected and new bids sought.

The prices received today were from three local dealers and were lower than Purchasing Agent Wood expected, but it is believed better prices still can be secured.

Want Film Suppressed.

A writ of mandamus to require Municipal Judge Stevenson to issue a warrant for the arrest of the exhibitors of the motion picture, "The Birth of a Nation," being shown at the Heilig theatre, is to be sought in the circuit court by Attorney Walter Wolf as result of the judge's actions this morning in refusing to issue a warrant for the arrest and suppress the picture. Attorney Wolf is representing a number of colored people who find the picture obnoxious to them.

In his complaint to Judge Stevenson this morning Wolf said that the picture was libelous to the colored people, that it was obscene, immoral and was not true to history.

In declining to take action Judge Stevenson said that officials of the city, members of the local board of censors, had passed the picture and as they had made no complaint it was not incumbent on him to suppress the picture or issue warrants for the arrest of the exhibitors.

AUG. 26, 1915
PITTSBURG (Pa.) PRESS

THEATER MAY MAKE FIGHT ON ORDER BANNING PICTURE

Thomas F. Kirk, Jr., manager of the Nixon theater, said this morning that the theater management is conferring with attorneys relative to the action of Mayor Armstrong in ordering the police not to allow the picture, "The Birth of a Nation," to be exhibited in the theater, beginning next Wednesday. Manager Kirk would make no further statement but the fact that he has said that the theater would continue to advertise the picture has been accepted as a strong indication of a disposition on the part of the theater to make a fight.

Manager Kirk cited the decision of Chancellor Walker of New Jersey, handed down yesterday, in the form of a permanent injunction restraining the Atlantic City commission from interfering with the film's appearance in Atlantic City. The picture was being shown there under a temporary injunction against the city authorities. Affidavits presented in that proceeding according to Mr. Kirk, showed no disorder or ill-feeling was caused by the picture among the negroes employed at the coast resort.

NEW YORK (N. Y.) TELEGRAPH

AUG 26 1915

and which are given not alone for their protection but in the public interest."

BARS "BIRTH OF A NATION."

Pittsburg's Mayor Prohibits Presentation of Famous Films.

(Special Dispatch to The Morning Telegraph.)

PITTSBURG, Aug. 25. — Mayor Joseph G. Armstrong to-day instructed Superintendent of Police Matthews not allow "The Birth of a Nation" moving picture to be exhibited in this city, the pictures having been scheduled for a five-weeks' run at the Nixon Theatre. The mayor took this action following a protest by a score of negro citizens who visited his office this morning.

Mayor Armstrong takes the stand that the pictures should not be shown here because they are derogatory to the colored race and tend to stir up racial feelings and rehash events in history the unpleasant features of which have been forgotten.

CLIPPING FROM NEW YORK PRESS

Date .....

FILM MEN GET WRIT.

Atlantic City Must Keep Hands Off "Birth of a Nation."

Chancellor Walker of New Jersey yesterday issued a permanent injunction against the Mayor and Committee of Public Safety of Atlantic City prohibiting them from interfering in any way with the production of "The Birth of a Nation" in the Jersey resort.

A temporary injunction was issued August 14, and it was made permanent yesterday. This is the third action of the kind in which the now famous film has been given a clean bill.

Date .....

"THE BIRTH OF A NATION" INJUNCTION IS DISSOLVED.

Supreme Court Justice Shearn yesterday dissolved the temporary injunction obtained by George H. Davis of California restraining the Epoch Producing Company from exhibiting a motion picture play called "The Birth of a Nation" in seventeen Western States. Davis claimed he entered into an oral agreement with the Epoch Company for rights in the seventeen Western States and that the company sold the rights to others before he could obtain a written contract. The defense of the producers was that Davis would not consent to give a bond insuring against the duplication of the original film.

THEATER MANAGER WILL DEFY MAYOR

Announces "Birth of a Nation" Film Will Be Shown Despite Prohibitive Order.

Although Mayor Joseph G. Armstrong yesterday declared the "Birth of a Nation," billed for a five-weeks' run in the Nixon Theater, would not be permitted to be shown in Pittsburgh, Thomas F. Kirk, Jr., manager of the theater, asserted the picture would be shown despite the mayor's ban, and a legal controversy is anticipated.

The mayor, acting in response to overtures made to him by representatives of negroes and others, directed Police Superintendent W. N. Matthews to notify the theater management the police would not permit the presentation of the film, which is based largely on the story of "The Clansman." In his statement the mayor said in part: "I take this stand for the reason that I do not think this picture or any other picture which tends to stir up racial feelings and rehash events in history, the unpleasant features of which have been forgotten and should remain buried in the interest of a united people, should be permitted to show in this city." He continues that representations made to him by various "prominent citizens and a delegation" satisfied him the picture was of the character mentioned.

Manager Kirk in response to the mayor's decision, said the film would be presented as advertised. He cited the decision of Chancellor Walker of New Jersey, handed down yesterday, in the form of a permanent injunction restraining the Atlantic City commission from interfering with the film's appearance in Atlantic City. The picture was being shown there under a temporary injunction against the city authorities. Affidavits presented in that proceeding, according to Mr. Kirk, showed no disorder or ill-feeling was caused by the picture among the negroes employed at the coast resort.

ENTER A PROTEST.

Negro Pastors and Church Members Object to "Birth of the Nation."

The pastors of the local negro churches and prominent members of their congregations, about 30 in number, called upon Mayor Burlingame today to protest against the showing of the picture, "The Birth of the Nation," in Newport. Manager Miller of the Opera House has had the refusal of the picture for a week or two, but has been undecided whether to book it or not. This noon, when informed that a protest was being made, he said the picture went into his company's Fall River house Monday for a two weeks' run, and while he does not desire to make any difficulty, he wishes to show the people of Newport what they want, and had been trying to determine this question. He has been led to believe that a considerable number of Newporters desire to see the picture, and that it is better to let them see it here than make them go to Fall River. He does not think the picture would be so offensive as the objectors believe, as it is agreed by critics that it has now been so thoroughly censored that it has been shorn of all the objectionable parts.

NEW YORK (N. Y.) TELEGRAPH

AUG 4 1915

"Birth of a Nation" Wins Again.

Score another victory for "The Birth of a Nation" against the influences that are trying to interfere with the exhibition of the great photo-spectacle. Yesterday Chancellor Walker, of New Jersey, issued a permanent injunction against the Mayor and the Commissioner of Public Safety, of Atlantic City, from in any way obstructing the presentation of the picture in that city.

The action grew out of a peremptory order issued by the Director of Public Safety Bartlett that the picture be suppressed. Chancellor Walker granted a temporary injunction on August 14.

This is the third action of the kind in which "The Birth of a Nation" has come forth triumphant. Similar decisions have been rendered in the California and Illinois courts.

"The opposition in Atlantic City was political and manufactured by office holders, with the connivance of small motion picture people," explained one of D. W. Griffith's representatives yesterday. "The attack was an effort to arouse race antipathy."

MOTION PICTURE WORLD (N. Y. City)

A state-wide fight on "The Birth of a Nation" is urged by Col. J. M. Snyder, of Canton, Ill., who is department commander of the Grand Army of the Republic in Illinois. Three reasons are offered for its suppression, one of which is that it is not fair to the Union soldiers.

A copy of a resolution passed by a Chicago post has been sent to every post in Illinois with a request from the state commander that a similar resolution be adopted. The resolution is as follows:

"The George H. Thomas Post, No. 5, Department of Illinois, G. A. R., protests against the exhibition called 'The Birth of a Nation.'

"First. Because it contains slanderous representations as to the soldiers who fought to preserve the Union and caricatures the history of the war.

"Second. It represents the infamous Ku Klux Klan as a society of patriotic and chivalrous men.

"Third. Its whole intent is to excite and intensify hatred of the negro race and to perpetuate sectional bitterness."

AUG. 30, 1915
PITTSBURG (Pa.) LEADER

"BIRTH OF A NATION" FIGHT NOW IN COURT; NIXON ASKS INJUNCTION

That the action of the mayor and the superintendent of police in prohibiting the display of the photo-play "The Birth of a Nation," is arbitrary and that the play has been passed and approved by both the Pennsylvania state board of censorship and the national board of censorship, are the arguments advanced by the Nixon Theater company in a bill in equity filed today in common pleas court, in which the company asks the court to issue an injunction against the mayor to restrain him from prohibiting the showing of the film.

The plaintiff also contends that the play does not engender racial prejudice, but is historical; that it is censed and offers by way of illustration the statement that it has been shown in New York, Chicago, Brooklyn, Los Angeles, Milwaukee and Kansas, without any race feeling arising. The certificate of the Pennsylvania board of censorship approving and censing the play, which certificate was issued to the manufacturer of the film, is attached to the bill in equity.

The theater company advertised it would produce the play for two weeks, beginning September [illegible] mayor and the superintendent of police then notified the company that the display of the film would be [illegible] in the Nixon theater, or any other theater in Pittsburg. The injunction in equity from the theater company came as a [illegible] from the police [illegible]

The Nixon [illegible] rights for [illegible] be shown in a re[illegible]

AUG. 25, 1915
PITTSBURG (Pa.) PRESS

MAYOR BARS "BIRTH OF A NATION" PICTURE FROM EXHIBITION IN PITTSBURG THEATER

Issues Order to Police Supt. Matthews in the Presence of a Big Delegation of Colored Citizens—Theater to Fight

Mayor Armstrong issued orders today to the police authorities to prevent the exhibition of the motion picture "The Birth of a Nation," in the Nixon theater.

The theater management had announced that the exhibition of the picture would begin next Wednesday.

The mayor made the statement that the theater would have to make a fight in the courts, if not disposed to obey the police order. This, it is supposed, means that the mayor is prepared to take drastic steps to prevent the exhibition of the picture. Thomas F. Kirk, Jr., manager of the theater, declined to make any statement when told of the announcement of the mayor. From another source it was learned that the theater management has planned to fight the mayor's order in the courts.

CALL FROM DELEGATION.

The action of the mayor was taken this morning during a visit of a delegation of about 75 colored men and women. When the delegation was announced the mayor telephoned for Police Superintendent Matthews. After hearing addresses by two members of the delegation and short remarks by two or three others, the mayor called Supt. Matthews before him and asked: "Has any permit been issued for the exhibition of the picture, 'The Birth of a Nation'?"

"No," replied the superintendent, "but to-day alone, there is no [illegible] permit involved. The Nixon theater proposes to exhibit the picture under its regular theater license."

"You tell the theater people," the mayor then said, "and any others interested in the showing of the picture that we will not permit it to be shown here and that if they insist on trying to show it they will have to make a fight in the courts."

When the mayor concluded the delegation broke into cheers and many pressed forward and shook hands with him. After the delegation had left the mayor issued the following statement:

"I have notified the superintendent of police that the moving picture, 'The Birth of a Nation,' will not be permitted to exhibit in Pittsburg. I take this stand for the reason that I do not think that this picture or any other picture which tends to stir up racial feelings, and to rehash events in history, the unpleasant features of which have been forgotten and should remain buried in the interest of a united people, should be permitted to show in this city. I am satisfied, from statements made to me by various prominent citizens, and by a delegation which called on me this morning that this picture is of the nature described. I have been besieged on all sides for some weeks by those who are opposed to the exhibition of the picture."

Rev. P. A. Scott, pastor of the Bethel A. M. E. church and S. R. Morsell, secretary of the colored Y. M. C. A., made the principal addresses on behalf of the delegation. They argued that the exhibition of the picture "tends to mar the peace and harmony of a united people in any community." They said that the picture does not give a correct impression of the scenes in the south during the reconstruction period and is designed, deliberately, they said to place the colored people in a bad light. They said that the scenes depicting the great progress made by the colored people since the reconstruction period do not offset other scenes in the picture.

AS TO CENSOR.

Mayor Armstrong asked if the picture had been approved by the state board of censors and the answer was that it had not been approved in its entirety. Several in the delegation said that some scenes had been stricken out but that some of the most objectionable had been allowed to remain. The mayor was told that the picture has been barred from a number of cities and that the governor of Ohio has said that he will do all in his power to prevent its being shown in that state.

Some time ago a move was made in the direction of having the picture shown here and protest was filed with the mayor by Rev. Dr. Rudolph I. Coffee, Mrs. Enoch Rauh and others. The city council, on June 15, also passed a resolution requesting the mayor to instruct the director of public safety not to allow the picture to be exhibited here.

Philadelphia, (Pa.) Public Ledger

Date .....

Ban on Nixon Picture Show To Be Fought

Management to Oppose Mayor's Attempt to Prevent Exhibition of "Birth of a Nation."

WILL KEEP ON WITH PLANS

The management of the Nixon Theater will oppose any attempt by Mayor Joseph G. Armstrong or other city officials to prohibit the exhibition of "The Birth of a Nation," [illegible] the Nixon Theater. This was indicated yesterday by T. F. Kirke, Jr., local manager of the theater, when he said that, notwithstanding instructions yesterday by Mayor Armstrong to Superintendent W. Noble Matthews of the Police Bureau not to permit the exhibition of the picture, he would continue to advertise a five weeks' engagement of the offering, scheduled to open September 1. Mr. Kirke would not make any other comment on the matter yesterday.

The Mayor's notification to Supt. Matthews followed a protest of the presentation of the picture by more than a score of negro residents who visited the Mayor's office yesterday. Mr. Armstrong issued the following statement:

"I have notified the superintendent of police that the moving picture, 'The Birth of a Nation,' will not be permitted to exhibit in Pittsburgh. I take this stand for the reason that I do not think that this picture or any other picture which tends to stir up racial feelings and to rehash events in history, the unpleasant features of which have been forgotten and should remain buried in the interest of a united people, should be permitted to show in this city. I am satisfied from statements made to me by prominent citizens, and by a delegation which called on me this morning, that the picture is of the nature described. I have been besieged on all sides for some weeks by those who are opposed to the exhibition of the picture."

---

new advisory board, [illegible] foremost inventors and [illegible], is organized the [illegible] will be [illegible]ed before it.

PROTEST AGAINST FILM

Negroes Object to "The Birth of a Nation"

Negroes of this city will hold a mass-meeting on September 22 to protest against the production of "The Birth of a Nation," now showing in Atlantic City, it was decided on at a meeting of the Emancipation and Civic Rights League yesterday afternoon at Spring Street Settlement, 122-25 Spring street.

A committee, of which Charles Fred White is chairman and Clarence Davis is secretary, was appointed by the chairman, A. P. Caldwell, to arrange for the mass-meeting. This action was taken upon the report of the latter, who went to Atlantic City on Saturday with Ellwood Heacock as a special committee of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People to witness the picture play.

Philadelphia, (Pa.) North American

FORBIDS ATLANTIC CITY TO STOP 'BIRTH OF NATION' FILM

[illegible] Being Shown in The New American

ATLANTIC CITY, Aug. 24.—[illegible] Mayor of New Jersey this afternoon [illegible] Theatre against its production [illegible] Bureau of Public Safety [illegible] in connection with the presentation of "The Birth of a Nation" at the New Nixon Theater.

This action was taken after efforts made to [illegible] theater and City Hall officials [illegible] the public safety [illegible] the New [illegible]

Philadelphia, (Pa.) Public Ledger

"Birth of a Nation" Opposed

The Emancipation and Civic Rights League, the Socialist Party, labor unions and churches, through a joint committee, have appealed to Director Porter for a permit to use the City Hall plaza for a meeting to-night against the showing of the picture, "The Birth of a Nation."

ST. LOUIS (Mo.) REPUBLIC
AUG. 27, 1915

NEGROES ASK MAYOR TO STOP FILM SHOW

Blacks Declare "The Birth of a Nation" Portrays Habits of Race Unfairly.

A delegation of 50 negroes this morning will confer with Mayor Kiel to protest against the exhibition next week at a St. Louis theater of a motion picture film entitled "The Birth of a Nation."

Formal protests were filed yesterday by the negroes with the mayor, Park Commissioner Cunliff and Chief of Police Young. The conference then was arranged with the mayor so the negroes could explain personally their attitude toward the exhibition.

The negroes declare in their protest that the film distorts the habits and customs of negroes, presents a false portrayal of the intermarriage of blacks and whites, and inaccurately depict the alleged brutality of negroes and the treatment of negroes by whites in the South.

Mayor Kiel has asked City Counselor Danes whether he has power to prohibit the exhibition of films which are objectionable to any element of residents. If the pictures were obscene or immoral, the mayor believes the police and prosecuting attorney would have ample power to suppress them.

The mayor says he doubts whether any city law authorizes him to prohibit the presentation of pictures or theatrical performances which are objectionable to some persons, but which are neither immoral or obscene.

Phila. Ledger Aug 14 1915

NEGRO PROTEST STOPS FILM PLAY

Atlantic City Director of Public Safety Suppresses "Birth of Nation"

THREATS OF VIOLENCE LEAD HIM TO ACT

Detectives Report That Racial Trouble Was Likely to Result

From Public Ledger Bureau

ATLANTIC CITY, Aug. 13.—Fearing race violence on the Boardwalk, William H. Bartlett, Director of Public Safety, late today issued an order forbidding the presentation of the "Birth of a Nation," a film drama, in Atlantic City.

The production, which has been shown for several weeks at the New Nixon, a Boardwalk playhouse owned and conducted by Philadelphians, deals with reconstruction times in the South and the Ku Klux Klan.

Acting under instructions from the City Commission, which yesterday heard burning protests from more than 100 negro churchmen, who declared the play incited race hatred, Director Bartlett sent to the Nixon Theatre management tonight notice of his intention to suppress the film drama after Sunday night next by police measures if necessary.

Director Bartlett's summary action, regardless of an informal opinion from City Solicitor Schimpf that he is without power to act, followed a conference with Chief of Police Woodruff. Woodruff early today sent plain-clothes men through the black belt of the city, where nearly 10,000 negroes have their homes, to sound sentiment and ascertain whether it is so bitter as colored pastors and laymen represented to the City Commission yesterday.

Detectives Hear Threats

Woodruff's men reported that they found sections of the back town in a ferment, with men, women and children congregating in the streets to talk about the film and the attack upon their race they claim it carries. Threats of violence were made freely in the saloons patronized by colored men. The detectives heard proposals to attack the Boardwalk playhouse.

Woodruff's reports reached Director Bartlett at 6 o'clock this evening and his order of suppression was drawn and signed 20 minutes later.

Earlier in the day Bartlett intimated the belief that agitators were seeking to make political capital out of the matter, and endeavoring to align the colored vote against him unless he took action without precedent in the city.

Reports of Woodruff's men changed the whole phase of the situation for him. "This matter is evidently serious," the Director said. "Whether police action is justified under a strict interpretation of law or not, we are going to do our utmost to suppress this cause of contention. We cannot afford to have violence in Atlantic City if it is possible to avert it, and that is the attitude we shall pursue."

There is much division of opinion among visitors here as to the film. Many believe that it teaches a lesson and should be shown as widely as possible. Others believe just as strongly that there is no reason for recalling the fearful conditions following the Rebellion in the Southland and arousing race prejudice.

Support Director's Action

One of the strongest scenes in the film drama shows a negro vagabond pursuing a small white girl through the woods. She finally leaps from a cliff and is killed. Then the Ku Klux Klan gathers by night and carries its death and destruction among the negroes.

Hotel men here indorsed Bartlett's action tonight. Nothing could be worse, many of them said, than to have any serious racial disturbance in Atlantic City with the midsummer season near its height. There are probably 20,000 Southern people in the city. Most of them have seen the Ku Klux pictures and declare them an educational achievement.

The fact that conditions in the negro sections should be sufficiently serious to call for the suppression order caused no little uneasiness. It was declared tonight that threats to start a stampede in the Boardwalk theatre were made in front of City Hall yesterday while the Protest Committee was demanding that the City Committee take action to avert possible violence.

ATLANTIC CITY (N. J.) GAZETTE
AUG. 15, 1915

PHOTO-PLAY AT NEW NIXON TO BE CONTINUED

Injunction Secured Restraining Director Bartlett From Enforcing His Order to Discontinue the Great Photo-Play, "The Birth of a Nation."

Following the receipt of a peremptory order from Director of Public Safety William H. Bartlett, that the photo-drama, "The Birth of a Nation," must be discontinued after next Monday at the New Nixon Theatre, because of a mighty protest lodged by negroes of the resort before the City Commissioners, counsel for Samuel F. Nixon, owner of the playhouse, hurried to Trenton, yesterday morning and applied to Chancellor Walker for an injunction restraining the police from enforcing the closing order.

Chancellor Walker granted the injunction prohibiting the City of Atlantic City, the Director of Public Safety and the Chief of Police from interfering in any way with the presentation of "The Birth of a Nation" at the New Nixon Theatre.

This action of the Chancellor puts a stop to the efforts made to close the New Nixon Theatre, and renders null and void the order sent by Director of Public Safety William H. Bartlett, to Manager Harry Brown, Manager of the New Nixon, which read:

"Dear Sir: You are hereby notified that on and after Monday, August 16, you must discontinue exhibiting the picture called 'The Birth of a Nation.'"

The order sent by Director Bartlett gave no reasons for his action. "The Birth of a Nation" is now being shown in New York, Brighton Beach, Boston, Chicago, Milwaukee, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Seattle, and Spokane, and it has never been barred from any theatre in any state of the United States. It was passed by the National Board of Censors. Mayor Mitchell of New York, and by the Board of Censors of Boston, of which Mayor Curley, Chief Justice Bolster and Police Commissioner O'Meara were the members. "The Birth of a Nation" will continue at the New Nixon Theatre.

Fears of "race violence" expressed by Director Bartlett are ridiculed by local amusement interests. It is charged on the contrary that the sudden decision to wind up the performance which has now run four weeks without the slightest semblance of disorder, is designed solely as a political vote catching move. The photo-drama is advertised for matinee and evening performance today, and will enter upon its fifth week tomorrow at the New Nixon according to a statement issued by Manager Harry Brown last night.

Continued on Page Two

PHOTO-PLAY AT NIXON TO BE CONTINUED

(Continued from Page One)

"Founded on "The Clansman," "Birth of a Nation," the protest negroes declare, incites to race hatred, and the delgation that visited the City Commissioners at Thursday's meeting was composed principally of colored clergymen and members of their congregation.

Mr. Nixon had assembled a distinguished array of lawyers to give the City Commissioners battle. His fighting force included former Judge Gordon of Philadelphia; former Attorney General McCarter, of Newark; former Judge Robert Ingersoll, and former Assemblyman Emerson Richards, of Atlantic City.

"Talk about suppressing this production is absurd," Mr. Nixon said yesterday morning. "Why, it has not only been passed by J. Louis Breitinger, of the Pennsylvania Board of Censorship, but school authorities have been advised to make arrangements for as many children as possible to see it. Claims that it incites race hatred, and for that reason should be supressed, are ridiculous. It deals with nothing but historical facts."

Harry Brown, Manager of the New Nixon Theatre, says that certain newspaper statements to the effect that Chief of Police Woodruff sent plain clothes men through the back section of the city and found that threats of violence were being manufactured out of the whole cloth. "I had a talk with Chief Woodruff and he said that he had not sent out detectives and that there had not been either any disorder or threats of disorder among the colored people of Atlantic City. He authorized me to make this statement in his behalf.

"I also had a talk with William F. Hainstein, President of the Atlantic City Hotel Men's Association, and he told me that neither he nor the association had indorsed Director Bartlett's attempt to stop "The Birth of a Nation," but that on the contrary they endorsed the picture and think that the management ought to be thanked for bringing a splendid picture to this city. He said that every man, woman and child, white

---

Date ..... AUG 1 6 1915 .....

CHANCELLOR AIDS PICTURE DRAMA

Restrains Atlantic City Official From Interfering With Its Production There

RULE IS RETURNABLE TUESDAY

Trenton, N. J., Aug. 14.—(Special.)—City Commissioner William H. Bartlett, Director of Public Safety of Atlantic City, and all other authorities of that place are restrained from in any way interfering with the moving picture drama, "The Birth of a Nation," now being exhibited at the New Nixon Theater, by an order made to-night by Chancellor Walker. The Chancellor has allowed a rule to show cause why an injunction should not issue to prohibit the Atlantic City officials from interfering with this production. This rule is made returnable Tuesday, August 24, and in the meantime the temporary restraint is granted.

The application for the injunction was made to Chancellor Walker at his home here to-night by Emerson L. Richards, former Assemblyman, and Ulysses G. Stryon, as counsel for the Esplanade Amusement Company, owners of the Nixon Theater, and the Epoch Producing Corporation, owners of the film. In the petition to the court it was set out that "The Birth of a Nation" has been exhibiting daily at the Nixon Theater for the last four weeks and without any reason being offered Commissioner Bartlett yesterday notified the management of the theater that on and after Monday, August 16, the exhibition of the picture would be prohibited.

It was set out to the court that "The Birth of a Nation" was produced at a cost far exceeding $100,000; that 18,000 persons and 3,000 horses were used in the roduction; that it occupied a year of time; that it faithfully reproduced interesting and important epochs in American history; that it is highly moral in its character and tone; that it is educational as well as emotional; that the play in no wise appeals to or tends to excite or engender racial or religious prejudice or animosities, but, on the contrary, is clean, wholesome and elevating.

It is further claimed by the complainants that at present the picture is being exhibited in all parts of the country, and that it was witnessed in February of the present year by most distinguished persons in official life at the National Press Club in Washington, and the universal verdict was that it was a wonderful production. It is claimed that there were only two instances in which the propriety of the play has been questioned. One of these was in Chicago and the other in the city of Los Angeles, but in both cities the police departments were restrained by the higher courts from interfering.

The Court of Chancery was asked to restrain the Director of Public Safety of Atlantic City from his contemplated action because of the effect that it would have not only upon the profits of the Nixon Theater, but because of the irreparable damage that the production would sustain.

CHAMBERSBURG (Pa.) REPOSITOR
AUG. 17, 1915

"BIRTH OF A NATION"

One of the greatest photoplays, possibly, ever placed on canvas is the "Birth of a Nation." At Atlantic City where it has been running most successfully, following a great success in New York last winter, the ban has been placed upon it and with Sunday's performance the entertainments will cease in that city unless the Court disagrees with the city authorities.

The play is a defense of the position of the South during the Civil War and the danger to be feared in that class hatred will be engendered to such an extent as to possibly cause trouble. This is what the Atlantic City authorities feared. In the films appear scenes of General Sherman's march to the Sea in which towns and villages are laid waste by the torch and other scenes of a similar nature are presented. No Chambersburger can view the wonderful production, for wonderful it is, without being impressed with the thought that a scene from his home town on that eventful morning of July 30th, 1864, should have been included.

But it is such things that make the production objectionable. The many scenes are calculated to not only engender race hatred but to revive a sectional feeling that is rapidly passing away and which the sooner it is forgotten the better for our entire country.

Ever since that little contest with Cuba a few years ago Mason and Dixon's line has been gradually obliterated until it remains practically only in history. While "The Birth of a Nation" is a wonderful production, possibly one of the most remarkable moving picture shows ever presented, it is not calculated to bind up old sores nor is it likely to accomplish a great deal of good in the South where other efforts are being made to educate the black man and make of him a better citizen than he is pictured in this production, which, however, was no doubt true of him in the days following the war the time when the scene is laid.

PHILADELPHIA, (PA.) PRESS

...old num... the city of Cincinnati ... and of the State of Ohio.

Objections in Picture Play.

To the Editor of "The Press":

Sir:—The critics who see nothing objectionable in the "Birth of a Nation" contend that the play reflects no more upon the colored people than it does upon the Southern whites, whose revenge it portrays, or upon the Northern "carpet-bagger," whose policy of humiliation is the center from which it radiates. Accepting this for the sake of argument there is yet another question of higher and more vital importance. Does this reflection operate adversely upon the future of white and colored alike? It does not.

In the first place, the feeling of antipathy which is the underlying cause of the estrangement between members of the human family is less in proportion, as racial conditions are equal or nearly so. For instance, two white men may meet on the common ground of racial equality and discuss their differences, whereas the wide racial difference between white and colored would act as a barrier to the exchange of those courtesies which are fundamental to an equitable adjustment of any differences between them. We seldom hear of a white man's family paying the penalty for his crime with their lives, while on the other hand, we are told that whole neighborhoods have been wiped out in atonement for a colored man's crime. From this point of view the fact is established that a white man's sins are the sooner forgiven.

A white man may look on the pictures with no other feeling than that of revenge, while the colored man sees himself in the character of a human vulture preying upon the virtue and morals of society. Is this debauchery necessary to the social and moral uplift of the race, or does it point to a studied and approved design to justify lynching? It is the vile and brutal sentiment that finds its highest expression in "The Clansman" and "The Leopard's Spots" that has kept the races from assuming their rightful relation to each other where it would be easier to understand that "a man is but a man after all."

The colored man is not responsible for the problem which his coming has forced upon the world. It is a part of God's universal plan, and it will require higher examples of the white man's wisdom to solve it than are to be found in "The Birth of a Nation."

ELIAS ...

MOTION PICTURE WORLD (N. Y. City)

"THE CLANSMAN" STOPPED

...master... ...enough ...ed on ...Mayor ...was ...of the ...being ...orts ...ange ...oth... ...duce... ...is ...film ...that ...of ...miss... ...when ...ts ...sul... ...ed r... ...age... ...ed ... ...Fo... ...ma... ...gage... ...but the second week of ...ment and just wh... ...delay... ...suppressi... ...pleas... ...Fancy is not ap... ...not

---

PITTSBURGH DISPATCH

CANNOT STOP BIRTH PICTURES

Jersey Chancellor Rules So; Mayor Armstrong Says He Will

Instructions were given yesterday by Mayor Armstrong to Police Superintendent W Noble Matthews to stop any attempt made here to show the moving picture film, "The Birth of a Nation," which is scheduled for a five weeks' run at the Nixon Theater. The Mayor said yesterday afternoon:

"The picture tends to excite racial discord and I am satisfied, from statements made to me by various residents of this city and by a delegation which called upon me this morning, that the picture is of a regrettable nature."

This situation in Pittsburg relative to the picture is of peculiar interest because of the action yesterday of Chancellor Walker of Trenton, N J, in insuring the continuance of the same film in Atlantic City, where it is now in the midst of an all-summer run. The chancellor granted a permanent injunction restraining the City Commission of Atlantic City from interfering with the performance, this replacing a temporary injunction granted August 14.

Among the affidavits presented in the case at Atlantic City was one by William F Hanstein, president of the Hotel Men's Association, that the agitation against the picture was prompted by Mayor Riddle for the purpose of securing to himself the Negro vote. Hanstein swore that he employed several hundred Negroes at his hotel and that he knew there was no disorder or ill-feeling caused by the picture. He stated that it should not be stopped simply for political reasons.

An affidavit also was presented by Rev William E Allen, the Negro pastor of the church of the Good Shepherd, that he saw no reason why the picture should be stopped. "The Birth of a Nation" ... in New York, Boston ...

PORTLAND (Ore.) OREGONIAN
AUG. ...

PROTEST IS MADE

Mayor Bears Veterans and Negroes on "The Birth of a Nation."

Members of the Grand Army and Portland's negro population lined up in a crusade against the exhibition here of the film, "The Birth of a Nation," slated for Portland soon. Mayor Albee spent several hours yesterday listening to arguments of veterans and negroes against the film.

One official Grand Army delegation comprising H. H. Northup and T. B. McDevitt, appeared in the Mayor's office to protest officially for the Grand Army. Later a delegation of negroes headed by E. D. Cannaday appeared on a similar mission. During the day the Mayor had a long list of others bent on adding their influence toward keeping the film from Portland. The Mayor made no promise, saying merely that he has not seen the film as yet, nor has the picture censor board, which has the deciding voice in the matter.

...y first," ... First appre... ...been organized ... pro... Monday, at ... well-atten...

PROVIDENCE
SEPT

SOLUTIONS AGAINST MOVING PICTURE PASSED AT MEETING

A. M. E. Church Boston New England Conference Ends.

Resolutions opposing the showing of the "Birth of a Nation" in this city were passed last night at the final meeting of the annual District Conference of the Boston New England A. M. E. Church held in the Allen Chapel on A street. It was voted to send a copy of the resolutions to the Mayor. H. H. Pinckney, presiding elder, and D. Ormonde Walker were the committee on resolutions.

Reports of the various church auxiliaries were presented and the evening concluded with an entertainment programme which was as follows: Piano solo, Miss Bertha Minton; reading, Mrs. Henry McCoy; solo, Miss Eva Brown; recitation, Mrs. Florence Englehart; piano solo, Miss Annie Elston; recitation, Miss Mazie Timberlake; vocal solo, Miss Ida Applegate; piano solo, Augustus Johnson; solo, Miss Florence Englehart; violin solo, Brister Glasscock; reading, Mrs. Lottie McClain; vocal solo, Miss Jeanette Johnson; reading, Mrs. Ida Bliss. Address, Rev. Dr. W. O. Walker; benediction by the pastor, Rev. Dr. J. H. Wilson.

At the morning session Rev. Dr. M. F. Coles of the Bethel A. M. E. Church, Reading street, read a paper, "Will the Present European War Help or Hinder the Progress of Christianity?" which was followed by a discussion participated in by Rev. Messrs. Walker, Hartley, Pinckney and J. H. Jordan. The afternoon session was taken up mostly in discussing the needs of domestic and foreign missions associated with the A. M. E. Church. Rev. Thomas Screen, the singing evangelist, gave several vocal selections. Rev. H. H. Pinckney presided at the meetings.

Raw Facts on a Nation

Below are a few facts that may interest our sensitive chief executive; and likewise interest local theatre managers:

A legal permit for the Chicago production of "The Birth of a Nation" was granted early last spring by the then Mayor Carter Harrison and the Censor board, under his direction. Through political influence or otherwise, this permit was subsequently "revoked" by the new mayor William Hale Thompson and Chief of Police Healey, immediately following the new mayor's election.

Joseph J. McCarthy, general manager of the production, then took the matter to the courts. His prayer for an injunction to restrain Mayor Thompson and Chief of Police Healey from interference, came up before Judge William Fennimore Cooper of the superior court.

Much testimony was given and much argument adduced on both sides. The result of the court proceedings was a complete victory for "The Birth of a Nation."

Judge Cooper said: "This ground that it will engender race animosity is based purely on assumption. To find that this is a good objection to the allowing of the injunction this court will have to assume that our white citizens will not know or appreciate the fact that the days as presented in the play were early in the first years of the last half century. This court will have to assume that they who will witness the play will be so stupid that they will be unable to comprehend that the people represented on the films were of two or three generations ago. And that they do not, and will not appreciate the fact that in the succeeding time the negro race has advanced almost immeasurably. This court is satisfied from the evidence that in this photoplay the good black man and the bad black man are equally prominent figures. No one race nor nationality has greater rights under the law than any other has. Any race or nationality so offended can best give the lie to the bad characters as presented by continuing to conduct themselves as law-abiding citizens. I am obliged to find under the law and the evidence in this case that the complainant is entitled to the relief prayed for, and I will enter an injunction restraining the mayor, chief of police and the city of Chicago from interfering with the introduction of the play."

Phil. Public Ledger Sep 7

HISTORY UNDER FALSE PRETENSES

To the Editor of Public Ledger:

Sir—Your editorial page is, as a rule, fair and constructive. I'm wondering whether or not you've seen the "Birth of a Nation" playing here after being produced on the Pacific coast at 25 cents for the best seat and $2 here for the best seat.

It could more properly be called the "Death of the Negro," for of all the travesties on history and tawdry slapstick falsities—except for a few mitigating features, one of which was the, as usual, splendid work of Henry Warwhall—this over-advertised film is the worst that I've sat through. It has the effrontery to exploit a crazy-brained ex-actor (sometime a clumsy spy for the Confederate army) and the murder of our most sombre and human Chief Executive. Most certainly the most lurid bacchanalian scenes that our Board of Censors has—and no doubt properly—declared unshowable can in no way compare with the main theme of this film.

It purports to be history. It isn't anything of the sort. It is false pretense from the start. And it's a mighty bad thing for women to witness. The Frank case would be a far legitimate story to film. As photography it is, though decidedly trick photography in the conflagration scenes. As an epic er mayor. The state primaries are due on Sept. 21.

A READER

---

Getting the Colored Vote

Lowell cannot see the historic movie, "The Birth of a Nation," because Mayor Murphy has decided that the picture is "prejudical to the colored race."

Down in Boston where the picture has been running for a long time, in response to objections by the colored people of Boston, the picture was somewhat revised so as to remove the main objection. Yet the revised picture which has been made satisfactory to the thousands of colored people of Boston cannot be shown in Lowell lest it offend the local colored population; for nobody is to be offended during these campaign days.

Some time ago when an objectionable play was presented at the Merrimack Square theatre The Sun, in response to the complaint of a number of women, raised objections to it and called Mayor Murphy's attention to it. Everybody who saw the play knew that it was unfit to be presented, as it was given on the opening day. But the mayor said the play was all right and allowed it to go on though the manager, more sensitive to newspaper criticism subsequently called on the editor of The Sun and stated that he would eliminate certain features of it. There is little doubt that had anyone else but The Sun protested, His Honor would have stopped the play, yet Mayor Murphy announced as soon as he took office that his secretary would be the censor of plays in order to bar everything objectionable, but the secretary failed to act and the mayor personally pronounced the play all right.

It is unfortunate, under the circumstances, that The Sun didn't roast "The Birth of a Nation," for had it done so, in all probability, His Honor would have pronounced the picture a model of artistic realism, and permitted its production in this city. "The Birth of a Nation," now finishing its run in Boston is to be produced in a number of Massachusetts cities, and Lowell stands alone in its objection to it.

Holyoke

PROTEST PLAY.

Holyoke Mayor Receives Letter Regarding "The Birth of a Nation."

Mayor John H. Wolohan today received a letter from Butler R. Wilson, secretary of the Boston branch of the National Association for the advancement of colored people, protesting against the issuing of permits for the showing of the motion picture play, "The Birth of a Nation," in this city. Two local theaters have announced that the picture would be shown here this month, but no definite dates have been received.

Rev. W. N. Doherty, pastor of St. John's Congregational Church in Springfield, will institute vigorous opposition if the picture is shown here. Secretary Wilson has sent the Mayor pamphlets containing evidence against the play and asks that its production be prevented "on the ground that the play arouses race hatred and tends to a breach of the peace."

St. Louis Republic Sep 1/15

FILM COMPANY AGAIN WINS

Owners of "Birth of a Nation" Granted Pittsburg Production Rights.

After a legal fight, duplicating the St. Louis battle, "The Birth of a Nation" opened at the Nixon Theater in Pittsburg last night, according to a telegram received at the Olympic. The city authorities in Pittsburg threatened to stop the production, but, as here, an injunction was obtained and the engagement of the Griffith spectacle started on scheduled time.

This is the fifth of five legal fights in which the owners of the film have won. Difficulties were encountered in Boston, Chicago and Atlantic City similar to those in St. Louis and Pittsburg. In every case the court rulings have been favorable to the film, and not once has an engagement been stopped.

The arguments for making permanent the temporary injunction granted by Judge Kinamel in St. Louis last Saturday night will be heard this afternoon.

St. Louis Daily Globe Sep 1/15

...m Owners Win Suit.

...legal fight duplicating the St. ... battle, "The Birth of a Nation" ...ened at the Nixon Theater in Pittsburgh last night, according to a telegram received at the Olympic Theater. The city authorities in Pittsburgh threatened to interfere in the same manner ... Attorney Sidener did here.

...elphia, (Pa.) Public Ledger

SEP 4 - 1915

ORDER POLICE TO STOP RACE FILM

Director Porter Says He Will Prevent Production of "Birth of a Nation"

MANAGEMENT DEENDS ON COURT INJUNCTION

Negroes of City Threaten Trouble if Much-discussed Picture Is Shown

Director Porter is going to do his best to stop the production of "The Birth of a Nation." By his orders police tonight will be drawn up in front of the Forrest Theatre.

Unless the Director is enjoined by the courts, the police will not allow the film to be shown. The Director last night said that he feared serious disturbances at the initial production of the much-discussed picture.

It is understood that the management of the Forrest Theatre and the producers of the picture play today will ask the courts to enjoin the Director from preventing the showing of the film.

In that event, said the Director, he had not yet decided what course he would pursue. Certainly, he said, he would station police in the theatre with instructions to quell any disturbance.

Director Porter said that, to his knowledge, a large number of negroes had purchased tickets. He surmised that it was their intention to protest while the picture was being shown. Such protests in a crowded theatre, he said, inevitably would cause a disturbance.

"Under my police powers," he said, "I believe it my duty to protect the public by stopping the production. Of course, if the courts enjoin me from interfering, I will have to take every precaution to quell disturbances.

"Before learning of the great number of tickets purchased by negroes, I was overwhelmed with protests from negro organizations. These included a protest from 20,000 colored Knights of Pythias."

The Director said that, at the request of J. Louis Breitinger, Chief of the Board of Censors, he had seen "The Birth of a Nation" at Atlantic City, and that it was his personal opinion that it should not be produced in Philadelphia, a city with a negro population larger than any other Northern city. The picture had been condemned, said the Director, by representative Philadelphia negroes, including the Rev. Dr. Henry L. Phillips, the Rev. J. M. Palmer and Mrs. Madeline H. Layton.

While the Director yesterday was completing his plans to prevent the production, Judge Amorose B. Reid, of Pittsburgh, continued an injunction restraining Mayor Armstrong and the city of Pittsburgh from interfering with performances in that city.

This made the fourth time that courts have enjoined Mayors and city officials from stopping the film on the grounds of race prejudice. Other instances have been in Chicago, Los Angeles and Atlantic City.

Judge Reid, in his opinion, said:

"The Legislature has, in its wisdom, established a State Board of Censors to control and direct the presentation of moving pictures, and it is a body established by law, and unless it has acted fraudulently, or from improper motives, its decision is entitled to respect, and we must support it.

"In the case at bar the evidence discloses that 'The Birth of a Nation' has been approved by the State Board of Censors, and no attempt has been made to say it was improperly approved. The result is that the burden is put upon those who oppose it to show that it tends to cause a breach of the peace.

"In my opinion, it has not been shown that such a result is at all improbable, because the consensus of opinion seems to be, and the fact proven, that it has produced a breach of the peace, although exhibited before ... persons."

Pittsburg Press Sep 3/

NIXON'S INJUNCTION MADE PERMANENT BY JUDGE REID

To a crowded court room today, after a long and argumentative hearing, Judge Reid made permanent the injunction which restrains the mayor and police from interfering with the production of the photo play, "The Birth of a Nation," at the Nixon theater, for the full period of its time scheduled here.

In the court room were a number of colored people, represented by Attorney Robert Vann. About 10 witnesses were heard, testimony being interrupted frequently by objections and by opinions of the judge. In giving his decision Judge Reid said: "An effort should not be made to stop any public production unless reasonable grounds and cause be given to have it stopped. I do not consider that reasonable grounds have been presented here. It has not been proven that this film ever was the means of inciting a riot or any disorder. As to its effect on the minds of the persons who saw it, the court has nothing to do. I am in sympathy with the colored race in that it often has been misrepresented and that, in this play, at times the worst side of it is shown.

"I think it would have been better if, with showing the rioting of colored troops in a supposed South Carolina town, the producers of the film had shown also the bravery of men, perhaps descended from those same troops, in conflicts of the United States with her enemies. The film perhaps should have shown the splendid monument erected for the colored soldiers of the United States, which speaks louder than anything else of the esteem in which they are held. But it has not been established that this play causes rioting or a disturbance of the public peace, therefore, the injunction is continued."

In court today were Supt. of Police Noble Matthews, Councilman W. Y. English and Enoch Rauh and a number of other prominent persons. Mayor Armstrong was not present.

Mrs. Alice Dunbar, the widow of Paul Laurence Dunbar, the noted colored poet, was the principal witness for the objectors. She witnessed the performance at the Nixon theater. After witnessing it she said she could not but help feeling that it would tend to create a less kindly feeling towards the negroes by the white people, and destroy that amity which now exists.

St Louis Times Sep 1

Antibusybody Victory.

The busybodies of Pittsburg filed serious objection to the presentation in that city of "The Birth of a Nation." Yesterday their protests were overruled and the picture was shown. Pittsburg woke up and joined New York and Chicago. St. Louis has several precedents upon which to ponder in the matter of snooping, self-constituted guardians of public morals and safety. It is to be hoped that the courts will see the wisdom of setting enterprise and progress above pernicious meddling in a field where stimulation is greatly needed.

Press Sep 5

JUDGE ENJOINS POLICE INTERFERING WITH PLAY

That the photo-play, "The Birth of a Nation," is a perfectly proper production, and one which will in no manner produce rioting upon the part of colored people who might object to an adverse characterization of their race, were the points sustained by Judge Ferguson yesterday in Common Pleas Court No. 3. The Court granted a five days' restraining order to prevent the police department from interfering with the production of the picture at the Forrest Theater, and the production can be shown until the expiration of that time. Judge Ferguson said that when the five days' time expires either party to the proceeding can go before a Judge with a motion to have the injunction vacated or made permanent.

Director Porter, who had given orders to stop the production of the picture, contended yesterday in court that he had good cause to expect a riot if the picture was produced.

Lawyer McCullen, who appeared for the Forrest Theater, said that the picture had been submitted to the Board of Censors and they had approved it. This, he said, took the matter out of the jurisdiction of the court, inasmuch as the Board of Censors was appointed for the very purpose of passing on all pictures to be shown in this State. The Court held that this view was logical.

MOTION PICTURE WORLD (N. Y. City)

SEP 1 1915

TO BE EXPECTED.

Heralding "The Birth of a Nation," billed to show at the Heilig theater three weeks, commencing August 29, comes the usual protest by the negro population of Portland and the G. A. R., the colored people having petitioned to the Mayor and a committee from the George Wright Post, G. A. R., are contemplating like action. Mrs. Edward D. Cannady, secretary of one of the leading colored people's clubs advises that the members of her organization have made a continuous fight against the picture ever since there was any possibility of its showing in Portland.

MOTION PICTURE WORLD (N. Y. City)

The unprecedented success of "The Birth of a Nation" at the Illinois theater is now being repeated at the Colonial, on Randolph street. Henry Savage's stage production of "Sari" at the Illinois was the cause of the transfer of the Griffith production to the Colonial.

MOTION PICTURE NEWS (New York City)

TACOMA ORDINANCE BARS "RACE HATRED" FILMS

Adopting the precedent set by the censors of other Pacific Coast cities with regard to the production "Birth of a Nation," Albert E. Joab, an attorney at Tacoma, representing the colored populace, made such a strong plea to the city council that under date of August 12 they passed the following ordinance:

"It shall be unlawful for any person, firm or corporation to publicly show or exhibit in any place in the City of Tacoma, any picture or series of pictures by any device known as a mutescope, kinetoscope, cinematograph, kinemacolor, penny arcade, a moving picture theatre or any vaudeville act, drama, play, theatrical song or stage or platform performance or any advertisement or billboard display which is or tends to be immoral, obscene, lewd, lascicious or of any indecent character, or which portrays brutality, or which tends to incite race riot, or race hatred or that shall represent or purport to represent any hanging, lynching, burning or placing in a position of ignominy of any human being, the same being incited by race hatred."

Somewhat similar and stringent action has been taken in other cities where this picture was eventually shown, and undoubtedly one of the Tacoma exhibitors will get around the ordinance and run the picture.

MOTION PICTURE WORLD (N. Y. City)

ATLANTIC CITY MUST PERMIT GRIFFITH FILM.

By Jacob J. Kaiser, Newark Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

CHANCELLOR WALKER permanently enjoined the City Commission of Atlantic City from further interfering with the production of Griffith's feature, "The Birth of a Nation." The order was signed by the Chancellor Tuesday at Trenton. The act is regarded by Jersey moving picture exhibitors as a great victory.

The Esplanade Amusement Company and the Epoch Producing Company were offering the photodrama at the New Nixon theater, and when objection was made to the film by the colored population, the management of the show house obtained a temporary restraining order on Aug. 14. Chancellor Walker said that the commissioners had no ground whatever for restraining the film.

Pittsburg Gazette Sep 3/15

COURT DECISION FAVORS "BIRTH OF A NATION."

(Continued From Page One.)

by City Solicitor Charles A. O'Brien, Assistant City Solicitors Benjamin J. Jarrett and Peter Glick. The interest of the negroes were represented by Attorney R. L. Vann, a negro member of the bar. Attorney George E. Shaw of the firm of Reed, Smith, Shaw & Beal represented the owners of the picture film and the theater management.

Pittsburg Chronicle Telegraph Sep 3/15

COURT REFUSES TO STOP "BIRTH OF NATION" PICTURES

Injunction Restraining City Officials From Interfering Is Continued.

JUDGE HAD SEEN SHOW

State Censors Having Approved Film, He Refuses to Override Them.

The injunction granted last Monday restraining Mayor Joseph G. Armstrong and the city officials from interfering with the performance of "The Birth of a Nation," a moving picture drama now being exhibited at the Nixon Theater, was continued this morning following a hearing held by Judge Ambrose B. Reid.

The city officials, following a complaint made by negroes of the city, who objected to the picture being exhibited here on the ground that it might create race hatred and prejudice, ordered the theater management not to show the motion drama. A restraining order was then asked for, which was granted by the court.

Judge Reid, in continuing the injunction, declared that he was in sympathy with the motives of the negroes in objecting to the play, but declared that the law has placed the regulation of the moving pictures in the hands of a board of censors, and that it would not be prudent for the court to interfere with that body's operations. The stated board passed favorably upon the pictures in question and unless it could be shown that the board had failed to do its duty the court would not interpose, Judge Reid said.

Continued on Page Twelve.

COURT REFUSES TO STOP "BIRTH OF NATION" PICTURES

(Continued from Page One.)

The courtroom was crowded this morning, with a large proportion of negroes in the throng.

City Councilmen Enoch Rauh and W. Y. English, called as witnesses, testified that they were of the opinion that there were some portions of the film which might create racial prejudice and hatred and possibly a breach of the peace. There were some portions of the performance, they declared, which were edifying and exalted the negro race, and showed the wonderful advancement it has made since emancipation. Nevertheless they thought the preponderance of the scenes might have the effect of creating race hatred and prejudice.

Judge Reid Had Seen Picture.

Judge Reid himself witnessed the performance at the Nixon Theater and was well versed in the scenes to which objection was made. Men of prominence in the affairs of the city were called as witnesses for the theater management and they declared they were of the opinion that the motion drama was of a highly historical and educative nature, and that there was no cause for alarm that disorder would accompany the showing of the pictures. Under cross-examination they admitted that there were some portions which the negroes might object to, but they said history very often is distasteful. As a whole, however, the witnesses said, it gave a portrayal of the strides and advancements which the negro race has made since the Civil War.

The city authorities were represented by City Solicitor Charles A. O'Brien, Assistant City Solicitors Benjamin J. Jarrett and Peter Glick. The interests of the objectors were represented by Attorney R. L. Vann. Attorney George E. Shaw, of the firm of Reed, Smith, Shaw & Beal, represented the owners of the picture film and the theater management.

Thomas F. Kirk, the manager of the Nixon Theater, was the first witness called. He said that three performances of "The Birth of a Nation" already had been given and that they had not been accompanied by any disorder. He was followed by Howard Herrick, the business manager of the film company. He said the film had already been viewed by over 1,500,000 people from all portions of the United States. There have been protests at times, but he declared the picture has been passed upon favorably by every censor board before which it was exhibited. He exhibited the permit to show the film from the state board of censors and also that of the national board. Mr. Herrick said that nowhere has there been any trouble where the picture has been shown.

Poet's Widow Is Witness.

Mrs. Alice Dunbar, the widow of Paul Laurence Dunbar, the noted colored poet, was the principal witness for the objectors.

Mrs. Dunbar said she had witnessed the performance at the Nixon and could not help feeling that it would tend to create a less kindly feeling toward the negroes by the white people. The worse side of the negro was featured conspicuously, she said, and while she admitted that there were some colored characters that were ennobled, nevertheless the preponderance of the scenes placed the negro in an objectionable attitude. A number of other negroes testified along the same lines as Mrs. Dunbar.

Charles M. Bregg, dramatic editor of the Gazette Times, who witnessed the performance at the Nixon, said he did not think scenes of disorder or a breach of the peace would be attendant on the showing of the pictures. He said he was born in Virginia and knows traits of the negroes.

At the conclusion of the hearing Attorney Vann made an argument in which he asked the court to prohibit the showing of the pictures. He said negroes were not alone in this fight but their protests had the indorsement of white people, as was attested by their presence in court this morning.

Judge Reid said that unfortunately the court was powerless to cope with the spreading and sowing of the seed of prejudice and hatred and referred to the spread of religious prejudice, saying the court could act only where there was a breach of the peace. This, he said, was not shown in the case at bar.

Attorney Shaw declared that if every drama or motion picture that referred to or depicted a race unkindly were to be stopped, then our dramatic art would be interfered with. He declared that the Jews then could object to the performance of "The Merchant of Venice" and other kindred shows.

Pittsburg Press Sep 2

PHOTOPLAY WINS HEARTY APPLAUSE

All unconscious of the passing of time, the large audience which attended the opening performance of "The Birth of a Nation," D. W. Griffith's photodrama masterpiece, at the Nixon theater last night, sat enthralled for almost three hours, and at the conclusion of the display adjudged it the most tremendous and thrilling ever thrown upon the screen.

From the start to the finish the audience seemed spellbound, and the story portrayed did not allow the attention of those present to lag for one single moment. Bursts of applause were frequent, while at other periods the spectacular effects gave a feeling of awe. The settings for the large scenes are so tremendous that they are well nigh beyond description. The reproductions of places, scenes and events made as historically correct as possible, were so real and convincing that they were greeted with spontaneous applause. The piece is also admirably cast and the part of each performer is so splendidly played that the audience soon forgot that all was posed.

The photo-drama is divided into two parts, the first is historical and the second an elaboration of Rev. Dixon's play, "The Clansman." There is a story running through the film that is gripping to say the least. There is a blend of pathos and tragedy that stirs one's emotions to the highest point of intensity and then there is a touch of natural comedy which relieves the strain. Some of the biggest scenes are the battles waged between Union and Confederate soldiers, Lincoln's assassination, the rides of the Ku-Klux, the surrender of Gen. Lee to Gen. Grant and Sherman's march to the sea. The burning of Atlanta produces light effects which are vivid and ghastly, as are also the scenes of battles waged in the night. "The Birth of a Nation" is a film-drama that has to be seen to be appreciated. An adequate description of this greatest of all moving picture productions is almost impossible.

Inquirer Sep 8

SEEK AGAIN TO BAN "BIRTH OF A NATION"

Objectors Will Ask to Have Certain Scenes Eliminated If Photoplay Is Not Suppressed

Several colored people visited Court of Common Pleas No. 3 yesterday morning for the purpose of protesting to Judge Ferguson because of his action in permitting the photoplay, "The Birth of a Nation," to be shown at the Forrest Theatre.

At the end of the preliminary injunction period the court stated either side might go before the Court of Common Pleas No. 4 and ask for the vacation or continuance of the injunction. The colored delegation awaited an hour for its counsel, M. Luther Nicholas. Before he put in an appearance Judge Ferguson had finished the day's calendar in his court.

The representatives of the colored people then visited Court of Common Pleas No. 4 and City Solicitor Ryan. The result of their visits was that on Wednesday or Thursday the delegation, with counsel, will appear before Judge Finletter in Court No. 4 and ask that the injunction be vacated and the police allowed to order the suppression of the picture.

They also purpose to ask for the elimination from the picture of certain alleged objectionable scenes if the picture, as a whole, is not enjoined or stopped by the police.

Phila. Press Sep 8/15

COLORED MEN HISS "BIRTH OF NATION"

Nine Ejected from Playhouse and Three Arrested—Plenty of Police on Hand.

Nine colored men were ejected from the Forrest Theater last night when they hissed certain parts of the picture play, "The Birth of a Nation." Three of the men afterwards were arrested upon the orders of police Captain Tempest, who charged them with having disturbed the peace. There was little or no excitement in the theater when the men were taken out by detectives.

Those arrested had seats in the last row on the left side of the house and were accompanied to the theater by an equal number who sat in the last row on the right side while a few had taken seats in the gallery. When the trouble began and the detectives and plain clothes men scattered through the audience closed in on those on the left side of the house their friends kept very quiet.

Early in the evening Captain Tempest was notified that certain colored men might make trouble and so he stationed twenty-five uniformed patrolmen outside the house, while Lieutenant of Detectives Theodore Wood was inside the theater with thirty picked men from the Detective Bureau. When the colored men began to hiss each was grabbed by a detective, pulled over the back of the last aisle and hurried from the theater. When the detectives and their prisoners reached the street the uniformed men, under Captain Tempest, kept them moving and refused to allow any speeches, which some of the men seemed to think they should deliver.

The trouble came in the second episode of the play. The formation of the Ku Klux Klan had just been shown when the hissing started. The rest of the audience applauded. While the colored men did not seem to know it a detective was standing behind each one. At a signal from Lieutenant Wood, Detective Souder grabbed the ringleader, and Dick Doyle took the man next to him. Detectives Frank O'Connor, Benz, Sullivan and eight or ten others, took a man each just as every light in the house was turned on.

The trouble inside the theater was not unexpected by the police. Earlier in the evening about forty or fifty men had tried to parade from Broad and Lombard Streets to the theater. The parade was stopped by the police, and then the men continued to the theater on the sidewalk, in a less spectacular manner.

Those arrested described themselves as Lazarus Lewis, thirty-eight years old, of 624 South Sixteenth Street; Richard Williams, thirty-four, of 5148 Merion Avenue, and Herbert Hocutt, thirty-four, of 5146 Merion Avenue.

Phila. Public Ledger Sep 7

NEGRO FILM CRITICS DISPERSED BY POLICE

Parade on Broad Street Is Broken Up Without Rioting

Policemen dispersed a crowd of about 200 negroes who were marching north in Broad street last night as a protest against the presentation of "The Birth of a Nation" at the Forrest Theatre.

Lieutenant Bausewine, of the 12th and Pine streets station, and a detail of police, took up a line across Pine street. As the marchers approached, Bausewine told them they did not have a permit to parade, and that they would have to disperse. They obeyed him quickly, without comment or confusion.

The negroes had assembled at Broad and South streets. A plain clothes man, stationed there to give a warning if a demonstration were attempted, telephoned to the station house. Meanwhile news of the march had reached the theatre, and the management asked Captain Davis that the police guard be increased.

Three negroes were arrested in the theatre when they hissed a scene they said was objectionable. The prisoners were charged with disorderly conduct. They are: Lazarus Lewis, 28 years old, 624 South 16th street; Richard Williams, 34 years old, 5148 Merion street, and Herbert Holcutt, 32 years old, 5146 Merion street.

Lewis was arrested by Captain Tempest and the latter two by Detective Souder.

Between 50 and 75 negroes bought tickets for the night performance. They were seated by twos and threes, the ticket sellers apparently following instructions to keep them from securing seats together in large numbers. City Hall detectives were assigned to seats near them.

During the performance there were groups of negroes scattered along Broad street from Sansom to Walnut, discussing the pictures. Captain Davis, who went to the theatre when he heard of the parade, gave orders to the police to prevent more than three men from forming groups. The police also stopped discussions between whites and negroes.

Public Ledger Sep 5

POLICE HALTED IN FILM FIGHT

Courts Enjoin Porter From Interfering With "Birth of a Nation"

PICTURE IS SHOWN WITHOUT INTERRUPTION

Few Negroes in Theatre and Expected Disturbance Fails to Materialize

Judge Ferguson granted a preliminary injunction yesterday restraining Director Porter from interfering for five days with the exhibition of the moving picture, "The Birth of a Nation," which was exhibited here for the first time last night at the Forrest Theatre. The restraining order was granted after a hearing of a suit brought by the Nixon & Zimmerman Theatre Company to enjoin the Police Department from stopping the picture under orders from Director Porter.

Threats made by negroes led Director Porter to fear there might be trouble if the film was shown, it having been reported that more than 200 negroes had purchased tickets for the opening night. The fears were unfounded, however, as only a few negroes were in the house.

Headed by Captain Cameron, a detail of 15 detectives from City Hall remained in the theatre throughout the performance. Police Captains Tempest and Davis also were present, and scattered throughout the house, for the purpose of quelling any incipient disturbance that might arise, were 25 private detectives. In front of the theatre six patrolmen were stationed.

Either the measures taken by the police to prevent trouble intimidated all prospective protests, or Director Porter's estimate of the number of colored persons in this city angered by the production of the play was excessive.

Judge Ferguson said that after the five days' time expires, as the suit was brought in Court No. 4, either party to the proceeding can go before a Judge of that court with a motion to have the injunction vacated or made permanent.

Joseph P. McCullen, representing the producers of the film and the theatre management, insisted that Director Porter acted prematurely in his conclusions that the photoplay would create racial feeling because the picture suggested scenes in "The Clansman."

Judge Ferguson said that he had seen the production and found it very interesting. While there might be some colored people, he added, inclined to be captious and critical, their judgment should not be the rule, as the same thing could be said of other productions which reflected on other races and nationalities. He mentioned "The Irish Players," as an illustration, but said that in this and in other instances there were no riots or serious public disturbances.

Director Porter explained that during the last week he had been overwhelmed with delegations of colored people, who had requested him to prevent the production of "The Birth of a Nation" on the ground that the picture had a tendency to cast discredit on the colored race. He said that under the circumstances he felt it was his duty to anticipate and prevent any threatened public disturbance.

Mr. McCullen submitted a decision given by Judge Reed in Pittsburgh on Friday in which he refused to grant an injunction against the same production on the ground that the Legislature had given exclusive authority to the Board of Censors in controlling all such exhibitions.

Judge Ferguson said he would not grant the injunction asked for, because he thought the danger of any public disturbance was remote.

Public Ledger Sep 11

TO ANSWER PHOTOPLAYS

Negroes Will Make Film to Offset "Birth of a Nation"

The negro citizens who were not satisfied with the representations of their forefathers as shown in Griffith's spectacle "The Birth of a Nation" at the Forrest Theatre, have decided to answer that production with one of their own, in which the development of the race will be worked out in a dramatic scenario. The better element of the race has decided to spend no further time in protesting the Griffith production and is agreed that a far more effective answer can be made by devoting its attention to making its own a success.

With this end in view, James Scott, private secretary to Booker T. Washington, has been in conference with Henry I. MacMason, the Eastern representative of Thomas H. Ince, the celebrated motion-picture director. An elaborate scenario has been worked out showing the early sufferings of the negro slaves, the trials they went through in the first years of their freedom and then showing the wonderful progress that enlightened negro citizens have made in the past half a century.

North American Sep 9

COURT LIFTS BAN UPON 'THE BIRTH OF A NATION'

Restrains Director Porter From Interfering With the Production

NEGRO PROTEST FAILS

Leader Says Race Will Parade Tomorrow Night to Voice Sentiments

"The Birth of a Nation," the $500,000 photoplay, was shown at the Forrest Theater last night. The managers of the theater earlier in the day obtained a preliminary injunction from Judge Ferguson to restrain the police from interfering. The injunction holds for five days.

Director Porter gave as his reason for putting a ban on the show fear of race disturbances, because of protests he had received from negroes, who told him scenes in the play would create hatred of the negro race.

Joseph P. McCullen, attorney for the Nixon & Zimmerman Theater Company, presented the petition asking for the injunction. Director Porter was present with Assistant City Solicitors Lowengrund and Tafel.

McCullen contended that Director Porter had no right to stop the play, as he acted prematurely and beyond his authority. He said Director Porter was premature with conclusions that the play would create race feeling against the negro, and pointed out that the Pennsylvania state board of censors had twice viewed the photoplay and passed upon it.

"The play in no wise engenders or tends to excite racial or religious prejudice," he said, "but on the contrary is clean, wholesome and elevating in tone and sentiment. It faithfully produces the manners and life and events belonging to certain periods of American history and is educational, moral and instructive."

Judge Ferguson said he had seen the photoplay produced in Atlantic City and did not recall anything in it that would be called objectionable. On the contrary, he said he found it interesting, and that while some negroes might criticise it because of their temperament, their judgment should not be the rule, as many spoken plays could be criticised by other races because of reflections on races and nationalities.

The decision of Judge Reed in Pittsburgh in which he restrained the police from stopping the production of "The Birth of a Nation," because the state censors had passed on it, was read to Judge Ferguson.

Argument on whether or not the preliminary injunction will be made permanent will be held at the end of the five-day period, for which the preliminary action is good, to determine whether the full six weeks' run of the picture will be permitted.

Although plans were made by negroes to make a demonstration during the production, the plans failed.

A group of negroes stood in front of the theater throughout the performance. One of their number, Abel P. Caldwell, secretary of the Civic Rights and Emancipation League, announced before the show opened that representatives of their organization were inside, prepared to get up and make a speech when the parts of the picture drama to which the negroes object were flashed on the screen.

A parade of protest planned also failed to materialize. But Caldwell said one will be held tomorrow night.

'BIRTH OF A NATION' IS HIGH-GRADE FILM ART

Revelation of Motion Camera's Possibilities Embodied in Stirring Picture Drama

HISTORY MADE VIVID

Turbulent Scenes of Civil War and Reconstruction Strikingly Presented

If fidelity to truth and universality of appeal constitute the fundamental basis of artistic permanency, "The Birth of a Nation," placed on view last night at the Forrest Theater, will survive for many generations. In this film the new art of motion pictures has instantaneously outgrown the petty molds which have constrained it for a score of years and has laid substantial claim to powers and possibilities which are solely its own.

The play, produced by D. W. Griffith, takes for its subject the period of travail during and following the civil war, out of which the United States of America truly became such. Upon slavery it hangs the burden of responsibility for the war and the inglorious period of reconstruction. And, while it pictures battles with startling fidelity and revels in heroic deeds, the play consistently urges the horrors and injustice of armed conflict.

Opening with a brief flash on the early importation of slaves the action of the piece moves rapidly past the first abolitionists to life in the south before the war. Here pick up the first threads of the plot. The Cameronds of the south and the Stonemans of the north are shown as schoolboy friends and prospective sweethearts. They are sundered by war. From this point the plot runs to a long-delayed but happy conclusion, while battle scenes, the surrender at Appomattox, the assassination of Lincoln, the disorganization of the south, with corruption of the government and the organization of the Ku Klux Klan follow in rapid succession. The piece closes with the promise of a reunited America.

More clearly than in any other product of the twenty-year-old motion-picture industry, this film shows the hand of a producer who recognized the peculiar powers of his art and restrained himself within their limits. In this respect it is one step in advance of any of the other big motion-picture products, either of this country or France. A more complete grasp of the art is shown here than in "Quo Vadis?" D'Annunzio's "Cabiria," "Les Miserables," or Griffith's own "Avenging Conscience."

The theme is big, and for its projection, pageantry has been skillfully added to pantomime, picturesque scene piled upon picturesque scene, with broad, powerful strokes. With what effectiveness this has been achieved is evidenced by the applause which greeted many of the magnificent pictures last night.

But while no material detail has been omitted, the real power of the piece lies in the artistic fidelity with which it has been executed and the grip which civil war scenes still have upon the memory of men.

An orchestra of near-symphony proportions gave a program which was perfectly in harmony with the action of the play. The old civil war melodies were the basis of the program, and the orchestration was well done.

Those who go to see the Griffith spectacle expecting some new, startling mechanical innovation will be disappointed. There are none. But this film, more than any other, holds the promise that the motion picture will take its place with printing as one of the most beneficent arts evolved by the human race.

meeting in its history, the Rev. Albert W. Palmer of Plymouth Congregational Church was the speaker. The Hon. George H. Woodson, Chairman of the Legal Committee of the Des Moines Branch, addressed the Quincy Branch at an important meeting held to discuss working conditions of colored people.

卐

PHOTO PLAYS AND BRANCHES

TWO branches have succeeded in prohibiting the exhibition of the photo-play, "The Birth of a Nation," Providence, R. I., and Gary, Ind. In Providence action was taken by the Police Commissioner who refused to license the production after he had seen it in Boston. In Gary, Ind., through the activity of the N. A. A. C. P. Local recently organized, of which Judge Dunn is President, both "The Birth of a Nation" and "The Nigger" were prohibited. In St. Louis the Police Department decided against "The Birth of a Nation," the opposition having been led by Miss Charlotte Rumbold, City Superintendent of Recreation. The agitation was begun at the suggestion of the St. Louis Branch of the N. A. A. C. P. Despite protests in Sacramento, Spokane, Tacoma, Portland and Seattle, the play is running in these cities without the elimination of any of the objectionable scenes. In Sacramento the agitation was carried on under the name of the Northern California Branch and greatly aided by the cooperation of Mr. C. K. McClathy of the Sacramento Bee, who, in addition to a long abstract from THE CRISIS, published a letter from the Oakland G. A. R. which scored the play in resolutions of protest. Governor Johnson also condemned the theme of the picture.

In Chicago the film was much modified and in Boston it was so changed as to be almost unintelligible, practically all of the worst rape scene having been cut out. Griffith, the producer, is quoted as having said that though he won in Boston he had ruined his film. In Chicago he is dissatisfied because children cannot see his play, all under twenty-one being excluded from the theatre.

PHILADELPHIA (Pa.) INQUIRER

SEP 8 1915

SEEK AGAIN TO BAN "BIRTH OF A NATION"

Objectors Will Ask to Have Certain Scenes Eliminated If Photoplay Is Not Suppressed

Several colored people visited Court of Common Pleas No. 3 yesterday morning for the purpose of protesting to Judge Ferguson because of his action in permitting the photoplay, "The Birth of a Nation," to be shown at the Forrest Theatre.

At the end of the preliminary injunction period the court stated either side might go before the Court of Common Pleas No. 4 and ask for the vacation or continuance of the injunction. The colored delegation awaited an hour for its counsel, M. Luther Nicholas. Before he put in an appearance Judge Ferguson had finished the day's calendar in his court.

The representatives of the colored people then visited Court of Common Pleas No. 4 and City Solicitor Ryan. The result of their visits was that on Wednesday or Thursday the delegation, with counsel, will appear before Judge Finletter in Court No. 4 and ask that the injunction be vacated and the police allowed to order the suppression of the picture.

They also purpose to ask for the elimination from the picture of certain alleged objectionable scenes if the picture, as a whole, is not enjoined or stopped by the police.

SEPT. 1, 1915
PORTLAND (Ore.) JOURNAL

FILM PROTEST MADE

Negroes Ask Arrest of Manager of Heilig Show.

"BIRTH OF NATION" STIRS

Judge Stevenson Refuses to Issue Warrant and Attorney for Colored Folk to Make Request in Circuit Court.

Action probably will be taken today by Attorney A. Walter Wolf in an effort to compel Municipal Judge Stevenson to issue a warrant for the arrest of the owners and managers of "The Birth of a Nation" the spectacular motion picture now showing at the Heilig Theater. Judge Stevenson refused yesterday to issue such a warrant.

Mr. Wolf, who represents Mrs. E. D. Cannady, secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of the Colored People, and other colored people of the city, said that if his clients still desired to push the matter he would take steps immediately today to have a writ of mandamus issued by the Circuit Court to compel Judge Stevenson to issue the warrant.

"The colored people," said Mr. Wolf, "think that the pictures should never have been passed by the censorship board on the ground that it is libelous to that race. The board put its official 'O. K.' on the film at a private performance last week after the presentation of the film had been protested both by the colored people and the members of the Grand Army of the Republic."

In explaining his reasons for refusing to issue the warrant Judge Stevenson said last night that he did not feel like taking any action after the picture had been passed by the censorship board, the regularly constituted body of the city to pass upon such subjects.

Judge Stevenson would not comment on the merits of the picture involved in the controversy.

CABLE ADDRESS CLIPSURO
CLIPPING FROM
Date .....

PROTEST IS DECLARED UNJUST

"Birth of Nation" Manager Says Historic Facts Portrayed.

Bart Bertelson, manager of "The Birth of a Nation" film, at the Heilig last night issued the following statement, in reply to the attempt of a delegation of colored citizens to have the owners of the film arrested and the showing of it halted:

"I can see no reason for the colored citizens seeking to stop the exhibition of this film, which has been shown in almost every large city in the country. Furthermore, the Portland Censor Board has passed the film. The film is based on history, from facts gleaned from a number of sources. Some of the situations have been legitimately but slightly overdrawn, as is done in many plays based on historical fact. The fact that some one or two in a big audience hissed is no criterion. There are hundreds of plays which call forth hisses and catcalls from some one or more in an audience, but such things are to be expected.

"Many authorities have viewed this film and pronounced it highly educational and extremely entertaining, to say nothing of its spectacular qualities. The evident trouble is that there were a few people who created a false and unfounded sentiment against the film before it came here, and before they themselves had seen it. It is an acknowledged fact that many people disagree with some histories that are used in the schools and say that some character or faction or phase of history is overdrawn or prejudicial. The thing is this film has made clear and emphasized some facts in history which could not be made clear by mere words. In view of the reception the film has received in many places, I think the action of the colored people is discriminatory and unfounded. What reason they can find for objecting to a film which has been passed by a board that is known to be more painstaking than the average censor board, neither I nor anyone else can see."

CLIPSURO (Mass.) NEWS
AUG. 31, 1915

320

TROUBLES OF THE "BIRTH OF A NATION"

Tickets go on sale tomorrow morning for the "Birth of a Nation" which will be seen at the Cummings theatre twice daily all next week. A legal permit for the Chicago production of the play was granted early in the spring by the then Mayor Carter Harrison and the Censor Board under his direction. Through political influence or otherwise this permit was subsequently "revoked" by the new Mayor William Hale Thompson and Police Chief Healey, immediately following the mayor's election. Joseph J. McCarthy, general manager of the production, then took the matter to the courts. His prayer for an injunction to restrain Mayor Thompson and Chief Healey from interfering, came before Judge William Fennimore Cooper of the Superior Court.

Much testimony was given and much argument adduced on both sides. The result of the court proceedings was a complete victory for "The Birth of a Nation." Judge Cooper said: "This ground that it will engender race animosity is based purely on an assumption. To find that this is a good objection to the allowing of the injunction, this court will have to assume that our white citizens will not know or appreciate the fact that the days as presented in the play were early in the first years of the last half century. This court will have to assume that they who will witness the play will be so stupid that they will be unable to comprehend that the people represented on the films were of two or three generations ago. And that they do not, and will not appreciate the fact that in the succeeding time the negro race has advanced almost immeasurably. This court is satisfied from the evidence that in this photoplay the good black man and the bad black man are equally prominent figures. No one race or nationality has greater rights under the law than any other has. Any race or nationality so offended can best give the lie to the bad characters as presented by continuing to conduct themselves as law-abiding citizens. I am obliged to find under the law and the evidence in this case that the complainant is entitled to the relief prayed for, and I will enter an injunction restraining the mayor, chief of police and the city of Chicago from interfering in the introduction of the play."

CABLE ADDRESS ...
IPPING FROM ION PICTURE NEWS (New York City)

AUG 1

Griffith Film in Spokane

Clemmer Theater Has Big Press of Ticket Buyers for "Birth of a Nation"—Canadian Censor on Hand to See Offering and Says He Has Seen No Greater Picture—Wishes Negro's Sunny Side Had Been Shown.

By S. Clark Pitcher, Spokane Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

WILLIAM CUTTS VISITS

AFTER considerable discussion before the city commissioners in session, Commissioner Samuel Glasgow, official censor for Spokane, Washington, came to witness the "Birth of a Nation" play which played a three weeks' engagement at the Clemmer theater. At least it played to capacity houses up to the time this article is being written. The seating capacity is 1,500. People were lined into the street to get tickets for the opening performance. Mr. Glasgow, upon his return from Seattle, July 31, said: "My observations and investigations in Seattle have proved to me that the local colored people are unduly excited over the coming of the picture, and have an unwarranted fear of the results it may have. One of the most objectionable scenes under the sub-title of Wild Claws of the Beast, a close-up facial view of a negro who is purse-proud, a white girl has been eliminated. This scene was not shown in Seattle and is not being shown in Spokane.

Dr. H. S. Clemmer advertises the show on the streets by having 10 young men on horseback, draped in white and the horses carry banners reading "The Birth of a Nation, being shown at the Clemmer."

Former Mayor W. J. Hindley, of Spokane, now pastor of the Central Congregational church of Winnipeg, Canada, who is acting as scout for the provincial motion picture censorship board of Manitoba, and has been delegated to take back a report on "The Birth of a Nation," based on Thomas Dixon's "The Clansman," witnessed the picture at the Clemmer. According to the Rev. Mr. Hindley, the Manitoba board is an active organization of five men who view every reel of pictures before they are shown publicly in the province.

Theater managers in the Canadian city are interested in the big spectacle and have asked Mr. Hindley to bring a report to them also, and on his decision, largely, depends the booking of the picture in western Canada. After seeing the picture he said:

"I have seen no greater picture that I recall. Its war scenes surpass those of 'The Battle of Gettysburg.' It is the biggest dramatic picture I have ever witnessed. It is unfortunate, however, that the sunny and prophetic side of the negro nature is not emphasized a little more to give better balance to the picture of the negro. It is decidedly luxurious in treatment.

"To the Manitoba board I will recommend the picture, and for the most part, I believe, will follow the National Board of Censors with my approval. I am in addition to the so-called scenes which the board has eliminated, I suggest that some of the close-ups of the degenerate negro be eliminated and a number of the subtitles be done away with. I understand many have been eliminated, but there are still a few that could better be dropped.

"There is a feeling in Canada against the showing of any film of a political character, especially during the war. I will take up the matter with my chief when I return to Winnipeg and the Battle of Gettysburg played to big houses. I believe 'The Birth of a Nation' will do the same, as it is especially applicable at this time, due to its portrayal of the horrors of war."

ST. LOUIS (Mo.) TIMES
AUG. 30, 1915

Foolhardy Meddling.

It is to be hoped that the court will place a quick and permanent quietus on the attempt of our self-constituted guardians to censor or prohibit the future presentation of the most stupendous achievement in the history of the silent drama. A permanent injunction to restrain any interference with "The Birth of a Nation" should be granted and enforced. Here is a picture that bears the stamp of approval of at least two of the greatest cities in the country, cities bigger and greater than St. Louis—and yet we have a lot of busy-bodies who would "butt in" and destroy one of the few successful theatrical ventures of the last few years. When certain parties ask themselves what is the matter with St. Louis, they might well turn around and answer, themselves. It is the picayunish policy of certain of our citizens of meddling with affairs in which they should have no concern.

St. Louis Argus

KEEP UP THE PROTEST

"The Birth of a Nation," the infamous photo-play which libels and humiliates our race, is here. How long it will continue to show we cannot, at the present writing, say. We doubt that this prejudice-ridden city can muster a strong enough sentiment to stop it.

We are glad to commend the efforts of Mayor Kiel and Prosecuting Attorney Sidener on our behalf. We are satisfied that each of these officials did what he could in the premises. A large delegation of representative Negroes waited upon them last Saturday and presented to each in turn a vigorous protest, clearly setting forth the evils of this insidious film and pointing out the dangers of its showing.

The Mayor convinced us of his inability, under existing statutes, to do anything, but pledged his influence, which he immediately exercised. Mr. Sidener promised to forbid the presentation under the threat of prosecution, and he immediately made good his promise.

Meantime, the film representatives secured a temporary injunction, and the production had its opening Sunday evening as scheduled. The Chief of Police sent a committee to witness the performance, both to be on guard against any possible disturbance and to report to him upon the character of the objectionable scenes. The case was to have been heard before Judge Kimmel Monday afternoon, but a continuance was asked until Wednesday. Wednesday saw another continuance.

There the matter stands, as we write. We are satisfied with our efforts so far. We feel that the officials above mentioned have done their best up to the present. We feel that our protest was justified and dignified. But by no means ought we to consider ourselves through.

Should the court decide against us and the injunction be made permanent, then what we have done should be considered only the beginning. Our protests should be continuous, firm and dignified. Our aim must be to create a sentiment so strong that the white people can see the justice of our position.

And further, should our protests and our agitation end in no immediate result and no apparent good, we must be broad enough and far-sighted enough to work for the uplift and advancement of the entire race—and not only for this day and generation, but for our posterity.

So the protest and agitation which we have begun we must continue.

OMAHA (Neb.) BEE
Sep 5 1915

BIRTH OF A NATION FILM BARRED HERE

Commissioner Telegraphs Production Alleged to Arouse Race Feeling is Not Wanted.

CONSIDERED FOR AUDITORIUM

Commissioner Butler, who has charge of the Auditorium, has wired Manager Franke, who is in the east not to book "The Birth of a Nation," a pretentious film production which has aroused the opposition of the National Association for the Advancement of the Colored People.

Rev. John Albert Williams made a personal appeal to the commissioner for the suppression of this moving picture show, and instructions immediately were wired to Manager Franke, who was considering booking the attraction for the Auditorium.

It is alleged that this film production arouses race feeling. Mrs. Carter Harrison is quoted as having said: "It is the most awful thing I have seen. It would create a bad feeling."

While a legitimate stage "The Birth of a Nation" has been produced, though discussion, it is stated, on account of its inflammatory character, it is stated, on account of its inflammatory character, prohibiting production of the film on account of its feeling.

Pittsburgh Chronicle Telegraph Sep 3/

COURT REFUSES TO STOP "BIRTH OF NATION" PICTURES

Injunction Restraining City Officials From Interfering Is Continued.

JUDGE HAD SEEN SHOW

State Censors Having Approved Film, He Refuses to Override Them.

The injunction granted last Monday restraining Mayor Joseph G. Armstrong and the city officials from interfering with the performance of "The Birth of a Nation," a moving picture drama now being exhibited at the Nixon Theater, was continued this morning following a hearing held by Judge Ambrose B. Reid.

The city officials, following a complaint made by negroes of the city, who objected to the picture being exhibited here on the ground that it might create race hatred and prejudice, ordered the theater management not to show the motion drama. A restraining order was then asked for, which was granted by the court.

Judge Reid, in continuing the injunction, declared that he was in sympathy with the motives of the negroes in objecting to the play, but declared that the law has placed the regulation of the moving pictures in the hands of a board of censors, and that it would not be prudent for the court to interfere with that body's operations. The stated board passed favorably upon the pictures in question and unless it could be shown that the board had failed to do its duty the court would not interpose, Judge Reid said.

(Continued on Page Four.)

COURT REFUSES TO STOP "BIRTH OF NATION" PICTURES

(Continued from Page One.)

The courtroom was crowded this morning, with a large proportion of negroes in the throng.

City Councilmen Enoch Rauh and W. Y. English, called as witnesses, testified that they were of the opinion that there were some portions of the film which might create racial prejudice and hatred and possibly a breach of the peace. There were some portions of the performance, they declared, which were edifying and exalted the negro race, and showed the wonderful advancement it has made since emancipation. Nevertheless they thought the preponderance of the scenes might have the effect of creating race hatred and prejudice.

Judge Reid Had Seen Picture.

Judge Reid himself witnessed the performance at the Nixon Theater and was well versed in the scenes to which objection was made. Men of prominence in the affairs of the city were called as witnesses for the theater management and they declared they were of the opinion that the motion drama was of a highly historical and educative nature, and that there was no cause for alarm that disorder would accompany the showing of the pictures. Under cross-examination they admitted that there were some portions which the negroes might object to, but they said history very often is distasteful. As a whole, however, the witnesses said, it gave a portrayal of the strides and advancements which the negro race has made since the Civil War.

The city authorities were represented by City Solicitor Charles A. O'Brien, Assistant City Solicitors Benjamin J. Jarrett and Peter Glick. The interests of the objectors were represented by Attorney R. L. Vann. Attorney George M. Shaw, of the firm of Reed, Smith, Shaw & McClay, represented the interests of the picture film and the theater management.

Thomas F. Kirk, the manager of the Nixon Theater, was the first witness called. He said that three performances of "The Birth of a Nation" already had been given and that they had not been accompanied by any disorder. He was followed by Howard Herrick, the business manager of the film company. He said the film had already been viewed by over 1,500,000 people from all portions of the United States. There have been protests at times, but he declared the picture has been passed upon favorably by every censor board before which it was exhibited. He exhibited the permit to show the film from the state board of censors and also that of the national board. Mr. Herrick said that nowhere has there been any trouble where the picture has been shown.

LONG BRANCH (N. J.) RECORD
AUG. 25, 1915

REFUSES TO SUPPRESS "BIRTH OF NATION"

Commissioner Arrowsmith Defends Photo-Play Following Reading of Protests.

D. W. Griffith's production of Thomas Dixon's famous story, "The Clansman," which is heralded as "The Birth of a Nation," to be exhibited at the Broadway Theatre, this city, has started a protest among the colored residents. A communication, credited to the officers, members and friends of Trinity A. M. E. Church, and signed by the pastor, Rev. J. Francis Vanderhorst, was read at this morning's meeting of the board of commissioners.

The communication was referred to the department of public safety. Commissioner Thomas V. Arrowsmith, head of the department, made immediate report, stating in part that the photo play referred to was a wonderful picture, and that he could see nothing objectionable in its production. Mr. Arrowsmith said he knew that the communication was forthcoming and had taken the trouble to see the photo play picture at Asbury Park and could discern nothing that showed the colored race as represented in the communication. There are only two characters portrayed of any import, he said, and they were far from being lustful or sinful. Mrs. Arrowsmith also referred to a temporary injunction issued yesterday by the Chancery Court against interfering with the reproduction of the photo play.

The communication read this morning is quoted in full, as is also another communication addressed to Commissioner Arrowsmith from residents of Eatontown follow:

The Trinity A. M. E. Protest

Trinity A. M. E. Church, Liberty Street,
Long Branch, N. J.
August 22, 1915.

To Commissioners of the City of Long Branch

Gentlemen:

We, the officers, members and friends of Trinity A. M. E. Church, most earnestly protest against the photo play, "The Birth of a Nation."

First—It pretends to be historical at least in the broad sense of the term, but one has to but study the least bit the facts it pretends to portray to find out how untrue they are. For example it states that the bringing of the African here was the beginning of disunion. But the fact is there was no Union even contemplated when the African first came. He came almost simultaneously with the "Pilgrim Fathers" and was as necessary to the Union as were the other elements in the country at that time.

Secondly—Its representation of slavery is false. It would give the impression that the South was doing the negro a favor by supporting him for a little work. While the truth is that the negro of the South was the only producer of staple products of that section of the country.

Third—It is totally one-sided in its representation of the civil war; it portrays only the Southern side. With its claim to be historical and educational these inaccuracies would make it a travesty on the name.

But, sirs, far out weighing the historical objection are moral ones ample in our opinion, to justify its suppression on the ground that it tends to corrupt public morals. First, this photo-play is a well-studied plan to create in this country race hate and to fasten ill feeling among the people wherever the negro lives. It attempts to show that as a race the negro is a moral inebriate, filled with one everreaning passion, and that is lust for the white woman. Whether it is the lowest in society represented by Gus the renegade or the highest in society represented by the educated Lieut.-Governor Silas Lynch the desire is the same.

Sir, you must know the reign of terror that would ensure for the negro if the white men in this country become convinced that this was true, and who can say that they will not if young men whose minds and ideals are still in the making, to say nothing of the little children, are brought continually under the influence of the wonderful but wicked pictures. One's blood grows cold as we think o the rivers of blood that will be shed in our fairland if this baneful thing serves its awful purpose.

And, finally: It is a glorification of mob law. The Klu-Klux Klan was simply a well organized mob. Is there not enough of lynching already in this country without inculcating it into the minds of the youths of this fair land? This play seems to tell to our young American boys and girls that it took this hideous monster the Klu-Klux Klan to preserve Anglo-Saxon civilization in the South. It will not take such reasoning of this kinds to convince them that this method is necessary to preserve it today.

Mr. Frances Hacket, the theatrical critic of the New Republic, Boston, says in his issue of March 20th, "that the film is aggressively vicious and defamatory. It is spiritual assassination. It degrades the censors that passed it and the white race that endures it. It was with curiosity that I accepted the invitation of the editor of one of our leading religious weekly papers to be present and give my judgment on the performance. The performance is misnamed, it should be called 'The Assassination of a Race'."

The venerable Frank B. Sanborn of Concord, the last of the group of New England abolitionists that included William Lloyd Garrison and Wendall Phillips, said that it was an assassination of history and protested against it. Hon Joseph C. Manning of Alabama, Republican political leader, a native Southerner and also his people before him, declares that the film was a gross libel on the colored people in its insinuations against their Morality, and that the "Birth of a Nation" will mean the birth of hell and damnation in this country, if it is permitted to continue.

The Public Ledger of Philadelphia condemns the photo play "The Birth of a Nation." It says in part: "The decision of the city commissioners of Atlantic City to suppress the photo play 'The Birth of a Nation' looks like common sense. However costly the production may have been, now being multiplied endlessly over the country, it is well known that it was planned by and based on the works of a man whose partisan and passionate descriptions of American life belong to the perversions of history rather than to that fair and candid treatment of a controversial period that all sections should strive for etc."

The white Boston churches oppose "The Birth of a Nation. At a meeting of the directors of the Federation of churches of Greater Boston of which the Rev. Alexander Mann is president the following resolution in part: "Voted that the directors of Federation of churches of Greater Boston express in the strongest terms their disapproval of the photo play 'The Birth of a Nation,' considering it contrary to good public policy and in every broad sense of the term, injurious to public morality, and, they trust that some way will be found to prevent its futher production."

The congregational ministers (white) of Boston petition the Governor to stop the play. The petition in part: "Therefore be it resolved that we, the Boston Congregational Ministers meeting hereby earnestly petition his excellency, the Governor of the Commonwealth, to take such action as is necessary in the interest of true democracy, justice and morality to discontinue its presentation, etc."

Sirs, in conclusion would say that "The Birth of a Nation is a misnomor, it does not tell anything about the birth of any nation. It might better be called an "Attempt to Justify the South." It misleads by its title of historical drama. "Many people not knowing the history of the country will be misled." A Jew said, "If the negroes were that bad then they ought to be disfranchised."

The purpose is clearly to justify the South in its prejudice. It is clearly to cloud the issue to make it appear that negroes seek to marry white. It stirs up hate, race hate, sectional hate. No one can look upon the distorted features of the young white Camerson girl as she curses the North without having his passion aroused. It glorifies murder and ponders lynching. No people can long applaud the lynching of Gus by Klu-Klux without thirsting for real blood of a Leo Frank.

This nation cannot afford to encourage lynching in any form. The Birth of a Nation" is perversion of history; it is an attempt to make a lie the truth, to make black white. It exalts murder. While the Klu-Klux Klan were a band of outlaws, it makes them a band of high purposed Christian Crusaders.

It justifies their murder and violence by saying they were "over-awing the negroes. It is immoral, any play which idealizes out laws makes people applaud murder, is unfit for the people. "The Birth of a Nation" is conceived in sin and born in iniquity in order to pander to the sectionalism of the South, in order to promote race hatred in the North. It should be suppressed for decency's sake.

Yours for law and order and righteousness

J. FRANCIS VANDERHORST, Pastor.

The Eatontown Protest

To the Hon. — — Arrowsmith,
Commissioner of Public Safety and
To the Hon. Board of Commissioners,

Gentlemen:—

We, your petitioners, residents of Eatontown, an adjacent township to Long Branch beg leave to set forth as follows:

That we are advised, informed and have reasons to believe, that a certain photo play or moving picture display, called the "Birth of a Nation," is advertised for exhibition at the Broadway Theatre—a place of public resort in Long Branch purporting to be a scene from the so-called days of construction in the Southern states of the American Republic.

From all information at hand, reports and a perusal of the daily papers in reference to said photo-play "The Birth of a Nation," we believe that its exhibition is inicable to the welfare of the colored member of this and adjoining communities, who constitute an appreciable portion of the population of this section of Monmouth county.

Therefore—We, your petitioners as aforesaid, for reasons hereinafter set forth, beg that said Broadway Theatre be prevented from giving the exhibition, heretofore described, to wit: "The Birth of a Nation because:—

One.—Its exhibition is a source of needless humiliation to the colored people of the community, who have done no act or thing, to bring upon themselves this additional indignity, while the exhibition, aforesaid, will serve no useful purpose in the community.

Two.—Because the exhibition purporting to be an authentic historical photo play is fatally in error, in that it paints the negro as a rapist, a despoiler of feminine (Caucasian) virtue, and as a source of continual danger. While as a matter of fact you gentlemen know, by contact, and experience, that vice, immorality and dishonesty are not evils, peculiar to the Negro alone, and hence any effort to thus array him is, to say the least, contrary to historical facts, and to human nature.

Three.—Because said exhibition will produce race friction. You gentlemen are aware that at best no two races, one a manumitted, and the other born free, can easily dwell together without race friction; and anything that will contribute to said friction is a thing to be avoided. Therefore we ask that this pressure be not put upon a condition that is already through no fault or desire of either party not productive of that harmonious relation that must be maintained if the best relations are to be preserved. The above named photo play or moving picture, "The Birth of a Nation" will cause race friction.

Because past exhibitions of said "Birth of a Nation" has produced race antagonism, and in some cases serious riots have resulted. And you gentlemen, charged with the peace safety, and hapiness, not only of the community in which you serve, but indirectly to the communities with which you come in touch, can not afford to contribute to a breach of the peace in permitting the exhibition, performance or otherwise publicly displaying or doing things that experience has shown to be productive of disorder, lawlessness or other breaches of the peace.

Because—The negro in this community is endeavoring to show his worth as a part of this great state New Jersey, and by reason of his frugality, industry and efforts at education and mental and civis betterment, should be encouraged to bring to the surface the [illegible] that is in him and should not be handicapped, humiliated, injured, hurt, and otherwise abused by publicly exhibiting him as a rapist, murderer and a menace to society.

Six.—Because the exhibition heretofore named—to wit, "The Birth of a Nation," portraying the brutal, revengeful, blood thirsty characters of said photo play wil re-act upon the minds of the audience, assemblage and others who may be at said exhibition and feelings and passions, which should be conquered by culture and education, may be inflamed which will find expression in deeds of violence to the hurt, not only of the citizens but to the fair name of the community and the said state of New Jersey.

The Leo Frank case i. Georgia gives a fair sample of what to expect, when the sober judgment of men is dethroned by passion and when the eyes only to see through the vista of hate.

Your petitioners having presented to this honorable board its petition, and the reasons upon which the request is based—any one of which is weighty and good and sufficient cause for the granting thereof—begs the honorable board to use all diligence in preventing this traversy upon a large portion of the citizens and tax payers of this community.

Realizing and knowing that you are jointly and severally interested in the preservation of those amicable relations that has hitherto followed your administration of the affairs of the City of Long Branch, and being assured that you will do all that you can in the performance of your duty and give justice to all men who make up the citizenship of your balliwick we in advance subscribe ourselves

Your grateful servants and fellow citizens.

THE COLORED PEOPLE OF EATONTOWN, N. J.,
Per Rev. Wm. L. Rhodes.

AUGUST 29, 1915.
St. Louis Post Dispatch

POLICE ENJOINED FROM STOPPING FILM PRODUCTION

"Birth of Nation" Producers Also Get Temporary Order Against Prosecutor.

A temporary injunction was granted by Circuit Judge Kimmel, at 10 o'clock last night, in his rooms at the Washington Hotel, to restrain the police and Prosecuting Attorney Sidener from interfering with the film production of "The Birth of a Nation," scheduled to open a five week's run at the Olympic Theater tonight.

Judge Kimmel said he would hear arguments at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, to determine whether the injunction should be made permanent. His action insures the giving of tonight's performance, which Sidener had threatened to prevent.

Sidener's Plans Blocked.

Sidener announced yesterday afternoon that he would do everything in his power to prevent the production, as he believed it contained scenes which misrepresent the negro race, and which would tend to arouse race antagonism and consequent disturbances. He said his attention had been called to the matter by committees of negroes, and a committee from the Civic League. He said he would issue a warrant charging conspiracy against the public welfare, or against the public morals, every time the producers showed the film.

Following this announcement, the producers, the Epoch Producing Co., applied for the temporary injunction, through Attorneys Leahy, Saunders & Barth and D. W. Voyles. The petition for an injunction stated that efforts to prevent it elsewhere have been unsuccessful, and that there has been a large expenditure of money in preparation for the St. Louis engagement. The prices announced are from 25 cents to $2.

Officials to See Show.

It is expected that Judge Kimmel, Mayor Kiel, members of the police morality squad, and Sidener or a representative of his office, will be at tonight's performance. They cannot stop it tonight, under the court's order, but they can get arguments for or against its continuance.

A fight was made on the production in Boston, and another in Chicago, which gave the show more publicity than an army of agents could have done. The [illegible] of Pittsburg is now trying [illegible] film from [illegible] abandoned.

CABLE ADDRESS
IPPING FROM ION PICTURE

Sun Sep 3

COURT DECISION FAVORS "BIRTH OF A NATION"

Injunction Restraining Mayor From Stopping Presentation of Film Continued.

NEGROES ATTEND HEARING

The injunction granted last Monday restraining Mayor Joseph G. Armstrong and the city officials from interfering with the performance of "The Birth of a Nation," a moving picture drama now being exhibited at the Nixon Theater, was continued this morning following a hearing held by Judge Ambrose B. Reid.

The city officials, following a complaint made by negroes of the city, who objected to the pictures being exhibited here on the ground that it might create racial hatred and prejudice, ordered the theater management not to show the motion drama. A restraining order was then asked for and was granted by the court.

Judge Reid, in continuing the injunction, declared that he was in sympathy with the motives of the negroes of this city in objecting to the play, but declared that the law has placed the regulation of the moving pictures in the hands of a board of censors, and that it would not be prudent for the court to interfere with its operations.

The state board has passed favorably upon the pictures and unless it could be shown that the board has failed to do its duty the court would not interpose. This was not done, Jdge Reid said.

COURT ROOM CROWDED.

The court room was crowded this morning, a large proportion of those present being negroes. City Councilmen Enochtauh and W. Y. English were called as witnesses and they declared that they were of the opinion that there were some portions of the film which might create racial prejudice and hatred and possibly a breach of the peace.

There were some portions of the performance, they declared, which were edifying and exalted the negro race, and showed the wonderful advancement it has made since emancipation. Nevertheless, they though the preponderance of the scenes might have the effect of creating racial hatred and prejudice.

Judge Reid himself witnessed the performance in the Nixon Theater and was well versed in the scenes to which the negroes objected.

COURT DECISION FAVORS "BIRTH OF A NATION."

(Continued From Page One.)

by City Solicitor Charles A. O'Brien, Assistant City Solicitors Benjamin J. Jarrett and Peter Glick. The interest of the negroes were represented by Attorney R. L. Vann, a negro member of the bar. Attorney George E. Shaw of the firm of Reed, Smith, Shaw & Beal represented the owners of the picture film and the theater management.

Pittsburgh Leader Sep 3

"BIRTH OF A NATION" INJUNCTION CONTINUED

the hearing in the case of the ...on theater, seeking an injunction ...ainst Mayor Joseph G. Armstrong, ...estraining him from prohibiting the exhibition of "The Birth of a Nation," a motion picture being shown at the Nixon theater, the injunction was continued indefinitely today.

A temporary restraining order was granted earlier in the week.

...ER ASKS POLICE BAR ...RTH OF NATION" FILM

...ing an investigation by How...er, prosecuting attorney, of ...roduction, "The Birth of a ...ich is to be shown at the ...ater next week, he has no... Police Department that it is ...terest of public welfare to pro... production.

...tations were made by a dele... from the Civic League and dele... of negroes that the film might ...disturbance of the peace and ...in any way represent the ...cter of the negro today.

St. Louis Argus Sep 3

PUBLIC PROTEST AGAINST "THE BIRTH OF A NATION."

St. Louis Federation of Colored Women's Clubs and Mothers' Congress Hold Meeting at Central Baptist Church August 30

To the Fair-Minded Public:

Whereas, there is being shown a photo-play entitled, "The Birth of a Nation," said play having been booked to run five weeks, beginning August 29, and

Whereas, we believe the production of the play in the city of St. Louis will be detrimental to peace and harmony between the white and negro races, and,

Whereas, the play deals with times and scenes that belong to the happily forgotten past, and portrays the negro in a biased and unfair light, therefore be it,

Resolved, That we do earnestly add our protest to that of many other good citizens against the production of the play, and hereby call upon the proper authorities to prevent the same.

Philadelphia, (Pa.) Public Ledger

Date .....

"THE BIRTH OF A NATION"

Its Press Representative Makes Reply to Two Recent Condemnatory Letters

To the Editor of Public Ledger:

Sir—In the PUBLIC LEDGER of September 9 two letters are published attacking our production, "The Birth of a Nation." One signed "A Reader" makes the untruthful statement that we are charging 25 cents for the picture in California and $2 for it in Philadelphia. Our prices in California when we presented the picture there ranged from 25 cents to $1.50. The Philadelphia prices are the same as these, except that we charge $2 for the loge seats at the night performances. These have been sold out at every performance so far. The remainder of this letter is a personal opinion of the man who wrote it. Against his jaundiced criticism we willingly stand upon the approval of 2,000,000 patrons of the production who have made it the greatest piece of property on the American stage.

Your other letter, by "M. W.," of Darling, Pa., is more interesting because of its antecedents. We have been reading this familiar style of wail for so many months we can smell it 90 miles off. The only surprise is that the great PUBLIC LEDGER pays any attention to a letter from a contributor who admits he is sure a thing is developing hatred and prejudice in him. In this connection, I believe, "M. W." makes use of that familiar phrase, "Christian forbearance." The two do not jibe very well. The whole tone of the letter has a familiar sound. It is part of the propaganda put forth by the intermarriage crowd, which began last March in New York. They have been distributing this stuff through the country ever since. They are so impoverished of truths and cleverness, however, that they are unable to conceal the taint of propaganda that sticks to all of it.

THEODORE MITCHELL,
General Press Representative.

Philadelphia, September 10, 1915.

"BIRTH OF NATION" BANNED BY MAYOR

His Honor Refuses to Permit Exhibition of Famous Film in This City.

"The Birth of a Nation," the moving picture which has been featured in Boston the past three months, and which has caused much comment, may not be shown in Lowell.

That decision was reached by Mayor Dennis J. Murphy yesterday morning in a conference with Manager Ben E. Pickett of the B. F. Keith Theatre. Manager Pickett had secured an option on the picture for the week of October 4, and contracts were to be signed as soon as permission for exhibition of the picture was obtained.

Yesterday Mayor Murphy stated that he would not approve of any exhibition of it in this city, considering it to be prejudicial to the colored race.

(Continued on Page Four.)

COLORED MEN HISS "BIRTH OF NATION"

Nine Ejected from Playhouse and Three Arrested—Plenty of Police on Hand.

Nine colored men were ejected from the Forrest Theater last night when they hissed certain parts of the picture play, "The Birth of a Nation." Three of the men afterwards were arrested upon the orders of police Captain Tempest, who charged them with having disturbed the peace. There was little or no excitement in the theater when the men were taken out by detectives.

Those arrested had seats in the last row on the left side of the house and were accompanied to the theater by an equal number who sat in the last row on the right side while a few had taken seats in the gallery. When the trouble began and the detectives and plain clothes men scattered through the audience closed in on those on the left side of the house their friends kept very quiet.

Early in the evening Captain Tempest was notified that certain colored men might make trouble and so he stationed twenty-five uniformed patrolmen outside the house, while Lieutenant of Detectives Theodore Wood was inside the theater with thirty picked men from the Detective Bureau. When the colored men began to hiss each was grabbed by a detective, pulled over the back of the last aisle and hurried from the theater. When the detectives and their prisoners reached the street the uniformed men, under Captain Tempest, kept them moving and refused to allow any speeches, which some of the men seemed to think they should deliver.

The trouble came in the second episode of the play. The formation of the Ku Klux Klan had just been shown when the hissing started. The rest of the audience applauded. While the colored men did not seem to know it a detective was standing behind each one. At a signal from Lieutenant Wood, Detective Souder grabbed the ringleader, and Dick Doyle took the man next to him. Detectives Frank O'Conner, Benz, Sullivan and eight or ten others, took a man each just as every light in the house was turned on.

The trouble inside the theater was not unexpected by the police. Earlier in the evening about forty or fifty men had tried to parade from Broad and Lombard Streets to the theater. The parade was stopped by the police, and then the men continued to the theater on the sidewalk, in a less spectacular manner.

Those arrested described themselves as Lazarus Lewis, thirty-eight years old, of 634 South Sixteenth Street; Richard Williams, thirty-four, of 516 Morton Avenue, and Herbert Hocutt, thirty-four, of 516 Merion Avenue.

"There isn't one commendable Negro character depicted in the play. There isn't a single incident in the play where a colored man is shown in a creditable light. There are a few slides with announcements concerning the progress the colored race has made in the south and in the country generally since the war, but these slides are apart from the play and were put in there apparently with the hope of taking some of the sting out of the play. The play itself, which we are protesting against shows the Negro to be utterly, unredeemably bad. It showed the Negro soldiers of the south to be riotous rapists. Why it even pictures the white officers of the North as 'Northern skalawags' which is an insult to the brave men from this part of the country who went down there to fight for the honor of the nation.

Ku Klux Klan as Heroes.

"The play shows the Ku Klux Klan as the heroes, when as a matter of fact proven by history the members of this gang were law breakers and murderers."

The delegation which visited the mayor comprised Attorney Wilson, Attorney Jourdain, the Rev. Frank E. Ramsdell, the Rev. W. S. MacIntire, the Rev. John Mason, the Rev. Dennis Scott, the Rev. D. O. Walker, Attorney I. C. Dade, J. R. Barreau and William C. Parker. Attorney Thomas A. Cunniff entered the mayor's office with the delegation, but withdrew a few minutes later. Mr. Cunniff registered his protest against allowing the performance of the play before he departed, it was said.

During the conference, the Rev. W. S. MacIntire submitted to the mayor the following statement in writing:

"The exhibition of the 'Birth of a Nation' in any community will brutalize the people by scenes of wholesale human slaughter. It will leave the impression on the minds of those who see it that the very best specimen of a Negro is a betrayer of his best friend and a rapist, creating a strong race prejudice. It contains the virus of moral degeneracy."

A number of affidavits made by men both white and colored, of nation-wide reputation at the time efforts were being made to suppress the production of the play in Boston and since then were offered to the mayor by Attorney Wilson.

NEW BEDFORD (Mass.) TIMES
AUG. 23, 1915

STRONG PROTEST MADE AGAINST BIRTH OF NATION

Delegation Has Extended Conference With Mayor

Overwhelming him with affidavits setting forth that the photoplay "The Birth of a Nation" which was given its first public performance in this city this afternoon at the Orpheum theatre, is "a propaganda intended to create a feeling of abhorence toward negroes," a play "intended to corrupt public morals" and "an attempt to depict the colored race as being made up of fiendish moral perverts," a delegation comprising several of the leading colored citizens of the city, three white clergymen and two white lawyers, presented a vigorous protest to Mayor Hathaway this morning against the production of the play in this city.

For more than two hours the delegation engrossed the mayor in his private office, while several city officials who wanted an audience with the mayor on official business were forced to wait in the outer office and in some instances had to abandon their plans for a conference until this afternoon.

The delegation of protestants, headed by Butler R. Wilson of Boston, a colored attorney at law, who was invited to come here to lead the fight of protest against the picture, entered the mayor's office at 10:10 o'clock and it was 12:15 when the members of the delegation filed out.

What effect, if any, their arguments which were poured into his honor's ear fast and furiously, had, could not be learned today as the mayor found more than a half dozen callers, including Senator Andrew P. Doyle, Chief of Police Allen, City Solicitor Woodward, City Engineer Nye, Councilman Parker and some others waiting for him when the conference ended and had to give his attention to them.

Will Consider Protest.

Members of the delegation stated that the mayor said he would take their protest under advisement, but they did not appear to be very much encouraged with the prospect of the play being shut off. It was stated in the corridor of the municipal building after the opponents of the play had departed that it was not likely that there would be any official interference with the play unless it should develop that its production did actually incite riotous scenes in or about the theatre, which is not likely.

The mayor could not find the time today to prepare any statement concerning the protest he heard this morning.

A very favorable report on the much mooted film was presented to the mayor this morning By Alderman Clifton W. Bartlett, a member of a committee of seven designated by Mayor Hathaway yesterday afternoon to go to the Orpheum theatre to witness a private performance of the play.

This performance was arranged on a half hour's notice yesterday for the mayor and representatives of the colored residents of this city, but his honor having a previous engagement which he could not cancel on so short a notice appointed a committee to represent him there and to report to him on the general character of the film and on the possibility of its production for a week here resulting in the creation of race prejudice here.

Favorable Report.

Beside Alderman Bartlett, Clifford Terry, Charles Davis, L. Rodman Doane, Thomas R. Marsh, William Stitt and Lieut. Geoffrey Bartlett, a nephew of Alderman Bartlett, served on this committee and the report made to the mayor was that there was nothing in the picture to which any fair or reasonable minded person could take offence or offer objection.

Nearly all of the members of the delegation which went to the city hall today to offer their voices in protest against the allowance of public performances of the picture, witnessed the private performance of the play yesterday. They saw it from a different angle apparently.

"It is a mess of historical lies showing the Negro as a loathsome character," said E. B. Jourdain, a local colored attorney, this morning after the conference in the mayor's office and he continued, "it should not be allowed to be shown in public performances in this city.

LAND (Ore.) TELEGRAM
SEPT 4, 1915

DR. BOYD ON BIRTH OF NATION

Will Point Out What He Believes Inaccuracies of Photoplay at Heilig.

The Rev. John H. Boyd, D. D., pastor of the First Presbyterian church, corner of Twelfth and Alder streets, has announced that he will preach on Sunday evening at 7:45 o'clock on "The Real Facts Concerning the Reconstruction Period" as against the idea portrayed in "The Birth of a Nation."

Dr. Boyd grew up in the reconstruction period in the South. He was a page in the legislature of Mississippi when the majority of its members could neither read nor write. After witnessing the wonderful production in picture of "The Birth of a Nation," he feels it his duty to present the real history of those stirring times, as he knew it from intimate touch and acquaintance. He will consider what he believes misleading features of "The Birth of a Nation." All who have seen this remarkable production have been urged to hear Dr. Boyd's address, so that some of the exaggerations and false impressions it produces may be corrected.

Patriotic music has been selected to accompany this sermon in a service of more than ordinary meaning and interest.

According to a long established custom, on the first Sunday afternoon of the month, a band of singers from the San Grael society of Christian Endeavor of the First Presbyterian church of this city will go out to the Good Samaritan hospital today at 3 o'clock to sing favorite songs to the sick patients there. A committee is responsible for this service, but each week volunteers join in this effort to make the day brighter for those who are shut in by illness and misfortune.

Program for morning service: Prelude, "Eclogue" (Parker); anthem, "Still, Still With Thee" (Burdett), by the quartet; contralto solo, "Open to Me the Gates" (Bischoff), Mrs. Miller; organ postlude, "Adagio" (Rinck), Mr. Coursen.

Program for the evening service: Organ prelude, "Church Chimes" (Harriss), played by E. E. Coursen; anthem, "The Lord Is My Rock" (Rogers); patriotic response, "Now Pray We for Our Country" (Fisher); quartet, "To Thee, O Country" (Eichberg); postlude, "Largo" (Wiest).

PORTER PUTS BAN UPON 'BIRTH OF NATION' FILM

Director Asserts the Pictures Will Engender Racial Prejudices

HEEDS NEGRO PROTEST

Court Decision in Pittsburgh Accepts State Censor's Approval of Spectacle

Director Porter announced last night that he had instructed Superintendent of Police Robinson to prevent the showing of the film play, "Birth of a Nation," in the Forrest Theater tonight. The director took this action after a committee of negro citizens had called on him and stated that certain parts of the film engendered racial prejudices.

What action will [illegible] taken by the managers could not be ascertained last night, as their attorney, former Judge James Gay Gordon, was out of the city. They will confer with him on his return today.

A court decision rendered in Pittsburgh, dealing with the same picture, covers the circumstances which have arisen here. Judge Ambrose B. Reid, of the court of common pleas of Allegheny county, made permanent an injunction granted on Monday restraining Mayor Armstrong, of Pittsburgh, from interfering with the performance of the photoplay at the Nixon theater in that city. Judge Reid's opinion follows, in part:

"The legislature has, in its wisdom, established a state board of censors to control and direct the presentation of moving pictures. It is a body established by law, and unless it has acted fraudulently or from improper motives, its decision is entitled to respect and we must support it. In the case at bar, the evidence discloses that the 'Birth of a Nation' has been approved by the state board of censors, and no attempt has been made to say it was improperly approved. The result is that the burden is on those who oppose it to show that it tends to cause a breach of peace.

"In my opinion, it has not been shown that such a result is at all probable because the concensus of opinion seems to be and the fact proved that it has not produced a breach of peace, although exhibits have been made before more than 1,500,000 persons. The picture, to a great extent, presents scenes that are undoubtedly historical and many of them are uplifting."

This is the fifth time that the courts have enjoined mayors and other city officials from interfering with the production. The other instances were in Chicago, Los Angeles and Atlantic City.

Director Porter said he was opposed to any exhibition of the film here because he believed it would stir race feeling in the city. The committee of negro citizens who called on him to protest against the exhibition included Abel P. Caldwell and Charles F. White.

"In Atlantic City," said Director Porter, "I viewed the 'Birth of a Nation' in July. I saw the photoplay at the request of J. Lewis Breitinger, chairman of the board of Pennsylvania censors. The production is a wonderful one, but there is no question but it has a tendency to engender racial prejudices. We do not want any bad feeling stirred up between the white and colored people of Philadelphia, and I shall use every means in my power to prevent the film being shown."

EW BEDFORD (Mass.) MERCURY
AUG. 23, 1915

"THE STILL-BIRTH OF A PROTEST MEETING"

Scheduled Speakers Saw Presentation of Picture-Play While People Waited In Vain.

What might be entitled "The Still-Birth of a Protest Meeting," took place in the Bethel A. M. E. church yesterday afternoon.

It had been announced that a meeting to protest against the exhibition in this city of the picture-play "The Birth of a Nation," would be held in the church at 2:30 o'clock, and that there would be an invocation by the pastor, several speeches, and probably the appointment of a committee to voice a protest.

A Mercury reporter, who allowed the meeting a few minutes leeway in getting started, arrived at 2:40 and found eight people inside and two on the doorstep. The record of arrivals and departures subsequent to that time is as follows, the charted curve reaching the highest point at 4 o'clock when there was a total audience of 27:

2:40—Eight inside; two outside.
2:50—Twenty-four.
4:00—Twenty-seven.
4:05—Two went out.
4:06—One went out.
4:10—One came in.
4:12—Whole family, numbering five, went out, and one woman came in; net loss, four.

At 4:22, a girl who had departed, returned with a message which was quickly spread about the building, to the effect that the pastor, Rev. D. Ormond Walker, and the scheduled speakers, had gone to a private exhibition of "The Birth of a Nation," to see for themselves just how bad it was, and were still at the theatre.

Thereupon everybody went home, though not without several expressions of indignation that no notice of the speakers' intended investigations had been given the people who had wasted an hour in waiting for them.

SPRINGFIELD (Mass.) REPUBLICAN
AUG. 27, 1915

MAYOR IS FIRM ON "BIRTH OF NATION"

Letter from Admirer Commends Stand; Fight in Illinois.

Although efforts have been made to have Mayor Stacy change his attitude in regard to showing the motion picture, "The Birth of a Nation," in this city, he is standing firm in his resolution to prohibit its exhibition.

He received a letter today from one who signs himself as an admirer, in which the writer says he understood that influences had been used to swing the Mayor over. He said the Mayor's views were sensible and that if he should allow the picture to be shown here, the colored people of the city would be worked up to a high pitch and without a doubt a riot would ensue.

He then goes on to say that the only person who would really benefit by the showing of the picture in this city is a certain real estate man, not named, and who the writer alleges is not a voter in this city. He closes by saying he has no fear the Mayor will change his views on the picture.

It is understood that the picture is to be shown in Holyoke and its reception there will be watched with interest in this city.

A state-wide fight is being waged against the picture in Illinois by the department commander of the G. A. R. in that State. G. A. R. officers in this city could not be reached today so that their position on the picture could not be learned.

A resolution has been drawn up by the department commander of Illinois and copies have been sent to the posts throughout that State and its adoption urged.

Three reasons for not allowing the picture appear in the resolution. The first is that it is unfair to the Union soldiers. It alleges that the picture contains slanderous representations as to the soldiers who fought to preserve the Union and caricatures the history of the war.

The second reason is that is represents the Ku Klux Klan as a society of patriotic and chivalrous men. The third is that its whole influence is to excite and intensify hatred of the Negro and to perpetuate sectional bitterness.

PROTEST THE PHOTOPLAY

Colored Residents Ask Mayor Bartlett to Bar "Birth of a Nation"

Protesting against the pictures, "The Birth of a Nation," a committee of colored residents of the city sent a communication to the city council this forenoon asking that no permission be given for the photoplay to be shown in this city. Arrangements have been made by the management of the Colonial theatre to show the pictures Labor day week.

The communication, which is signed by Rev. William I. Cousins, William H. Grundy, Thomas J. Whiting and William M. Bailey, is as follows:

"To His Honor Mayor Albert L. Bartlett and the Honorable City Council—We, the colored citizens of Haverhill, many of us having lived in this city for 30 years, with the best of feeling and relation existing between the white and colored citizens, having no record of any brutal crime being committed upon any woman of any race:

"We, therefore, having been informed that the much discussed play known as 'The Birth of a Nation,' which has caused so much friction between the races, is booked to appear in the city of Haverhill early in September. Now, as loyal law-abiding citizens of Haverhill, we earnestly petition to you that no play be allowed to appear before the public that will mar the good feeling which is now existing between the races, especially the play which is entitled 'The Birth of a Nation.' Please give this your immediate consideration."

Mayor Bartlett said that he had witnessed the play and that it did not contain any features that he thought would be objectionable to the colored people.

Alderman Hoyt also said that he had witnessed it and could see nothing objectionable. Word had been received from the management of the Colonial that, if after the people had seen the opening performance and there should be anything objectionable, it would be cut out.

The communication was referred to Alderman Hoyt to answer, explaining the fact that some objectionable features had been cut out and giving the council's idea of the performance.

ber said. "I made up my mind that if I ever got a chance to see you I would kiss you."

HAS NOT CHANGED MIND.

Mayor Will Not Permit "Birth of the Nation" to Be Shown Here.

Mayor Stacy this morning received a communication signed, "one of your admirers," in which the writer stated that it has been rumored that the mayor has changed his mind with regard to permitting the film, "The Birth of the Nation," to be exhibited in Springfield. The writer protested that the mayor had taken the right attitude in the first place in putting a ban on the film and he argued against a change of decision on the part of the mayor. As a matter of fact, the mayor states that he has not altered his position in the matter in the slightest. He will never allow the film to be exhibited here.

[illegible] REPULSED BY TURKS.

lieved, have taken no steps as yet in their own behalf, preferring to let the committee make the first move.

BAN STILL ON MOTION PICTURE

Col Hayes Says "Birth of Nation" Cannot Be Shown in State Armory

"The Birth of a Nation" will not be shown at the state armory, promised Col William C. Hayes last night. "There is no possibility of it," he said. "An attempt was made several months ago to secure the building for this purpose and at various occasions since. It will not be permitted."

Earlier in the day the rumor reached the ears of Mayor Stacy that an attempt was to be made to evade his ban on the showing of the photoplay in the city by showing it in the armory, which, as the property of the state, is not under his jurisdiction. The mayor did not retract, but promised that if such an attempt should be made it would mean a fight. Furthermore, he did not believe that Col Hayes would [illegible] such action.

NEW YORK PRESS

Date .....

"BIRTH OF A NATION" WINS

Justice Shearn Dissolves Injunction Involving Seventeen States.

"The Birth of a Nation," the motion picture film based on Thomas Dixon's "The Clansman," won another legal victory yesterday, when Justice Shearn of the Supreme Court dissolved a temporary injunction obtained by George H. Davis, a California theatrical manager, which restrained the Epoch Producing Company, which controls the film, from exhibiting it in seventeen Western States.

Davis has brought suit for violation of an alleged contract which gave him exclusive right to exhibit the film in these States. He asserts the Epoch company sold the Oregon rights to the picture for $8,000, although he was willing to pay $20,000. The producing company asserts that Davis failed to give bond to insure against the manufacture of duplicate films, and therefore [illegible] no contract [illegible] of Chic[illegible] he was perfectly willi[illegible] that [illegible] portions designated by the mayor and [illegible] the court proceedings were abandoned. [illegible] the de[illegible]

NEW YORK MAIL

Date .....

"BIRTH OF NATION" AGAIN BEATS SUIT

Again "The Birth of a Nation" is in the throes of legal complications. At practically every turn the Griffith film has met with some sort of opposition, necessitating a battle in the court before the picture could be shown.

Now George H. Davis, of San Francisco, is attempting to restrain the Griffith company from disposing of the western rights to the picture to any other person than himself. Griffith gained his first point in the case yesterday when Supreme Court Justice Clarence J. Shearn, in Special Term, Part I., refused the injunction.

Walter N. Seligsberg, attorney for Griffith, appeared for the defendant and was able to show that Mr. Davis held no contract with his company, and it was upon these representations that Justice Shearn [illegible] injunction. Davis was [illegible] $100,000 for the rights [illegible] to be shown [illegible] to maint[illegible]

Public Ledger Phil Sep 9

HISTORY UNDER FALSE PRETENSES

To the Editor of Public Ledger:

Sir—Your editorial page is, as a rule, fair and constructive. I'm wondering whether or not you've seen the "Birth of a Nation" playing here after being produced on the Pacific coast at 25 cents for the best seat and $2 here for the best seat.

It could more properly be called the "Death of the Negro," for of all the travesties on history and tawdry slapstick falsities—except for a few mitigating features, one of which was the, as usual, splendid work of Henry Warthall—this over-advertised film is the worst that I've sat through. It has the effrontery to exploit a crazy-brained ex-actor (sometime a clumsy spy for the Confederate army) and the murder of our most sombre and human Chief Executive. Most certainly the most lurid bacchanalian scenes that our Board of Censors has—and no doubt properly—declared unshowable can in no way compare with the main theme of this film.

It purports to be history. It isn't anything of the sort. It is false pretense from the start. And it's a mighty bad thing for women to witness. The Frank case would be a far more legitimate story to film. As photography it is superb, though decidedly trick photography in most of the conflagration scenes. As an epic—well, go see it.

A READER.

Philadelphia, September 8, 1915.

Phil. Inquirer Sep 9

FILM PROTEST CONTINUES

Colored Organizations Plan to Invoke Mayor's Aid

Representing colored organizations, a joint committe through Counsel plans to complain to Mayor Blankenburg under the Act of 1913 and ask him to exercise his vested authority to restrain the exhibition at the Forrest Theatre of the photo-play entitled "The Birth of a Nation."

The present injunction was had before the play had been actually exhibited in Philadelphia and the present move is designed under the act as a protest against it as an actual play. Under the act of 1913 the Mayor is empowered upon the receipt of written complaint and a hearing system thereon to take upon himself the responsibility of exercising the police powers to prohibit any production of the kind against which there has been public protest and continuation of which threatens "to be hurtful to the community at large."

Phil. Inquirer Sep 9

FILM PROTEST CONTINUES

Colored Organizations Plan to Invoke Mayor's Aid

Representing colored organizations, a joint committe through Counsel plans to complain to Mayor Blankenburg under the Act of 1913 and ask him to exercise his vested authority to restrain the exhibition at the Forrest Theatre of the photo-play entitled "The Birth of a Nation."

The present injunction was had before the play had been actually exhibited in Philadelphia and the present move is designed under the act as a protest against it as an actual play. Under the act of 1913 the Mayor is empowered upon the receipt of written complaint and a hearing system thereon to take upon himself the responsibility of exercising the police powers to prohibit any production of the kind against which there has been public protest and continuation of which threatens "to be hurtful to the community at large."

ST. LOUIS (Mo.) GLOBE-DEMOCRAT
AUG. 30, 1915

CHIEF, OTHER CITY OFFICIALS WITNESS BIRTH OF A NATION

Policemen in Audience, No Disorder Occurs—Few Negroes Present.

Chief of Police William Young and several other city officials were present last night at the opening performance of the film play, The Birth of a Nation, at the Olympic Theater. [redacted] were shown without police interference because of a temporary injunction granted Friday night by Circuit Judge Kinnel, which prevented action by the police. Prosecuting Attorney Sidener had announced that the production of the pictures would not be allowed.

Chief Young went to see the play for the purpose of deciding on whether it might be called objectionable. Ten plain clothes men were in the theater to prevent any disturbance, but the production [illegible] was given before a crowded house, [illegible] smoothly. There were only a [illegible] Negroes in the gallery.

[illegible] legitimate, is based on Thomas Dixon's [illegible] "The Clansman," which deals with [illegible] of the South immediately [illegible]

[illegible] suit against [illegible] said [illegible] could [illegible]

HAVERHILL (Mass.) GAZETTE
SEPT. 8, 1915

and received.

EARNEST PLEA FOR NEGRO.

Former Local Preacher Writes on "Birth of a Nation"

Rev. Clifford L. Miller of the Union Congregational church, Newport, R. I., formerly pastor of Zion church in this city, has written the following letter, of protest to the Gazette on "The Birth of a Nation:"

"After seven years of profitable and pleasant association with the white people of Haverhill, convinced of their love of justice and fair play, I appeal to all who have and will see "The Birth of a Nation" to discriminate between the false and true, so as not to be embittered by a race slandered.

"The Birth of a Nation" is a wonderful triumph of technical skill. No American filmplay is comparable to it in beauty and power to stir deep emotions. It is unfortunate, however, that D. W. Griffith, the producer, did not use his skill to higher ends than glorifying the south of reconstruction time. No good is accomplished, of historical value, for the north, the south and the negro all made mistakes that we of the present can only try to repair.

"It goes without saying that Haverhill's thoughtful and intelligent citizens will constantly bear in mind Dixon's avowed object to Ralph Colleigh, assistant editor of The Congregationalist, in writing "The Clansman," on which "The Birth of a Nation" is based, is to arouse popular sentiment to drive the negro out of America. Mr. Dixon is no impartial historian. Prof. Albert Bushnell Hart of Harvard characterizes Dixon's portrayal as a traversity on history. Dixon is a negro-hater of such uncompromising terms that has given his black fancy the widest range in picturing the negro as a brute and a menace to civilization.

"Little wonder then that the negroes are as one man fighting and protesting against the play everywhere shown. We resent Dixon's subtle slander of a whole race striving in the face of many difficulties to forge our way to the front. While the negro lost his heroic fight in Boston, he has won in St. Louis, Atlantic City, Springfield, Newport and other places.

"While censorship of plays is a dangerous experiment, the race would be false to our American ideals of democracy if it did not raise a voice of protest to anything that widens the gulf between races. It is high time Americans learn from the great battle of Europe the perils of fanning the flames of racial hate. The soul of a black man is like the responsive soul of a white man, who loves too deeply his race to behold her shortcomings as a delectable entertainment.

"I wonder at the hardness of heart and lack of sympathy of that white, who cannot understand why any negro can take exception to any of the scenes of the film. Would any race enjoy behiding the worst characters of any period of its development caricatured, maligned and slandered?

"The play I did endure patiently—for I stayed through—lovingly, for I did nothing violent, but the thought that another race could enjoy so well what was at my race's expense moved me to tears as was screened our progress, while our protests have, in many cases, done nothing more than swell the receipts of unscrupulous managers of theatres.

"As so many of our thoughtless and ignorant and prejudiced citizens love to patronize the sensational, I trust the best citizens of Haverhill, not in the name of ten million blacks, who feel as I feel, they will not let this play brand their souls with hate. The voice of outraged humanity cries out in the city where the poet of humanity fought against the power of money and prejudice.

"White friends, think not for one moment that the negro is dreaming in terms of intermarriage. His dream is not of a black empire in Africa or black supremacy at our own doors. But his dream is of a far day when justice and humanity shall be the good of all our democracy's strivings.

"Our interest in "The Birth of a Nation" is only as it inspires us to translate our lives into blessing of the nation. The negro is here to join you hand and heart to work for the common goal."

NEW YORK COMMERCIAL
Date .....

[illegible] new dances and new thrills to the eight scenes of life in Bagdad.

Supreme Court Justice Clarence J. Shearn, yesterday refused the application of George H. Davis of San Francisco, for an injunction restraining the Epoch Producing Corporation, from disposing of the western rights to "The Birth of a Nation" to any other persons than himself. It was shown that Manager Davis held no contract with his company. It was upon these representations that Justice Shearn held that an injunction could not issue. The action grew out of an effort on Davis' part to insist upon the owners of "The Birth of a Nation" selling to him for $100,000, the right to produce the picture drama west of the Mississippi.

(Continued on Page four)

Trade Union News Philadelphia Pa. Sep 9

Allied Trades Unions Vote Indorsement For "Birth of a Nation"

Spectacular Marvel is Accorded Approval by Union Labor

EDUCATION WINNING

Organized trades bodies have accorded to the American historical spectacle "The Birth of a Nation," now presented at the Forrest Theatre, in this city, unqualified approval.

In resolutions adopted by authoritative representatives of labor, the film play, which is now the ruling theatrical sensation, is declared to be a production for mental elevation as well as spectacular entertainment and intelligent objection is entered against interference with this work of art.

This historic drama has received the plaudits of American audiences in many theatres.

In three States the highest judicial tribunals have supported the legitimacy of the production and dissolved injunctions brought against the enterprise by designing persons.

Verdict of Committee

The production has been viewed by a committee of these allied bodies and found to be one of the most interesting spectacles that has ever been offered upon the stage of a Philadelphia theatre.

Educationally, morally and artistically it comprehends the ideals of the drama and associates history with romance in a manner which inculcates the highest aims and teaches forcefully the great lesson of brotherly love triumphing over injustice and evil doing. The subject is treated upon the broad scope of national good and the lesson it teaches is so graphically portrayed that only the most prejudiced of witnesses could see aught but good in it all.

Indorsement Is Voted By Allied Trades Union

(Continued from page 1)

There is nothing indecent or immoral in it and the claim that it could possibly inspire a feeling of racial prejudice is not based upon the facts in the case.

Organized Labor Employed

It is also found that the producers of this great spectacle are furnishing employment to a larger number of trades union men affiliated with the mechanical branch of the theatre industries than any attraction on tour this seaosn.

Associates now employed with the companies playing half a dozen other cities of the country state that there has never been any disturbances over the presentations of the picture and they report only words of praise for everything connected with it.

They present assurance that the management of the production has been uniformly fair to them in the matter of individual treatment.

Times are not overly propitious in the theatrical business and the allied labor interests of Philadelphia in behalf of nearly 100,000 workingmen affiliated with the mechanical branches of the art earnestly protest against any movement that would suppress this work, which has been widely received with highest commendations.

American People Best Judges

Labor representatives add the assurance that the American people are the best judges of what is good and moral entertainment and are unalterably opposed to any un-American movement that seeks the suppression of a work of art that answers to all the requirements of the law as to decency and morality.

(Mass.) TELEGRAM
SEPT. 7, 1915

Hit by pitcher—Kennan, O'Neil, Dawson. Struck out—By Shanahan 6, by Spinney 4. Time—2h10m. Umpire—Cuthbert.

BIRTH OF A NATION BARRED

Mayor Newhall Refuses to Let Big Film Play Be Shown Here

Mayor George H. Newhall has put the ban upon "The Birth of the Nation" in Lynn. No local theatre will be allowed to show this film drama. The mayor has given his orders to the police, and the police will see to it that the drama is not produced here.

Local theatre managers who had a line on the famous show do not relish the mayor's interference. Though the mayor's dictum went forth some while ago, news of the stand taken by him did not leak out until today, when patrons of the theatres who had been told the famous play would come here demanded to know when.

Mayor Newhall failed to give any reasons why the play should not be allowed in this city. Police Inspector B. Frank Wright, who has charge of theatres as agent for the board of control, when asked about the play today said his orders were to stop it and that he would [illegible] [illegible] influence the [illegible] of the [illegible] were offered [illegible] Mayor by Attorney [illegible] Wilson.

AUGUST 28, 1915
St. Louis Republic

CENSORS TO VIEW 'BIRTH OF A NATION'

Mayor and "Morality Squad" to Determine if Negroes' Objection to Film is Just.

Following a conference yesterday by Mayor Kiel and Prosecuting Attorney Sidener relating to the protest filed by a delegation of 40 negroes against the exhibition next week in the Olympic Theater of a motion-picture film entitled "The Birth of a Nation," the Mayor decided to attend the first display to-morrow night. He then will determine whether he will take action to stop the exhibition.

Sidener instructed Detectives Chrisner and Campbell of the "morality squad" to attend the first performance and report to him Monday whether the scenes depicted are objectionable.

The protest is signed by many negroes, by Roger Baldwin of the Civic League and Gustavus Tuckerman of the City Club, the Prosecuting Attorney said.

The Mayor and Prosecuting Attorney requested the managers of the exhibition to eliminate the scenes objected to by the negroes. The showmen refused.

The Mayor suggested that a private exhibition of the films be made to-day for city officials. This also was refused.

Rabbi Samuel Sale said he attended a performance of the films in Chicago on the invitation of an official committee appointed to report whether the exhibition should be stopped. [illegible] approved an adverse report, he said.

Philadelphia, (Pa.) Public Ledger

Date ..... SEP 1 1915 .....

Negroes to Produce Own "Birth of a Nation"

It develops that the colored citizens who are not satisfied with the representations of their forefathers as shown in Griffith's spectacle, "The Birth of a Nation," have decided to answer that production with one of their own in which the development of the race will be worked out in a dramatic scenario. The better element of the colored race have decided to spend no further time in protesting the Griffith production and are agreed that a far more effective answer to the representations of the Griffith story can be secured by devoting all their attention to making their own picture a success. With this end in view, James Scott, private secretary to Booker T. Washington, has been in conference with Henry I. MacMahon, the Eastern representative of Thomas H. Ince, the celebrated motion picture director. An elaborate scenario has been worked out showing the early sufferings of the negro slaves, the trials they went through in the first years of their freedom and then showing the wonderful progress that enlightened colored citizens have made in the past half century. Griffith's film drama only shows the terrors of the reconstruction period, when the freedmen were just emerging from slavery. It is the purpose of the leaders of the colored population of the country to stand behind the new picture when it is completed and see that it secures the widespread publicity and attention that has been devoted to the Griffith production.

INGFIELD, MASS. EVE. UNION
AUG 20 1915

MAYOR IS FIRM ON "BIRTH OF NATION"

Letter from Admirer Commends Stand; Fight in Illinois.

Although efforts have been made to have Mayor Stacy change his attitude in regard to showing the motion picture, "The Birth of a Nation," in this city, he is standing firm in his resolution to prohibit its exhibition.

He received a letter today from one who signs himself as an admirer, in which the writer says he understood that influences had been used to swing the Mayor over. He said the Mayor's views were sensible and that if he should allow the picture to be shown here, the colored people of the city would be worked up to a high pitch and without a doubt a riot would ensue.

He then goes on to say that the only person who would really benefit by the showing of the picture in this city is a certain real estate man, not named, and who the writer alleges is not a voter in this city. He closes by saying he has no fear the Mayor will change his views on the picture.

It is understood that the picture is to be shown in Holyoke and its reception there will be watched with interest in this city.

A state-wide fight is being waged against the picture in Illinois by the department commander of the G. A. R. in that State. G. A. R. officers in this city could not be reached today so that their position on the picture could not be learned.

A resolution has been drawn up by the department commander of Illinois and copies have been sent to the posts throughout that State and its adoption urged.

Three reasons for not allowing the picture appear in the resolution. The first is that it is unfair to the Union soldiers. It alleges that the picture contains slanderous representations as to the soldiers who fought to preserve the Union and caricatures the history of the war.

The second reason is that it represents the Ku Klux Klan as a society of patriotic and chivalrous men. The third is that its whole influence is to incite and intensify hatred of the negro and to perpetuate sectional bitterness.

U. S. Govt. Statement April 1st, 1915, Sworn to Average Sunday Circulation for Six Months, 157,908. We Challenge Comparison

The Philadelphia PRESS

SUNDAY MARCH 21 1915

Sport News | Auto News Up to the Minute

PENN FALLS VICTIM TO MIDDIES, 3-0

DESCRIBES NEW POWER PLANT FOR ELECTRICS

MOVE TO ABOLISH TOLL GATES ON LANCASTER PIKE

SAYS DEALERS GIVE TOO MUCH FOR USED CARS

WILLYS KEEN ON SPORTS FOR MEN

TAKING CARE OF STORAGE BATTERY

Clipping from
The Philadelphia Press
9/8 1915

Compliments of H. B. Cunningham

6 PRETTIEST GIRLS NOT IN THIS LOT

Theater Manager Looking for Pulchritudinous Ushers Has His Own Troubles.

There must be something wrong with the looking glasses in Philadelphia. Even Mr. J. S. McSween admits it.

Mr. McSween is manager of the Chestnut Street Opera House, and is trying to assemble the six prettiest girls he can find and make of them ushers when the Opera House opens with the Triangle film plays. He advertised very plainly what he wanted; the six prettiest girls.

Yesterday was about the third test day. Probably 150 girls were in the lobby, waiting. They had read the qualifications; they knew they had to be pretty.

Mr. McSween did see a few of them for particular examination, but the majority he simply gave the once-over, and waved them away with "That's all for to-day."

Honestly, most of them either read a negative into the one called for tribute or else they fooled themselves worse than any mere man ever could. It is enough to say they were not pretty; it would be manifestly unfair to go into details.

Mr. McSween says he got about eight from whom he hoped to make a choice, but he feared some of them might be under twenty-one, and the State law won't let a girl any younger work at night. He shame-facedly admitted that he forget to ask their ages. On the side, though, one of his assistants said he didn't have the nerve.

There may be another day for try-outs. Mr. McSween said that the wages would be considerably more than most usher girls make in playhouses, and he felt that he ought to draw better material then he has been getting.

"If we could only attract the idle rich some way," he sighed. "That's where Philadelphia's pretty girls are."

MOTION PICTURE NEWS (New York City)

OAKLAND MAYOR BACKS DOWN AFTER BANNING "NATION"

Oakland, Cal., was given a bitter taste of censorship in its worst form recently, when Mayor Davie peremptorily closed the Macdonough theatre to prevent the exhibition of "The Birth of a Nation." This act of the chief executive of the city was entirely unexpected, and was all the more surprising when it is realized that this production recently enjoyed a run of several weeks there without interference, and for fifteen consecutive weeks was shown in San Francisco.

Immediately following the closing of the house the theatre management took steps to secure an injunction to restrain the authorities from further interference, and on the following day an action was commenced in Judge Waste's court. However, these steps were scarcely necessary as City Attorney Morf was on hand to see the judge.

"I am afraid the mayor made a mistake," apologized the representative of the mayor. "It certainly looks like it," announced Judge Waste. It was announced on behalf of the chief executive that he had merely intended to have eliminated from the films certain features that he considered objectionable, and that his orders had been taken too literally.

The manager of the show stated that he was perfectly willing to eliminate the portions designated by the mayor and the court proceedings were abandoned.

CONTINUE FIGHT ON "BIRTH OF A NATION"

Delegations representing the colored people who are protesting against the exhibition of "The Birth of a Nation," the photoplay now running in this city, will appear to-day or to-morrow before Judge Finletter, in Court of Common Pleas No. 4, and ask that the injunction protecting the production be vacated. They will also ask that certain portions of the picture, which the colored people allege are objectionable and an affront to their race, be eliminated in case the injunction permitting no interference by the police with the show is not vacated.

A delegation yesterday visited Judge Ferguson's court and protested against the judicial action in permitting the photoplay to be given. However, as their counsel, M. Luther Nicholas, did not appear, the representatives of colored residents decided to let the matter go over until to-day or to-morrow.

'BIRTH OF NATION' VICTORIOUS AGAIN

Picture May Be Shown in Seventeen Western States Where Injunction Barred It.

A CALIFORNIAN WANTED IT

Supreme Court Justice Shearn yesterday dissolved a temporary injunction obtained by George H. Davis, of California, a theatrical manager, against the Epoch Producing Company, which is in partnership with the Rev. Thomas Dixon, author of "The Clansman," in the motion picture rights of "The Birth of a Nation."

The temporary injunction forbade the defendant from exhibiting the picture in seventeen Western States.

The plaintiff sued the Epoch Producing Company for specific performance of an alleged contract giving him the right exclusively, so he claimed, to exhibit the films in the seventeen States. The papers in the case show that no formal contract was ever signed, but that conversations in California were held last June between Davis and David W. Griffith of the producing company.

According to the plaintiff, the film company sold to another company the right to produce the picture in Portland, Ore., for $8,000, while he, Davis, was on the way East to sign the contract. Despite the fact that Oregon was one of the seventeen States Davis says he was willing to pay the original price agreed upon.

The Producing Company refused to sign the contract, however, and in its answer to the complaint alleges that Davis had failed to meet one of the terms stipulated by the defendant company in that he had not consented to give bond to insure against the manufacture of duplicate films from the company's original pictures. The company alleges that, while it might appear to the lay mind that duplication of films in the seventeen States which it was proposed to cover by the contract would interest Davis only, the owners of the film were vitally parties at interest, because of the possible effect upon its reputation of any inferior duplicate films that might be put on the market.

Justice Shearn ruled that the question whether or not a contract had been made would have to be determined at the trial of the case.

PITTSBURG (Pa.) GAZETTE-TIMES
AUG. 31, 1915

Court Permits Showing Of "The Birth of a Nation"

Judge Ambrose B. Reid Grants Nixon Theater a Temporary Injunction.

Judge Ambrose B. Reid yesterday afternoon granted a temporary injunction in favor of the Nixon Theater Company in its bill of equity filed earlier in the day seeking to restrain Mayor Joseph G. Armstrong and Superintendent of Police W. Noble Matthews from interference with the display of the moving picture, "The Birth of a Nation." Judge Reid set Friday morning as a time for the hearing on the permanent injunction. The theater will be permitted to show the films pending the decision of the court.

Attorney George Shaw appeared for the company and read the bill in equity. The bill set forth that the action of the Mayor in prohibiting the display is arbitrary and that the film has been passed and approved both by the Pennsylvania State Board of Censorship and the National Board. The plaintiff also contends that the play does not engender prejudice and cites a list of cities where it has been shown without any race feeling arising.

City Solicitor Charles A. O'Brien appeared for the Mayor and made a brief outline of defense. In addition to setting the date for the hearing the court ordered the theater company to give bond in the sum of $500 for protection against what Solicitor O'Brien termed "possible violence by display of the race-prejudice picture."

The theater company advertised that it would display the film for six weeks, beginning September 1. The Mayor and Superintendent of Police then notified the company that such display would not be permitted.

AUG. 31, 1915
PITTSBURGH (Pa.) DISPATCH

SCORES POINT ON MAYOR

Nixon Theater May Begin the "Birth" Film Run

A temporary order restraining Mayor Armstrong from stopping the performances of the film, "The Birth of a Nation," was granted yesterday afternoon in Common Pleas Court by Judge A B Reid. A bill in equity was filed by the Nixon Theater praying for an injunction to prevent the Mayor stopping the picture, which is scheduled for a six weeks' run here, beginning tomorrow. Attorney George Shaw appeared for the theater and City Solicitor C A O'Brien for the Mayor.

Attorney Shaw read his bill in equity, which states that the picture has been passed by the State and National Boards of Censorship and that it does not incite racial prejudice. Solicitor O'Brien made a brief outline of defense and Judge Reid thereupon set Friday morning as the date for a hearing on the injunction proceedings. The Court ordered the theater company to give $500 bond for protection against what Solicitor O'Brien termed "possible violence by the display of the race-prejudice picture," and permission was then given the theater to show the film pending the decision of the Court. The theater's action was prompted by a declaration of the Mayor that the picture would not be permitted.

WON'T ENJOIN "NATION" FILM.

California Man Fails in Suit for Western Rights.

Supreme Court Justice Shearn in Special Term refused yesterday the application of George H. Davis of San Francisco for an injunction restaining the Epoch Producing Corporation from disposing of the Western rights to "The Birth of a Nation" to any other persons than [illegible] Walter N. Seligsberg was attorney for the Griffith film.

The action grew out of an effort on Davis's part to insist that owners of "The Birth of a Nation" sell to him for $100,000 the rights to produce the picture in several States west of the Mississippi River.

Triumph of the Film In "Birth of a Nation"

Brilliant, Luminous, Resplendent Spectacle Attracts Appreciative Thousands

ALL PHILADELPHIA IMPRESSED

THRILLS for every act, American excitement for all patriotic sentiment, picturesque precept for vital enlightenment are among the distinguishing qualities of "The Birth of a Nation," the reigning sensation of Philadelphia.

This film recalls the period of civil strife, with its mingling of horror and heroism, as no amount of reading ever could. The waste and devastation, the maddening terror, the futile agony caused by the red plague of war is depicted with grim fidelity.

In convincing detail, such campaigns as Sherman's march through Georgia to the sea, and Grant's "hammering" before Petersburg, are portrayed.

After viewing the masses of cavalry, artillery and infantry in the grapple of battle, it is easy to accept the assertion of the producer, D. W. Griffith, that 18,000 men and 3,000 horses were employed in the staging of this vast drama.

Grant and Lee at Appomattox, Lincoln, with his Cabinet, the murder of the President in Ford's Theatre, the mother pleading with "the great heart" to spare her son—all are pictured with convincing realism.

Throughout the film runs the story, adapted from Thomas Dixon's "The Clansman," of a Southern officer's love for the daughter of an unscrupulous Northern Senator.

This romantic element is interesting; but it is of secondary import in comparison with the great conflict which serves as its background.

Of special interest is the revelation of conditions in the home of old Doctor Cameron, a Southerner, two of whose sons are killed in battle.

The anguish of a sorrowing mother and sisters is depicted with an insistence that would arouse the emotions of the most calloused.

When beholding these scenes one is made to realize that the "glory" of war produced duplicates in thousands of American homes half a century ago, and is at this time actually causing them to be re-enacted in millions of other households in almost every civilized land save our own.

After the war scenes which dominate the first act of the play comes a revelation of the humiliating period of reconstruction, when the South, robbed of the kindly power of Lincoln, lay prostrate in a state bordering on anarchy.

Detestable work of the carpet baggers, who urged colored freedmen to seize the reins of local government, only to abuse their new privileges, is shown in a series of powerful situations.

This is followed by the efforts of the men of the South to emerge from such an era of crime and chaos, the organization of the Ku-Klux Klan, and the final readjustment leading the stricken land again into the ways of prosperity and peace.

If it were nothing else, "The Birth of a Nation" would be a grimly effective sermon against war.

It is also an ingeniously wrought melodrama of compelling interest, built on a scale hitherto unattempted.

It is an [illegible] entertainment of tremendous satisfaction with an outside accompaniment.

The one thing that impresses most is the mighty perfection of the battle scenes.

The sweep and the detail, the immensity of the action and perfection of each part, are marvelous.

Depiction of war scenes is extraordinary. By progressing from rushing guerrilla skirmishes at Piedmont to the devastating descent of Sherman on Atlanta, and finally to the rebel charges and defeat on the cannon-swept plains of Petersburg, battle reaches a terrific climax.

First part of the picture is war in the large, impressive and moving in the grander sense, the second is made melodramatic and exciting by the rides of the Ku-Klux Klan to save various whites from the perils of Reconstruction.

Triumph of the Film In "Birth of a Nation"

(Continued from page 6)

There is used every ounce of the screen's power to fling out rapid, racing action.

And to this melodrama is added some beautiful striking views of the white riders assembling in broad fields, charging down long, still roads, curving over hills at sunrise.

These are only a few examples of the admirable wedding of excitement and beauty which are features of the play.

There are other perfections.

To name only one example of one of these the photography picks out the difference of atmospheric light between a northern town and the leaf-flecked warmness of South Carolina.

Music and some skillful off-stage sounds add a thrill, sometimes of recollection, sometimes of reality.

The play is welcomed in this city as the auspicious feature of a continuous record of deserved success.

No theatrical entertainment in recent years has caused as wide-spread interest as has "The Birth of a Nation," that master-work of the foremost motion picture producer, David W. Griffith, now at the Forrest Theatre.

The large playhouse has been crowded at each of the two daily presentations during the past week and at the first showing of the film in this city on Saturday night of last week there was a record attendance for the film, not surpassed at any opening in any other city.

The lobby of the Forrest has had a line of purchasers of tickets during all the time that the box-office is open during the day and at night and apparently the picture is even more popular here than in New York or Boston where crowds have not ceased to clamor for seats.

No one is disappointed in "The Birth of a Nation."

No detail has been slighted to make for perfect projection of the story that gives visually so complete and accurate an idea of the stress and of the upheavals that were essential to the cementing of the States of the Union into an indissoluble nation.

And with it all there is a splendid romance, with love triumphant but with many heart-burnings until the two families, estranged by the ruthlessness of war, had come again to peace and happiness.

[illegible] story is founded upon "The [illegible]an" by the Rev. Thomas Dixon and [illegible] the telling of the tale one sees, as though actually happening, historic events of the greatest moment. Lincoln lives again on the screen but he is shot down too by the deluded Southerner, Booth.

Lee and Grant are seen at the moment of surrender of the Confederate army and there are wonderful battle scenes and marvelous pictures of Sherman's march to the sea and of the gruesome Ku-Klux Klan days in Reconstruction times.

Each incident is emphasized with selected, and played by a symphony selected and played by a symphony orchestra.

Further, the worth of the picture is in the realistic acting of a notable cast headed by that foremost player for the screen, Henry B. Walthall, and with fine character actors, lovely girls and thousands of men and women, in settings richly beautiful or strikingly effective.

"The Birth of a Nation" is epoch-making.

PHILADELPHIA, (PA.) PRESS

Date SEP 2 - 1915

"BIRTH OF A NATION" WINS IN PITTSBURGH

Word has reached the local headquarters of D. W. Griffith from Pittsburgh that an injunction had been granted to the representatives of "The Birth of a Nation" against Mayor Armstrong and the chief of police of Pittsburgh, restraining them from prohibiting the opening of the big spectacle at the Nixon Theater to-night.

Mayor Armstrong received a delegation Friday, and late Saturday served notice upon the manager of "The Birth of a Nation" and Manager Kirk, of the Nixon Theater, that he would suppress the spectacle. Neither the Mayor nor chief of police had seen the picture production. When this fact was made clear to the Court, an injunction was issued immediately.

This makes the fifth legal move the owners of the big picture have had to undertake to secure their rights. In each case they have been successful in getting injunctions, which permit them to continue their presentations. These injunctions have been granted in Los Angeles, St. Louis, New Jersey, Chicago and Pittsburgh.

At present "The Birth of a Nation" continues to draw huge crowds at the Nixon Theater in Atlantic City, where many Philadelphians at the shore are enjoying the picture spectacle.

NEW YORK (N.Y.) GLOBE

An injunction has been granted the representatives of "The Birth of a Nation" against Mayor Armstrong and the chief of police of Pittsburgh restraining them from prohibiting the opening of the big spectacle at the Nixon Theatre to-morrow night. Mayor Armstrong received a delegation of Negroes on Friday, and next day he served notice upon the manager of "The Birth of a Nation" and also Manager Kirk of the Nixon Theatre that he would suppress the spectacle. Neither the mayor nor chief of police had seen the picture, and when this fact was made clear to the court an injunction was issued immediately.

A. C. COMMISSIONERS LOSE

At Trenton, N. J., August 24, Chancellor Walker upheld the Epoch Producing Company, owners of the Birth of a Nation, and the Esplanade Amusement Company, owners of the New Nixon Theater in Atlantic City, where the film was being exhibited, against Atlantic City Commissioners, who sought to close the show. They were permanently enjoined from interfering with the exhibition.

. LOUIS (Mo.) REPUBLIC
SEPT. 12, 1915

ECLARES FILM OFFENSIVE

ty Counselor Files Answer in "The Birth of a Nation" Case.

Charles H. Daues, City Counselor, yesterday filed an answer in "The Birth of the Nation" injunction case in Circuit Judge Hennings' court.

Daues says the film, which is being shown at the Olympic Theater, is unjust and unfair and calculated to arouse prejudice and hatred against negroes.

He cites a series of incidents in the production which, he alleges, are particularly offensive. Among these is one where the negro Lieutenant Governor of South Carolina attempts to force a white girl to marry him, and another where a negro pursues a white girl with the intention of attacking her.

Arguments in the suit will be heard Wednesday.

A CONTRIBUTORY EVIL

We expected our protest against that infamous photo-play, "The Birth of a Nation," to be followed by the tricks of the law. We expected, as we said at the time of the protest, that subterfuges would be found or made to nullify that protest and allow the production to run out its engagement. We expected that the libelous film-story would fan the flames of prejudice and hatred that were already burning and threatening to destroy us.

But we did not look for that contributory evil which is adding fuel to the flames, in the shape of a pamphlet called "The Home Defender," and which is being distributed to the hundreds of spectators at every performance. This is another of the Satanic moves of that diabolical collection of race-killers and city-breakers known as "The Welfare League." Welfare, indeed! They are aiming for the welfare of their own pockets, at the expense of the citizenship and honor of a great city.

In the prairie fires, they fight the fire WITH fire. Herein is a lesson for us. Let us study the plans and note the weapons of the enemy, and then fight them with their own weapons and along their own lines of campaign. Are the children of darkness always to be wiser in their day and generation than the children of light?

O Negro citizens of America, and of St. Louis in particular, awake! Too long have you been asleep. Arouse to a sense of your danger. Be everlastingly on the watch. The devil and his cohorts never sleep. It is ETERNAL vigilance that is the price of liberty.

Sep 17

Sat. Sep 11 15

A MOVIE THAT LIES.

No moving picture ever excited so much attention and comment as "The Birth of a Nation." Viewed from the standpoint of "movie" art, it is the premier of film productions. It is a pity, however, that so much money should have been expended upon a picture which insults the intelligence of the American nation and flings falsehood and libel in the face of history.

The basis of "The Birth of a Nation" was Thomas Dixon's novel, "The Clansman," whixch made heroes of the Ku-klux Klan murderers. Dixon's theories about the reconstruction period following the Civil was were too bitterly partisan and outrageously false to warrant serious discussion in the north or in the south. For instance: The abuse heaped upon Thaddeus Stevens of Pennsylvania (the Commoner), who was undisputed master of congress during the reconstruction period, is a vicious libel. Probably it is true that there are many people in the south who still believe that Stevens was part negro.

A writer in the Philadelphia Public Ledger calls attention to these facts; and, in view of the widespread misinformation "The Birth of a Nation" is responsible for, they should be given wide publicity:

"Stevens' birth does have a mystery around it, but it is not of African origin. His latest biographer contends that there was documentary evidence in Stevens' possession to prove that he was the son of the great Talleyrand.

"That eminent French statesman during his temporary exile in America, as I once related, made a lively tour of New England, accompanied by a brother of General Huidekoper's grandfather. It happened that Talleyrand did visit the place where later the future Lancaster county congressman was born.

"The Frenchman's clubfoot and Stevens' similar affliction, added to the latter's extraordinary powers for one who sprang from the most ordinary surroundings, have been cited as convincing proof of his French parentage.

"One silly booklet, which aimed to prove Stevens part negro, pointed to his unusual crop of black hair. But alas! that was only a wig! He was buried in a poor cemetery where negroes lie for the reason that he was so democratic he refused to have his body in a graveyard around which any social bars were erected."

Intellectual theatregoers should be beyond accepting as fact plays based upon untruths, especially a play which uses for the basis of its appeal an un-Christian attitude toward the negro.

The Birth of a Nation

is a great picture depicting a past history.

THE BIRTH OF EAST KINLOCH

is the picture of a future history to be written by a Negro historian.

East - Kinloch

is a growing colored community.

LOTS $150 AND UPWARDS. EASY TERMS.

WILL BUILD YOU A HOUSE ON PAYMENT

OF $30 DOWN.

OUT OF TOWN ORDERS SOLICITED.

AFTER you attend the ceremonial rites at the DEDICATION of

THE NEW SANCTIFIED CHURCH NEXT SUNDAY

THE EAST KINLOCH SALES CO.

cordially invites you to come and see

EAST KINLOCH LOTS

CARSON ROAD AND LIX AVENUE.

ALSO VISIT THE NEW DUNBAR PUBLIC SCHOOL

Built on EAST KINLOCH property.

J. HERN, President, Jones Park, St. Louis County.

See the Proposed Site for the New City Hall, to be governed by elected Negro aldermen, with a Negro Mayor the chief magistrate. Come out and see and forget all about

THE BIRTH OF EAST KINLOCH

The Birth of a Nation

"Birth of a Nation" Coming

The photo-play entitled "The Birth of a Nation," which has created such a storm of protests throughout the North and West is booked to appear in Norfolk at the New Wells theatre about the first of October. The play was written and dramatized by Thomas Dixon Jr., author of "The Leopard's Spots," "The Clansman," and "The Sins of the Fathers." The only difference between "The Birth of a Nation" and the other works of Mr. Dixon is that the former is a baser assembly of falsehoods and a more lurid distortion of history. It goes back half a century to dig up forgotten and exaggerated series of political and social incidents in order to disturb the present amicable relations existing between the white and black races. It teaches no moral and serves no good purpose. It is a libel and slander upon the colored race and a misrepresentation of the white race.

Mayor Joseph G. Armstrong of Pittsburg, Pa., has just refused to allow the "Birth of a Nation" to exhibit in that city, for the reason that the play stirs up strife between the races. Will Mayor Mayo of Norfolk follow suit?

The relations between the races in Norfolk are pleasant. We do not need photo-plays written by Thomas Dixon to disturb our peace.

WHY NOT PROTEST?

The action of the local Negro Business League, in their failure to publicly condemn the photo-play known as "The Birth of a Nation," has brought no little criticism from the public generally. No one seems to understand why the League should not go on record as condemning such a play, which not only ridicules, but libels, the race! which not only misrepresents past history, but is based on race prejudice.

If it had been a question of politics, there might have been an excuse; or even a question which concerned some individual, it would not look so bad, but this was a question which concerned the whole Negro race. The public is right—criticism cannot be too severe, but should be loud and long until men shall know what they owe the race.

LAW ON FILM PLAY

City Solicitor Ryan Replies to Opponents of "Birth of a Nation."

Another effort to halt the presentation of the film play, "The Birth of a Nation," by administrative action is not likely to prove successful. City Solicitor Ryan has rendered a review of the two acts that might be enforced to comply with the request upon complaint by G. Edward Dickerson, counsel for a committee of negro citizens. Director Porter originally decided that the show would not be permitted. A temporary injunction was granted the management of the exhibition by Judge Ferguson, in consequence of a permanent injunction granted in Allegheny county in favor of the same film, ignoring the right of the municipal authorities to interfere because the act of May 15, 1915, creates a Board of Censors having full jurisdiction.

Dickerson's point is that the act of 1913 provides for an inquiry into the exhibition that might, among other things, have a tendency to produce a harmful effect on the public at large, and, if the charges are proven, prevent the production. He says no such inquiry was made. Mr. Ryan suggests that if there is a desire to prevent the showing of the film, the first step would be to make application for a dissolution of the injunction and have decided the question whether in the creation of the State Board of Censors of moving picture films, the rights of the city officials to censor its theatres and moving picture shows, have been superseded.

Mr. Ryan also suggests the granting of the injunction preceded the showing of the films, whereas the exhibition has actually been given many times and an opportunity afforded of passing upon the question of its harmful tendencies as inducing disorder or violence. "What action should be taken by you," says Mr. Ryan, "in the manner prescribed by law, if any, is a question properly appealing to your discretion."

NEW YORK [illegible]

SEP 1

REFUSES TO PRODUCE PICTURE

Because, as a matter of principle, he is opposed to war and armament, Ashley Miller, the well-known director, refused to stage a picture, recently, dealing with that subject. Though the remuneration offered was very tempting, he finally decided that it would be wrong for him to accept money for doing that which was against his ideas of right and wrong.

The offer and its refusal had to do with the production of a picture said to be the sequel of "The Birth of Nation." Just before he started on his vacation, two weeks ago, he was called on the telephone by Thomas Dixon and asked to wait upon him in his Riverside Drive residence. There he was informed that Dixon had selected him from all the directors in the field to produce his sequel to "The Birth of a Nation," which was to be called "The Fall of a Nation," and teach the lesson of preparedness through showing what could happen to this country through a coalition of several foreign powers. Being opposed to armament, Mr. Miller took the manuscript with him on his vacation, which was spent on his house boat, The Triady, of the Huguenot Yacht Club at New Rochelle, and pondered deeply on the possibility of producing a play which taught a lesson in which he did not believe, finally deciding against it and giving the author his negative answer.

[illegible] the work as the "Lusitania" scenario, the adaptation of "The Damned Vagabond" and so on.

Chairman Walker of New Jersey has made permanent the injunction restraining the Atlantic City officials from interfering with the presentation of "The Birth of a Nation."

The Majestic Theatre, Grand Rapids, after being entirely reconstructed, was opened

NEW YORK TIMES

Date .....

Refuses to Enjoin Epoch Company

Supreme Court Justice Clarence J. Shearn yesterday refused the application of George H. Davis of San Francisco for an injunction restraining the Epoch Producing Company from disposing of the western rights to "The Birth of a Nation" to any one but himself. He had entered into negotiations with the motion picture company for the rights for several Western states for which he offered $10,000. It was shown these had fallen through when he refused to bind himself to exhibit the picture at a certain scale of prices.

WORCESTER (Mass.) POST
SEPT. 15, 1915

(Continued on Page Two)

NEGROES OBJECT TO PICTURE PLAY

Want "Birth of Nation" Barred Here

"The Birth of a Nation," the much discussed photoplay which, according to reports, is coming to Worcester, will not be shown in this city until after a vigorous protest has been made by local Negro residents.

Already Mayor George M. Wright has been waited upon by one or more Worcester Negroes who protested against the picture being shown in this city and it is said that the Mayor declared that before the films could be shown in public here he would first see them himself and that if there was anything objectionable the play would be suppressed.

The report is that S. Z. Poli has closed a contract with the producers of the play and that it is to be shown in the Poli picture houses throughout New England, the local Elm Street house being among the first. Frank Whitbeck, manager of the theater, stated this morning that he could neither confirm nor deny the report and that he has received no word regarding the contract from Mr. Poli.

Negroes Are Ready

Worcester Negroes have, however, anticipated for sometime that an attempt would be made to show the photoplay in Worcester and they are ready to launch a movement against it at once.

George T. Dominis, a lawyer and recognized as one of the leaders among Worcester Negroes, said today that the matter has already been called to Mayor Wright's attention and that a strong protest would unquestionably be made.

"The picture is objectionable to every colored person in Worcester," he declared.

"Personally I have never seen the photoplay itself, but I have read the book, 'The Clansman,' on which it is founded, and have heard reports regarding the picture. Furthermore, we colored people know that the men really behind this production and others of its kind are in an organized movement to discredit the Negroes in the north.

Thinks Picture Unjust

"I do not feel that 'The Birth of a Nation' is a truthful representation of conditions in reconstruction days in the South. It is, therefore, unjust to the colored portion of our population.

"But the real reason for protesting is that in a cosmopolitan population such as Worcester has, it is essential that the different elements should be able to get along together peacefully and happily. Anything that tends or may tend to stir up strife and prejudice is not for the good of the community.

"This is exactly the situation with regard to 'The Birth of a Nation.' It cannot fail to create bad feeling.

"At present the colored people in New England are in a sense the under dog among the various races of our population. We are striving to get along the best we can, always laboring under tremendous difficulties to overcome the great handicap against us. In view of this fact we feel that our lot should not be made harder by exciting racial passion and prejudice against us.

Know the Motive

"And the fact that we know the motive behind 'The Birth of a Nation' is to accomplish exactly that, makes the situation the more aggravated.

"Several years ago, while Dr. John T. Duggan was mayor, an attempt was made to produce the play, 'The Clansman,' in Worcester. We protested and Mayor Duggan stopped the play. After that it was stopped in many other cities.

"The same interests, out to discredit the Negroes and make their path in the north harder, are behind 'The Birth of a Nation,' as were behind 'The Clansmen,' and the two plays are practically one. We hope that Mayor Wright will not allow the production in Worcester."

Pastors of the local Negro churches are planning to join in a protest and the different congregations may take organized action.

The Rev. W. B. Perry of the Park Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church and the Rev. Hiram Conway of the John Street Baptist Church are much interested in the matter and are prepared to take leading parts in the protest. Other prominent local Negroes are also planning to join the movement.

PHILADELPHIA, (PA.) PRESS

.....

Federal Grand Jury yesterday [illegible] ating the Harrison anti-narcotic drug Act.

RYAN SAYS PORTER ERRED ABOUT PLAY

Action taken by Director Porter to stop the production of the film "Birth of a Nation" was not in accordance with the provisions of the law, according to an opinion sent to the Mayor yesterday by City Solicitor Ryan. The law provides the question of production shall be brought before the Mayor and both sides shall present their case, and if the Mayor thinks it should not be produced, the Department of Public Safety shall take means to stop its production. It is argued.

In announcing he would not permit the production of the play, it is alleged, Director Porter did not comply with the provisions of the law, and did not consult the Law Department.

[illegible]delphia, (Pa.) North American

.....

[illegible] such a condition exists it should be [illegible] clear to the people. The committee [illegible] had opportunity to answer my [illegible]."

NEW PROTEST MADE AGAINST 'THE BIRTH OF A NATION'

Mayor Gets Advice From City Solicitor on Law in the Case

A further protest has been made to Mayor Blankenburg against allowing the exhibition of the moving-picture show, "The Birth of a Nation." This became known yesterday, when City Solicitor Ryan, in compliance with Mayor Blankenburg's request, gave him the law on the subject and pointed out how the authorities should have proceeded at first under the law.

Before the film was put on exhibition here a protest against it was made by some prominent negroes to Director Porter. He immediately forbade the exhibition. His action was annulled by a temporary injunction granted by Judge Ferguson. The film has been on exhibition for ten days.

After giving the law and pointing the procedure under it, City Solicitor Ryan said: "What action should be taken by you in the manner prescribed by law, if any, is a question properly appealing to your discretion."

Philadelphia, (Pa.) Public Ledger

Date .....

condition.

MAYOR ASKED TO PROHIBIT "BIRTH OF A NATION"

Resolutions Denouncing Production Adopted at City Hall Plaza Meeting

Three typewritten pages of resolutions, requesting Mayor Blankenburg to prevent the production of the motion picture drama, "The Birth of a Nation," which is advertised for the Forrest Theatre, starting Saturday, were adopted at a protest meeting last night, held on City Hall Plaza. The Mayor will receive the resolutions today.

The audience was composed mostly of white men. Two colored men, E. A. Pennock and Charles F. White and Dr. Caesar A. A. P. Taylor, a Cherokee Indian, addressed the meeting. "Doctor" Moses Stern presided.

The meeting lasted several hours, the speakers protesting against the production of the picture, which in parts is founded upon Thomas Dixon's novel, "The Clansman," on the ground that it might cause racial strife.

ST. LOUIS (Mo.) REPUBLIC
AUG. 29, 1915

POLICE CAN'T STOP "BIRTH OF NATION"

Judge Kimmel Annuls Sidener's Order Prohibiting Exhibition of Film at Olympic.

WILL BE SHOWN TO-NIGHT

Prosecutor Must Show Cause To-Morrow Why Picture Should Not Be Presented.

"The Birth of a Nation" moving picture film will be produced at the Olympic Theater to-night as advertised, notwithstanding the order of Prosecuting Attorney Howard Sidener to the contrary, yesterday.

Circuit Judge Karl Kimmel last night issued a restraining order temporarily stopping the police from carrying out Sidener's order prohibiting the production.

Following an order issued late yesterday afternoon by Sidener prohibiting the exhibition of the film in St. Louis, the Epoch Producing Company, producer of the film, brought suit in the Circuit Court against Sidener, the Board of Police Commissioners, Chief of Police William Young and Chief of Detectives Samuel E. Allender, to restrain interference with the production.

Sidener Fears Race Trouble.

Regarding why he issued the order, Sidener said:

"My position in the matter is that the character of the film is such as is calculated to incite a disturbance of the peace nad to arouse racial troubles. It might even cause serious trouble between the whites and negroes of the city.

"I did not want to act arbitrarily, but my investigation has convinced me that the pictures are not in any way representative of the true situation.

"My request that certain portions to which objection was made by delegations of representative negroes and also by a committee from the Civic League, be eliminated, was refused, as was also my request that a private exhibition be given before Mayor Kiel, myself and a committee representing the people who requested that the exhibition be stopped."

Sidener said he was told that the pictures were kept out of Memphis, Tenn., and Pittsburg, Pa. In Chicago and Boston he said he understood the film was put on after the municipalities were enjoined from interfering with its exhibition.

It is stated in the petition of the Epoch Company, which was filed by the law firm of Leahy, Saunders & Barth, shortly before 9 o'clock last night, that the film was approved by the National Board of Censorship, declared it to be "a great step forward in motion-picture productions.

(Continued on Page [illegible])

P. Ledger Phil Repo

UNRULY NEGROES FREED

Two in Crowd at "Birth of Nation" Defied Police

Two negroes, out of a crowd of 600 gathered in a demonstration in front of the Forrest Theatre, where the "Birth of a Nation" is being shown, were discharged by Magistrate Beaton after hearings in Night Court at Central Station.

The management got wind of the demonstration and sold out in advance all the 25-cent tickets. It was understood the negroes planned to invade the galleries. When they learned there was nothing left but $1.50 seats they gathered in the street.

A squad of 35 policemen was sent to disperse them. The prisoners, Sheb White and Fred D. Harris, declined to move. Others obeyed when told to move on and there was no difficulty. The negroes say the film is a libel on their race.

Ameri. Sun Sep 16

ARREST TWO NEGROES IN FRONT OF THEATER

Hundred Others Follow Men Taken for Refusing to Move On

MANAGEMENT ALARMED

Two negroes were arrested in front of the Forrest Theater last night on a charge of disturbing the peace, and about 100 other negroes followed the prisoners when they were taken to the Fifteenth and Locust streets police station.

Negroes began assembling in the vicinity of the Forrest Theater about 7 o'clock last evening. This alarmed the theater management. They notified the Fifth district and twenty-five uniformed men were detailed to stand around the theater for the "moral effect." They did.

The two men arrested are H. D. Harris, of 1942 Nicholas street, and Charles F. White, of 1631 South Eighteenth street. They are accused of refusing to "move on."

P. Ledger Sep 16 Phil

A PART OF THE UPLIFT

To the Editor of Public Ledger:

Sir—I cannot believe that those people who speak disparagingly of the motion picture spectacle, "The Birth of a Nation," or who seek to find in the story as told on the screen an incitement to race prejudice can have taken in the significance of the picture. In the first place, there is shown the negro as he was soon after the Civil War when, just emerging from slavery, he was unfitted for self-government and yet he suddenly had unusual political powers given unrestrainedly into his hands. It was only natural that he should have misused the new privilege. What would the Filipinos do today if they were suddenly granted their entire political freedom? I feel sure that there would be riot, perhaps murder, and that only the severest measures would bring about peace and safety. The Ku Klux Klan had to do the sort of work that would be necessary on the part of the Government in the Philippines.

But the point that I wish to make especially is in the contrast that is shown between the conditions of the negro of reconstruction times and of today. No more convincing argument could be employed than the showing of the negro as he is engaged in intellectual labors at Tuskegee and at Hampton institutes. These pictures, shown in the concluding part of the spectacle, leave no doubt that there is an earnest effort to uplift the colored man, and that he is doing his full share in bringing about a closer fellowship with his white brethren. The picture does not malign a race, but rather shows its rapid advancement. Apart from that, though, the picture is to my mind the greatest achievement yet made in motion photography and is wonderful in depicting historic events with fidelity.

FAIR MINDED.

Philadelphia, September 9, 1915.

NIGHT (New York City)

TO TRAVESTY "NATION."

Arrangements have been made by the Universal with H. H. Van Loan, at one time a London correspondent for the N. Y. American and later writing "nut stuff" for the World here, to write a six or seven reeled travesty for the films entitled "The Mirth of a Nation" in which the Griffith "Nation" spectacle will be camaraded in a travestied light.

Just what company will do it hasn't been announced but it will be made by either the Victor or the Nestor.

CITY OR CENSORS

THE courts of Allegheny County have, in a recent decision, nullified the police rights of Pennsylvania cities. By declaring that the State Board of Censors for moving pictures is the final authority, they have taken away the fundamental power of each city to govern itself. It is impossible to believe that this decision will stand when once its meaning has been made clear.

The Board of Censors has plenary power to allow or disallow films for exhibition in this State. The tyranny of this body has been suffered only because appeals to the courts and to the police have been available as a check upon it. Now the Court has decided that when a film has passed the censors it cannot be stopped by the police.

The full effect of this decision is to tie the hands of individuals and to deliver the cities bound and gagged into the hands of the board. The censorship of plays properly rests with the people. Their protests are carried out by the police and by the court. There is nothing inherently wrong with the movies to make another kind of censorship necessary. And there is nothing sacrosanct about the Board of Censors to make its decisions irrevocable. There was almost a riot on Broad street last night, yet the police were without authority to forbid the exhibition of the pictures to which objection was made. Irrespective of the merits or demerits of the particular show, it is apparent that the city is placed in an intolerable situation.

N Amer. Sep 16

ARREST TWO NEGROES IN FRONT OF THEATER

Hundred Others Follow Men Taken for Refusing to Move On

MANAGEMENT ALARMED

Two negroes were arrested in front of the Forrest Theater last night on a charge of disturbing the peace, and about 100 other negroes followed the prisoners when they were taken to the Fifteenth and Locust streets police station.

Negroes began assembling in the vicinity of the Forrest Theater about 7 o'clock last evening. This alarmed the theater management. They notified the Fifth district and twenty-five uniformed men were detailed to stand around the theater for the "moral effect." They did.

The two men arrested are H. D. Harris, of 1942 Nicholas street, and Charles F. White, of 1631 South Eighteenth street. They are accused of refusing to "move on."

August 28, 1915.

St. Louis Daily Globe-Democrat.

POLICE TO SIT AS CENSORS OF BIRTH OF NATION PLAY

Detectives Sergeants Chrismer and Campbell, the "morality squad" of the St. Louis Police Department, will sit as censors at the opening performance of the moving-picture play, "The Birth of a Nation," in the Olympic Theater tomorrow. They have been asked to do so and report to him by Prosecuting Attorney Sidener, as the result of a protest against the show by a delegation of negro citizens of St. Louis.

The negroes waited on Mayor Kiel yesterday and asked him to prevent the films being exhibited. They are based on Dixon's novel, "The Clansman," which purports to picture life in the South during the "reconstruction period." The negroes contended the exhibition is calculated to stir up race prejudice, and several scenes are immoral. Mayor Kiel was told by City Counselor Daues he could not interfere and referred the delegation to Sidener.

P. Ledger Sep

MOTION PICTURE WORLD (N Y

CALL RESERVES TO HALT NEGROES

Six Hundred at Theatre Where "Birth of Nation" Is Being Shown

MANAGER ALLEGES PLOT TO TERRORIZE AUDIENCE

Two Persons, Accused of Breach of Peace, Have Hearings in Night Court

Police reserves last night were called out to disperse a crowd of 600 negroes gathered in Broad street, opposite the Forrest Theatre, where the "Birth of a Nation" is being shown. Two arrests were made.

The police and the management of the show said the crowd had gathered to carry out a plot to terrorize the audience and destroy the film which the negroes denounced as a libel on their race. Persons were shouting "Break up the show, though it cost your lives!" when 35 policemen, with clubs in their hands, went through the crowd.

The men arrested were Sheb White, of 1031 South 13th street, and Fred D. Harris, of 1942 Nicholas street. Both were charged with breach of the peace and had hearings in the Night Court at City Hall. Following Harris' arrest, a throng of 100 negroes gathered about the policeman and prisoner, and for a time observers feared a display of force. Harris was taken safely to the 15th and Locust streets police station, however, and the crowd contented itself with a silent demonstration outside the station house.

Police Expected Crowd

The presence of the crowd in Broad street last night was not unexpected by the police or the management of the "Birth of a Nation." For several weeks the latter has employed private detectives whose reports tallied as to plans for a demonstration at the Forrest Theatre last night. The management in turn informed the police. They had not, however, calculated on the presence of such large numbers as turned out. The police said 25 per cent. of the gathering were women.

From 7:30 o'clock on the negroes began arriving in knots of three and four on the sidewalk on the opposite side of the street from the theatre. It had been arranged that they should gather there and follow directions of their leaders.

Among those in the crowd were three clergymen. They were the Rev. C. C. Dunlap, pastor of the Bethel A. M. E. Church, 6th and Lombard streets; the Rev. T. A. Wallace, of the Wesley A. M. E. Church, 15th and Lombard streets, and the Rev. H. H. Cooper, pastor of the Union A. M. E. Church, 16th street and Fairmount avenue. The Rev. C. C. Dunlap protested against the arrest of Harris, saying that he and anybody else had a right to stand in the street and talk. A policeman said he had orders to keep people moving and was going to carry them out. Harris refused to move and was arrested.

The plan of the leaders of the crowd, the police said, was to go to the box office at the theatre and buy up hundreds of the 25-cent seats. With previous knowledge of this the management succeeded in disposing of the cheaper seats first and when the negroes began to arrive they were told the only seats left were in the lower part of the house and worth $1.50 each. This had the desired effect.

Two Negroes in Audience

Two negroes were in the audience. They sat upstairs. In the house at the same time, prepared for what might happen, were 20 detectives from City Hall and seven special policemen, under orders from the management. The audience numbered 2100. Thirty-five uniformed policemen patrolled the streets outside.

When the crowd opposite the theatre assumed large proportions, Police Captain Tempest ordered his men to break it up. They went through the crowd, shouldering persons in various directions. After being separated, the negroes continued to walk up and down Broad street, and on Walnut and Chestnut. They gave no trouble. Sheb Hall's arrest came when he gathered a small number of negroes about him and exhorted them to demand seats in the theatre.

At the Night Court in City Hall Magistrate Beaton discharged the two colored men who were arrested. "I want to give you a chance," he told the men. "But if any one is brought to me for breaking the peace in the vicinity of this theatre tomorrow night, or any night after that, I will act severely."

CITY OR CENSORS

THE courts of Allegheny County have, in a recent decision, nullified the police rights of Pennsylvania cities. By declaring that the State Board of Censors for moving pictures is the final authority, they have taken away the fundamental power of each city to govern itself. It is impossible to believe that this decision will stand when once its meaning has been made clear.

The Board of Censors has plenary power to allow or disallow films for exhibition in this State. The tyranny of this body has been suffered only because appeals to the courts and to the police have been available as a check upon it. Now the Court has decided that when a film has passed the censors it cannot be stopped by the police.

The full effect of this decision is to tie the hands of individuals and to deliver the cities bound and gagged into the hands of the board. The censorship of plays properly rests with the people. Their protests are carried out by the police and by the court. There is nothing inherently wrong with the movies to make another kind of censorship necessary. And there is nothing sacrosanct about the Board of Censors to make its decisions irrevocable. There was almost a riot on Broad street last night, yet the police were without authority to forbid the exhibition of the pictures to which objection was made. Irrespective of the merits or demerits of the particular show, it is apparent that the city is placed in an intolerable situation.

Court Permits Showing Of "The Birth of a Nation"

Judge Ambrose B. Reid Grants Nixon Theater a Temporary Injunction.

Judge Ambrose B. Reid yesterday afternoon granted a temporary injunction in favor of the Nixon Theater Company in its bill of equity filed earlier in the day seeking to restrain Mayor Joseph G. Armstrong and Superintendent of Police W. Noble Matthews from interference with the display of the moving picture, "The Birth of a Nation." Judge Reid set Friday morning as a time for the hearing on the permanent injunction. The theater will be permitted to show the films pending the decision of the court.

Attorney George Shaw appeared for the company and read the bill in equity. The bill set forth that the action of the Mayor in prohibiting the display is arbitrary and that the film has been passed and approved both by the Pennsylvania State Board of Censorship and the National Board. The plaintiff also contends that the play does not engender prejudice and cites a list of cities where it has been shown without any race feeling arising.

City Solicitor Charles A. O'Brien appeared for the Mayor and made a brief outline of defense. In addition to setting the date for the hearing the court ordered the theater company to give bond in the sum of $500 for protection against what Solicitor O'Brien termed "possible violence by display of the race-prejudice picture."

The theater company advertised that it would display the film for six weeks, beginning September 1. The Mayor and Superintendent of Police then notified the company that such display would not be permitted.

Pitts. Gazette Times, Aug. 31 1915

ALL RESERVES TO HALT NEGROES

Six Hundred at Theatre Where "Birth of Nation" Is Being Shown

MANAGER ALLEGES PLOT TO TERRORIZE AUDIENCE

Two Persons, Accused of Breach of Peace, Have Hearings in Night Court

Police reserves last night were called out to disperse a crowd of 600 negroes gathered in Broad street, opposite the Forrest Theatre, where the "Birth of a Nation" is being shown. Two arrests were made.

The police and the management of the show said the crowd had gathered to carry out a plot to terrorize the audience and destroy the film which the negroes denounced as a libel on their race. Persons were shouting "Break up the show, though it cost your lives!" when 35 policemen, with clubs in their hands, went through the crowd.

The men arrested were Sheb White, of 1031 South 18th street, and Fred D. Harris, of 1942 Nicholas street. Both were charged with breach of the peace and had hearings in the Night Court at City Hall. Following Harris' arrest, a throng of 100 negroes gathered about the policeman and prisoner, and for a time observers feared a display of force. Harris was taken safely to the 15th and Locust streets police station, however, and the crowd contented itself with a silent demonstration outside the station house.

Police Expected Crowd

The presence of the crowd in Broad street last night was not unexpected by the police or the management of the "Birth of a Nation." For several weeks the latter has employed private detectives whose reports tallied as to plans for a demonstration at the Forrest Theatre last night. The management in turn informed the police. They had not, however, calculated on the presence of such large numbers as turned out. The police said 25 per cent. of the gathering were women.

From 7:30 o'clock on the negroes began arriving in knots of three and four on the sidewalk on the opposite side of the street from the theatre. It had been arranged that they should gather there and follow directions of their leaders.

Among those in the crowd were three clergymen. They were the Rev. C. C. Dunlap, pastor of the Bethel A. M. E. Church, 6th and Lombard streets; the Rev. T. A. Wallace, of the Wesley A. M. E. Church, 15th and Lombard streets, and the Rev. H. H. Cooper, pastor of the Union A. M. E. Church, 16th street and Fairmount avenue. The Rev. C. C. Dunlap protested against the arrest of Harris, saying that he and anybody else had a right to stand in the street and talk. A policeman said he had orders to keep people moving and was going to carry them out. Harris refused to move and was arrested.

The plan of the leaders of the crowd, the police said, was to go to the box office at the theatre and buy up hundreds of the 25-cent seats. With previous knowledge of this the management succeeded in disposing of the cheaper seats first and when the negroes began to arrive they were told the only seats left were in the lower part of the house and worth $1.50 each. This had the desired effect.

Two Negroes in Audience

Two negroes were in the audience. They sat upstairs. In the house at the same time, prepared for what might happen, were 30 detectives from City Hall and seven special policemen, under orders from the management. The audience numbered 2100. Thirty-five uniformed policemen patrolled the streets outside.

When the crowd opposite the theatre assumed large proportions, Police Captain Tempest ordered his men to break it up. They went through the crowd, shouldering persons in various directions. After being separated, the negroes continued to walk up and down Broad street, and on Walnut and Chestnut. They gave no trouble. Sheb Hall's arrest came when he gathered a small number of negroes about him and exhorted them to demand seats in the theatre.

At the Night Court in City Hall Magistrate Beaton discharged the two colored men who were arrested. "I want to give you a chance," he told the men. "But if any one is brought to me for breaking the peace in the vicinity of this theatre tomorrow night, or any night after that, I will act severely."

Philadelphia, (Pa.) Public Ledger

Date .....

...ptember 16, 1915.

A LIBEL ON STEVENS

His Character Is Greatly Misrepresented in "The Birth of a Nation"

To the Editor of Public Ledger:

Sir — That much-discussed photoplay, "The Birth of a Nation," assumes to be a historical [illegible] audiences who have witnessed its vivid scenes and portraitures it undertakes to teach a historical lesson, covering a crucial epoch in the life of our country. It would seem highly important, therefore, that the lesson thus thought should be both true and accurate.

Disregarding for the moment other matters in which the play may be thought to violate the truth of history, or at least to represent facts in a distorted and prejudiced light, it seems to me that it does grave injustice to the memory of one of Pennsylvania's most distinguished statesmen. Under the guise of Austin Stoneman, the leading character in the second part of the play is Thaddeus Stevens, the Great Commoner of the reconstruction period. The whole purpose and effect of the characterization given of this great man is to place him before the youth of today in an aspect which, to say the least, is inaccurate and untrue.

In the first place, unwarranted liberties are taken with Stevens' personal life and environment. As is well known, he was a bachelor, without family ties. Yet the play gives him a daughter and two sons. One of the latter is killed on the battlefield, while the love affairs of the other two constitute the leading motives of the play. Near the end of his life he is represented as making a journey to South Carolina in the search for health. It is safe to say that nothing of the kind ever occurred. Of all places in the land South Carolina would have been the least healthful for Thaddeus Stevens at that time.

The play also represents Stevens as having been largely under the influence of an ambitious colored housekeeper and controlled by her in his attitude toward the colored race and his plans for the reconstruction of the South. This charge is not a new one, but no proof to substantiate it has ever been produced. Stevens' latest and most impartial biographer, Professor Woodburn, says of it and of similar stories about him: "In this respect Stevens has but suffered the fate of many another honored public man. It will not be claimed that his life was above reproach, but impartial witnesses who knew him best would not hesitate to brand such stories, in their main content, as false and malicious slanders." It is unfortunate that such a piece of baseless gossip about a public man should be perpetuated in literature or on the stage, and taught as history to a generation who knew him not.

Stevens was by no means the violent and illogical fanatic who appears as "Austin Stoneman" in the play. Whatever may have been his defects of character or judgment, he was throughout his public career possessed by a passion for human freedom and equal opportunity for all men. He once stated his creed as follows: "Every man, no matter what his race or color, every earthly being who has an immortal soul, has an equal right to justice, honesty and fair play with every other man, and the law should secure him those rights."

Pennsylvania owes Stevens a debt of gratitude for her public school system, of which he was the most powerful and persistent advocate, and the nation owes him a still deeper indebtedness for the courageous manner in which, during the troublous decade of his later Congressional service, he always held high the banner of the Union and the lighted torch of liberty and human rights. "Stevens," writes Professor Woodburn, "was a man of large mold and of great purposes, who was striving with his whole soul to carve other and better channels for the life of society, pursuing steadily, without variation or shadow of turning, the two great purposes of his public life, the unity of the nation and the freedom of the slave. * * * He died as he had lived, the relentless foe of privilege, the uncompromising advocate of democracy—of equal rights for all and special privileges for none beneath the law. * * * Before all else he stood for liberty and the equal rights of men. To this faith he bore his consistent testimony from early life to the open grave and beyond. No truer democrat, no abler advocate of popular rights, ever stood in American legislative halls."

It is deeply to be regretted that such a man should be untruly, or even inadequately, portrayed before those who are inheritors of the results which sprang from his noble work for humanity and true democracy.

JAMES C. SELLERS.

Philadelphia, September 15, 1915.

CENSORSHIP MUST GO!

UNTIL this week the State censorship of moving pictures has been an absurdity, nothing more. Its officiousness and its petty tyranny have been tolerated because there were two adequate checks upon it in the courts and the police. Those checks, by the decision of the Allegheny County Courts, are now abolished.

From this time on the censorship is a menace to free city government. It is an institution established by the State to exercise rights which naturally belong to the cities. From its decision there is to be no appeal.

The special case in Philadelphia is of interest only in so far as it points the moral of this extraordinary situation. If riots and bloodshed should follow the showing of a film, the city officials would be powerless to stop the production of that film, because the State Censors have passed it more than a year ago.

If the Allegheny Court is right in its interpretation of the law, a new tyranny has been established in this State. It is a tyranny which will not be tolerated. The police power belongs to the cities, not to a State commission. The censorship must go!

FORE... SEPT. 17, 1915 339

NEGROES PROTEST BIRTH OF NATION

Will Ask Mayor Lawler to Prohibit Showing of Famous Photoplay in This City

"The Birth of a Nation" which has gained more fame than any other motion picture, will not be shown in Hartford without a strong protest being lodged against its presentation by negro residents of this city. At a meeting this afternoon in the African M. E. Zion church, 249 Pearl street, the subject of making a formal protest to Mayor Lawler was discussed by members of the church and others.

Rev. Richard R. Ball, pastor of the church, presided at the meeting. One of the negroes who attended said that the basis of the protest would be on the ground that "The Birth of a Nation" film when shown in communities where there are negro residents, leads to race hatred and sometimes violence.

A "Citizens' Committee" was named at the meeting and the formal protest will be made to Mayor Lawler tomorrow.

Pastor Visits Mayor

Rev. Walter Gay, former pastor of the Union Baptist (colored) church in this city, today visited the mayor and made formal protest against the showing of "The Birth of a Nation" in this city.

Mr. Gay pointed out objectionable parts of the production which include the lynching of a negro. He asked the mayor to take the matter under consideration.

Mr. Gay told The Post that he did not ask the mayor to attempt to bar the film altogether, but that he merely act to have certain objectionable features eliminated, which reflect on the character of the negro. The mayor did not indicate, it is understood, just what, if any, action he would take on the matter.

Mr. Gay appeared satisfied that the mayor would act upon his suggestion.

A LIBEL ON STEVENS

His Character Is Greatly Misrepresented in "The Birth of a Nation"

To the Editor of Public Ledger:

Sir — That much-discussed photoplay, "The Birth of a Nation," assumes to be a historical production. To the vast audiences who have witnessed its vivid scenes and portraitures it undertakes to teach a historical lesson, covering a crucial epoch in the life of our country. It would seem highly important, therefore, that the lesson thus thought should be both true and accurate.

Disregarding for the moment other matters in which the play may be thought to violate the truth of history, or at least to represent facts in a distorted and prejudiced light, it seems to me that it does grave injustice to the memory of one of Pennsylvania's most distinguished statesmen. Under the guise of Austin Stoneman, the leading character in the second part of the play is Thaddeus Stevens, the Great Commoner of the reconstruction period. The whole purpose and effect of the characterization given of this great man is to place him before the youth of today in an aspect which, to say the least, is inaccurate and untrue.

In the first place, unwarranted liberties are taken with Stevens' personal life and environment. As is well known, he was a bachelor, without family ties. Yet the play gives him a daughter and two sons. One of the latter is killed on the battlefield, while the love affairs of the other two constitute the leading motives of the play. Near the end of his life he is represented as making a journey to South Carolina in the search for health. It is safe to say that nothing of the kind ever occurred. Of all places in the land South Carolina would have been the least healthful for Thaddeus Stevens at that time.

The play also represents Stevens as having been largely under the influence of an ambitious colored housekeeper and controlled by her in his attitude toward the colored race and his plans for the reconstruction of the South. This charge is not a new one, but no proof to substantiate it has ever been produced. Stevens' latest and most impartial biographer, Professor Woodburn, says of it and of similar stories about him: "In this respect Stevens has but suffered the fate of many another honored public man. It will not be claimed that his life was above reproach, but impartial witnesses who knew him best would not hesitate to brand such stories, in their main content, as false and malicious slanders." It is unfortunate that such a piece of baseless gossip about a public man should be perpetuated in literature or on the stage, and taught as history to a generation who knew him not.

Stevens was by no means the violent and illogical fanatic who appears as "Austin Stoneman" in the play. Whatever may have been his defects of character or judgment, he was throughout his public career possessed by a passion for human freedom and equal opportunity for all men. He once stated his creed as follows: "Every man, no matter what his race or color, every earthly being who has an immortal soul, has an equal right to justice, honesty and fair play with every other man, and the law should secure him those rights."

Pennsylvania owes Stevens a debt of gratitude for her public school system, of which he was the most powerful and persistent advocate, and the nation owes him a still deeper indebtedness for the courageous manner in which, during the troublous decade of his later Congressional service, he always held high the banner of the Union and the lighted torch of liberty and human rights. "Stevens," writes Professor Woodburn, "was a man of large mold and of great purposes, who was striving with his whole soul to carve other and better channels for the life of society, pursuing steadily, without variation or shadow of turning, the two great purposes of his public life, the unity of the nation and the freedom of the slave. * * * He died as he had lived, the relentless foe of privilege, the uncompromising advocate of democracy—of equal rights for all and special privileges for none beneath the law. * * * Before all else he stood for liberty and the equal rights of men. To this faith he bore his consistent testimony from early life to the open grave and beyond. No truer democrat, no abler advocate of popular rights, ever stood in American legislative halls."

It is deeply to be regretted that such a man should be untruly, or even inadequately, portrayed before those who are inheritors of the results which sprang from his noble work for humanity and true democracy.

JAMES C. SELLERS.

Philadelphia, September 15, 1915.

A LIBEL ON STEVENS

Character Is Greatly Misrepresented in "The Birth of a Nation"

To the Editor of Public Ledger:

Sir — That much-discussed photoplay, "The Birth of a Nation," assumes to be a historical production. To the vast audiences who have witnessed its vivid scenes and portraitures it undertakes to teach a historical lesson, covering a crucial epoch in the life of our country. It would seem highly important, therefore, that the lesson thus thought should be both true and accurate.

Disregarding for the moment other matters in which the play may be thought to violate the truth of history, or at least to represent facts in a distorted and prejudiced light, it seems to me that it does grave injustice to the memory of one of Pennsylvania's most distinguished statesmen. Under the guise of Austin Stoneman, the leading character in the second part of the play is Thaddeus Stevens, the Great Commoner of the reconstruction period. The whole purpose and effect of the characterization given of this great man is to place him before the youth of today in an aspect which, to say the least, is inaccurate and untrue.

In the first place, unwarranted liberties are taken with Stevens' personal life and environment. As is well known, he was a bachelor, without family ties. Yet the play gives him a daughter and two sons. One of the latter is killed on the battlefield, while the love affairs of the other two constitute the leading motives of the play. Near the end of his life he is represented as making a journey to South Carolina in the search for health. It is safe to say that nothing of the kind ever occurred. Of all places in the land South Carolina would have been the least healthful for Thaddeus Stevens at that time.

The play also represents Stevens as having been largely under the influence of an ambitious colored housekeeper and controlled by her in his attitude toward the colored race and his plans for the reconstruction of the South. This charge is not a new one, but no proof to substantiate it has ever been produced. Stevens' latest and most impartial biographer, Professor Woodburn, says of it and of similar stories about him: "In this respect Stevens has but suffered the fate of many another honored public man. It will not be claimed that his life was above reproach, but impartial witnesses who knew him best would not hesitate to brand such stories, in their main content, as false and malicious slanders." It is unfortunate that such a piece of baseless gossip about a public man should be perpetuated in literature or on the stage, and taught as history to a generation who knew him not.

Stevens was by no means the violent and illogical fanatic who appears as "Austin Stoneman" in the play. Whatever may have been his defects of character or judgment, he was throughout his public career possessed by a passion for human freedom and equal opportunity for all men. He once stated his creed as follows: "Every man, no matter what his race or color, every earthly being who has an immortal soul, has an equal right to justice, honesty and fair play with every other man, and the law should secure him those rights."

Pennsylvania owes Stevens a debt of gratitude for her public school system, of which he was the most powerful and persistent advocate, and the nation owes him a still deeper indebtedness for the courageous manner in which, during the troublous decade of his later Congressional service, he always held high the banner of the Union and the lighted torch of liberty and human rights. "Stevens," writes Professor Woodburn, "was a man of large mold and of great purposes, who was striving with his whole soul to carve other and better channels for the life of society, pursuing steadily, without variation or shadow of turning, the two great purposes of his public life, the unity of the nation and the freedom of the slave. * * * He died as he had lived, the relentless foe of privilege, the uncompromising advocate of democracy—of equal rights for all and special privileges for none beneath the law. * * * Before all else he stood for liberty and the equal rights of men. To this faith he bore his consistent testimony from early life to the open grave and beyond. No truer democrat, no abler advocate of popular rights, ever stood in American legislative halls."

It is deeply to be regretted that such a man should be untruly, or even inadequately, portrayed before those who are inheritors of the results which sprang from his noble work for humanity and true democracy.

JAMES C. SELLERS.

Philadelphia, September 15, 1915.

MOTION PICTURE WORLD (N. Y. C

SEP 18

EXTENDS "BIRTH OF A NATION" INJUNCTION.

A temporary injunction procured by the exhibitors of the "Birth of a Nation" to prevent the film from being stopped by the police on account of a delegation of negroes who waited upon the mayor and asked him to take steps to keep the film from being shown has been extended to Sept. 7.

MOTION PICTURE WORLD (N. Y. City

SEP

PITTSBURGH'S MAYOR BANS "BIRTH OF A NATION."

Special to Moving Picture World from Pittsburgh News Service.

MAYOR JOSEPH G. ARMSTRONG last week instructed Superintendent of Police Noble W. Matthews not to allow the moving picture of "The Birth of a Nation" to be exhibited in this city, the picture having been scheduled for a five weeks' run at the Nixon theater. The mayor took this action following a protest by over a score of negro citizens who visited his office. The mayor issued the following statement:

I have notified the superintendent of police that the moving picture, "The Birth of a Nation," will not be permitted to exhibit in Pittsburgh. I take this stand for the reason that I do not think that this picture or any other picture which tends to stir up racial feelings and to rehash events in history, the unpleasant features of which have been forgotten and should remain buried in the interest of a united people, should be permitted to show in this city. I am satisfied from statements made to me by prominent citizens, and by a delegation which called on me that this picture is of the nature described. I have been besieged on all sides for some weeks by those who are opposed to the exhibition of the picture.

That the action of the mayor and the superintendent of police in prohibiting the display of the photo play "The Birth of a Nation," is arbitrary, and that the play has been passed and approved by both the Pennsylvania State Board of Censorship and the National Board of Censorship, are the arguments advanced by the Nixon Theater Company in a bill of equity filed in Common Pleas Court in which they ask the court to issue an injunction against the mayor to restrain him from prohibiting the showing of the film.

At the Nixon theater it was said by the management that the pictures would be put on as scheduled. A great deal of money has been spent by the Nixon in securing the film and in advertising it, and the officials do not propose to lose the money, was their declaration.

MOTION PICTURE WORLD (N. Y. City)

SEP 18 1915

DAVIS LOSES INJUNCTION PROCEEDINGS.

Justice Shearn, of the New York Supreme Court, had denied the petition for an injunction against the Epoch Producing Corporation, owners of "The Birth of a Nation," asked by George W. Davis, of the Alcazar theater, San Francisco, Cal., who alleged that his claim was based upon a series of telegrams which passed between himself and D. W. Griffith, vice-president of the corporation.

While Justice Shearn conceded that he thought the plaintiff had been unfairly dealt with, still he could not find that there was a binding contract between the plaintiff and the

---

MOTION PICTURE NEWS (New York City)

SEP 18

ST. LOUIS EXHIBITORS FIGHT LEGAL EFFORTS TO STOP SHOWING OF "NATION"

THE "Birth of a Nation" was presented to an overwhelming audience at the Olympic theatre, Broadway and Walnut streets, St. Louis, on Sunday, August 29. As has been the case in other cities where the negro population numbers into the thousands, a delegation of prominent colored citizens appealed to the mayor to have the film stopped. A suit was brought by Prosecuting Attorney Howard Sidener, Associate City Counselor Charles B. Davis, and W. R. Hill, a negro associate counselor. A temporary injunction was granted to the exhibitors, to prevent the police from interfering with the showing of the feature, allowing the first presentation to be put on as advertised. Judge Karl Kimmel, who issued the injunction, Chief Young, head of the police department, and the "morality squad," were all present at the first performance, and the next day another injunction was granted up to September 7. All the newspapers gave the film conspicuous notices and reviews, and declared that if the feature was suppressed in St. Louis, the censors might as well go to the schools and cut out the pages of history. The Olympic has had excellent patronage during the first week's showing, even though the prices range from $2 down to 50 cents for night performances, and from $1 to 25 cents for matinees, which is an unusual price to pay to see a moving picture.

The following statement was issued by Prosecutor Sidener: "The character of the film production, known as the 'Birth of a Nation,' is, I find, after careful examination and investigation, calculated to incite disturbances of the peace, and does not in any degree represent the true character of the negro race of today. My function as a public official is distinctly that of a peace officer. St. Louis has a great negro citizenry, which is law-abiding. Delegations of intelligent negroes have waited upon my office and protested the presentation of the film. Delegations of white citizens have also done the same, notably a committee representing the Civic League. Added to the protests of these representatives of both races in the community is a personal investigation I have made of the character of the film. I am convinced that it is in the interest of public peace and welfare to prohibit the production."

MOTION PICTURE NEWS (New York City)

LEO FRANK FILMS SUPPRESSED IN BOSTON

The Leo Frank films have been suppressed in Boston. Mayor Curley has a standing order that no films shall be shown in Boston houses which have not been approved by the National Board of Censorship. It may be remembered that the mayor himself is a member of the censorship triumvirate formed as a result of the crusade of the negroes against "The Birth of a Nation." Acting on this general order, and knowing that the films had not been passed by the national board, Municipal Theatrical Censor John Casey ordered the Frank pictures excluded from an East Boston house. They have not been attempted anywhere in the city since.

LOUISVILLE RESULTS.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Sept. 20.—Following are the results of today's races:

FIRST RACE—Selling, three-year-olds and up, six furlongs:
1. Ed. Howard, 100 (Lamplie), $2.70, $2.30.
2. Mars Cassidy, 92 (Judy), $4.60, $2.60.
3. The Norman, 109 (Pool), $2.70.
Time 1.18. Mex, Royal Interest, Edith W., Manassah also ran.

SECOND RACE—Selling, maiden two-year-olds and up, five furlongs:
1. Lady Worthington, 98 (Martin), $11.20, $5, $2.70.
2. Circulate, 98 (Lamplie), $5.10, $2.30.
3. M. Bert Thurman, 98 (Henry), $2.60.
Time 1.01 1-5. Tiffe's Ma, Vanbel Worth, Argument, Busy Joe, McAdams, Industry, Flossie Walker, Al Pierce also ran.

THIRD RACE—Selling, three-year-olds and up, 1⅛ miles:
1. Fliaway, 107 (Pool), $19.60, $7.60, $6.20.
2. Herunda, 107 (Garner), $4.60, $3.80.
3. Bank Bill, 102 (Williams), $5.60.
Time 1.53 3-5. J. O. Stein, Mockery, Helen M., Transport, Goldy, Holy Hill, Fellow Man also ran.

FOURTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles:
1. Hodge, 122 (Garner), $7.50, $4.60, $3.90.
2. *John Gund, 105 (Goose), $8.80, $6.90.
3. Xrhnelling, 97 (Marco), $6.30.
Time 1.46 2-5. *Dr. Samuel, Star Jasmine, Solar Star, Water Witch, Grover Hughes, One Step, Lindenthal, Hank O'Day also ran.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs:
1. Prince Harry, 102 (Garner), $7.60, $3.20, $2.60.
2. Franklin, 106 (Keogh), $3.80, $2.60.
3. Rochester, 102 (Pool), $3.30.
Time 1.13 4-5. John Jr., Marie Henry also ran.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles:
1. Goldcrest Boy, 101 (Judy), $7.60, $3.50, $2.60.
2. Roslyn, 103 (Gentry), $4.60, $2.
3. Whilite, 108 (Taylor), $2.70.
Time 2.47 3-5. Miss Thorpe, Raoul also ran.

SEVENTH RACE—One mile:
1. Ed. Crump, 104 (Kederis), $7.90, $4.90, $3.80.
2. Dr. Larrick, 104 (Murphy), $3.20, $5.10.
3. Father Riley, 106 (Goose), $4.20.
Time 1.39. Ormulu, Fleetabelle, Brineburst, Just Red, Embroidery, Gowell also ran.

MOUNT ROYAL RESULTS.

MONTREAL, Sept. 20.—The results of the racing today are:

FIRST RACE—Selling, three-year-olds and up, six furlongs:
1. Goldcrest Boy, 101 (Judy), $7.60, $3.50, $2.60.
2. Roslyn, 103 (Gentry), $4.60, $2.
3. Whilite, 108 (Taylor), $2.70.
Time 2.47 3-5. Miss Thorpe, Raoul also ran.

SEVENTH RACE—One mile:
1. Ed. Crump, 104 (Kederis), $7.90, $4.90, $3.80.
2. Dr. Larrick, 104 (Murphy), $3.20, $5.10.
3. Father Riley, 106 (Goose), $4.20.
Time 1.39. Ormulu, Fleetabelle, Brineburst, Just Red, Embroidery, Gowell also ran.

LOUISVILLE RESULTS.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Sept. 20.—Following are the results of today's races:

FIRST RACE—Selling, three-year-olds and up, six furlongs:
1. Ed. Howard, 100 (Lamplie), $2.70, $2.30.
2. Mars Cassidy, 92 (Judy), $4.60, $2.60.
3. The Norman, 109 (Pool), $2.70.
Time 1.18. Mex, Royal Interest, Edith W., Manassah also ran.

SECOND RACE—Selling, maiden two-year-olds and up, five furlongs:
1. Lady Worthington, 98 (Martin), $11.20, $5, $2.70.
2. Circulate, 98 (Lamplie), $5.10, $2.30.
3. M. Bert Thurman, 98 (Henry), $2.60.
Time 1.01 1-5. Tiffe's Ma, Vanbel Worth, Argument, Busy Joe, McAdams, Industry, Flossie Walker, Al Pierce also ran.

THIRD RACE—Selling, three-year-olds and up, 1⅛ miles:
1. Fliaway, 107 (Pool), $19.60, $7.60, $6.20.
2. Herunda, 107 (Garner), $4.60, $3.80.
3. Bank Bill, 102 (Williams), $5.60.
Time 1.53 3-5. J. O. Stein, Mockery, Helen M., Transport, Goldy, Holy Hill, Fellow Man also ran.

FOURTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles:
1. Hodge, 122 (Garner), $7.50, $4.60, $3.90.
2. *John Gund, 105 (Goose), $8.80, $6.90.
3. Xrhnelling, 97 (Marco), $6.30.
Time 1.46 2-5. *Dr. Samuel, Star Jasmine, Solar Star, Water Witch, Grover Hughes, One Step, Lindenthal, Hank O'Day also ran.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs:
1. Prince Harry, 102 (Garner), $7.60, $3.20, $2.60.
2. Franklin, 106 (Keogh), $3.80, $2.60.
3. Rochester, 102 (Pool), $3.30.
Time 1.13 4-5. John Jr., Marie Henry also ran.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles:
1. Goldcrest Boy, 101 (Judy), $7.60, $3.50, $2.60.
2. Roslyn, 103 (Gentry), $4.60, $2.
3. Whilite, 108 (Taylor), $2.70.
Time 2.47 3-5. Miss Thorpe, Raoul also ran.

SEVENTH RACE—One mile:
1. Ed. Crump, 104 (Kederis), $7.90, $4.90, $3.80.
2. Dr. Larrick, 104 (Murphy), $3.20, $5.10.
3. Father Riley, 106 (Goose), $4.20.
Time 1.39. Ormulu, Fleetabelle, Brineburst, Just Red, Embroidery, Gowell also ran.

HARTFORD MAYOR GETS PROTEST ON "NATION" FILMS

Hartford, Sept. 18.—The Rev. Walter Gay of No. 58 Garden street, called upon Mayor Lawler at city hall yesterday and protested against the portrayal of the moving picture spectacle, "The Birth of a Nation," announced to be shown at a theater at an early date. Mr. Gay said he was an officer of an organization of colored people opposed to the presentation of the pictures in this city because of incidents illustrated which were likely to promote the degradation of colored people and tend to incite race hatred.

Mayor Lawler told Mr. Gay he knew little or nothing of the character of the production other than comment he had seen in the newspapers. He said he had talked informally with the theater owner about the forthcoming production and probably would talk further with him.

There has been opposition to the showing of the films in other cities, but it has been intimated that the filing of protests against forthcoming appearances in certain cities merely redounded to the prosperity of the box office. The scenes depicted in the films are from the Rev. Thomas Dixon's play, "The Clansman."

The presentation of the pictures in Philadelphia, a few days ago, precipitated a riot, and police were called to protect the film and the men producing it.

When "The Clansman" was billed for production as a play in a local theater, about seven years ago, col. Mored people of Hartford registered vigorous protest with Judge William F. Henney, who was then mayor. Mayor Henney went to New York to see the play prior to the date set for its presentation here, and upon his return issued the desired license authorizing its production.

ALEXANDRA MAT. TODAY.
The World's Mightiest Spectacle,
THE BIRTH OF A NATION
Night prices, 50c to $1.50. Matd., 50c to $1.00.

PROTEST AGAINST SHOWING HERE OF "BIRTH OF NATION"

COMMITTEE OF COLORED PEOPLE'S ORGANIZATION TO FILE COMPLAINT.

REFERRED TO LA BARRE

Executive committeemen of the local branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People appeared at the municipal building yesterday afternoon to lodge a complaint against the showing in this city of the motion picture spectacle, "The Birth of a Nation," as founded on Rev. Thomas Dixon's book and play, "The Clansman." It was reported that the committee was to enter its complaint with the city commission, but this was not done. The members went before Mayor Donnelly to announce their objection, but the mayor referred them to Commissioner La Barre, the director of public safety, through whose office such a complaint would have to be filed. Mr. La Barre was not in his office, and the committeemen left, stating they would return to see him this morning.

A protest against the presentation of "The Birth of a Nation" has been prepared, as follows:

"The object of the play, as stated by this man from whose book it is dramatized, Thomas Dixon, is that his whole purpose in writing it was to make the negroes, and especially negro men so objectionable that they would not be tolerated in this country, and to foster a feeling that they should be colonized in Liberia.

"In carrying out this purpose, the man who dramatized the book has not hesitated to resort to any villification of the negro race, and we, as colored men, feel that since the condition between the races is now already acute, and colored men are in many places denied their constitutional rights, and even hated by some people, that nothing should be done or said to aggravate these conditions.

"While this play is beautiful, and has many fine scenes, yet it is false history, pernicious in its effect, and is a reflection upon 10,000,000 negroes and stirs up their feelings."

Those who prepared the protest were Rev. Solomon P. Hood, pastor of Mt. Zion A. M. E. church; Professor T. Edward Kinney, principal of Lincoln school; Rev. W. H. Batchelor, pastor of St. Paul A. M. E. Zion church; Rev. John A. White, pastor of Shiloh Baptist church, and Dr. Paul A. Collins.

PHILADELPHIA (Pa.) INQUIRER
SEPT 21 1915

Negroes Protest "Birth of a Nation"

About two hundred of the leading colored men of this city, including lawyers, doctors, ministers and other professional and business men, met in Allen A. M. E. Church, Seventeenth and Bainbridge streets, yesterday afternoon as a result of the recent agitation against the "Birth of a Nation," and adopted plans to push the fight already started against the film being shown here. The play was discussed and explained and the negro members of the Philadelphia bar were asked as a committee of the whole to prepare the necessary steps to put the plans into action.

TORONTO DAILY STAR,
TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 21,

THEATRES

Undoubtedly an extraordinary and altogether remarkable spectacle is the film play "The Birth of a Nation," which was shown here for the first time at the Royal Alexandra Theatre yesterday afternoon and evening. As an epic story of American history, minutely, faithfully, wonderfully, reproducing the life and the spirit of half a century ago, when arose the issue between State sovereignty and nationhood to be fought out in the Civil War, this picture play has fascinated attention wherever it has been shown in the United States. As a spectacle—a moving-picture on a new and immense scale—it would likely exert more than ordinary power of attraction in any country in the world, even though the names General Grant, General Lee, Abraham Lincoln, household words in the United States, were elsewhere utterly unknown. In the space of two hours and forty minutes, or about the period of the average acted drama of the "legitimate" stage, are shown 15,000 characters, each historically costumed and fitted to the historical period, 3,000 horses, and 5,000 scenes. No detail apparently, is too small to escape perfection, nor too large to be successful. Expense was no bar to an elaboration of realism, which reproduces battles of the Civil War, with thousands of soldiers and horses in action, a theatre interior filled with a fashionable audience, of the fashions of fifty years ago, cities built and burned before a camera with lenses which reproduces landscape [illegible] with a perspective distance [illegible] two miles. The film as shown measures 12,000 feet, but [illegible] said that countless rehearsals and alterations 140,000 feet of exposures were made altogether to achieve the complete result. The cost is said to have been half a million. Mr. George E. Armstrong of the Board of Moving-Picture Censors, and Mr. Robert C. Newman of the Ontario Motion-Picture Theatre Inspection Office, who is one of a special board of three to whom appeals against the rulings of the Censor Board may be taken, witnessed the show yesterday afternoon. Mr. Armstrong had not seen the play himself previously, the film being passed upon by his two colleagues. Neither had Mr. Newman seen it before. Both expressed themselves yesterday afternoon as greatly impressed with the production, and failed to find anything that was uncalled for by the story of the play or unjustified by historical fact.

"The board eliminated some minor details before the production was passed," said Mr. Armstrong. "There were mainly such things as too much realism in the tragedies in the trenches, showing soldiers wounded or killed in battle, too plainly. At the present time particularly it was felt such scenes were too painful for reproduction in Canada. Also the chase scene, where a negro desperado is pursuing the Cameron girl, was cut in part. But there is nothing really in the play that should offend colored people, when it is remembered it follows history exactly. However, we suggested that the colored people visit the theatre and see the play before they made any further objection, and we would then consider their suggestions."

Mr. Newman also expressed appreciation of the stupendous scale of the production.

"I don't see any reason for an appeal from the Board of Censors," said he, "even if the right of appeal existed under the law."

The audience yesterday contained many colored people of both sexes, who had come to see for themselves in what light the colored race was to be portrayed. The unpleasant features of the "Reconstruction period" in the South were mitigated after the conclusion of the actual story by pictures of the modern schools and colleges in the States, such as Booker Washington, at Tuskagee, showing the success attained to date in the uplift of the colored race. There was no demonstration at the opening performance other than applause, which was heartiest at the spectacle of 2,000 mounted men of the Ku-Klux clan, clad in white dominoes, passing the camera at a gallop. The realism of the trench battle was also successful in stirring applause. The producers here look for a run of several weeks.

'NIONTOWN (Pa.) HERALD
SEPT. 21, 1915

NEGROES IN RIOT OVER A "MOV

(By Associated Press to The H

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 20. — lice reserves from the city ha several other police stations called out tonight to quell a demonstration by several h negroes in protest against th production which is running theatre in the center of the ci crowd of negroes marched t the hotels and theatre distric ing their disapproval of the p no attempt was made to sto until a halt was made in fron theatre and a stone hurled one of its big plate glass w One policeman was hit with and several negroes were bad en before the crowd was di

BOYS' AND GIRLS' SCHOOL
All styles and leathers. TH

NEGROES STORM THEATRE.

Attack Philadelphia House Showing "Birth of a Nation."

(Special to The World.)

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 20.—A mob of more than 1,000 negroes rioted tonight in front of the Forrest Theatre where "The Birth of a Nation" film is being shown, stormed and smashed the front doors and fired shots in the air before they were finally dispersed by the police, who rushed them with drawn clubs.

The rioters first gathered before the theatre about 5 o'clock, but were dispersed.

About 10 o'clock they collected again and began hurling bricks. They bowled over the few policemen left on guard and made a dash for the theatre entrances firing revolvers.

The ushers barred the theatre doors and kept all noise of the riot from the audience until the reserves arrived. The police had to beat the mob back from the theatre, breaking heads with their clubs as they did so.

MIDDLETOWN (N. Y.) TIMES-PRESS
SEPT. 21, 1915

Negroes Not Pleased By Photo Play

Philadelphia, Sept. 21.—One hundred policemen with drawn clubs and revolvers charged a crowd of 1,000 negroes in front of the Forrest theater, where the "Birth of a Nation" is being presented, while fully 5,000 white persons looked on.

Broad street for two squares presented a scene of the wildest disorder. The charge of the police followed the throwing of a brick by one of the negroes, the missile striking the upper pass in the entrance of the Forrest theater and shattering it.

Instantly the police who had been guarding the theater entrance pounced on the negroes. Hats flew in the air, negroes were knocked to the ground and the great majority of the offending parties fled down the street.

A second disturbance was begun at the corner of Walnut and Broad. Here a negro threw a brick, striking Patrolman Wallace Striker on the right arm. The officer turned on his assailant and struck viciously with his club. The negro ran with the policeman in pursuit.

Nearly fifty officers ran to Striker's assistance. They were joined by a large mob of no less than 1,000 white persons. More than a thousand of new recruits had assembled and Broad street was aflame with excitement.

Only one arrest was made. While a few shots were fired no one was reported as being hit.

MOTION PICTURE NEWS (New York City)
Sept. 4th 1915

...ORED ORGANIZATION IN SPOKANE, ALARMED ...ER "NATION," WILL WAGE WAR AGAINST OFFICIALS

"THE BIRTH OF A NATION" will be made an issue in the election of city commissioners in Spokane, Wash., this fall. The Colored Business Men's League and the Colored Men's Civic League, which cover together most of the negro population of the city, have launched the campaign, declaring war upon the present commissioners and other candidates who indorse the present system of film censorship in Spokane.

[illegible] step will be to register every [illegible] in the city, and every white [illegible] is in sympathy with the campaign. [illegible] city council [illegible] will be [illegible] an ordinance to prevent [illegible] tending to create race [illegible]

[illegible] the colored [illegible] announced that they would make a determined [illegible] who [illegible] proposal. Three of the five city commissioners are to be elected this year, giving a majority and the control of the city council to the faction which wins.

"We expect to co-operate with labor organizations and socialists in this fight," announced F. A. Stokes, president of the Colored Business Men's League.

"The Birth of a Nation," booked at the Clemmer for a run of two weeks, with the option of a third week, ran the fortnight to practically capacity business, and is now in the additional seven days.

J. B. Bertelson, advertising manager of the Camano theatre, who handled the business end of the Griffith film's run in Spokane, has gone to Portland, Ore., as the representative of James Q. Clemmer, of Seattle, who has booked the spectacle for four weeks at the Heilig in the Webfoot city. He will be absent from Spokane six weeks.

NEW YORK (N. Y.) CLIPPER

PITTSBURG BARS "NATION" FILM

Pittsburg, Pa., Aug. 28.—Following a protest by a score of negro citizens, Mayor Joseph G. A. Armstrong yesterday gave Superintendent of Police Matthews instructions not to allow the photo-play, "The Birth of a Nation," which was scheduled for a five weeks' run at the Nixon Theatre, to be shown.

NEGROES RIOT AT "BIRTH OF A NATION."

(Wire to THE CLIPPER.)

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 20.—A large crowd of negroes, estimated to be a thousand or more, stormed the Forrest Theatre to-night and attempted to stop "The Birth of a Nation," which is being shown at this house.

The negroes paraded in front of the theatre and, after holding a meeting, rushed the doors in an attempt to break into the house.

They were finally beaten off by the police, but not before a number of the rioters were badly battered. A number of shots were fired, but as far as could be learned no one was hit by the flying bullets.

A number of negroes were arrested, and more than a dozen later applied at the hospitals for treatment of their injuries.

The censorship must go!

...ES STORM THEATRE.

...iladelphia House Showing "Birth of a Nation."

(Special to The World.)

...ELPHIA, Sept. 20.—A mob ...an 1,000 negroes rioted tonight in front of the Forrest Theatre ...e Birth of a Nation" film is ...wn, stormed and smashed ...oors and fired shots in the ... they were finally dispersed ...ce, who rushed them with ...

...s first gathered before the ...ut 5 o'clock, but were dispersed.

About 10 o'clock they collected again and began hurling bricks. They bowled over the few policemen left on guard and made a dash for the theatre entrances firing revolvers.

The ushers barred the theatre doors and kept all noise of the riot from the audience until the reserves arrived. The police had to beat the mob back from the theatre, breaking heads with their clubs as they did so.

...YORK (N. Y.) WORLD

Press Phil Sept 21

COLORED MOB STARTS A RIOT OVER FILM PLAY

150 Policemen Charge Marchers in Front of Forrest Theater—Many Men Fall.

RIOTERS HURL BRICKS

An attempt by more than five hundred colored men and women to interfere with the production of "The Birth of a Nation" at the Forrest Theater, last night, resulted in a serious clash between the crowd and one hundred and fifty policemen, who had been sent to guard the theater. The police used their night sticks freely as they charged the mob, which answered with bricks and a revolver.

Seven colored men were sent to hospitals to have scalp wounds dressed, one has a broken arm and half a score were arrested. No white persons were injured as women and children fled when the crowd charged.

Four Arrested, Three Freed.

Four colored men were arrested, but when taken before Magistrate Beaton in the Night Court, three were discharged "for lack of evidence." All had been taken from the midst of the mob, however.

Arthur Lunn, nineteen years old, Fifty-seventh and Cherry Streets, was held in $500 bail after he had been identified as the man who threw a brick. He was arrested by Policemen Ferguson and Boyle.

The others were: Woodford Johnson, 1513 Lombard Street; Sidney E. Purnell, 1005 South Seventeenth Street, and Joseph Davenport, 516 South Sixtieth Street. Magistrate Beaton said he could not hold them, as no one had seen them do anything.

Three colored men, who appeared at Jefferson Hospital with scalp injuries, refused to give their names. They said they had been hit by a wagon.

Cards sent out earlier in the day, calling all colored people and white sympathizers to "a dignified meeting at the Forrest Theater to protest against "The Birth of a Nation," attracted the crowd. The cards had been scattered broadcast over the city and the police are searching for the persons who issued the invitations.

Agitators Assemble.

The colored opponents of the picture play marched back and forth past the Forrest Theater fully an hour, and when signs of serious trouble appeared Lieutenants Meyers and Duffy called for more reserves. In the meantime the colored agitators had begun to gather in force on every corner, shouting at passing white persons. Soon 150 reserves surrounded the theater and a double

CONTINUED ON PAGE 3, COLUMN 3.

Phil Record Sept 21

NEGROES RIOT AT THEATRE

Police Charge Mob in Broad Street and Break Many Heads.

When a mob of more than 500 negroes made several demonstratons last night in front of the Forrest Theatre to break up a moving-picture show, policemen under Captains Mills and Tempest answered a riot call and charged the crowd, making a number of arrests and sending scores to near-by hospitals with broken heads. The disorder was carried out on a prearranged plan and the crowds began to gather along Broad street between City Hall and Walnut street about 8 o'clock.

Word had been sent to the Central Station that trouble was expected around the theatre and a force of 100 reserves from the three central districts south of Market street was ent to the scene. For more than an hour they kept the throngs of colored men in motion and broke up all attempts at speech-making. Then the leaders of the mob tried strategy that threw the police partly off their guard. The mob marched twice around the block in which the theatre is located and sent volleys of jeers and cat-calls at the reserves. They continued marching south on Broad street and at Lombard street dispersed as if to go home.

Thinking the disturbance ended, a greater part of the police guard was withdrawn, but shortly before 11 o'clock the crowd again assembled at Broad and Lombard streets and made a second march to the theatre. Rushing the police drawn up before the entrance the mob shattered the transom over the main door with bricks. City Hall specials and reserves were called and drove the crowd in a hurry back to Lombard street. Clubs and blackjacks were freely used by the police and the mob was forced to disperse.

The Polyclinic, Douglass, Hahnemann and Medico-Chirurgical Hospitals treated more than a hundred injured men for lacerations and bruises. Policemen Ferguson and Boyle, of the Fifth district arrested Arthur Lunn, 19 years old, No. 5747 Cherry street, and he was held under $500 bail for further column of fifteen was drawn up in front of the door.

MOB STARTS RIOT OVER FILM PLAY

Continued from Page 1.

A delegation of colored men and women, numbering about fifty, approached the door and tried to enter, about nine o'clock, but were stopped by threats of arrest from the policemen, who had drawn their riot sticks. Angered because of this refusal they turned and called their friends to meet at Broad and South Streets, where a procession was formed.

As they marched uptown shouting threats at the white folk they passed, the streets quickly were cleared of white women and children. For more than an hour the police stood by watching this.

Finally as the parade passed the theater again, two men stepped from the crowd and hurled bricks through the large plate glass doors of the theater. At the same instant the entire mob turned towards the door as though about to rush it, shouting:—

"Hurrah for Director Porter!"

Charged by the Police.

At this every policeman, on both sides of the streets charged the mob, and rained blows upon the heads of the fighting mass of colored folk. Seven men fell and then bricks were hurled into the ranks of the bluecoats, without effect, however.

As the police charged again the colored people broke and fled, pursued by the policemen, headed by the lieutenants. Women and children, who had just turned from Walnut Street, were swept aside and patrons of the Bellevue-Stratford and the Ritz-Carlton left their tables and rushed to the windows to learn the cause of the disturbance. Several screaming children, who had become separated from their parents, were rushed into the hotels for safety.

Hardly had the excitement subsided on Broad Street, when two revolver shots were heard in Juniper Street. A crowd of colored men had come down an alley and apparently, had fired at two policemen standing on the corner. A few minutes later two more colored men were taken to a hospital. It was nearly time for the show to let out when the last man had been driven from the street.

None in Theater Heard Noise.

Inside the theater no one knew of the trouble. At the first sign the 100 private detectives employed by the theater in case of disturbances closed the doors and spread out among the audience. Not even when the bricks struck the doors did the audience hear the noise, as a result of the precautions taken by the management.

Canada (?)

great many rowdies and bad egs were numbered in its membership.

For the United States at the present time "The Birth of a Nation" has one important lesson. In the progress of the play it is shown that the operations of the Freedmen's Bureau, which aimed to place the blacks on a social and material equality with the whites, even to the point of intermarriage, were responsible for many of the incidents which render the Reconstruction Period a disgrace to American history. It is interesting to note that the Freedmen's Bureau was established by the same type of sloppy deluded sentimentalists who are talking pacifism and want to restrict the sale of munitions in the United States at the present time, and that they were the tools of the same type of corrupt and cunning politicians as are active in the pro-German cause to-day. It is obvious that the sketch of the radical politician, Stoneman, (the real villain of the piece) aims to depict the famous political leader, Thaddeus Stevens, of Pennsylvania, a man of enormous ability whose blood-thirsty vindictiveness toward the south in her hour of defeat was notorious. We in Canada have no reason to revere Stevens' memory since he was an advocate of the forcible annexation of this country, but in his younger days before fanaticism had become madness with him, he undoubtedly rendered great service to his country in fighting attempts by the south to extend the frontiers of slavery.

Though "The Birth of a Nation" is polemical and unfairly so, this does not detract from its merits as an entertainment. The battle scenes are the most wonderful pictures of their kind that have ever been presented, though of the eighteen thousand men said to have been employed in arranging them a considerable proportion seem to be obscured by smoke. Most effective also are the films showing the assassination of Lincoln, and throughout the pantomime of the various actors is superb and touches the emotions poignantly. Therefore, while one may disagree with Mr. Dixon's arguments, one has nothing but the most intense admiration for the skill of Mr. D. W. Griffith in the newest branch of theatrical art.

Hector Charlesworth

Ledger Phil Sept 21

NEGRO MOB CLUBBED FROM FILM THEATRE

Police Rout 500 Men, Who Threw Bricks and Milk Bottles

Five hundred negroes and 100 policemen battled last night in front of the Forrest Theatre, in South Broad street. One of the negroes, protesting against the "Birth of a Nation" film hurled a brick through a theatre window and a number of his companions made a concerted effort to enter the playhouse.

As a result of the battle at least five negroes went to hospitals and four more were arrested. Revolver shots and flying milk bottles were incidents of the riot.

Superintendent of Police Robinson, who had previous knowledge of the intention of the negroes to gather at the Forrest, was in personal command of the policemen. Fifty detectives were scattered along Broad street and inside the theatre.

As early as 8 o'clock a body of negroes paraded up and down Broad street, from Lombard to Chestnut, but because they were orderly the police did not interfere. Shortly after 9 o'clock, however, their numbers were trebled at Lombard street and they returned to the theatre.

When the negroes reached the theatre, some one in the crowd threw the brick through the big plate glass window above the entrance. Shouts went up and 50 or more negroes rushed against the closed theatre doors. Lieutenant Myers, of the 15th and Locust streets police station, at the head of a detail of police, started at once to halt the marchers. Negroes who could not run fast enough to dodge clubs received them upon their heads.

In five minutes the streets were swept clear of the mob, but a revolver shot rang out in Juniper street. It was not learned whether a policeman or a rioter fired the weapon. In Walnut street two negroes threw milk bottles at their pursuers.

The negroes arrested are Arthur Lunn, 19 years old, 5747 Cherry street, who is alleged to have thrown the brick through the window, and who was held in $500 bail for a further hearing for inciting to riot by Magistrate Beaton in the Night Court; Woodford Jackson, 1005 South 17th street; Joseph Davenport, 516 South 17th street, and Sydney Purnell, 1513 Lombard street. All except Lunn were discharged for lack of evidence.

Among those who were sent to hospitals were the Rev. Dr. W. G. Graham, pastor of Holy Trinity Baptist Church, who is in Douglass Hospital with four wounds in his scalp, and Lee F. Banks, 1913 North Taylor street, in the Hahnemann Hospital with severe lacerations. Three negroes also were treated at the Jefferson Hospital. Others, it is said, went to private physicians or were cared for by friends.

It was learned that the demonstration last night was planned by a committee of negro clergymen of various denominations, who have held meetings in the last three weeks. They had cards urging negroes and "white friends and sympathizers" to take part in the procession.

There were two meetings yesterday, one said to have been held at the African Methodist Episcopal book concern, 631 Pine street in the morning, and another at the Zion Baptist Church, 13th and Melon streets, in the afternoon. They were attended by nearly all negro ministers in the city. In fiery addresses the "Birth of a Nation" was denounced and the negro population was called [illegible] to oppose it

Ledger Sept 21

"BIRTH OF A NATION" RIOT IN QUAKER CITY

100 Policemen Charge Upon 1,000 Negroes at the Forrest Theatre.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 20.—One hundred policemen with drawn clubs and revolvers charged a crowd of 1,000 negroes to-night in front of the Forrest Theatre, where the motion play "The Birth of a Nation" is being presented. Fully 5,000 white persons saw the onslaught.

Broad street for two blocks presented for a few moments a scene of the wildest disorder. The charge of the police followed the throwing of a brick by one of the negroes. The brick struck the door glass at the entrance of the Forrest Theatre and shattered it.

Instantly the police, who had been guarding the theatre entrance, pounced on the negroes. Hats flew in the air, negroes were knocked to the ground and the larger part of the offending mob fled down the street.

The trouble lasted about two minutes. Employees of the theatre and many others got clubs which had been held in reserve inside the theatre and fifty men armed with these clubs quickly joined the police.

At the moment when it was thought the main body of the negroes had dispersed well down Broad street, a second disturbance was begun at the corner of Walnut and Broad. There a negro threw a brick, which struck Patrolman Wallace Striker on the right arm. The officer turned on his assailant with a club and the negro ran with the policeman in pursuit.

Fully fifty comrades followed Striker and they were joined by a yelling mob of 1,000 whites, but the negro assailant escaped.

Only one arrest was made. While a few shots were fired no one was reported as being hit.

A printed card was circulated in the negro sections of the city during the day. This card contained the following announcement:

"Rally! Rally! Rally!

"All colored citizens and their white friends and sympathizers are earnestly urged to assemble at the Forrest Theatre, Broad and Sansom streets, on Monday night at 8 o'clock to make a dignified protest against the photoplay known as 'The Birth of a Nation,' which is a horrible libel on and a most aggravating insult to every Afro-American."

Many Disturbances Have Been Caused by the Play.

Violent objections to certain features of the moving picture spectacle "The Birth of a Nation" have caused trouble in many cities. Agitations were started in theatres which usually culminated in riots and negro delegations appealing to the courts to have the film barred.

The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People in New York city brought the case to court, but later asked for its dismissal. An arrest was made here in April when a negro hurled an egg at the picture when it was being shown and a riot followed.

Post [illegible] Candidate

NEGR[illegible] [illegible]RM THEATRE.

Attack [illegible] Phila House Showing "Birth of a Nation."

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 21.—A mob of more than 1,000 negroes rioted last night in front of the Forrest Theatre where "The Birth of a Nation" film is being shown, stormed and smashed the front doors and fired shots in the air before they were finally dispersed by the police, who rushed them with drawn clubs.

The rioters first gathered before the theatre about 5 o'clock, but were dispersed.

About 10 o'clock they collected again and began hurling bricks. They bowled over the few policemen left on guard and made a dash for the theatre entrances firing revolvers.

The ushers barred the theatre doors and kept all noise of the riot from the audience until the reserves arrived. The police had to beat the mob back from the theatre, breaking heads with their clubs as they did so.

100 COPS FIGHT NEGRO MOBS IN BROAD ST. RIOT; MANY INJURED

Battle Follows Demonstration at Forrest Theater

BLACKS RESENT FILM OF 'THE BIRTH OF A NATION'

Crowds Yell and Hoot for Two Hours Before Glass Is Shattered

SCORE HEADS BATTERED

Attackers Cry 'We're for Porter; We Can Do Anything We Want'

One hundred policemen, with clubs and revolvers, last night charged a crowd of 500 negroes, in front of the Forrest Theater, while throngs of white persons looked on. The actual encounter followed an hour of parading and hooting by the negroes.

Broad street, from Sansom to Walnut, for a moment presented a scene of the wildest disorder. The charge of the police followed the throwing of a stone by a negro, the brick striking the upper glass in the entrance of the theater and shattering it.

Instantly twenty-five big reserves, who had been guarding the theater entrance, sprang at the negroes. Hats flew in the air, negroes were knocked down, and the great majority of the offending mob fled pell mell down the street. Among the fleeing negroes were several women.

The police were unable to determine how many negroes were seriously hurt, but no less than a score of cases were treated in the Jefferson, Polyclinic, Douglas and other hospitals. Many of the injured went to various hospitals in the south end of town.

While it was certain the negroes received their injuries in the theater riot, none would admit they had been near the disturbance. Fear of arrest, it is believed, prompted the negroes to make false statements as to the real cause of their distress.

So far as the police were able to learn, one of the negroes was severely injured. Hospital records, however, show a harvest of lacerated scalps, cuts and bruises.

The trouble lasted less than two minutes. Meanwhile, employes of the theater and onlookers selected clubs, which had been held in reserve inside the theater, and fifty men armed with these sticks joined the police.

For a while it appeared as though a serious riot would result. A detail of twenty men responded from the Central station, and the clanging of the bell on the patrol wagons added to the excitement.

Last night's attack was begun shortly before 10 o'clock. For fully two hours previously negroes had gathered in the neighborhood of the theater. A printed card was circulated in the negro sections yesterday. This card contained the following announcement:

> RALLY—RALLY—RALLY
>
> All colored citizens and their white friends and sympathizers are earnestly urged to assemble at the Forrest Theater, Broad and Sansom streets, on Monday night, at 8 o'clock, to make a dignified protest against the photoplay known as "The Birth of a Nation," which is horrible libel on and a most aggravating insult to every Afro-American.

...e of the cards fell into the hands of ... Forrest Theater management, and the ... department was sought. Eighty ...es were sent to the theater as a ...ution, and twenty-five of these were ... up near the entrance.

...nclothes men, as well as many ... of the fifth district, were scattered ... the street.

... the Ritz-Carlton, Bellevue-... League and Hotel Wal-... out windows to witness ... Broad street, from Chest-... Hotel

...

...

...

URGH COUR
Promotes Progress
LISHED IN PENNSYLVANIA BY COLORE
FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 10, 1915

Governor t a Nation" i

...ance, ...front doors.

They were beaten off by the police after their last attempt and a number of heads were broken among the rioters. A few shots were fired in the air.

The onslaught was the culmination of an undercurrent of resentment that has been gathering force ever since the announcement that the famous picture would be shown here. An effort was made to prevent its presentation, but the managers appealed to the courts and succeeded in getting an order which prevented the Director of Public Safety from interfering.

On the first night there were many negroes in the audience, but they made no demonstration.

To-night as early as 7 o'clock they began to gather in Broad street and by 8 o'clock fully a thousand more assembled and were before the theatre five or six times before the police and detectives finally shunted them north to City Hall.

There they held a protest meeting on the Plaza and then marched back to the theatre, where they were dispersed.

About 9 o'clock, however, the negroes collected again. They began hurling bricks, shouting threats against the management of the theatre and the owners of the film. They bowled over the few policemen left on guard and made a dash for the theatre entrance, smashing the glass and firing off revolvers.

Inside the theatre the ushers barred the doors and kept all noise of the riot from the audience. The reserves, summoned by telephone, arrived on the run. The police had to literally beat the mob back from the theatre, breaking heads with their clubs as they did so. A half dozen negroes were arrested while a dozen or more applied later for treatment for injuries at the hospitals.

OBSERVER
1915

...M PROTEST TO BE HELD AT CITY HALL

Mayor Permits Negroes to Hold Meeting in His Reception Room

Mayor Blankenburg today granted the request of a committee of negro ministers and physicians to hold a public meeting next Friday morning at 11 o'clock in the reception room of the City Hall, at which the play, "The Birth of a Nation," will be discussed. Mayor Blankenburg stipulated that the management of the Forrest Theatre be represented at the meeting.

The committee was headed by G. Edward Dickerson, a negro lawyer. In the party was Dr. W. A. Sinclair, of 1221 Pine street. Doctor Sinclair informed the Mayor that he was treated last night at the Douglas Hospital after being struck on the head with a club. This occurred during the rioting on Broad street.

It was reported today that City Solicitor Ryan would be appealed to by negroes of this city for the purpose of having a suit instituted against the theatre in the name of the city to prevent further productions of the performance.

A tall negro clergyman led a throng of 1500 of his race up Broad street last night. They chanted "Onward, Christian Soldiers" as they marched. Then, as they reached the front of the Forrest Theatre, where "The Birth of a Nation" is being shown, he twirled his cane aloft. The singing stopped. A brick was thrown.

"Get that man," shouted Lieutenant Duffy, of the Reserves. "Get them. Get them," repeated Lieutenant Myers, of the 15th and Locust streets station, again and again. The police, with drawn clubs, charged the throng. It broke and ran. Some took shelter in the lobbies of nearby hotels; some ran into the clubs that line Broad street, carrying with them white women, caught in the swirl; others ran down little streets.

The police whacked every head within whacking distance. Some where trampled on. The dark cross streets seemed to offer the best haven of comparative safety. While the clubless reserves were in the van of the pursuers, the bluecoats from the 15th and Locust streets station were testing the skull-cracking proclivities of their locust sticks. The nimble-footed reserves caught four men, one of whom was accused of having thrown the brick. He was the only prisoner held after the testimony had been presented before Magistrate Beaton, at the night court hearings.

The Rev. W. C. Graham, pastor of the Holy Trinity Church, was taken to the Douglass Hospital with severe lacerations of the head; two more were treated at the Hahnemann Hospital, while three negroes were treated at the Jefferson Hospital. The latter said they had been knocked down by a wagon earlier in the evening. A large number had their injuries dressed at home.

SEPT. 21, 1915
CATSKILL (N. Y.) MAIL

"BIRTH OF NATION" PROVOKES A RIOT

100 Police Charge Mob of 1,000 Negroes at Theater.

Philadelphia, Sept. 21.—One hundred policemen with drawn clubs and revolvers charged a crowd of 1,000 negroes in front of the Forrest theater, where the "Birth of a Nation" is being presented, while fully 5,000 white persons looked on.

Broad street for two squares presented a scene of the wildest disorder. The charge of the police followed the throwing of a brick by one of the negroes, the missile striking the upper glass in the entrance of the Forrest theater and shattering it.

Instantly the police who had been guarding the theater entrance pounced on the negroes. Hats flew in the air, negroes were knocked to the ground and the great majority of the offending mob fled down the street.

A second disturbance was begun at the corner of Walnut and Broad. Here a negro threw a brick, striking Patrolman Wallace Striker on the right arm. The officer turned on his assailant and swung viciously with his club. The negro ran with the policeman in pursuit.

Fully fifty officers ran to Striker's assistance. They were joined by a yelling mob of no less than 1,000 white men. More than a thousand of new spectators had assembled and Broad street was aflame with excitement.

Only one arrest was made. While a few shots were fired no one was reported as being hit.

FLUSHING (N. Y.) JOURNAL
SEPT. 21, 1915

FILM PLAY RIOTS IN PHILADELPHIA

'Birth of Nation' Stirs Negroes and Police Charge Mob.

Philadelphia, Sept. 21.—One hundred policemen with drawn clubs and revolvers charged a crowd of 1,000 negroes in front of the Forrest theater, where the "Birth of a Nation" is being presented, while fully 5,000 white persons looked on.

Broad street for two squares presented a scene of the wildest disorder. The charge of the police followed the throwing of a brick by one of the negroes, the missile striking the upper glass in the entrance of the Forrest theater and shattering it.

Instantly the police who had been guarding the theater entrance pounced on the negroes. Hats flew in the air, negroes were knocked to the ground and the great majority of the offending mob fled down the street.

A second disturbance was begun at the corner of Walnut and Broad. Here a negro threw a brick, striking Patrolman Wallace Striker on the right arm. The officer turned on his assailant and swung viciously with his club. The negro ran with the policeman in pursuit.

Fully fifty officers ran to Striker's assistance. They were joined by a yelling mob of no less than 1,000 white men. More than a thousand of new spectators had assembled and Broad street was aflame with excitement.

Only one arrest was made. While a few shots were fired no one was reported as being hit

Ev. Telegraph Sept 21

COLORED LEADERS PROTEST TO MAYOR "ATTACK BY POLICE"

Ask His Honor to Stop Photoplay Which Was Followed by Riot.

HE GRANTS HEARING

Sets 11 o'Clock Monday Morning as Hour for Meeting at the City Hall.

Mayor Blankenburg was appealed to by a committee of colored citizens today to stop the production of the film drama, "The Birth of a Nation," now playing at the Forrest Theatre, and also to prevent a repetition of the "police attack on colored persons, such as occurred last night, when nearly a score of heads were battered."

The committee was headed by Dr. W. A. Sinclair, 1221 Pine street, who is secretary of the Douglas Hospital.

Dr. Martin was one of those clubbed by the police in last night's disturbance, and he addressed the Mayor today with his head swathed in bandages. The committee, composed of five colored men, asked that the "objectionable film play" be stopped at once. To this request the Mayor replied that he was not sure he had the authority to stop the performance.

Then the committee asked permission to hold a protest meeting in the Mayor's reception room in the City Hall. This request was granted, and the Mayor set next Friday morning at 11 o'clock as the time for the meeting.

In granting the request, however, the Mayor specified that at the protest meeting both sides of the question be aired. This proviso gives the film managers the right to be represented at the meeting.

Police Superintendent Robinson today received from his lieutenants on duty at the Forrest Theatre last night a detailed report of the riotous demonstration in front of the playhouse by a mob of colored men who were protesting against the production of the film drama "The Birth of a Nation."

During the demonstration a force of approximately 150 patrolmen charged the colored people with their night sticks. Upwards of a dozen of the colored paraders received broken heads and had to be treated at several hospitals. Rev. W. G. Graham, pastor of Holy Trinity African Baptist Church, is in the Douglas Hospital, Sixteenth and Lombard streets, with four scalp wounds. The others were cared for at the Jefferson, Polyclinic and Hahnemann Hospitals. None of them was seriously injured.

The police made four arrests. The prisoners were taken to the Night Court, where Magistrate Beaton discharged three for lack of evidence. Arthur Lunn, 19 years old, 5747 Cherry street, was held for a further hearing today.

Ev. Bulletin Sept 21 1915

MAYOR TO REVIEW ROW OVER "MOVIE" ON FRIDAY

Colored Men, One With Head Bandaged, Call on Him and He Arranges Hearing

Mayor Blankenburg has set next Friday morning at 11 o'clock as the time for hearing the protest of representatives of a number of organizations and churches of the colored race against the further production of the film play, "The Birth of a Nation." A committee of five colored citizens called upon the Mayor to-day to secure his assent to a meeting, when they could voice their proest against the film production. Mayor Blankenburg said he would hear both sides and would invite those who favor the film to attend.

Dr. W. A. Sinclair, secretary of the Douglass Hospital, was one of the committee, and he appeared with a bandaged head, he having been injured in the rioting at the Forest Theatre last night.

Scores of injured men, nearly all of whom were colored, were treated for cuts and bruises in various hospitals as a result of a demonstration by several hundred negroes in front of the Forrest Theatre last night as a protest against "The Birth of a Nation."

Captains Mills and Tempest answered a riot call, and details of police charged the crowd. The crowds began to gather through a pre-arranged plan along Broad st., between City Hall and Walnut st., about 8 o'clock, and word was sent to the office of the Superintendent of Police that trouble was expected.

Four arrests were made, but only one man was held, Arthur Lunn, nineteen years, 57th and Cherry sts., who is alleged to have thrown a brick. He was held in $500 bail by Magistrate Beaton in the Night Court for a further hearing on a charge of inciting to riot.

The throwing of a brick through a large plate-glass window over the theatre entrance started the trouble. The police charged the crowd and wielded their clubs right and left.

Those who had their injuries treated at Douglass Hospital, all of whom are colored, are: The Rev. W. F. Graham, 1631 Christian st., pastor of Holy Trinity Baptist Church; the Rev. Mack Woodson, 350 W. Penn st., Germantown; Henry Cooper, 1824 Garrett st.; Carl Vaughan, 2338 Naudain st.; Lee Banks, 1831 Taylor st.; James Olden, 1304 Potts st.; James McNealey, Orthodox st., Frankford, and Dr. W. A. Sinclair, 1221 Pine st. All had lacerations of the scalp, the most serious being Banks, whose injury required six stitches. All were discharged after their injuries were dressed.

Wallace Striker, a policeman of the 15th and Locust sts. station, whose arm was sprained, was treated in the Jefferson Hospital. Eight negroes had their injuries dressed at the Jefferson Hospital, including Arthur Lunn, who subsequently was placed under arrest and held for a further investigation. The other colored men who received treatment in the Jefferson Hospital declined to give their names.

"The Bulletin" received a badly misspelled letter to-day signed "A Colored Woman," which was as follows:

"Dear Sir—As a good colored citizen of Philadelphia for forty-five years I take it on myself to warn you to inform the patrons of the Forrest that there is something awful going to happen to the house in the midst of a show and it will be one of the greatest calamities in the history of Philadelphia. I warn you to warn the public of this thing."

COHOES (N. Y.) DISPATCH
SEPT. 21, 1915

FILM PLAY RIOTS IN PHILADELPHIA

'Birth of Nation' Stirs Negroes and Police Charge Mob.

Philadelphia, Sept. 21.—One hundred policemen with drawn clubs and revolvers charged a crowd of 1,000 negroes in front of the Forrest theater, where the "Birth of a Nation" is being presented, while fully 5,000 white persons looked on.

Broad street for two squares presented a scene of the wildest disorder. The charge of the police followed the throwing of a brick by one of the negroes, the missile striking the upper glass in the entrance of the Forrest theater and shattering it.

Instantly the police who had been guarding the theater entrance pounced on the negroes. Hats flew in the air, negroes were knocked to the ground and the great majority of the offending mob fled down the street.

A second disturbance was begun at the corner of Walnut and Broad. Here a negro threw a brick, striking Patrolman Wallace Striker on the right arm. The officer turned on his assailant and swung viciously with his club. The negro ran with the policeman in pursuit.

Fully fifty officers ran to Striker's assistance. They were joined by a yelling mob of no less than 1,000 white men. More than a thousand of new spectators had assembled and Broad street was aflame with excitement.

Only one arrest was made. While a few shots were fired no one was reported as being hit.

Philadelphia, (Pa.) Public Ledger
Date ..... SEP 22 1915

Inflaming Race Resentment

OF COURSE, the more disturbance there is at the doors of a local film [illegible] where a drama offensive to the [illegible] population is being presented, the better advertised the play will be and the larger the receipts at the box office. Instead of trying to inflame their congregations to protest, the pastors of colored churches would do well to ignore a performance whose success they assure by instigating riot. There is no quarrel between the races, which have entered into a tacit agreement to work out their destinies side by side; and every event that accentuates friction and artificially foments a disturbance is mischievous. What is founded upon erroneous tenets and theses in any form of art must perish in time by its own falsity; and it is as true of the drama as of any other form of literature that every lie has in itself the seeds of decay. The policy to pursue for those who wish to drive a picture play from the stage or a novel from the bookstalls is to let it severely alone, that it [illegible]

RICHMOND (Va.) LEADER
SEPT. 22, 1915

HOW RICHMOND WILL ACT WHEN "BIRTH OF A NATION" ARRIVES IS BIG QUESTION

Movie Drama Which Precipitated Riots in the North and Caused Norfolk Council to Prohibit Its Appearance, is Booked to Show Here Next Month.

Speculation over the reception the RICHMOND authorities will accord the motion picture production entitled, "The Birth of a Nation," which is booked for the Academy of Music the week of Oct. 25, has been aroused by reports from Norfolk, where the council hurriedly passed an ordinance designed to prevent the presentation of the film in that city next week.

At a lively meeting of the Norfolk council the picture was denounced as "highly objectionable," "insulting to any audience, white or black," "calculated to arouse race hatred and possibly race riots" and as "unfit to be displayed in any city." Moe Levy, counsel for the Wells theatrical interests in Norfolk, opposed the action taken by the council, contending the mayor could exercise his police powers and forbid the presentation of the film if he thought such a course necessary after witnessing a performance.

From Philadelphia it is reported that a mob of more than 1,000 negroes rioted in front of the theatre where "The Birth of a Nation" is being shown this week. The mob stormed and smashed the front doors and fired shots in the air before being finally dispersed by a detachment of police reserves using drawn clubs.

Other Cities Object.

Opposition to the film has been developed in a number of other cities besides Norfolk and Philadelphia. Chicago, Boston, Pittsburgh, Atlantic City, St. Louis and Los Angeles are included in the list of cities where there has been trouble.

The most recent instance of interference in RICHMOND with a theatrical production was the arrest last season of Mrs. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw at the Academy of Music on the ground that she was giving an exhibition tending to corrupt public morals. She was arrested by Chief of Police Werner and acquitted of the charge by Police Justice Crutchfield.

Commenting on the drastic action taken by the Norfolk council, Mayor Ainslie said today it would be possible to prevent a performance of any kind in this city which was calculated to cause a breach of the peace by simply exercising the police powers customary in such cases.

"The Birth of a Nation" is a pretentious motion-picture production by D. W. Griffith and was originally presented in New York, where it was shown for months to large audiences at a $2 scale of prices. The Epoch Producing Corporation, of New York, which is responsible for the production, asserts that Griffith for his basic drama utilized two stories of the South, "The Clansman" and "The Leopard's Spots," by Thomas Dixon. It is said the great national drama enacted in the years bridged by Mr. Dixon's novels appealed to Griffith for its historical worth and the spectacular opportunities it afforded as a theme for a play showing the trials America passed through half a century ago.

Fixes Responsibility.

The producers lay the responsibility for the opposition to their picture on a society composed of white and colored members calling itself the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. Attacks on the Griffith film are alleged to have their origin in The Crisis, the official organ of this association. It is a monthly publication claiming to be devoted to the interests of colored citizens.

"The Birth of a Nation" was passed unanimously by the national board of censors and the producers contend it is a work of art in a new form which deserves serious consideration.

PHILADELPHIA (Pa.) INQUIRER
SEPT. 22, 1915

DELEGATION SEES MAYOR, PROTESTS FILM DRAMA

Permission Granted Colored Men to Hold Meeting in City Hall Reception Room

Following the riot which occurred on Monday night in front of the Forrest Theatre, when a delegation of negroes, marching to protest against the showing of the film "The Birth of a Nation," encountered about one hundred and fifty policemen, a committee of five colored residents called upon Mayor Blankenburg, protesting against the drama, and asked permission to use his reception room in City Hall for a meeting to protest against the performance of the photoplay.

At their request, Mayor Blankenburg designated Friday morning as the time for the meeting, but stipulated that both sides of the question should be considered. To reply to the arguments of the colored citizens, a representative of the film company probably will attend the meeting.

The committee which waited upon the Mayor yesterday was headed by Dr. W. A. Sinclair, secretary of the Douglas Hospital, who appeared with his head bandaged, as the result of being struck by a policeman's club during the disturbance on Monday night.

Superintendent Robinson received a detailed report yesterday of Monday night's riot. Rev. W. G. Graham, pastor of Holy Trinity African Baptist Church, is in the Douglas Hospital, Sixteenth and Lombard streets, with four scalp wounds. Others were cared for at the Jefferson, Polyclinic and Hahnemann Hospitals. None of them was seriously injured.

The police made four arrests. The prisoners were taken to the Night Court, where Magistrate Beaton discharged three for lack of evidence. Arthur Lunn, 19 years old, 5747 Cherry street, was

LOCKPORT (N. Y.) UNION-SUN
SEPT. 21, 1915

Balkans has alr...

NEGROES STORM THEATRE SHOWING A RACE FILM

(United Press Association.)

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 21.—The district attorney's office began an investigation today to determine, if possible, the identity of the persons who instigated the agitation that last night resulted in a riot between 500 negroes and 100 policemen in front of the Forest Theatre, where the photo-play "The Birth of a Nation" is being shown. The agitation among the negro it is said, started two weeks ago. Last night a huge demonstration was planned in front of the theatre. The riot started when Arthur Lunn, 19, hurled a brick through a theatre window. The negroes then charged the entrance of the theatre. Fifty policemen repulsed the rush and when reinforcements arrived from other stations the negroes dispersed leaving behind half a dozen with cracked heads. A score were injured.

ST. LOUIS [illegible] DISPATCH
SEPT. 21, 1915

...ORSES THIS CHANGE.

Negro Segregation.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

The citizens of St. Louis should know the real purpose and effect of the "Birth of a Nation" now playing at the Olympic in this city. The show is based on the "Clansman," whose clear purpose is an assault upon the colored race in this country. This photo play so far as its realistic and mechanical features are concerned is, in the estimation of all, of a high order; but by so much it is a vile slander in that it emphasizes the incidental occurrences and suppresses the essential and vital facts of the war and reconstruction period with a view to stirring enmity against the negroes in this country. Both the black and white races who see this play feel deeper aversion for each other than ever.

When the people thus embittered file out of the theater by the hundreds every night, the white segregationists who are trying to segregate by law the negroes in St. Louis give out a paper called the "Home Defender" which is filled with vitriolic references to the black man, holding up the worse elements of the negro and saying nothing, of course, about the thousands making good along all lines. What on earth is the matter with these people? Shall the better, the Christian elements of St. Louis be silent in view of this propaganda of race hate and race tradition? For when hate is thoroughly established, then what? When the general slaughter of negroes takes place and St. Louis is a charnel house, then what? Then St. Louis will reap what she has sown. It seems that God is hardening the heart of the American nation and of several American communities before His withering judgment falls.

The American people are hailing Thomas Dixon their friend, but he is the most subtle foe of the black man and a most dangerous enemy of the republic. Instead of calling his play "The Birth of a Nation," it should be called "The Death of a Nation." At this awful hour in the world's history, when our own nation, hardly sure of itself, needs all her citizens to stand together in harmonious loyal support, the negro element, than whom none is more true to the flag, is being embittered, alienated and, in its essential American life, assassinated. We urge Christian St. Louis, which is the dominant St. Louis, to give this whole matter its most serious consideration and find its voice and pen in protest. Your for country and the right. GEORGE E. [illegible]

MOTION PICTURE NEWS (New York

"KU KLUX," ADVERTISING "NATION," ATTACKED BY GANG

The Ku Klux Klan was given a taste of real battle during the Spokane, Wash., engagement of "The Birth of a Nation." The "night riders" came out second best.

While the film was running, H. S. Clemmer, manager of the Clemmer theatre, at which it was being shown, engaged ten riders to don the garb of the clan and ride through the streets each day and evening. One night during the third week of the run a gang of men on First avenue, armed with clubs and bricks, set upon the party. Not until scream came from the first six riders did the attacking party learn that some of the persons in the grotesque costumes were women. They then turned their attention to the men. Rocks and sticks flew, yells were given and frightened horses bolted.

One of the riders, Mabel Bruner, aged 18, had a narrow escape from serious injury when her mount, struck with a fence paling, reared and fell with her. Henry Kline, a clansman, went to her rescue and was severely beaten.

The police made three arrests.

In its 40 performances, "The Birth of a Nation" played to approximately 38,000 persons. The capacity of the Clemmer is 1,000.

CHARLOTTE (N. C.) OBSERVER
SEPT. 23, 1915

NEGROES AND DIXON'S PLAY.

"The Birth of a Nation," which is being unnecessarily red-ragged throughout the country, was put on in the City of Brotherly Love, the other day, and the colored man and brother made the usual demonstration against it. Being among Northern friends, the negroes no doubt felt emboldened to venture too far in the exercise of their privileges as American citizens and were treated rather roughly by the police. Rev. W. G. Graham, the pastor of Holy Trinity Baptist Church, who appears to have led in the demonstration, was handled with little respect, having turned up at a local hospital after the battle with four wounds on his head. Four other negroes were sent to the hospital and four not badly hurt were taken to police headquarters. There were 500 colored people in the mob. They had the disadvantage in weapons, the police using pistols and clubs and the negroes hurling bricks and milk bottles. It appears that the demonstration had been incited by a committee of negro clergymen, only one of whom shared in the consequences. It is the same old story. Even among his own race the negro is used as a tool and in the Philadelphia case, those upon whom the punishment should justly fall will escape. "The Birth of a Nation" was planned by a money-making corporation and was written by a man with money-making as his object. It teaches no lesson, moral or otherwise. It is highly spectacular and cheaply sensational. It is coming South. We shall hope that on its travels through this section it will be met with a manifestation of the good sense of the colored people that will stand out in contrast to the conduct of the misguided actions of the colored people in the Northern States. In giving it notoriety, the colored people have given life to "The Birth of a Nation." One or two demonstrations in the South like that in Philadelphia is what the owners of the play desire above all else, for one demonstration by negroes in the South would count for more in the way of a sensational advertisement than all the mob incidents in the North put together. The Observer wants the Southern negroes to be guided by their own good sense and the advice of their white friends, and thereby they will deal this sensational play the hardest blow it could receive, in paying no attention to it.

"BIRTH OF A NATION" RIOT IN QUAKER CITY

100 Policemen Charge Upon 1,000 Negroes at the Forrest Theatre.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 20.—One hundred policemen with drawn clubs and revolvers charged a crowd of 1,000 negroes to-night in front of the Forrest Theatre, where the motion play "The Birth of a Nation" is being presented. Fully 5,000 white persons saw the onslaught.

Broad street for two blocks presented for a few moments a scene of the wildest disorder. The charge of the police followed the throwing of a brick by one of the negroes. The brick struck the door glass at the entrance of the Forrest Theatre and shattered it.

Instantly the police, who had been guarding the theatre entrance, pounced on the negroes. Hats flew in the air, negroes were knocked to the ground and the larger part of the offending mob fled down the street.

The trouble lasted about two minutes. Employees of the theatre and many others got clubs which had been held in reserve inside the theatre and fifty men armed with these clubs quickly joined the police.

At the moment when it was thought the main body of the negroes had dispersed well down Broad street, a second disturbance was begun at the corner of Walnut and Broad. There a negro threw a brick, which struck Patrolman Wallace Striker on the right arm. The officer turned on his assailant with a club and the negro ran with the policeman in pursuit.

Fully fifty comrades followed Striker and they were joined by a yelling mob of 1,000 whites, but the negro assailant escaped.

Only one arrest was made. While a few shots were fired no one was reported as being hit.

A printed card was circulated in the negro sections of the city during the day. This card contained the following announcement:

"Rally! Rally! Rally!

"All colored citizens and their white friends and sympathizers are earnestly urged to assemble at the Forrest Theatre, Broad and Sansom streets, on Monday night at 8 o'clock to make a dignified protest against the photoplay known as 'The Birth of a Nation,' which is a horrible libel on and a most aggravating [illegible]

CLIPPING FROM Toronto (Can)
Date 9-15-15

"BIRTH OF A NATION" NOT OBJECTIONABLE

"Movie" Censors Declare It Has No National Bearing.

IS HISTORY OF THE U.S.

Colored People Appear to Be the Only Opponents of the Film.

So far as can be learned, the only opposition which has arisen to the "movie" film "The Birth of a Nation" comes from the colored population. This is the attraction booked for the Royal Alexandra Theatre next week, but owing to the fact that one section of it appears to cast a reflection on the colored people of the Southern States, strong opposition is being raised by the local society. The theatrical management report that no other complaints have come in, though the question has been raised as to whether or not this is the type of "movie" which Canada wants to see just now, seeing that it depicts battle scenes from the American Civil war.

History of U.S.

As "The Birth of a Nation" deals entirely with the United States and their growth after the freedom of the slaves, and as the only troops shown are American, the management claims that it can have no bearing upon the present high national tension. The film takes two hours and 40 minutes to run and sketches the whole struggle of the Civil War. It begins by showing the importation of slaves from Africa, the causes leading up to the Civil War, and vivid battle scenes, including the burning of towns. Afterwards it shows the resultant rise of the negro population after their emancipation, and the bitterness which grew up between the blacks and the whites in the South. The part objected to by the colored people comes in at this point, showing negroes pursuing white girls. The film concludes by showing the activities of the Ku Klux Klan in keeping down the negroes.

Board Passed It.

"The film was passed by our Board of Censors," stated Mr. George Armstrong, head of the Censor Board. "We could not see that it had any national bearing, or that there was anything which touched upon the present war or could have any application to it whatever. The film simply treats one period of history in the United States, with which period neither England nor Canada had any part. The film has proved a success in the States, but whether or not it is of the type Canada wants remains to be seen. It certainly has no objectionable features from the national standpoint."

Societies Don't Complain.

"Patriotic societies are not paying any attention to it," stated a prominent member of the Red Cross. "Any offence it could give to the colored people must surely be slight."

"I must say that the delegation opposing the film has been very much misinformed," stated Mr. W. E. Cuthbert, of the theatre. "This picture shows the difficulty of the reconstruction period in the South after the war, and in no way casts an unfavorable light upon the present-day negro. The picture was passed by the New York Censor Board, which is said to be one of the most exacting and scrupulous in America. A cut would have been made had there been any reflection at all upon the negroes, as New York can boast of a very large and respected negro population.

"I wish to state that about 500 feet of this film drama is devoted to the present-day negroes, showing their schools, industries, etc., and how it would be hard for the South to get along without them, and also showing him to be an honorable and respected citizen."

[illegible] bur command" [illegible] for [illegible] allowed to be show[illegible]

COHOES (N. Y.) DISPATCH
SEPT. 21, 1915

FILM PLAY RIOTS IN PHILADELPHIA

'Birth of Nation' Stirs Negroes and Police Charge Mob.

Philadelphia, Sept. 21.—One hundred policemen with drawn clubs and revolvers charged a crowd of 1,000 negroes in front of the Forrest theater, where the "Birth of a Nation" is being presented, while fully 5,000 white persons looked on.

Broad street for two squares presented a scene of the wildest disorder. The charge of the police followed the throwing of a brick by one of the negroes, the missile striking the upper glass in the entrance of the Forrest theater and shattering it.

Instantly the police who had been guarding the theater entrance pounced on the negroes. Hats flew in the air, negroes were knocked to the ground and the great majority of the offending mob fled down the street.

A second disturbance was begun at the corner of Walnut and Broad. Here a negro threw a brick, striking Patrolman Wallace Striker on the right arm. The officer turned on his assailant and swung viciously with his club. The negro ran with the policeman in pursuit.

Fully fifty officers ran to Striker's assistance. They were joined by a yelling mob of no less than 1,000 white men. More than a thousand of new spectators had assembled and Broad street was aflame with excitement.

Only one arrest was made. While a few shots were fired no one was reported as being hit.

Philadelphia, (Pa.) Public Ledger
Date ..... SEP 22 1915.

Inflaming Race Resentment

OF COURSE, the more disturbance there is at the doors of a local film house where a drama offensive to the colored population is being presented, the better advertised the play will be and the larger the receipts at the box office. Instead of trying to inflame their congregations to protest, the pastors of colored churches would do well to ignore a performance whose success they assure by instigating riot. There is no quarrel between the races, which have entered into a tacit agreement to work out their destinies side by side; and every event that accentuates friction and artificially foments a disturbance is mischievous. What is founded upon erroneous tenets and theses in any form of art must perish in time by its own falsity; and it is as true of the drama as of any other form of literature that every lie has in itself the seeds of decay. The policy to pursue for those who wish to drive a picture play from the stage or a novel from the bookstalls is to let it severely alone, that it [illegible]

RICHMOND (Va.) LEADER
SEPT. 22, 1915

HOW RICHMOND WILL ACT WHEN "BIRTH OF A NATION" ARRIVES IS BIG QUESTION

Movie Drama Which Precipitated Riots in the North and Caused Norfolk Council to Prohibit Its Appearance, is Booked to Show Here Next Month.

Speculation over the reception the RICHMOND authorities will accord the motion picture production entitled, "The Birth of a Nation," which is booked for the Academy of Music the week of Oct. 25, has been aroused by reports from Norfolk, where the council hurriedly passed an ordinance designed to prevent the presentation of the film in that city next week.

At a lively meeting of the Norfolk council the picture was denounced as "highly objectionable," "insulting to any audience, white or black," "calculated to arouse race hatred and possibly race riots" and as "unfit to be displayed in any city." Moe Levy, counsel for the Wells theatrical interests in Norfolk, opposed the action taken by the council, contending the mayor could exercise his police powers and forbid the presentation of the film if he thought such a course necessary after witnessing a performance.

From Philadelphia it is reported that a mob of more than 1,000 negroes rioted in front of the theatre where "The Birth of a Nation" is being shown this week. The mob stormed and smashed the front doors and fired shots in the air before being finally dispersed by a detachment of police reserves using drawn clubs.

Other Cities Object.

Opposition to the film has been developed in a number of other cities besides Norfolk and Philadelphia. Chicago, Boston, Pittsburgh, Atlantic City, St. Louis and Los Angeles are included in the list of cities where there has been trouble.

The most recent instance of interference in RICHMOND with a theatrical production was the arrest last season of Mrs. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw at the Academy of Music on the ground that she was giving an exhibition tending to corrupt public morals. She was arrested by Chief of Police Werner and acquitted of the charge by Police Justice Crutchfield.

Commenting on the drastic action taken by the Norfolk council, Mayor Ainslie said today it would be possible to prevent a performance of any kind in this city which was calculated to cause a breach of the peace by simply exercising the police powers customary in such cases.

"The Birth of a Nation" is a pretentious motion-picture production by D. W. Griffith and was originally presented in New York, where it was shown for months to large audiences at a $2 scale of prices. The Epoch Producing Corporation, of New York, which is responsible for the production, asserts that Griffith for his basic drama utilized two stories of the South, "The Clansman" and "The Leopard's Spots," by Thomas Dixon. It is said the great national drama enacted in the years bridged by Mr. Dixon's novels appealed to Griffith for its historical worth and the spectacular opportunities it afforded as a theme for a play showing the trials America passed through half a century ago.

Fixes Responsibility.

The producers lay the responsibility for the opposition to their picture on a society composed of white and colored members calling itself the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. Attacks on the Griffith film are alleged to have their origin in The Crisis, the official organ of this association. It is a monthly publication claiming to be devoted to the interests of colored citizens.

"The Birth of a Nation" was passed unanimously by the national board of censors and the producers contend it is a work of art in a new form which deserves serious consideration.

PHILADELPHIA (Pa.) INQUIRER
SEPT. 22, 1915

DELEGATION SEES MAYOR, PROTESTS FILM DRAMA

Permission Granted Colored Men to Hold Meeting in City Hall Reception Room

Following the riot which occurred on Monday night in front of the Forrest Theatre, when a delegation of negroes, marching to protest against the showing of the film "The Birth of a Nation," encountered about one hundred and fifty policemen, a committee of five colored residents called upon Mayor Blankenburg, protesting against the drama, and asked permission to use his reception room in City Hall for a meeting to protest against the performance of the photoplay.

At their request, Mayor Blankenburg designated Friday morning as the time for the meeting, but stipulated that both sides of the question should be considered. To reply to the arguments of the colored citizens, a representative of the film company probably will attend the meeting.

The committee which waited upon the Mayor yesterday was headed by Dr. W. A. Sinclair, secretary of the Douglas Hospital, who appeared with his head bandaged, as the result of being struck by a policeman's club during the disturbance on Monday night.

Superintendent Robinson received a detailed report yesterday of Monday night's riot. Rev. W. G. Graham, pastor of Holy Trinity African Baptist Church, in the Douglas Hospital, Sixteenth and Lombard streets, with four scalp wounds. Others were cared for at the Jefferson, Polyclinic and Hahnemann Hospitals. None of them was seriously injured.

The police made four arrests. The prisoners were taken to the Night Court, where Magistrate Beaton discharged three for lack of evidence. Arthur Lunn, 19 years old, 5747 Cherry street, was

LOCKPORT (N. Y.) UNION-SUN
SEPT. 21, 1915

Balkans has alr...

NEGROES STORM THEATRE SHOWING A RACE FILM

(United Press Association.)

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 21.—The district attorney's office began an investigation today to determine, if possible, the identity of the persons who instigated the agitation that last night resulted in a riot between 500 negroes and 100 policemen in front of the Forest Theatre, where the photo-play "The Birth of a Nation" is being shown. The agitation among the negro it is said, started two weeks ago. Last night a huge demonstration was planned in front of the theatre. The riot started when Arthur Lunn, 19, hurled a brick through a theatre window. The negroes then charged the entrance of the theatre. Fifty policemen repulsed the rush and when reinforcements arrived from other stations the negroes dispersed leaving behind half a dozen with cracked heads. A score were injured.

ST. LOUIS [illegible] DISPATCH
SEPT. 22, 1915

[illegible] THIS CHANGE.

Negro Segregation.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

The citizens of St. Louis should know the real purpose and effect of the "Birth of a Nation" now playing at the Olympic in this city. The show is based on the "Clansman," whose clear purpose is an assault upon the colored race in this country. This photo play so far as its realistic and mechanical features are concerned is, in the estimation of all, of a high order; but by so much it is a vile slander in that it emphasizes the incidental occurrences and suppresses the essential and vital facts of the war and reconstruction period with a view to stirring enmity against the negroes in this country. Both the black and white races who see this play feel deeper aversion for each other than ever.

When the people pass embittered file out of the theater by the hundreds every night, the white segregationists who are trying to segregate by law the negroes in St. Louis give out a paper called the "Homo Defender" which is filled with vitriolic references to the black man, holding up the worse elements of the negro and saying nothing, of course, about the thousands making good along all lines. What on earth is the matter with these people? Shall the better, the Christian elements of St. Louis be silent in view of this propaganda of race hate and race tradition? For when hate is thoroughly established, then what? When the general slaughter of negroes takes place and St. Louis is a charnel house, then what? Then St. Louis will reap what she has sown. It seems that God is hardening the heart of the American nation and of several American communities before His withering judgment falls.

The American people are hailing Thomas Dixon their friend, but he is the most subtle foe of the black man and a most dangerous enemy of the republic. Instead of calling his play "The Birth of a Nation," it should be called "The Death of a Nation." At this awful hour in the world's history, when our own nation, hardly sure of itself, needs all her citizens to stand together in harmonious loyal support, the negro element, than whom none is more true to the flag, is being embittered, alienated and, in its essential American life, assassinated. We urge Christian St. Louis, which is the dominant St. Louis, to give this whole matter its most serious consideration and find its voice and pen in protest. Yours for country and the right. GEORGE E. [illegible]

MOTION PICTURE NEWS (New York

"KU KLUX," ADVERTISING "NATION," ATTACKED BY GANG

The Ku Klux Klan was given a taste of real battle during the Spokane, Wash., engagement of "The Birth of a Nation." The "night riders" came out second best.

While the film was running, H. S. Clemmer, manager of the Clemmer theatre, at which it was being shown, engaged ten riders to don the garb of the clan and ride through the streets each day and evening. One night during the third week of the run a gang of men on First avenue, armed with clubs and bricks, set upon the party. Not until screams came from the first six riders did the attacking party learn that some of the persons in the grotesque costumes were women. They then turned their attention to the men. Rocks and sticks flew, yells were given and frightened horses bolted.

One of the riders, Mabel Bruner, aged 18, had a narrow escape from serious injury when her mount, struck with a fence paling, reared and fell with her. Henry Kline, a clansman, went to her rescue and was severely beaten.

The police made three arrests.

In its 40 performances, "The Birth of a Nation" played to approximately 38,000 persons. The capacity of the Clemmer is 1,000.

NEW YORK (N. Y.) SUN

"BIRTH OF A NATION" RIOT IN QUAKER CITY

100 Policemen Charge Upon 1,000 Negroes at the Forrest Theatre.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 20.—One hundred policemen with drawn clubs and revolvers charged a crowd of 1,000 negroes to-night in front of the Forrest Theatre, where the motion play "The Birth of a Nation" is being presented. Fully 5,000 white persons saw the onslaught.

Broad street for two blocks presented for a few moments a scene of the wildest disorder. The charge of the police followed the throwing of a brick by one of the negroes. The brick struck the door glass at the entrance of the Forrest Theatre and shattered it.

Instantly the police, who had been guarding the theatre entrance, pounced on the negroes. Hats flew in the air, negroes were knocked to the ground and the larger part of the offending mob fled down the street.

The trouble lasted about two minutes. Employees of the theatre and many others got clubs which had been held in reserve inside the theatre and fifty men armed with these clubs quickly joined the police.

At the moment when it was thought the main body of the negroes had dispersed well down Broad street, a second disturbance was begun at the corner of Walnut and Broad. There a negro threw a brick, which struck Patrolman Wallace Striker on the right arm. The officer turned on his assailant with a club and the negro ran with the policeman in pursuit.

Fully fifty comrades followed Striker and they were joined by a yelling mob of 1,000 whites, but the negro assailant escaped.

Only one arrest was made. While a few shots were fired no one was reported as being hit.

A printed card was circulated in the negro sections of the city during the day. This card contained the following announcement:

"Rally! Rally! Rally!

"All colored citizens and their white friends and sympathizers are earnestly urged to assemble at the Forrest Theatre, Broad and Sansom streets, on Monday night at 8 o'clock to make a dignified protest against the photoplay known as 'The Birth of a Nation,' which is a horrible libel on and a most aggravating insult to every Afro-American."

CHARLOTTE (N. C.) OBSERVER
SEPT. 23, 1915

NEGROES AND DIXON'S PLAY.

"The Birth of a Nation," which is being unnecessarily red-ragged throughout the country, was put on in the City of Brotherly Love, the other day, and the colored man and brother made the usual demonstration against it. Being among Northern friends, the negroes no doubt felt emboldened to venture too far in the exercise of their privileges as American citizens and were treated rather roughly by the police. Rev. W. G. Graham, the pastor of Holy Trinity Baptist Church, who appears to have led in the demonstration, was handled with little respect, having turned up at a local hospital after the battle with four wounds on his head. Four other negroes were sent to the hospital and four not badly hurt were taken to police headquarters. There were 500 colored people in the mob. They had the disadvantage in weapons, the police using pistols and clubs and the negroes hurling bricks and milk bottles. It appears that the demonstration had been incited by a committee of negro clergymen, only one of whom shared in the consequences. It is the same old story. Even among his own race the negro is used as a tool and in the Philadelphia case, those upon whom the punishment should justly fall will escape. "The Birth of a Nation" was planned by a money-making corporation and was written by a man with money-making as his object. It teaches no lesson, moral or otherwise. It is highly spectacular and cheaply sensational. It is coming South. We shall hope that on its travels through this section it will be met with a manifestation of the good sense of the colored people that will stand out in contrast to the conduct of the misguided actions of the colored people in the Northern States. In giving it notoriety, the colored people have given life to "The Birth of a Nation." One or two demonstrations in the South like that in Philadelphia is what the owners of the play desire above all else, for one demonstration by negroes in the South would count for more in the way of a sensational advertisement than all the mob incidents in the North put together. The Observer wants the Southern negroes to be guided by their own good sense and the advice of their white friends, and thereby they will deal this sensational play the hardest blow it could receive, in paying no attention to it.

CLIPPING FROM Toronto (Can)
Date 9-15-15

"BIRTH OF A NATION" NOT OBJECTIONABLE

"Movie" Censors Declare It Has No National Bearing.

IS HISTORY OF THE U.S.

Colored People Appear to Be the Only Opponents of the Film.

So far as can be learned, the only opposition which has arisen to the "movie" film "The Birth of a Nation" comes from the colored population. This is the attraction booked for the Royal Alexandra Theatre next week, but owing to the fact that one section of it appears to cast a reflection on the colored people of the Southern States, strong opposition is being raised by the local society. The theatrical management report that no other complaints have come in, though the question has been raised as to whether or not this is the type of "movie" which Canada wants to see just now, seeing that it depicts battle scenes from the American Civil war.

History of U.S.

As "The Birth of a Nation" deals entirely with the United States and their growth after the freedom of the slaves, and as the only troops shown are American, the management claims that it can have no bearing upon the present high national tension. The film takes two hours and 40 minutes to run and sketches the whole struggle of the Civil War. It begins by showing the importation of slaves from Africa, the causes leading up to the Civil War, and vivid battle scenes, including the burning of towns. Afterwards it shows the resultant rise of the negro population after their emancipation, and the bitterness which grew up between the blacks and the whites in the South. The part objected to by the colored people comes in at this point, showing negroes pursuing white girls. The film concludes by showing the activities of the Ku Klux Klan in keeping down the negroes.

Board Passed It.

"The film was passed by our Board of Censors," stated Mr. George Armstrong, head of the Censor Board. "We could not see that it had any national bearing, or that there was anything which touched upon the present war or could have any application to it whatever. The film simply treats one period of history in the United States, with which period neither England nor Canada had any part. The film has proved a success in the States, but whether or not it is of the type Canada wants remains to be seen. It certainly has no objectionable features from the national standpoint."

Societies Don't Complain.

"Patriotic societies are not paying any attention to it," stated a prominent member of the Red Cross. "Any offence it could give to the colored people must surely be slight."

"I must say that the delegation opposing the film has been very much misinformed," stated Mr. W. E. Cuthbert, of the theatre. "This picture shows the difficulty of the reconstruction period in the South after the war, and in no way casts an unfavorable light upon the present-day negro. The picture was passed by the New York Censor Board, which is said to be one of the most exacting and scrupulous in America. A cut would have been made had there been any reflection at all upon the negroes, as New York can boast of a very large and respected negro population.

"I wish to state that about 500 feet of this film drama is devoted to the present-day negroes, showing their schools, industries, etc., and how it would be hard for the South to get along without them, and also showing him to be an honorable and respected citizen."

GIRARD'S TOPICS OF THE TOWN

WHEN a photo-play endeavors to make heroes out of men branded by Congress as "murderers and outlaws," it is profitable to recall what the Ku-Klux Klan was.

A party of young men at the close of the war met at Pulaski, Tennessee, and formed a social organization. They adopted a name, a ritual and a uniform. The last consisted of a white pall worn by the horse and a white covering for the rider, who was topped with a tall white hat made of cardboard.

By accident it was discovered that the weird name and the weird robes of the Ku-Klux Klan struck terror to the marrow bones of the ignorant and recently freed negroes.

Then all over the South other and similar societies sprang up which finally became merged with or known by the general name of Ku-Klux Klan. General John B. Gordon, of the Confederate Army, said the societies were for mutual protection.

History proves that this was not the case in hundreds, even thousands of cases, which came into the courts. General Forrest, whose name throughout the North has ever been linked with the Fort Pillow massacre of negroes, was chosen head of the Ku-Klux Klan.

IN 1868 a revised Constitution was adopted by the Ku-Klux Klan. It formed the entire South into the Invisible Empire. General Forrest was styled Grand Wizard. Each State was a realm under a Grand Dragon. Each county was a dominion under a Grand Giant, and the smallest local unit was a den, under a Grand Cyclops.

At one time there were 555,000 members of the various Ku-Klux orders. A great many of the members were ex-Confederate soldiers. The thing grew into a mighty political issue. Impartial historians now agree that the Republicans in Congress exaggerated very greatly what was going on throughout the South in order to justify the Carpetbag reconstruction policy.

Carl Schurz refused to follow his party, although as an Independent he admitted that innumerable offenses had occurred.

BY 1870 the outrages in some Southern counties had become so bad that Congress took action. President Grant asked for special powers to suppress what he termed was a "new insurrection" in the South. Congress speedily passed such an act. There were then in the United States Senate as many able men as ever sat together in that body. Edmunds, Conkling, Morton, Thurman, Bayard, Trumbull and Sherman were all legislative giants.

Thurman and Trumbull fought against the act in Congress aimed at squelching the Ku-Klux on the ground that the United States could not interfere in local government. Eleven years afterward the Supreme Court sustained these Democrats and upset the law put through by a Republican majority.

CONGRESS in the meanwhile ordered a probe of the Ku-Klux outrages. The majority of the committee brought in a terrific arraignment. Senator John Scott, of Pennsylvania, was chairman of the committee which had collected evidence for a year.

The Democratic minority report admitted that in 40 counties of the South there had been violence.

"We do not intend to deny," said the Democratic minority, "that bodies of disguised men have in several States of the South been guilty of the most flagrant crimes, crimes which we neither seek to palliate nor exonerate."

From 1870 to 1875 some thousands of cases were handled by the Attorney General's department, and convictions were numerous. There were many cases of murder. The period of chief violence ranged from 1867 to Grant's re-election seemed to put a complete damper on the thing.

THE Ku-Klux Klan was formed several years before the negro was endowed with the franchise, so that it is not true that the night raiders aimed simply to keep the ex-slaves from voting. That later became a prime object.

White men from the North were victims of the Ku-Klux. Preachers who conducted religious services for the negroes and school teachers who helped educate them were also attacked, and in some cases murdered, as shown by the records.

As it finally developed when Congress and the President of the United States took official action, the Ku-Klux Klan's main object as it concerned the country generally was to terrorize the negro back into a state of complete civic suppression, and to frighten all who endeavored to bring the black race out of that dismal condition.

Any one who thinks this band of outlaws was a heroic body should consult the dozen large volumes of testimony taken by the committee of Congress under the lead of our country's ablest lawyers, who couldn't be hoodwinked by shams, lying or hypocrisy.

As a sample of how a Ku-Klux Klan member would operate, I cite two cases out of many scores. One of the white-sheeted horsemen stopped at a negro cabin at midnight and asked for a bucket of water. The negro gave it to him.

"He swallowed it at a gulp," related the black man, "saying it was the first drink he had had since being killed at Shiloh."

Another negro was visited by a similar apparition. The weird horseman put out his hand, and when the negro took it found it only a skeleton.

Such instances occurred by hundreds, so that the colored folks were completely terrorized.

The country at large got its most dramatic presentation of what the Carpetbaggers and negroes were up against during Reconstruction in Judge Tourgee's book, "A Fool's Errand."

Some of his friends long afterward maintained that the reason the author's name was kept a secret for years was fear of bodily violence.

GIRARD.

Bulletin Sep 21/15

A FOOLISH MOB

A violent demonstration like that of last night will do more to cause disrepute for the colored people than all the productions on picture films of DIXON'S exaggerated story of the Reconstruction period in the South, and it is unfortunate that citizens of the colored race permit their sense of resentment to be inflamed by agitators whose interests and concern are not always circumscribed by the welfare of their people.

We doubt that the picture, challenged though it may be at points as to its accuracy at least of emphasis, is prejudicing the public against the negro. "The Clansman" has been in circulation for a number of years, has received much publicity and has been widely read. It may have been one of the factors which has brought about a new opinion on the wholesale enfranchisement of the negro vote and the political debauchery of the South which followed, but if it has it has been only one of many revelations of the mistakes of that period. But, withal, such discredit as has resulted has not rested upon the negro race, which, in a moment given a ballot which they did not know how to use, were not to be blamed for their errors so much as were the white politicians who manipulated and used these untrained masses for their own purposes of plunder. It is on the carpet-bagger from the North rather than on the negro that the ignominy of the story rests.

The establishment of political rights was not the most essential boon for the negro at the close of the Civil War. Fisk, Hampton, Tuskegee did more for the race than did the possession of the franchise and the privileges of office that white politicians doled out for a price. What the negro has accomplished in his uplift has been by the development of his talents and native resources, not by political rights conferred upon him, and his vote to-day is less of consequence than his ability to produce and earn, and often is the cause of disrepute for his race when offered in barter by conscienceless leaders.

$2 PER SEAT MOTION PICTURES DISCUSSED BY ROBERT GRAU

Keen Observer, Commenting Upon the Triangle Venture at the Knickerbocker Theatre, "The Birth of a Nation" and "The Battle Cry of Peace," Says That High Price Films Are Here to Stay and Will Increase in Number.

By ROBERT GRAU

With the advent of the Triangle, of Griffith, Ince, Sennett combination at the Knickerbocker Theatre, the first month of the new theatrical season will witness the amazing spectacle of three first-grade playhouses—all leased to established film producing concerns by some of the powers who have controlled the spoken play, presenting photo-plays and spectacles at the highest prices for seats prevailing in so called legitimate theatres.

All three playhouses are in close proximity to each other, one representing a film production which has had a New York run of eight months and is not only not indicating departure, but the same production is now on view in a half dozen large cities for prolonged periods at the same scale of prices.

Another film production sold out the capacity of what was the Criterion Theatre at every afternoon and evening performance during the hottest week of the year, with the astonishing spectacle of a continuous line approaching the box office for seats days and weeks in advance on view not only at the play house, but in all the hotel ticket offices where premiums are paid. Moreover this is a public no longer attracted by the lure of the "movies." Instead of relying on the passersby and the neighborhood patronage, the productivity of moving picturedom in 1915 is attracting the people from afar to Long Acre square. The box office records eclipse those of many of the playhouses where players in the flesh are appearing.

Meanwhile in theatrical circles the most discussed subject is the Knickerbocker Theatre undertaking, because stage-folk are wondering if a playhouse of vast capacity may be conducted at high prices without the unusual in film attractions. That is to say, this playhouse is to be maintained as a standard high-priced photoplay institution, where a clientele is hoped for wholly apart from what is offered on the screen at a particular time. In fact the Knickerbocker is really the first motion picture stock house—the camera man's effort to perpetuate the glories of a forgotten stage era—the survival of the stock company means that the Knickerbocker Theatre is to be the new theatre of filmdom.

While stage folk are discussing the problem itself—a group of determined men—not one of whom had made his impression in the older field of the theatre have come upon the scene inaugurating a publicity campaign of even greater proportions than that one with which they launched "The Birth of a Nation," and as if wishing to emphasize the high prices, the very first move was to call attention to the fact that certain seats at the Knickerbocker would cost $3 each.

There you have it. Instead of doubting the outcome of a high-priced movement, a new type of showman with fixed perspective and unbefogged viewpoint seeks to make his impress through the high prices. Naturally such an attitude is born of confidence. The business heads of a mighty twentieth century film concern are taking their cue as to price policy from the artistic quality of their productions directed by three masters of film craft—Griffith, Ince and Sennett.

These are three names to conjure with in the field of this new art.

All three hail from the speaking stage. Each entered filmdom about the same time. Not one of the three achieved anything unusual in the older field. Two at least—Ince and Griffith, turned to the film studio in sheer desperation.

It is said that these three directors of photo-plays are earning today in no instance less than $100,000 a year. The truth is that they have ceased to know what their earnings are, for the three men who five years ago were paid by the day much like models, or laborers, are now magnates with interests so colossal as to hardly permit of an appraisal of their income.

those who believe as does this writer that the resultant effect of this development will be to create an equilibrium between the stage and the screen and ultimately solve a great problem, that of providing compelling attractions for all of our high-grade play houses.

Not one in a hundred persons believes that even now there is a public of sufficient numbers to support a playhouse open fifty-two weeks in the year and charging the highest prices of admission to see picture plays, yet the three directors aforesaid have themselves invested their newly acquired fortunes in a corporation which will eventually conduct such a playhouse in every large city.

But the three playhouses now featuring two dollar a seat photo-plays are fixtures. Probably no man familiar with the new conditions in the amusement world would venture the prophecy that there will be fewer than three productions on view in New York for years to come.

Besides these more or less permanent enterprises, one of the finest film offerings to date, "Trilby," is housed in one of the Messrs. Shuberts' newest theatres. While on the horizon is indicated a plethora of epoch making productions such as the Geraldine Farrar picture plays, the Cyril Maude offerings, and the picturization of Auber's "Masaniello," with the great Pavlowa as Fencella, "The Dumb Girl of Portirir."

We may as well accept the cards as they lay. The two dollar a seat motion pictures will not only expand in influence and vogue, but where can

MOTION PICTURE WORLD (N. Y. C

WISCONSIN NEWS LETTER

A Labor Tangle in Milwaukee—New Projects—Recent Hits.

Special to Moving Picture World from Midwest News Service.

WHAT might be termed labor troubles may delay the remodeling of the Merrill building in Milwaukee into a theater building. The Badger State Investment Company, which is behind the theater project, declares it awarded the general building contract with the agreement that all union men be employed. A sub-contractor, it is alleged, put non-union men on the job. The investment company got temporary injunction restraining the contractors from continuing the work. This order was vacated the next day by Judge Williams. Later the day Judge Eschweler set aside Judge Williams' order. The case was then taken to Judge Fritz and then back to Judge Williams. Meanwhile the union men have been at work by agreement with the investment company.

Fair week visitors to Milwaukee got a chance to see "The Birth of a Nation" it was returned to the Pabst for the week of Sept. 12.

NEW YORK (N. Y.) SUN

SEP 29 1915

couldn't handle them.

Ohio Bars "Birth of a Nation."

CLEVELAND, Sept. 28.—The State Board of Censors, fearing race clashes, has refused to allow "The Birth of a Nation" to be shown in Ohio moving picture theatres.

MOTION PICTURE WORLD (N. Y. City)

A Slap at the $2 Film Program.

THE St. Louis Post-Dispatch, in the issue of September 9, gives an editorial whack at the $2-a-seat film productions. The whack at the scale of high prices, which the Post-Dispatch fears is impending, is accompanied by a left-handed slap at the moving picture itself, the writer having stumbled on the rather peculiar heading, "Holding the Mirror Up to the Mirror." But read the editorial:

Plans for killing the goose that lays the film show golden eggs are rapidly being perfected. It is the exact plan by which the goose that laid the legitimate drama golden eggs was killed. Elaborate film show productions for which $2 a seat will be charged are announced. Presumably the $2.50, the $3 and even the $5-a-seat movies will make an early appearance.

The movies gained their astounding popularity in part because they showed the possibilities of an ingenious and novel invention, but principally because they were very cheap. The original cost of a production has slight bearing on the price at which the public is permitted a view. A film once made can be reproduced almost indefinitely.

While too sweeping, the statement that the attraction in the "legitimate" which was really worth $2 never existed may have some truth as applied to all but a very small minority of attractions. At least, by exacting more than the traffic would bear, the trust caused the regular theatricals to fall into a bad way. Film show prosperity, great as it is, may fall into the same bad way with an even more resounding thud.

If the legitimate drama holds the mirror up to nature—and very mistily, too, ofttimes—the film show only holds the mirror up to the mirror. Seats at $2 or even more absurd prices are not necessarily an index of the cost of a movies production. They may be only an indication that the proprietors need the money.

The plans referred to, in the case of moving pictures, exist only in the writer's imgination. No filmed production has been ever offered at the $2 price, and down, save "The Birth of a Nation." The plan on which the Griffith production was made was the most lavish ever dreamed of for moving pictures, and the results on the screen are the most compelling, thus far, in the making of moving pictures.

The plan that brought a temporary set-back to legitimate drama aimed directly at the exploitation of theatregoers. Poor plays, with weak, cheap casts and tawdry scenery and effects, were offered at extreme admission prices.

Thus far we have heard no complaints against the $2-and-down prices charged for "The Birth of a Nation," as the production is big enough to stand the strain; but we do fear for the future of the $2 moving picture programs of the Triangle Film Corporation proposed at the Studebaker, in Chicago.

It is difficult to understand what the writer means by the catch phrase, "holding the mirror up to the mirror." The drama, according to the Shakespearean metaphor, was the mirror so held up as to reflect nature in all its forms, passions, moods, etc. By means of the camera, in the taking of a moving picture, the forms, and the expression of moods, passions, etc., are registered on a piece of negative film and afterwards printed on a positive film. By means of a projecting machine these are thrown on a screen and thence reflected on the retina. Where, in this process, have we the action expressed in the phrase, "holding the mirror up to the mirror?" Or is this a roundabout way of drawing attention to the lack of the human voice and real bodily presence in moving pictures?

MOTION PICTURE WORLD (N. Y

IGNORANT NEGROES PROTEST.

Policemen recently dispersed a crowd of about 200 negroes who came marching up Broad street, loudly protesting against the exhibition of the film known as "The Birth of a Nation" at the Forrest theater, Broad and Sansom streets. A detail of police, headed by Lieutenant Rausewine, of the 12th and Pine streets station, took up a position across Pine street and, when the negroes approached, they were asked to display their permit for parading. Upon being unable to comply with this request they were immediately dispersed.

The colored folks had assembled at Broad and South streets, and a plainclothes man, stationed there to give warning in case a demonstration was made, telephoned to the station house. Meanwhile news of the gathering had reached the Forrest theater, and the management had sent to headquarters for protection. An additional force of detectives were scattered throughout the audience in order to insure being able to cope with any situation that might arise. Three negroes were arrested in the theater for hissing scenes that they claimed to be objectionable. All negroes in the audience were scattered in groups of twos and threes and the detectives immediately stopped any conversations between white and colored folks.

Murmurings can be heard in many sections of the city which tend to indicate that the negroes will go to extremes in their endeavors to have the picture forbidden for exhibition purposes in this city. However, those in charge of the theater and other noted figures in the moving picture field in this vicinity, are of the firm belief that the picture will be allowed to continue unmolested. It appears that it is only the extremely ignorant negroes and the supposedly educated negroes who object to the film, the middle class being apparently perfectly satisfied with the picture.

ld, from Philadelphia News Service.

NEGROES DENOUNCE FILM

Hold Meeting to Devise Means of Stopping Show.

With ex-State Treasurer John O. Sheatz presiding, more than 300 negroes met yesterday in the Olympia Theatre, Broad street below Bainbridge, to protest against the photoplay "The Birth of a Nation," now being shown at a local theatre. A score of colored clergymen and lawyers denounced the film-drama and exhorted the members of their race in this city to use every lawful means to suppress it.

After the negroes and several white speakers had finished, $500 was collected toward a fund to be used in the legal fight to stop the show. Lengthy resolutions, filled with historical data and asking all of the city's self-respecting and liberty-loving white residents to aid and intervene, were read and indorsed.

PROTEST FILM PLAY

Colored Residents Contribute $400 to Finance Legal Proceedings

Meeting to protest against the further presentation of the film play, "The Birth of a Nation," which is being shown at one of the local theatres, nearly 500 colored residents of this city yesterday contributed about $400 in order that their leaders may take legal and other peaceful action against the exhibitors. It was announced that proceedings will be instituted this week.

Former State Senator John O. Sheatz presided at the mass meeting, which was held in the Olympia Theatre, at Broad and Fitzwater streets, and addressed by several colored ministers and other professional men. Resolutions were adopted to use all legitimate means to stop the play before the expiration of its running time in Philadelphia.

POLICE CHARGE NEGROES OUTSIDE OF THEATRE

Mob of 500 Make Riotous Demonstration Against "Birth of a Nation" Film

Charging into a crowd of negroes who were participating in a demonstration last night on Broad street against the exhibition of "The Birth of a Nation," at the Forrest Theatre, when one of the throng threw a brick into the big plate glass over the facade, a large detail of police, who had been sent to keep order, dispersed the mob with their sticks and arrested four. One of these, Arthur Lun, nineteen years old, of 5747 Cherry street, was held under $500 bail by Magistrate Beaton at the night court and will be given another hearing this morning.

Prompted by a printed card calling upon Afro-Americans to assemble in front of the theatre at eight o'clock to make a "dignified protest" against the film, more than five hundred negroes collected at that time on North Plaza of City Hall and then for two hours paraded up and down in front of the theatre hooting and shouting.

Members at the Union League and guests at the Bellevue-Stratford and Ritz-Carlton were interested spectators of the affair. Many of them opened windows and looked out at the struggle in Broad street.

When it was thought that the crowd had been dispersed a second riot was started at Broad and Walnut streets, when one of the crowd threw a brick which struck Policeman Wallace Striker, of the Fifteenth and Locust streets station, on the arm. The policeman at once went after his assailant and finally captured him after a chase of several blocks, in which other policemen and white spectators joined.

As the negroes were retreating toward South street they repeatedly shouted: "We're for Porter and we can do anything we like."

The mob quickly fled not a few of them with wounded heads and order was soon restored. The audience did not know of the demonstration. One shot was fired during the fracas by a policeman to bring a fleeing negro to a halt. The hospitals in the centre of the city treated a large number of colored people for bruises and cuts about the head.

SCENE FROM "THE BIRTH OF A NATION" FORREST

NEGRO MINISTER LEADS 1500 BLACKS IN RIOT

Police Quickly Disperse Throngs Protesting Against Film Play on Broad St.

A tall negro clergyman led a throng of 1500 of his race up Broad street last night. They chanted "Onward, Christian Soldiers" as they marched. Then, as they reached the front of the Forrest Theatre, where "The Birth of a Nation" is being shown, he twirled his cane aloft. The singing stopped. A brick was thrown.

'Get that man," shouted Lieutenant Duffy, of the Reserves. "Get them. Get them," repeated Lieutenant Myers, of the 15th and Locust streets station, again and again. The police, with drawn clubs, charged the throng. It broke and ran. Some took shelter in the lobbies of nearby hotels; some ran into the clubs that line Broad street, carrying with them white women, caught in the swirl; others ran down little streets.

The police whacked every head within whacking distance. Some where trampled on. The dark cross streets seemed to offer the best haven of comparative safety. While the clubless reserves were in the van of the pursuers, the bluecoats from the 15th and Locust streets station were testing the skull-cracking proclivities of their locust sticks. The nimble-footed reserves caught four men, one of whom was accused of having thrown the brick. He was the only prisoner held after the testimony had been presented before Magistrate Beaton, at the night court hearings.

The Rev. W. C. Graham, pastor of the Holy Trinity Church, was taken to the Douglass Hospital with severe lacerations of the head; two more were treated at the Hahnemann Hospital, while three negroes were treated at the Jefferson Hospital. The latter said they had been knocked down by a wagon earlier in the evening. A large number had their injuries dressed at home.

The trouble started early in the evening, although but two arrests were made. The negroes congregated near the theatre at 8 o'clock and marched up and down in front of the place, growing louder and louder in their verbal displeasure with the film, which, they say, is defamatory of their race. Then they went away, only to return later with their ranks swelled to 1500.

A negro who was one of the participants of the melee said last night that sermons denunciatory of the picture were preached last Sunday in the majority of the negro churches in the city. Cards were distributed to members of the congregations telling them where to meet last night. Yesterday the last preliminary to the riot was staged. Representative negro ministers from the Methodist and Baptist churches here met at the Zion Methodist Episcopal Church, 13th and Melon streets, and made fiery speeches calling for action against the film.

The Rev. C. C. Dunlop, pastor of the Bethel Methodist Episcopal Church, was chosen to lead the throng. He was the tall clergyman whose cane gave the signal for the outbreak. The meeting was addressed by Charles Fred White, a University graduate, and the Rev. J. O. Lowe, manager of the American Methodist Episcopal bookstore at 631 Pine street.

After things had quieted down around the Forrest Theatre last night Lieutenant Myers took a squad of men to a downtown boxing club, but his hopes were groundless. There was no riot.

night sticks.
One policeman was hit and several negroes were badly Several arres were on ch and incl
our command

N. G. Commercial ~~Tues~~ Oct 1

AMUSEMENTS AMUSEMENTS.

Outdoes "The Birth of a Nation"

HEYWOOD BROUN, dramatic critic of THE TRIBUNE, says of the Triangle Plays:

"Triangle Plays are a real sensation. 'The Lamb' outdoes 'The Birth of a Nation' in its thrills. The play is to my mind far and away beyond 'The Birth of a Nation' in sustained interest of story."

See Triangle Plays for Yourself

Knickerbocker Today!

Afternoons at Two—Best Seats $1.00; 500 GOOD SEATS 50c. Evenings at Eight—50c, 75c, $1, $1.50 and $2. Saturday Matinees same prices.

Telegraph Sep 21/15

COLORED PARADERS ROUTED BY POLICE USING NIGHT STICKS

Many Heads Broken in Riot Outside of Forrest Theatre.

CALL FOR "RALLY"

Many Are Treated at Hospitals in Central Part of the City.

Police Superintendent Robinson today received from his lieutenants on duty at the Forrest Theatre last night a detailed report of the riotous demonstration in front of the playhouse by a mob of colored men who were protesting against the production of the film drama "The Birth of a Nation" that has been on exhibition for several weeks.

During the demonstration a force of approximately 150 patrolmen charged the colored people with their night sticks. Upwards of a dozen of the colored paraders received broken heads and had to be treated at several hospitals. Rev. W. G. Graham, pastor of Holy Trinity African Baptist Church, is in the Douglas Hospital, Sixteenth and Lombard streets, with four scalp wounds. The others were cared for at the Jefferson, Polyclinic and Hahnemann Hospitals. None of them was seriously injured.

The police made four arrests. The prisoners were taken to the Night Court, where Magistrate Beaton discharged three for lack of evidence. Arthur Lunn, 19 years old, 5747 Cherry street, was held for a further hearing today.

SEND OUT NOTICE.

Notice that there was to be a demonstration of colored people reached the police early. The theatre management showed Superintendent Robinson a printed card that had been circulated in the colored section of the city.

This printed notice read:—

RALLY—RALLY—RALLY

All colored citizens and their white friends and sympathizers are earnestly urged to assemble at the Forrest Theatre, Broad and Sansom streets, on Monday night, at 8 o'clock, to make a dignified protest against the photoplay known as "The Birth of a Nation," which is horrible libel on and a most aggravating insult to every Afro-American.

As a result, Superintendent Robinson ordered Lieutenants Duffy, Myers and Dinlocker to have men at the theatre. Captain Tempest was put in command. The police were ordered to make no arrests so long as there was no disorder. As early as 8 o'clock the colored protestants began to make their appearance. They stood around in groups.

By 8.30 o'clock there were hundreds of colored men gathered about the theatre, and they began parading on the east and west sides of Broad street from Chestnut as far south as the Hotel Walton.

WATCH FROM HOTELS.

Guests at the Walton, the Bellevue-Stratford and the Ritz-Carlton watched the demonstration from the windows of the hotels.

The paraders marched up and down the street for nearly two hours. In the meantime one division marched east on Walnut

Continued on Page Two.

COLORED MOB STARTS A RIOT OVER FILM PLAY

150 Policemen Charge Marchers in Front of Forrest Theater—Many Men Fall.

RIOTERS HURL BRICKS

An attempt by more than five hundred colored men and women to interfere with the production of "The Birth of a Nation" at the Forrest Theater, last night, resulted in a serious clash between the crowd and one hundred and fifty policemen, who had been sent to guard the theater. The police used their night sticks freely as they charged the mob, which answered with bricks and a revolver.

Seven colored men were sent to hospitals to have scalp wounds dressed, one has a broken arm and half a score were arrested. No white persons were injured as women and children fled when the crowd charged.

Four Arrested, Three Freed.

Four colored men were arrested, but when taken before Magistrate Beaton in the Night Court, three were discharged "for lack of evidence." All had been taken from the midst of the mob, however.

Arthur Lunn, nineteen years old, Fifty-seventh and Cherry Streets, was held in $500 bail after he had been identified as the man who threw a brick. He was arrested by Policemen Ferguson and Boyle.

The others were: Woodford Johnson, 1513 Lombard Street; Sidney E. Furnell, 1605 South Seventeenth Street, and Joseph Davenport, 516 South Sixtieth Street. Magistrate Beaton said he could not hold them, as no one had seen them do anything.

Three colored men, who appeared at Jefferson Hospital with scalp injuries, refused to give their names. They said they had been hit by a wagon.

Cards sent out earlier in the day, calling all colored people and white sympathizers to " a dignified meeting at the Forrest Theater to protest against "The Birth of a Nation," attracted the crowd. The cards had been scattered broadcast over the city and the police are searching for the persons who issued the invitations.

Agitators Assemble.

The colored opponents of the picture play marched back and forth past the Forrest Theater fully an hour, and when signs of serious trouble appeared Lieutenants Meyers and Duffy called for more reserves. In the meantime the colored agitators had begun to gather in force on every corner, shouting at passing white persons. Soon 150 reserves surrounded the theater and a double column of fifteen was drawn up in front of the door.

CONTINUED ON PAGE 3, COLUMN 3.

MOB STARTS RIOT OVER FILM PLAY

Continued from Page 1.

A delegation of colored men and women, numbering about fifty, approached the door and tried to enter, about nine o'clock, but were stopped by threats of arrest from the policemen, who had drawn their riot sticks. Angered because of this refusal they turned and called their friends to meet at Broad and South Streets, where a procession was formed.

As they marched uptown shouting threats at the white folk they passed, the streets quickly were cleared of white women and children. For more than an hour the police stood by watching this.

Finally as the parade passed the theater again, two men stepped from the crowd and hurled bricks through the large plate glass doors of the theater. At the same instant the entire mob turned towards the door as though about to rush it, shouting:—

"Hurrah for Director Porter!"

Charged by the Police.

At this every policeman, on both sides of the streets charged the mob, and rained blows upon the heads of the fighting mass of colored folk. Seven men fell and then bricks were hurled into the ranks of the bluecoats, without effect, however.

As the police charged again the colored people broke and fled, pursued by the policemen, headed by the lieutenants. Women and children, who had just turned from Walnut Street, were swept aside and patrons of the Bellevue-Stratford and the Ritz-Carlton left their tables and rushed to the windows to learn the cause of the disturbance. Several screaming children, who had become separated from their parents, were rushed into the hotels for safety.

Hardly had the excitement subsided on Broad Street, when two revolver shots were heard in Juniper Street. A crowd of colored men had come down an alley and apparently, had fired at two policemen standing on the corner. A few minutes later two more colored men were taken to a hospital. It was nearly time for the show to let out when the last man had been driven from the street.

None in Theater Heard Noise.

Inside the theater no one knew of the trouble. At the first sign the 100 private detectives employed by the theater in case of disturbances closed the doors and spread out among the audience. Not even when the bricks struck the doors did the audience hear the noise, as a result of the precautions taken by the management.

Record Sep 21/15

NEGROES RIOT AT THEATRE

Police Charge Mob in Broad Street and Break Many Heads.

When a mob of more than 500 negroes made several demonstratons last night in front of the Forrest Theatre to break up a moving-picture show, policemen under Captains Mills and Tempest answered a riot call and charged the crowd, making a number of arrests and sending scores to near-by hospitals with broken heads. The disorder was carried out on a prearranged plan and the crowds began to gather along Broad street between City Hall and Walnut street about 8 o'clock.

Word had been sent to the Central Station that trouble was expected around the theatre and a force of 100 reserves from the three central districts south of Market street was ent to the scene. For more than an hour they kept the throngs of colored men in motion and broke up all attempts at speech-making. Then the leaders of the mob tried strategy that threw the police partly off their guard. The mob marched twice around the block in which the theatre is located and sent volleys of jeers and cat-calls at the reserves. They continued marching south on Broad street and at Lombard street dispersed as if to go home.

Thinking the disturbance ended, a greater part of the police guard was withdrawn, but shortly before 11 o'clock the crowd again assembled at Broad and Lombard streets and made a second march to the theatre. Rushing the police drawn up before the entrance the mob shattered the transom over the main door with bricks. City Hall specials and reserves were called and drove the crowd in a hurry back to Lombard street. Clubs and blackjacks were freely used by the police and the mob was forced to disperse.

The Polyclinic, Douglass, Hahnemann and Medico-Chirurgical Hospitals treated more than a hundred injured men for lacerations and bruises. Policemen Ferguson and Boyle, of the Fifth district, arrested Arthur Lunn, 19 years old, of No. 5747 Cherry street, and he was held under $500 bail for further hearing.

Ledger Sep 21/15

Negroes Plan Protest Meeting

Negroes opposed to the continued presentation of "The Birth of a Nation," the photoplay being produced at the Forrest Theatre, will hold a meeting of protest this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in the Olympia Theatre, Broad and Bainbridge streets. The call for the gathering is also addressed to their white friends. Ex-State Senator John O. Sheatz will preside.

Inquirer, Sep 22/15

MAYOR WILL HEAR NEGROES ON 'BIRTH OF NATION' PROTEST

Mayor Blankenburg agreed yesterday to have a public hearing in his offices in city hall on Friday morning on the complaints of negroes as to the production of "The Birth of a Nation" at the Forrest Theater.

Representatives of negro organizations called on the mayor yesterday and asked that he endeavor to have the performances stopped. The mayor agreed to a public hearing of the alleged grievances on condition that all parties interested be invited to participate in it.

NEGRO MOB CLUBBED FROM FILM THEATRE

Police Rout 500 Men, Who Threw Bricks and Milk Bottles

Five hundred negroes and 100 policemen battled last night in front of the Forrest Theatre, in South Broad street. One of the negroes, protesting against the "Birth of a Nation" film hurled a brick through a theatre window and a number of his companions made a concerted effort to enter the playhouse.

As a result of the battle at least five negroes went to hospitals and four more were arrested. Revolver shots and flying milk bottles were incidents of the riot.

Superintendent of Police Robinson, who had previous knowledge of the intention of the negroes to gather at the Forrest, was in personal command of the policemen. Fifty detectives were scattered along Broad street and inside the theatre.

As early as 8 o'clock a body of negroes paraded up and down Broad street, from Lombard to Chestnut, but because they were orderly the police did not interfere. Shortly after 9 o'clock, however, their numbers were trebled at Lombard street and they returned to the theatre.

When the negroes reached the theatre, some one in the crowd threw the brick through the big plate glass window above the entrance. Shouts went up and 50 or more negroes rushed against the closed theatre doors. Lieutenant Myers, of the 15th and Locust streets police station, at the head of a detail of police, started at once to halt the marchers. Negroes who could not run fast enough to dodge clubs received them upon their heads.

In five minutes the streets were swept clear of the mob, but a revolver shot rang out in Juniper street. It was not learned whether a policeman or a rioter fired the weapon. In Walnut street two negroes threw milk bottles at their pursuers.

The negroes arrested are Arthur Lunn, 19 years old, 5747 Cherry street, who is alleged to have thrown the brick through the window, and who was held in $500 bail for a further hearing for inciting to riot by Magistrate Beaton in the Night Court; Woodford Jackson, 1006 South 17th street; Joseph Davenport, 516 South 17th street, and Sydney Purnell, 1513 Lombard street. All except Lunn were discharged for lack of evidence.

Among those who were sent to hospitals were the Rev. Dr. W. G. Graham, pastor of Holy Trinity Baptist Church, who is in Douglass Hospital with four wounds in his scalp, and Lee F. Banks, 1913 North Taylor street, in the Hahnemann Hospital with severe lacerations. Three negroes also were treated at the Jefferson Hospital. Others, it is said, went to private physicians or were cared for by friends.

It was learned that the demonstration last night was planned by a committee of negro clergymen of various denominations, who have held meetings in the last three weeks. They had cards urging negroes and "white friends and sympathizers" to take part in the procession.

There were two meetings yesterday, one said to have been held at the African Methodist Episcopal book concern, 631 Pine street in the morning, and another at the Zion Baptist Church, 13th and Melon streets, in the afternoon. They were attended by nearly all negro ministers in the city. In fiery addresses the "Birth of a Nation" was denounced and the negro population was called upon to suppress it.

Theatre Rioting

When members of any race demonstrate, peacefully or with violence, against the presentation of a theatrical spectacle and are in turn clubbed into submission by the police, a situation is precipitated which cannot be ignored by the public at large.

The performance to which many local colored men and women have objected contains scenes which are frankly unflattering to the protestants. But that does not justify rioting or other interference with the production by the offended persons. If it did, some of the world's greatest dramatic masterpieces would be excluded from presentation.

It is perhaps worth while to remind everyone that the film narrative in question recites a passage in history during which white men were in control of affairs. Every event depicted was the outgrowth of their instigation. Such indictments as the whole may set forth lie against mankind in bulk, not against any particular race.

Whether the film spectacle at present involved gives unnecessary and malicious offence to an element of the domestic population, which as a whole is respectable and law-abiding, must be determined by the proper authorities. Meanwhile disgruntled members of the affronted race must keep the peace, and they will damage their cause enormously if they attempt any other course.

Theatre Rioting

When members of any race demonstrate, peacefully or with violence, against the presentation of a theatrical spectacle and are in turn clubbed into submission by the police, a situation is precipitated which cannot be ignored by the public at large.

The performance to which many local colored men and women have objected contains scenes which are frankly unflattering to the protestants. But that does not justify rioting or other interference with the production by the offended persons. If it did, some of the world's greatest dramatic masterpieces would be excluded from presentation.

It is perhaps worth while to remind everyone that the film narrative in question recites a passage in history during which white men were in control of affairs. Every event depicted was the outgrowth of their instigation. Such indictments as the whole may set forth lie against mankind in bulk, not against any particular race.

Whether the film spectacle at present involved gives unnecessary and malicious offence to an element of the domestic population, which as a whole is respectable and law-abiding, must be determined by the proper authorities. Meanwhile disgruntled members of the affronted race must keep the peace, and they will damage their cause enormously if they attempt any other course.

NO CENSORSHIP

THE rioting incidental to the presentation of a photoplay which is obnoxious to colored people emphasizes the intolerable position in which this city is placed by the State censorship. There is, of course, no excuse for lawlessness. The play in question is being produced lawfully. The unfortunate fact is that were the production of such a character as to cause ten times the disturbance that has been caused, the city would still be powerless to prevent it.

There is no more need to censor moving pictures than there is to censor literature, the regular theatre or the newspapers. The circulation of a nasty publication is prevented by the police. The police likewise would prevent the exhibition of a motion picture that was obviously unfit to be shown. That is a natural censorship, to which there can be no valid objection. But in present circumstances the police are powerless and the peace of the city is dependent on appointed State censors who exercise almost unlimited power.

The abolition of the censor board is inevitable because it is an un-American institution, so why delay its demise? The best thing the Legislature can do is to return to the cities their full police power and depend on the municipal authorities to conserve public morality so far as moving pictures are concerned.

JUDGE RESTRAINS INTERFERENCE WITH "BIRTH OF NATION"

Hennings Says He Is Unable to Discover Any Proof in Support of Charge That Picture Play Is Offensive Morally.

Judge Hennings, in a written opinion, Monday, ordered a temporary injunction restraining the Board of Police Commissioners from interfering with production of "The Birth of a Nation" at the Olympic Theater.

"The best evidence against the contention of the Board of Police Commissioners and the Morality Squad that the picture is immoral," the Court says, "and will create hatred, race prejudice and ill-will, is the fact that, although the production has been running daily for three weeks, there has not been, so far as the evidence shows, the slightest indication of any such untoward condition in our city."

AFFIDAVITS SUPPORT JUDGE.

Referring to the scene in which Silas Lynch seeks to marry a white woman, Judge Hennings says: "A number of States of the Union, including the State on our east (Illinois) permit such marriages. While opinions differ, and the law of Missouri prohibits such marriages, evidently the residents of States in which mixed marriages, and white people elsewhere, do not consider such intermarriages immoral.

"Affidavits filed by three ministers of the Gospel, the morality squad of the Police Department, educators, dramatic writers, professional and business men, and 866 cards signed by spectators to the effect that they found nothing immoral in the production, sustain the position that no race prejudice is engendered."

Among those who filed affidavits in support of the play were: John A. Brehany of New York, manager of the Epoch Producing Company; William V. Brumby, dramatic critic for the St. Louis Republic; Rev. John S. Bunting, rector of the Episcopal Church of the Ascension; F. M. Curlee, Max C. Davis, Edmund Duckworth, rector of the Episcopal Church of the Redeemer; W. C. Dyer, Walker Hill, president of the Mechanics-American National Bank; Rev. J. Layton Mause, pastor of the Central Presbyterian Church; Miss Katherine Richardson, dramatic critic for the St. Louis Star; Richard Spamer, dramatic critic for the Globe-Democrat; Brother Lawrence Sixtus of Christian Brothers' College, and Raymond A. Walsh, dramatic critic for The St. Louis Times.

Affidavits opposing the production of the play were filed by George L. Vaughn, a negro lawyer; Ira A. Dorsey, a negro clerk in the office of Circuit Clerk Charles R. Graves; William H. Huffman, a negro school teacher; Albert Burgess, Homer C. Phillips and C. K. Robinson, negro lawyers; Clifford H. Evans and Katherine M. Johnson.

"BIRTH OF NATION" PRODUCERS IN FIGHT ON RIVAL FILM

Show at Olympic Wins Own Case and Sues to Restrain Cherokee Theater Attraction.

The Epoch Producing Company, producer of "The Birth of a Nation," being shown at the Olympic Theater, won one suit yesterday and began another.

Circuit Judge Hennings granted a temporary injunction restraining the police from interfering with the production of the film. This virtually ends the fight against the production in St. Louis. Before the case will come up for final hearing the St. Louis engagement will have expired.

Thomas Dixon Jr. of New York is co-plaintiff with the Epoch Company in the new suit, which is against the Cherokee Theater Company and O. T. Crawford, president, to restrain the production at the Cherokee Theater, Cherokee street and Ohio avenue, of a dramatic play entitled "The Birth of Our Nation." The parts of the play are said to be similar to scenes described in "The Clansman," of which Thomas Dixon is the author.

This, in connection with the similarity of names of the two productions makes the play an infringement on the rights of the plaintiffs, it is asserted.

"The Birth of Our Nation" was billed to be given at the Cherokee Theater last night, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday nights. Judge Kinsey issued an order on the defendants to show cause at 2 o'clock this afternoon in Judge Taylor's court why an injunction should not be granted, a restraining order to prevail in the meantime.

OAKLAND (Cal.) RECORD
SEPT. 23, 1915

MAGNIN ATTACKS GRIFFITH PLAY

Eminent Rabbi Says That "The Clansman" Is Vicious in Its Influence

Rabbi Edgar Magnin paid his respects to "The Birth of a Nation" (The Clansman), at Temple Israel last evening. It was the occasion of the Feast of Tabernacles and the altar was adorned with a beautiful booth of fruits and flowers, commemorating the booths in which the ancient Hebrews used to dwell at the time of the harvest.

"The Feast of Tabernacles is the original Thanksgiving Day," said Rabbi Magnin. "The ancient Hebrews used to thank God for all the fruits of the field at this time of the year. We in America have much to be thankful for. Nor are material blessings the most important by any means. All America must be especially thankful for the greatest of all blessings, personal liberty."

"Whoever tampers with personal liberty," continued Rabbi Magnin, "is un-American and unworthy of the blessings of this land. Whoever emphasizes that which makes for prejudice, hatred, strife between people, people, race and race, is violating the spirit of American democracy and either consciously or unconsciously attempting to undo the noble work of the fathers of this country."

Rabbi Magnin then went on to say that "The Birth of a Nation" was accomplishing just this thing.

"I know that it is vicious in its influence, dangerous, and the last word of persecution hurled at a persecuted people," said Rabbi Magnin. "Jane Addams has well said that the most dangerous lie is a half truth and that the producer of this film has gathered the most vicious and grotesque individuals he could find among the colored people and show them as representatives of the entire race. One cannot leave the portals of the theater without being imbued with prejudice. Who can see that terrible picture of the young Negro pursuing the little Southern girl over rocks and briers and her plunge to death to save herself without feeling thoroughly disgusted. Is this the sort of thing you want your children to see?"

"The history of the world is a history of persecution and suffering," said Rabbi Magnin in conclusion, "and when at last men are begin to see the light and become imbued with the spirit of brotherly love, democracy and tolerance, why encourage anything that is going to turn the hands of the clock back again? Let us usher in the new civilization which will contain more of love and peace than we possess now; not less. Let us be in the forward ranks of those who are striving for the good and discourage evil of any kind with all the courage and power at our command."

MOVIE INJUNCTION IS DENIED

"Birth of Our Nation" and "Birth of a Nation" Films Held to Be Dissimilar.

Circuit Judge Kinsey yesterday denied the injunction asked for by the Epoch Producing Company and Thomas Dixon Jr. of New York to restrain the Cherokee Theater Company and O. T. Crawford, president, from producing at the Cherokee Theater a dramatic play entitled "The Birth of Our Nation."

It was contended that the drama is an infringement on the film production given by the Epoch Company at the Olympic Theater entitled "The Birth of a Nation," and on the rights of Dixon, author of "The Clansman," in that the scenes of the drama are similar to events described in "The Clansman."

Judge Kinsey said there is no similarity in the productions warranting the granting of an injunction and dissolved the restraining order issued Monday.

Walter H. Saunders, attorney for the plaintiffs, raised the question that the similarity of the names alone entitled his clients to an injunction. Judge Kinsey told the attorney to file an amended petition and he would consider the point.

FILM COMPANY SEEKS TO ENJOIN PLAY PRODUCTION

Thomas Dixon, Jr., of New York City, and the Epoch Producing Company, which is staging the film play, The Birth of a Nation, at the Olympic Theater, yesterday filed an injunction suit in the Circuit Court asking that the Cherokee Theater be restrained from producing a play entitled The Birth of Our Nation.

This play is based on The Clansman, of which Thomas Dixon, Jr., is the author. The petition claims the title is similar to the film production of the Epoch Company, and that the similarity in titles would cause great loss to the Epoch company. Judge Kinsey granted a temporary order and set the case for hearing at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

The Epoch Producing Company yesterday was granted a temporary injunction by Circuit Judge Hennings restraining the Board of Police Commissioners from interfering with the production at the Olympic Theater. The court held in its written opinion that the best evidence against the contention of the Board of Police Commissioners that the picture is likely to create hatred and race prejudice and ill-will is the fact that no such results have manifested themselves, although the film has been running several weeks.

police charge[illegible] and night sticks.

One policeman was hit by [illegible] and several [illegible] were badly [illegible]. Several arre[illegible]

FORBIDS SHOWING "BIRTH OF NATION"

Common Council Passes Pitt Ordinance Aimed At Big Film Production

IS DECLARED INSULT TO ANY AUDIENCE

The common council last night, by a vote of 7 to 4, passed an ordinance designed to prevent the appearance here next week of the "Birth of a Nation," a moving picture film based on Thomas Dixon's book, "The Clansman." Two members were excused from voting.

The ordinance was introduced by Councilman Pitt and supported by Councilman Baird and several citizens who were granted the privilege of the floor. Present at the meeting were several representatives of the negro race, who wished to see the exhibition of the picture forbidden. Moe Levy, attorney for the Wells interests in Norfolk, spoke for the management of the theatre.

The picture was attacked vehemently by several of those who supported the ordinance, being denounced in unqualified terms by the two councilmen mentioned, by Ex-Police Justice Barron and by others, as "highly objectionable," "lascivious," "insulting to any audience, white or black," "calculated to arouse race hatred and possibly race riots" and as "unfit to be displayed in any city."

"Commercialized Horrors"

"While our school children are not allowed to study histories until they have been reviewed by those who know our history," declared Mr. Pitt, "we are allowing cold, calculating schemers to go about the country commercializing alleged facts of a revolting nature under the plea that they are teaching history. So fearful were the producers of this film of results that they tried it in Northern cities first and there only after filling the theatre with detectives to quell any riot it might cause."

(Continued on Page 2.)

FORBIDS SHOWINGS BIRTH OF NATION

(Continued from Page 1.)

Councilman Baird, who at first wished so to amend the ordinance as to make it apply specifically to the film billed to appear here next week, surrendered to objections that such an ordinance might be successfully attacked in the courts, and supported the original ordinance forbidding the production of any picture that tended to "incite race prejudice, race hatred or race riot."

"Money made out of the incitement of racial prejudice and degraded passion is too filthy to touch," declared Justice Barron in speaking for the ordinance. He described scenes presented in the film and said that they "are not fit for presentation before any audience, white or black."

Moe Levy Defends Theatre

Moe Levy, counsel for the Wells interests, declared that the mayor has authority by the exercise of his police powers to censor or forbid the presentation of immoral films and can stop the production of this picture if he thinks it necessary. The theatre management, he said, has an engagement with the mayor to give him the facts this morning and let him decide. Asked if he would obligate the company to abide by the decision of the mayor, he said that he would have to, as the mayor has power to stop it. He further agreed that the film should be exhibited before the mayor and others Monday morning for their opinion and censorship.

Justice Barron took exception to the statement that the mayor already possesses power to forbid the display of the film, and Mr. Pitt read an extract from the mayor's letter to the Colored Social Service Commission, in which he wrote:

"I am at loss to know how I can forbid the play to be shown here."

Councilman Johnson's motion to refer the ordinance to the ordinance committee was then acted upon and defeated by a vote of 4 to 7. The final ordinance was then passed by a vote of 7 to 4.

It goes to the board of aldermen for concurrence tonight.

Daily State Journal

PHILA. NEGROES RIOT AS PROTEST AGAINST MOVIE

Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 20.—Police reserves from the city hall and several other police stations were called out tonight to quell a riotous demonstration by several hundred negroes in protest against a film production which is running at a theatre in the centre of the city. The crowd of negroes, composed of both men and women, marched through the hotel and theatre district, shouting their disapproval of the play, but no attempt was made to stop them until a halt was made in front of the theatre and a stone hurled through one of its big plate glass windows. Then the police charged the crowd with clubs and night sticks, raining blows on the ring leaders.

One policeman was hit with a stone and several negroes were badly beaten before the crowd was dispersed. Several arrests were made, and the prisoners held on charges of breach of the peace and inciting to riot.

NEGROES IN RIOT AT PHILADELPHIA

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 21.—The District Attorney's office began an investigation today to determine, if possible, the identity of the persons who instigated the agitation that last night resulted in a riot between 500 negroes and 100 policemen in front of the Forest Theatre, where the photo play "Birth of a Nation," is being shown.

The agitation among the negroes, it is said, started two weeks ago. Last night a huge demonstration was planned in front of the theatre. The riot started when Arthur Lunn, 19, hurled a brick through a theatre window. His action reacted upon a crowd of 500 other negroes, fifty of whom charged the entrance of the theatre. Fifty policemen repulsed the rush and when reinforcements arrived from other stations the negroes dispersed leaving behind half a dozen with cracked heads. Fully a score were injured.

NEW BEDFORD (Mass.) STANDARD
SEPT. 21, 1915

"BIRTH OF NATION" RIOT.

Hundred Policemen Charge a Thousand Negroes.

Philadelphia, Sept. 21.—One hundred policemen with drawn clubs and revolvers charged a crowd of 1000 negroes last night in front of the Forrest theatre, where the motion play "The Birth of a Nation," is being presented. Fully 5000 white persons saw the onslaught.

Broad street for two blocks presented for a few moments a scene of the wildest disorder. The charge of the police followed the throwing of a brick by one of the negroes. The brick struck the door glass at the entrance of the Forrest theatre and shattered it.

Instantly the police, who had been guarding the theatre entrance, pounced on the negroes. Hats flew in the air, negroes were knocked to the ground, and the larger part of the offending mob fled down the street.

The trouble lasted about two minutes. Employes of the theatre and many others got clubs which had been held in reserve inside the theatre, and 50 men armed with these clubs quickly joined the police.

At the moment when it was thought the main body of the Negroes had dispersed well down Broad street, a second disturbance was begun at the corner of Walnut and Broad. There a Negro threw a brick, which struck Patrolman Wallace Striker on the right arm. The officer turned on his assailant with a club and the Negro ran with the policeman in pursuit.

Fully fifty comrades followed Striker and they were joined by a yelling mob of 1,000 whites, but the Negro assailant escaped.

Only one arrest was made. While a few shots were fired no one was reported as being hit.

A printed card was circulated in the Negro sections of the city during the day. This card contained the following announcement:

"Rally! Rally! Rally!"

"All colored citizens and their white friends and sympathizers are earnestly urged to assemble at the Forrest theatre, Broad and Sansom streets, on Monday night at 8 o'clock to make a dignified protest against the photoplay known as 'The Birth of a Nation,' which is a horrible libel on and a most aggravating insult to ev-

---

4-21-15

NEGROES RIOT AT BIRTH OF NATION

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 21.—Police reserves were called out last night to quell a riotous demonstration by several hundred negroes in protest against "The Birth of a Nation," a film production which is running at a theater in the center of the city.

The crowd of negroes, composed of both men and women, marched through the hotel and theater district, shouting their disapproval of the play, but no attempt was made to stop them until a halt was made in front of the theater and a stone hurled through one of its big plate glass windows. Then the police charged with clubs and night sticks.

One policeman was hit with a stone and several negroes were badly beaten before the crowd was dispersed.

JOHNSTOWN (Pa.) TRIBUNE
SEPT. 21, 1915

"BIRTH OF NATION" PROVOKES A RIOT

100 Police Charge Mob of 1,000 Negroes at Theater.

Philadelphia, Sept. 21.—One hundred policemen with drawn clubs and revolvers charged a crowd of 1,000 negroes in front of the Forrest theater, where the "Birth of a Nation" is being presented, while fully 5,000 white persons looked on.

Broad street for two squares presented a scene of the wildest disorder. The charge of the police followed the throwing of a brick by one of the negroes, the missile striking the upper glass in the entrance of the Forrest theater and shattering it.

Instantly the police who had been guarding the theater entrance pounced on the negroes. Hats flew in the air, negroes were knocked to the ground and the great majority of the offending mob fled down the street.

A second disturbance was begun at the corner of Walnut and Broad. Here a negro threw a brick, striking Patrolman Wallace Striker on the right arm. The officer turned on his assailant and swung viciously with his club. The negro ran with the policeman in pursuit.

Fully fifty officers ran to Striker's assistance. They were joined by a yelling mob of no less than 1,000 white men. More than a thousand of new spectators had assembled and Broad street was aflame with excitement.

Only one arrest was made. While a few shots were fired no one was reported as being hit.

HARRISBURG (Pa.) TELEGRAPH
SEPT. 21, 1915

Mob Charges Theater; Police Battle With 1,000

Special to The Telegraph

Philadelphia, Sept. 21.—A mob of 1,000 negroes rioted in front of the Forrest Theater shortly before 10 o'clock last night. Bricks were thrown and a glass transom of a door on the Broad street front was broken.

For the first time since the police have been guarding the theater where the photoplay, "The Birth of a Nation," has been exhibited, they were forced to use their clubs.

The mob was for the time beyond the control of the police. The negroes, who object to the photoplay as a slur on their race, made a rush for the Broad street entrance of the theater. Bricks were thrown there. Four arrests were made.

Three negroes applied for treatment at the Jefferson Hospital after the riot. They had lacerated heads, but said they were hurt in a runaway. Another negro was taken to the Hahnemann Hospital for treatment. He was said to be a negro preacher.

ST. LOUIS (Mo.) REPUBLIC
SEPT. 21, 1915

Albert, gymnastic [illegible] Travel [illegible] completes the current program.

"BIRTH OF NATION" PRODUCER IN FIGHT ON RIVAL FILM

Show at Olympic Wins Own Case and Sues to Restrain Cherokee Theater Attraction.

The Epoch Producing Company, producer of "The Birth of a Nation," being shown at the Olympic Theater, won one suit yesterday and began another.

Circuit Judge Hennings granted a temporary injunction restraining the police from interfering with the production of the film. This virtually ends the fight against the production in St. Louis. Before the case will come up for final hearing the St. Louis engagement will have expired.

Thomas Dixon Jr. of New York is co-plaintiff with the Epoch Company in the new suit, which is against the Cherokee Theater Company and O. T. Crawford, president, to restrain the production at the Cherokee Theater, Cherokee street and Ohio avenue, of a dramatic play entitled "The Birth of Our Nation." The parts of the play are said to be similar to scenes described in "The Clansman," of which Thomas Dixon is the author.

This, in connection with the similarity of names of the two productions makes the play an infringement on the rights of the plaintiffs, it is asserted.

"The Birth of Our Nation" was billed to be given at the Cherokee Theater last night, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday nights. Judge Kinsey issued an order on the defendants to show cause at 2 o'clock this afternoon in Judge Taylor's court why an injunction should not be granted, a restraining order to prevail in the meantime.

WILMINGTON (Del.) EVERY EVENING
SEPT. 21, 1915

EVERY EVENING

RIOT OVER "MOVIE" IN PHILADELPHIA

Police and Negroes Clash at Theatre Over "Birth of a Nation."

REVOLVERS ARE DRAWN

Philadelphia, Sept. 21.—One hundred policemen with drawn clubs and revolvers charged a crowd of 1,000 negroes last night in front of the Forrest Theatre, where the motion play "The Birth of a Nation" is being presented. Fully 5,000 white persons saw the onslaught.

Broad street for two blocks presented for a few moments a scene of the wildest disorder. The charge of the police followed the throwing of a brick by one of the negroes. The brick struck the door glass at the entrance of the Forrest Theatre and shattered it.

Instantly the police, who had been guarding the theatre entrance, pounced on the negroes. Hats flew in the air, negroes were knocked to the ground and the larger part of the offending mob fled down the street.

The trouble lasted about two minutes. Employes of the theatre and many others got clubs which had been held in reserve inside the theatre and fifty men armed with these clubs quickly joined the police.

SECOND ROW STARTS.

At the moment when it was thought the main body of the negroes had dispersed well down Broad street, a second disturbance was begun at the corner of Walnut and Broad. There a negro threw a brick, which struck Patrolman Wallace Striker on the right arm. The officer turned on his assailant with a club and the negro ran with the policeman in pursuit.

Fully fifty comrades followed Striker and they were joined by a yelling mob of 1,000 whites, but the negro assailant escaped.

Only one arrest was made. While a few shots were fired no one was reported as being hit.

A printed card was circulated in the negro sections of the city during the day. This card contained the following announcement:

"Rally! Rally! Rally!"

"All colored citizens and their white friends and sympathizers are earnestly urged to assemble at the Forrest Theatre, Broad and Sansom streets, on Monday night at 8 o'clock to make a dignified protest against the photoplay known as 'The Birth of a Nation,' which is a horrible libel on and a most aggravating insult to every Afro-American."

Philadelphia, (Pa.) Public Ledg

Date .....

NEGRO MOB TWICE CHARGES THEATRE

Police Battle Hard to Disperse 1000 Men, Angry at Photoplay

A mob of 1000 negroes rioted in front of the Forrest Theatre shortly before 10 o'clock last night. Bricks were thrown and a glass transom of a door on the Broad street front was broken.

For the first time since the police have been guarding the theatre where the photoplay, "The Birth of a Nation," has been exhibited, they were forced to use their clubs.

The mob was for the time beyond the control of the police. The negroes, who object to the photoplay as a slur on their race, made a rush for the Broad street entrance of the theatre. Bricks were thrown there. Four arrests were made.

Two accused of disorderly conduct were Joseph Davenport, 24 years old, who said he lived at 516 South 17th street, and Sydney Purnell, 47 years old, who gave his address as 1005 South 17th street. Two others, charged with inciting a riot, were Woodford Jackson, 1513 Lombard street, and Arthur Lunn, 5747 Cherry street. The police say the latter pair were leaders of the mob.

Three negroes applied for treatment at the Jefferson Hospital after the riot. They had lacerated heads, but said they were hurt in a runaway. Another negro was taken to the Hahnemann Hospital for treatment. He was said to be a negro preacher.

The police had to beat the mob back from the theatre entrance and out into Broad street. Those in the theatre were kept in ignorance of the rioting.

The noise attracted a large crowd to Broad street. Automobiles were halted and all traffic was blocked. Hundreds looked on from the Union League, the Manufacturers' Club, the Bellevue-Stratford and the Ritz-Carlton.

The negro rioters caught the police unawares. About 400 appeared at the theatre shortly before 8 o'clock. After a series of revolutions in which they marched six times from Chestnut to Walnut streets, along Broad, the negroes were shunted north by Police Superintendent Robinson and Captain Tempest with a force of 40 reserve policemen in uniform and 20 detectives in citizen's clothing.

The mob, after its revolutions, marched to the City Hall, through the courtyard and held a short meeting on the north plaza. Then it returned to Chestnut street and marched to Juniper, and to the rear of the theatre at Sansom street.

Lieutenant Duffy and a small force of men drove the negroes out to Broad street and to Walnut, where they dispersed. Some went east, others west, but the main force went South. This was about 9 o'clock.

A few minutes before 10 o'clock the negroes returned. They had been to South street and recruited others until the mob had swelled to a thousand. This time the mob approached the theatre from the rear, and began hurling bricks when the police arrived.

Superintendent Robinson and Captain Tempest, with most of the special squad, had departed, thinking the trouble over for the night. Before additional policemen could be summoned from City Hall the mob bowled over the small force left on guard and came near gaining an entrance to the theatre.

OIL CITY (Pa.) DERRICK
SEPT. 21, 1915

MOVIE INCITES NEGRO RIOT.

Police Reserves Wield Clubs When Protest Leads to Bricks.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 20.—Police reserves from the city hall and several other police stations were called out tonight to quell a riotous demonstration by several hundred negroes in protest against a film production which is running at a theater in the center of the city. The crowd of negroes, composed of men and women, marched through the hotel and theater district shouting their disapproval of the play but no attempt was made to stop them until a halt was made in front of the theater and a stone hurled through one of its big plate glass windows. The police charged the crowd with clubs and night sticks, raining blows on the ringleaders.

One policeman was hit with a stone and several negroes were badly beaten before the crowd was dispersed. Several arrests were made and the prisoners held on charges of breach of the peace and inciting to riot.

LADELPHIA, (PA.) RECORD.

te .....

NEGROES RIOT AT THEATRE

Police Charge Mob in Broad Street and Break Many Heads.

When a mob of more than 500 negroes made several demonstratons last night in front of the Forrest Theatre to break up a moving-picture show, policemen under Capt. Mills and Tempest answered a riot call and charged the crowd, making a number of arrests and sending scores to near-by hospitals with broken heads. The disorder was carried out on a prearranged plan and the crowds began to gather along Broad street between City Hall and Walnut street about 8 o'clock.

Word had been sent to the Central Station that trouble was expected around the theatre and a force of 100 reserves from the three central districts south of Market street was ent to the scene. For more than an hour they kept the throngs of colored men in motion and broke up all attempts at speech-making. Then the leaders of the mob tried strategy that threw the police partly off their guard. The mob marched twice around the block in which the theatre is located and sent volleys of jeers and cat-calls at the reserves. They continued marching south on Broad street and at Lombard street dispersed as if to go home.

Thinking the disturbance ended, a greater part of the police guard was withdrawn, but shortly before 11 o'clock the crowd again assembled at Broad and Lombard streets and made a second march to the theatre. Rushing the police drawn up before the entrance the mob shattered the transom over the main door with bricks. City Hall specials and reserves were called and drove the crowd in a hurry back to Lombard street. Clubs and blackjacks were freely used by the police and the mob was forced to disperse.

The Polyclinic, Douglass, Hahnemann and Medico-Chirurgical Hospitals treated more than a hundred injured men for lacerations and bruises. Policemen Ferguson and Boyle, of the Fifth district, arrested Arthur Lunn, 19 years old, of No. 5747 Cherry street, and he was held under $500 bail for further hearing.

URBANA (O.) TIMES-CITIZEN
SEPT. 21, 1915

employes.

"THE BIRTH OF A NATION" CAUSES RIOTING SCENES

Negroes In Philadelphia Take Law In Own Hands When Film Is Shown.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 21.—Police reserves from the city hall and several other police stations were called out Monday night to quel riotous demonstrations by several hundred negroes who protested against a film production of "The Birth of Nation," which is running at a theatre here.

The crowd of negroes, composed of both men and women, marched through the hotel and theatre district shouting their disapproval of the film play.

After a stone had been hurled through a plate glass window of the theatre, police charged the crowd with clubs and night sticks, raining blows on the ring leaders.

One policeman was hit with a stone and several negroes were badly beaten before the crowd was dispersed. Several arrests were made

(Pa.) GAZETTE
SEPT. 21, 1915

"BIRTH OF A NATION" CAUSES NEGRO RIOT

Philadelphia, Sept. 21.—Police reserves from the city hall and several other police stations were called out last night to quell a riotous demonstration by several hundred negroes in protest against "The Birth of a Nation," photo play taken from "The Clansman," which is running at a theater in the center of the city. The crowd of negroes, composed of men and women, marched through the hotel and theater district shouting their disapproval of the play, but not attempt was made to stop them until a halt was made in front of the theater and a stone hurled through one of its big plate glass windows. Then the police charged the crowd with clubs and nightsticks, raining blows on the ringleaders.

One policeman was hit with a stone and several negroes were badly beaten before the crowd was dispersed. Several arrests were made and the prisoners held on charges of breach of the peace and inciting to riot.

EASTON (Pa.) FREE PRESS
SEPT. 21, 1915

FILM PLAY RIOTS IN PHILADELPHIA

'Birth of Nation' Stirs Negroes and Police Charge Mob.

Philadelphia, Sept. 21.—One hundred policemen with drawn clubs and revolvers charged a crowd of 1,000 negroes in front of the Forrest theater, where the "Birth of a Nation" was being presented, while fully 5,000 white persons looked on.

Broad street for two squares presented a scene of the wildest disorder. The charge of the police followed the throwing of a brick by one of the negroes, the missile striking the upper glass in the entrance of the Forrest theater and shattering it.

Instantly the police who had been guarding the theater entrance pounced on the negroes. Hats flew in the air, negroes were knocked to the ground and the great majority of the offending mob fled down the street.

A second disturbance was begun at the corner of Walnut and Broad. Here a negro threw a brick, striking Patrolman Wallace Striker on the right arm. The officer turned on his assailant and swung viciously with his club. The negro ran with the policeman in pursuit.

Fully fifty officers ran to Striker's assistance. They were joined by a yelling mob of no less than 1,000 white men. More than a thousand of new spectators had assembled and Broad street was aflame with excitement.

Only one arrest was made. While a few shots were fired no one was reported as being hit.

READING (Pa.) TIMES
SEPT. 21, 1915
... Three, Col. Four

FILM DRAMA IS CAUSE OF RIOT

Negroes Attack Philadelphia Theatre and Police Protesting Against "Movie Show"

[BY SPECIAL LEASED WIRE]

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 20.—Police reserves from the City Tall and several other police stations were called out to quell a riotous demonstration by several hundred negroes in protest against a film production which is running at a theatre in the center of the city. The crowd of negroes, composed of both men and women, marched through the hotel and theatre district, shouting their disapproval of the play, but no attempt was made to stop them until a halt was made in front of the theater and a stone hurled through one of the big plate glass windows. Then the police charged the crowd with clubs and night sticks, raining blows on the ringleaders.

One policeman was hit with a stone and several negroes were badly beaten before the crowd was dispersed. Several arrests were made and the prisoners held on charges of breach of the peace and inciting to riot.

BIRMINGHAM (Ala.) LEDGER

"BIRTH OF A NATION" CAUSES NEGRO RIOT

Philadelphia, Sept. 20—Police reserves were called out tonight to quell a riotous demonstration by several hundred negroes against a film production, "The Birth of a Nation," which is running at a theater here. The negroes marched through the hotel and theater district shouting their disapproval of the play, but no attempt was made to stop them until a halt was made in front of the theater and a stone hurled through one of its big plate glass windows. Then the police charged the crowd with clubs and night sticks.

One policeman was hit by a stone and several negroes were badly beaten. Several arrests were made te .....

Philadelphia, (Pa.) Public Ledger

NEGRO MINISTER LEADS 1500 BLACKS IN RIOT

Police Quickly Disperse Throngs Protesting Against Film Play on Broad St.

A tall negro clergyman led a throng of 1500 of his race up Broad street last night. They chanted "Onward, Christian Soldiers" as they marched. Then, as they reached the front of the Forrest Theatre, where "The Birth of a Nation" is being shown, he twirled his cane aloft. The singing stopped. A brick was thrown.

"Get that man," shouted Lieutenant Duffy, of the Reserves. "Get them. Get them," repeated Lieutenant Myers, of the 15th and Locust streets station, again and again. The police, with drawn clubs, charged the throng. It broke and ran. Some took shelter in the lobbies of near-by hotels; some ran into the clubs that line Broad street, carrying with them white women, caught in the swirl; others ran down little streets.

The police whacked every head within whacking distance. Some where trampled on. The dark cross streets seemed to offer the best haven of comparative safety. While the clubless reserves were in the van of the pursuers, the bluecoats from the 15th and Locust streets station were testing the skull-cracking proclivities of their locust sticks. The nimble-footed reserves caught four men, one of whom was accused of having thrown the brick. He was the only prisoner held after the testimony had been presented before Magistrate Beaton, at the night court hearings.

The Rev. W. C. Graham, pastor of the Holy Trinity Church, was taken to the Douglass Hospital with severe lacerations of the head; two more were treated at the Hahnemann Hospital, while three negroes were treated at the Jefferson Hospital. The latter said they had been knocked down by a wagon earlier in the evening. A large number had their injuries dressed at home.

The trouble started early in the evening, although but two arrests were made. The negroes congregated near the theatre at 8 o'clock and marched up and down in front of the place, growing louder and louder in their verbal displeasure with the film, which, they say, is defamatory of their race. Then they went away, only to return later with their ranks swelled to 1500.

A negro who was one of the participants of the melee said last night that sermons denunciatory of the picture were preached last Sunday in the majority of the negro churches in the city. Cards were distributed to members of the congregations telling them where to meet last night. Yesterday the last preliminary to the riot was staged. Representative negro ministers from the Methodist and Baptist churches here met at the Zion Methodist Episcopal Church, 13th and Melon streets, and made fiery speeches calling for action against the film.

The Rev. C. C. Dunlop, pastor of the Bethel Methodist Episcopal Church, was chosen to lead the throng. He was the tall clergyman whose cane gave the signal for the outbreak. The meeting was addressed by Charles Fred White, a University graduate, and the Rev. J. O. Lowe, manager of the American Methodist Episcopal bookstore at 631 Pine street.

After things had quieted down around the Forrest Theatre last night Lieutenant Myers took a squad of men to a downtown boxing club, but his hopes were groundless. There was no riot.

SALINA (Kan.) JOURNAL
SEPT. 22, 1915

NEGROES IN RIOT OVER 'BIRTH OF NATION' FILM

Philadelphia, September 22.—One hundred policemen with drawn clubs and revolvers charged a crowd of 1,000 negroes last night in front of the Forrest theater, where the motion picture play "The Birth of a Nation" is being presented. Fully 5,000 white persons saw the onslaught.

Broad street for two blocks presented a scene of the wildest disorder. The police charge followed the throwing by a negro of a brick which shattered the door glass.

"BIRTH OF A NATION" CAUSES NEGRO RIOT

Film Receives Warm Reception in Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 20—Police reserves were called out tonight to quell a riotous demonstration by several hundred negroes against a film production, "The Birth of a Nation," which is running at a theater here. The negroes marched through the hotel and theater district shouting their disapproval of the play, but no attempt was made to stop them until a halt was made in front of the theater and a stone hurled through one of its big plate glass windows. Then the police charged the crowd with clubs and night sticks.

One policeman was hit by a stone and several negroes were badly beaten. Several arrests

PORT JERVIS (N. Y.) GAZETTE
SEPT. 21, 1915

FILM PLAY RIOTS IN PHILADELPHIA

'Birth of Nation' Stirs Negroes and Police Charge Mob.

Philadelphia, Sept. 21.—One hundred policemen with drawn clubs and revolvers charged a crowd of 1,000 negroes in front of the Forrest theater, where the "Birth of a Nation" is being presented, while fully 5,000 white persons looked on.

Broad street for two squares presented a scene of the wildest disorder. The charge of the police followed the throwing of a brick by one of the negroes, the missile striking the upper glass in the entrance of the Forrest theater and shattering it.

Instantly the police who had been guarding the theater entrance pounced on the negroes. Hats flew in the air, negroes were knocked to the ground and the great majority of the offending mob fled down the street.

A second disturbance was begun at the corner of Walnut and Broad. Here a negro threw a brick, striking Patrolman Wallace Striker on the right arm. The officer turned on his assailant and swung viciously with his club. The negro ran with the policeman in pursuit.

Fully fifty officers ran to Striker's assistance. They were joined by a yelling mob of no less than 1,000 white men. More than a thousand of new spectators had assembled and Broad street was aflame with excitement.

Only one arrest was made. While a few shots were fired no one was reported as being hit.

BOSTON JOURNAL
SEPT. 22, 1915

[illegible] and then left for City Hall.

Negroes of Ward 18 Busy in Fight Against Sen. Timilty

The voters in Ward 18 were on the alert all day pressing into service automobiles to bring out their votes. At a meeting held just before the primaries the negroes came out against Senator Timilty and indorsed P. Joseph McManus. They gave as their reason, that Timilty was against their legislation relative to the photo-play, "The Birth of a Nation." This made Timilty's Ward 18 organization get busy and they brought out a strong vote for their leader.

PHILADELPHIA, (PA.) PRESS
SEP 2 [illegible]

COLORED MOB STARTS A RIOT OVER FILM PLAY

150 Policemen Charge Marchers in Front of Forrest Theater—Many Men Fall.

RIOTERS HURL BRICKS

An attempt by more than five hundred colored men and women to interfere with the production of "The Birth of a Nation" at the Forrest Theater, last night, resulted in a serious clash between the crowd and one hundred and fifty policemen, who had been sent to guard the theater. The police used their night sticks freely as they charged the mob, which answered with bricks and a revolver.

Seven colored men were sent to hospitals to have scalp wounds dressed, one has a broken arm and half a score were arrested. No white persons were injured as women and children fled when the crowd charged.

The colored opponents of the picture play marched back and forth past the Forrest Theater fully an hour, and when signs of serious trouble appeared Lieutenants Meyers and Duffy called for more reserves. In the meantime the colored agitators had begun to gather in force on every corner, shouting at passing white persons. Soon 150 reserves surrounded the theater and a double column of fifteen was drawn up in front of the door.

A delegation of colored men and women, numbering about fifty, approached the door and tried to enter, about nine o'clock, but were stopped by threats of arrest from the policemen, who had drawn their riot sticks. Angered because of this refusal they turned and called their friends to meet at Broad and South Streets, where a procession was formed.

As they marched uptown shouting threats at the white folk they passed, the streets quickly were cleared of white women and children. For more than an hour the police stood by watching this.

Finally as the parade passed the theater again, two men stepped from the crowd and hurled bricks through the large plate glass doors of the theater. At the same instant the entire mob turned towards the door as though about to rush it, shouting:—

"Hurrah for Director Porter!"

Charged by the Police.

At this every policeman, on both sides of the streets charged the mob, and rained blows upon the heads of the fighting mass of colored folk. Seven men fell and then bricks were hurled into the ranks of the bluecoats, without effect, however.

As the police charged again the colored people broke and fled, pursued by the policemen, headed by the lieutenants. Women and children, who had just turned from Walnut Street, were swept aside and patrons of the Bellevue-Stratford and the Ritz-Carlton left their tables and rushed to the windows to learn the cause of the disturbance. Several screaming children, who had become separated from their parents, were rushed into the hotels for safety.

Hardly had the excitement subsided on Broad Street, when two revolver shots were heard in Juniper Street. A crowd of colored men had come down an alley and apparently, had fired at two policemen standing on the corner. A few minutes later two more colored men were taken to a hospital. It was nearly time for the show to let out when the last man had been driven from the street.

None in Theater Heard Noise.

Inside the theater no one knew of the trouble. At the first sign the 100 private detectives employed by the theater in case of disturbances closed the doors and spread out among the audience. Not even when the bricks, struck the doors did the audience hear the noise, as a result of the precautions taken by the management.

SPRINGFIELD (Mass.) REPUBLICAN
SEPT. 22, 1915

NEGROES DISLIKE FILM

Philadelphia Police Charge Crowd That Protests Against a Motion Picture

Philadelphia police reserves were called out Monday to quell a demonstration by several hundred Negroes in protest against a film production in a theater in the center of the city. The Negroes, both men and women, marched through the hotel and theater district shouting their disapproval of the films, but no attempt was made to stop them until a halt was made in front of the theater and a stone hurled through one of its windows. Then the police charged the crowd with clubs and night sticks. One policeman was hit with a stone and several Negroes were badly beaten. Several arrests were made and the prisoners held on charges of breach of the peace and inciting to riot.

KANSAS CITY (Mo.) STAR
SEPT. 23, 1915

Similar Film Names Cause Suit

Circuit Judge Kinsey yesterday made an order restraining the Cherokee Theater from advertising and running under the name of The Birth of Our Nation a drama based on the novel "The Clansman." An injunction was asked for by the Epoch Producing Company which is producing the film play "The Birth of a Nation" at the Olympic Theater. An attempt to enjoin the Cherokee Theater from conducting the performance at all was defeated when Judge Kinsey refused to grant a restraining order prohibiting the production of the play.

NORFOLK (Va.) VIRGINIAN-PILOT
SEPT. 22, 1915

TONIGHT MAY DECIDE FATE OF FILM SHOW

Legal Difficulties In Way Of Meeting Of Board Of Aldermen Last Night—Philadelphia Riot Over "Birth Of Nation."

Delay in action by the board of aldermen on the Pitt ordinance designed to prevent the appearance here next week of the moving picture production of "The Birth of a Nation" was necessitated yesterday by the opinion of the city attorney that the meeting of the board adjourned from Monday to last night could not legally be held. A call has been issued for a meeting for tonight when the ordinance, already passed by the common council, will be disposed of.

The city attorney ruled that as there was not a quorum present at the meeting of the board Monday night no business could be transacted and as he construed adjournment as being "business transacted" the meeting Tuesday could not legally be held. The situation was met yesterday by the issuance of a second call for tonight, there not having been time to issue a new call for last night.

Hearing Before Mayor

Both advocates and opponents of the ordinance were active yesterday bringing into the fight Mayor Mayo, City Attorney Pilcher, counsel for the theatre at which the production is billed, members of the board and interested citizens. Yesterday morning counsel for the Wells interests, Otto Wells, manager, the city attorney, representatives of the negro race and others assembled at the mayor's office to argue the question. Mayor Mayo heard both sides, informing them at the close of the argument that he has no power to forbid the production. Opponents of the ordinance took the position that it was not needed, as the mayor already possesses the power to stop any immoral or indecent performance and can stop "The Birth of a Nation" if he sees fit. Others argued that an ordinance covering the peculiar situation that has arisen is necessary. Mayor Mayo took this view.

Last night Mayor Mayo said that he can not see that he has power under present statutes or ordinances or under his police powers to forbid the performance. "I simply told them that," said the mayor in response to a question last night. "There is no need for a private exhibition of the film for my benefit. I can not stop it."

City Attorney Pilcher said practically the same thing last night. He took the position that the present laws give the mayor power to stop an indecent performance, but not to prevent the exhibition of a film that is believed to be an incitement to race hatred or race riot. "There must be some overt act before he can take a hand," he said.

Philadelphia Has Trouble

There was considerable discussion last night among some of the councilmen and aldermen of the fact that this same film caused a riot in Philadelphia Monday night. At the very time that the ordinance and the picture were being discussed on the floor of the common council a mob of 500 negroes were battling in Philadelphia with police and with guards thrown about the theatre in which the film was being displayed. The riot assumed some proportions before it was quelled.

When the board meets tonight debate will probably be extended. The city attorney will be asked to take the floor and give his opinion on the present powers of the mayor in the premises and interested citizens will be granted the privilege of the floor to speak for or against the ordinance.

The ordinance, which was introduced by councilman Pitt Monday night and passed by a vote of 7 to 4, is general in its nature, but is so drawn, its patron believes, as to forbid the production of the film in question—"The Birth of a Nation."

Philadelphia, (Pa.) North American
Date .....

[illegible] assistant professor of industry.

MAYOR WILL HEAR NEGROES ON 'BIRTH OF NATION' PROTEST

Mayor Blankenburg agreed yesterday to have a public hearing in his offices in city hall on Friday morning on the complaints of negroes as to the production of "The Birth of a Nation" at the Forrest Theater.

Representatives of negro organizations called on the mayor yesterday and asked that he endeavor to have the performances stopped. The mayor agreed to a public hearing of the alleged grievances on condition that all parties interested be invited to participate in it.

RICHMOND (Va.) TIMES
SEPT. 22, 1915

PHOTO-PLAY OFFENDERS DEFEATED IN NORFOLK

Measure Aimed at "Birth of a Nation" Held Up by Board of Aldermen.

NORFOLK, VA., September [illegible]—By a vote of 6 to 5, the Board of Aldermen to-night referred to the ordinance committee the measure designed to prohibit the exhibition here next week of Griffith's production, "The Birth of a Nation."

This action is regarded as a defeat for opponents of the film exhibition in their fight before the Councils. The measure must go back to the lower branch for concurrence, and the film will be shown before the ordinance can take the usual course.

The aldermanic vote came after a three-hour session, in which advocates of both sides were heard, and the speeches painted the film as disgraceful or of unparalleled attractiveness, according to the viewpoint of the orator.

It was reported to-night that those who oppose showing the film here may resort to injunction proceedings, although this report lacks authoritative sponsorship.

The production has been "advertised like a circus," to quote one of its agents, billboards for miles around being covered and lavish use having been made of newspaper space. The production is scheduled for a week's run.

GALVESTON (Tex.) GLOBE-DEMOCRAT
SEPT. 22, 1915

SYRACUSE (N. Y.) POST-STANDARD
SEPT. 22, 1915

[illegible] the experience, nor that it would be a safe, inexpensive and promising investment.

There was a riot in Philadelphia at the presentation of a photoplay, which insults the Negro race in America. The insult is not necessary to the story of the play. It is dragged in because the uproar it probably caused advertises the play. Insults are the processes of advertisement [illegible] a pity when they take such form [illegible] don't overshoot the mark.

[illegible] and get the best results from them. Magazines and other periodicals, he said, were good advertising mediums.

W. S. Donaldson presided at the meeting.

"THE BIRTH OF A NATION" FILM OWNERS LOSE SUIT.

Circuit Judge Kinsey yesterday denied a temporary injunction to the Epoch Producing Company, which sought to restrain the Cherokee Theater Company from producing a drama called The Birth of Our Nation. The Epoch Company is producing the film play The Birth of a Nation at the Olympic Theater.

NORFOLK (Va.) VIRGINIAN-PILOT
SEPT. 23, 1915

"BIRTH OF NATION" WILL SHOW HERE

Aldermen Kill Ordinance To Prevent Appearance By Referring It To Committee

ARGUMENT ON QUESTION CONSUMES THREE HOURS

The Board of Aldermen last night killed the effort to prevent the exhibition here of the moving picture production entitled the "Birth of a Nation," by referring to the ordinance committee the Pitt ordinance, passed by the Common Council, and having that purpose in view. As the film is billed for exhibition here next week, the ordinance can not possibly become a law until after it has shown. The vote by which it was referred to committee was 6 to 5.

This action followed three hours of argument and running debate between counsel for the theatre interests involved, ex-Police Justice J. S. Barron favoring the ordinance and members of the board. Although argument was limited when the privilege of the floor was granted counsel for the Wells interests and citizens favoring the ordinance no attention was paid to it by any speaker. Justice Barron spoke for more than half an hour; Moe Levy, representing the theatre management, spoke for twenty minutes; Dr. Jarvis Bowens, representing the negro race for ten minutes; Judge T. H. Willcox for the theatre management for half an hour.

Running Debate

Members of the counsel continuously interrupted the speakers with questions and the arguments were more in the nature of oral debates than of speeches.

Nothing new was brought out last night, all the speakers following closely the arguments presented the Common Council. On one side it was contended that the ordinance was unnecessary, that the mayor has power to stop the performance if it tends to riot and that there is nothing wrong with the picture anyway, and on the other that the play is indecent, an insult to the negro race, productive of racial feeling and likely to cause trouble in Norfolk as it has caused trouble in other cities.

There was less of denunciation of the picture than on Monday night and more attention was paid to the legal aspects of the case, but Justice Barron minced no words in declaring the show unfit for production before any audience. He described two of the scenes which he declared to be horrible and calculated to cause bad feelings betwee nthe races and challenged contradiction of the accuracy of his descriptions. He argued mainly that if the picture is not as described and if it is not calculated to cause trouble the theatre will not be harmed by the ordinance. On the other hand, he said, if it is as described no man would be willing to say that it should not be prohibited from showing.

Moe Levy Replies

Moe Levy, in reply, said that Justice Barron "took forty-five minutes in denouncing a picture he had never seen," but would not deny the accuracy of his descriptions. He has never seen the film, he said. However, he promised that if it is as reported it will not be shown after the first performance.

Dr. Bowens said he represented 30,000 of his race, citizens of Norfolk and asked the help of the council. He quoted Frederick C. Howe, ex-president of the National Board of Censorship, who, he said, resigned because of the action of the majority in passing the picture. Dr. Howe, he said, spoke of it as a reflection on the negro race and one calculated to cause trouble wherever displayed.

Judge Willcox's address was nothing more than a debate with Justice Barron and Alderman Jones. So frequently was he interrupted by questions that he could make no connected argument. He declared, however, that he did not believe the picture would cause harm; said the riot in Philadelphia was due to politics and not to the exhibition of the film, and contended that existing law is sufficient. "You might as well pass a law against larceny or murder," he said.

Three Motions Before Board

The questions were before the board. Alderman Deering moved that the action of the Common Council in passing the ordinance be concurred in. Alderman Markel moved that it be referred to the ordinance committee. Alderman Christe moved that the whole matter be referred to the mayor with power to act. Argument of three hours was followed and the vote was then taken. Mr. Christe's amendment to the Markel amendment was lost. On roll call Mr. Markel's amendment was carried by a vote of six to five. That decided the question and the original motion was not put.

The ordinance now goes back to the Common Council for concurrence. That body will either accept the action of the board or reject it, but in any event it is all over. Conference committee or ordinance committee it is all one. Some other Southern city will be wrestling with the question before the Norfolk council gets through with it. The production will have been displayed here and gone to other parts.

The vote was as follows:

For reference: [illegible] Cashin Christe, Friedy, Long, Markel. Against reference: Deering, [illegible] Metzger, White, Truxtun, [illegible]

OTTAWA (Can.) CITIZEN
SEPT. 24, 1915

"BIRTH OF NATION" CAUSES A FURORE

Colored People of Montreal Made Strong Protest.

MONTREAL, Sept. 23.—A wholehearted protest was raised by, the colored citizens of Montreal at a meeting held last night at the Union Congregational church against the production of the photo play, The Birth of a Nation, in Montreal. It was shown in Ottawa last week and was scheduled for display at the Princess theater here next week. With this protest was the expressed determination to use all legitimate efforts possible to prevent the production of the play here, even to going to the extent of appealing to the courts for an injunction.

The main idea running through the speeches was that the whole purpose of the play, based on "The Clansman," by Alexander Dixon, tended in a most dangerous fashion to raise race feeling against the negro to a point of hatred; to glorify the doings of the Klu Klux Clan, in the southern states against the negro and their champions; to justify the lynching of the negro, and to insult the negro woman. The principal speaker was Rev. Arnold Gregory, pastor of the Union Congregational church (colored), who read scenes from the description of the play which he declared were such as to corrupt morals, raise hatred against the negro on alleged historical doings in the reconstruction period after the war, which had been proven false, and generally to insult the colored people "in the most deadly manner."

BRIDGEPORT (Conn.) POST
SEPT. 24, 1915

MAYOR WILL SEE PICTURES BEFORE PUBLIC SHOWING

Chief Executive and S. Z. Poli Discuss Features of "The Birth of a Nation."

Following a conference between Mayor Clifford B. Wilson and Sylvester Z. Poli, of New Haven, it was announced today that when the now famous motion picture "The Birth of a Nation" shows here it will first be reviewed by the mayor who will censor it and exclude all objectionable features. The conference was of the mayor's seeking, a number of those likely to find cause for complaint having petitioned the executive to take some action.

The picture is now on the Poli circuit and at present is playing in Providence, R. I. It will reach Bridgeport on October 4, under present arrangements.

No Disorder Wanted.

Riots accompanied by great excitement and disorder have occurred in many cities where the picture has been shown. Mayor Wilson said today, "We want nothing of that kind here. You may assure the public that nothing will be reproduced on the screen that would cause objection."

The mayor and [illegible] were closeted in the office at the City Hall [illegible] few moments and [illegible] interests of peace [illegible] to arouse indignation from any scoureers [illegible] in showing the film [illegible]

[illegible] said, care[illegible] Mr Wright said that [illegible] Birth of a Nation [illegible] judge whether [illegible] permitted in Worcester.

CARL E. GRAMMER

BRIDGEPORT (Ct.) FARMER
SEPT. 25, 1915

[illegible] party dined with J. B. McKennan, general manager of the company and then passed the night at Dr. Corwin's home.

"BIRTH OF A NATION" FILMS PROTESTED BY BRIDGEPORT PASTOR

Rev. W. H. Ely Sees Mayor and Will Push Objections at Meeting of Clergymen.

Rev. W. H. Ely, pastor of the A. M. E. Zion church, told his congregation at the weekly prayer meeting last night, that protests have been registered with Mayor C. B. Wilson, on behalf of the colored citizens, against the presentation here of the films "The Birth of a Nation." It is alleged that the films, in their portrayal of reconstruction days, do an injustice to the negro race.

Other congregations of the city will be asked by Rev. Mr. Ely to support the protest when it will be brought before the meeting of the Bridgeport Pastors' Association next Monday. It was announced by Rev. Mr. Ely that Mayor Wilson had promised to attend the meeting of the ministers Monday when further discussion of the protested films will take place.

Rev. Mr. Ely called on the mayor yesterday. Shortly afterwards S. Z. Poli conferred with Mayor Wilson regarding the objections. Mr. Poli has agreed that the mayor censor the film, if necessary, at a private showing.

In the Times of

TRAITOROUS WHITES MADE NEGROES BAD

To the Editor of the Times.

Sir:—The moving-picture spectacle, "The Birth of a Nation" now being produced in this city is undoubtedly an artistic and thrilling one. There is much in it of historic and educational value. It is a great pity, however, that the general excellence of the spectacle should be marred and its good effects nullified by the appeal which Part II makes to the baser passions of race antagonism and hatred.

That Part II more or less faithfully represents certain features of the Reconstruction Period in the South may be granted and yet nevertheless the sentiments which it arouses are to be deprecated. After having witnessed the spectacle I can understand and sympathize with the objections which are urged against this phase of it on the part of the colored race.

However the management may disavow any intention of inciting race prejudice the effect is certain to accomplish that very thing. The negro is here set forth as a fierce enemy of law and order, as indeed lost to all instincts of morality and humanity. No race should be judged by the vicious elements which degrade it or by the occasional ebullitions of unworthy leaders. That the conduct of the negroes in the South during the Reconstruction Period was the direct outcome of the machinations of traitorous white men who played upon their ignorance and evil passions for their own advantage is a fact that relieves the negro of undue condemnation by fair-minded people. In the case of a race just emerging from slavery and feeling the natural exaltation of their newly acquired status there can be no cause for surprise that many among them should have been tempted to throw off all restraint. But fully forty years after such manifestations have ceased, and when the subsequent improvement and progress of the race have done so much to redeem their earlier misconduct, to seek to exploit the old unhappy conditions is neither Christian nor patriotic.

The problem of educating and Christianizing our colored fellow citizens has not yet been solved on any large scale and the prejudice and ill will likely to be engendered by a vivid portrayal of their worst features as exhibited in a past generation will not help to that end.

I am not disposed to advocate the activities of the censor except in extreme cases, but I think the authorities everywhere would be well advised to prohibit the production of this spectacle as deliberately offensive to a large if uninfluential element in our communities. Certainly no good can come from permitting a spectacle which outrages the sensibilities of a race which has its habitat among us and for whose welfare and progress we of the white race ought to feel a full measure of responsibility.

HAMILTON SCHUYLER.

Trenton, N. J., Sept. 25, 1915.

BRIDGEPORT (Conn.) POST
SEPT. 25, 1915

PROTEST MADE AGAINST "BIRTH OF A NATION"

Manager Saunders of Poli's Discusses Court's Action in Case of Photo Play.

The protest of Rev. William W. Ely of the A. M. E. Zion church, against the production of the photo play, "The Birth of a Nation," has brought out a reply from Matt Saunders, manager of the Poli theater. He said:

"The protests all over the country against the showing of "The Birth of a Nation" have been definitely threshed out and settled. It always follows that the photo play is exhibited, and the protests die out. Some people are protesting against it who never saw it and are lending their aid on hearsay evidence.

Protest in Chicago.

"An attempt was made to enjoin the exhibition of the screen play in Chicago. There the real ground was that it would engender race animosity.

"The theatre people prayed for an enjoinder against the persons from interfering, and the case was thrashed out in full before Judge William Fenimore Cooper of the Superior court of Cook county.

What Court Found.

The court held that the ground that it would engender race animosity was purely an assumption. In granting an injunction against the people attempting to stop the production of the play the court said: 'To find that the objection is a good one is to assume that our white citizens will not appreciate the fact that the days represented in the photo play were nearly in the first years of the last half century; that people who witness the play will be so stupid that the people represented in the canvass were of two or three generations ago.'

Further Views.

The court held that it was universally recognized that no race has shown greater advancement in the past two or three generations than the negro race. The court further said that the good black man and the white bad man were equally prominent in the photo play; that in every theater in the land the plays reveal the good and the bad characters essential in the rounding out of a moral, and without a moral a play has no essential value.

"Every night in every theater there is produced the base type of the white race of different nationalities, and if representatives of groups of the various nationalities so portrayed are so sensitive, that such individual portrayal would cause them to suffer race hatred of their race, and all the plays in which a villain had played were stopped on that account, the theater as an educator and a place of entertainment would become a memory of the past."

The court held that no one race had greater rights under the law than another, and that any race or nationality so offended can best give the lie to the bad characters by their individual conduct.

Manager Saunders says that he has no fear of the full presentation of the photo play at his theater, as there is no lawful objection to it.

WASHINGTON (D. C.) POST
SEPT. 26, 1915

[illegible] 18

FILM STIRS RACE RIOT.

Philadelphia Theater is Stormed by Mob of Colored Men.

Special to The Washington Post.

Philadelphia, Sept. 25.—A mob of more than 1,000 colored persons rioted Monday in front of a theater where the "Birth of a Nation" film is being shown, stormed and smashed the front doors and fired shots in the air before they were finally dispersed by a detachment of reserve policemen, who rushed them with drawn clubs. An immense crowd watched the demonstration.

The rioters first gathered before the theater about 3 o'clock, marching up and down the street before the theater five or six times before the police and detectives finally shunted them north to city hall. There they held a protest meeting on the plaza and then marched back to the theater where they were dispersed.

About 10 o'clock, however, the mob collected again. They began hurling bricks, shouting threats against the management of the theater and the owners of the film. They bowled over the policemen left on guard and made a dash for the theater entrance smashing the glass and firing off revolvers.

Inside the theater the ushers barred the doors and kept all noise of the riot from the audience until the reserves, summoned by telephone, arrived on the run. The police had to literally beat the [illegible] back from the theater breaking [illegible] with their clubs. A half dozen rioters were arrested. [illegible] dozen or more later for [illegible] to be show[illegible]

PORT

EPORT (Conn.) TELEGRAM 101
SEPT. 25, 1915

"BIRTH OF A NATION" LEADER LACKS NERVES

D. W. Griffith Planned and Executed 5,000 Scenes, and Remained Calm Withal.

D. W. Griffith is the most talked about, and probably the most sought after man in America. He learned how to plan things, in the making of the 5,000 scenes of "The Birth of a Nation" or he would be lost. He gallops through the myriad-and-one business details of a theatrical success without turning a nall or developing the slightest case of "nerves." When the turmoil and the tumult does, and the hours wax small, his refreshment is the dance or a friendly chat with a round table of chums.

It was said on the first night in New York that only the son of a soldier could have conceived and executed "The Birth of a Nation." As a Kentucky lad, the son of Brigadier-General J. W. Griffith, he drank in the Civil war narratives greedily. As he grew up came the poet's vision of the entire struggle and of reconstruction days. In the prime of manhood awoke genius to make it a reality.

While planning the Battle of Petersburg, Griffith drilled the regiments as faithfully as Kitchener in England or McClellan on the Fotomac. Like them, he had national guardsmen to work with. They knew the manual of arms, but had to acquire the grand tactics of picture evolutions. After the drill was completed, the director took his thousands of militiamen on a month's countryside campaign. Each squadron was commanded by a sub-director.

Pioneers preceded the soldiers to dig the long miles of trenches, to throw up embankments, and reproduce the physical landmarks of the battle. Among the noted Petersburg landmarks was a high tower. Griffiths made it serve a double purpose by using it as field headquarters. From its lofty eminence, he commanded the whole range of mountain and valley. Right at hand was a modern telephone switchboard. From it field-wires ran to his various sub-generals. Mostly these wires were in conduits underground; they had to be, or the camera would have produced the anachronism of field-telephones in Civil war time.

Thus completely equipped as a modern Joffre or von Kluck, Griffith saw everything and telephoned all his instructions. In the artillery actions, real cannon were used which discharged real shells. All were of the

PRODUCER OF GREATEST FILM PLAY OF TO-DAY

DAVID W. GRIFFITH

Originator of "The Birth of a Nation."

1864 patterns. When the infantry got busy, they used the antique Springfield muskets with the old-fashioned beyonets. As the men charge, it is to be seen that their uniforms are far from spick and span. Many of them are coatless and hatless; the clothing of others is tattered; the flags, even, have the look of battle-scarred ribbons. For the first time the grime, dirt, sordidness, as well as the glory of war, are accurately presented.

Plainly war, as Griffith makes it, is not a day's outing for a small and straggling crew of picture takers. It is hard, gruelling continuous work. Regiments, brigades, not companies are employed. There's everything from the far-flung panorama of the general battle to the handgrips of personal combat. Many hundreds of separate and distinct scenes are taken. The amount of labor and detail in the Battle of Petersburg alone would more than equal the combined labors of actors and stage directors in a dozen "indoor" productions.

HARTFORD (Conn.) POST
SEPT. 27, 1915

389

D POST, MONDAY EVENING,

ZEITER TALKS ON PHOTOPLAY

Pastor of St. Paul's M. E. Church Objects to Presentation of "Birth of a Nation"

Rev. John E. Zeiter, pastor of St. Paul's M. E. church, preached Sunday evening on "The Birth of a Nation," and during the course of his remarks objected strenuously to its presentation in this city. He spoke in part as follows:

The photoplay entitled "The Birth of a Nation," the proposed production of which in Hartford has already caused much comment and serious criticism, is based upon "The Clansman," a publication put in the market a decade ago by Thomas Dixon. Contention has arisen wherever the pictures have been shown and in not a few places it has been the occasion of race riots bringing disturbance into peaceable neighborhoods and engendering racial prejudices that have been antagonistic to community welfare. The negro opposition to this photoplay is based largely upon its historical inaccuracy and its false portrayal of the hopes, aims and temperaments of the colored race in the United States.

An all-sufficient reason why this "picture play" should not be permitted in Hartford is found in the fact that the best element of the colored race, the leaders of the negro people in the city, are opposed to it. They are citizens and they have their rights. These citizen rights should be respected.

The colored man stands for something that is worth while in this nation, and he should be encouraged. Taken all in all, the negro race has meant a good deal to the United States. If now and then one seems to be behind the age in intellect, and not ahead of it in morality, just remember that it was the dehumanizing slavery to which we by brute force, relegated him that has established the conditions. The American negro owes this nation nothing but loyalty and citizenship—and in all other things the nation is his debtor.

At the outcome of the bloody war we permitted him to have his freedom, but this was not a gift—it was his God-ordained right. But when we permitted him his freedom we failed to restore to him or make up to him that which through a period of more than 200 years he had taken from him in the shape of product and comfort and education and manhood. We permitted him his freedom, but we failed to throw around him the arms of protection or over him the curtain of defence. We left him to the ravages of his own inexperience, and unprotected against the attacks of those who by nature and training were his enemies. If, in spite of all this, the negro has struggled forward toward an honorable manhood—and is struggling onward toward the highest possible civilization—do not let us as citizens of Hartford, after more than 50 years, be guilty of turning him back or placing a stumbling block in his way.

In his struggle upward the negro deserves the support of every American citizen, for he has always been a patriot—true to American principles and ideas. The first bloodshed in the American revolution was that of a negro, Crispus Attucks, who fell in the Boston massacre, March 5, 1770. During that revolution the colonial negroes—slaves as well as freedmen—fought gallantly in the ranks with the white soldiers.

In the War of the Rebellion, what a story Fort Hudson tells for the honor of the negro race! Fort Wagner also sends up its glowing testimony. How splendidly the Twenty-fourth and the Twenty-fifth Regiments of infantry and the Ninth and Tenth Cavalry did their part at Caney and San Juan Hill in the Spanish War. The negro has proved and is proving his ability and worth in every field of human activity that is at all desirable. The race always measures well when it is given a real chance. Let us give them the protection and encouragement of which they are deserving.

CLIPPING FROM

Date .....

Reports of rioting in Philadelphia and other cities where Griffith's "The Birth of a Nation" is being shown seem to have increased interest in the spectacle at the Colonial. The fact that the production is being shown complete in Chicago and that there have been no signs of riots is especially attractive to women theater goers. Chicago seems able to boast of a sanity that is not apparent in other cities. With the return of show weather the sold-out sign is the regular thing again at every performance.

Another Protest Against Picture.

Another protest against the appearance of the motion picture, "The Birth of a Nation," in this city, has been filed with Mayor Joseph H. Lawler in the form of a letter from Mrs. H. Engelke of No. 195 Sigourney street, a member of the D. A. R. She writes that she has seen the picture and does not think that it should be allowed in Hartford as it will not uplift people, nor give credit to the city.

BOSTON AMERICAN
SEPT. [illegible]

Worcester Permits 'Birth of a Nation'

WORCESTER, Sept. 30. — Mayor George N. Wright says he will permit the photoplay, "The Birth of a Nation," to be shown in Worcester. The Mayor made this statement, following his return from Providence, where he saw the play, in company with all members of the licensing board.

Circuit [illegible] yesterday a temporary injunction to the Producing Company, which sought to restrain the Cherokee Theater from producing a drama called The [illegible] of Our Nation. The Epoch Company is producing the film play The Birth of a Nation at the Olympia Theater.

BRIDGEPORT (Conn.) TELEGRAM
SEPT. 27, 1915

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER

PICTURE STIRS UP COLORED PEOPLE

Delegation to Confer With Mayor and Pastors This Morning.

"The colored people of the city are very much wrought up over the coming showing of 'The Birth of a Nation,' a photoplay at Poli's theatre next week," said the Rev. William W. Ely, pastor of the A. M. E. Zion church last night. A delegation will meet this morning at 10 o'clock with the Bridgeport Pastors' association, and Mayor Clifford B. Wilson, who has promised the pastor that all objectional features will not be shown, will be present at the conference. Dr. H. O. Harding, a well-known physician, will be present as well as the pastors.

The Rev. Ely said last night:

"I have read in the newspapers where the white ministers have denounced the play at the New England Methodist conference.

"I believe that the play gives impetus to the lynchings in the South; the people are encouraged by the play to such acts.

"I called on the mayor last week," said the Rev. Mr. Ely, "and he promised me that all features in the play which are protested would not be played.

"I think," said the minister, "that anything which will bring up a race dissatisfaction in the city should be cut out."

NORFOLK (Va.) VIRGINIAN-PILOT
SEPT. 27, 1915

"THE BIRTH OF A NATION"

The Virginian-Pilot is in receipt of a number of communications dealing with "The Birth of a Nation," some advocating and others protesting against the staging in Norfolk of this much debated production. As its appearance during the current week is a fixed fact, the City Council having declined to take any prohibitory action in regard to it and the Mayor having delcared that he had no authority under the law to interfere on the grounds alleged, discussion of the subject at this juncture could be only academic. In such circumstances obviously nothing is to be gained by publishing any of the communications which we have in hand and none of them will be given space in our columns.

We shall, however, take opportunity to witness the production, to the end that we may be in position to give expression to views based on personal observation.

SPRINGFIELD (Mass.) REPUBLICAN
SEPT. 29, 1915

It Should Not Be Allowed

The selectmen of West Springfield have voted to lease the town hall for a month for the presentation of the notorious motion-picture drama, "The Birth of a Nation." Happily the lease has not yet been executed and the selectmen, in view of the strong sentiment that has already made itself felt, may be expected to reconsider the action in the public interest. The revenue derived from the hall for this purpose would be a pitiful price for which to sell the town's good name.

The colored people have made a strong issue over this play. They believe that it grossly and cruelly misrepresents them, creates prejudice against them and hampers them in their relations with other Americans. They have therefore made an urgent effort to prevent its presentation and in this they have had the hearty support of prominent white men and women who see the play as they do and believe that is pernicious in its influence.

To allow this play to be given—and in a building which houses the high school and library—is therefore a direct affront to the colored people; but it is also certain by reason of its false teachings to do an injury to any others who may be influenced by it. That a protest has not been earlier heard is because the public has not known that the presentation of the play in West Springfield was proposed, but the selectmen will quickly perceive that they are not serving the town's interest by permitting it.

There was a time when disreputable resorts were maintained in West Springfield because the town was "easy." Latterly there has been a great change for the better. To permit this play to be given suggests a return to the old ways, and the citizens will not like it. Springfield prohibited it for good and sufficient reasons and the remark of a selectman that "we don't have to worry about a big Negro vote on this side of the river" is not only uncalled for, but it may very well be one that the selectman will regret. Some things are done for decency, without political consideration or profit.

HARTFORD (Conn.) COURANT
SEPT. 27, 1915

386

ZEITER OBJECTS TO "BIRTH OF NATION"

Hartford Minister In Sermon Defends Negro Residents.

BOOK AND FILMS BOTH MENDACIOUS.

No Birth of Nation After Civil War—Dixon a Product.

In no uncertain terms, Rev. John E. Zeiter, to a large congregation in St. Paul's Methodist Church, last night, objected to the production of the photoplay "The Birth of a Nation" in this city. As a nation, the United States has not given the negro race a fair chance, said the preacher, and the showing of this picture would only add to the unfairness of their competition in the struggle towards civilization.

The sermon, in part, was as follows:—

The photoplay entitled "The Birth of a Nation," the proposed production of which in Hartford has already caused much comment and serious criticism, is based upon "The Clansman," a publication put in the market a decade ago by Thomas Dixon. Contention has arisen wherever the pictures have been shown and in not a few places it has been the occasion of race riots, bringing disturbance into peaceable neighborhoods and engendering racial prejudices that have been antagonistic to community welfare. The negro opposition to this photoplay is based largely upon its historical inaccuracy and its false portrayal of the hopes, aims and temperaments of the colored race in the United States.

An all-sufficient reason why this "picture play" should not be permitted in Hartford is found in the fact that the best element of the colored race, the leaders of the negro people in the city, are opposed to it. They are citizens and they have their rights. These citizen rights should be respected.

The colored man stands for something that is worth while in this nation, and he should be encouraged. Taken all in all, the negro race has meant a good deal to the United States. If now and then one seems to be behind the age in intellect, and not ahead of it in morality, just remember that it was the dehumanizing slavery to which we, by brute force, relegated him that has established the conditions. The American negro owes this nation nothing but loyalty and citizenship—and in all other things the nation is his debtor.

At the outcome of the bloody war we permitted him to have his freedom, but this was not a gift—it was his God-ordained right. But when we permitted him his freedom we failed to restore to him or make up to him that which through a period of more than 200 years we had taken from him in the shape of product and comfort and education and manhood. We permitted him his freedom but we failed to throw around him the arms of protection or over him the curtain of defence. We left him to the ravages of his own inexperience, and unprotected against the attacks of those who by nature and training were his enemies. If, in spite of all this, the negro has struggled forward toward an honorable manhood—and is struggling onward toward the highest possible civilization—do not let us as citizens of Hartford, after more than fifty years, be guilty of turning him back or placing a stumbling block in his way.

In his struggle upward the negro deserves the support of every American citizen, for he has always been a patriot—true to American principles and ideas. The first bloodshed in the American revolution was that of a negro, Crispus Attucks, who fell in the Boston massacre, March 5, 1770. During that revolution the Colonial negros—slaves as well as freedman—fought gallantly in the ranks with the white soldiers.

In the War of the Rebellion, what a story Port Hudson tells for the honor of the negro race! Fort Wagner also sends up its glowing testimony. How splendidly the Twenty-Fourth and Twenty-Fifth Regiments of infantry and the Ninth and Tenth Cavalry did their part at El Caney and San Juan Hill in the Spanish War. The negro has proven and is proving his ability and worth in every field of human activity that is at all desirable. The race always measures well when it is given a real chance. Let us give them the protection and encouragement of which they are deserving.

You ask if the protest against the "Birth of a Nation" is really justified? Emphatically I say yes. "The Clans-

---

" claiming to be a historical el, is in nowise entitled to any such tinction. For the most part it is solutely false in its historical statents and settings. It is ignorant in s placing of dates and persons; it is nsanely vicious in its attacks on northern sentiments and purposes. It is ruthless in its misrepresentation of northern statesmen and statesmanship; it is dishonest in its narration of temperaments and ideals; it distinctly misinterprets the negro race. In plot and style it belongs to the "dime novel" class of literature. Its glorification of Ku-Klax-Klan—especially at the date when the story is placed—is an insult to American manhood and citizenship and in tremendous manner breathes the spirit of anarchy.

That the pictures are more mendacious, more strife-provoking than the book itself is the claim of the folk who protest against the photoplay. Where Lixon gets the name for his play is hard to discover. Certainly the United States as a nation did not have its birth in post-bellum days. The negro race decries the claim that any birth came to them out of the Ku-Klux Klam regime.

About the only birth that came out at that time or those conditions in the Southland was the mob spirit, the attitude of disregard for law and order which had such a notable example only a few weeks ago when twenty-five or thirty men, seemingly aided and abetted by a number of state, county and town officials, rode rouzhshod over all law and decency and dragged a helpless, wounded man—believed by the majority of his countrymen to be innocent of crime and so believed innocent by the judge who sat at hi trial and by the governor of his state—dragged him from the supposed plac of his protection and defiantly hange him to a tree. This spirit which the had its birth lives and thrives now t the shame of the nation. The product of this birth are such personages a Watson, and Blease and Vardaman and Dixon.

Thank God there are not many o them in the nation or in the South and what few are left should, in the name of Americanism and civilizatio and Christianity, be discredited ever time they intrude on decent society It is not a matter of sentiment on th part of the colored folks in Hartfor that makes them decry the productio of the photoplay in this city, nor ye is it due to any oversensitiveness o their part. It is a simple claim in th intent of justice, truth and commo decency.

The colored people of Hartford ar abiding citizens, averaging alon the rest of us. If the authoritie not heed their protest they wi to the inevitable depo themselves as respectable America citizens ought, but it will be a sa how a people deserving of a better recognition.

---

We are glad to note the objection to the play that are coming from many of Hartford's best citizens outside the colored race, coming from people without regard to social religions or political affiliations, and we trust that all this will not only succeed in closing Hartford against the production, but as well send out an influence that will help for this and all other undesirable photoplays from every self-respecting city and town in the Union.

WORCESTER (Mass.) HERALD
SEPT. 28, 1915

"BIRTH OF A NATION" FILM BARRED BY CENSORS

By United Press.

Columbus, Sept. 28.—State movie censors, after a week's deliberation, today barred from exhibition in Ohio "The Birth of a Nation," perhaps the most elaborate film play ever staged in America.

Thomas Dixon, Jr., author of "The Clansman" and "The Leopard's Spots," collaborated in writing the scenario for the drama, which is 12 reels long. D. W. Griffith was the producer.

The play was passed by Pennsylvania censors, but race riots followed its showing in Philadelphia theaters.

It depicts slavery conditions in the south, the change wrought by the civil war and the later reconstruction period in which negroes dominated many southern states politically.

Censors said today many influential negroes, together with numerous G. A. R.'s in Ohio, protested against showing the film in this state.

"The drama, in our opinion, would tend to engender race prejudice and to arouse latent feeling between the north and south," censors said today in announcing their rejection of the film.

HARTFORD (Conn.) TIMES
SEPT. 27, 1915

DEPENDS THE NEGRO

The Rev. John E. Zeiter Says "The Birth of a Nation" Should Not Be Shown Here.

The Rev. John E. Zeiter joined the number protesting against the appearance of the photo films depicting "The Birth of a Nation," in his sermon at St. Paul's Methodist church, Sunday evening. Said the speaker in part:

"The photoplay entitled 'The Birth of a Nation,' the proposed production of which in Hartford has already caused much comment and serious criticism, is based upon 'The Clansman,' a publication put in the market a decade ago by Thomas Dixon. Contention has arisen wherever the pictures have been shown and in not a few places it has been the occasion of race riots, bringing disturbance into peaceable neighborhoods and engendering racial prejudices that have been antangonistic to community welfare. The negro opposition to this photoplay is based largely upon its historical inaccuracy and its false portrayal of the hopes, aims and temperaments of the colored race in the United States.

"You ask if the protest against 'The Birth of a Nation' is really justified. Emphatically I say yes. 'The Clansman,' claiming to be a historical novel, is in no wise entitled to any such distinction. For the most part it is absolutely false in its historical statements and settings. It distinctly misinterprets the negro race. In plot and style it belongs to the dime novel class of literature. Its glorification of Ku-Klax-Klan—especially at the date when the story is placed—is an insult to American manhood and citizenship.

"That the pictures are more mendacious, more strife-provoking than the book itself is the claim of the folk who protest against the photoplay.

"An all-sufficient reason why this 'picture play' should not be permitted in Hartford is found in the fact that the best element of the colored race, the leaders of the negro people in the city, are opposed to it. They are citizens and they have their rights. These citizen rights should be respected."

BRIDGEPORT (Conn.) POST
SEPT. 28, 1915

NEGROES WILL GO LIMIT TO STOP PRODUCTION HERE OF "THE BIRTH OF A NATION"

That the colored population of Bridgeport will "go the limit" to prevent the presentation ta a local theatre of "The Birth of a Nation," a film drama, was the statement made today to Mayor C. B. Wilson and Police Superintendent Eugene Birmingham by a protest committee representing the negroes of the city.

The committee consisted of Dr. T. W. Gibbs, Dr. H. O. Harding and Henry Faulkner. They were acting independently of the pastors of colored churches, who sought the support of the Bridgeport Pastors' association in the protest agains tthe films.

Mayor Wilson and Superintendent Birmingham, according to the committee, promised to take the matter up in the proper channels. The committee later visited the newspaper offices of the city to make public their protest.

"We don't want this film censored—we want it stopped altogether," said Dr. Harding, speaking for the committee. "We have taken the matter up with Mayor Wilson and Superintendent Birmingham and have received assurances that they will act officially. In the event that official action looking to the prohibition of the films here is lacking, the colored people of Bridgeport are prepared to go the limit in legal channels if necessary."

Dr. Harding said he have seen the picture. He characterized it as being conducive to race hatred and held that it is a base libel on the negro race. "We have the support of every negro and every fair-minded white person in this protest," he said.

Mayor Wilson was asked today by representatives of the Bridgeport Pastors' association to censor "The Birth of a Nation" film by the elimination of two objectionable scenes, before it is allowed to be shown in this city. The scenes objected to were eliminated by censors in Boston and other cities.

The protest of the colored citizens against the films was brought before the association meeting in the South Congregational church this forenoon by Rev. W. W. Eley. He told the meeting that the colored congregations are much wrought up over the forthcoming presentation of the play here.

Following considerable discussion, the pastors voted to suggest to Mayor Wilson that objectionable scenes in the picture be eliminated. Some of the pastors, said Rev. John F. Wagner, the president, have seen the censored film and said it was "all right." The mayor, who attended the meeting later in the morning, was informed of the association's suggestion.

WORCESTER (Mass.) POST
SEPT. 28, 1915.

"BIRTH OF A NATION" IS JUDGED BY COMMITTEE

Mayor Wright, Chief of Police George H. Hill and George C. Halcott, chairman of the license board, went to Providence today to attend a performance of "The Birth of a Nation" that they might judge whether the show will be permitted in Worcester.

SPRINGFIELD (Mass.) [illegible]
SEPT. [illegible]

WILL FIX DATE FOR CENSORING

West Springfield Selectmen to Decide Tomorrow on Preliminary Film Showing OF "BIRTH OF NATION"

Colored Folks Stirred Up Over the Granting of the Permit

No protest was filed today against the showing of "The Birth of a Nation," which will run a month at the Town Hall in West Springfield. Selectman A. F. Royce stated that there are only about four families of negroes in the town, and he added that all sections of the film of an objectionable nature either on account of the negro or on any other account, would be eliminated in censoring.

A date will be set at the meeting of the selectmen tomorrow night at the Town Hall for the preliminary showing of the film, at which the censoring will take place. Officials of the town would express no opinion this morning on the showing of the film.

Mrs. William H. DeBerry, wife of the pastor of St. John's Congregational Church, said this afternoon that her husband had an engagement set for today in Vermont and had to leave, but that he was reluctant to do so. She said he spoke with several prominent men here before he left about the showing of the film, but she did not know the result of his efforts. He will be back tomorrow about noon, she said.

The permit to show the famous photoplay which has raised a storm in Boston, where it has been running for several months, was issued last evening to George B. Miller, former manager of the Bijou Theater in this city after it was found impossible to produce the film in this city owing to the attitude of Mayor Frank E. Stacy, Sta[illegible] positively refuses to countenance for re[illegible] prejudice aga[illegible] and it might [illegible] between the no[illegible] allowed to be shown [illegible] girls, it was said, [illegible] Mr Wright said that [illegible]

CARL E. GRAMM[illegible]

HARTFORD (Conn.) TIMES
SEPT. 27, 1915 391

DEAN KNIGHT ENTERS PROTEST

Writes Mayor Concerning Showing Here of Much Exploited Moving Pictures.

PASTORS OF COLORED CHURCHES OBJECT.

Mayor Promises Them an Opportunity to Be Heard in Mr. Poli's Presence.

Dean Edward Hooker Knight of the Hartford School of Pedagogy has written a protest to Mayor Lawler against permitting an appearance of the photoplay, "The Birth of a Nation," in this city. Dean Knight has seen the production and asserts that "it fans race prejudice to a glowing flame." The letter of the dean follows:

Sept. 24, 1915.

Mayor Joseph H. Lawler, Hartford, Conn.

My Dear Sir: Having noted that permission has been asked for the performance of the play called "The Birth of a Nation," I wish to present to you a most emphatic protest against such permission being granted. Having seen the play last summer in Portland, Me., I speak from personal knowledge. While professing to be historical, the play gives an exceedingly distorted view of the history of the reconstruction period. It implies that certain scenes wherein the negro appears at his worst are representative of the negro people as a whole. It fans race prejudice to a glowing flame. It glorifies the spirit and deeds of the Ku Klux Klan, which in reality were an expression of the same mob violence which has recently disgraced Georgia. For these reasons I urge most earnestly that permission to produce the play in Hartford be refused.

Should you desire to make any public use of this letter, I should be glad to have you do so.

EDWARD HOOKER KNIGHT.

The production is advertised to open in Poli's theater, Bridgeport, Monday evening, October 4. There has been no objection to the play in that city. Mayor Lawler may see the production in Bridgeport before announcing his decision in regard to Hartford. The date of the production in Hartford has not been announced.

Mayor Lawler received a call today from the Rev. W. A. Harrod, pastor of the Shiloh Baptist church, the Rev. W. B. Suthern, rector of St. Monica's Episcopal church, and the Rev. R. R. Ball, pastor of the A. M. E. Zion church, who protested in the names of their congregations against the appearance of the picture films in this city. They said they represented not only the colored folk of the city, but hundreds of white people as well, who did not believe the films should be shown in this city.

The clergymen said, after seeing the mayor, that he told them the films were apparently playing to large houses in such centers as New York and Philadelphia, and no date had been fixed for its appearance in Hartford.

"The mayor told us that in the event of a date being announced for the appearance of the production in Hartford we would have an opportunity to be heard by him in the presence of Mr. Poli, who expects to produce the piece here."

The clergymen said they were encouraging their friends to make protests to the mayor, both in writing and over the telephone.

SPRINGFIELD (Mass.) UNION 356
SEPT. 29, 1915

LEWIS WILL SPEAK TO CIVIC LEAGUE

May Have Something to Say on "Birth of Nation" Agitation.

The Negro Civic League of this city will open its winter season with a big gathering of members in the Third Baptist Church in William Street tonight. William H. Lewis, former assistant United States attorney general, will be the principal speaker, and William C. Matthews, a famous Harvard baseball player, and now an attorney in Boston, will also speak.

The league has invited the members of the City Council to attend the meeting, and some of the members who have not made previous engagements will attend. Alderman George S. Cook, who will be acting Mayor today in the absence of Mayor Stacy, will meet Mr. Lewis this afternoon and show him through the Municipal Group.

It is not at all unlikely that Mr. Lewis will make some reference to "The Birth of a Nation," in view of the fact that it is to be shown in West Springfield soon. This intimation was given yesterday by a person who is in a position to know that the picture will be talked of among the Negroes who meet tonight.

Mr. Lewis was one of the leaders in the fight against this motion picture in Boston and he is expected to have some light to throw on the real facts back of the agitation for and against the picture.

Mr. Lewis has won as great renown as a public speaker as he did on the football field years ago when he played center for Amherst and later for Harvard. He is sure to have a message for his people and something of interest to others as well.

One prominent Negro resident said yesterday that he would not be surprised if Mr. Lewis did touch on the motion picture, "Birth of a Nation," vigorously and also might say something about the statement credited to a West Springfield selectman, implying that Mayor Stacy's motive in barring the picture from this city was purely political and for the sake of the Negro vote.

The Mayor himself declined to make any reply or discuss the statement yesterday.

BRIDGEPORT (Conn.) STANDARD
SEPT. 29, 1915 92

MAGNIFICENT SPECTACLE DWARFS THE 'LEGITIMATE'

"Birth of a Nation" Like a Mountain Compared to the Molehill of Episodic Drama.

The magnitude of David W. Griffith's feat in staging "The Birth of a Nation," is almost appalling, at least to the devotee of the older forms of theatrical entertainment. Where now are the little groups of actors, the pinchbeck scenery and the petty properties of the so-called "legitimate" drama? By comparison with the new art, the "legitimate" measures to the mountain like a molehill. Instead of scenery for his background Griffith has used nature. For subject he has covered 150 years of American history. Eighteen [illegible] people have done his bidding and in the hair-raising rides of the Ku Klux Klan 3,000 riders and horses sweep over the dusty roads.

No wonder that this magnificent historical spectacle is the talk of the country. It has established an entirely new art in the realm of the theater—the art of pantomimic screen spectacle with an orchestral score perfectly synchronized to the action. It has also created a tremendous sensation because of its vaster and more forceful treatment of the theme of Thomas Dixon's "The Clansman," which both as book and play created the greatest furore of the last decade.

The great deeds of the Civil War and the horrors of Reconstruction are made to live again and the nation reborn is apothesized. Mr. Griffith, pioneer among directors, managed this stupendous achievement without the aid of dialogue or speech, for motion pictures with music and effects tell vividly this thrilling tale of 50 years ago.

SPRINGFIELD (Mass.) REPUBLICAN
SEPT. 29, 1915

SPRINGFIELD (Mass.) UNION 353
SEPT. 29, 1915

MAYOR DECLINES TO DISCUSS ASSERTION

Feels Justified in Barring Spectacular Film from This City.

Mayor Stacy declined yesterday to discuss the assertion of the West Side selectman that politics was principally responsible for the exclusion of "The Birth of a Nation" from this city. All he would say anent that incident is that he does not care to pick any fuss and feels that he was fully justified in banning the film.

He reiterated a statement made some time ago that he desires to keep the shows of Springfield clean and that he proposes to bar any show against which any considerable proportion of the citizens protest, because they feel that it is immoral or depicts a race unfairly.

He says that no one came to him in relation to "The Birth of a Nation," but that he had information concerning the opposition to it in Providence and other cities and that he has seen the film himself. It is understood he is kept informed by another race concerning shows that would be objectionable to it.

He was willing to lay a small wager yesterday that public sentiment would eventually result in cancelation of plans to give "The Birth of a Nation" in West Springfield. He expressed the opinion that the best way to learn the attitude of the Negroes to the show and their reasons therefore was to see William H. Lewis, who speaks before the Negro Civic League in this city tonight.

It develops that there have been several shows this year, which the city has been obliged to worry along without because the Mayor would not give his approval.

short talk with Dr. Axson and called on several old friends.

PROTEST AGAINST FILM

"THE BIRTH OF A NATION"

MAY COME TO WEST SPRINGFIELD

Vigorous Opposition May Prevent Its Coming—Negro Organizations Will Act

"I wouldn't stoop to answer Selectman Royce." Thus far and no farther would Mayor Frank Stacy go yesterday when he was asked for a reply to the west-side selectman's insinuation that Mr Stacy banned "The Birth of a Nation" from Springfield in exchange for Negro votes. But the Negroes of the city are not so reticent. They are rallying to the defense of the mayor, stirred to anger by the West Springfield selectmen's vote of Monday night to allow the famous and now infamous photoplay to be shown this fall in the west-side town hall.

W. W. Samples, towerman at the City hall, was the first among the prominent colored men of the city to give voice. "I understand," said he, "that last winter the owners of that picture offered $2000 to be allowed to bring it to Springfield. I am wondering how much of that $2000 West Springfield is getting for letting it show in that town. Mr Royce or anybody else who claims that Mayor Stacy banned the picture here for votes is mighty lacking in moral principle. I don't believe the majority of people in West Springfield will stand behind Royce in this thing.

"So far as we are concerned," he continued, "there was absolutely no political significance attached to Mayor Stacy's action last winter. We did not ask him to prohibit the showing of the picture. He did it of his own accord." Mayor Stacy said this was true. Negroes came to him objecting to "The Nigger," another photoplay which was slated for Springfield before "The Birth of a Nation" and he prohibited it. But when "The Birth of a Nation" appeared he ruled it out of the city because he considered it unfit to be shown here. "And I stand ready to protect any other race or color against any similar insult," he added.

A verbal shell or two doubtless will explode to-night at the Third Baptist church, where William H. Lewis, former assistant attorney-general, and one of the leading [illegible]res among the Negroes of the country, [illegible] address the Negro civic league. Final [illegible]angements for his appearance and for a [illegible]able expression of protest against the [illegible]lay of the photoplay in the west-side [illegible]n hall were made last night at a session [illegible]he officers of the civic league.

SPRINGFIELD [illegible]

WATERBURY (Conn.) AMERICAN
SEPT. 30, 1915

WORCESTER MAYOR LIKES IT

Will Not Prohibit "The Birth of a Nation" in That City

"The Birth of a Nation" has received the official sanction of George M. Wright, mayor of Worcester. "It is the greatest thing," he is quoted as saying. "I have ever seen in the way of a moving picture." Mayor Wright made a special trip to Providence to see the film before coming to any decision in regard to sanctioning its production in his city.

Protests have been made to Mayor Wright to prohibit the picture in Worcester, all of which have received his careful consideration, but now that he has seen the play himself he refuses to offer any objection to its being shown in that city. He asserts that the play works no injustice to any race, and calls attention to the fact that a villain has to be of some nationality, but that that fact is not regarded in plays, books and stories as a reflection on that particular race. "In this photoplay," he adds, "the good colored man is fully and perhaps more prominently represented than the bad colored man."

SLANDERING THAD STEVENS.

The most detestable character in the famous movie play, "The Birth of a Nation," which is contested just enough to keep up popular interest in it, is the radical leader in Congress, who, though bearing another name, is obviously Thad Stevens, the Pennsylvania Congressman and leader of the radicals in Congress during the reconstruction period. He is represented as a coarse, brutal "nigger lover" whose housekeeper, a negress, is also his mistress. There are few left who are interested in defending Thad Stevens. He was a great force in his day and his object was righteousness. He had the defects of his qualities and many who sympathized with his objects detested his methods. protests are come, however, against the perversion of the truth in respect to this man in the play of Thomas Dixon's and in a letter to a the press adding slanderous details. One of them writes to the New York in a letter of which the following is the chief part:

Theddeus Stevens [illegible]

[illegible]vertisement [illegible]ke such form [illegible]he mark.

Circuit Ju[illegible] temporar[illegible] Producing Co[illegible] strain the C[illegible] from producing [illegible] of Our Natio[illegible] is producing the film [illegible] Nation at the Olym[illegible]

WORCESTER TELEGRAM 991
SEPT. 29, 1915

MAYOR IS TO PERMIT "BIRTH OF A NATION"

18

SPRINGFIELD UNION 856
SEPT. 30, 1915

Views Film at Providence Before Acting on Protest

IT DOES NOT REFLECT ON NEGRO RACE, HE SAYS

Nothing Objectionable to the Play, He Adds

Mayor George M. Wright last night declared he will permit the photoplay, "The birth of a nation," to be shown in Worcester. The mayor made this statement, following his return from Providence, where he saw the play, yesterday afternoon, in company with Chief of police George H. Hill, Street commissioner Albert T. Rhodes and Superintendent of public buildings George C. Halcott, all members of the license board. Private secretary John W. Odlin was in the party.

Mayor Wright had received protests from Worcester persons of the negro race against the showing of the picture in Worcester. It was alleged in these protests that the picture reflects seriously on their race does it a grave injustice, and is likely to incite racial hatred.

Making all due allowance for protests that were paid for or made through the work of those who are paid to stir opposition, as it was claimed was the case in Boston, there were several sincere protests.

Mayor Wright determined to see the play and judge for himself whether it should be shown in Worcester. Providence was the nearest city where he could see the reels run off.

"I see no reason why the picture should not be shown in Worcester, and I shall offer no objections to it," said Mayor Wright, last night. "It is the greatest thing I have ever seen in the way of a moving picture.

"One feels, as he looks on the picture, that he is seeing a chapter of real life. It is a splendid and impressive spectacle.

"I cannot see where the play works injustice to any race. In plays, books and stories there have been the villain or villians and these villains have been cast in every nationality, with no intention of reflecting on any nationality nor has such an intention been thought of.

"In this photoplay the good colored man is fully and perhaps more prominent than the bad colored man. Several portions of the film that gave offense have been removed, I understand. It should be remembered that this play represents the reconstruction period following the Civil war of 50 years ago.

"It should also be borne in mind that conditions have changed vastly during the lapse of years, and that the play is decidedly of the past and not the present. This play simply represents a period of our own national history; is a picturized version of it, and the screen tells the same story that we may read in histories or in books.

"I cannot, after seeing the picture, find anything in it that is objectionable, and I shall offer no objection to its being shown in Worcester."

The license board members who saw the play in company with Mayor Wright share his opinions of the picture. Only court proceedings can have any possible effect now in the way of a bar to the pictures and these are not likely to be tried, in view of the recent decision of a Chicago Superior court judge, in favor of the picture.

...ed a farm board of the same description.

The People's Forum

"NO NEGRO VOTE."

Is That a Good Reason for the Action of West Springfield's Selectmen?

To the Editor of The Union.

Sir: Is West Springfield desirous of possessing the reputation of Sodom, or is it not? Almost every year something comes up to do with that town's affairs, or with the conduct of its eminent Selectmen, which causes people on this side of the river to wonder just what kind of a community it is that lies across the old toll bridge. I recall that not many years ago a policeman resigned from the force of the delectable town because, so he alleged, a man could not be a policeman and a Christian at one and the same time in West Springfield. And after reading the alleged statement of Selectman Royce when defending the action of the board in giving tentative permission for the production of "The Birth of a Nation," I am strongly inclined to believe that there was good reason for this policeman's remark.

What must the people of West Springfield think when Selectman Royce says that they have no Negro vote in West Springfield to bother about? Is number of votes the basis on which moral questions are settled in West Springfield? Are the people of our neighbor town willing that their Selectmen should sell for a few miserable dollars the self-respect and good name of West Springfield?

One might think that if nothing else were to prevent the production of this controversial play in West Springfield ordinary civic neighborliness would prevent it. Springfield refused permission to the promoters because the play is a provoker of strife, and because a large number of our respectable and respected citizens vehemently assert that the production falsely pictures them and tends to lower them in the eyes of their fellow-citizens. This assertion is supported by the declarations of many white men of note in other cities. Springfield did right to exclude the play. Now, however, its promoters are trying to thwart the wishes of our authorities and to steal it at our back door. What is not good enough for Springfield cannot be good enough for the high-minded people of West Springfield.

I am sure that the Selectmen's view of civic morality, if it is what it has been reported to be, is not shared by a majority of our neighbors across the river, and that they will not be willing to allow their civic center to be put to a use that is harmful to good citizenship and affronting to their neighbors, the people of Springfield.

Further, will State law permit the running of a motion picture machine in a building a part of which [redacted] during an entertainment [redacted] be used as a schoolroom? Town Hall in West Springfield is at present housing the high school, which would be in session while the production was being run off in the hall itself.

A WHITE CITIZEN.

Springfield, Sept. 29, 1915.

...was a bachelor rather than at a hotel. His housekeeper was a colored woman named Lydia Smith. On this slender basis of fact Mr Dixon makes the charge that Stevens lived for 15 years in open adultery with his housekeeper. Whether the inference was drawn by the author from the customs of his own country or the bent of his own mind, it is wholly without foundation in truth.

Stevens is not buried in a negro cemetery. He is buried in Shreiner's Cemetery, at the corner of West Chestnut and North Mulberry Streets, Lancaster, Pa. He chose it as his last resting place because it was the only cemetery in the city of Lancaster which in its charter did not discriminate against the colored race. As a matter of fact, so far as I have been able to learn, and I have lived here 22 years, and have made careful inquiry, no negroes are or ever have been buried in this cemetery.

Lydia Smith, Stevens's housekeeper, is not buried at his side or even in the same cemetery. For a number of years before his death Stevens was an invalid; his housekeeper was a loyal and faithful servant, and in his will Stevens remembered her with a moderate legacy, not incommensurate with her services. The bulk of his estate went to endow an industrial school for boys in this city, which the state of Pennsylvania has recently taken over as a state institution, and in which the benevolent plans of the "Great Commoner" are being carried into effect.

During his lifetime Stevens was always more than a match for his enemies and detractors. Were he alive Mr Dixon would not have dared to bark at him, much less attack him. Thaddeus Stevens's whole life was dedicated to the cause of human liberty, and I protest against the attempt to write these slanders into his life and history.

WILLIAM H. KELLER.

Lancaster, Pa, September 22.

"The Birth of a Nation" for a little time, at least, revenges the wrongs of the South and gives new vitality to its prejudices. Stevens was the worst enemy the South had, was hated more than almost any other man, and that feeling toward him is manifested in this play. The reader who is unacquainted with history gets an idea that he was a brutal scoundrel just as it does that the Ku Klux Klan was a noble organization of high minded men devoted to the defense of outraged society.

girls, more ... it was said, ... could continue ... Mr Wright said that ... the ...

CARL E. GRIMM...

... and ... assigned ... it might arouse prejudice against ... colored race, and it might ... prejudice between the North ... south ... allowed to be shown ...

HARTFORD (Conn.) TIMES
SEPT. 27, 1915 391

DEAN KNIGHT ENTERS PROTEST

Writes Mayor Concerning Showing Here of Much Exploited Moving Pictures.

PASTORS OF COLORED CHURCHES OBJECT.

Mayor Promises Them an Opportunity to Be Heard in Mr. Poli's Presence.

Dean Edward Hooker Knight of the Hartford School of Pedagogy has written a protest to Mayor Lawler against permitting an appearance of the photoplay, "The Birth of a Nation," in this city. Dean Knight has seen the production and asserts that "it fans race prejudice to a glowing flame." The letter of the dean follows:

Sept. 24, 1915.

Mayor Joseph H. Lawler, Hartford, Conn.

My Dear Sir: Having noted that permission has been asked for the performance of the play called "The Birth of a Nation," I wish to present to you a most emphatic protest against such permission being granted. Having seen the play last summer in Portland, Me., I speak from personal knowledge. While professing to be historical, the play gives an exceedingly distorted view of the history of the reconstruction period. It implies that certain scenes wherein the negro appears at his worst are representative of the negro people as a whole. It fans race prejudice to a glowing flame. It glorifies the spirit and deeds of the Ku Klux Klan, which in reality were an expression of the same mob violence which has recently disgraced Georgia. For these reasons I urge most earnestly that permission to produce the play in Hartford be refused.

Should you desire to make any public use of this letter, I should be glad to have you do so.

EDWARD HOOKER KNIGHT.

The production is advertised to open in Poli's theater, Bridgeport, Monday evening, October 4. There has been no objection to the play in that city. Mayor Lawler may see the production in Bridgeport before announcing his decision in regard to Hartford. The date of the production in Hartford has not been announced.

Mayor Lawler received a call today from the Rev. W. A. Harrod, pastor of the Shiloh Baptist church, the Rev. W. B. Suthern, rector of St. Monica's Episcopal church, and the Rev. R. R. Ball, pastor of the A. M. E. Zion church, who protested in the names of their congregations against the appearance of the picture films in this city. They said they represented not only the colored folk of the city, but hundreds of white people as well, who did not believe the films should be shown in this city.

The clergymen said, after seeing the mayor, that he told them the films were apparently playing to large houses in such centers as New York and Philadelphia, and no date had been fixed for its appearance in Hartford.

"The mayor told us that in the event of a date being announced for the appearance of the production in Hartford we would have an opportunity to be heard by him in the presence of Mr. Poli, who expects to produce the piece here."

The clergymen said they were encouraging their friends to make protests to the mayor, both in writing and over the telephone.

SPRINGFIELD (Mass.) REPUB. UNION 856
SEPT. 29, 1915

LEWIS WILL SPEAK TO CIVIC LEAGUE

May Have Something to Say on "Birth of Nation" Agitation.

The Negro Civic League of this city will open its winter season with a big gathering of members in the Third Baptist Church in William Street tonight. William H. Lewis, former assistant United States attorney general, will be the principal speaker, and William C. Matthews, a famous Harvard baseball player, and now an attorney in Boston, will also speak.

The league has invited the members of the City Council to attend the meeting, and some of the members who have not made previous engagements will attend. Alderman George S. Cook, who will be acting Mayor today in the absence of Mayor Stacy, will meet Mr. Lewis this afternoon and show him through the Municipal Group.

It is not at all unlikely that Mr. Lewis will make some reference to "The Birth of a Nation," in view of the fact that it is to be shown in West Springfield soon. This intimation was given yesterday by a person who is in a position to know that the picture will be talked of among the Negroes who meet tonight.

Mr. Lewis was one of the leaders in the fight against this motion picture in Boston and he is expected to have some light to throw on the real facts back of the agitation for and against the picture.

Mr. Lewis has won as great renown as a public speaker as he did on the football field years ago when he played center for Amherst and later for Harvard. He is sure to have a message for his people and something of interest to others as well.

One prominent Negro resident said yesterday that he would not be surprised if Mr. Lewis did touch on the motion picture, "Birth of a Nation," vigorously and also might say something about the statement credited to a West Springfield selectman, implying that Mayor Stacy's motive in barring the picture from this city was purely political and for the sake of the Negro vote.

The Mayor himself declined to make any reply or discuss the statement yesterday.

BRIDGEPORT (Conn.) STANDARD
SEPT. 29, 1915. 98

MAGNIFICENT SPECTACLE DWARFS THE 'LEGITIMATE'

"Birth of a Nation" Like a Mountain Compared to the Molehill of Episodic Drama.

The magnitude of David W. Griffith's feat in staging "The Birth of a Nation," is almost appalling, at least to the devotee of the older forms of theatrical entertainment. Where now are the little groups of actors, the pinchbeck scenery and the petty properties of the so-called "legitimate" drama? By comparison with the new art, the "legitimate" measures to the mountain like a molehill. Instead of scenery for his background Griffith has used nature. For subject he has covered 150 years of American history. [illegible] done his bidding in [illegible] riding rides of the Ku Klux Klan 2,000 riders and horses sweep over the dusty roads.

No wonder that this magnificent historical spectacle is the talk of the country. It has established an entirely new art in the realm of the theater—the art of pantomimic screen spectacle with an orchestral score perfectly synchronized to the action. It has also created a tremendous sensation because of its vivider and more forceful treatment of the theme of Thomas Dixon's "The Clansman," which both as book and play created the greatest furore of the last decade.

The great deeds of the Civil War and the horrors of Reconstruction are made to live again and the nation reborn is apotheosized. Mr. Griffith, pioneer among directors, managed this stupendous achievement without the aid of dialogue or speech, for motion pictures with music and effects tell vividly this thrilling tale of 50 years ago.

SPRINGFIELD (Mass.) REPUBLICAN
SEPT. 29, 1915

SPRINGFIELD (Mass.) REPUB. UNION 853
SEPT. 29, 1915

MAYOR DECLINES TO DISCUSS ASSERTION

Feels Justified in Barring Spectacular Film from This City.

Mayor Stacy declined yesterday to discuss the assertion of the West Side selectman that politics was principally responsible for the exclusion of "The Birth of a Nation" from this city. All he would say anent that incident is that he does not care to pick any fuss and feels that he was fully justified in banning the film.

He reiterated a statement made some time ago that he desires to keep the shows of Springfield clean and that he proposes to bar any show against which any considerable proportion of the citizens protest, because they feel that it is immoral or depicts a race unfairly.

He says that no one came to him in relation to "The Birth of a Nation," but that he had information concerning the opposition to it in Providence and other cities and that he has seen the film himself. It is understood he is kept informed by another race concerning shows that would be objectionable to it.

He was willing to lay a small wager yesterday that public sentiment would eventually result in cancelation of plans to give "The Birth of a Nation" in West Springfield. He expressed the opinion that the best way to learn the attitude of the Negroes to the show and their reasons therefore was to see William H. Lewis, who speaks before the Negro Civic League in this city tonight.

It develops that there have been several shows this year, which the city has been obliged to worry along without because the Mayor would not give his approval.

[illegible] short [illegible] old friends.

PROTEST AGAINST FILM

"THE BIRTH OF A NATION"

MAY COME TO WEST SPRINGFIELD.

Vigorous Opposition May Prevent Its Coming—Negro Organizations Will Act

"I wouldn't stoop to answer Selectman Royce." Thus far and no farther would Mayor Frank Stacy go yesterday when he was asked for a reply to the west-side selectman's insinuation that Mr Stacy banned "The Birth of a Nation" from Springfield in exchange for Negro votes. But the Negroes of the city are not so reticent. They are rallying to the defense of the mayor, stirred to anger by the West Springfield selectmen's vote of Monday night to allow the famous and now infamous photoplay to be shown this fall in the west-side town hall.

W. W. Samples, towerman at the City hall, was the first among the prominent colored men of the city to give voice. "I understand," said he, "that last winter the owners of that picture offered $2000 to be allowed to bring it to Springfield. I am wondering how much of that $2000 West Springfield is getting for letting it show in that town. Mr Royce or anybody else who claims that Mayor Stacy banned the picture here for votes is mighty lacking in moral principle. I don't believe the majority of people in West Springfield will stand behind Royce in this thing.

"So far as we are concerned," he continued, "there was absolutely no political significance attached to Mayor Stacy's action last winter. We did not ask him to prohibit the showing of the picture. He did it of his own accord." Mayor Stacy said this was true. Negroes came to him objecting to "The Nigger," another photoplay which was slated for Springfield before "The Birth of a Nation" and he prohibited it. But when "The Birth of a Nation" appeared he ruled it out of the city because he considered it unfit to be shown here. "And I stand ready to protect any other race or color against any similar insult," he added.

A verbal shell or two doubtless will explode to-night at the Third Baptist church, where William H. Lewis, former assistant attorney-general, and one of the leading [illegible]res among the Negroes of the country, [illegible] address the Negro civic league. Final [illegible]angements for his appearance and for a [illegible]able expression of protest against the [illegible]lay of the photoplay in the west-side [illegible]n hall were made last night at a session [illegible]he officers of the civic league.

SPRINGFIELD [illegible]

WORCESTER MAYOR LIKES IT

Will Not Prohibit "The Birth of a Nation" in That City

"The Birth of a Nation" has received the official sanction of George M. Wright, mayor of Worcester. "It is the greatest thing," he is quoted as saying. "I have ever seen in the way of a moving picture." Mayor Wright made a special trip to Providence to see the film before coming to any decision in regard to sanctioning its production in his city.

Protests have been made to Mayor Wright to prohibit the picture in Worcester, all of which have received his careful consideration, but now that he has seen the play himself he refuses to offer any objection to its being shown in that city. He asserts that the play works no injustice to any race, and calls attention to the fact that a villain has to be of some nationality, but that that fact is not regarded in plays, books and stories as a reflection on that particular race. "In this photoplay," he adds, "the good colored man is fully and perhaps more prominently represented than the bad colored man."

WATERBURY (Conn.) AMERICAN
SEPT. 30, 1915

SLANDERING THAD STEVENS.

The most detestable character in the famous movie play, "The Birth of a Nation," which is contested just enough to keep up popular interest in it, is the radical leader in Congress, who, though bearing another name, is obviously Thad Stevens, the Pennsylvania Congressman and leader of the radicals in Congress during the reconstruction period. He is represented as a coarse, brutal "nigger lover" whose housekeeper, a negress, is also his mistress. There are few left who are interested in defending Thad Stevens. He was a great force in his day and his object was righteousness. He had the defects of his qualities and many who sympathized with his objects detested his methods. Protests are come, however, [illegible] the truth in [illegible] against the perversion [illegible] play of respect to this man [illegible] Thomas Dixon's [illegible] and in a letter to a [illegible] the press adding slanderous details. One of them writes to the New York [illegible] in a letter of which the following is the chief part:

"Thaddeus Stevens [illegible]

advertisement [illegible] take such form [illegible] the mark.

Circuit Ju[illegible] a temporary [illegible] Producing Co[illegible] strain the C[illegible] from producti[illegible] of Our Nati[illegible] is producing the film [illegible] Nation at the Olym[illegible]

WORCESTER (Mass.) TELEGRAM 991
SEPT. 29, 1915

MAYOR IS TO PERMIT "BIRTH OF A NATION"

18

SPRINGFIELD (Mass.) DAILY UNION 856
SEPT. 30, 1915

Views Film at Providence Before Acting on Protest

IT DOES NOT REFLECT ON NEGRO RACE, HE SAYS

Nothing Objectionable to the Play, He Adds

Mayor George M. Wright last night declared he will permit the photoplay, "The birth of a nation," to be shown in Worcester. The mayor made this statement, following his return from Providence, where he saw the play, yesterday afternoon, in company with Chief of police George H. Hill, Street commissioner Albert T. Rhodes and Superintendent of public buildings George C. Halcott, all members of the license board. Private secretary John W. Odlin was in the party.

Mayor Wright had receiveu protests from Worcester persons of the negro race against the showing of the picture in Worcester. It was alleged in these protests that the picture reflects seriously on their race does it a grave injustice, and is likely to incite racial hatred.

Making all due allowance for protests that were paid for or made tarough the work of those who are paid to attr opposition, as it was claimad wa in Boston, there were several other their protests.

Mayor Wrght determined day and judge for himself should be shown in W ance was the nearest could see the reels run "I see be shown in Worcester, and I shall offer no objections to it," said Mayor Wright, last night. "It is the greatest thing I have ever seen in the way of a moving picture.

"One feels, as he looks on the picture, that he is seeing a chapter of real life. It is a splendid and impressive spectacle.

"I cannot see where the play works injustice to any race. In plays, books and stories there have been the villain or villians and these villains have been cast in every nationality, with no intention of reflecting on any nationality nor has such a an intention been thought of.

"In this photoplay the good colored man is fully and perhaps more prominent than the bad colored man. Several portions of the film that gave offense have been removed, I understand. It should be remembered that this play represents the reconstruction period following the Civil war of 50 years ago.

"It should also be borne in mind that conditions have changed vastly during the lapse of years, and that the play is decidedly of the past and not the present. This play simply represents a period of our own national history; is a picturized version of it, and the screen tells the same story that we may read in histories or in books.

"I cannot, after seeing the picture, find anything in it that is objectionable, and I shall offer no objection to its being shown in Worcester."

The license board members who saw the play in company with Mayor Wright share his opinions of the picture. Only court proceedings can have any possible effect now in the way of a bar to the pictures and these are not likely to be tried, in view of the recent decision of a Chicago Superior court judge, in favor of the

---

...ated a tariff board of the same description.

The People's Forum

"NO NEGRO VOTE."

Is That a Good Reason for the Action of West Springfield's Selectmen?

To the Editor of The Union.

Sir: In West Springfield desirous of possessing the reputation of Sodom, or is it not? Almost every year something comes up to do with that town's affairs, or with the conduct of its eminent Selectmen, which causes people on this side of the river to wonder just what kind of a community it is that lies across the old toll bridge. I recall that not many years ago a policeman resigned from the force of the delectable town because, so he alleged, a man could not be a policeman and a Christian at one and the same time in West Springfield. And after reading the alleged statement of Selectman Royce when defending the action of the board in giving tentative permission for the production of "The Birth of a Nation," I am strongly inclined to believe that there was good reason for this policeman's remark.

What must the people of West Springfield think when Selectman Royce says that they have no Negro vote in West Springfield to bother about? Is number of votes the basis on which moral questions are settled in West Springfield? Are the people of our neighbor town willing that their Selectmen should sell for a few miserable dollars the self-respect and good name of West Springfield?

One might think that if nothing else were to prevent the production of this controversial play in West Springfield ordinary civic neighborliness would prevent it. Springfield refused permission to the promoters because the play is a provoker of strife, and because a la number of our respectable and respected citizens vehemently assert that production falsely pictures them and tends to lower them in the eyes of their fellow-citizens. This assertion is supported by the declarations of many white men of note in other cities. Springfield did right to exclude the play. Now, however, its promoters are trying to thwart the wishes of our authorities and to steal it at our back door. What is not good enough for Springfield cannot be good enough for the high-minded people of West Springfield.

I am sure that the Selectmen's view of civic morality, if it is what it has been reported to be, is not shared by a majority of our neighbors across the river, and that they will not be willing to allow their civic center to be put to a use that is harmful to good citizenship and affronting to their neighbors, the people of Springfield.

Further, will State law permit the running of a motion picture machine in a building a part of which is used as an entertainment [illegible] and a schoolroom? Town Hall in West Springfield is at present housing the high school, which would be in session while the production was being run in the hall itself.

A WHITE CITIZEN.

Springfield, Sept. 29, 1915.

Nos 23-25 Phoenix Avenue

Penobscot Salmon.
Fresh Mackerel.
Bluefish.
Sea Trout.
Sea Bass.
Butterfish.
Porgies, Flounders, Eels.
Soft Shell Crabs.
Live and Boiled Lobster.

MARK DOWN SALE

On entire stock of guaranteed FURS of all kinds, consisting of Muffs, Scarfs and Furs and Fur lined Coats for ladies and men.

We also do repairing, remodeling at very low prices.

S. SELIGSON

123 GRAND ST. Buckingham Building.

Notice.

When you have anything wrong with your closet valves or any other repair work get a man that knows his business. CALL UP

Sidney V. Hole,

1265-3.

No helper goes along to kill time.
PLUMBING AND TINNING.

SPRINGFIELD (Mass.) REPUBLICAN
SEPT. 30, 1915

STIRS UP NEGROES

"VOTE" URGES LEWIS

CALLS PRESIDENT ISOLATOR

Former Assistant Attorney-General Condemns "Birth of a Nation" in Address to Civic League

The president of the United States, the notorious photoplay, "The Birth of a Nation," and the Negro who can vote but won't, were singled out in this city last night for vitriolic, from-the-shoulder oratorial attack by William H. Lewis, former assistant attorney-general, and one of the nation's most prominent Negroes. He stood before 300 colored people and a few whites in the Third Baptist church at the open meeting of the Springfield Negro civic league with a dozen officers of the colored civic league of Massachusetts ranged on the platform behind him and delivered himself of stirring words aimed to ring the bell politically in future elections in Springfield, the state and the nation.

"I'm not here to make a political speech," he declared, "but I must say President Wilson, of all the presidents this nation has had in the last 50 years, has done the most to isolate the Negroes into a separate and detached group." Only a moment before, Mr Lewis quoted the president from a Philadelphia speech in which Mr Wilson said this is not a nation of separate and distinct peoples and any man or influence which tries to draw racial or group lines of distinction is striking at the country's vitals. "Those were but hollow and high-sounding words," asserted Mr Lewis. "There are 10,000,000 people under this government who, through no wish or act of their own have been forced into a separate nation.

NEW YORK DRAMATIC MIRROR
SEP 9

A formal protest has been made against the showing of "The Birth of a Nation" in Hartford, Conn., by former Senator Morgan G. Buckley, President of the Aetna Insurance Company. He saw the film in company with Senator Murray Crane, of Massachusetts, who is said to agree with him in his protest. The Mayor of Hartford has not yet announced his decision on the protest.

BRIDGEPORT (Conn.) STANDARD
SEPT. 29, 1915

Remonstrants also claimed there were enough saloons in the district at the present time and that it is a residential section.

WORCESTER MAYOR ENDORSES 'BIRTH OF NATION' FILM

With several well know newspaper men, former Mayor Buckingham and Matt Saunders, manager of Poli's theater, motored to Providence to witness a performance of D. W. Griffith's spectacle, "The Birth of a Nation." At Providence the party was met by Mayor George M. Wright of Worcester, Chief of Police George M. Hill, chairman of the license board George C. Halcott, Street Commissioner Albert T. Rhodes and John W. Odlin, the secretary to Mayor Wright.

After viewing the performance yesterday, Mayor Wright said; "It is not apparent to me what are the grounds of objection against this production, nor what is the animus of those who scheme to have the exhibition prohibited. The National Board of Censorship approve it and when assault was made convened again and reaffirmed their approval. Governors of states, several well known jurists and the mayors of all cities, where the spectacle has been presented, have in every instance upheld the finding of this National Board.

"I must say the thing is vast, in fact overwhelming. From a historical and educational standpoint it is wonderful. It most certainly has my endorsement and will be allowed to be presented in Worcester."

Chief of Police Hill and the other members of the Worcester party voiced the sentiments of Mayor Wright.

The expression of these well known gentlemen was a source of gratification to Manager Saunders of Poli's who states he expects but little further opposition to the showing of the spectacle here.

SPRINGFIELD (Mass.) REPUBLICAN
SEPT. 30, 1915

MEETING OF PROTEST OVER "BIRTH OF A NATION"

WEST SPRINGFIELD'S OPINION

As Voiced at Meeting of the Selectmen—Ministers and Others Oppose Allowing Film Shown in Town

"I do not wish to be libeled as this picture libels me and my race," protested Rev Dr W. N. DeBerry of this city before the board of selectmen in West Springfield last night on the occasion of an informal gathering of persons who favor or are opposed to the production of "The Birth of a Nation" in the West Springfield town hall, the advisability of which is now under discussion by the board. No action was taken by the selectmen after they had heard the arguments pro and con, and none will be taken they assert before their regular meeting on Saturday.

The meeting last night started out to be merely one of the regular meetings of the board, but the citizens of the town knowing that all meetings of the selectmen are open ones descended in force to tell the officials how the town feels on the question of allowing the reproduction of the sensational film in the town limits. The meeting brought out two facts not generally known previously; that $900 was the amount of money the town would receive as rent for the month's run, and that the cheapest seats would cost $1.

It was stated by the selectmen that if it was finally decided to run the film all parts objectionable to anyone would be eliminated. None of the speakers against the film went so far as to deny that certain parts of it are all right, so the decision as to whether or not it will be shown in West Springfield rests with the weight attached by the selectmen to the argument that undesirable notoriety would be gained for the town by showing such a notorious picture, opposed to the assertion that almost every inhabitant of the town would be glad to pay real money to see the exhibition.

Rev Dr DeBerry said in part: My objections to this film are that it stirs up intense race feeling, and that it misrepresents the history of the reconstruction period. People who have not thought deeply concerning the race question come out from seeing this picture saying "If that's what we're educating the Negroes for, let's stop; and if that's why they lynch them, let Lynch law go on." If the colored people had done what this film represents I would applaud the Klu Klux Klan myself.

Rev Dempster D. Gorton of the First Congregational church of West Springfield presented a formal protest from all the ministers in town. He spoke in amplification of this protest and said: "By showing this picture in the town hall which contains all the town offices as well as the high school and library, it receives the sanction of every town official and every public institution except the churches. We do not want West Springfield to be the place where people from other communities come to see what their own towns will not allow. If Springfield were no-license we would think twice before voting license. The two cases are parallel."

Frank Sargent said it looks like a money-making scheme to me. You selectmen should say to that promoter: "Go where there is a lower class of people than in West Springfield."

"An attempt to sell the morals of the town" was the characterization of the project by Rev George W. Love. "The town formerly had a very unsavory reputation," he continued, "but we fought and finally overthrew the element that stood for this. Let us not do anything to revive those days."

Fred H. Sibley, town clerk, said the main objection to the production that he had heard during the last few days was that the price of admission at $1 is too high and that the people wish it was going to be as low as 25 cents. I believe a large majority of the people in town would like to see the film. Chief of Police Edward Bromage made the point that it would be well for people to see the film before arguing what an objectionable thing it was. Only three of four people in the room had seen the production, and most of them were in favor on it. One man said, "It's worth $5 of anybody's money," and another one, "I'd like every one of my children to see it."

Frank Grant, president of the Westfield board of trade, was not present last night, but he said his say in the afternoon when he appeared in the town hall to pay taxes on some property he owns in town. "What's the matter with you people over here?" he wanted to know. "Your action results merely in helping out people who want to make money by insulting somebody else."

The meeting in the evening was attended by 50 or more of the townspeople, almost all of whom expressed themselves at some time before the meeting adjourned. Men holding official position were practically unanimous against it, as were their wives; the voices in favor of showing the film came for the most part from the people who make the officials possible.

George B. Miller, the promoter of the scheme, was unable to be present, but he sent a long telegram from Boston devoted to a report of the recent action on the part of the mayor of Worcester, who is quoted as saying that he finds nothing objectionable in the film and will permit its production in Worcester.

SPRINGFIELD (Mass.) REPUBLICAN
SEPT. 30, 1915

over night capable of self-development? "The Birth of a Nation" is well worth seeing. It is unfair to none; it is illuminating in many ways. Viewed in an unprejudiced spirit, not mixed with rancor, it could not fail to do good.

PHILIP N. THAYER.

Harvard Law School, Cambridge, September 29, 1915.

A CAMBRIDGE VIEW OF THE FILM

To the Editor of The Republican:—

I have been following with considerable interest the struggle of "The Birth of a Nation" in Springfield and vicinity. Since the production has been forbidden in Springfield, it is of course easy to understand the unwisdom of allowing it in West Springfield. Purely a local issue, such action might too readily be viewed as a veiled slap at the authorities across the river. But it is difficult to see any reasonable ground for objection to the play itself. Undoubtedly the many people opposing the performance are moved wholly by commendable considerations. Probably, however, the greater part of them have never seen "The Birth of a Nation" given, and all too evidently those who have seen it have refused to look history in the face.

There is nothing inaccurate about the play. The sudden acquisition of power by a large body of ignorant and uneducated people was bound to produce precisely such excesses as are shown. That those people happened to be black instead of white is a mere detail. The results would have been the same in either case. Surely there is no discredit to the Negro people in that. Rather is it to their eternal credit that they have risen so speedily to a respected position in the nation.

No form of narrow-mindedness is more exasperating than that which will not admit the fact of racial development. No one would think of attributing to our Anglo-Saxon ancestors the graces of the present day, but we respect them none the less. Why should it any more be necessary to propound the polite fiction that a race long oppressed in servitude can emerge

CLEVELAND (O.) NEWS
SEPT. 29, 1915

BIRTH OF NATION CAN'T BE SHOWN IN CLEVELAND

Ohio Censors Rule It Out of State, Fearing It Might Incite Race Prejudice.

"The Birth of a Nation," said to be the biggest and most costly motion picture production ever presented, which was booked to show at the Opera House for fifteen consecutive weeks next spring and summer at two-dollar prices, won't be displayed. The state board of censors at Columbus rejected the film Tuesday and will not permit it to be exhibited in Ohio.

"The Birth of a Nation" is adapted from Thomas Dixon's book, "The Clansman." Motion picture producers regard it as one of the biggest films ever made. It shows on a large scale scenes which are alleged to have taken place immediately following the Civil war.

The state censors assigned two reasons for rejection—it might arouse prejudice against the colored race and it might arouse prejudice between north and south. The film has been a storm center in cities where it has been shown. In Boston and Philadelphia it is aid to have been in the cause of numerous race riots. The state board received numerous letters from colored people protesting against the showing of the film.

Right now in New York the film is being shown in the Liberty theater at two-dollar prices, where it has been booked for a year. It was due to be shown here at the Opera House for fifteen weeks commencing early in April.

The state industrial board, which has jurisdiction over the censors, has already refused to rescind bans placed on films by the state censors. So it is not expected there will be any appeal from the censors' decision.

SPRINGFIELD (Mass.) NEWS
SEPT. 29, 1915

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 29, 1915.

West Springfield Selectmen Should Rescind Their Vote.

In deciding to permit the presentation of the objectionable photoplay, "The Birth of a Nation," in the Town Hall, the West Springfield Board of Selectmen has made a stupendous blunder and it is doubtful if any amount of censoring of the widely discussed film will put the members of the board back in the good graces of those who want to see the negro given fair play. The protests of the colored people against this production have been most earnest and sincere, so much so that all who respect justice will sympathize with them and will agree that the only thing for the West Springfield selectmen to do is to rescind their vote and decline to execute a formal contract with the management. The presentation of this film under any circumstances in the face of the earnest protests of the colored people would be deplorable; it will be doubly so—adding insult to injury, so to speak—to permit it to be "screened" in a municipal building.

We do not expect the West Springfield Board of Selectmen to take its cue in all things from the mayor and Board of Aldermen of Springfield. But it might well do so in this particular case. It will be recalled that when "The Clansman," the crude, trashy Dixon play, was booked for this city, Francke W. Dickinson, who was then mayor, refused to license it because of features which were vehemently objected to by colored people and their influential white friends, and the company was obliged to go to Holyoke, to fill its date. "The Birth of a Nation" is based upon "The Clansman," being a cinematographic elaboration of Rev. Thomas Dixon's mediocre and inartistic drama.

When it was proposed that "The Clansman" be exhibited here in film form Mayor Stacy promptly banned it and he likewise banned "The Birth of a Nation" itself. Efforts to produce the latter in the State Armory which is not under municipal control failed flatly, the militia officials being as pronounced in their objections as was the mayor, and the militia authorities are not looking for the negro vote either. In the fact of these circumstances it is rather astounding to see the West Springfield Board of Selectmen decide to allow the presentation of "The Birth of a Nation" in the Town Hall and calmly justify itself as it does.

The amazing qualities of the photoplay, "The Birth of a Nation," as an example of the wonderful progress of motion photography are admitted. It is, however, regrettable, as we have remarked before, that the genius who conceived and produced it could not have seized upon a story and incidents that would make it an acceptable offering everywhere.

Again we say that the thing for the West Springfield Board of Selectmen to do is to rescind its action in deciding to grant a permit to the management of the film. It is not bound by a contract, apparently, and even if it were it would be better to permit it to go by the board.

WORCESTER (Mass.) POST
SEPT. 29, 1915

99

PROTESTED FILM TO GET LICENSE

Mayor Wright saw "The Birth of a Nation" yesterday in Providence, and pronounced it the greatest motion picture show he ever saw and will not withhold his signature from a license for its presentation in Worcester if it is granted by the license board.

George H. Hill, chief of police, George C. Halcott, chairman of the license board, and Street Commissioner Albert T. Rhodes, all members of the license board, saw the show in company with the Mayor and will vote in favor of granting a license for its presentation.

ION PICTURE NEWS (New York City)

PHILADELPHIA AUTHORITIES, OVERZEALOUS FOR COLORED BROTHER'S SAFETY, FAIL IN COURT ATTEMPT TO SUPPRESS "NATION"

ALTHOUGH the Pennsylvania State Board of Censors passed the "Birth of a Nation" as a proper picture to be shown in the State, it was not allowed a normal and peaceful career. Both in Pittsburgh and Philadelphia authorities tried to stop the production, and in both cases were overruled by the courts.

The photoplay was scheduled for its Philadelphia opening on Saturday, September 4. After all arrangements were made and the sale of tickets well under way, Director of Public Safety Porter ordered the production stopped, claiming he feared serious disturbances if the play was allowed to go on.

The director said he had received overwhelming protests from many negroes, amongst them one representing 20,000 colored Knights of Pythias, and he had also learned that many negroes had purchased tickets for the opening performance. The director further said that at the request of Chief Censor Breitinger he had viewed the picture at Atlantic City and in his opinion it was not a proper subject for Philadelphia with a larger negro population than any other Northern city. The picture had also been condemned, said the director, by representative negroes, including several ministers.

As soon as the director's intentions were formulated, Nixon & Zimmerman, of the Forrest theatre, where the film was to be shown, applied to the courts for an injunction preventing Director Porter from interfering with the performance of the picture. Joseph McCullen, representing the theatre management, in asking for the injunction, quoted the decision of Judge Reed of Pittsburgh, on Friday, in which he refused to grant an injunction against the same production on the ground that the Legislature had given a Board of Censors to the State with full authority in such cases and he thought this body, unless it could be shown to have acted fraudulently, should be entitled to respect and its decisions supported.

Judge Ferguson, of Court Number Four in Philadelphia, promptly granted a preliminary injunction preventing the authorities from interfering with the performance for five days. Judge Ferguson said after the five days were over, either party to the proceeding could go before any Judge of Court Number Four with a motion to have the injunction vacated or made permanent.

The judge further said that he had seen the production in question and found it very interesting. While there might be some colored people inclined to be captious and critical, their judgment should not be the rule, as the same thing could be said of other plays reflecting on other races and nationalities. He saw no reason to anticipate disturbances or riots, hence his granting of the injunction.

The play was then allowed to proceed, but still fearful of trouble, Director Porter ordered a large force of police to be present at the performance. Many private detectives were also scattered through the theatre and patrolmen were stationed on the outside. Either the danger was magnified by the zealous director, or the precautions intimidated the prospective trouble makers, for the first performance of the "Birth of a Nation" was given to a crowded and enthusiastic audience which included a few colored people, who, it is said, applauded the thrilling scenes the same as the whites.

All the daily papers gave long and favorable criticisms of the picture. In this connection Dr. Charlotte Abbey, a noted social worker of Philadelphia, said among other things: "I am sorry to find that an historical play such as this, should be the cause of inciting race prejudice. The play teaches a mighty lesson to both white and colored, and it seems strange that lessons so plainly taught by the writer should need to be pointed out. Surely the results of Afro-American training as shown in the 'Birth of a Nation' by views of colored students at Hampton and other institutions, and the thorough exposure of unscrupulous white politicians and fake reformers should be enough to do away with any feeling of resentment by the negro race against the play."

Director Porter has announced his candidacy for mayor in the forthcoming election. In the opinion of many, this fact contributed in no small measure to the director's concern about the protests of some of the colored voters.

SEPT. 26, 1915
COLUMBUS (O.) JOURNAL

gree with ... Mts. ...
Oak, Va., Sept. 20.

APPEAL BY COLORED MAN.

Editor Ohio State Journal:

There is pending before the state board of censors, for approval or rejection, the films of the photo-play "The Birth of the Nation," which is taken from Thomas Dixon's "Clansman." This photo-play, like the novel and drama from which it is taken, is an appeal to race hatred and passions, but recently, on the protest of churchmen, moralists and civic bodies "The Hypocrite" was rejected by the state board of censors, because of the evil effect it might have. I cannot see, at a time like this, when half the world is plunged into a horrible, bloody war, which in the final analysis is a race war, why state or municipal authorities should permit the production of any play which might engender racial antagonism in this country or community, and especially so when, in the event of serious foreign complications, which all true, loyal Americans pray will not pass beyond the diplomatic stage, all able-bodied Americans might be needed, regardless of race or color. "The Birth of the Nation" is an overdrawn, exaggerated depiction of the "reconstruction days," and was written and staged by its author and associates to keep alive, or rather revive, sectional and racial hatred we think past forever. There is no reason why a dreadful, bloody past should be commercialized for the financial benefit of such as would vent their pentup hatred for a people who are quietly, steadfastly and earnestly pursuing a peaceful course, and who are endeavoring to prove their worthiness of every citizen right.

Will the state board of censors aid or hinder the colored man's advancement? We believe and hope they will aid us. RALPH W. TYLER.

Columbus, Sept. 25.

CHATTANOOGA (Tenn.) TIMES
SEPT. 26, 1915

TO ANSWER PHOTOPLAY

Negroes Will Make Film to Offset "Birth of Nation."

18

The negro citizens who were not satisfied with the representations of their forefathers as shown in Griffith's spectacle, "The Birth of a Nation," at the Forrest theatre, have decided to answer that production with one of their own, in which the development of the race will be worked out in a dramatic scenario. The better element of the race has decided to spend no further time in protesting the Griffith production and is agreed that a far more effective answer can be made by devoting its attention to making its own a success.

With this end in view, James Scott, private secretary to Booker T. Washington, has been in conference with Henry I. MacMahon, the Eastern representative of Thomas H. Ince, the celebrated motion-picture director. An elaborate scenario has been worked out showing the early sufferings of the negro slaves, the trials they went through in the first years of their freedom and then showing the wonderful progress that enlightened negro citizens have made in the past half a century.

NEW ORLEANS (La.) STATES
SEPT. 26, 1915

lot must become pitiful indeed when both ... and city are reduced to the state of bankruptcy which must ... against themselves to the conditions on which Mr. Barret bases political aspirations?

THE BIRTH OF A NATION.

18

Philadelphia is rioting this week over the production of The Birth of a Nation, just as Boston and New York did some months back. But the probabilities are that when the agitators who are stirring up the trouble realize that the only effect of this lawlessness is to advertise the film and swell the box receipts, they will cease their agitation.

What the negro leaders ought to realize is that The Birth of a Nation is not a portrayal of present conditions but of conditions of half a century ago, a fact which the film itself effectively brings out.

When the negro suddenly was transformed from his state of slavery and vested with the full rights of suffrage, he was totally ignorant; and in that condition he became the plaything of unscrupulous carpetbaggers and scalawags who sought to use him as a means to their own affluence and power. In doing so these adventurers fired him with an ambition for equal social rights and inflamed him against the white people of the South who were then and still are his best friends.

The result was to precipitate a shocking and intolerable condition of affairs and to force upon the white people the alternative of armed resistance or the complete destruction of their civilization.

But the negro today and the negro then is an altogether different citizen. Today the race points with pride to the enormous strides in has made in wealth and education, not only in the North but in the South. It no longer is arrayed against the white race in the South. Instead the two races are living harmoniously together, each aiding the other and both contributing to the growth of their common section.

There are idle, vicious and criminal members of the race, as there are of the white race, and as the enlightened colored leaders recognize; but on the whole the race is peaceable, industrious and law abiding, and the last thing it would be willing to acknowledge is that there is any similarity between its condition now and its condition during the period with which The Birth of a Nation deals.

There is, therefore, no reason why the negro should take offense at The Birth of a Nation. On the contrary he ought to derive a great deal of satisfaction from the fact, as the film itself points out, that he has won the respect and friendship of the white people of the South, whereas he was the object of their bitter enmity in the early days of Reconstruction.

BRIDGEPORT (Conn.) HERALD
SEPT. 26, 1915 133

COLORED PEOPLE KICK IN NORWALK

Pastor of Knight Street A. M. Church Heads Protest Against "The Birth of a Nation."

WILL MAYOR ACT?

According to the talk in Norwalk last week, a large number of the colored residents will enter an objection to the showing of the moving picture play known as "The Birth of a Nation," which is booked for a wek's stand at the Regent theater in Norwalk during the early part of next month.

The protest will come under the leadership of Rev. H. M. Shields, pastor of the Knight street African Methodist church. There is a strong rumor that a petition will be circulated among the Afro-American race in the Norwalks and presented to Mayor Burnell, asking that an order be issued preventing the showing of the picture.

"The Birth of a Nation," a story of the old "reconstruction days," has come in for no little protesting in all parts of the country. The picture will make its first appearance in Bridgeport one week from to-morrow and will then come to Norwalk. Manager Kantor of the Regent theater in Norwalk was asked last week if he had heard anything in regard to the protest. He said that none had been made to him personally.

If the picture is shown in Norwalk, which it will according to Mr. Kantor, the only talked of protest ...

DAYTON (Ohio) HERALD
SEPT. 28, 1915

FAMOUS PICTURE BARRED IN OHIO

Censors Won't Allow "The Birth of a Nation" to Be Shown.

18

COLUMBUS, Sept. 28.—State movie censors, after a week's deliberation, today barred from exhibition in Ohio "The Birth of a Nation," perhaps the most elaborate film play ever staged in America.

The play was passed by Pennsylvania censors but race riots followed its showing in Philadelphia theaters.

It depicts slavery conditions in the south, the change wrought by the civil war and the later reconstruction period in which negroes dominated many southern states politically.

Censors said today many influential negroes, together with numerous G. A. R.'s in Ohio protested against showing the film in this state.

"The drama, in our opinion, would tend to engender race prejudice and to arouse latent feeling between the North and South," censors said today, in announcing their rejection of the film.

(OHIO) NEWS
SEPT. 28, 1915 222

MOVIE CENSORS BAR "BIRTH OF A NATION" IN OHIO

By United Press.

COLUMBUS, Sept. 28.—State movie censors, after a week's deliberation, today barred from exhibition in Ohio "The Birth of a Nation," perhaps the most elaborate film play ever staged in America

The play depicts slavery conditions in the south, the change wrought by the civil war and the later reconstruction period in which negroes dominated many southern states, politically.

Censors said many influential negroes, together with numerous G. A. R. posts in Ohio, protested against showing the film.

"The drama, in our opinion, would tend to engender race prejudice and to arouse latent feeling between the north and south," the censors said.

DAYTON (Ohio) JOURNAL
SEPT. 28, 1915

COSTLY FILM IS BARRED IN OHIO

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 28.—"The Birth of a Nation," said to be the biggest and most costly motion picture production ever presented, which was booked to show here for 15 consecutive weeks next spring and summer, at $2 prices, won't be displayed. The state board of censors at Columbus rejected the film Tuesday, and will not permit it to be exhibited in Ohio.

"The Birth of a Nation" is adapted from Thomas Dixon's book, "The Clansman." Motion picture producers regard it as one of the biggest films ever made. It shows on a large scale scenes ... are alleged to have taken place following the Civil war. The censors assigned two reasons for rejection—it might arouse prejudice against the colored race, and it might arouse prejudice between the north and south. The film has been a storm center in cities where it has been shown. In Boston and Philadelphia it is said to have been the cause of numerous race ... The state board received numerous letters from colored people protesting against the showing of the film. The film is being shown in New York at $2 prices. It has been booked for a year.

The state industrial board, which has jurisdiction over the censors, has already refused to rescind bans placed on films by the state censors. It is not expected there will be any decisi... from the censors ...

... and will not permit ... exhibited in Ohio. The State ... assigned two reasons for rejection ... it might arouse prejudice against the colored race, and it might arouse prejudice between the north and south. ... allowed to be shown ...

... CARL E. GRIMES

SPRINGFIELD (Mass.) REPUBLICAN
SEPT. 30, 1915

STIRS UP NEGROES

"VOTE" URGES LEWIS

CALLS PRESIDENT ISOLATOR

Former Assistant Attorney-General Condemns "Birth of a Nation" in Address to Civic League

The president of the United States, the notorious photoplay, "The Birth of a Nation," and the Negro who can vote but won't, were singled out in this city last night for vitriolic, from-the-shoulder oratorial attack by William H. Lewis, former assistant attorney-general, and one of the nation's most prominent Negroes. He stood before 300 colored people and a few whites in the Third Baptist church at the open meeting of the Springfield Negro civic league with a dozen officers of the colored civic league of Massachusetts ranged on the platform behind him and delivered himself of stirring words aimed to ring the bell politically in future elections in Springfield, the state and the nation.

"I'm not here to make a political speech," he declared, "but I must say President Wilson, of all the presidents this nation has had in the last 50 years, has done the most to isolate the Negroes into a separate and detached group." Only a moment before, Mr Lewis quoted the president from a Philadelphia speech in which Mr Wilson said this is not a nation of separate and distinct peoples and any man or influence which tries to draw racial or group lines of distinction is striking at the country's vitals. "Those were but hollow and high-sounding words," asserted Mr Lewis. "There are 10,000,000 people under this government who, through no wish or act of their own have been forced into separate [illegible]

NEW YORK DRAMATIC MIRROR
SEP 2 [illegible]

A formal protest has been made against the showing of "The Birth of a Nation" in Hartford, Conn., by former Senator Morgan G. Buckley, President of the Aetna Insurance Company. He saw the film in company with Senator Murray Crane, of Massachusetts, who is said to agree with him in his protest. The Mayor of Hartford has not yet announced his decision on the protest.

BRIDGEPORT (Conn.) STANDARD
SEPT. 29, 1915

remonstrants also claimed there were enough saloons in the district at the present time and that it is a residential section.

WORCESTER MAYOR ENDORSES 'BIRTH OF NATION' FILM

With several well know newspaper men, former Mayor Buckingham and Matt Saunders, manager of Poli's theater, motored to Providence to witness a performance of D. W. Griffith's spectacle, "The Birth of a Nation." At Providence the party was met by Mayor George M. Wright of Worcester, Chief of Police George M. Hill, chairman of the license board George C. Halcott, Street Commissioner Albert T. Rhodes and John W. Odlin, the secretary to Mayor Wright.

After viewing the performance yesterday, Mayor Wright said: "It is not apparent to me what are the grounds of objection against this production, nor what is the animus of those who scheme to have the exhibition prohibited. The National Board of Censorship approve it and when assault was made convened again and reaffirmed their approval. Governors of states, several well known jurists and the mayors of all cities, where the spectacle has been presented, have in every instance upheld the finding of this National Board.

"I must say the thing is vast, in fact overwhelming. From a historical and educational standpoint it is wonderful. It most certainly has my endorsement and will be allowed to be presented in Worcester."

Chief of Police Hill and the other members of the Worcester party voiced the sentiments of Mayor Wright.

The expression of these well known gentlemen was a source of gratification to Manager Saunders of Poli's who states he expects but little further opposition to the showing of the spectacle here.

SPRINGFIELD (Mass.) REPUBLICAN
SEPT. 30, 1915

MEETING OF PROTEST

OVER "BIRTH OF A NATION"

WEST SPRINGFIELD'S OPINION

As Voiced at Meeting of the Selectmen—Ministers and Others Oppose Allowing Film Shown in Town

"I do not wish to be libeled as this picture libels me and my race," protested Rev Dr W. N. DeBerry of this city before the board of selectmen in West Springfield last night on the occasion of an informal gathering of persons who favor or are opposed to the production of "The Birth of a Nation" in the West Springfield town hall, the advisability of which is now under discussion by the board. No action was taken by the selectmen after they had heard the arguments pro and con, and none will be taken they assert before their regular meeting on Saturday.

The meeting last night started out to be merely one of the regular meetings of the board, but the citizens of the town knowing that all meetings of the selectmen are open ones descended in force to tell the officials how the town feels on the question of allowing the reproduction of the sensational film in the town limits. The meeting brought out two facts not generally known previously: that $900 was the amount of money the town would receive as rent for the month's run, and that the cheapest seats would cost $1.

It was stated by the selectmen that if it was finally decided to run the film all parts objectionable to anyone would be eliminated. None of the speakers against the film went so far as to deny that certain parts of it are all right, so the decision as to whether or not it will be shown in West Springfield rests with the weight attached by the selectmen to the argument that undesirable notoriety would be gained for the town by showing such a notorious picture, opposed to the assertion that almost every inhabitant of the town would be glad to pay real money to see the exhibition.

Rev Dr DeBerry said in part: My objections to this film are that it stirs up intense race feeling, and that it misrepresents the history of the reconstruction period. People who have not thought deeply concerning the race question come out from seeing this picture saying "If that's what we're educating the Negroes for, let's stop; and if that's why they lynch them, let Lynch law go on." If the colored people had done what this film represents I would applaud the Klu Klux Klan myself.

Rev Dempster D. Gorton of the First Congregational church of West Springfield presented a formal protest from all the ministers in town. He spoke in amplification of this protest and said: "By showing this picture in the town hall which contains all the town offices as well as the high school and library, it receives the sanction of every town official and every public institution except the churches. We do not want West Springfield to be the place where people from other communities come to see what their own towns will not allow. If Springfield were no-license we would think twice before voting license. The two cases are parallel."

Frank Sargent said it looks like a money-making scheme to me. "You selectmen should say to that promoter: "Go where there is a lower class of people than in West Springfield."

"An attempt to sell the morals of the town" was the characterization of the project by Rev George W. Love. "The town formerly had a very unsavory reputation," he continued, "but we fought and finally overthrew the element that stood for this. Let us not do anything to revive those days."

Fred H. Sibley, town clerk, said the main objection to the production that he had heard during the last few days was that the price of admission at $1 is too high and that the people wish it was going to be as low as 25 cents. I believe a large majority of the people in town would like to see the film. Chief of Police Edward Bromage made the point that it would be well for people to see the film before arguing what an objectionable thing it was. Only three of four people in the room had seen the production, and most of them were in favor oo it. One man said, "It's worth $5 of anybody's money," and another one, "I'd like every one of my children to see it."

Frank Grant, president of the Westfield board of trade, was not present last night, but he said his say in the afternoon when he appeared in the town hall to pay taxes on some property he owns in town. "What's the matter with you people over here?" he wanted to know. "Your action results merely in helping out people who want to make money by insulting somebody else."

The meeting in the evening was attended by 50 or more of the townspeople, almost all of whom expressed themselves at some time before the meeting adjourned. Men holding official position were practically unanimous against it, as were their wives; the voices in favor of showing the film came for the most part from the people who make the officials possible.

George B. Miller, the promoter of the scheme, was unable to be present, but he sent a long telegram from Boston devoted to a report of the recent action on the part of the mayor of Worcester, who is quoted as saying that he finds nothing objectionable in the film and will permit its production in Worcester.

SPRINGFIELD (Mass.) REPUBLICAN
SEPT. 30, 1915

over night capable of self-development? "The Birth of a Nation" is well worth seeing. It is unfair to none; it is illuminating in many ways. Viewed in an unprejudiced spirit, not mixed with rancor, it could not fail to do good.

PHILIP N. THAYER.

Harvard Law School, Cambridge, September 29, 1915.

A CAMBRIDGE VIEW OF THE FILM

To the Editor of The Republican:—

I have been following with considerable interest the struggle of "The Birth of a Nation" in Springfield and vicinity. Since the production has been forbidden in Springfield, it is of course easy to understand the unwisdom of allowing it in West Springfield. Purely a local issue, such action might too readily be viewed as a veiled slap at the authorities across the river. But it is difficult to see any reasonable ground for objection to the play itself. Undoubtedly the many people opposing the performance are moved wholly by commendable considerations. Probably, however, the greater part of them have never seen "The Birth of a Nation" given, and all too evidently those who have seen it have refused to look history in the face.

There is nothing inaccurate about the play. The sudden acquisition of power by a large body of ignorant and uneducated people was bound to produce precisely such excesses as are shown. That those people happened to be black instead of white is a mere detail. The results would have been the same in either case. Surely there is no discredit to the Negro people in that. Rather is it to their eternal credit that they have risen so speedily to a respected position in the nation.

No form of narrow-mindedness is more exasperating than that which will not admit the fact of racial development. No one would think of attributing to our Anglo-Saxon ancestors the graces of the present day, but we respect them none the less. Why should it any more be necessary to propound the polite fiction that a race long oppressed in servitude can emerge

CLEVELAND (O.) NEWS
SEPT. 29, 1915

BIRTH OF NATION CAN'T BE SHOWN IN CLEVELAND

Ohio Censors Rule It Out of State, Fearing It Might Incite Race Prejudice.

"The Birth of a Nation," said to be the biggest and most costly motion picture production ever presented, which was booked to show at the Opera House for fifteen consecutive weeks next spring and summer at two-dollar prices, won't be displayed. The state board of censors at Columbus rejected the film Tuesday and will not permit it to be exhibited in Ohio.

"The Birth of a Nation" is adapted from Thomas Dixon's book, "The Clansman." Motion picture producers regard it as one of the biggest films ever made. It shows on a large scale scenes which are alleged to have taken place immediately following the Civil war.

The state censors assigned two reasons for rejection — it might arouse prejudice against the colored race and it might arouse prejudice between north and south. The film has been a storm center in cities where it has been shown. In Boston and Philadelphia it is aid to have been in the cause of numerous race riots. The state board received numerous letters from colored people protesting against the showing of the film.

Right now in New York the film is being shown in the Liberty theater at two-dollar prices, where it has been booked for a year. It was due to be shown here at the Opera House for fifteen weeks commencing early in April.

The state industrial board, which has jurisdiction over the censors, has already refused to rescind bans placed on films by the state censors. So it is not expected there will be any appeal from the censors' decision.

SPRINGFIELD (Mass.) NEWS
SEPT. 29, 1915

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 29, 1915.

West Springfield Selectmen Should Rescind Their Vote.

In deciding to permit the presentation of the objectionable photoplay, "The Birth of a Nation," in the Town Hall, the West Springfield Board of Selectmen has made a stupendous blunder and it is doubtful if any amount of censoring of the widely discussed film will put the members of the board back in the good graces of those who want to see the negro given fair play. The protests of the colored people against this production have been most earnest and sincere, so much so that all who respect justice will sympathize with them and will agree that the only thing for the West Springfield selectmen to do is to rescind their vote and decline to execute a formal contract with the management. The presentation of this film under any circumstances in the face of the earnest protests of the colored people would be deplorable; it will be doubly so—adding insult to injury, so to speak—to permit it to be "screened" in a municipal building.

We do not expect the West Springfield Board of Selectmen to take its cue in all things from the mayor and Board of Aldermen of Springfield. But it might well do so in this particular case. It will be recalled that when "The Clansman," the crude, trashy Dixon play, was booked for this city, Francke W. Dickinson, who was then mayor, refused to license it because of features which were vehemently objected to by colored people and their influential white friends, and the company was obliged to go to Holyoke, to fill its date. "The Birth of a Nation" is based upon "The Clansman," being a cinematographic elaboration of Rev. Thomas Dixon's mediocre and inartistic drama.

When it was proposed that "The Clansman" be exhibited here in film form Mayor Stacy promptly banned it and he likewise banned "The Birth of a Nation" itself. Efforts to produce the latter in the State Armory which is not under municipal control failed flatly, the militia officials being as pronounced in their objections as was the mayor, and the militia authorities are not looking for the negro vote either. In the fact of these circumstances it is rather astounding to see the West Springfield Board of Selectmen decide to allow the presentation of "The Birth of a Nation" in the Town Hall and calmly justify itself as it does.

The amazing qualities of the photoplay, "The Birth of a Nation," as an example of the wonderful progress of motion photography are admitted. It is, however, regrettable, as we have remarked before, that the genius who conceived and produced it could not have seized upon a story and incidents that would make it an acceptable offering everywhere.

Again we say that the thing for the West Springfield Board of Selectmen to do is to rescind its action in deciding to grant a permit to the management of the film. It is not bound by a contract, apparently, and even if it were it would be better to permit it to go by the board.

WORCESTER (Mass.) POST
SEPT. 29, 1915

99

PROTESTED FILM TO GET LICENSE

Mayor Wright saw "The Birth of a Nation" yesterday in Providence, and pronounced it the greatest motion picture show he ever saw and will not withhold his signature from a license for its presentation in Worcester if it is granted by the license board.

George H. Hill, chief of police, George C. Halcott, chairman of the license board, and Street Commissioner Albert T. Rhodes, all members of the license board, saw the show in company with the Mayor and will vote in favor of granting a license for its presentation.

TION PICTURE NEWS (New York City)

PHILADELPHIA AUTHORITIES, OVERZEALOUS FOR COLORED BROTHER'S SAFETY, FAIL IN COURT ATTEMPT TO SUPPRESS "NATION"

ALTHOUGH the Pennsylvania State Board of Censors passed the "Birth of a Nation" as a proper picture to be shown in the State, it was not allowed a normal and peaceful career. Both in Pittsburgh and Philadelphia authorities tried to stop the production, and in both cases were overruled by the courts.

The photoplay was scheduled for its Philadelphia opening on Saturday, September 4. After all arrangements were made and the sale of tickets well under way, Director of Public Safety Porter ordered the production stopped, claiming he feared serious disturbances if the play was allowed to go on.

The director said he had received overwhelming protests from many negroes, amongst them one representing 20,000 colored Knights of Pythias, and he had also learned that many negroes had purchased tickets for the opening performance. The director further said that at the request of Chief Censor Breitinger he had viewed the picture at Atlantic City and in his opinion it was not a proper subject for Philadelphia with a larger negro population than any other Northern city. The picture had also been condemned, said the director, by representative negroes, including several ministers.

As soon as the director's intentions were formulated, Nixon & Zimmerman, of the Forrest theatre, where the film was to be shown, applied to the courts for an injunction preventing Director Porter from interfering with the performance of the picture. Joseph McCullen, representing the theatre management, in asking for the injunction, quoted the decision of Judge Reed of Pittsburgh, on Friday, in which he refused to grant an injunction against the same production on the ground that the Legislature had given a Board of Censors to the State with full authority in such cases and he thought this body, unless it could be shown to have acted fraudulently, should be entitled to respect and its decisions supported.

Judge Ferguson, of Court Number Four in Philadelphia, promptly granted a preliminary injunction preventing the authorities from interfering with the performance for five days. Judge Ferguson said after the five days were over, either party to the proceeding could go before any Judge of Court Number Four with a motion to have the injunction vacated or made permanent.

The judge further said that he had seen the production in question and found it very interesting. While there might be some colored people inclined to be captious and critical, their judgment should not be the rule, as the same thing could be said of other plays reflecting on other races and nationalities. He saw no reason to anticipate disturbances or riots, hence his granting of the injunction.

The play was then allowed to proceed, but still fearful of trouble, Director Porter ordered a large force of police to be present at the performance. Many private detectives were also scattered through the theatre and patrolmen were stationed on the outside. Either the danger was magnified by the zealous director, or the precautions intimidated the prospective trouble makers, for the first performance of the "Birth of a Nation" was given to a crowded and enthusiastic audience which included a few colored people, who, it is said, applauded the thrilling scenes the same as the whites.

All the daily papers gave long and favorable criticisms of the picture. In this connection Dr. Charlotte Abbey, a noted social worker of Philadelphia, said among other things: "I am sorry to find that an historical play such as this, should be the cause of inciting race prejudice. The play teaches a mighty lesson to both white and colored, and it seems strange that lessons so plainly taught by the writer should need to be pointed out. Surely the results of Afro-American training as shown in the 'Birth of a Nation' by views of colored students at Hampton and other institutions, and the thorough exposure of unscrupulous white politicians and fake reformers should be enough to do away with any feeling of resentment by the negro race against the play."

Director Porter has announced his candidacy for mayor in the forthcoming election. In the opinion of many, this fact contributed in no small measure to the director's concern about the protests of some of the colored voters.

SEPT. 26, 1915
COLUMBUS (O.) JOURNAL

gree w... Mrs. ...
Oma, Va., Sept. 20.

APPEAL BY COLORED MAN.

Editor Ohio State Journal:

There is pending before the state board of censors, for approval or rejection, the films of the photo-play "The Birth of the Nation," which is taken from Thomas Dixon's "Clansman." This photo-play, like the novel and drama from which it is taken, is an appeal to race hatred and passions. But recently, on the protest of churchmen, moralists and civic bodies "The Hypocrite" was rejected by the state board of censors, because of the evil effect it might have. I cannot see, at a time like this, when half the world is plunged into a horrible, bloody war, which in the final analysis is a race war, why state or municipal authorities should permit the production of any play which might engender racial antagonism in this country or community, and especially so when, in the event of serious foreign complications, which all true, loyal Americans pray will not pass beyond the diplomatic stage, all able-bodied Americans might be needed, regardless of race or color.

"The Birth of the Nation" is an overdrawn, exaggerated depiction of the "reconstruction days," and was written and staged by its author and associates to keep alive, or rather revive, sectional and racial hatred we thought past forever. There is no reason why a dreadful, bloody past should be commercialized for the financial benefit of such as would vent their pentup hatred for a people who are quietly, steadfastly and earnestly pursuing a peaceful course, and who are endeavoring to prove their worthiness of every citizen right.

Will the state board of censors aid or hinder the colored man's advancement? We believe and hope they will aid us.

RALPH W. TYLER.

Columbus, Sept. 25.

TUSCALOOSA (Tenn.) TIMES
SEPT. 26, 1915

TO ANSWER PHOTOPLAY

Negroes Will Make Film to Offset "Birth of Nation."

18

The negro citizens who were not satisfied with the representations of their forefathers as shown in Griffith's spectacle, "The Birth of a Nation," at the Forrest theatre, have decided to answer that production with one of their own, in which the development of the race will be worked out in a dramatic scenario. The better element of the race has decided to spend no further time in protesting the Griffith production and is agreed that a far more effective answer can be made by devoting its attention to making its own a success.

With this end in view, James Scott, private secretary to Booker T. Washington, has been in conference with Henry I. MacMahon, the Eastern representative of Thomas H. Ince, the celebrated motion-picture director. An elaborate scenario has been worked out showing the early sufferings of the negro slaves, the trials they went through in the first years of their freedom and then showing the wonderful progress that enlightened negro citizens have made in the past half a century.

NEW ORLEANS (La.) STATES
SEPT. 26, 1915

lot must become pitiful indeed when ... and city are reduced to the state of bankruptcy which must ... themselves to the conditions on which Mr. Barret base... political aspirations?

THE BIRTH OF A NATION.

18

Philadelphia is rioting this week over the production of The Birth of a Nation, just as Boston and New York did some months back. But the probabilities are that when the agitators who are stirring up the trouble realize that the only effect of this lawlessness is to advertise the film and swell the box receipts, they will cease their agitation.

What the negro leaders ought to realize is that The Birth of a Nation is not a portrayal of present conditions but of conditions of half a century ago, a fact which the film itself effectively brings out.

When the negro suddenly was transformed from his state of slavery and vested with the full rights of suffrage, he was totally ignorant; and in that condition he became the plaything of unscrupulous carpetbaggers and scalawags who sought to use him as a means to their own affluence and power. In doing so these adventurers fired him with an ambition for equal social rights and inflamed him against the white people of the South who were then and still are his best friends.

The result was to precipitate a shocking and intolerable condition of affairs and to force upon the white people the alternative of armed resistance or the complete destruction of their civilization.

But the negro today and the negro then is an altogether different citizen. Today the race points with pride to the enormous strides in has made in wealth and education, not only in the North but in the South. It no longer is arrayed against the white race in the South. Instead the two races are living harmoniously together, each aiding the other and both contributing to the growth of their common section.

There are idle, vicious and criminal members of the race, as there are of the white race, and as the enlightened colored leaders recognize; but on the whole the race is peaceable, industrious and law abiding, and the last thing it would be willing to acknowledge is that there is any similarity between its condition now and its condition during the period with which The Birth of a Nation deals.

There is, therefore, no reason why the negro should take offense at The Birth of a Nation. On the contrary he ought to derive a great deal of satisfaction from the fact, as the film itself points out, that he has won the respect and friendship of the white people of the South, whereas he was the object of their bitter enmity in the early days of Reconstruction.

BRIDGEPORT (Conn.) HERALD 133
SEPT. 28, 1915

COLORED PEOPLE KICK IN NORWALK

Pastor of Knight Street A. M. Church Heads Protest Against "The Birth of a Nation."

WILL MAYOR ACT?

According to the talk in Norwalk last week, a large number of the colored residents will enter an objection to the showing of the moving picture play known as "The Birth of a Nation," which is booked for a wek's stand at the Regent theater in Norwalk during the early part of next month.

The protest will come under the leadership of Rev. H. M. Shields, pastor of the Knight street African Methodist church. There is a strong rumor that a petition will be circulated among the Afro-American race in the Norwalks and presented to Mayor Burnell, asking that an order be issued preventing the showing of the picture.

"The Birth of a Nation," a story of the old "reconstruction days," has come in for no little protesting in all parts of the country. The picture will make its first appearance in Bridgeport one week from to-morrow and will then come to Norwalk. Manager Kantor of the Regent theater in Norwalk was asked last week if he had heard anything in regard to the protest. He said that none had been made to him personally.

If the picture is shown in Norwalk, which it will according to Mr. Kantor, the now talked of protest ...

DAYTON (Ohio) HERALD
SEPT. 28, 1915

FAMOUS PICTURE BARRED IN OHIO

Censors Won't Allow "The Birth of a Nation" to Be Shown.

18

COLUMBUS, Sept. 28.—State movie censors, after a week's deliberation, today barred from exhibition in Ohio "The Birth of a Nation," perhaps the most elaborate film play ever staged in America.

The play was passed by Pennsylvania censors but race riots followed its showing in Philadelphia theaters.

It depicts slavery conditions in the south, the change wrought by the civil war and the later reconstruction period in which negroes dominated many southern states politically.

Censors said today many influential negroes, together with numerous G. A. R.'s in Ohio protested against showing the film in this state.

"The drama, in our opinion, would tend to engender race prejudice and to arouse latent feeling between the North and South," censors said today, in announcing their rejection of the film.

(Ohio) NEWS 223
SEPT. 28, 1915

MOVIE CENSORS BAR "BIRTH OF A NATION" IN OHIO

By United Press.

COLUMBUS, Sept. 28.—State movie censors, after a week's deliberation, today barred from exhibition in Ohio "The Birth of a Nation," perhaps the most elaborate film play ever staged in America.

The play depicts slavery conditions in the south, the change wrought by the civil war and the later reconstruction period in which negroes dominated many southern states, politically.

Censors said many influential negroes, together with numerous G. A. R. posts in Ohio, protested against showing the film.

"The drama, in our opinion, would tend to engender race prejudice and to arouse latent feeling between the north and south," the censors said.

...ON (Ohio) JOURNAL
SEPT. 28, 1915

COSTLY FILM IS BARRED IN OHIO

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 28.—"The Birth of a Nation," said to be the biggest and most costly motion picture production ever presented, which was booked to show here for 15 consecutive weeks next spring and summer, at $2 prices, won't be displayed. The state board of censors at Columbus rejected the film Tuesday, and will not permit it to be exhibited in Ohio.

"The Birth of a Nation" is adapted from Thomas Dixon's book, "The Clansman." Motion picture producers regard it as one of the biggest films ever made. It shows on a large scale scen... h are alle... to have taken place following ... Civil war. The censors assigned tw... reasons for rejection—it might arouse prejudice against the colored race, and it migh arouse prejudice between the north and south. The film has been a storm center in cities where it has been shown. In Boston an... Philadelphia it is said to have ... the cause of numerous race ... The state board received nu... letters from colored people pr... ing against the showing of the fil...

The film is being shown in Ne... York at $2 prices. It has be... booked for a year.

The state industrial board, whi... has jurisdiction over the censors ... already refused to rescind bans pla... on films by the state censors ... is not expected the... will be ... peal from the censo... decisi...

... and will not permit ... ted in Ohio. The Sta... ce ... assigned two reasons for rejec... it might arouse prejudice agai... selv... colored race, and it might ar... w... prejudice between the nor... south. ... Nation ... allowed to be show...

CARL E. GEMMER

PIQUA (O.) CALL
SEPT. 29, 1915

BIRTH OF A NATION FILM REJECTED

Columbus, Sept. 29.—"The Birth of a Nation," a photo play, was rejected by the Ohio state board of censors. A lively battle in the courts may result, as the censors' action means a heavy loss to promoters in Ohio business. "The Birth of a Nation" is an historical film, partly based on Thomas Dixon's novel, "The Clansman," but containing much more historical matter. Colored citizens have objected to the showing of the film elsewhere.

SEPT. 29, 1915
COLUMBUS (O.) JOURNAL

PROTESTS AGAINST FILM.

Editor Ohio State Journal:

It seems to me that it would be a mistake to sanction the exhibition of the moving picture film "The Birth of the Nation" in Ohio. While it is a "stupendous" production, its general effect is pernicious in its quality. It argues for nothing in particular, but glorifies the regime of slavery and the night work of the Klu-Klux Clan. Further, it is unfair to the negro race and tends to emphasize the worst aspects of race prejudice.

It has been said that "The Birth of the Nation" shows evil white as well as colored people, but nowhere does it approve the colored man except where he is a slave. One would judge that since the negro was freed he has been a thing of evil with not a redeeming quality and without a sign of progress. For some of its "historical" pictures and statements it quotes authorities, but for its evil charges against white statesmen, the negro race and the military rule in the South immediately after the war, it pretends authority but does not state its sources, thereby making the story one that is mischievous, to say the least.

When witnessing this film I protested against its character, and it left me with two thoughts in mind: First, assuming that all the indictments it made against the colored race be true, yet nothing could atone for the conditions of slavery, and, second, no one is justified in exhibiting such unpleasant "history" in view of the citizenship of the present day. J. W. WHEELER.

Columbus, Sept. 28.

SEPT. 30, 1915
PHILADELPHIA (PA.) PUB. LEDGER

"THE BIRTH OF A NATION"

The Spectacle "Is" Historically Untrue and Socially Deplorable

To the Editor of Public Ledger:

Sir—When the "Birth of a Nation" was first produced here I went to see it in order to judge of its character. I came away with regret and indignation. The play should have been prohibited. Historically it is untrue (especially as was shown in your columns recently by Girard in relation to the Ku Klux Klan), and politically and socially its influence is deplorable. The impression made on the thoughtless is that the Ku Klux were organized to defend the honor of the white women of the South. If they had required protection from the negroes it would have been during the war when the white men were away. There were fears of a "Servile War" repeatedly expressed at that time, but no such insurrection ever occurred, greatly to the credit of the slaves when they had the wrongs of a century to impel them to revenge.

The attempt in the play by a negro to compel a white girl to marry him is revolting and necessarily stirs up evil passions. Such isolated instances very possibly occurred, but if so they were one of the baneful results of the teachings of the wretched white "carpet-baggers" who invaded the South, so lamentably to its detriment.

For good or for evil, the negroes are here. We must live with them in amity or enmity. To stir up evil passions by resurrecting a period which should be buried in oblivion—a period of more shame for the whites than for the blacks—where their ignorant tools—is treachery to the best interests of the nation.

A heavy responsibility rests upon author and exhibitor for the recrudescence of antagonism between the two races for whose presence in this land the whites alone are responsible. It is our clear duty to render our negro fellow citizens intelligent, prosperous and contented. Their progress in education, intelligence and prosperity as business men, bankers, doctors, lawyers and in many other pursuits has been phenomenal. If God had given you, my white friend, a black skin, what would you think of such an effort to arouse contempt and aversion entertained for you? W. W. KEEN.

Philadelphia, September 29, 1915.

SPRINGFIELD (Mass.) MORN. UNION
OCT. 1, 1915

WHY "THE BIRTH OF A NATION" IS OBJECTIONABLE.

It scarcely seems that there should be any dispute about the motif of "The Birth of a Nation" or Thomas Dixon's novel, "The Clansman," from which the film was adapted. Their spirit and tone seem to be identical. The picturization makes possible a spectacular treatment that does not divert the spectator from the lesson sought to be enforced so much as it hightens and drives home that lesson. Unfortunately, that lesson is one that ought not to be taught to any American assemblage, North or South. The film falsifies history that it may indulge in a slap at the Negro, the Union cause, the Government and the Constitution. It assails Negroes, not as individuals but as a race. It directs blind forces of antipathy and hatred against a class of citizens that the Nation is bound under the Constitution to safeguard and protect.

The author of "The Clansman" is a sufferer from negrophobia. He would condemn the Negro to deportation, close the people's eyes to everything the race has done to better itself and deny it the opportunity to compete in the pursuits of civilization. Academically it may be legitimate to urge such doctrines, but to exploit the theme in motion pictures is to feed and excite the fires that menace not only the rights and lives of Negro citizens but liberty and justice for all, white and black. Mr. Dixon's prejudices should not be exploited for a commercial purpose. The film cannot be defended as a historical spectacle, because it is not a truthful portrayal of history. In title, legends and pictorial representations it distorts and falsifies facts. Conceding that the production has considerable historical and artistic value, history can be taught and appreciation of art inculcated through better vehicles than this poisonous concoction. If the South in Reconstruction days has been done an injustice through histories written for the instruction of Northern minds, the record can be righted without libelling or antagonizing any class.

The Mayor of Springfield, in his representative capacity, has seen fit to bar "The Birth of a Nation" from local theaters. He speaks for the people, and there has been nothing to indicate that he has voiced other than the prevailing public sentiment. The proposal to exhibit the film just over the Connecticut River bridge in West Springfield is essentially a move to overrule the prevailing desire of the community, if appearances speak correctly. Certainly there would be no presentation of this high-priced film production if it were dependent merely on patronage from the west side of the river. To be a paying affair, it must, of course, look to the Springfield public for support. In all fitness and propriety, therefore, the feelings and wishes of the larger community should be considered in a case like this. The policy of Springfield and of West Springfield in this regard should be identical.

SPRINGFIELD (MASS.) REPUBLICAN
OCT. 2, 1915

spending a week at the hotel with her daughter, Miss Eugenia Prescott, a teacher in the Hitchcock free academy.

WEST SPRINGFIELD

No Announced Sermons on "Birth of a Nation"

Subjects for to-morrow's sermons as announced by the pastors this morning seem to leave "The Birth of a Nation" severely alone. A minister is always privileged to stray from his text, however, and the congregations are expected to anticipate such excursions and be present in full force. Rev Henry E. Leech of the First Methodist church has been in Boston most of the week, and undoubtedly took the opportunity to secure first-hand information as to the film.—The Sunday service at the Episcopal mission will be conducted by Samuel Brown of Palmer.—"The meaning of sin" is the subject for the sermon by the pastor at the First Methodist church to-morrow morning. Rev Mr Leech will give a short talk at the evening service on "Why Judas went wrong."—A special communion service will be held in the Mittineague Congregational church to-morrow. The pastor will preach in the morning on "God's gifts to his church." The missionary society will have charge of special exercises in the Sunday-school and speakers will be present from the International college representing several nationalities. The mite-boxes for home missions will be opened, and music will be furnished by the children's choral choir. "Christendom's day of judgment" is the topic for discussion at the men's lyceum meeting at noon, and in the evening will take place the first of a series of missionary addresses, a stereopticon lecture, "Christianity among wa[illegible] like Zulus." [illegible] will sing. [illegible] of Our [illegible] is producing the film [illegible] Nation at the Olympic [illegible]

SPRINGFIELD (Mass.) MORN. UNION
OCT. 1, 1915

SPRINGFIELD IN NO POSITION TO KICK

Should First Reform Own Playhouses, Says Town Treasurer Sibley.

FILM CONTROVERSY

Selectmen Give Hearing on "Birth of Nation"; Decision Reserved.

"People who live in glass houses should be careful how they throw stones," said Town Treasurer Fred H. Sibley yesterday, in discussing the hue and cry raised in Springfield over the proposed showing of "The Birth of a Nation" here. "If Springfield will clean out some of its objectionable resorts and places of amusement, the people there will be in a better position to criticize this town's actions. The theaters, from the big playhouses down to the nickel motion picture houses, have repeatedly shown pictures and plays that were immoral and indecent from every point of view and undoubtedly contained more objectionable features than 'The Birth of a Nation.' When many cities have allowed the picture to be shown and men of high repute have indorsed it, saying that they believe everyone should see the picture, it must contain good points. Most of those who raise the most objections have never seen it and those who have, praise it.

"I have heard some of West Springfield's young people tell of and discuss some of the pictures in Springfield that they have seen and from what I heard I should say that the pictures were hardly fit for them to see. West Springfield never was consulted by Springfield as to whether the city should run certain shows, and why this town should let Springfield run it in this instance, I fail to see. Let Springfield clean up thoroughly and then they can come over here and help us. I see no objection to 'The Birth of a Nation,' if properly censored, and neither do colored people of Springfield, according to the statement of Rev. Mr. DeBerry, made here Wednesday evening."

SPRINGFIELD (Mass.) MORN. UNION
OCT. 2, 1915

SEES NOTHING OBJECTIONABLE

Testimony of One Who Has Twice Seen "The Birth of a Nation."

To the Editor of The Union.

Sir: I think it is high time to find out if a handful of Negroes are to dictate to a hundred thousand whites in this city as to what they ought to see in the line of motion pictures.

"The Birth of a Nation" should by all means be shown in this city, if for no other reason than the lesson in history it teaches. It is the most wonderful thing I have ever seen. I saw it at the Tremont Theater in Boston, also in the Illinois Theater in Chicago, and I will see it again if it comes to Springfield or its vicinity. It is highly instructive and I saw nothing objectionable in it. My opinion of the Negro race was not changed by it in any way.

It casts no reflections on that race, certainly no more than are cast on the Chinese who are pictured as smugglers in a film now showing in this city. Films are shown picturing the "blackhanders," but these are not intended as any reflection on our Italian population. There are good and bad in every race, and the fact cannot be ignored. Every plot or play must have its "villain," and in "The Birth of a Nation" it simply happens that this role falls to the Negro.

About the only part of the film to which Negroes might take exceptions is that which shows the House of Representatives with Negroes in the majority, and each member supplied with a bottle of gin. But that is more on the humorous side than on the serious, and both times I saw the film it never failed to bring a roar of laughter.

In justice to Mayor Stacy it should be said that he was not after the colored vote when he put his ban on the picture. That vote in this city is only about 100, anyway, and therefore cuts little figure. Our Mayor simply acted according to his convictions.

B. O. A. N.

Springfield, Sept. 30, 1915.

SPRINGFIELD (Mass.) REPUBLIC
OCT. 1, 1915

WILL PROTEST NO FURTHER AGAINST "BIRTH OF A NATION"

Negroes Will Rest Their Case—No Action by Selectmen Expected Until To-morrow

No more fight will be shown by the Negroes of this city against the production of "The Birth of a Nation" in West Springfield. Rev Dr W. N. DeBerry stated last night that the Negroes were willing to rest their case as already presented. "If the selectmen," said he, "vote to allow the presentation we have no present intentions of bothering them further. No riots will be started by the colored people if the picture is put on."

No immediate action in regard to "The Birth of a Nation" is expected from the selectmen until after their meeting tomorrow afternoon. They heard the sentiments of several of the townspeople at the open session Wednesday evening, and between now and Saturday they will carry on a quiet investigation to get the general sentiment of the town on the matter. They will make a thorough investigation of the whole matter before coming to any decision. The protracted illness of Selectman Palmer and his consequent absence from the deliberations of the board may develop into an interesting situation later on if for any reason Selectmen Lysaght and Royce should find themselves on opposing sides in regard to the advisability of permitting the entrance of "The Birth of a Nation" into the town. The question would arise whether Miller would be within his rights in asserting that the permission granted him already held unless revoked, or whether the play could not legally be presented until more formal permission were given.

SPRINGFIELD (Mass.) MORN. UNION
OCT. 2, 1915

CANCEL PERMIT FOR PHOTOPLAY

Selectmen Bar Film Production of 'The Birth of a Nation."

LISTEN TO PROTESTS

Ministers of Town Forward Set of Resolutions to Board.

Because of strong local opposition and many protests from citizens, the Board of Selectmen last night cancelled the permit allowing the film "The Birth of a Nation," to be shown here. J. J. Lysaght, chairman of the Board of Selectmen, in making the announcement said that the decision of the board was based solely on the opposition shown by the clergy and intelligent citizens.

When the board granted the permission for the production of the picture through the entire month of October, with matinees the first week, a storm of protest arose, not only on the western side of the river but in Springfield as well, where Mayor Stacy had forbidden the picture last spring. Exhibition privileges had also been denied in Chicopee and many other cities because of the alleged tendencies of the picture to rouse racial feeling. The proposition was first laid before the Selectmen Saturday, but action was deferred until Monday. The manager of the production of the film here, to whom the Selectmen granted permits is G. B. Miller, a former owner of the Bijou Theater in Springfield.

In a formal protest meeting of the ministers of the town Thursday evening, the following resolutions were drawn up and presented to the Board of Selectmen:

"To the Honorable Board of Selectmen of West Springfield.

"Understanding that your body has under consideration the granting of a license for the production of the photoplay, 'The Birth of a Nation,' we, the ministers of West Springfield, do strongly protest against the proposed action.

"We believe that West Springfield does not want the undesirable notoriety of licensing a play that has been excluded by the great majority of cities and towns in Massachusetts.

"We disapprove of this photoplay for the same reasons that have been advanced elsewhere against its production.

(Signed)
"WARREN L. ATHERTON,
"GEORGE E. SANDERSON,
"OLIVER B. LOUD,
"DEMPSTER D. GORTON,
"HENRY E. ABECH,
"GEORGE W. LOVE,
"For the West Springfield Ministers."

SPRINGFIELD (Mass.) REPUBLICAN
OCT. 2, 1915

Photographs by American Press Association

SELECTMEN BAN FILM

"THE BIRTH OF A NATION"

NOT FOR WEST SPRINGFIELD

Opposition of Ministers Given as Main Reason for Action of Selectmen at Special Meeting

"The Birth of a Nation" will not be shown in West Springfield. Action by the board of selectmen taken at a special meeting last night settled for good and all the question that has been agitating the town for the last week. George B. Miller of Springfield will not get the West Springfield town hall or any other hall in town for the production of the sensational films.

The selectmen's action that night comes as a surprise to those who have been following the fate of the picture. Their regular meeting was to be held this afternoon, and no one thought that anything would be done before then. Radical partisans both for and against the photo-play were planning to be present at this afternoon's meeting to assist the selectmen in arriving at their decision. But Selectmen Lysaght and Royce had all of this sort of thing they wanted last Wednesday night, and so very quietly got together at a late hour last night and settled the matter without any outside help.

John J. Lysaght, chairman of the board, gave as his reasons for prohibiting the picture the facts that the board did not believe in opposing the churches in a matter of this kind and that unexpected opposition had also developed because of the interference the proposed matinee performances would have on the work of the high school. A petition had been prepared in regard to this phase of the question and was about to be circulated by the school children among their parents. Mr Lysaght said further:—

"We had no object in granting our consent in the first place except the good of the town. That $900 would have been a welcome addition to the town treasury. We consulted with the ministers before we took any action, and we understood that they had no objection to the picture in itself, but that their opposition was based on the notoriety that would come to the town. We selectmen felt that we could judge of this notoriety as well as anybody, but when after we had made our tentative agreement with Mr Miller the clergymen protested against the subject matter of the film we were willing to bow to their feelings in the matter."

Arthur F. Royce, the other selectman present at the final meeting, agreed with Chairman Lysaght in every particular. He said after the decision had been reached: "We understood that the experience of other places that have had to face this same question was that the opposition to the picture was confined almost entirely to the colored citizens of those communities. West Springfield has almost no colored residents, so we expected no trouble, but of course when the churches came out as strongly as they did against the picture we had nothing further to say."

C. O. Palmer, the third member of the board, has been out of town ever since the question first came up; but as the other two members were in accord in regard to last night's action his presence would not have affected the result.

Residents of West Springfield will be surprised to learn the decision of the selectmen. The general sentiment in the town yesterday was that permission to exhibit the film would be granted. The clergymen of the town were almost the only ones who objected to the production, and none of them had ever seen the picture. So sure were residents that the photo-play would be put on that Fred H. Sibley, town treasurer, was kept busy all day long answering telephone calls from people who wanted to make reservations for the first performance. Several people had offered to secure for the benefit of the selectmen petitions in favor of the exhibition with as many names on them as might be desired. Mr Miller, the impresario who was endeavoring to lease the town hall for the purpose of showing the picture, was expected to present a long petition of this nature to the selectmen at their meeting this afternoon.

For Bulletin Phila Sep 30

MAYOR SAYS HE CAN'T ACT

Holds Out No Relief to Colored Citizens Protesting Against "Movie"

Mayor Blankenburg heard the protests of colored citizens against the further production of the film play, "The Birth of a Nation," to-day. Colored men and women representing churches and organizations, headed by former Congressman George H. White, were present. Mayor Blankenburg said at the conclusion of the speeches that the injunction of the courts prevented the Department of Public Safety from taking any steps to stop the film production. Former Director Porter said that he had seen the production and subsequently written to the Board of Censors suggesting the elimination of certain scenes. This had not been done.

It was stated by some of the speakers that a fund of $500 had been raised to oppose the production of the film. Included in the speakers were R. R. Wright, editor of "Christian Recorder;" Dr. John E. Turner, a medical inspector for the Board of Education, and Dr. Algernon B. Jackson, Elwood Babcock, representing the Society for the Elevation of the Negro Race, presented a number of letters protesting against the film, the fact that Mayor Blankenburg had read his hands [illegible] York's large office buildings is to be rented to accommodate them.

When a band of riders, dressed to resemble the Klu Klux Klan of civil war times, paraded the streets of Spokane, Wash., recently, advertising "The Birth of a Nation," they got more realism into their demonstration than they had bargained for. A gang of men attacked the riders with sticks and stones, and it was with some difficulty that police were able to quell the riot which ensued. Some of the "Klan" were women, and one of them, a young girl, was badly injured.

[illegible] The whole p[illegible] and untrue touches [illegible]
CARL E. GRAMM[illegible]

[illegible]PING FROM 10-2-15
N. Y. Review

GEORGE M. COHAN TALKS OF "LEGIT" AND THE MOVIES

Thinks Stars Who Are Rushing Into Pictures Are Harming Only Themselves.

SEES REACTION COMING.

Believes That Many Photo Concerns Are on the Brink of Failure.

George M. Cohan is one of those who does not think that motion pictures, per se, have hurt the legitimate drama in this country and he sees no menace in them to legitimate theatricals in the future, but he deplores the general exodus of well-known actors from the dramatic stage to the movies.

Mr. Cohan, who is celebrated for his independence of thought and action in the amusement world, is very frank in speaking of the effect that pictures have had on theatricals. He says:

"The idea that moving pictures will ever supplant drama to any extent as a theatrical entertainment in the future in America is silly. It is not pictures, as such, that have hurt the show business, it is the foolish army of actors who have gone into picture work, deserting the legitimate stage for the sake of cleaning up a little money, and who have sold their birthright in the drama for a mess of picture porage.

"The well-known stars who have given their names, reputations and careers to the film concerns to retail at a nickel and a dime will regret the mistake they have made all their lives.

"These stars have worked a lifetime on the stage, have had fortunes invested in making them by managers and in many cases they owe everything they have to their managers' enterprise and industry. With a strange disloyalty to the drama and an utterly wrong idea of how to best serve it and their own interests, they have for the sake of a few paltry dollars gone and sold themselves to the film companies and have so cheapened themselves in the eyes of the public that most of them have practically ruined their careers on the dramatic stage, at least they are dead ones as far as the drama is concerned for the time being.

"I am astonished that any legitimate actor or actress of reputation can go into the movies and think that they can come back to drama again as good as they were before.

"Suppose that the head chef at Delmonico's accepted a job at Child's restaurant, do you think that he would be worth anything as a chef to Mr. Delmonico after he had been working at Child's? The case in regard to the dramatic stars who have gone into the movies is perfectly parallel.

"The worst thing that ever happened for moving pictures was 'The Birth of a Nation.' The great success of that picture has led every motion picture manufacturer in the country to think that he can make millions out of the movies and they have embarked on production upon a scale which will certainly wreck many of them in the near future.

"I am not afraid of the movies hurting the drama and I do not think they have; it is the people in the show business themselves who have hurt it by selling out and betraying it.

"Cohan and Harris have been offered big sums of money for the rights to plays by moving picture concerns, but have steadfastly refused to consider any of these offers and this will be our policy in the future."

DES MOINES (Ia.) CAPITAL
SEPT. 29, 1915

P. Ledger Phila Sep 30

"THE BIRTH OF A NATION"

The Spectacle Is Historically Untrue and Socially Deplorable

To the Editor of Public Ledger:

Sir—When the "Birth of a Nation" was first produced here I went to see it in order to judge of its character. I came away with regret and indignation. The play should have been prohibited. Historically it is untrue (especially as was shown in your columns recently by Girard in relation to the Ku Klux Klan), and politically and socially its influence is deplorable. The impression made on the thoughtless is that the Ku Klux were organized to defend the honor of the white women of the South. If they had required protection from the negroes it would have been during the war when the white men were away. There were fears of a "Servile War" repeatedly expressed at that time, but no such insurrection ever occurred, greatly to the credit of the slaves when they had the wrongs of a century to impel them to revenge.

The attempt in the play by a negro to compel a white girl to marry him is revolting and necessarily stirs up evil passions. Such isolated instances very possibly occurred, but if so they were one of the baneful results of the teachings of the wretched white "carpet-baggers" who invaded the South, so lamentably to its detriment.

For good or for evil, the negroes are here. We must live with them in amity or enmity. To stir up evil passions by resurrecting a period which should be buried in oblivion—a period of more shame for the whites than for the blacks who were their ignorant tools—is treachery to the best interests of the nation.

A heavy responsibility rests upon author and exhibitor for the recrudescence of antagonism between the two races for whose presence in this land the whites alone are responsible. It is our clear duty to render our negro fellow citizens intelligent, prosperous and contented. Their progress in education, intelligence and prosperity as business men, bankers, doctors, lawyers and in many other pursuits has been phenomenal. If God had given you, my white reader, a black skin, what would you think of such an effort to arouse contempt and aversion against you? W. W. KEEN.

Philadelphia, September 29, 1915.

Ev. Ledger Phila Sept 30

THE MOVIE CENSORSHIP

To the Editor of the Evening Ledger:

Sir—I must disagree absolutely with you in your declaration that the city is placed in an intolerable position because of the action of the courts of Allegheny County in upholding the authority of the Pennsylvania State Board of Motion Picture Censors. Authority must rest somewhere, and when a censor board is made absolute in power, responsibility rests heavily upon the members and the least suggestion of dishonesty or double dealing is besmirching. I am convinced that the Pennsylvania State Board of Censors is of the highest integrity, although my asservation may be considered gratuitous. The motion picture producer should be assured that the acceptance or rejection of any film he may submit shall be final, and I believe that the majority of manufacturers are eager to uphold the hands of Pennsylvania's legally constituted and able body. Recourse to the courts for emendation of a censor board's decision would lead to confusion and would bring the entire picture industry in this State into a chaotic condition. * * *

FRED R. ZWEIFEL.

Philadelphia, September 30.

LYOKE (Mass.) TELEGRAM
OCT. [illegible]

MAYOR DOES NOT OBJECT TO FILM

"The Birth of a Nation" May Be Presented Here.

Representative of Firm Handling it Chose Tentative Date to Use City Hall.

Mayor Woods will not object to the presentation of "The Birth of a Nation" in the City hall auditorium. A representative of the firm which is presenting the picture was in the city today trying to arrange a satisfactory date.

Mr. Miller tentatively chose Oct. 18 on the evening of which the famous film, which has aroused such strong opposition in certain quarters, would be presented in the local auditorium. Mr. Miller examined the records to find a date that would be satisfactory.

It was rumored that it is possible that the date chosen for the presentation of the film in West Springfield will be cancelled and that Holyoke will be substituted instead. Strong opposition has arisen in Springfield against the picture.

SPRINGFIELD (Mass.) EVE. UNION
SEPT. 30, 1915

BIRTH OF NATION" SCORED BY LEWIS

Says Negro Civic League Has Power to Put Play Out of Business.

William H. Lewis, former assistant United States attorney general, in a meeting of the Negro Civic League in the Third Baptist Church last night characterized the film "The Birth of a Nation" as "that infinite pest" and said that it was in the power of the league to put the play out of business. William C. Matthews, former Harvard baseball player, was one of the principal speakers.

This successful rally of the Negro Civic League was encouraged by the presence of a delegation from the Colored Civic League of Massachusetts, of which Mr. Lewis is the president. The delegation consisted of William Lloyd of Newton, Christopher S. Winters of Boston, Raymond Phillips of West Medford, Monroe Mason of Cambridge, William C. Matthews of Boston, J. Thomas Harrison of Cambridge and Augustus Plummer, John W. Schenck, David E. Crawford and Dr. Columbus W. Harrison of the executive committee. The visitors were entertained at supper in the Worthy by President R. S. Frazier, Dr. Bruce T. Bowen, secretary, and William C. Jackson, treasurer, and the executive committee of the local league.

Mr. Lewis spoke long and earnestly of the struggle of the Negro to escape the bonds of race and referred to President Wilson's speech in Pennsylvania in which he said that American citizens do not consist in groups and the man who trades on nationality is not worthy to live under the Stars and Stripes.

In a joint session of the executive committee of the Colored Civic League of Massachusetts and the local league, a resolution was adopted extending thanks "to the Mayor, the press and the citizens of Springfield in general for the firm and uncompromising stand taken against the admission and production of The Birth of a Nation.

GOR (Me.) COMMERCIAL
SEPT. 30, 1915

BIRTH OF A NATION LEADS TO RIOT IN PHILADELPHIA

One hundred Philadelphia policemen with drawn clubs and revolvers Tuesday charged a crowd of 1000 negroes in front of the Forrest theatre, where the motion play, The Birth of a Nation, is being presented. Fully 5000 white persons saw the onslaught.

Broad street for two blocks presented for a few moments a scene of the wildest disorder. The charge of the police followed the throwing of a brick by one of the negroes. The brick struck the door glass at the entrance of the theatre and shattered it.

Instantly the police, who had been guarding the theatre entrance, pounced on the negroes. Hats flew in the air. Negroes were knocked to the ground and the larger part of the offending mob fled down the street.

The trouble lasted about two minutes. Employes of the theatre and many others got clubs which had been held in reserve inside the theatre and 50 men armed with these clubs quickly joined the police.

At the moment when it was thought the main body of the negroes had dispersed well down Broad street, a second disturbance was begun at the corner of Walnut and Broad. There a negro threw a brick, which struck Patrolman Striker on the right arm. The officer turned on his assailant with a club and the negro ran with the policeman in pursuit.

Fully 50 comrades followed Striker and they were joined by a yelling mob of 1000 whites, but the negro assailant escaped.

Only one arrest was made. While a few shots were fired no one was reported as being hit.

A printed card was circulated in the negro sections of the city during the day. This card contained the following announcement:

"Rally, Rally! Rally!"

"All colored citizens and their white friends and sympathizers are ear-

BROCKTON (Mass.) ENTERPRISE
OCT. 2, 1915

[illegible] Radio, which was recent[illegible] tally destroyed by fire.

Ohio Bans "Birth of a Nation."

"The Birth of a Nation," which [illegible] booked to show at the Opera [illegible] at Cleveland for 15 consec[illegible] weeks next summer at $2 [illegible] won't be displayed. The State [illegible] of censors at Columbus rejected [illegible] film and will not permit it to b[illegible] exhibited in Ohio. The State ce[illegible] assigned two reasons for rejec[illegible] it might arouse prejudice agai[illegible] colored race, and it might [illegible] prejudice between the nor[illegible] south.

Howes to be show[illegible]

NEW YORK MAIL
Date OCT 2 1915

JOHN COLLIER

$2,000,000 WORTH OF FILMS YOU WILL NEVER SEE : : :

By ISAAC RUSSELL

THE PICTURES THE NATIONAL BOARD OF CENSORSHIP VETOED, AS DESCRIBED BY JOHN COLLIER, ORGANIZER OF THE CENSORS' BOARD, IN AN INTERVIEW : : : :

WHEN you, Mrs. Movie Fan, encounter the problem brought to you by your three-year-old son who comes to you, walking Charlie Chaplin style, with a demand that you take him to the "movies" so he can see some more of Charlie, you just give in and agree to go.

Your seven-year-old daughter may ask if there is going to be a Mary Pickford picture, and tell you that she wants to go because Mary is sweet enough to kiss. So you probably take the daughter and the son, and all three of you go to the movies together, holding hands as you make your way toward the neighborhood movie place.

As the screen flashes its pictures up to you, you catch for a fleeting instant the legend, "PASSED BY THE NATIONAL BOARD OF CENSORSHIP."

The greeting has become so familiar that it has lost most of its significance—you accept it as you accept the film, and seldom want to start any row as to whether you or the children ought to have exhibited to you what the screen shows.

What, then, is it you fail to see when you catch that signal that your screen play has passed all right?

For one thing, you have been prevented from seeing quite a number of films—films up to the value of $2,000,000. These $2,000,000 worth of films were created by film makers who didn't know what the censors would pass, and so came into collision with the board's standards.

"What have you cut out in making up your $2,000,000 worth of discards?" I asked John Collier, of the People's Institute. John Collier got together the members of the National Board of Censorship in the first place, and for five years or more he acted as secretary of the board. Lately he has been absorbing a bit of the attitude of the moviegoing public as an unofficial lay observer. So I asked him the question as an expert capable of talking about it—and not quite in the intense, professional spirit of the active movie censor.

"Well," said Mr. Collier, "if you ask me what we cut out, as if we have acted according to set rules and have always cut out things that offended in the same way, then I'll have to tell you we've been very inconsistent. You see, what we're really afraid of is being consistent—too consistent, and we're not at all afraid of being inconsistent.

"For it is with us as it is with life—life is unforseeable, tameless, profound, and it defies at times all set rules. And just so we have defied them, too, for we have not sought to tame the untamable.

"At times we have cut out some things that riper experience has taught us we should pass, and we have passed similar things at a later date. Roughly we have reached some general conclusions that may be said to hold good as a somewhat standardized basis for action.

"What have you all been prevented from seeing? Well, take the field of personal morals first. There is where a ticklish problem of censorship comes in. But if you notice your film plays at all closely, you will notice that you seldom or never see a long, passionate or protracted embrace. Moving picture actors have become so accustomed to having films turned back because of overacted scenes of love that you can now tell the experienced actors from the manner in which they do their love scenes with restraint.

"Then there is the matter of the display of alleged physical allurements, and the exposure of alleged physical charms. Such displays, if needed to carry on the theme of a film drama, are made by the stopwatch if at all. That is, they are not allowed in protracted or extended form.

"The wanton heroine brought us a problem of her own. It was decided that it was bad business to have the wanton heroine a successful heroine. The woman who turns lightly from man to man in the movies simply isn't allowed any more than the hero who plays the wanton game of turning lightly from woman to woman.

"Early in the history of the movies, plays with the wanton hero and the wanton heroine came in with considerable frequency. They made up quite a portion of the $2,000,000 worth of films that never have got beyond the private display rooms of the censors.

"Then consider the matter of the decent chivalry due to woman. When the moving picture studios had only a crude notion of getting action into their pictures, they often went in for fights and hairpulling matches. It was decided not to let films go onto the screens showing fighting women and hairpulling girls. So, if again you note the qualities of the films you see, you will note that the hair pulling and the brawling is not there. Perhaps you have grown so accustomed to its absence that you hardly know it's gone. But if it were there, you'd be asking, as you hardly ever are tempted to do now, what was wrong with the censors.

"The matter of moral lapses in men, when made known to loving wives, has brought us a special problem of its own. Should the movies teach the lesson of easy forgiveness and acceptance of the men at their homes, after a brief crying spell? The censors decided no, and so there are few scenes of easily forgiving wives and forgiven husbands.

"So it goes. You may recall the moving picture, 'The Birth of a Nation.' The censors were implored to censor and forbid that film on the grounds that it libeled a helpless race. Well, the board in that time had been talking things over and had reached a pretty broad philosophical conclusion. This conclusion was that it would resolutely refuse to stand guard on behalf of any local or sectional pride, or on behalf of any special faction or race.

"For, you see, the moving picture occupies a unique field of its own. It is made to-day, and to-morrow it is speeding through the mails to every city in America, perhaps to China, to Europe. Each film is made for a universal audience—for grown-ups, for children, for men, for people of all nations. It would be easy to specialize on the needs of children—and censor strictly for the child. But the child is only 10 per cent. of the average moving picture audience, so such censorship would end in wild confusion.

"Right after the film, 'The Birth of a Nation,' was permitted to be shown, along came a war film that was calculated to stir up riots between Franco-Americans and German-Americans.

"The censors—with that inconsistence I spoke of before—nullified their action in the case of 'The Birth of a Nation' and forbade this war film. The film makers protested, and the license commissioner threatened to withdraw the license of any house showing the film. The film maker went to court—and there the case rests now.

"Ex-Gov. Sulzer posed for a film in which he gave his version of the long fight ending in his impeachment as governor. The story indicated that a political boss was responsible. The boss was shown dominating legislators and voters. Finally the boss was shown in command at the impeachment court. As judges of the Court of Appeals sat on this court, the film was clearly a libel on them and a reflection on the judiciary as a whole. The whole last reel of that film was censored and eliminated."

Mr. Collier was careful to point out in his chatting about the time limit kept on scenes of feminine allurements and of embraces that he was recording only the opinion arrived at by vote of all the censors, and was not expounding personal moral views.

He moved from the discussion of the past of the censors to their future, and there he struck at one of the big problems of the moving picture trade, as he sees it. This problem was the problem of the universal audience.

The man who likes the classics can't go to a theatre and see Tolstoi's Kreutzer Sonata without being liable to get horse-play films before and after it. Mr. Collier wants to see the refinement of the moving picture business until you get the selected and grouped films—the selection of films with the peculiar tastes of particular audiences in mind. At present films are shipped and moved pretty much in bulk, one central "exchange" serving about the same films to all of the houses in that district. It makes a situation similar to what theatres would be if all houses played repertory companies, and exhibited a dozen companies to an audience each night in fifteen-minute performances. To work out some plan whereby the giving of carefully selected film plays may be possible is a task that now absorbs Mr. Collier's attention. As to censoring itself, Mr. Collier believes it may easily hinder that which it sets out to help—the making of the films so that they give life in greater abundance." He fears the moral effect of making any subject taboo and secretive, so that it puts in countenance just what it seeks to put out of countenance.

So he is pioneering toward the new field of furnishing selected films to selected audiences, and meanwhile the National Board of Censorship goes along in its more or less standardized task. The board, in capturing improper films, is made up of representatives of seven different civic bodies. It has thirty-two members, keeps 120 men and women busy as censors, and employs five secretaries. It works in collaboration with 450 different social organizations in cities other than New York.

Men and Things

A "STONE MAN" writes that the organization about which there has been, and continues to be, what I called in commenting on it, "much vague and mysterious talk," is not a political body. He declares, in effect, that it is a religious body, that its purpose is to "maintain the Protestant religion in this country," and that it is not under the direction of any politicians. In somewhat coarse terms he does express the opinion, however, that there are too many Catholics who are running for office, although he insists that a recent statement from George Wharton Pepper as to the religious but non-political character of the "club" is wholly correct.

* * * *

Incidentally, it may also be noted that at a time when this term Stone Man is much talked of in Philadelphia, there happens to be another which has also been an object of a good deal of curious attention—the name of A. Stoneman, or Austin Stoneman, in a pictorial "drama." With that name there is passed off on the public what purports to be a representation of Thaddeus Stevens, of Pennsylvania, in both his public and private life, during the comparatively brief period when that eminent but somewhat unconventional Radical Republican was the principal leader of the House of Representatives at Washington. But if the "Stonemen" in the "club" in this city have been misrepresented, as they say they have been, they have little reason to complain as compared with this Stoneman of fiction and the motion-picture stage, for no libel could be more grossly invented and more mischievously cast into the public mind than the one which the eccentricities, the weaknesses and the follies in the character of the statesman and parliamentary leader have been so exaggerated that the supposed likeness of Stoneman to him is really nothing but a distortion.

* * * *

Thaddeus Stevens was no saint, nor did he pose as one, and there was much in his political ideas and conduct that was unwise and also hurtful to the country. But it is clear, from all that is known of him in his public character, that he was not the fool, marplot and villain pictured in the show in question. There would be little occasion for adverting at all to the misrepresentation, grotesque as it often is in a hardonic spirit, if the identity of the old Commoner were more concealed, and especially if it were not announced as part of a "historically correct" performance. As a matter of fact, however, much of the representation of Stevens is wholly false, and most of what is true in it is so mixed with mere imagination and fiction that it is not only nearly valueless, but is constantly misleading to the majority of spectators, there being perhaps few who have more than a hazy knowledge of his personality and career.

* * * *

As for the general representation, it is on a par with the representation of Stoneman, or, rather, of Stevens. In the midst of some scenes and events, which either never happened or to which he bore no relation, he is made to appear as a degraded and abominable creature, utterly deserving of being loathed. A like impression as to the colored race also must be produced in many minds by like methods of picturing horrors and crimes, together with the operations of the Ku Klux Klan as avengers. All these things, so far as there is a basis of fact in them, are long past and gone; it is difficult to see any good which could come of them as a public show, and there is much reason for believing that they are pernicious in both their direct and indirect consequences on audiences, and, therefore, on the public at large. But when so much of the show is false or bogus in the mixing of highly seasoned imagination with fact, it should be resented, in regard to its subject matter, as an imposition also. If there is a justification at all for the existence of a Board of Censors, it would be in the exclusion of such an entertainment, or, at least, of the second half of the one in question, with its hideous and revolting brutalities.

* * * *

Dear Penn: Your article on "The German Vote" would be of incalculable value to the great army of the naturalized American citizens who were born in Germany if it could be given country-wide publicity.

It is high time that the so-called German-Americans made a concerted effort to repudiate the un-American sentiments publicly uttered by the self-appointed mouthpiece of this class of citizens. Are the Hexamers and Timms et al so dense that they cannot see that they are doing an irreparable injury to the truly loyal and sincere naturalized citizens who were born in Germany? Will it be necessary to expose these agitators to put a stop to their evil? Must it be shown that they are keeping up their agitation for self advantage and to hold their positions in their organizations? Some of those who shout loudest in their ranks are not even German by birth and, but for the fact that their respective businesses thrive in German-American circles and that they can only appease their insatiable appetite for vainglory in these clans, would be hidebound activists.

Their seditious utterings have already been too harmful. They have kept public officials from being renominated because of their German names. They have given impetus to a movement against all things of German origin, for they have created a doubt in former loyal Americans' minds as to the loyalty of the German-Americans, should it come to a test.

between a pastor a[illegible] the [illegible]

[illegible] to follow the example of two prominent types namely, Carl Schurz, of the West, and William Steinway, of the East, both of whom were the leaders in all things Teutonic in their respective sections. My association with both permits me to express judgment. Carl Schurz never lost an opportunity to admonish his compatriots against the detriment of clannishness. Even in his great newspaper, which at the time was the national organ of the German-Americans who openly rebelled against the Government of the Fatherland and had to flee from it to save their necks.

William Steinway was always in the lead of their public affairs in New York and the entire East. And invariably he preached the doctrine that they become Americanized in all particulars, as rapidly as the law allowed and their intellect would permit.

Need I quote the elder Henry Villard and others who have always made it a point to urge their compatriots to forget that they were Germans once upon a time and come to a full realization of the great privilege to be Americans, equal to every other American and free from doing homage to the autocracy as they did in the land of their birth? Do not all naturalized German-Americans understand that they foreswore allegiance to their former European potentate, ruler, etc.? Did they take that oath falsely, or did they mean to keep it under all conditions?

If the German-Americans wish to elevate their standing as citizens of this country, they should organize a society in opposition to the German-American Alliance and their ilk and proclaim to the world that they are done with Germany and are American in every fibre of their bodies, one and all, without deviation or equivocation.

Let us sympathize with out enslaved brethren in Germany, who must follow the commands of their lords and masters, for they have no other alternative, but let us shout "Amerika Ueber Alles," and stand by President Wilson in his endeavor to maintain genuine neutrality, and let us tell our fellow German-Americans that we swore to be Americans and foreswore being Germans. If we do this we will keep the respect of our fellow citizens; if we do not, the day will not be far distant when we will be on the defensive as to our sincerity in having taken the oath when we became naturalized citizens. The choice is ours. Will we be respected citizens or suspected citizens.

A Genuine German-American.

* * * *

[illegible]ORD (Conn.) TIMES
OCT. 1, 1915

39

No notice taken of anonymous communications.

HELPING THE PRESS AGENT.

We trust that whatever decision may be reached by Mayor Lawler as to the propriety of permitting the display of the moving picture drama, "The Birth of a Nation," in this city, will be accepted without the conviction on the part of any colored or white citizens that some sort of a demonstration is necessary. At the best such demonstration will be mere playing into the hands of the press agent.

We do not suggest that Mr. Poli or any of Mr. Poli's employees have inspired the protests made here in Hartford (to the marked increase of Hartford interest in the production) but we do know that in other cities strong feeling against both "The Birth of a Nation" and its mediocre predecessor on the legitimate stage, "The Clansman," were carefully and energetically promoted by agents acting apparently in the interests of the producing firms. Philadelphia has managed to develop two riots, Boston has had a hysterical scene and other communities have felt inspired to become picturesquely exercised. It is obvious that any producer can well afford the loss caused by suppression in a few cities by reason of the interest stimulated in others.

As for the qualities of "The Birth of a Nation," it is, as shown at the Liberty theater in New York, a moving picture play of unusual elaborateness and doubtless of much interest to those who are interested in moving picture plays. After it has pictured more or less convincingly sundry battles in the Civil war and the assassination of Abraham Lincoln (by a white man) it shows a large number of negroes engaged in the violence which history says was common to the reconstruction period. It also shows the activities of white men who encourage this violence and in some instances give it their personal direction. There is a good deal of moving picture bloodshed, black and white, and an unusual number of moving picture thrillers.

But it doesn't seem like anything sensible people of any color to be excited about.

P. Ledger Phila. Oct

"BIRTH OF A NATION"

A Correspondent Who Thinks the Film Play "Socially Uplifting"

To the Editor of Public Ledger:

Sir—It was with deep regret that I read the strong assertions of W. W. Keen in regard to the "Birth of a Nation." If I may venture to express my opinion, I would say that this picture is socially uplifting. While there are many things which may be condemned as promoting animosity and race hatred, it is well to become acquainted with them in order to behold this greatest of all problems from the right angle.

To the eternal credit of the negro let it be said that he never once took advantage of his helpless charges during the war, when his master was away fighting against his freedom, and it was only when his ignorant and passionate nature was imposed upon by the "Carpet Baggers," and he was used as a tool in the hands of such men as Thaddeus Stevens, to forward certain political schemes, that the demon of revenge burst loose, and he endeavored to retaliate upon his former masters for the years of servitude which he had suffered. It was to protect themselves that the white men formed the Ku-Klux Klan, and because of the overwhelming numbers of the negroes, they were forced to have recourse to many acts which, under present conditions, shock the morals of society. The proud Southerner refused to bow his head under the yoke of that nation which put negro soldiers over him, and not only deprived him of his right to vote, but treated him more like a dog than like a citizen. It was then that he was forced to take the law into his own hands to protect himself and his family.

All this is set forth in the annals of history, but does not the picture also show it? The play does not act altogether against the negro, but against those whites, not deserving the name of men, who imposed upon and deluded him.

STANLEY A. WALTERS.

West Philadelphia, October 1, 1915.

P. Ledger Phila. Oct 3

"THE BIRTH OF A NATION"

A Great Theme Handled Crudely and in Complete Disregard of Facts

To the Editor of Public Ledger:

Sir—I do not know any production which handles a great theme more crudely and cruelly than "The Birth of a Nation," now on exhibition at the Forrest Theatre, treats the difficult and painful subject of reconstruction in the South. The task of reconstructing the Union would have been difficult under any circumstances. War is not the kind of bloodletting that lessens fever. To bind up and unite into one nation two sections that have fought one another requires patience, forbearance, magnanimity, and many great graces. Think how hard it has been to knead Ulster into the lump of Ireland and make that island one. Remember how prolonged the alienation of Poland from Russia, both Slavonic peoples.

In the case of the South, the presence of the negro makes the undertaking infinitely more difficult. There were radicals in the North who idealized the colored man and failed to appreciate his real condition, and there were radicals in the South who thought that under new forms the substance of the old relation could be retained. There were people who hated the Southern whites and aimed to humiliate them through the blacks, and there were poor whites in the South who hated the blacks and were glad to terrorize and lord it over them. Fearful mistakes were made, and great sufferings were undergone by many people. It is a sad chapter in our national annals. No one can tell the story rightly who does not appreciate how noble some of the idealists were and how brave and steadfast were some of those who adhered to a past order. Above all, no one can understand the South who does not grasp the fact that the colored people were almost universally loyal to their old masters and protected their women and children. Now, "The Birth of a Nation" is founded on a play that does not treat the colored people with the affection and sympathy that was felt for them by their own masters. That play, "The Clansman," was not permitted in Norfolk, Va., some years ago. The authorities at that Southern city aimed at reconciling and not alienating the white and black races. This moving picture show at the Forrest has many untrue touches, such as the black guerrillas shooting up the Southern village during the war, and those fearful scenes of riot and attack on a cabin, comparable rather to an assault of Sioux on some frontier settlement many years ago rather than to the attitude of the colored people to the old masters, whose manners they copied so admiringly and whose personal ascendency was so powerfully felt by them.

It would be an awful thing, at this day, in Ireland to enact in moving pictures the horrors perpetrated either by the conquering Saxon on the original population or by the Celts in their uprisings against the victors who confiscated their soil. What Ireland wants is union, obtained by forgetting and forgiving. In the same way no good purpose is secured by making heroes of Ku-Klux and lessening the horrors of such secret organizations that so readily lend themselves to evil, and are remedies so desperate that only the strongest constitutions can recover from them. But what particularly concerns me is the untrue and unfriendly portraiture of the colored people. They have bad men among them. But we must not judge them by their worst, just as the white race should not be judged by Frank and Jesse James, or those fearful guerrillas that under the guise of loyalty to North or South, as the case might be, did such dastardly deeds in the border warfare in Arkansas.

It is well that the Northern people should learn something of the problems of the South, but it is not well that they should have their sympathies alienated from the colored people, of whom Herschell V. Johnson, of Georgia, testified at the close of the war: "Whilst you strong men were in the tented field, far from unprotected wives and children, the negro cultivated their lands, tended their households and rendered all servile observances as when surrounded by the usual controlling agencies. As the governing class, individually and collectively, we owe them unbounded kindness." Alexander H. Stephens also bore witness in February, 1866: "Even in the hour of danger and peril they were in the main true to you and yours. To them we owe a debt of gratitude as well as acts of kindness." It's a fearful perversion of the relation between that race and the white race to have colored women participating in an insult of a most serious character to a white girl. The whole performance has many false and untrue touches.

CARL E. GRAMMER.

The Bulletin
Date 10-2-15

THREW BRICKS INTO BOX-OFFIC

Negroes Riot at Theater Where "Na[illegible]tion" Film Is Being Exhibited

Philadelphia, Sept. 24.—Three arrests we made and a dozen negroes were badly bettere by 150 policemen the night of September 2 in front of the Forrest Theater, Broad and Sa som streets, after bricks had been thrown in the theater box-office as a protest against t further production of The Birth of a Nation pi tures, entering their third week on show her During the day printed notices were distribut by the negroes, calling on their adherents meet at the Forrest to make a dignified protes By the time the house was ready to recei patrons several hundred negro men and wom had assembled, and were reasonably quiet un the brick-throwing began, followed by a char of the policemen into the crowd with the r sult indicated.

The negroes claim the showing of The Birth of a Nation pictures is an insult to Afro-Amer-icans, and appealed to the Mayor to forbid it. The film was passed by the State Censors some time ago, and their decisions having been upheld in the courts on various occasions Director of Public Safety Porter was unable to interfere. It is significant that the arrested and injured negroes are of the educated classes, a lawyer, two ministers and several doctors and institutional heads being among the number. The Birth of a Nation is billed for four weeks more at the Forrest. It has drawn capacity houses.

INGFIELD [illegible]
OCT. 2, 1915

FIGHT IS JUST BEGINNING OVER "BIRTH OF A NATION"

George B. Miller After Petition to Have Film Shown Here

"The Birth of a Nation" fight is just beginning. George B. Miller, who was turned down by the selectmen of West Springfield has begun working to land the film in this city. Mayor Stacy's previous refusal to sanction the production does not worry George. A force of canvassers to get names on a gigantic petition asking the mayor to reconsider his decision will start work in Springfield early to-morrow morning. The petition is expected to assume the desired proportions within a day or two, so that it can be presented to the mayor by the middle of the week.

Mr Miller rejoices in the action of the West Side selectmen in letting him know where he stands so early in the game. "I'm perfectly satisfied," said he last night. "I feel that anyone who fails to live up to his first agreement would fail to live up to a second one." The West Springfield officials by their special meeting Friday night spoiled a lot of Mr Miller's plans, just the same. He had the names of 275 West Springfield people out of 305 he had called up over the telephone who he says were in favor of showing the film. He is also authority for the statement that nearly 200 people had called up A. F. Royce of the West Springfield selectmen and asked him not to back down from the stand originally taken by the board.

The opposition of the Negroes to the film is easily explained by Mr Miller. He says it is all part of the scheme of those financially interested in the film to help advertise it. When such opposition does not develop of itself some is hired. "As a matter of fact," says Mr Miller, "there is absolutely nothing in the film for the Negroes to object to." Figures are Mr Miller's strong point. Says he, "Ninety per cent of the people of Springfield want to see that film." Meanwhile he is picking up some more free advertising for the show he is putting on up in Holyoke for two weeks beginning the 18th.

[illegible] of a Nation [illegible]
[illegible]llowed to be show[illegible]

OLUMBUS (O.) JOURNAL
OCT. 3, 1915

BATTLE IS LIKELY ON NATION PICTURE

Owners of "Birth of a Nation" Expected to Fight in the Supreme Court.

Issue Probably Limited to "Reasonableness" of Ohio Censors' Stand.

That there will be a hard-fought battle in the supreme court in attempt to overrule the state motion picture censor board, which refused to approve the dramatic production, "The Birth of a Nation," practically is assured.

Though no direct declaration of its intention to test the board's ruling in court has been announced by the New York company producing the picture, such announcement is expected at any time. It is believed that agents of the New York company will return to Columbus early this week to press the issue.

In Supreme Court.

Such an action against the censor board can be brought only in the supreme court and in all probability will take the form of a mandamus to compel the board to approve the film, if not in its entirety at least with elimination of the features criticised.

Mrs. Maude Murray Miller, minority member of the censor board, voted to approve the film with certain eliminations.

Should a mandamus suit be undertaken, speedy adjustment is assured by reason of the fact that such appeals from rulings of the censor board are given preference on the court calendar over all other actions excepting election cases and cases coming up from the public utilities commission. There are only a few of these exception cases on the supreme court docket, so that a mandamus suit in the "Birth of a Nation" issue would be up for hearing almost immediately after its filing.

Two Complaint Grounds.

Two grounds of complaint may be made in such an action, that the order of the censor board is "unreasonable or unlawful." In the proposed case the "unreasonableness" of the censor board's order probably will be made the basis if the suit.

That the censor board has wide latitude in passing upon the suitability of a film for exhibition is undisputed, and for this reason the complainants probably will have to present overwhelming proof that the board overstepped its authority in reasonableness before a reversal of its order will be sanctioned by the court.

The motion picture censor law does not specify what classes of pictures shall not be approved, but specifies what classes of pictures shall be approved, and these are left solely to the judgment and discretion of the censors.

In designating what picture shall be approved, section 4 of the censor law says:

> Only such films as are, in the judgment and discretion of the board of censors, moral, educational or amusing and harmless character shall be passed and approved by such board.

Other States Approve.

Though the "Birth of a Nation" film was disapproved by the censor board ostensibly on the ground that it was deficient in moral attributes, it probably will be claimed by its producers that it is of an educational value, marred by sufficient scenes of immorality to justify the board in banning its production in Ohio. The fact that official censor boards in other states and cities have never questioned the propriety of the picture also, probably will be urged as proof that the Ohio board acted without judgment and discretion.

The dramatic qualities of the picture were fully recognized by the Ohio board. In his public statement of reasons why the picture was rejected Chairman Williams of the board said: "It will not be disputed that it has great dramatic value and is stupendous from the standpoint of camera achievement. On the other hand, by no stretch of the imagination can we get away from the fact that it reflects unfavorably upon the colored race."

In case a mandamus writ is sought against the censor board, the board must be given 10 days in which to answer and file its transcript of the proceedings. When this is done the issues are completed and the case will be ready to be heard by the court.

SFIELD (Mass.) EAGLE
OCT. 2 1915

697 eyes. You know.

WEST SPRINGFIELD BARS "THE BIRTH OF A NATION"

But Film May Be Shown in Holyoke.

WEST SPRINGFIELD, OCT. 2.—"The Birth of a Nation" will not be shown in this town. Action by the board of selectmen at a special meeting last night settled the question that has been agitating the town for the last week. George B. Miller of Springfield will not get the town hall or any other hall in town for the production of the sensational films.

John J. Lysaght, chairman of the board, gave as his reasons for prohibiting the picture the facts that the board did not believe in opposing the churches in a matter of this kind and that unexpected opposition had also developed because of the interference the proposed matinee performance would have on the work of the high school. A petition had been prepared in regard to this phase of the question and was about to be circulated by the school children among their parents.

Arrangements are being made by Mr. Miller, however, to show the film in Holyoke. Mayor Woods of that city said yesterday he saw no objection to it and would not refuse to sign a license for it there. Mr. Miller plans to secure the city hall and run the film at least two weeks in Holyoke. There are only a few colored people in Holyoke and little opposition to its appearance there is expected.

"BIRTH OF A NATION" WINS INJUNCTION IN ST. LOUIS.

After many injunction suits and an arrest, the managers of the "Birth of a Nation" have won the right to exhibit the film without further interference from the police. On September 17th, Walter Sanford, manager of the Olympic theater, and John Brethany, manager of the Birth of a Nation company, were summoned to the police court on a charge of exhibiting an improper picture. The summons was a result of a complaint from negroes living in the 17th ward. Judge Hennings said he had seen the play, and believes it teaches a moral. In a written opinion handed down by the Judge, he says:

"The best evidence against the contention of the Board of Police Commissioners and the Morality Squad that the picture is immoral and will create hatred, race prejudice and ill-will, is the fact that, although the production has been running daily for three weeks, there has not been, so far as the evidence shows, the slightest indication of any such untoward condition in our city." Many affidavits were filed in support of the play by ministers, bank presidents, newspapermen and all the principal dramatic critics in St. Louis.

STON HERALD
OCT. 5, 1915

the fringe of the [illegible] league.

NEGROES DENOUNCE WILSON AND CURLEY

President Wilson was denounced for his stand on segregation among federal employes and Mayor Curley was scored for "allowing" the production of "The Birth of a Nation" in a resolution adopted last night by several hundred Negroes at a mass meeting of the New England Suffrage League, at the Twelfth Baptist Church. The ballot was declared to be the weapon of defence of the Negro against humiliation at the hands of the white race.

At the afternoon session, the Rev. M. A. N. Shaw urged the concentration of Negroes in Boston from the southern states in order to bring about the defeat of Mayor Curley. This, Mr. Shaw pointed out, would be a fitting retaliation for the mayor's failure to stop the film presentation of "The Birth of a Nation."

He declared that "Anglo-Saxonism" would be exterminated as divine punishment in the present war because of the wrongs inflicted on the Negro by the white man. Negroes were urged to abandon the "bow-the-neck-and-bend-the-back" attitude and to organize to obtain their rights.

William M. Trotter, president of the league, was re-elected at the evening meeting, and spoke on race segregation in the national treasury and postoffice departments. Other speakers were the Rev. Walter Gay of Hartford, the Rev. Jacob H. Wiley of Providence and the Rev. W. W. Ryan of West Newton.

WHAT IS ASKED FROM THOSE RESPONSIBLE FOR "THE BIRTH OF A NATION," BEING PLAYED IN PHILADELPHIA

RTFORD (Conn.) [illegible]
OCT. [illegible]

on Monday was damaged by German artillery.

MAYOR HASN'T DECIDED, YET

"The Birth of a Nation" will probably be shown at the Palace theater, this city, next week. The film, which is the noted D. W. Griffith's production, founded on Thomas Dixon's story, "The Clansman," and in 12 parts, was viewed in Bridgeport yesterday by the mayor and his secretary, who motored down to get first hand impression of the photoplay.

Protests galore have been received by the mayor, not only from colored residents, but from others and many of them prominent. Whether these protests have been inspired by the enterprising press agent is not at all unlikely, but even so, according to those who have seen it, the impression seems to be that the negro is seen in an unfavorable light.

Two mayors saw the film yesterday Mayor Joseph H. Lawler and Mayor Clifford B. Wilson. Sylvester Z. Poli, theatrical magnate, who has arranged for the film to be shown in his houses in New England, was also on hand. Mayor Lawler made no comment directly after he had seen the film and today said he would announce his decision probably within 48 hours or less.

It is estimated that about 2,000 people saw the production yesterday in Bridgeport. The days of half a century ago were recalled in watching the events as they transpired, staged with thousands of actors and costing a fortune to produce. Music plays an important part in the staging of the production. Producers claim "The Birth oof a Nation" is historically correct. There was little applause as the big production was shown, reel after reel, in demonstration, hardly of any kind, the audience appearing to prefer to admire quietly the magnitude of the moving picture. Several more written protests against the film were received yesterday by the mayor.

SPRINGFIELD (Mass.) MORN. UNION
MORNING, OCT. 5, 1915

NEGROES WOULD DEFEAT CURLEY

Plan to Import Men from South to Pack Boston Considered at Convention.

[Special to The Union.]

BOSTON, Oct. 4—Boston is to be packed by imported Negro voters in order to defeat Mayor Curley for his failure to prevent the exhibition of "The Birth of a Nation" photo play if the threats made today, at the convention of the New England Equal Suffrage League, a Negro organization, are carried out.

Speaking at the meeting in the Twelfth Baptist Church in the South End, Rev. M. A. N. Shaw proposed concentration here of Negroes from Mississippi, Alabama and other Southern States. The Mayor was criticized for harsh language for his tolerance of a film that glorified the Ku Klux Klan and represented the Negro as a ruffian. This is the photo play that caused a riot at one of its first presentations here. Several dozen Negroes were arrested and later Negro voters unsuccessfully sought legislative action to prohibit it. It has been running in Boston for months and now without the slightest trouble. Springfield has prohibited it.

William Monroe Trotter, editor of the Guardian, and a leader in the first demonstration against the play, is president of the league. He was arrested and struck by a policeman in a riot at the Tremont Theater. In his address today he said that the outstanding feature of the color question since the league's last meeting was the aggression of the white South in pushing color prejudice into the North. This was shown, he said, by the "Jim Crowing" and race segregation of the national Treasury and Postoffice Departments and the indorsement of this move by President Wilson, a "Southerner." The President told Trotter not to come to the White House again after he led a vigorous protest.

In his address today Trotter said the photo play depicted the enfranchised Negro as revengeful and lustful. The Leo Frank case, he said, showed the danger of plays glorifying the Ku Klux Klan and the menace of race prejudice against citizens of native birth, who have come bravely to the country's defense in war. He complimented the Negro voters who helped defeat Senator Andrew Doyle for his support of the film in the Legislature, and urged Boston Negroes to defeat Senator Martin Hays.

The future is gloomy for the white race, according to Shaw. In a fiery speech he said:

"God has decreed that the Anglo-Saxon race shall die. Men are seeking the causes of the present war on the ground, in the air and under the ground. But the cause lies at the great white throne of God, a God disgusted with the oppression of weaker races. The Anglo-Saxon race will be exterminated because of the wrong inflicted on the Negro by the white man."

Shaw predicted that Japan would invade the United States and mark another step in the punishment of a dominant race.

"Villa and Carranza," he went on, "are shooting up Americans, and yet what is done? Nothing. Yet we send troops to take charge of Haiti."

JUST VIGOROUS PROTEST

"The Birth of a Nation" Mass Meeting at Olympia Theatre Last Sunday Interests Thousands of Representative Citizens Opposed to Play

STRONG AND POINTED RESOLUTIONS ADOPTED

An audience of fully 2000 representative Afro-Americans and white citizens comfortably filled the Olympia Theatre Sunday afternoon, which was a protest meeting against that infamous photoplay, "The Birth of a Nation." The meeting was called to order by Dr. A. B. Jackson, who delievered a brief address, informing the large audience what was the object and purpose of the gathering. Dr. Jackson then introduced Hon. John O. Sheatz, ex-State Senator, who presided. Mr. Sheatz did not mince words in denouncing the unjust and unfair misrepresentation which the photoplay represented. All the speakers that followed were strong in their denunciation of this most iniquitous slander upon the Afro-American race vanity in this country. It was denounced as a base libel upon a race type in thi country which no history would verify as a particle of truth. Each speaker, both white as well as colored, appealed to the thoughtful, intelligent and fair-minded white citizens

HON. JOHN D. SHEATZ,
Ex-State Senator of Pennsylvania, Who Presided at the Mammoth Protest Meeting.

to help drive such a diabolical exhibition from our city.

The speakers included Bishop Levi J. Coppin, Bishop J. S. Caldwell, Rev. J. I. Lowe, Mr. Ellwood Heacock, Attorney G. Edward Dickerson, Rev. W. F. Graham and Dr. William A. Sinclair, who prepared and read the resolutions, which were unanimously adopted by a standing vote.

Resolutions Adopted.

The citizens of Philadelphia, in mass-meeting assembled at the Olympia Theatre, September 26, 1915, set forth and declare that:

The white and colored citizens of Philadelphia have been living together as neighbors and friends in peaceful accord for generations. Since the emancipation of the Afro-Americans 50 years ago, neither race has been inflamed against the other. Good will, good fellowship and the helping hand have ever been the coin of exchange between the races. Good citizens cannot approve or tolerate the preachment of race hatred or race prejudice, whether through the Drama, Moving Pictures or otherwise, for this means the destruction of friendly relations and good order.

About nine years ago the Rev. Tom Dixon, a man from the South, and who is a disgrace to the Southern name, and who apparently has stolen the livery of Heaven to serve the devil in, brought a Drama to this city known as "The Clansman." Its production was calculated to inflame race hatred and break the peace of the people of this community. The play was promptly suppressed by Mayor Weaver. The Rev. Dixon appealed to the Court. Judge Sulzberger decided against him and he was driven from Philadelphia. About four years later he returned, but the Director of Public Safety, Mr. Clay, acting under Judge Sulzberger's decision, chased him out of the city, although a large number of tickets had been sold.

With all the persistence of his satanic majesty, whose servant he is and whom he diligently serves, he has come back again with a Photoplay known as "The Birth of a Nation," based on "The Clansman." This play is destroying the peace of the community, engendering race hatred, inciting to riots and outbreaks against public order; libelling, insulting and inflaming the colored people, and is leading to serious breaches of the peace.

The white people of this city can and should guarantee to their colored fellow-citizens the full protection of the law. They should not allow a degenerate so-called minister to invade this city and through a wicked and shameless photoplay of race hatred break the bonds of good will and peace which have always existed between the races in this City of Brotherly Love.

It is for the love of money that the Rev. Tom Dixon is selling his soul to Satan.

The colored people appeal to their white fellow-citizens to rise in their mighty power and suppress this play and again drive this degenerate minister from our fair city. They appeal to the white people to boycott the play and also to demand that the police power of the city be invoked to put an end to this infamy. The play is based on an absolute and unqualified falsehood. The last of the Southern States passed from Republican that is colored and white or mixed control, to Democratic or wholly white control in 1876. Since this date the colored vote has never been even a factor in any of the State elections in the seceding States of the South. So the so-called Reconstruction period closed in 1876, when the white people of the South assumed absolute control of all the State governments of the South. From the close of the civil war in 1865 to the close of the Reconstruction period in 1876 not a single charge of assault was brought against any colored man in any part of the South. The white people of the South universally testify to the loyalty and faithfulness of the colored race to their families during the dark period of the civil war. The Ku Klux Klans operated from shortly after the close of the war until 1876. They were not organized to protect white women. No white woman was menaced. They were organized to overthrow the Republican party in the South and efface the Negro as voters. The first charge of assault ever made against a colored man was against Sam Hose, in 1890, 14 years after the close of the reconstruction period and 14 years after the Ku Klux Klans had ceased to exist. No colored Lieutenant Governor of a Southern State ever attempted to force a white woman. This is a deliberate invention calculated to kindle bitter race hatred and do immeasurable injury to the colored people today. No such scenes as described happened in any Southern Legislature. Riots at elections imputed to Negroes as pictured are horrible libels. Rioting, midnight riding and murdering were all the dastardly work of the Ku Klux Klans.

As to the Ku Klux Klans as a body, Mr. Blaine in his "Twenty Years in Congress," speaking of them, says: "In prosecuting their purposes these clans and organizations hesitated at no cruelty, were deterred by no consideration of the law or humanity. They rode by night, were disguised by masks, were armed as freebooters. They whipped, maimed or murdered the victims of their wrath. White men were visited with punishment of excessive cruelty." "Murder with them was an occupation, and perjury was a pastime."

Some of the members of the Ku Klux Klans were captured, indicted and put on trial. A number were arraigned before the United States Court in South Carolina. The white people of the State engaged the most eminent counsel for their defense. Their leading lawyer was the noted and learned Reverdy Johnson, of Maryland, who, after hearing the evidence, much of it confessions by the Ku Klux Klan themselves, his honest nature revolting, refused to make a plea for his clients, but left them to the mercy of the Court, saying: "I have listened with unmixed horror to some of the testimony which has been brought before you. The outrages proved are shocking to humanity; they admit of neither excuse nor justification; they violate every obligation which law and nature impose upon men; they show that the parties engaged were brutes insensible to the obligations of humanity and religion. The day will come, however, if it has not already arrived, when they will deeply lament it. Even if justice shall not overtake them, there is one tribunal from which there is no hope of escape. It is their own judgment: that tribunal which sits in the breast of every living man; that small, still voice that thrills through the heart, the soul and the mind, and as it speaks gives happiness or torture; the voice of the conscience, the voice of God. If it has not already spoken to them in tones which startled them to the enormity of their conduct, I trust, in the mercy of heaven, that that voice will speak before they shall be called above to account for the transactions of this world; that it will so speak as to make them penitent, and that, trusting in the dispensations of heaven, whose justice is dispensed with mercy, when they shall be brought before the Bar of their great tribunal, so to speak, that incomprehensible tribunal, there will be found in the fact of their penitence or their previous lives some grounds upon which God may say, "Pardon."

The Rev. Tom Dixon in his writings and on the platform seems to proudly boast that his father was a Clansman. The irony of it! The pity of it! Mr. Blaine in his "Twenty Years in Congress" says of the Clansmen: "Murder with them was an occupation, and perjury was a pastime." Their own leading attorney, Reverdy Johnson, when they were on trial before a Court of law, said of them that they "were brutes, insensible to the obligations of humanity and religion." There might not be, therefore, any serious grounds for surprise that such a father should beget such a son. Streams do not rise higher than their source.

REV. W. F. GRAHAM,
Who Delivered an Address at the Protest Meeting.

The mass-meeting in the name of plus a hundred thousand colored citizens of Philadelphia, orderly in their lives, hard-toiling, many of them taxpayers, all of them imbued with just pride in the honor, good name, prosperity and happiness of our great city and all of its people, would mostly earnestly implore the Christian, patriotic and liberty-loving white people of the community to intervene and save their colored fellow-citizens from further injury and degradation through this libelous, insulting, infamous race-hatred-breeding photoplay.

RT. REV. J. S. CALDWELL,
Bishop A. M. E. Zion Church, Who Addressed the Great Protest Meeting.

TOM DIXON A LIAR

The "Birth of a Nation" has completed its fourth week at the Forrest Theatre against the protest of many of our citizens. The pictures show a Lieut. Governor, a colored man who has been elected through the influence of the carpet baggers. He has a law enacted to permit intermarriage between black and white people, then tries to win the heart of the daughter of his white friend, who is in love with a Southern Colonel. She rejects him and he attempts to force his attentions, when the Southern colonel and a band of Clansmen rescue her.

This is one of the many objectionable parts shown. The only colored Lieut. Governor we have had is Mr. Pinchback, and we challenge the author of the Clansman—"Birth of a Nation"—to prove that Mr. Pinchback is guilty of what is charged in the pictures. On the contrary, hundreds of young colored girls have been forced to submit to the brutal animal nature of some of the best, so called Southern gentlemen, the result of that unlawful union we have thousands of mulattos in the South who bear the family resemblance of their white fathers. If the South hailed Abe Lincoln as its best friend why did the Southerners rebel. Tom Dixon is a liar.

[illegible] "The Birth of a Nation" is a pictured and spectacular melodrama on a colossal scale. As the first of its kind it has received extraordinary advertising. It is novel and unique and therefore the public wants to see it. But unless attractions as good as this are frequently staged, the old Olympic, one of the city's most notable landmarks, will yield to its environment, and instead of movie attractions like the present ones, in the near days to come, it may be a ten-cent picture house.

WALTER SANFORD IS ACQUITTED

Republican Oct. 7

Charge Based on Display of "The Birth of a Nation" Film Fails.

A jury in Judge Sanders court yesterday found Walter Sanford, manager of the Olympic Theater, not guilty of a charge of "displaying lewd, indecent and immoral pictures in connection with the production of "The Birth of a Nation."

The case was based on a scene in which a negro was shown pursuing a young white girl.

Evidence was produced by the defense to show that the negro, as portrayed in the picture, was so taken up with what he thought his equality with the white race, that he thought he could marry her and his advances were only an effort on his part to show his affection for her.

Detectives Chrismer and Campbell of the morality squad, who viewed the picture and passed on it favorably, were witnesses for Sanford. Richard Spamer of The Globe-Democrat, W. V. Brumby of The Republic and Raymond Walsh of The St. Louis Times testified in favor of the picture.

The suit follows the action of the Circuit Court some time ago granting an injunction prohibiting the Police Department from interfering with the producing of the picture.

[illegible] over month "The Birth of a Nation" allowed to be shown

MOTION PICTURE NEWS (New York City)
OCT. 9, 1915

INJUNCTION SUIT WON BY "NATION" IN ST. LOUIS

On September 20, after the "Birth of a Nation" had been showing for three weeks in St. Louis, Judge Hennings, in a written opinion, ordered an injunction restraining the Board of Police Commissioners there from interfering with the production of the feature at the Olympic theatre. The Judge said that the best evidence against the contentions of the Board of Police Commissioners and the Morality Squad, is the fact that although the feature had run more than three weeks, there had not been the slightest indication of trouble or such untoward conditions as were feared.

Referring to the scene in which Silas Lynch seeks to marry a white woman, Judge Hennings said:

"A number of States of the Union, including the state on our east (Illinois) permit such marriages. While opinions differ, and the law of Missouri prohibits such marriages, evidently the residents of states in which mixed marriages are permitted, and white people elsewhere, do not consider such intermarriages immoral. Affidavits filed by three ministers of the Gospel, the morality squad of the Police Department, educators, dramatic critics, professional and business men, and 866 cards signed by spectators to the effect that they found nothing immoral in the production, sustain the position that no race prejudice is engendered."

CTURE WORLD (N. Y. City)
OCT. 9, 1915

"BIRTH OF A NATION" WINS INJUNCTION IN ST. LOUIS.

After many injunction suits and an arrest, the managers of the "Birth of a Nation" have won the right to exhibit the film without further interference from the police. On September 17th, Walter Sanford, manager of the Olympic theater, and John Brethany, manager of the Birth of a Nation company, were summoned to the police court on a charge of exhibiting an improper picture. The summons was a result of a complaint from negroes living in the 17th ward. Judge Hennings said he had seen the play, and believes it teaches a moral. In a written opinion handed down by the Judge, he says:

"The best evidence against the contention of the Board of Police Commissioners and the Morality Squad that the picture is immoral and will create hatred, race prejudice and ill-will, is the fact that, although the production has been running daily for three weeks, there has not been, so far as the evidence shows, the slightest indication of any such untoward condition in our city." Many affidavits were filed in support of the play by ministers, bank presidents, newspaper men and all the principal dramatic critics in St. Louis.

TION PICTURE NEWS (New York City)

JUDGES UPHOLD EXHIBITOR IN SHOWING "NATION"

"The Birth of a Nation" is running in full blast in Pittsburgh, despite the fact that the police stated it could not be shown. A delegation of colored men and women appealed to the mayor and he ordered the police department to see that the pictures were not shown.

The Nixon theatre, Manager Thomas Kirke, Jr., was determined that the picture would be shown, and as he had advertised the picture thoroughly, he went ahead with his plans, and the result was that he opened the doors of the theatre and the picture was put on.

Mr. Kirke, feeling that the police would try to stop him, went to the Allegheny County courthouse and took the matter up with several of the judges on the bench, and the result was that he was told to run the picture, and should the police try to stop him they would grant an injunction against the police department and prevent them from interfering with the show.

MOTION PICTURE NEWS (New York City)

PLAY, WITH TITLE SIMILAR TO "NATION," RESTRAINED

Thomas Dixon, Jr., and the Epoch Producing Company, makers of the "Birth of a Nation" filed an injunction in the Circuit Court asking that the Cherokee theatre, Cherokee and Ohio avenue, St. Louis, be restrained from producing a play called "The Birth of Our Nation," which is based on "The Clansman," and was to be staged by a stock company. The petition claimed that the similarity in title and in production would cause great loss to the Epoch Company. Judge Kinsey granted the injunction answer and [illegible] proceedings. When [illegible] are completed and the [illegible] ady to be heard by the court.

OTION PICTURE NEWS (New York City)
OCT. 9, 1915

TORONTO CENSORS REFUSE TO BAR "BIRTH OF A NATION"

Coincident with the announcement that "The Birth of a Nation" would be shown at the Royal Alexandria theatre, Toronto, came the news that the colored people of the city would lodge a strenuous protest against its passing the Board of Censors. However, the board, after viewing the picture and discussing the situation, decided that "owing to the fact that the theme of the play had absolutely no National bearing, it was entirely unobjectionable."

Variety
Minneapolis
10-9-15.

FIGURES DO NOT LIE

Trenton, N. J., Oct. 1.—Twenty-one thousand people saw The Birth of a Nation film at the Trent Theater last week, according to the figures compiled at the box-office when the film closed on Saturday night. Further figuring revealed the fact that between ten and eleven thousand dollars jingled their merry way into the theater strong box. This establishes a new record for the Trent Theater, shattering all previous records to a point that seems almost exaggerated. The previous attendance record was hung up (for the city of Trenton) at the Taylor Opera House five seasons ago, when the Three Twins Company played to 18,000 people, for a gross of $7,500.

More than 4,000 prospective patrons to the "Nation" film were turned away during the week because of lack of space in the theater, and at that about 4,000 stood after buying their tickets. The total expense of advertising the film in the city papers (803 inches) was $550.

Variety
Minneapolis
10-9-15

OHIO CENSORS

Bar The Birth of a Nation

Columbus, O., Oct. 2.—The Birth of a Nation films will not be shown in Ohio, by reason of their rejection by the State Board of Moving Picture Censors. Following so closely the ban placed by the State Board upon Hypocrites, the Bosworth, Inc., film, this action by the Ohio censors is the subject of considerable unfavorable comment. It is denied in political quarters that there is an significance from an electoral standpoint in the Board's decision, although the reasons assigned are that The Birth of a Nation screens would "arouse race prejudice and perhaps cause unpleasant feeling between the North and South."

Those supposed to be in position to know say it is unlikely the owners of The Birth of a Nation pictures will appeal to the courts to overrule their rejection by the State Board, although Bosworth, Inc., is making a spirited fight on behalf of their production.

NEW YORK DRAMATIC MIRROR
OCT. 9

THE BIRTH OF A NATION BARRED OUT OF OHIO.

The State Board of Motion Picture Censors has rejected The Birth of a Nation, a widely discussed film depicting scenes in the South during the reconstruction period, and will not permit it to be exhibited within the State. Two reasons were assigned for turning down the film, that it would arouse prejudice against the colored race and that it might arouse prejudice between the North and South.

The film has been the storm center of discussion in many parts of the country where it has appeared. IN BOSTON AND PHILADELPHIA IT WAS SAID TO HAVE BEEN THE CAUSE OF NUMEROUS RACE RIOTS.

It is generally considered by motion picture people one of the biggest things of its kind yet attempted and shows on a large scale numerous scenes which are alleged to have occurred immediately following the Civil War. The Board of Censors have received numerous letters from colored people protesting against the proposed exhibition of the film in Ohio, and from other persons who feared it would cause racial trouble.

"The Birth of a Nation," is a dramatization of Thomas Dixon, Jr.'s, work, "The Clansman." It was booked for an early engagement in Cincinnati.

N PICTURE NEWS (New York City)
OCT. 9, 1915

The Jury Retires on The Two Dollar Picture

THE test of the two-dollar picture program now under way in New York, Chicago and Philadelphia, will be watched with a great deal of interest. Already there is much discussion within the trade.

* * *

ON the one hand, it is pointed out that the opening program in New York, while composed of excellent pictures, does not present the theme, the elaboration, the emotional interest, the exceptional bigness of that established two-dollar success, "The Birth of a Nation," which, besides being a motion picture, is also from all standpoints a great show; also that other program pictures quite as excellent as the Triangle opening program are being shown right along at competing theatres and at comparatively low prices.

* * *

ON the other hand, the opening of the Triangle program was preceded by the best advertising campaign the theatrical business in general has ever enjoyed. The Knickerbocker presentation was of a high order. This theatre and also the Studebaker and Chestnut street opera house have large followings among those who do not hesitate at two-dollar prices for their evening's entertainment. All these factors are very favorable, and, it must be said, the Triangle effort, elevating as it will the status of the pictures in the public eye, is a most commendable one

* * *

THE larger question, however, arises in many minds: is the motion picture logically a two-dollar entertainment? Is this its basic function?

In quality, yes. Few of us can conceive of the possibilities of this wonderfully elastic medium of expression. But does the future of the film lie along the thin line of high prices?

Or is it a remarkable facility, like the phonographic record, for conveying the highest quality of drama, literature and news to the millions at a price within their means. These are other questions, still to be answered.

* * *

THE present presentation of Triangle films is confined to chosen theatres in the large centres. The exhibitor is awaiting, with interest the proposition which will be made to the picture theatres of the country.

EW YORK (N. Y.) CLIPPER
OCT. 9

OHIO CENSORS REFUSE TO PASS GRIFFITH SPECTACLE.

SOLONS FEAR "BIRTH OF NATION" MIGHT CAUSE RACE PREJUDICE.

The Ohio Censorship Board refused to pass D. W. Griffith's master work, "The Birth of a Nation," last week. The censorial solons of the State which has been the birthplace of more presidents than any other in the Union would not put their official O. K. on the Griffith production because of an alleged fear of racial prejudice that they seemed to feel the picture might create.

"The Birth of a Nation" has been showing in New York city to crowded houses since March, and has been a wonderful success wherever it has been presented. The Epoch Producing Corporation, sponsoring "The Birth of a Nation," it is understood, will shortly lay their case before the Ohio courts.

OHIO BARS DIXON PLAY.

State Board of Censors Forbids Production of "Birth of a Nation"—Intended Exhibition at Cincinnati Frustrated—Discussion and Race Riots in Boston and Philadelphia Had Influence—Board Says Play Arouses Prejudice Against Colored Race and Prejudice Between North and South.

(Cincinnati Times-Star, Sept. 28, 1915)

(Times-Star Special Dispatch)

Columbus, O., Sept. 28.—The State Board of Motion Picture Censors today rejected "The Birth of a Nation," a widely discussed film depicting scenes in the South during the reconstruction period, and will not permit it to be exhibited within the State. Two reasons were assigned for turning down the film—that it would arouse prejudice against the colored race and that it might arouse prejudice between the North and South.

Play Been Storm Centre—Riots Cited in Boston and Philadelphia.

The film has been the storm centre of discussion in many parts of the country where it has appeared. IN BOSTON AND PHILADELPHIA IT WAS SAID TO HAVE BEEN THE CAUSE OF NUMEROUS RACE RIOTS.

It is generally considered by motion picture people one of the biggest things of its kind yet attempted and shows on a large scale numerous scenes which are alleged to have occurred immediately following the Civil War. The Board of Censors have received numerous letters from colored people protesting against the proposed exhibition of the film in Ohio, and from other persons who feared it would cause racial trouble.

"The Birth of a Nation," is a dramatization of Thomas Dixon, Jr.'s, work, "The Clansman." It was booked for an early engagement in Cincinnati.

Motion Picture News 879

INJUNCTION SUIT WON BY "NATION" IN ST. LOUIS

On September 20, after the "Birth of a Nation" had been showing for three weeks in St. Louis, Judge Hennings, in a written opinion, ordered an injunction restraining the Board of Police Commissioners there from interfering with the production of the feature at the Olympic theatre. The Judge said that the best evidence against the contentions of the Board of Police Commissioners ~~and the Morality Squad~~, is the fact that although the feature had run more than three weeks, there had not been the slightest indication of trouble or such untoward conditions as were feared.

Referring to the scene in which Silas Lynch seeks to marry a white woman, Judge Hennings said:

"A number of States of the Union, including the state on our east (Illinois) permit such marriages. While opinions differ, and the law of Missouri prohibits such marriages, evidently the residents of states in which mixed marriages are permitted, and white people elsewhere, do not consider such intermarriages immoral. Affidavits filed by three ministers of the Gospel, the morality squad of the Police Department, educators, dramatic critics, professional and business men, and 866 cards signed by spectators to the effect that they found nothing immoral in the production, sustain the position that no race prejudice is engendered."

Ohio board of censors, it was yesterday, has barred "The of a Nation." The reason is that the spectacle is calculated to cause racial trouble.

action of the censors was indirectly mentioned at yesterday's ing of the Cleveland Exhibitors' ne, but not officially discussed. was hinted, however, that Cleveland exhibitors may decide to make court test of the censors' power hen the picture is ready for release the city.

David Wark Griffith has chosen e subject and is laying plans to roduce another motion picture spec- cle equally pretentious, equally stly and equally absorbing in its terest as "The Birth of a Nation."

One argument used by those who o not believe in the $2 picture house that there are not sufficient themes o provide spectacles on the same cale as this story of the civil war. No one denies that "The Birth of a Nation" is a $2 picture.

"History teems with stories of equal, if not greater magnitude than that chosen by Mr. Griffith for "The Birth of a Nation," Theodore Mitchell of the Epoch Co., the organization responsible for the greatest motion picture yet produced, told me in New York recently.

"As a matter of fact, Mr. Griffith has submitted three subjects of world wide interest any one of which would make as great a spectacle as "The Birth of a Nation,'" Mr. Mitchel said. "'The Birth of a Nation' took eight months to produce. Probably Mr. Griffith could not turn out more than one big picture in two years, but you must remember that he is a genius and a series of pictures of the same magnitude as 'The Birth of a Nation' may be confidently expected from his fertile imagination and executive ability."

New York motion picture men are taking a very keen interest in the doings of the Ohio board of censors. They say they cannot understand why Ohio exhibitors have not made a court test.

It is hoped by eastern film men that a test be made with "The Birth of a Nation," which has the indorsement of more than 2,000,000 people.

The reported decision of Ohio exhibitors to make a test with a picture showing a nude figure is regarded in New York as an error of judgment. There is little excuse for undraped figures in motion pictures, they say, and to use such a scene for a test is courting failure and apt to bring the business into disrepute.

"While the picture chosen may be a very beautiful one and not at all offensive to artistic or broad minded people, it gives the censors and those who support them a very powerful argument in favor of the retention of the system. 'This tendency will develop unless there is some form of restriction,' the censors probably will argue and they will have a strong case," one of the leading men in the business asserted.

"The Birth of a Nation" is scheduled to reach the Opera House about April. The booking is for two weeks, but it is confidently expected it will run a much longer period.

"Cleveland is now fifth city of America and if the picture can run eight consecutive weeks in St. Louis, I am sure it will have a long run in Cleveland, which is one of the best theatrical cities in the country," Mr. Mitchell said.

Mr. Mitchell put forward some strong arguments in favor of the $2 picture house.

Ph. Telegraph Oct 10

FILM MEN TO PROTEST.

Special Meeting of Ohio Exhibitors to Protest Against Censors.

(Special Correspondence The Morning Telegraph.)

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Oct. 9.—At the request of exhibitors all over the State, a special meeting will be held of the Ohio State Branch No. 1 of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America to protest against the action of the State Board of Censors in rejecting "Hypocrites" and "The Birth of a Nation."

The gathering will take place at the Hotel Chittenden in this city on Tuesday, October 19. There will be both a morning and afternoon session. Max Stearn, president of the State League, has issued a letter urging all Ohio exhibitors and theatre men from all over the country who are interested in the question of censorship to attend the meeting.

MOTION PICTURE WORLD (N. Y. City)
OCT. 9, 1915

Politics in Censoring

Oakland, California, Has Interesting Situation Due to Attempt of Mayor J. L. Davie to Have Griffith Spectacle Stopped—City Attorney Stated That a Mistake Had Been Made—Controversy Has Started an Unpleasant Political Controversy.

By T. A. Church, San Francisco Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

THE danger of censorship to the motion picture industry has perhaps never been more clearly demonstrated in the West than in the recent action of the city administration at Oakland, Calif., in regard to the D. W. Griffith masterpiece, "The Birth of a Nation," or, as it is more generally known here, "The Clansman."

On the second week of the return engagement of this attraction in Oakland, and its fifth week in that city, the mayor ordered the show stopped. The following day this official declared that he did not intend to close the show and that the police had exceeded their authority in taking the arbitrary action they did. The city attorney apologized on behalf of the municipality, stating that a mistake had been made, and the showing of the film was continued without further trouble.

Merely a Political Ruse.

Censorship in so far as censoring the film on its merits seemed to be furtherest from the thoughts of those in power, it being very evident that the whole matter was one of politics and "The Clansman" happened to be the impromptu football that was used for the political fight. In Oakland the Board of Censors consists of two members, the mayor and the chief of police. When the production was first shown in that city Frank Mott was mayor and he not only allowed the film to be exhibited without any change, but advised all who could possibly do so to see it. When the return engagement commenced a new mayor was in the chair and the trouble that ensued over the film was merely a testing of authority.

During the second week of this return engagement at the Macdonough theater police officers appeared after the house had been filled one evening with an order from the mayor directing that the show be stopped. The theater management read the order from the stage and told the audience that their money would be refunded at the box office. John Ford, one of the operators, was placed under arrest and later released on bail. Why the police picked an operator instead of the manager of the house is not explained.

On the following day F. A. Geisea, manager of the theater; W. C. Wheeler, manager of the concern handling the film, and W. E. Keefe, personal representative of D. W. Griffith, made an application in the Superior Court to secure a restraining order to prevent further interference from the police and it was then that the city attorney appeared and stated that a mistake had been made and that the mayor's orders had been wrongly interpreted.

Mayor Calls It a Frame-Up.

Mayor J. L. Davie states that the entire matter was a frame-up to discredit him, as an aftermath of an exceedingly bitter municipal campaign. The chief of police declares that he was merely following orders and holds a letter from the mayor instructing him to stop the show. He further declares that the mayor now wishes to secure a return of this letter, but that it is being retained in case a civil suit is instituted against the city. Such a step as the one suggested is being considered by the owners of the film to recover the money lost by the elimination of the one exhibition. In the controversy that has ensued over the incident not a single reference has been made by either side involved in regard to the merits or demerits of "The Clansman." The picture has been lost sight of entirely in the political squabble and the only result, aside from the financial loss to the exhibitors of the film, has been to cast discredit upon the censorship system as operated at Oakland.

Chicago Tri. Amer. Oct 13

PARENTS WISH TO LOWER BAN ON FILM

BY ROB REEL.

"Let me know as soon as the city allows the children to see 'The Birth of a Nation.' It is the most wonderful picture I ever saw and I am anxious to have my two boys see it as soon as possible. I believe the film will teach them more history than they can get out of books in the next five years. And they will remember this history the rest of their lives."

This request came over the telephone to the editor of the Rob Reel column yesterday after a story had been printed in the Chicago Evening American stating that "Children May See 'Birth of a Nation.'"

COURT RECORD.

In defense of the Griffith production the court records show this assertion from Joseph J. McCarthy: "The film teaches historical facts as they could be taught by no other medium, exalts morality, loyalty and patriotism and condemns the opposite of these virtues."

There are thousands of parents in Chicago who agree with this sentiment. The man quoted above is one of them.

George Bowles, manager of the Colonial, has more than 8,000 signatures sent in attached to this protest:

"I have viewed the picture called 'The Birth of a Nation.' It is my opinion that said production is not contrary to public morals and I protest against any further interference with it."

FAVORABLE SENTIMENT.

These signatures were sent to him before the film moved to the Colonial. If the hundreds of thousands who have seen the film since then were canvassed, it is a safe guess that their sentiment would favor the allowing of Chicago's children to have the educational value which up to date has been denied them.

"The courts have negatived every contention now made in Chicago when these objections came up in Boston, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, Atlantic City and St. Louis," declared Mr. Bowles to-day. "That is some record in favor of allowing the children to come. Apparently it is only a matter of time when public sentiment here, which really is strong enough now, will crystallize to the point of opening the doors of the Colonial to the young and old alike."

P. Ledger Phila Oct 3

MINISTERS CONDEMN "BIRTH OF A NATION"

Colored Clergymen to Ask Municipal Candidates for Views on Photoplay

At a meeting held yesterday afternoon by the Interdenominational Ministerial Alliance in the Mt. Olive African Methodist Episcopal Church, Clifton street below South street, the Alliance adopted resolutions disapproving the production of "The Birth of a Nation" and commending those colored persons who took part in the street demonstration against the photoplay on September 27. A committee was appointed to ask the principal nominees in the present municipal campaign for their stand regarding the play.

The plans of the Mercy Hospital (colored) for a campaign beginning October 30, through which the institution hopes to raise $150,000 for a hospital building at 19th and Federal streets, were presented to the meeting by Dr. A. B. Jackson. The Alliance indorsed the campaign and also the suffrage parade scheduled for October 22. A committee to assist the colored citizens of Morton, Pa., in their fight against the segregation of colored children in the public schools was appointed.

The Rev. S. L. Corrothers, of Varick A. M. E. Zion Church, 19th and Catharine streets, was elected president of the Alliance for the ensuing year, and the Rev. J. A. Brown, of Germantown, secretary.

George D. Porter, Franklin party candidate for Mayor, addressed the meeting briefly on "Christian Citizenship," urging the ministers to preach cleanliness in politics and to stand for civic righteousness in the present campaign.

The next meeting of the Alliance will be held at the First African Presbyterian Church on the second Monday in January, 1916.

N. Amer. Phila Oct 13

NEGROES SUBSCRIBE $1000 TO GIVE A PAGEANT HERE

At a meeting of negro citizens last night in Holy Trinity Baptist Church, Bainbridge street below Ninetaenth, $1000 was subscribed toward the production in this city next May of a pageant depicting negro history.

"The Star of Ethiopa" is the title of the pageant, which was first played in New York last year. The occasion of its exhibition here will be the celebration of the 100th anniversary of the founding of the African Methodist Episcopal Church in this city.

P. Ledger - Phila - Oct. 4

"THE BIRTH OF A NATION"

Its Production Should Be Stopped, if That Can Be Legally Done

To the Editor of Public Ledger:

Sir—I cordially approve the views expressed by my highly valued friend, Dr. W. W. Keen, in the PUBLIC LEDGER of a recent date, concerning the photo play now being shown in our city, entitled "The Birth of a Nation."

Like Doctor Keen, I went to see the representation, and I was interested in the first half, especially the showing of the death of Lincoln. With the second half, however, dealing with the reconstruction period, I was not only disappointed, but disgusted. The facts of history are not only ignored in the representation, but in many cases falsified, making heroes out of murderers and outlaws, as stated in a recent article by Girard in the PUBLIC LEDGER.

I well remember the terrible reconstruction period, when the Ku-Klux Klan, overriding all law and order through the South, committed outrages which have stamped the name with horror in the minds of all the older generation.

It is much to be deplored that the younger people of the day at this late date—when the bitter feeling engendered during the time referred to has been supposed to have passed away—should now be influenced to believe that such murderers and outlaws were conservators of law and order, as the photo play referred to falsely indicates. That there were outrages committed on both sides during the terrible reconstruction period referred to cannot be denied, but that our own race were chiefly responsible is also a generally acknowledged fact which cannot be contradicted at this late day; and all unworthy attempts to do so, as shown in the play referred to, should be denied by all fair-minded people.

I think the representation referred to should be prevented from continuance, if it can be legally done, and I trust Mayor Blankenburg will do whatever can properly be done in the case.

I rejoice in the publication of such articles as Doctor Keen's, and also in the accurate and temperate statement of Girard in the PUBLIC LEDGER article above referred to.

ISAAC H. CLOTHIER.

Philadelphia, October 12, 1915.

Houston Chronicle Oct 15

Censor Board Will Pass on "Birth of a Nation" Monday Night

The chairman of the Houston board of censors announces that he will permit the people of this city to witness the first production of "The Birth of a Nation" next Monday night, and if the photoplay meets with the approval of himself and other members of the board he will allow it to remain.

The play has already been passed upon favorably by one member of the board, who saw it in Dallas, where it met no opposition from any one in authority, and it has been witnessed by hundreds of thousands of people in all parts of the United States, having been exhibited in practically every large city from New York to San Francisco.

The only objection thus far made in Houston was by a delegation of negroes who had never seen it; who know nothing of its character, and who wanted Mayor Campbell to have it suppressed for fear that it might convey ideas inimical to the negro race.

That it should be necessary for a board of censors in Houston to pass upon a historical production like "The Birth of a Nation" indicates that the city ordinance covering moving pictures must be all-embracing and all-powerful, prior to its legality being tested.

...on over movi... The Birth of a Nation ...llowed to be shown

MOTION

...TUDE OF CENSORS ... TOWARD GRIFFITH'S FILM

Will Look at Production of "The Birth of a Nation" Monday Evening and Give Decision.

Final decision of the board of censors upon the presentation of the big film, "The Birth of a Nation" at the Prince next week is to be given by the board of censors after they have seen the first production Monday evening. This will be open to the public no matter what the final decision.

There has been some protest made, but there has been no great agitation of the matter in Houston one way or another save by a few. As a matter of fact, "The Clansman," upon which Griffith's great pictures are founded, was presented in Houston several times and caused no sort of excitement save that which was worked up for personal reasons.

The censors have not indicated what their final decision will be, and feel that they are acting in this case, as in all others upon which they are called to pass, as a judicial body.

The Post has been requested to publish the following statement as voicing the feeling of the board in this respect:

The Chronicle prints an editorial in its issue of the 14th under the caption, "Silly Protest Against a Great Play."

It refers to the protest of a few negroes against the exhibition of the motion picture, "The Birth of a Nation," and almost in the same breath anticipates the ... of the board of censors in regard to the play.

The board of censors has no apology to make for its action either in this instance or any other. It has not intimated its intention to oppose the exhibition in question and therefore should not be criticized until some excuse for such has materialized. The Chronicle seems greatly alarmed lest the board might exceed its authority in the matter of assuming jurisdiction unwarranted under ordinance by which it is created.. The board is composed of ladies and gentlemen well known in this city and are of the mayor's selection, having been appointed without solicitation, and I think can well be trusted to perform the duties incumbent upon them without fear of influence or coercion.

As chairman of the board of censors and in behalf of its personnel, I feel that the Chronicle is premature in its criticism and is entirely unwarranted in its spirit.

In the sense of fairness the Chronicle might have waited until after Monday night, when the board of censors will have witnessed "The Birth of a Nation." Then, upon whatever recommendation it should make, this criticism would be more timely. The Chronicle rather chooses to arrogate to itself the function that belongs to the board and in a passionate outburst passes judgment and says: "The people of Houston have the right to see, ought to see and are going to see."

W. E. Kendall,
Chairman Houston Board of Censors.

Richmond Virginian Oct 22

COLORED CITIZENS OBJECT TO SPECTACLE

Ask Mayor to Suppress "Birth of a Nation," Billed for the Academy of Music.

MAYOR HAS DECLINED TO ACT

Finds That Public Order Has Been Disturbed In No Southern City By Presentation of Great Spectacular Drama In Pictures.

...alones... picture ...elation of leading colored ... race pre... headed by several members ... faculty of Union University, called on Mayor Ainslie yesterday to protest against the presentation of the moving picture spectacle, "The Birth of a Nation," which is billed for the Academy of Music all next week. Attorney J. R. Pollard also appeared with the delegation as spokesman for a number of other colored citizens who desired that the Mayor suppress the production on the ground that it has caused riots in several Northern cities, and as not being a true representation of the relations of the races in the South.

No Trouble In South.

Mayor Ainslie, in reply to the protestants, read the delegation extracts from letters he has received from the mayors of a number of Southern cities in which the film has been shown, ...e, for example, from the Mayor of ...rfolk, in response to Mayor Ain...'s inquiry, read:

"Peace, dignity and good order of ...munity were never better than ... the past week, and I feel that ...sults have justified me in refus... interfere with the production."

...ers and telegrams from the ...s of Asheville, N. C., Spartan... S. C., and Knoxville, Tenn., were ...milar tenor.

Won't Disturb Relationship.

Mayor Ainslie told the colored citi...ens firmly that he believed ...hat the good feeling between the white and colored races in Richmond was so well cemented that there was ...ot the slightest danger of these re...tions being disturbed by a moving ...ure play. The Mayor expressed ... opinion that, while the conditions ...trayed by the spectacle might be ...atly exaggerated, the point was ...at it portrays conditions of fifty ...ars ago, and, therefore, spectators ...mply view it from an artistic and ...storical standpoint and not as some...ing to engender racial feeling.

Mayor Ainslie stated in conclusion ...hat if anything developed from the ...presentation of the picture play which ...warranted action he would take steps, ...ut at present he could see no reason ...or executive interference.

Dallas Morning News York City

NEGROES OBJECTED TO "BIRTH OF A NATION"

Protest Filed with Welfare-bd, but No Action Was Taken — Negro Pastor Says He Is Glad Houston Negroes Protested — He Wants People to Know Dallas Negroes Tried to Stop It Here.

Negroes filed an official protest with the city against the showing of the film, "The Birth of a Nation," in Dallas. No action was taken by the welfare-bd and the film has been shown.

The film probably will not be shown in Houston. S. E. J. Watson, a negro minister, presented the protest to the welfare-bd. Today he wrote the following:

Editor, The Dallas Dispatch:

I am glad to see in your paper dater Oct. 14 that our people in Houston are trying to prevent the play, "The Birth of a Nation," from being played there. I hope that they will succeed. I do not want the people of Dallas to think that it was played here without some effort on our part to prevent it. We called on Mr. Elmer L. Scott and were assured by him that the play would be looked over and if found objectionable would not be allowed.

We were asked to remain quiet and let the board act on it. Their action let the play in. Here is what I said to Mr. Scott:

"I am a taxpaying citizen of Dallas and the pastor of a Baptist church here that numbers now more than 3800 members. I am also president of the negro welfare-bd. I have said the above only to say to the white people of Dallas that, believing in law and order as I do, I truly feel that you all should come to our rescue and not allow the play, 'The Birth of a Nation,' to appear in our fair city. We have the 'National Association for the Advancement of Colored People,' with its headquarters in New York. Some of these have visited this play and say that a more harmful thing to the peaceful relation of the races could not come to a town."

S. E. J. WATSON.

Charlotte Daily Observer
Charlotte Daily Observer Oct 3, 1915

NEGROES AND DIXON'S PLAY.

"The Birth of a Nation," which is being unnecessarily red-ragged throughout the country, was put on in the City of Brotherly Love, the other day, and the colored man and brother made the usual demonstration against it. Being among Northern friends, the negroes no doubt felt emboldened to venture too far in the exercise of their privileges as American citizens and were treated rather roughly by the police. Rev. W. G. Graham, the pastor of Holy Trinity Baptist Church, who appears to have led in the demonstration, was handled with little respect, having turned up at a local hospital after the battle with four wounds on his head. Four other negroes were sent to the hospital and four not badly hurt were taken to police headquarters. There were 500 colored people in the mob. They had the disadvantage in weapons, the police using pistols and clubs and the negroes hurling bricks and milk bottles. It appears that the demonstration had been incited by a committee of negro clergymen, only one of whom shared in the consequences. It is the same old story. Even among his own race the negro is used as a tool and in the Philadelphia e... those upon whom the punishm... should justly fall w'l escape. "The Birth of a Nation" was planned by a money-making corporation and was written by a man with money-making as his object. It teaches no lesson, moral or otherwise. It is highly spectacular and cheaply sensational. It is coming South. We shall hope that on its travels through this section it will be met with a manifestation of the good sense of the colored people that will stand out in contrast to the conduct of the misguided actions of the colored people in the Northern States. In giving it notoriety, the colored people have given life to "The Birth of a Nation." One or two demonstrations in the South like that in Philadelphia, is what the owners of the play desire above all else, for one demonstration by negroes in the South would count for more in the way of a sensational advertisement than all the mob incidents in the North put together. The Observer wants the Southern negroes to be guided by their own good sense and the advice of their white friends, and thereby they will deal this sensational play the hardest blow it could receive, in paying no attention to it.

P. Ledger Phila. Oct 14

"THE BIRTH OF A NATION"

Such Perverted History as the Attack on Thaddeus Stevens Should Be Suppressed

To the Editor of Public Ledger:

Sir—It is late to add one more protest to the number of criticisms of the moving picture play "The Birth of a Nation," already made by such eminent Philadelphians as Joseph Pennell and Dr. W. W. Keen. Had I seen the play earlier, this communication would have been sent before this. The purpose of the play is to impress upon another generation an inaccurate and harmful conception of an epoch. This purpose has been carried out with considerable cunning in the appeal to sentiment and with so great an elaboration of detail as to suggest that capital for the purpose has been furnished by persons interested in presenting to the public this false conception of the reconstruction period. The banal sentimentalities of the letter explanations are entirely in keeping with the general purpose. The wrong attempted to be done is not made less, but greater by the excellence of many of the pictures shown.

Intelligent persons unfamiliar with the events of the period, who wish a juster conception of the occurrences of the time may turn to the Congressional reports, embracing the sworn testimony of many witnesses, to books like Powell Clayton's lately published "The Aftermath of the Civil War in Arkansas," to Judge Tourgee's novel, "A Fool's Errand," and the biography of Thaddeus Stevens.

In a properly constituted, self-respecting community, the vulgar travesty of the character of the able, virile, honest Thaddeus Stevens, of Pennsylvania, leader of the National House of Representatives, would not have been tolerated. In the South a moving picture showing Jefferson Davis in the act of fleeing from his captors in the disguise of a woman's dress would not be permitted. Persons attempting to perpetuate the story, a story with as much foundation of fact as the story now attempted to be fastened upon Thaddeus Stevens, would be driven out of the town or shot. Nothing but a community flabbiness of mind has tolerated the attack upon Thaddeus Stevens' reputation, an attack made in a cowardly way, because while the wig, the facial suggestion, the club foot, the political position and the place of his home are all given, the name is disguised. The city and State authorities should have forbidden so gross and dishonest a vilification of the great political leader who represented faithfully the attitude of the men who had preserved the Union and overthrown slavery by frustrating the efforts of Louisiana and other Southern States to restore a form of African slavery.

The idea that any different laws or any other form of government would have prevented the disturbances following the war of the Rebellion is a shallow one, because these disturbances grew out of a condition of society. As late as 1868 30 per cent. of the white voters of Arkansas could not write their names. Happily, the time came when a measure of order was restored and then an officer of the Union Army in the President's chair, one of the best of our Presidents, Rutherford B. Hayes, removed the army and the Southern States were left to govern themselves. ISAAC R. PENNYPACKER.

Ardmore, Pa., October 13, 1915.

work, "The ...
for an early ...
nati.

Colored Delegation Calls on Mayor to Protest Against Dixon's "Birth of a Nation"

Ainslie, Armed With Opinions From Mayors in Other Cities, Tells Callers He Knows of No Reason Why He Should Interfere, and Will Not, He Concludes.

A delegation of prominent colored citizens called upon Mayor George Ainslie this afternoon to protest against the presentation of the film spectacle, "The Birth of a Nation," at the Academy next week. The delegation, headed by Dr. R. E. Jones, included the following: Dr. W. H. Hughes, Dr. J. E. Jones, of Union University; Professor Charles T. Russell, of Union University; Rev. W. T. Johnson and J. W. Barco, Professor W. N. Colston and J. M. Sampson.

Later Attorney J. R. Pollard came to add his protest as spokesman for a large number of colored citizens.

"I do not think the community will be greatly disturbed by the presentation of the pictures," said Attorney Pollard to a News Leader man, "for I think too much of the good sense of RICHMOND. It repudiated "The Clansman" and I think it will repudiate "The Birth of a Nation" as not representing the relations of the races in the South.

"This production has caused riots in Philadelphia and Boston, where they think it necessary to make trouble in order to show regard for the negro race. Here it is different. It is not necessary to create public disturbances to show the regard the white people have for the colored but I think the good sense of the city of RICHMOND will repudiate anything emanating from the pen of the Rev. Thomas Dixon. I trust the mayor will see it to forbid the presentation of the picture here if he can consistently do so."

A body of students from Union University also added a written protest. It was presented by a delegation of five.

How Mayor Responded.

Mayor Ainslie said: "I told the committee that I had communicated with the mayors of Southern cities in which the picture had been presented, the mayors of Norfolk, Roanoke, Knoxville, Chattanooga, Spartansburg and Asheville. These are some of the quotations:

"'Peace, good order and dignity of the community were never better than during the past week, and I feel that the result has justified me in refusing to interfere.'—Mayor Mayo, of Norfolk

"'I have witnessed the production. It has my unqualified endorsement. A number of prominent citizens have expressed the same opinion as myself.'—Mayor Floyd, of Spartansburg, S. C.

"'Picture was passed by board of censors appointed by city. No bad effect from presentation of play.'—Commissioner of Public Safety Ramsay, of Asheville, N. C.

"'There was positively no tendency of disorder. It was pleasing to all who attended.'—Mayor Moomaw, of Roanoke.

"'Ex-Police Justice Barron, of Norfolk, who led the opposition in Norfolk, said after viewing it for the first time: 'It was such a magnificent, wonderful thing that any of the objectionable features might be lost sight of.'

"Chief of Police Kiser said: 'It is perhaps one of the greatest spectacles ever presented in the city. We had not the slightest semblance of trouble. I have heard no pronounced criticism from the colored people who witnessed the performance.'

Newark Evening News Nov 9

Negroes Ask Police to Stop "The Birth of a Nation"

A delegation of negro citizens visited police headquarters today with a request that the police stop the exhibition of a motion picture play called "The Birth of a Nation," which is advertised to appear at the Newark Theater next week. They declared that the elimination of certain scenes in the play would not satisfy the objections to it and asked that it be stopped.

Besides Chief of Police Long, the committee was heard by President Frederick C. Breidenbach, of the police board; City Counsel Spaulding Frazer, and E. Erle Moody, secretary to the mayor. These latter said that they were very much impressed with the plea made, and it was arranged for Mr. Breidenbach and Mr. Frazer to see the play in New York city this afternoon.

James E. Churchman headed the delegation, which appeared as representing the negro population in the county. The picture, they declared, held up the negro in a wrong light and created a race prejudice and bad feeling wherever it was shown. The reputation which the picture has attained would make it inadvisable to show it here, even though some of the more objectionable scenes were eliminated.

Mr. Breidenbach and Mr. Frazer will confer with Chief Long after seeing the picture today, and advise him as to what action to take. It is possible that the matter will be brought up at a meeting of the Board of Police Commissioners tomorrow.

After the delegation left the office of the police commissioners they went into the Board of Works' room and talked matters over in more vigorous terms than employed by them with the commissioners including a threat of force. They appeared to believe that the decision of the commissioners would be unfavorable to them.

Those present were: Rev. Joseph E. Churchman, Rev. Joseph Summers, C. W. Jones, Cornelius M. Brown, Allan Beand, A. C. Clark and Harry W. Kohl.

Newark Evening News Nov 9

"BIRTH OF A NATION" FILM IS OPPOSED BY NEGROES

A protest against the presentation of the moving picture production "The Birth of a Nation" was made to the police this morning by a delegation of colored men, who declared they represented all the negroes of the city. They said the reason they opposed the exhibition of the pictures, which are scheduled to be shown at the Newark Theater next week, is that they encouraged race prejudice and tend to belittle the negro race.

The protest was made to Chief of Police Long, President Frederick C. Breidenbach of the Police Board, City Counsel Spaulding Frazer and E. Erle Moody, secretary to Mayor Raymond.

After listening to the arguments of the objectors it was decided to have Mr. Breidenbach view the pictures, which are now showing in New York, and to report back immediately. He will notify the chief late today whether the pictures should be allowed in this city.

The spokesmen for the men making the protest were Oliver Randolph, Rev. Joseph Summers and Rev. James E. Churchman. After presenting a set of resolutions adopted at a joint meeting of the Republican and Democratic colored men's clubs held at 237 Halstreet last night, which call upon the authorities to prohibit the exhibition of the pictures, the men gave their reasons for asking such action.

They said the picture was nothing less than a capitalization of race prejudices and effort on the part of the author of the theme of picture to reeducate the people of the North on the negro question, to the detriment of the colored man.

Mr. Randolph said that for generations the colored people have been striving hard to better conditions among themselves and that such public displays as the picture tend to destroy all the good work that has been done. The picture, he added, attempts to belittle the negro and place him in the light of a brute. He added that wherever the picture has been shown it has been the cause of intense racial feelings and in some instances has been the cause of riots.

Newark Evening News Nov 10

Threatens Reprisals if Negroes Interfere With Performance

Chief of Police Drabell, of Orange, has received a letter, signed Klu Klux, calling attention to the alleged threat made at a negro mass meeting a few nights ago in regard to the presentation of the moving picture, "Birth of a Nation," at an Orange theater. The writer of the letter to Chief Drabell threatens reprisals if any attempt is made by negroes to interfere with the performance. A copy of the letter to Chief Drabell was received at the office of the Evening Star.

Chief Drabell regards the letter as a joke.

THE CLAMOR IS SUBSIDING.

It is gratifying to note that the clamor against the exhibition of "The Birth of a Nation" in the south is fast subsiding.

The agitation against this moving picture was born of narrow-mindedness and ignorance, if, in truth, it was not inspired for sordid commercial reasons.

"The Birth of a Nation" is not alone a wonderful moving picture production—it is a vivid depiction of great historical truths and events. It is not only entertaining but most instructive. It is the moving picture camera's most notable contribution to the cause of popular education.

The assurance is given by Theodore Mitchell, of New York, the general press representative for the producers of the picture, that the promoters of the film have not inspired the clamor against it. The inference, therefore, is that in the south the negroes themselves of their own volition, have protested against the showing of the picture, on the assumption that it does their race an injustice. In Ohio, where a stupid board of censorship has prohibited the picture, there were political reasons assignable.

"The Birth of a Nation" should be seen by negroes as well as by white people, since it will be enlightening to the former as well as to the latter. When once seen all prejudice against it is sure to be allayed. The News hopes that on its tour of the south it will be presented without the appeal to racial prejudices such as attended the showing of "The Clansman" eight or ten years ago.

Newark Sunday Call Nov 13

The censor and critic of dramatic art of Newark is President Breidenbach of the Police Commission. This city, he thought, should not see the "Birth of a Nation" since he himself does not regard it as "uplifting." Whether it uplifts or sets down, we may not know, but to see such a wonderful picture of beautiful ideals; to look upon one who seems so like the real Lincoln that one almost wants to kneel before him; to view the great mistakes and the great righteousness of the past, and to learn the lessons, is much too affecting and emotional and would cause one to shed too many loving tears. So perhaps the show should be forbidden. President Breidenbach of the Police Board is not a sentimentalist, however. He is simply a believer in the value of the negro vote, and wants us to think that one minor incident in a great and illuminating history of national affairs is quite enough to condemn an educational exhibition of enormous public value. He imagines that fifteen or twenty colored politicians are the whole vote of their race. However, one is glad to have a Breidenbach on the job, and to find out that his associates are subservient to him. He would, it is presumed, continue his noble labors for the "uplift." He will stop the leg shows which are corrupting youth, and end the abominations of joy riders; he will cleanse the streets of painted harridans, and he will close saloons on Sundays and election days, and the cabarets at midnight, and about seven hundred other things which appear to some people quite as important as those colored politicians who appealed to Mr. Breidenbach and whose candidate for Mayor he no doubt expects to be at the next election. Fudge, Breidenbach!

Motographic Nov 12

STILL AFTER "NATION."

San Francisco, Nov. 10.

The Colored Non-Partisan League of California has filed another protest against the "Birth of a Nation" film, now at the Savoy. This is the second objection made by the league to the exhibition of the film. But this time they call the supervisors' attention to the fact that the board of censorship suggested that certain changes be made in the film and which have not been made.

Pathe's serial, "The Exploits of Elaine," released this week, is around everywhere. "The Birth of a Nation" at the Scala continues to do well. Business with "Cabiria" at the West End Cinema has improved.

BIRTH OF NATION MAY BE SHOWN BY INJUNCTION

Promoters Taking Counsel with View to Combatting Local Police Ban.

Action looking to securing an injunction against police prohibition, in order that they may present the moving-picture play "The Birth of a Nation" at the Newark Theater for the next two weeks, beginning next Monday, is under consideration by the promoters of the enterprise.

The men are in consultation with counsel in this city today.

Chief of Police Michael T. Long last night notified George W. Robbins, manager of the Newark Theater, that he will not permit the showing in this city of the moving picture play which has met with objection from negroes in this city.

Chief Long said today that he acted on the opinion of two of the police commissioners who saw the play and of Lieutenant John F. Harris, of the chief's staff. So far as the police are concerned, the chief said, the matter is closed, unless the management attempts to put on the picture without a court order restraining the police from taking action. Yesterday the chief said he thought that he would wait until it appeared here and have two of his men view it. He didn't say why he had changed his mind in this latter respect.

Representing the company which is producing the picture, Daniel McCarthy, general manager; Theodore Mitchell, assistant manager, and Ormsby Cort, business manager, called at Chief Long's office last night. They declared that the picture has enjoyed popularity wherever it has been shown in the country, and that it never has been stopped in any other city. Besides being the most elaborate moving picture production ever made, they said, it has great historical value.

Chief Long told them that he had decided against the exhibition of the picture. The report of Lieutenant Harris and Police Commissioners Frederick C. Breidenbach and Frederic Bigelow, he told them, was to the effect that the picture was "without uplift value, and that it tended to engender race prejudice."

After the visit of the three men, Chief Long notified Mr. Robbins by telephone that the picture is not to go on. Mr. Breidenbach saw the picture in New York Tuesday afternoon, and Lieutenant Harris and Commissioner Bigelow saw it Wednesday night. Mr. Breidenbach expressed his opinion in a letter to Chief Long, which was signed by the other commissioners.

Newark Evening News Nov 12

"BIRTH OF NATION" WILL BE SHOWN IN THIS CITY

Promoters Secure Injunction in Jersey City to Halt Local Police.

An injunction restraining Chief of Police Long, or any police official of the city of Newark, from interfering with the production of the film play, "The Birth of a Nation" in the Newark Theater has been obtained.

It was signed last night by Vice-Chancellor Griffin, in Jersey City, at the request of McCarter & English, of this city, acting for the Epoch Producing Company, of New York. Accompanying the injunction is a rule directing the city authorities to show cause in Chancery Chambers, this city, November 23, why it should not be made permanent.

The granting of the order came after Chief Long had, over the telephone, informed George W. Robbins, manager of the theater, that the show must not be given. The action of the chief had been directed in a letter, sent to him by Frederick C. Breidenbach, president of the Board of Police Commissioners and signed by the other three members of the board. This followed a visit by Commissioner Breidenbach to the Liberty Theater, New York, where the show is now being given.

Similar conditions arose in Atlantic City, when, during the summer, the picture play was announced. It was objected to by a number of negroes, who declared that the picture was a libel on their race. After the production had been prohibited, an injunction was obtained, restraining the police from interfering with it. It is understood that this injunction, signed by Chancellor Walker, was made the basis of the present action commission over merits

"The Birth of a Nation
allowed to be shown

THE SURVEY, NEW YORK
AUG 7 1915

The LANTERN BEARERS

A SERIES OF ESSAYS EXPLORING SOME THOROUGHFARES OF THE PEOPLE'S LEISURE

III

Censorship in Action

By John Collier

THERE is a swamp down in Georgia, called Okefenokee. It covers four hundred square miles and is a haunt of wild fowl, alligators and great fish who scorn the hook, requiring to be speared. Enterprising promoters said, twenty years ago, "We'll drain the swamp." They wanted to get the magnificent cypress timber which rises from the ten thousand tiny "houses," or islands, which dot the swamp.

They bought the swamp for eighty cents an acre or thereabout. They built a huge sawmill and a hotel 300 feet long. Then they clove far out into the swamp with a deep canal, and after spending several hundred thousand dollars they began to float out the logs—to find, alas, that every cypress tree in Okefenokee was worm-riddled to the core!

They were stunned by this, but another promoter heard of their troubles. He said, "I'll take the job off your hands." The soil of Okefenokee is black and rich; wonderful truck-gardens should blossom when Okefenokee was drained. So with the new promoter's money they sent the canal further and deeper out into the swamp, to drain it dry; and after several months, through curiosity or as an afterthought, they sent a barrel of earth to Atlanta, where the state geologist analyzed it.

It is a tragic story. The soil was nothing but ashes, incapable of growing any vegetables at all, and research has since developed the fact that Okefenokee, now a swamp, had been a vast cypress jungle standing high and dry a few centuries ago. It was kindled by lightning, so Indian tradition goes, and reduced to a char; its humus burned, and the soil many feet down was sterilized of organic matter. Then the baked cinder sank down and became the floor of a shallow lake, hundreds of square miles in area. This in turn has become Okefenokee swamp.

Sawmill and hotel are in ruins. The canal runs far into the swamp, still incomplete. Iron cables and shards are heaped on the sand. Okefenokee is nearly as solitary as the upper Amazon. And though our narrative of its history may not be accurate in all particulars, it is largely so, and it serves to illustrate the futility of hard work and costly administration when the fundamental presumption is wrong. It illustrates the censorship question.

SECRETARY COMMUNITY EXTENSION COMMITTEE, PEOPLE'S INSTITUTE PIONEER, WITH CHARLES SPRAGUE SMITH, OF THE NATIONAL BOARD OF CENSORSHIP

The draining of Okefenokee in censorship began with the sudden rise of motion-pictures about nine years ago. The pioneer censorship of Chicago was established November, 1907. It was upheld by the Supreme Court of Illinois and has not been carried to the federal Supreme Court. This censorship is legal, compulsory and carried out before the first public exhibition. It covers "pictures of the classes and kinds commonly shown in mutoscopes, kinetoscopes, cinematographs and penny arcades." The Chicago ordinance specifically prohibits only two kinds of films, the "immoral and obscene," but its application has been broadened in practice. There is a penalty of not less than $50 nor more than $100 for each exhibition of a condemned film or part of such film.

The censoring was at the start broadly assigned to the superintendent of police. An appeal to the mayor was provided for. The censors' action on any given film could be appealed to the courts, and such appeals have been occasionally made but are in their aggregate negligible. In January, 1913, the censoring of films was placed under the deputy superintendent, Major Funkhauser, who was appointed through the civil service. The inspection work is done by ten salaried employes drawn from civil service.

The second censorship enactment in this country was carried through in San Francisco in the latter part of 1913. It authorizes the pre-censorship of motion-picture exhibits. This ordinance has been rather lightly applied and is now carried out largely after the first public exhibition of films. The inspector is a corporal of the police.

Fairly simultaneously with legal censorship, the National Board of Censorship of Motion Pictures came into existence, as a work local to New York, in March, 1909, and was extended to include the whole country in June, 1909. It was not a legal censorship in any particular, and continues as a purely cooperative and voluntary arrangement.

Between the years 1909 and 1913 censorship laws were passed in the following cities: Kansas City, Portland, Oregon; Los Angeles, California; Atlanta, Georgia; Pittsburg, Kansas; Seattle, Washington; and a little later, Pasadena, California. These are all pre-publicity laws, in that they give statutory power to the censor in advance of the first public exhibition. The Portland ordinance was amended early in the present year to provide for a paid secretary who works with a group of about twenty-five censors, most of the inspections being made after the first public exhibition of films. The work in Seattle is done by a group of five volunteers. In Los Angeles a voluntary board with a paid secretary views a certain proportion of the films in advance of publicity. The Kansas City Board of Public Welfare has been intelligently active for several years, viewing some films before and some films after their first public exhibition. All these boards or officials use the aid of the National Board of Censorship of Motion Pictures, which, from its central station in New York, reviews practically all films several weeks in advance of their first public exhibition.

The more important censorships, those which at present are the fighting issue in this field, are the state censorships. The first state censorship was created in

Gazette (Mo) 1/10/1

ES' PROTEST SOME
H OF NATION' SCENES

They Tend to Race Trou-
-Philley Says It Will un Same as in K. C.

ittee representative of the se-
the city called upon Mayor nd C. U. Philley, manager of m theater, yesterday, in an have certain scenes of "The Nation" cut out, when the shown here. The committee re were some scenes which d to provoke race trouble.
ot specify just what part or he picture they referred to.
ity hall it was explained to of the committee that the city did not give extended power ing motion pictures, and the was advised to visit Philley.
Lyceum the committee was at the motion picture would here just the same as it was City. There, it is understood, rtion was cut out for this visit of the committee to , Manager Philley made the tatement on the matter:

play 'The Birth of a Nation'
h exactly as it is being pre-Kansas City during its five there. There is nothing in spectacle to which any itizen can object. It does racial disturbances. "The Nation" has been given in City for over 700 perform-aton for over 600 perform-the same in Chicago. There ver 200 performances each ia, Pittsburg and St. Louis record it is absurd to say es trouble. If it did it e running so long in the cities, and cities, by the which have very large col-ions."
se in the committee which protest were: Dr. W. S.
J. R. A. Crossland, C. F.
D. Goodson, H. J. Herring
n.

Epoch
1476
VO

for an early natl.

Town Talk

THE LEADING WEEKLY

PRICE 5 CENTS

TRADE MARK REGISTERED ACCORDING TO ACT OF CONGRESS 1895.

VOL. XXVI, No. 1338 — NEWARK, N. J., NOVEMBER 13, 1915

Epoch Producing Corp
476 Broadway

D. W. GRIFFITH.

Author of "The Birth of a Nation," A Play Which Has Provoked Police Censorship

COLORED PEOPLE AND "THE BIRTH OF A NATION" FILM.

The sympathy of all right thinking, well balanced persons must go out to those men of the colored race who protested against the exhibition here of pictures that are calculated to inspire race hatred and invite expressions of feeling. These men are well within their rights as members of their race and as citizens.

This film, named "The Birth of a Nation," has called forth similar protests wherever the colored population has had leadership and counsel. These protests have been directed at such features as do injustice and harm to the memory of decent negroes who lived in slavery and were compelled to face new and most trying conditions upon their emancipation, and to those of their descendants who have made wonderful progress and are today working out their problems with energy and intelligence. Wherever they have made their protests there have been such measures of concession as authority warranted.

The film is based upon "The Clansman," the dramatic version which The News-Press vigorously censured when it was presented in St. Joseph because of its plain intent to give presentation to matters that offend decency and inspire race hatred. We said then that this play was unfair, un-American, harmful and an altogether uncessary presentation of conditions that were brought about by processes of social and political evolution during the chaotic period of reconstruction. The same may be said in truth of those portions of the film which, through well directed efforts, have been deleted from the presentation in St. Joseph.

It is commendable that Mayor Marshall, the proprietors, Manager Philley of the Lyceum and the exhibitors have come to an agreement for the elimination of such portions of this film as in any way put the colored people of St. Joseph into a shameful and [illegible] position as citizens.

Joseph (Mo.) News

NEGROES OBJECT TO "BIRTH OF A NATION"

MAYOR MARSHALL IS URGED TO PROHIBIT EXHIBITION OF THE FAMOUS PHOTOPLAY.

MAYOR PLEDGES ASSISTANCE

Delegation Asks That if the Film Is Allowed to Be Shown Sensational Scenes Be Eliminated—Fear Racial Trouble.

A delegation of negro professional and business men waited on Mayor Marshall in his office at the city hall this forenoon and asked hir either to prohibit the exhibition in St. Joseph of "The Birth of a Nation," billed for the Lyceum Theater for the week beginning Nov. 22, or to order the elimination of sensational scenes which, they asserted, were inclined to cause racial disturbances.

Charles L. Faust, city counsel, was called into the conference and said there is no city ordinance [illegible] empowering the mayor to censor moving pictures. The delegation was advised to take the matter up with C. U. Philley, manager of the Lyceum, with a view to having a committee witness and criticise the photoplay before it is shown to the public.

The negroes did not specify any particular part of the film to which they objected, but said that racial troubles had occurred in other cities where the picture was permitted to be shown in its original form.

Feared Racial Troubles.

"'The Birth of a Nation' is advertised to be shown in St. Joseph soon, and we have come to enter a protest," said Dr. W. S. Carrion, who was spokesman for the delegation. "Between 5,000 and 6,000 negroes are living in St. Joseph, peaceably and happily. The negro situation in this city is better than it is in [illegible]

Newark Star

"BIRTH OF NATION" DECISION RESERVED

Vice-Chancellor May Accept Atlantic City Injunction as Precedent.

Announcing that if the facts in another case which came up in Atlantic City last summer were the same he would continue the injunction, Vice-Chancellor Howell today reserved decision on a motion to make permanent his order restraining the police of this city from interfering with the presentation of the film play, "The Birth of a Nation." He only reserved decision because he wanted to examine the papers in the Atlantic City case, saying that he would determine the matter shortly.

The motion picture company, the Epoch Producing Corporation, was represented by Conover English, of McCarter & English, and the Newark Theater management by George M. Keasby.

City Attorney Harry Kalisch, arguing for the police board, told the vice-chancellor that the only question he was interested in was whether or not the Court of Chancery court enjoin the exercise of police powers by the city government. He expressed the belief that the court would not interfere.

The vice-chancellor said that he believed that Chancellor Walker considered that phase of the case in the Atlantic City matter.

George A. Douglas, representing several associations of negroes, said that the picture was apt to have a subtle influence, creating prejudice against the negro race in the minds of white men.

commission over motion [illegible] "The Birth of a Nation" [illegible] allowed to be shown [illegible]

POLICE CENSORSHIP.

Un-American Attitude In Regard to "The Birth of a Nation."

CENSORSHIP was never popular in America, where a certain freedom is accorded the people, and therefore amazement bordering on shock marked the announcement that the picture "The Birth of a Nation," was ordered stopped by the police authorities of Newark. It seems that some negroes objected to its theme, taken from "The Clansman." When that play itself was shown in Newark on the speaking stage, and another play called "The Nigger," was produced, there was no race riot, but a line is drawn against a really remarkable film production which for months has held sway in New York, and captivated audiences in many large cities.

D. W. Griffith is one of the greatest motion picture directors in the world, and when he created "The Birth of a Nation" he embodied historical truths which no amount of kicking can change. The picture was passed by the National Board of Censorship, a body of high-minded men and women who know what they are doing. For the Police Board, or its president, or legal representative, to censor such a work and prevent its presentation seems to be uncalled for. It cannot be explained in any other way excepting that some one is playing politics, or that a sort of prudish supercilliousness has turned the heads of these public officials. Darn if it wouldn't drive one to woman suffrage!

Newark Evening News

"BIRTH OF NATION" FILMS CAN GO ON

Vice-Chancellor Tentatively Makes Permanent Injunction Obtained Against Police Interference.

ATLANTIC CITY RULING FOLLOWED

In view of a recent decree of Chancellor Walker in a similar case, Vice Chancellor Howell today tentatively announced that he would make permanent the injunction against the Board of Police Commissioners restraining any interference with the production of the photo play, "The Birth of a Nation," now being exhibited at the Newark Theater.

The vice chancellor did not make his decision final, as he said he would first compare the case in Atlantic City decreed by Chancellor Walker to the case at hand to determine whether or not the same facts governed each.

Conover English, attorney for the Epoch Producing Company, owners of the film, and the Hyde & Behman Amusement Co., lessees of the theater, who obtained a temporary injunction against the police officials, called the vice chancellor's attention to the similar effort on the part of the authorities of Atlantic City to prevent the production of the picture play there.

The Esplanade Amusement Company obtained an injunction fom Chancellor Walker and a decree was subsequently entered making the injunction permanent. Mr. Conover said the facts in that case were the same in the main as those presented here.

The vice chancellor declared that he would be bound by the decree of the chancellor, if, as Mr. English contended, the cases were parallel. He said he would read over the bill in the Atlantic City case for comparison. In that instance the chancellor permitted the production of "The Birth of a Nation," restraining the police from interference.

Harry Kalisch opposed the injunction on the ground that the court was interfering with the exercise of honest discretion by the police in matters concerning the maintenance of the peace.

The continuance of the production of the photo play was opposed by George A. Douglas, who said he appeared in the interest of a number of colored citizens.

Argument by Attorneys.

Mr. Kalisch, in opposing the police injunction, confined his remarks to its relationship to the curbing of the police power and court interference in cases where there was "an honest belief that there might be a breach of the peace." The attorney said he was not familiar with the Atlantic City case referred to, but thought the present matter was purely a local question.

[illegible] the idea that the chancellor [illegible] upon the fact that for almost a month after the boy was vaccinated by Dr. Hahn the close attention of the physician and a nurse, in spite of this care, the condition of the lad's arm required the amputation of the arm.

[illegible] was placed by the society [illegible] Infection Grew.

[illegible] the beginning of the present sore [illegible] society [illegible] have been brought to the attention of the [illegible] Dr. Collins declared in his statement that the Robinson case is one of four that came to the attention of the society.

Dr. Collins declared that the sore on the child's arm is spreading and that there is evidence of serious infection. Mrs. Robinson today informed the News that Dr. Benjamin H. Voebel, the physician now attending the boy, declared there was no danger.

THE SURVEY NEW YORK
AUG 7 1915

A. "Well, not exactly by action of the three censors, but these matters were frequently referred back and forth to each other for approval, if necessary."

Q. "It would have been impossible for you to examine 8,000 films if all three of you had examined them at the same time?"

A. "Yes, if we had tried to examine all the prints of 8,000 films together, it would have been impossible."

So much for the record. But Mr. Maddox, the chairman, was over-modest. For three censors, working separately, to have inspected 8,000 reels of film in the sixty-six days above referred to, would have involved the inspection by each censor of forty, not twenty, reels a day. To run forty reels through the machine would require ten hours, with no time allowed for re-inspection. Sundays, too. . . .

The Ohio board's work grew easier, after the opening rush. The inspections fell during the first year to 1,500 reels a month,—involving, if the board had sat together, fourteen and a half hours' continuous inspection during six days of each week. The board maintains an office with two film screens, so that two dramas may be censored at the same time. At present, the monthly output of reels is about 700; so that if the board works at full speed, without re-inspections or pauses for discussion, it may complete its work in about six hours a day.

The present state of mind of the board is suggested by the following, which appeared in the Cleveland Press of March 11, 1915:

"Mrs. Maude Miller Murray, woman member, is devoting her mornings to reportorial work on the Columbus Dispatch, although the state pays her to pass on films during that time, according to W. R. Wilson, who is also a member.

"Wilson has protested to Gov. Willis . . . Wilson also criticised Mrs. Miller's way of censoring two films at once, saying that this method was not thorough.

"'If Mr. Wilson has seen fit to carry his complaint to the Governor, I will visit Gov. Willis too, and ask him to decide whether it is any worse for me to work for the Dispatch a few hours every morning than it is for Mr. Wilson to maintain an office opposite the state board's headquarters and serve as secretary for the national and state leagues of motion-picture men,' said Mrs. Miller after learning of Wilson's statements.

"'He has inspected two pictures at a time on hundreds of occasions,' she continued, 'and he has never complained before against the practice. I understand that he receives $100 a month for working for the 'movie league.'"

Such, then, are the conditions under which the Ohio censors do their work. And this work? It is the determination of moral values—of psychological, aesthetic and social values—for the whole range of dramatic art. For the unabridged message, the whole burden of drama is carried by motion-pictures at the present day. Let us recall the two uses and aims of drama, as stated in the first article of this series:

VIOLENCE

The Chicago board and most of the censorship boards in fact, prohibit the showing of crises of violence. The actual firing of the pistol or descent of the knife in this picture would be eliminated.

"Drama is a socializing agency, a means . . . for cultivating interest —passionate interest—in the things of social concern. And drama is a means for keeping the wellsprings of life unsealed, for keeping the vital horizons rich and deep in those whose personal experience is necessarily limited."

Drama is, in fact, vicarious experience. It is a means, to which enormous thought and genius have been given, by which the individual spectator enters into the general race heritage and brings to play on his moral nature the incentives and the challenges which confront mankind everywhere in all the ages. In this sense, drama is indeed life, to a higher degree than practical life is life. To censor drama is to attempt to purify the very fountain-head of life itself.

The censorship of art is infinitely more difficult than the control of practical conduct, for in the control of practical conduct we are mainly concerned with external practical results, whereas in the control of drama we are concerned with vital results, registered in spiritual and moral terms, eventuating in who knows what practical conduct tomorrow or next year.

And the censor? At best he is a cautious and conscious, at worst a reckless and unconscious, bull in the china-shop of drama. His every decision is bound to influence, for good or ill, the dramatist and the whole art which he is censoring. When he deprives the dramatist of some particular trick or theme or form of emotional appeal, he starts a train of consequences in the artist himself which will result in the upbuilding or in the deterioration and impoverishment of drama.

The various legal censors of drama are not abashed by their responsibility. Nor have the above facts and considerations, along with others far more sensational, influenced the Ohio legislature to either repeal or radically amend the censorship law. As remarked in the previous article, "laws of this kind, whose good intentions are so manifest, are easy to get on to the statute books and wellnigh impossible to get off."

It would be quite unjust, unpardonable, indeed, to leave an implication that the Ohio censorship board is typical in all respects of the legal censorships operating in other cities and states. On the contrary, a word of respect should be said for the work of the Kansas City Board of Public Welfare; and more especially, of the Chicago censorship officials.

The Chicago censorship was the first established in this country, antedating even the National Board of Censorship of Motion Pictures. Its tenets have always been and still are crude, inflexible, naive, adapted only to a protection against the grosser and more obvious offenses which are to be looked for in drama. But this is a condition hardly to be escaped by any statutorily created and legally responsible censoring agency; even the voluntary National Board, as will later be explained, succeeds only in attenuating it.

The Chicago board, further, operates for only a limited territory; so that its

BURLESQUE OVER WHICH CENSORS DISAGREE

A comedy picture, entitled The Merry Moving Men. A type of hundreds of films which burlesque violence and with respect to which all the boards of censorship vacillate.

Pennsylvania in 1911, but became operative only last year. During the legislative sessions just closed, the Pennsylvania and Ohio laws were amended to permit the delegation of censoring work to employes and helpers of the boards.

Kansas adopted a state censorship law two years ago. This has been held constitutional by the federal Supreme Court, along with the Ohio law.

A state censorship law, pending in Massachusetts, has passed the state senate. Meantime, as a result of the agitation over the Griffith film-drama, The Birth of a Nation, the Massachusetts legislature has authorized a suppression in Boston of films after the first public exhibition, on petition by citizens and subsequent action by a committee of the mayor, the chief of police and a municipal court judge. Already, as a matter of fact, Mayor Curley had, through his licensing and general police authority, exerted a fairly thorough pre-publicity censorship, largely in co-operation with the National Board of Censorship. The new committee, after viewing The Birth of a Nation, decided against repressing the film even though its own authorization had been granted with a view to such prohibition. A courageous act, but one well illustrating the caprices of censorship.

Bills providing for state censorship have been introduced and pressed in Indiana, Minnesota, Tennessee and New York. A similar measure is now pending in Illinois. A bill providing for a general federal censorship of motion-pictures has been before Congress for two years. In 1912-13, New York aldermen enacted an ordinance providing for compulsory legal censorship which was vetoed by Mayor Gaynor.

The federal Congress in its session of 1910-11 adopted a statute prohibiting the interstate shipment, or importation into the United States, of motion-pictures of prize fights. This law has recently been used to prohibit the importation of films from Havana depicting the Johnson-Willard fight. There is a clause in the Underwood tariff law, not as yet operative, authorizing the censorship of imported films by the secretary of the treasury.

From the above mere chronology of censorship (never assembled before) we may now pass to a nearer view of the two outstanding legal censorships—the State Board of Ohio and the police censorship of Chicago.

The Ohio film censorship has been the storm-center of controversy on this subject for more than a year. It is of classic type, legal, compulsory, all-inclusive, and is carried out in advance of the first public exhibition. It became of national interest through having occasioned the federal Supreme Court decision last winter, upholding censorship, which will be later discussed in these articles.

The Ohio board deserves, in all moderation, the name of "horrible example." It provides no ultimate argument against legal censorship; but it shows glaringly the ineptness and irresponsibility which is likely to characterize the political approach to this difficult issue. Scarcely had the Supreme Court issued its opinion that the Ohio censorship law involved no invasion of free discussion or of fundamental political rights, when the Ohio board proved the contrary. It condemned in toto, without e[illegible] tense of intelligible justification, a pre-drama, The Strike of Coaldale, [illegible] film in every detail, in its whole teno[illegible] which aim, represented the broader and [illegible] r and moderate type of controversial dr[illegible] more This drama did not incite to riot, [illegible]ma, definitely the contrary. It did not depict crime, it did not even indict a class of society; while showing the haughtiness of capital, it dwelt likewise on the impulsiveness of labor. Its sole offense was that it dramatized the victory of labor and mildly sided with the cause of labor.

The Ohio law was signed May 13, 1913. Under it, the State Industrial Commission, subject to the approval of the governor, appoints three censors, one of them a woman, to be paid $1,500 a year each. These censors are required to examine, prior to the first public exhibition, all films intended for public display within the state, and to certify "only such films as are, in the judgment and discretion of this board of censors, of a moral, educational or amusing and harmless character." All approved films are to be stamped and serially numbered, and before any film is publicly exhibited the words "Passed, etc.," together with the serial number of the film, shall be projected on the screen. The Ohio courts have been reluctant to enforce this last clause, an attitude which has complicated the operation of the law.

A charge of one dollar is made for each 1,000 foot reel, or fifteen minute show, inspected by the board. In addition, the board requires the purchase of its stamp of approval at the price of ten cents a foot for the "rider" which is attached to each certified film—a profit of about six cents a foot on "riders." The board's income from September 1, 1913, to August 1, 1914, was $21,755. Its expenditure was $13,957. This expenditure about equaled the expenditure of the National Board of Censorship of Motion Pictures for censoring and general executive work on a national scale for the same period.

Now for the Ohio board's methods of work. We have access to sworn testimony on this point, from the records of the United States District Court, Northern District of Ohio. J. A. Maddox, chairman of the Board of Censors, is recounting the board's work from September 22, 1913 to November 29, 1913, a period of slightly over two months. Says Mr. Maddox:

"We have censored [in that time] approximately between 7,000 and 8,000 reels." The record continues:

Q. "How many hours can you sit steadily and examine reels of films?"

A. "I have examined as many as twenty a day." (It requires fifteen minutes to show one reel.)

Q. "Do you three censors examine all of these pictures or reels at the same time and together, or separately; or how do you conduct your examinations?"

POLICE CENSORSHIP.

merican Attitude In Regard to "The Birth of a Nation."

'RSHIP was never popular in 'ca, wh[illegible] a certain freedom [illegible] th[illegible] ple, and therefore [illegible] ring on shock [illegible] ncement that the [illegible] of a Nation," was [illegible] the police author- [illegible] t seems that some [illegible] o its theme, taken [illegible] man." When that [illegible] own in Newark on [illegible] e, and another play [illegible] ger," was produced, [illegible] e riot, but a line is [illegible] really remarkable [illegible] which for months has [illegible] w York, and capti- [illegible] in many large cities. [illegible] is one of the greatest [illegible] irectors in the world, [illegible] eated "The Birth of a [illegible] odied historical truths [illegible] unt of kicking can [illegible] ficture was passed by [illegible] oard of Censorship, a [illegible] nded men and women [illegible] they are doing. For [illegible] d, or its president, or [illegible] ative, to censor such [illegible] event its presentation [illegible] called for. It cannot [illegible] any other way except- [illegible] ne is playing politics, [illegible] prudish supercilious- [illegible] l the heads of these [illegible] Darn if it wouldn't [illegible] man suffrage!

OF NATION" IS CAN GO ON

lor Tentatively Makes t Injunction Obtained
Police Interference.

TY RULING FOLLOWED

a recent decree of Chan- [illegible] r in a similar case, Vice [illegible] owell today tentatively an- [illegible] he would make permanent [illegible] against the Board of Po- [illegible] ners restraining any in- [illegible] the production of the [illegible] The Birth of a Nation," [illegible] bited at the Newark Theancellor did not make his [illegible] as he said he would first [illegible] ase in Atlantic City de- [illegible] cellor Walker to the case [illegible] etermine whether or not [illegible] governed each.

glish, attorney for the [illegible] g Company, owners of the [illegible] Hyde & Behman Amuse- [illegible] ssees of the theater, [illegible] a temporary injunction [illegible] olice officials, called the [illegible] 's attention to the simi- [illegible] he part of the authorities [illegible] ty to prevent the produc- [illegible] ture play there.

ade Amusement Company [illegible] injunction fom Chancel- [illegible] and a decree was subse- [illegible] red making the injunc- [illegible] nt. Mr. Conover said the [illegible] case were the same in [illegible] those presented here. [illegible] chancellor declared that [illegible] bound by the decree of [illegible] r, if, as Mr. English con- [illegible] cases were parallel. He [illegible] d read over the bill in the [illegible] case for comparison. In [illegible] the chancellor permitted [illegible] on of "The Birth of a Na- [illegible] ining the police from inlisch opposed the injunc- [illegible] ground that the court was [illegible] with the exercise of hon- [illegible] by the police in matters [illegible] the maintenance of the peace.

The continuance of the production of the photo play was opposed by George A. Douglas, who said he appeared in the interest of a number of colored citizens.

Argument by Attorneys.

Mr. Kalisch, in opposing the police injunction, confined his remarks to its relationship to the curbing of the police power and court interference in cases where there was "an honest belief that there might be a breach of the peace." The attorney said he was not familiar with the Atlantic City case referred to, but thought the present matter was purely a local question.

face new and most trying conditions upon their emancipation, and to those of their descendants who have made wonderful progress and are today working out their problems with energy and intelligence. Wherever they have made their protests there have been such measures of concession as authority warranted.

The film is based upon "The Clansman," the dramatic version which The News-Press vigorously censured when it was presented in St. Joseph because of its plain intent to give presentation to matters that offend decency and inspire race hatred. We said then that this play was unfair, un-American, harmful and an altogether uncessary presentation of conditions that were brought about by processes of social and political evolution during the chaotic period of reconstruction. The same may be said in truth of those portions of the film which, through well directed efforts, have been deleted from the presentation in St. Joseph.

It is com[illegible]ndable that Mayor Marshall, the [illegible]estors, Manager Philley of the L[illegible]tre and the exhibitors have com[illegible] to an agreement for the eliminati[illegible] of such portions of this film as [illegible] in any way put the colored people [illegible] St. Joseph into a shameful [illegible] position [illegible]

Delegation Asks That If the Film Is Allowed to Be Shown Sensational Scenes Be Eliminated—Fear Racial Trouble.

A delegation of negro professional and business men waited on Mayor Marshall in his office at the city hall this forenoon and asked his either to prohibit the exhibition in St. Joseph of "The Birth of a Nation," billed for the Lyceum Theater for the week beginning Nov. 23, or to order the elimination of sensational scenes which, they asserted, were inclined to cause racial disturbances.

Charles L. Faust, city counsel[illegible] was called into the conference [illegible] said there is no city ordinance [illegible] empowering the mayor to censor m[illegible]ving pictures. The delegation was advised to take the matter up with C. U. Philley, manager of the Lyceum, with a view to having a committee witness and criticise the photoplay before it is shown to the public.

The negroes did not [illegible] [illegible]ar part of the film to which they objected, but said that racial troubles had occurred in other cities where the picture was permitted to be shown in its original form.

Feared Racial Troubles.

"'The Birth of a Nation' is advertised to be shown in St. Joseph soon, and we have come to enter a protest," said Dr. W. S. Carrion, who was spokesman for the delegation. "Between 8,000 and 9,000 negroes are living in St. Joseph, peaceable and [illegible]. The negro situation in [illegible] is better than it is in any other [illegible]

other case which came up in Atlantic City last summer were the same he would continue the injunction, Vice-Chancellor Howell today reserved decision on a motion to make permanent his order restraining the police of this city from interfering with the presentation of the film play, "The Birth of a Nation." He only reserved decision because he wanted to examine the papers in the Atlantic City case, saying that he would determine the matter shortly.

The motion picture company, the Epoch Producing Corporation, was represented by Conover English, of McCarter & English, and the Newark Theater management by George M. Keasby.

City Attorney Harry Kalisch, arguing for the police board, told the vice-chancellor that the only question he was interested in was whether or not the Court of Chancery court enjoin the exercise of police powers by the city government. He expressed the belief that the court would not interfere.

The vice-chancellor said that he believed that Chancellor Walker considered that phase of the case in the Atlantic City matter.

George A. Douglas, representing several associations of negroes, said that the picture was apt to have a subtle influence, creating prejudice against the negro race in the mind of white men.

concerning the maintenance of the peace.

The continuance of the production of the photo play was opposed by George A. Douglas, who said he appeared in the interest of a number of colored citizens.

Argument by Attorneys.

Mr. Kalisch, in opposing the police injunction, confined his remarks to its relationship to the curbing of the police power and court interference in cases where there was "an honest belief that there might be a breach of the peace." The attorney said he was not familiar with the Atlantic City case referred to, but thought the present matter was purely a local question.

[illegible] commission over movie[illegible] 'The Birth of a Nation' [illegible] llowed to be shown

MOTION THE SURVEY NEW YORK
AUG 7 1915

Again: "Flash (i. e., eliminate all but a glimpse of) nine scenes showing fairy in filmy garment." And "Cut out pictures of illegitimate baby." Yet again: "Cut out sub-title, 'Rebellious and crying that a curse is upon her. Betty enters the Twilight Sleep!'"

As noted above, the ratio of films changed in some detail by the Chicago board to those condemned altogether, is about twenty to one. This is true of all other censoring agencies. The wisdom and effectiveness of film censorship depends almost wholly on the judgment used in requiring piecemeal eliminations. The most definite criticism which can be made against the Chicago board is that it tends to view details without reference to the contexts in which they occur; whereas in drama, the parts, be they scenes or words, exist mainly with reference to a total effect and get their emotional or ethical meaning from the whole of which they are the product. The over-emphasis or misplacement of a detail in drama is bad art; it may also be bad morals. But this over-emphasis or misplacement is a question for determination, and must be approached from the standpoint of the total interest or effect of the drama which is being considered, judged in relation to the mental tendencies of the audience.

Verily, an elusive quest! It is the Dark Tower of the Childe Roland of censorship, if not of art itself.

The writer has for years indulged in a leisure-time amusement, at once romantic and comic in its results. Take any list of scenes and titles eliminated by a censor of motion-pictures. Read it, and mentally reconstruct the drama from which the scenes are ordered cut out. Write down your result; then go and view the actual film, preferably as it stood before excisions were ordered. Hardly ever will you recognize this original. You will find that you have constructed something different and new, generally far more gory and far more enticing than the condemned film.

This experience, which is, incidentally, a hint to scenario writers in quest of new plots, will be a very suggestive one and will help you to understand why any board of censorship is likely to be inconsistent with its own previous findings and still more at variance with each and every other board of censorship in existence.

Some excerpts follow, chosen at random from the orders of the Chicago board:

The Mystery of St. Martin's Bridge. Cut out: Close view of girl's attempt to brand man with iron; entire scene of man entering and remaining in girl's bedroom; subtitle, "That is the man who ruined me; I killed him"; vision of execution showing axe descending on girl's neck.

Thorns of Passion. Cut out: Man taking child from crib and leaving house through window; three scenes of gypsies with child; two scenes of snake crawling to child; burning child's arm; binding girl's hands; all scenes showing girl being dragged by animal.

The Unafraid. Cut out: Poisoning drink; binding girl; shorten drinking scenes; cut out man stabbing himself.

The Lost House. Cut out: Eight scenes of shooting at and falling of policeman; three scenes of shooting at and falling of militia; shooting at and falling of firemen; pouring oil on stairs in arson scene.

The Hateful God. Cut out subtitles: "If God did that, I hate him"; "You are from the church? I hate God. I hate you."

Across the Continent. Fourth inspection. Permit refused because this picture shows four murders, numerous gambling scenes, jail breaking, robbery, abduction, suicide and delirium tremens.

Among the dramatized classics prohibited or altered by the Chicago board during this eight months were the following: Jane Eyre, Sappho, The Second Mrs. Tanqueray, Stevenson's The Suicide Club, Oliver Twist, and the Kreuzer Sonata.

If before leaving this near view of legal censorship at work, the writer were to state his own net impression, it would be that of irresponsibility in the case of the Ohio board, of pathetic and almost lovable futility in the case of the Chicago board.

Not that the Chicago work is of no use at all. Films are shown in their original purity or impurity to the Chicago board and to the National Board of Censorship at the same time; Chicago is within the territory covered by the national board, so that much of the gross abuse prohibited by the Chicago board would be prohibited if there were no Chicago board. Yet beyond this zone of duplication there remains a zone of error by the national board, of local preference peculiar to Chicago, which is efficiently controlled by the local action at Chicago.

It is only when judged by the standard of what it attempts to do, and is assumed to be doing, that the Chicago board appears as relatively futile. Let us glance at the above list of eliminations and recall again, what was suggested above, that drama simply cannot be censored, just as it is not produced and is not witnessed by the audience, through any mere snatching out of episode and phrases from their contexts. Every competently produced drama is deep-dyed with its own burthen, its own struggle and meaning. This is no less true of melodrama than it is of high tragedy. To mutilate a dramatic film 1,000 feet long by cutting two feet here, ten feet there, may irritate the dramatist and perplex the audience but it will not often change the direction, moral or immoral, of the total production.

We have said that the Chicago board errs through trying to isolate the particular scene or phrase from its dramatic context. Let us, in concluding the present article, avoid making in our own problem an identical error. The censorship of motion-pictures has its real meaning in relation to two issues. One of these is the radical, permanent improvement of the film art, educationally and socially viewed. The other is the widening and deepening of human freedom, the achievement of an ever broadening, not narrowing, liberty and facility in the transmission of opinion and influence. A profound thought of Prof. John Dewey's, recently expressed, confronts us: "We have to recognize that the furtherance of the depth and width of human intercourse is the measure of civilization."

Most states and most cities, when viewed from the standpoint of the censorship problem, are practically as heterogenious as is the entire country. No censorship, whether voluntary or legal, under existing fundamental laws and trade conditions, can direct the use or restrict the audience of any film after it is once approved.

It is this condition, largely limiting even the National Board, which vitiates legal censorship, local or national. To break this condition, to liberate the film art and positively guide its development and its use—this is the dominant need in the improvement of films. Those who recognize it and understand it are likely to regard censorship as a side issue and a diversion from the real need and the immediately practicable solution.

Our second wider question is the bearing of film censorship or theatrical censorship on freedom in general. The Chicago and Ohio censorship boards do not stand alone. We have traced the growth of theatrical censorship from Boston to California. Readers of THE SURVEY, with Colorado and the Wharton School and Pat Quinlan in mind, and the Sanger case and the federal censorship of mails, will detect still wid meaning—shall we say, menace?—in movement.

Possibly the whole history of th ject will in the future be seen to departure from the federal Court decision of February 1 decision upheld motion pict ship, and by direct implica cal censorship in all forr a radical breach in wha by plain people, been re stitutional guaranty. cision our whole disc sorship must nece to it, the next ar devoted.

Joseph (Mr) Bulletin, (N.Y.)

ROES' PROTEST SOME RTH OF NATION' SCENES

rt They Tend to Race Trou-le—Philley Says It Will Run Same as in K. C. ommittee representative of the ne- of the city called upon Mayor nal and C. U. Philley, manager of yceum theater, yesterday, in an to have certain scenes of "The of a Nation" cut out, when the n is shown here. The committee d there were some scenes which tend to provoke race trouble. did not specify just what part or of the picture they referred to. the city hall it was explained to bers of the committee that the city ances did not give extended power ensoring motion pictures, and the ation was advised to visit Philley. the Lyceum the committee was ed that the motion picture would own here just the same as it was ansas City. There, it is understood, all portion was cut out for this n.

ter the visit of the committee to yceum, Manager Philley made the wing statement on the matter:

e will play 'The Birth of a Nation' Joseph exactly as it is being pre- d in Kansas City during its five s' run there. There is nothing in great spectacle to which any rican citizen can object. It does cause racial disturbances. "The of a Nation" has been given in York City for over 700 perform- in Boston for over 600 perform- and the same in Chicago. There been over 200 performances each iladelphia, Pittsburg and St. Louis. such a record it is absurd to say it causes trouble. If it did it d not be running so long in the e-named cities, and cities, by the all of which have very large col- populations."

ong those in the committee which d the protest were: Dr. W. S. on, Dr. J. R. A. Crossland, E. F. ey, F. U. Goodson, H. J. Herring A. Motron.

for an early natl.

standards, even if practicable from the standpoint of that drama which is always positive, always adventurous and always changing, would not be adopted by the film-makers. Due to this fact, the Chicago board must ever limit its work, in the main, to destruction, either complete or piecemeal, of dramas already produced. But this having been said, unstinted recognition must be given to the hard-working honesty of the force in charge of censoring and their ready co-operation with social workers of Chicago; and to the attention paid by these unofficial helpers to the problem steadily over a term of years.

Space is utterly lacking for an adequate description of the Chicago board's methods and results. A glance at its bulletins for the eight months ending June 25, 1915, yields the following results:

The board censored between 6,000 and 7,000 reels (an approximate estimate based on the output of films in that time). Of these, the board wholly prohibited sixty-eight; it ordered one or more eliminations in 1,300 others.

Of the sixty-eight prohibited films, ten were condemned for violations of neutrality. The Chicago board is thoroughly neutral. It condemned a British enlistment plea and forbade the mention of Our Kaiser. The Austro-Servian [?] Film Company got one of its subjects past after twenty-three eliminations. The Prince of Peace, its title notwithstanding, was condemned in toto for presenting scenes of war.

Offenses against religion and disparagement of officers of the law are treated sternly by the Chicago board. Among scenes, descriptive titles and films offending in the latter respect are the following: Application of the third degree by police; the bribing of a politician; brutal handling of prisoners by police; bribing of a policeman; prison guards failing to preserve order; verbal mention of third degree; bribing of a detective; theft of a police uniform; love scene between a married woman and an army officer.

The offenses against religion, condemned by the board, vary from the payment of money to crooks by church deacons, to blasphemy and attacks against the alleged cupidity of ministers of the gospel.

Nudity fares hard in Chicago. Not merely nude models, but models "undraped below the knees," are ordered eliminated from the film. The notable film-drama, The Hypocrites, a delicately handled and morally purposeful bit of genuine art and preachment, was prohibited because it showed a nude figure. With this bias of the Chicago board there seems to go a more obscure prejudice, shown in the condemnation of the multiple-reel drama, Il Pagliacci, on the ground that "the entire first reel shows an enciente woman."

THE CENSORSHIP PROBLEMS OF THE PROBLEM PLAY

SCENES from The Story of Wheat, dramatized from Frank Norris' The Pit, by the Biograph Company: I The toiler sowing the grain; II the plunger gambling in wheat, in order, III to meet his expenses in riotous living (this scene would be trimmed or cut out entirely by many of the censoring agencies); IV the bread-winners are affected when the "corner" in wheat forces up the price of bread; V but personal responsibility is enforced and the plunger, disgraced, commits suicide (pictures of suicide are nearly always prohibited or toned down by the censors).

THIS film puts before the censors a problem play with elements of temptation, crime and punishment. Shall women be permitted to carouse on the screen? Is the showing of suicide justifiable? The underlying problem of censorship is, How can such questions be settled with a view to the audiences, ranging in age from three years to seventy, which will witness this film?

I.

II.

III.

IV.

V.

face new and most trying conditions upon their emancipation, and to those of their descendants who have made wonderful progress and are today working out their problems with energy and intelligence. Wherever they have made their protests there have been such measures of concession as authority warranted.

The film is based upon "The Clansman," the dramatic version which The News-Press vigorously censured when it was presented in St. Joseph because of its plain intent to give presentation to matters that offend decency and inspire race hatred. We said then that this play was unfair, un-American, harmful and an altogether uncessary presentation of conditions that were brought about by processes of social and political evolution during the chaotic period of reconstruction. The same may be said in truth of those portions of the film which, through well directed efforts, have been deleted from the presentation in St. Joseph.

It is commendable that Mayor Marshall, the protestors, Manager Philley of the Lyceum and the exhibitors have come to an agreement for the elimination of such portions of this film as in any way put the colored people of St. Joseph into a shameful [illegible]

Delegation Asks That If the Film Is Allowed to Be Shown Sensational Scenes Be Eliminated—Fear Racial Trouble.

A delegation of negro professional and business men waited on Mayor Marshall in his office at the city hall this forenoon and asked hir either to prohibit the exhibition in St. Joseph of "The Birth of a Nation," billed for the Lyceum Theater for the week beginning Nov. 8, or to order the elimination of sensational scenes which, they asserted, were inclined to cause racial disturbances.

Charles L. Faust, city counsel[illegible] was called into the conference [illegible] said there is no city ordinance [illegible] empowering the mayor to censor moving pictures. The delegation was advised to take the matter up with C. U. Philley, manager of the Lyceum, with a view to having a committee witness and criticise the photoplay before it is shown to the public.

The [illegible] any part of the film to which they objected, but said that racial troubles had occurred in other cities where the picture was permitted to be shown in its original form.

Feared Racial Troubles.

"'The Birth of a Nation' is advertised to be shown in St. Joseph soon, and we have come to enter a protest," said Dr. W. S. Carrion, who was spokesman for the delegation. "Between 5,000 and 6,000 negroes are living in St. Joseph, peaceably and happily. The negro situation in this [illegible] is better than it is in any other [illegible]

other case which came up in Atlantic City last summer were the same he would continue the injunction, Vice-Chancellor Howell today reserved decision on a motion to make permanent his order restraining the police of this city from interfering with the presentation of the film play, "The Birth of a Nation." He only reserved decision because he wanted to examine the papers in the Atlantic City case, saying that he would determine the matter shortly.

The motion picture company, the Epoch Producing Corporation, was represented by Conover English, of McCarter & English, and the Newark Theater management by George M. Keasby.

City Attorney Harry Kalisch, arguing for the police board, told the vice-chancellor that the only question he was interested in was whether or not the Court of Chancery court enjoin the exercise of police powers by the city government. He expressed the belief that the court would not interfere.

The vice-chancellor said that he believed that Chancellor Walker considered that phase of the case in the Atlantic City matter.

George A. Douglas, representing several associations of negroes, said that the picture was apt to have a subtle influence, creating prejudice against the negro race in the mind of white men.

concerning the maintenance of the peace.

The continuance of the production of the photo play was opposed by George A. Douglas, who said he appeared in the interest of a number of colored citizens.

Argument by Attorneys.

Mr. Kalisch, in opposing the police injunction, confined his remarks to its relationship to the curbing of the police power and court interference in cases where there was "an honest belief that there might be a breach of the peace." The attorney said he was not familiar with the Atlantic City case referred to, but thought the present matter was purely a local question.

[illegible] the idea that the chancellor differs [illegible] clan and a nurse. In spite of this care, [illegible] quired the close attention of the physi[illegible] Hahn the condition of the lad's arm re[illegible] after the boy was vaccinated by Dr. [illegible] the fact that for almost a month [illegible] was pitched by the society [illegible] Interest Grew.

[illegible] society [illegible] the beginning of the present [illegible]

Dr. Coffee declared in his statement that the Robinson case is one of four that have been brought to the attention of the society [illegible] the beginning of the present [illegible] longer.

Dr. Coffee said that the boy, Robinson, ending the boy, declared there was no earth H. Yoelel, the physician now attending the boy, informed the News that Dr. Benjamin is spreading and that there is a spreading infection. Mrs. Robinson today informed the News that Dr. Benjamin H. Yoelel, the physician now attendant relates that the sore on the child's [illegible]

[illegible] commission over movie[illegible] "The Birth of a Nation" [illegible] allowed to be shown.

ENSORSHIP.

itude In Regard to of a Nation."

as never popular in a certain freedom ple, and therefore ring on shock ncement that the of a Nation," was the police author- t seems that some o' its theme, taken man." When that own in Newark on e, and another play ger," was produced, e riot, but a line is really remarkable which for months has w York, and capti- in many large cities. is one of the greatest irectors in the world, eated "The Birth of a bdied historical truths unt of kicking can icture was passed by oard of Censorship, a nded men and women they are doing. For d, or its president, or ative, to censor such event its presentation called for. It cannot any other way except- ne is playing politics, prudish supercillious- l the heads of these Darn if it wouldn't man suffrage!

OF NATION" IS CAN GO ON

lor Tentatively Makes t Injunction Obtained Police Interference.

TY RULING FOLLOWED

a recent decree of Chan- in a similar case, Vice well today tentatively an- e would make permanent against the Board of Po- ners restraining any in- n the production of the The Birth of a Nation," bited at the Newark Theancellor did not make his as he said he would first ase in Atlantic City de- cellor Walker to the case etermine whether or not governed each.

glish, attorney for the g Company, owners of the Hyde & Behman Amuse- essees of the theater, a temporary injunction olice officials, called the 's attention to the simi- he part of the authorities ty to prevent the produc- ture play there.

ade Amusement Company injunction fom Chancel- and a decree was subse- red making the injunc- nt. Mr. Conover said the case were the same in hose presented here.

chancellor declared that bound by the decree of r, if, as Mr. English con- cases were parallel. He read over the bill in the case for comparison. In the chancellor permitted n of "The Birth of a Na- ining the police from inisch opposed the injunc- ground that the court was with the exercise of hon- n by the police in matters

MOTION PICTURE SURVEY, NEW YORK
AUG 7 1915

Again: "Flash (i. e., eliminate all but a glimpse of) nine scenes showing fairy in filmy garment." And "Cut out pictures of illegitimate baby." Yet again: "Cut out sub-title, 'Rebellious and crying that a curse is upon her. Betty enters the Twilight Sleep!'"

As noted above, the ratio of films changed in some detail by the Chicago board to those condemned altogether, is about twenty to one. This is true of all other censoring agencies. The wisdom and effectiveness of film censorship depends almost wholly on the judgment, used in requiring piecemeal eliminations. The most definite criticism which can be made against the Chicago board is that it tends to view details without reference to the contexts in which they occur; whereas in drama, the parts, be they scenes or words, exist mainly with reference to a total effect and get their emotional or ethical meaning from the whole of which they are the product. The over-emphasis or misplacement of a detail in drama is bad art; it may also be bad morals. But this over-emphasis or misplacement is a question for determination, and must be approached from the standpoint of the total interest or effect of the drama which is being considered, judged in relation to the mental tendencies of the audience.

Verily, an elusive quest! It is the Dark Tower of the Childe Roland of censorship, if not of art itself.

The writer has for years indulged in a leisure-time amusement, at once romantic and comic in its results. Take any list of scenes and titles eliminated by a censor of motion-pictures. Read it, and mentally reconstruct the drama from which the scenes are ordered cut out. Write down your result; then go and view the actual film, preferably as it stood before excisions were ordered. Hardly ever will you recognize this original. You will find that you have constructed something different and new, generally far more gory and far more enticing than the condemned film.

This experience, which is, incidentally, a hint to scenario writers in quest of new plots, will be a very suggestive one and will help you to understand why any board of censorship is likely to be inconsistent with its own previous findings and still more at variance with each and every other board of censorship in existence.

Some excerpts follow, chosen at random from the orders of the Chicago board:

The Mystery of St. Martin's Bridge. Cut out: Close view of girl's attempt to brand man with iron; entire scene of man entering and remaining in girl's bedroom; subtitle, "That is the man who ruined me; I killed him"; vision of execution showing axe descending on girl's neck.

Thorns of Passion. Cut out: Man taking child from crib and leaving house through window; three scenes of gypsies with child; two scenes of snake crawling to child; burning child's arm; binding girl's hands; all scenes showing girl being dragged by animal.

The Unafraid. Cut out: Poisoning drink; binding girl; shorten drinking scenes; cut out man stabbing himself.

The Lost House. Cut out: Eight scenes of shooting at and falling of policeman; three scenes of shooting at and falling of militia; shooting at and falling of firemen; pouring oil on stairs in arson scene.

The Hateful God. Cut out subtitles: "If God did that, I hate him"; "You are from the church? I hate God. I hate you."

Across the Continent. Fourth inspection. Permit refused because this picture shows four murders, numerous gambling scenes, jail breaking, robbery, abduction, suicide and delirium tremens.

Among the dramatized classics prohibited or altered by the Chicago board during this eight months were the following: Jane Eyre, Sappho, The Second Mrs. Tanqueray, Stevenson's The Suicide Club, Oliver Twist, and the Kreuzer Sonata.

If before leaving this near view of legal censorship at work, the writer were to state his own net impression, it would be that of irresponsibility in the case of the Ohio board, of pathetic and almost lovable futility in the case of the Chicago board.

Not that the Chicago work is of no use at all. Films are shown in their original purity or impurity to the Chicago board and to the National Board of Censorship at the same time; Chicago is within the territory covered by the national board, so that much of the gross abuse prohibited by the Chicago board would be prohibited if there were no Chicago board. Yet beyond this zone of duplication there remains a zone of error by the national board, of local preference peculiar to Chicago, which is efficiently controlled by the local action at Chicago.

It is only when judged by the standard of what it attempts to do, and is assumed to be doing, that the Chicago board appears as relatively futile. Let us glance at the above list of eliminations and recall again, what was suggested above, that drama simply cannot be censored, just as it is not produced and is not witnessed by the audience, through any mere snatching out of episode and phrases from their contexts. Every competently produced drama is deep-dyed with its own burthen, its own struggle and meaning. This is no less true of melodrama than it is of high tragedy. To mutilate a dramatic film 1,000 feet long by cutting five feet here, ten feet there, may irritate the dramatist and perplex the audience, but it will not often change the direction, moral or immoral, of the total production.

We have said that the Chicago board errs through trying to isolate the particular scene or phrase from its dramatic context. Let us, in concluding the present article, avoid making in our own problem an identical error. The censorship of motion-pictures has its real meaning in relation to two issues. One of these is the radical, permanent improvement of the film art, educationally and socially viewed. The other is the widening and deepening of human freedom, the achievement of an ever broadening, not narrowing, liberty and facility in the transmission of opinion and influence. A profound thought of Prof. John Dewey's, recently expressed, confronts us: "We have to recognize that the furtherance of the depth and width of human intercourse is the measure of civilization."

Most states and most cities, when viewed from the standpoint of the censorship problem, are practically as heterogenous as is the entire country. No censorship, whether voluntary or legal, under existing fundamental laws and trade conditions, can direct the use or restrict the audience of any film after it is once approved.

It is this condition, largely limiting even the National Board, which makes legal censorship, local or national. To break this condition, to liberate the film art and positively guide its development and its use—this is the dominant need in the improvement of films. Those who recognize it and understand it are likely to regard censorship as a side issue and a diversion from the real need and the immediately practicable solution.

Our second wider question is the bearing of film censorship or theatrical censorship on freedom in general. The Chicago and Ohio censorship boards do not stand alone. We have traced the growth of theatrical censorship from Boston to California. Readers of THE SURVEY, with Colorado and the Wharton School and Pat Quinlan in mind, and the Sanger case and the federal censorship of mails, will detect still wider meaning—shall we say, menace?—in the movement.

Possibly the whole history of this subject will in the future be seen to take its departure from the federal Supreme Court decision of February last. This decision upheld motion picture censorship, and by direct implication theatrical censorship in all forms, and made a radical breach in what has hitherto, by plain people, been regarded as a constitutional guaranty. Around this decision our whole discussion of legal censorship must necessarily crystallize; to it, the next article will be largely devoted.

Joseph (Mo) Gazette (Mo.)

...ROES PROTEST SOME ...RTH OF NATION' SCENES

...rt They Tend to Race Trou... ...le—Philley Says It Will Run Same as in K. C.

...mmittee representative of the ne... ... of the city called upon Mayor ...al and C. U. Philley, manager of ...yceum theater, yesterday, in an ... to have certain scenes of "The ... of a Nation" cut out, when the ...n is shown here. The committee ...d there were some scenes which ...d tend to provoke race trouble. ... did not specify just what part or ... of the picture they referred to. ... the city hall it was explained to ...bers of the committee that the city ...ances did not give extended power ...ensoring motion pictures, and the ...ation was advised to visit Philley. ... the Lyceum the committee was ...ed that the motion picture would ...own here just the same as it was ...nsas City. There, it is understood, ...all portion was cut out for this ...n.

...er the visit of the committee to ...yceum, Manager Philley made the ...wing statement on the matter:

...e will play 'The Birth of a Nation' ... Joseph exactly as it is being pre...d in Kansas City during its five ...s' run there. There is nothing in ... great spectacle to which any ...rican citizen can object. It does ...cause racial disturbances. "The ... of a Nation" has been given in ... York City for over 700 perform..., in Boston for over 600 perform..., and the same in Chicago. There ... been over 200 performances each ...iladelphia, Pittsburg and St. Louis. ... such a record it is absurd to say ... it causes trouble. If it did it ...d not be running so long in the ...e-named cities, and cities, by the ... all of which have very large col... populations."

...ong those in the committee which ...d the protest were: Dr. W. S. ...on, Dr. J. R. A. Crossland, E. F. ...sey, F. U. Goodson, H. J. Herring ...A. Motron.

for an early
nati.

standards, even if practicable from the standpoint of that drama which is always positive, always adventurous and always changing, would not be adopted by the film-makers. Due to this fact, the Chicago board must ever limit its work, in the main, to destruction, either complete or piecemeal, of dramas already produced. But this having been said, unstinted recognition must be given to the hard-working honesty of the force in charge of censoring and their ready co-operation with social workers of Chicago; and to the attention paid by these unofficial helpers to the problem steadily over a term of years.

Space is utterly lacking for an adequate description of the Chicago board's methods and results. A glance at its bulletins for the eight months ending June 25, 1915, yields the following results:

The board censored between 6,000 and 7,000 reels (an approximate estimate based on the output of films in that time). Of these, the board wholly prohibited sixty-eight; it ordered one or more eliminations in 1,300 others.

Of the sixty-eight prohibited films, ten were condemned for violations of neutrality. The Chicago board is thoroughly neutral. It condemned a British enlistment plea and forbade the mention of Our Kaiser. The Austro-Servian [?] Film Company got one of its subjects past after twenty-three eliminations. The Prince of Peace, its title notwithstanding, was condemned in toto for presenting scenes of war.

Offenses against religion and disparagement of officers of the law are treated sternly by the Chicago board. Among scenes, descriptive titles and films offending in the latter respect are the following: Application of the third degree by police; the bribing of a politician; brutal handling of prisoners by police; bribing of a policeman; prison guards failing to preserve order; verbal mention of third degree; bribing of a detective; theft of a police uniform; love scene between a married woman and an army officer.

The offenses against religion, condemned by the board, vary from the payment of money to crooks by church deacons, to blasphemy and attacks against the alleged cupidity of ministers of the gospel.

Nudity fares hard in Chicago. Not merely nude models, but models "undraped below the knees," are ordered eliminated from the film. The notable film-drama, The Hypocrites, a delicately handled and morally purposeful bit of genuine art and preachment, was prohibited because it showed a nude figure. With this bias of the Chicago board there seems to go a more obscure prejudice, shown in the condemnation of the multiple-reel drama, Il Pagliacci, on the ground that "the entire first reel shows an enciente woman."

THE CENSORSHIP PROBLEMS OF THE PROBLEM PLAY

SCENES from The Story of Wheat, dramatized from Frank Norris' The Pit, by the Biograph Company: I The toiler sowing the grain; II the plunger gambling in wheat, in order, III to meet his expenses in riotous living (this scene would be trimmed or cut out entirely by many of the censoring agencies); IV the bread-winners are affected when the "corner" in wheat forces up the price of bread; V but personal responsibility is enforced and the plunger, disgraced, commits suicide (pictures of suicide are nearly always prohibited or toned down by the censors).

THIS film puts before the censors a problem play with elements of temptation, crime and punishment. Shall women be permitted to carouse on the screen? Is the showing of suicide justifiable? The underlying problem of censorship is, How can such questions be settled with a view to the audiences, ranging in age from three years to seventy, which will witness this film?

I.

II.

III.

IV.

V.

ENSORSHIP.

itude In Regard to of a Nation."

as never popular in a certain freedom ple, and therefore ring on shock ncement that the of a Nation," was the police author- t seems that some o its theme, taken man." When that own in Newark on e, and another play ger," was produced, e riot, but a line is really remarkable which for months has ew York, and capti- in many large cities. is one of the greatest irectors in the world, ated "The Birth of a odied historical truths unt of kicking can icture was passed by oard of Censorship, a nded men and women they are doing. For d, or its president, or ative, to censor such event its presentation called for. It cannot any other way except- ne is playing politics, prudish supercilious- l the heads of these Darn if it wouldn't man suffrage!

OF NATION" IS CAN GO ON

lor Tentatively Makes t Injunction Obtained Police Interference.

TY RULING FOLLOWED

a recent decree of Chan- in a similar case, Vice vell today tentatively an- e would make permanent against the Board of Po- ners restraining any in- the production of the The Birth of a Nation," bited at the Newark Theancellor did not make his as he said he would first ase in Atlantic City de- cellor Walker to the case termine whether or not governed each.

glish, attorney for the g Company, owners of the Hyde & Behman Amuse- ssees of the theater, a temporary injunction olice officials, called the 's attention to the simi- he part of the authorities ty to prevent the produc- ture play there.

ade Amusement Company injunction fom Chancel- nd a decree was subse- red making the injunc- nt. Mr. Conover said the case were the same in hose presented here.

chancellor declared that bound by the decree of r, if, as Mr. English con- cases were parallel. He read over the bill in the case for comparison. In the chancellor permitted n of "The Birth of a Na- ining the police from inisch opposed the injunc- round that the court was with the exercise of hon- by the police in matters concerning the maintenance of the peace.

The continuance of the production of the photo play was opposed by George A. Douglas, who said he appeared in the interest of a number of colored citizens.

Argument by Attorneys.

Mr. Kalisch, in opposing the police injunction, confined his remarks to its relationship to the curbing of the police power and court interference in cases where there was "an honest belief that there might be a breach of the peace." The attorney said he was not familiar with the Atlantic City case referred to, but thought the present matter was purely a local question.

The idea that the chancellor differed [illegible] upon the fact that for almost a month after the boy was vaccinated by Dr. Hahn the condition of the lad's arm required the close attention of the physician and a nurse. In spite of this care, [illegible] was placed by the society [illegible] infection grew.

Dr. Collins declared in his statement that the Robinson case is one of four that have been brought to the attention of the society since the beginning of the present action.

[illegible] the boy, declared there was no [illegible] H. Voelel, the physician now attending the boy's mother, testified the Robinson mother informed the News-Press that Dr. Hahn's [illegible] infection, Mrs. Robinson [illegible] ment relates that the sore on the child's arm is spreading and that there is evidence of serious infection.

face new and most trying conditions upon their emancipation, and to those of their descendants who have made wonderful progress and are today working out their problems with energy and intelligence. Wherever they have made their protests there have been such measures of concession as authority warranted.

The film is based upon "The Clansman," the dramatic version which The News-Press vigorously censured when it was presented in St. Joseph because of its plain intent to give presentation to matters that offend decency and inspire race hatred. We said then that this play was unfair, un-American, harmful and an altogether unnecessary presentation of conditions that were brought about by processes of social and political evolution during the chaotic period of reconstruction. The same may be said in truth of those portions of the film which, through well directed efforts, have been deleted from the presentation in St. Joseph.

It is commendable that Mayor Marshall, the protestors, Manager Philley of the Lyceum and the exhibitors have come to an agreement for the elimination of such portions of this film as [illegible] in any way put the colored people of St. Joseph into a shameful [illegible] position as coun-

Delegation Asks That If the Film is Allowed to Be Shown Sensational Scenes Be Eliminated—Fear Racial Trouble.

A delegation of negro professional and business men waited on Mayor Marshall in his office at the city hall this forenoon and asked his either to prohibit the exhibition in St. Joseph of "The Birth of a Nation," billed for the Lyceum Theater for the week beginning Nov. 8, or to order the elimination of sensational scenes which, they asserted, were inclined to cause racial disturbances.

Charles L. Faust, city counselor, was called into the conference and said there is no city ordinance [illegible] empowering the mayor to censor moving pictures. The delegation was advised to take the matter up with C. U. Philley, manager of the Lyceum, with a view to having a committee witness and criticise the photoplay before it is shown to the public.

The negroes did not ap[illegible] any particular part of the film to which they objected, but said that racial troubles had occurred in other cities where the picture was permitted to be shown in its original form.

Feared Racial Troubles.

"'The Birth of a Nation' is advertised to be shown in St. Joseph soon, and we have come to enter a protest," said Dr. W. S. Carrion, who was spokesman for the delegation. "Between 5,000 and 6,000 negroes are living in St. Joseph, peaceful and happily. The negro situation in [illegible] is better than it is in any other [illegible]

other case which came up in Atlantic City last summer were the same he would continue the injunction, Vice-Chancellor Howell today reserved decision on a motion to make permanent his order restraining the police of this city from interfering with the presentation of the film play, "The Birth of a Nation." He only reserved decision because he wanted to examine the papers in the Atlantic City case, saying that he would determine the matter shortly.

The motion picture company, the Epoch Producing Corporation, was represented by Conover English, of McCarter & English, and the Newark Theater management by George M. Keasby.

City Attorney Harry Kalisch, arguing for the police board, told the vice-chancellor that the only question he was interested in was whether or not the Court of Chancery court enjoin the exercise of police powers by the city government. He expressed the belief that the court would not interfere.

The vice-chancellor said that he believed that Chancellor Walker considered that phase of the case in the Atlantic City matter.

George A. Douglas, representing several associations of negroes, said that the picture was apt to have a subtle influence, creating prejudice against the negro race in the mind of white men.

commission over motion [illegible] "The Birth of a Nation" [illegible] allowed to be shown.

Chicago Herald
Nov 26

Oh! Very Well —

LESS THAN a month till Christmas—step lively.

+ + +

AT NOONTIDE in his gravy brown the turk lay steaming, stuffed and, etc., etc.

+ + +

THOMPSON SAYS he doesn't get justice in the Chicago newspapers. He should be thankful that he doesn't.

+ + +

DO YOU like turkey hash?

+ + +

IF BILL THOMPSON has really bought an official apologist in a weekly newspaper and goes through with the main purpose there'll be no room for ads.

+ + +

POLICE WEATHER bulletin: Slushy, turning to frost.

+ + +

SCHWAB SAYS the U. S. needs ships. And he volunteers to supply the steel on the banquet system—so much per plate.

+ + +

THE PUBLIC hung crepe on the widders' tag day p. d. q.

+ + +

NOW THAT the Congress Hotel has bought hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of Chicago art works to hang in peacock alley, let somebody say this is a city of pork packers and roughnecks.

+ + +

AS SUNDAY draws nearer and nearer, the hours grow less before you may read "Felice o' the Follies," by Jack Lait—SUNDAY'S HERALD.

+ + +

JUST BELOW the circus signs in one of the "Express to Evanston" "L" cars are the initials, "B. C." Why emphasize it?

+ + +

YOU'VE GOTTA hand it to a turkey for knowing how to make both ends meat.

+ + +

EVA TANGUAY, who swore that she never would perform outside of the United States, plays Milwaukee next week.

+ + +

CHRISTMAS GREENS have made their appearance. They are in the usual denominations.

+ + +

"SOME of Chicago's widows can 'tag' all right, all right!" said a sarcastic loophound who knows.

+ + +

THERE'S ONLY one place in the world furzweno where it's light and dark at the same time, and that's inside the skin of a T—k—y—g fowl.

+ + +

ASHTON STEVENS, promoting his Christmas benefit, approached all the theater managers for talent. "If it weren't that we give a matinee ourselves that day," said George Bowles, manager of "The Birth of a Nation," at the Colonial. "I'd let you have Abraham Lincoln."

+ + +

"WHY eats today everybody turkey all of a sudden?" said Gus the Bus to Evelyn the Exquisite Checker. "They're givin' thanks," said she. "For what?" asked Gus. "For the turkey, you rum," said the exquisite one.

+ + +

THE LEGISLATORS in Springfield, with all appropriations tied up, suffer hunger that no turkey can assuage.

+ + +

HURRAH for Glen Ellyn. On the same day that the "Country Club" is assailed a movement for a new high school is launched. That's the 1915 spirit, all right, all right!—going and coming.

+ + +

MAYOR THOMPSON says that anyone who offers privileges of his office for graft is unauthorized. How does he know?

+ + +

SOMETHING to be thankful for: The six-day bike race is over.

+ + +

'TWOULD have been an ideal day for a double-header at Weeghman's park. He did pretty well, at that, on the day.

+ + +

THAT "Birth-of-a-Nation" scandal reveals municipal politics on the "pay-as-you-entertain" plan.

+ + +

HALF A LEG, half a leg, half a leg inward—
Into the jaws of me, rode the big drumstick.

EDITORIAL PAGE OF

EVANSVILLE-JOURNAL NEWS
AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

A REAL WORK OF ART

GREAT HISTORIC DRAMA, "THE BIRTH OF A NATION," SHOULD NOT BE PREVENTED FROM PRODUCTION.

Written by the Editor & Owner

THE mayor will make a mistake if he prohibits the production of the moving picture, "The Birth of a Nation," in Evansville.

"The Birth of a Nation" is without doubt the grandest and the noblest dramatic work of the present century. It is a wonderful tribute to Abraham Lincoln. It is a piece of historic art dealing with the Civil War and the reconstruction of the South. It has a high and masterful moral.

In the larger cities of the country "The Birth of a Nation" has been the sensation of the hour. It has been shown to crowded houses in the leading playhouses. Prices of $2 per seat have been charged for admission and the theaters have been packed at every performance. People have traveled miles paying railroad fare just to see "The Birth of a Nation."

The truth about the matter is that every American citizen should see this moving picture. Every school child should witness it for its historic significance alone. This film is an education in itself. It is a story on the screen of a part of the history of the American republic—the most important part—when the country was threatened with destruction by a civil war and when the greatest man in the world's record—Abraham Lincoln—appeared upon the scene to save it. The horrors of the battles between the soldiers of the North and the South are portrayed with startling reality. The crimes of the period of reconstruction in the South are pictured with living vividness. The whole picture is an amazing and astounding inspiration that quickens the heart-beat and stirs the imagination.

For Mayor Bosse to throw one obstacle in the way of permitting the citizens of Evansville to see this work of art would be a deplorable blunder and an unquestioned injustice. As we understand it a crowd of colored people of this city have gone to the city executive with some sort of fanciful complaint—none of them, of course, have ever seen "The Birth of a Nation" actually shown on the screen—against the picture and they want its appearance prohibited. They want the mayor to stop it. There has been too much of this business in Evansville of late. If these colored people will only spend their time in educating the members of their race instead of constantly mixing into outside things which are none of their concern they will do some real good.

For instance, who ever heard of the late Booker T. Washington, the genius of the negro race of this century and every other century, running about demanding the censoring of shows and moving picture plays? Nobody did. Booker T. Washington spent his time trying to EDUCATE his people. This was his great purpose in life because he knew that it is the only salvation of his race. The quicker the other colored brethren of the country—including those of Evansville who have organized themselves into societies, which is a good thing—find out this truth the better it will be for them. This is the situation. The mayor should see it as such.

And that sublime and elevating and exalting drama, "The Birth of a Nation," should be shown here as it has been shown in other cities that have been so fortunate as to get it produced. Evansville is lucky to get an opportunity to see it. No one should be deprived of learning the lesson it teaches, of receiving the inspiration that it brings, of feeling the thrill of patriotism and uplift that it causes, and of watching American history depicted by characters almost as they appeared in life. Whatever you do, Mister Mayor, don't make the error of presuming to censor a play like "The Birth of a Nation."

for an early nati.

Nov. 27

ZABETH DAILY JOURNAL,
ELIZABETH, NEW JERSEY.
lished Every Afternoon Except Sunday.
AUGUSTUS S. CRANE,
Publisher.
OFFICE NO. 74 BROAD STREET.

THE "HON. AUSTIN STONEMAN."

When in "The Birth of a Nation," the otion picture spectacle being exhibited re this week, the "Hon. Austin Stoneman" comes upon the scene and plays part in the tragedy portrayed, the dience will recognize in him the South- conception of the character and ac- ities of the Hon. Thaddeus Stevens. evens was one of the leading, gigantic ures in Congress during the greater rt of the time that the issue of slavery s discussed, during the momentous ys of the Civil War, and a dominant ce in the tragedy known as the "Re- struction."

There has been given to the character "Thad" Stevens in this motion pic e spectacle, however, a malignancy t does not belong to it. Some of the ilties of his moral life and the im- cableness of his hatred of the institu- n of slavery have been distorted to ve the cunning purpose of the writer the "Clansman" to place the blame of Reconstruction tragedy upon the l North. Stevens had many faults d frailties, but he was far from being monster he is depicted to be.

The Civil War, in the words of Abra- m Lincoln, was not fought over the e of slavery. It was fought to de- mine, as he said: "Who shall control National Government? Shall it be trolled by those who believe slavery right and ought to be extended, or by se who believe slavery is wrong and ght to be restricted?" The insidious, tal determination of the slaveholders the South to impose slavery upon free ritory was the real cause. And during t period that the representatives of e South with one accord were defying North to interfere with the "peculiar titution," and the greater number of presentatives of the North were ex- ing slavery, were compromising with e South and seeking to placate them d prevent secession of the slave States, Thad" Stevens was one of the few who ok up the challenge thrown boldly at s feet. He was an implacable enemy slavery and oppression of any kind. ooking back over the history of that sturbing time it will be readily seen at he was the dominant force, not one in saving the Union, but also in ystallizing enough determination in the untry to crush out slavery.

In the long fight between those who ould have treated the rebellious States ke "erring sisters" and those who would cognize them only as alien and traitor- s lands, Stevens had a first place. He as not willing to deal leniently with ose who in defending the imposition of e curse of slavery upon the country d brought on a cruel, bloody war. He manded that every last resource should commanded to stamp out disloyalty the South, root and branch.

Stevens may be rightly pictured as an placable enemy of the Southern slave- lders, but only because he believed that ey had ill-treated the negroes both as aves and freemen. He was not tolerant the arrogance of the whites that would t recognize the civil and political free- m of the slaves after four years of war d settled the issue. He believed in the uality of all men, white or black, any- ere in the country; and he was not lerant at any time of his life of any o opposed that view. The hatred for had" Stevens written so boldly into omas Dixon's novel is palpable; and cause men of Dixon's kind have never cognized the negro to have any rights at a white man is bound to respect. xon and Stevens are at opposite poles this whole matter of "nigger equal- ."

The whole life of "Thad" Stevens was attle for equality and justice for the ak and oppressed. While dying he d: "I know not what record of sin ait in the other world, but this I ow—that I have never been guilty of ising a man because he was poor, ause he was ignorant, or because he black." Possibly no truer exponent pure democracy and no more stal- t defender of the rights of the poor ed ever represented this coun- n public life.

Chicago Herald
Nov. 27

Oh! Very Well

27-6

WATER, WATER everywhere, and November almost gone.

✦ ✦ ✦

THESE RAINY Thanksgivingses, plus them Fords, have made the sleighbells on the way to grandma's very detrop.

✦ ✦ ✦

A $6 St. Louis-and-return bargain trip is being advertised. The return alone is worth $6.

✦ ✦ ✦

AND GLEASON was so nice to Healey, too, when he was chief!

✦ ✦ ✦

PEACE is near. The women of Germany refuse to abandon French styles in dress.

✦ ✦ ✦

THAT PENNSYLVANIA college boy who refused to be captain of the football team because it interferes with his theological studies will never be a Billy Sunday.

✦ ✦ ✦

HENRY FORD'S peace plan is just as popular in England as a rat at a sewing bee

✦ ✦ ✦

WHAT DID those coppers expect from a civil service head named Coffin?

✦ ✦ ✦

FOLLOWING ITS irrevocable policy of being first on all occasions, Oh Very Well wishes you a happy new year.

✦ ✦ ✦

FROM THE weather outlook, umbrellas and mackintoshes will lead in the Christmas selections.

✦ ✦ ✦

MR. SILVERMAN, the State street advertising manager about whom Lait wrote the story about the waiting model and the Gus-the-Bus messenger boy, suggests that Lait might have described him as "adgitated."

✦ ✦ ✦

WRITING to the City Editor, a youth says: "I am bitious to become a reporter, etc., etc."

✦ ✦ ✦

SEN. LEWIS is for suffrage. Always gallant to the ladies, is the colonel, who wears his whiskers as a special treat to the fair.

✦ ✦ ✦

THAT PICTURE FELLOW who is going to sue Lou Houseman has a fine chance to convince anybody that Lou isn't on the square. Everybody who knows Houseman knows that he has given away more than the average picture peddler ever saw. Everybody who knows Houseman knows he is the soul of honor. And everybody knows Houseman.

✦ ✦ ✦

GREECE HAS acceded to everything. The world has revolved a few times since Thermopylae.

✦ ✦ ✦

WHY SHOULDN'T the divekeepers "kick in" to save the policemen who gave them protection? Ever think of that? The civil service rules take no cognizance of gratitude.

✦ ✦ ✦

AFTER ALL his sufferings in Belgium they want to make Brand Whitlock Vice President. Who was it that said republics were ungrateful?

✦ ✦ ✦

THAT "Birth of a Nation" has added to the 1915 vocabulary the cinematografter.

✦ ✦ ✦

IN THE "Androcles and the Lion" ads is announced "Some Lion." Meaning the author, Bernard Shaw, eh? What?

✦ ✦ ✦

IF YOU WANT to see what the sweet things save up their money for so they may "have something to show on a rainy day" just stand at the corner of State and Madison on a r. d. and look not to heaven.

✦ ✦ ✦

THE LATEST DOPE on the celebrated Blizzard-Snow marriage is that little flurries are expected.

✦ ✦ ✦

A BLOODED Missouri mule sold for $850 the other day. It pays to kick!

✦ ✦ ✦

THE WAY those indigestion pills concentrate advertising the day after Thanksgiving is positively suggestive.

✦ ✦ ✦

IF THAT "Birth-of-a-Nation" deal had "gone over" the film could have been shown in the council chambers, thereby saving theater rent.

Chicago Herald
Nov. 27

HOYNE TO GET MOVIE GRAFT PROOF, SAYS HOUSEMAN

Gollos Challenges Accuser to Produce Evidence Backing "Birth of a Nation" Charges.

Bowles, Film Manager, Says City Hall Deluged Him With Requests for Free Tickets.

The third reel of "The Birth of a Nation" cinematograft, released yesterday, revealed Messrs. Lou Houseman and A. M. Gollos hurling the shorter and uglier word at each other with unabated enthusiasm.

The latest reel also disclosed State's Attorney Hoyne close up in the offing ready to pounce on the unnamed cinematografters as soon as some definite symptom of guilt is brought officially to his attention.

HOUSEMAN BIDING TIME.

Lou Houseman stood pat in his intrenched position with the following pacific utterance:

"I will show these people up at the proper time. I do not want to make any moves right now. I conferred with State's Attorney Hoyne to-day, and he has promised to go ahead with the investigation as soon as I am prepared to give the evidence to him. I may give this evidence to him later on."

Mr. Gollos contented himself with the following mildly belligerent retort:

"Mr. Houseman started this scandal and it is up to him to finish it. So far there has not been anybody mentioned by Mr. Houseman that has verified his statements in the least."

BOWLES BESIEGED FOR PASSES.

A really humorous phase was injected into the case late in the day, if it be possible to regard anything as funny where men are bandying charges of bribery and blackmail so recklessly against each other.

This latest manifestation comes as a broadside from the office of the Epoch Producing Company with George Bowles, the manager, at the business end of the gun. He says, in fact, that among the other visitations from the City Hall contingent by which he has been besieged has been an avalanche of demands in the way of requests for free tickets which in the aggregate have reached a colossal figure.

Mr. Bowles gives this entertaining sidelight on the controversy with some samples of the manner in which these requests for complimentary pasteboards were handed to him.

BOWLES SHOWS LETTERS.

"Ever since 'The Birth of a Nation' was first presented in Chicago there have beeen almost daily rquests from City Hall officials for free tickets to the performance," said Mr. Bowles. He backed up this statement with the production of letters in which City Hall officials sought free admission.

Several of these letters, according to Mr. Bowles, were written by George L. Reker, former assistant corporation counsel in charge of the city's legal fight to bar the film. One letter, written September 15 last on the official letter head of the City of Chicago, reads:

"Mr. Bowles: Could you accommodate me with a pair of tickets for some night this week.

"Thanking you for past favors, I am, very respectfully,

(Signed) "GEO. L. REKER."

THANKS FOR "PAST FAVORS."

Another written July 24 last reads:

"Dear Mr. Bowles: Mr. E. J. Zimmer, secretary to the corporation counsel, has asked me to secure for him two pairs of tickets for the "Birth of a Nation." Will you kindly favor me by giving Mr. Zimmer these tickets.

"I am writing this letter on the eve of my vacation, otherwise I would speak to you personally.

"Thanking you for past favors, I am, yours respectfully,

(Signed) "GEO. L. REKER."

And still another:

"Mr. Bowles: Mr. Zimmer, the secretary to the corporation counsel, wants me to get him three pairs for Thursday or Friday night. Can you oblige me,

(Signed) "GEO. L. REKER."

20,000 TICKETS GIVEN AWAY.

This was written on an envelope:

"Mr. Bowles: Will you kindly give bearer for me 4 for Monday, 2 for Tuesday, and 2 to be sealed later. You will remember I spoke to you about it in court.

(Signed) "GEO. L. REKER."

"We must have given away to politicians and their friends more than 20,000 worth of tickets", said Mr.

also where ... commission over ... "The Birth of a Nation" ... allowed to be show

NEWARK EVENING STAR:
MONDAY, NOVEMBER 8, 1915.

COLORED CITIZENS OBJECT TO FILMS

Delegation Visits Mayor's Office to Protest Against "Birth of a Nation."

Objecting to the showing of "The Birth of a Nation" at th Newark Theater next week, a delegation of colored citizens, headed by Oliver Randolph, a local negro lawyer, appeared at the office of the mayor this morning. In the absence of the chief executive the mayor's private secretary received the committee and explained that the mayor had left the city for a short vacation, and that therefore they could not present their objection.

They informed Mr. Moody that representing the colored population of the city of Newark, they desired to protest against the showing of "The Birth of a Nation," because of certain episodes in the picture which were distasteful to them. The story of the "Birth of a Nation" embodies the theme of Thomas Dixon's story, "The Clansman," with its details of the Ku-Klux Clan, which deals with the negroes in the South.

It is expected that as a result of the protest, Mr. Moody, together with Chief of Police Michael Long and Frederick Breidenbach, president of the police board, will censor the picture, and decide whether the complaint of the colored citizens is well founded.

"THE BIRTH OF A NATION" CONTINUES AT THE NEWARK

No production of a theatrical order presented in this city in many years has drawn such large audiences as "The Birth of a Nation" has attracted to the Newark during the last week. The house has been crowded afternoons and evenings and all classes of citizens have been represented in the gatherings. The pictures will be kept on view there throughout next week, unless the Court of Chancery, after hearing arguments next Tuesday, refuses to make permanent the temporary injunction obtained by the Epoch Film Company, prohibiting city officials from interfering with the exhibition.

Competent judges among those who have viewed the pictures agree that this photo play is a masterpiece in the creation of silent drama and give unstinted praise to D. W. Griffith, who conceived and produced it. They also assert that they have gained from the pictures a more vivid impression of the great struggle between the North and the South and of important developments in the country's history during the years immediately following it than was left upon them by their reading of the history of that period.

For the benefit of those who have not seen the production, it may be stated that the story illustrated begins in the seventeenth century, with the coming of African slaves to America. Its progress shows the relationship of slavery to the history of the United States. In the wake of the abolition movement comes the Civil War with its terrific battles, Sherman's march to the sea, the burning of Atlanta, the fall of Petersburg, Lee's surrender to Grant, the assassination of President Lincoln, the ordeal of the Reconstruction period, the Ku-Klux-klan's solution of the problem and the final establishment of peace. These historic scenes are shown in a way that links history to romance.

CANNOT SHOW IN LANCASTER.

Thad Stevens' Home Town Bars "Birth of a Nation."

"The Birth of a Nation" will not be shown in Lancaster, Pa., the home of Thaddeus Stevens, it was announced Monday by Mayor Trout, of that city. The picture was booked for a Lancaster theatre the latter part of the week but the mayor notified the manager that if he placed the picture on exhibit he would revoke his theatre license.

The mayor, on the advice of the city solicitor, takes the view that the story libels the great commoner who is buried in Shreiner's cemetery at Lancaster and for that reason should not be shown there. The action of the mayor has aroused much comment.

BIRTH OF NATION SHOWN AT NEWARK

A Masterpiece in Photo Dram Excites No Protest from Audience Crowding the Theater.

However else it may be regarded, none can look with open mind at "The Birth of a Nation" and deny that it stands as a great exemplar of past-mastership in the art of moving picture creation. It is positively monumental, a picture tremendous in theme, scope and action; a thing unforgettable. As a spectacle it is one of the greatest that the mind of man has ever executed, thousands of human beings having been brought into play to depict scenes antecedent to, during and immediately following the great Civil War. It is brimming with pictures that only consummate artistry in this new field of endeavor could have evolved, appealing now to patriotism, now to the softer emotions, then thrilling the spectator with spirited fighting and scenes of horror.

Frankly modeled upon Thomas Dixon's novel, ""The Clansman," this most remarkable photoplay conceives of the birth of the nation as finally achieved with the death of the bitterly fought for idea of state sovereignty and the end of the trying period of Reconstruction.

Up to the end of the first part there is nothing in the entire action, depicting though it does North and South about to be severed, that is not calculated to fire one with patriotism. It is, of course, the scenes of reconstruction days, with negro domination in the stricken South under the leadership of carpet-baggers from the North that has caused such a furor wherever it has been proposed to show this picture. The audience, occupying every seat in the theater last night, saw the picture to the end without a single note of protest. It is understandable, however, that members of the negro race should not care to look upon the screen at some of the scenes shown, as the picture drawn of an ignorant and subject people suddenly freed, equipped with the franchise, bidden by scallywag white leaders to lord it over erstwhile masters and permitted to give almost free reign to their passions is not a pretty one.

Henry Walthall at the Newark.

At the same time what a police commissioner, or anybody else clothed with authority, could find in this work to bar it from presentation is difficult to see in a land that boasts a free press and free speech. There have been a few dark pages in American history, and on one of them appears some of the ill-advised methods applied by radicals in Congress in dealing with the conquered South. The days immediately following the granting of the franchise to the negro in 1870 are every whit as much a part of American history as are those of the Civil War or of the colonies' long struggle against England, and just as fit for discussion among a free people.

That there is a good deal of high color in this treatment of the sufferings of the South under ignorant negro domination is to be admitted. But this is melodrama—the setting fort hof one man's view in the most vivid form possible. That its aim is to stir up present-day race animosity is a contention utterly ridiculous. What opposition the picture has aroused has afforded it a lot of free advertising, of which its owners must be duly appreciative.

How near Mr. Griffith's screen production of the Dixon novel comes to the real truth of the tribulations of the South under reconstruction only the careful historian after years of study, or one who lived through that stirring period upon the very ground can, of course, determine. But it is a vivid picture painted with a pretty lurid brush. That in some sections of the South the whites did walk in terror is undoubted.

The arch villain of the picture is the Hon. Austin Stoneman, "leader of the House," a pretty thinly-veiled characterization of Thaddeus Stevens. That being so, it is extremely questionable taste to make him the oppressor of the Southern white largely through the influence of his negro housekeeper.

As for the scenes shown, such as Lincoln at the White House and the assassination by John Wilkes Booth in Ford's Theater in Washington, Sherman's march to the sea, the burning of Atlanta, fighting from trench and abbatis, the hospital in the Patent Office at Washington and the formation and work of the Ku-Klux-Klan, they have at least the plainest evidence of painstaking verisimilitude.

The double love story that runs through the play is well enacted, although the poor old long arm of coincidence comes in for dislocation at both shoulder and elbow. Some of the best known actors in the moving picture realm have leading parts, as Henry Walthall in the role of the "little colonel;" Miss Mae Marsh, as the younger Cameron sister, who leaps to death from a cliff to escape her negro pursuer; Ralph Lewis as Stoneman, and Miss Lillian Gish as his daughter. Far and away the best piece of character delineation is by George Seigman, as Lynch, afterward colored Lieut. [illegible] matt.

[illegible] at Lincoln's assassination, and the lower House, eighty per cent. black, in the South Carolina Legislature. Months of time and hundreds of thousands of dollars must have been spent in the preparation of this film production. Throughout is dominant the idea that the war between the states was a grievous mistake, and that the best friend the South had at its close was the martyred Lincoln. Continuous music of high grade, with beautiful orchestration, interspersed with melodies of half a century ago, is furnished by an orchestra of thirty pieces, under the capable leadership of Albert Pesce.

A piece of cheap clap-trap, needless, but obviously designed to take the bad taste, if any, out of the mouths of the spectators, is afforded by some scenes at the Hampton Institute of today, which are at times faint, uneven and tawdry, not a part of and wholly out of keeping with the splendid photography of the photo drama.

Indianapolis
11/7/28

"The Birth of a Nation" Makes Better Citizens, Says Manager of Film

To the Editor of the Indianapolis Star:

Sir—Representing D. W. Griffith, the man whose genius first put the motion picture on an equal plane with the spoken drama, I can not help but feel it my duty to answer the aspersions cast upon the picture, "The Birth of a Nation," now playing at English's. It has often been said that the criterion of any dramatic success is the way in which it is received by the general public. If we use this criterion, then "The Birth of a Nation" must be beyond cavil, for, as a matter of fact, no attraction that has played English's in a long time has been so liberally and enthusiastically received by the public. And, be it remembered, it was that wise entertainer, P. T. Barnum, who wrote: "You can't fool the public all the time." Replying specifically to the aspersions cast upon "The Birth of a Nation" by Samuel Carson in the Indianapolis Star of Tuesday, he says: "This show disgraces the South." Is that true? What the picture shows is the real truth of American history; if the South was disgraced—as it undoubtedly was—not Mr. Griffith, the producer of this picture, but the South is responsible. Your correspondent talks about exciting race prejudice. If one wants to shut his eyes to the facts of history, then, of course, there can be no prejudice. But the makers of this motion picture have been brave enough to face the truth. Desiring to portray with fidelity conditions as they actually existed, they could not, without being false to their ideals, have attempted to falsify American history.

Our contention is that not by ignoring the past, but by learning its lessons, is the way to a better, saner, higher Americanism. We believe that no one who sees "The Birth of a Nation" and by its graphic scenes is made to realize from what depths we, as well as the negro, have risen, but must, thereafter, be a better, more patriotic and more thoughtful American citizen. Our picture shows to what depths the negro had sunk; but it also shows to what heights, under able leadership, he has risen today.

Your correspondent says that we ought to forget—forget the past and the history of its struggles for true liberty. Mr. Griffith, who mind conceived this stirring lesson in our history, believes that we should remember; and remembering what our forefathers endured and suffered, determine in our hearts that never again shall we allow the rule of the mob, the passion of selfishness, the factor of unrighteousness to sully the liberties for which our fathers died and which are the only bulwark of a free republic. If you are afraid to face the truth, admit it; but if the truth has glorious lessons for you, then in no more concrete and beautiful form shall you find it presented than in "The Birth of a Nation."

FRED R. ZWEIFEL,
Manager "Birth of a Nation."

Indianapolis
11/7/28

Views of the People.

What The Star's Readers Are Thinking and Saying.

Otherwise, It Is All Right?

To the Editor of The Star:

I wish to protest against the moving picture show, "The Birth of a Nation," for the following reasons: It is immoral, inartistic, untruthful to history, purely a commercial affair. It gives a poor representation of the assassination of Lincoln, but lets the assassin go free. In every scene except the last of the war it favors the South. The men who play Lincoln and Grant are amateurs, the man who plays Lee is an artist. The Northern statesmen are vicious, the Southern are gentlemen. It arouses the most bitter prejudice unnecessarily against the negroes. Whatever truth there is in the clansman should be forgotten. It is of the past. It is an outrage to resurrect this horror of a nation and call it the birth of a nation. It is the disgrace of a nation.

I say this show disgraces the South, the Southern man and woman. It shows that now after half a century it is willing to keep alive all the bitter animosity that produced the rebellion, for commercial purposes. This is not the birth of a nation, but a sowing of the seeds that will be the death of a nation. What we need is to forget all that this show tries to bring to life. It is the shame of a nation that it is patronized from any point of view.

SAMUEL CARSON.

Indianapolis.

Indianapolis Star
11/7/28

Editor Evening Record:

Would it be too much to ask if you will kindly publish the following telegram from the well-known writer, Thomas Dixon, and printed at Senator Martine's request in the Congressional Record? I quite agree with Mr. Dixon as to the dangerous character of an attempt at federal censorship of moving pictures and trust the foolish attempt will utterly fail.

Yours very truly,
DeWITT ABBE.
"New York, N. Y.

"Hon. James E. Martine,
United States Senate, Washington, D. C.:

"Censorship of motion pictures is the most dangerous attack on American liberties since the foundation of the republic. The motion picture is a process of recording thought on yellow parchment without the use of printer's ink, and is as great an advance on printings as Guttenberg's invention was over the quill pen. The printing press revolutionized the world by bringing knowledge within the reach of thousands. The motion picture brings knowledge within the reach of hundreds of millions. To strangle this great art in its infancy will be a crime against humanity. Free speech is the foundation of our republic. There is no reason for censorship. The motion picture is now cleaner than the spoken drama or the press. The police powers of the state are already ample. Any citizen can close any theatre within an hour if the laws of morality are violated. A censorship of opinion is the aim of our enemies. Our fathers fled the old world to escape this and founded the republic to free the human mind from such shackles. Shall we go back to the dark ages? I first preached the Clansman as a sermon. No censor dared to silence my pulpit. I turned my sermon into a lecture and delivered it from Maine to California without license. I turned the lecture into a novel, and no censor has yet tsopped the press of Doubleday, Page & Co. I turned the novel into a spoken play, and no censor has dared to interfere. I turned the play into a motion picture, and it has cost me $75,000 in lawyers' fees to fight the local censors the first ten months. This condition of affairs is infamous.

It is the immediate duty of congress to reaffirm the principles of free speech in America and abolish all censors.

"THOMAS DIXON."

M'INDOE SAYS MOTION PICTURE SHOULD BE CUT

BELIEVE CERTAIN PARTS OF "BIRTH OF A NATION" OBJECTIONABLE.

With Chief Milligan He Will Go to Springfield to See the Censored Film.

Mayor Hugh McIndoe and Chief of Police Nels Milligan are to go to Springfield, Mo., to view "The Birth of a Nation," the first of next week. Their expenses will be paid by the city with the exception of $16 which will be paid by the exhibitors of the picture as a censorship tax.

It is the desire of city officials to view the picture and decide what parts must be eliminated before it can be given the stamp of approval. Mayor McIndoe saw the picture in Kansas City and says the film must be slashed before it will be approved for showing here the latter part of next week.

The manager of "The Birth of a Nation" company was in Joplin last night and told Mayor McIndoe that the picture would be shown here regardless of the position taken by the city, declaring that injunction proceedings would be brought to restrain the city from stopping the showing of the picture.

A change in the city's motion picture ordinance was made at a meeting of the city council this morning. The old ordinance gave the city the right to eliminate parts of pictures or bar them entirely where they would be harmful morally. The amendment gives the city the right to censor pictures that would be harmful to the city in any way or detrimental to the city's welfare. Commissioners Hodgdon nd Robinson opposed the amendment but voted for it when they saw the other commissioners fvored it.

Mayor McIndoe's objection to "The Birth of a Nation" is that it is likely to cause race prejudice.

MISSOURI H
LD, MISSOURI, THURS

NEGROES FAIL TO PREVENT SHOWING OF PICTURE HERE

Mayor Bowman Sees Nothing In Book On Which "Birth of a Nation" Is Based, To Warrant His Interference.

JOPLIN DELEGATION TO COME HERE AND SEE IT

Members of Mining Town's Board of Censors Want Glimpse of the Scenes In Film Before It Is Taken There.

Although he has arrived at no definite decision, Mayor T. K. Bowman Wednesday informed members of a committee of negroes which conferred with him concerning the showing of the moving picture, "The Birth of a Nation," which is to be seen at the Landers theater next week, that he had tentatively decided he could not take any action to have the picture stopped.

The committe, composed of about thirty negroes in the city, had an audience with the mayor Monday and protested against the showing of the picture, stating that they feared it would tend to arouse racial preudice.

Mayor Bowman was given a copy of the book on which the picture is based and he concluded a reading of it yesterday. He stated that he could find nothing, taking the book literally, that would warrant him to stop the showing of the picture and was satisfied that no trouble would result from its appearance here.

Members of the committee said Wednesday that they were convinced Mayor Bowman could not sustain their protests, since there is no ordinance praying for such action, nor no board of censors which might inspect and pass on the picture before it could be shown.

Joplin Critics Coming.

Mayor Hugh McIndoe and Chief of Police H. N. Milligan of Joplin will be here Wednesday night to witness the picture and censor it before its appearance in Joplin, as it is booked there. Mayor McIndoe has notified the management of "The Birth of a Nation" that all parts of it tending to induce racial prejudice must be eliminated before it is shown there.

Joplin has a board of censors, composed of the mayor, chief of police and Miss Grace Sanford, police matron, which passes upon all pictures before they are exhibited to the public. The city also has ordinances governing the board's actions.

MOVING PICTURE WORLD
New York City
DEC 18 1915

Governor Willis Guards His Flock

Governor of Ohio Forbids His Party of Prize Corn Raisers to See "The Birth of a Nation" While in Philadelphia.

COMMENT upon the recent incident in Philadelphia, in which "The Birth of a Nation," barred by the Ohio censors, and the Ohio "corn boys" feared, has been widespread and caustic. Gov. Willis of Ohio, accompanying the dry party of prize corn-raisers, put an end to the plan of having them see the film, which was on exhibition in Philadelphia at the time the party reached the city, on the ground that the Ohio censors had decided that it should not be shown in Ohio, and that, therefore, it was not proper for Ohioans to see it anywhere.

Five hundred seats had been reserved for the party, and it is reported that a considerable number of the party saw the picture in spite of the governor's veto, and in attempt to give a sort of extra-official effect to the edict of the censors. The ground on which the picture was refused the privilege of exhibition in Ohio, as reported at the time, was that it tended to stir up race prejudice; and the applicability of this ground with reference to a view of the picture by a party of Ohio people outside of Ohio is hardly as clear as might be desired. However, most of the youngsters in the party had to bow to the governor's ukase, and saw a vaudeville performance instead of the picture; and it takes a governor to say that, judging from the average vaudeville show, this was more uplifting, or less demoralizing, than "The Birth of a Nation."

N PAGES
State Journal
Brand Sep Press
MONDAY, DECEMBER 27, 1915.

NO GREEK SHIPS HELD; NO BLOCKADE IN FORCE

London, Nov. 23.—The foreign office states no Greek ships are being seized or held up in the ports of the United Kingdom and that no blockade of Greek ports has been instituted or is in force.

No amplification of the foreign office statement is obtainable in official quarters. The universal deduction is that the Greek government has satisfied the British demands submitted by Earl Kitchener, secretary of war, who was in Athens last week. It is assumed Greece has furnished guarantees of the safety of the Anglo-French expeditionary force.

It is believed the announcements from Athens concerning a commercial blockade of Greece were premature in that they presented the provisional intentions of the entente allies as accomplished facts.

KANSAS CUT OUT

"Birth of a Nation" Will Not Enter the State.

Producers Hear It Has Been Condemned in Advance.

POLITICS ALLEGED AS CAUSE

Say State Officials Fear Effect on Negro Vote.

The Censors Are Noncommittal on the Subject.

Kansas people will not be able to see "The Birth of a Nation," the feature photoplay which has been attracting nation-wide attention. The producers of the picture are not going to spend $2 a reel to have the film barred from the state, according to a report which reaches Topeka this morning.

"The Birth of a Nation" is showing at the Grand theater in Kansas City, Mo., for the last time this week. It has run in Chicago for several months to capacity houses. A number of Topeka men and women saw the picture in Chicago and Kansas City and pronounced it wonderful beyond all description.

And then came the word that state house officials in Topeka frowned on "The Birth of a Nation." The play is taken from Thomas Dixon's well known work, "The Clansman." It elaborates on the southern story to a great extent, showing Sherman's "march to the sea" and other war scenes. D. W. Griffith, the master producer, directed it. "The Clansman" is a tale of the Ku Klux Klan and their operations during the reconstruction days. It is distinctly an anti-negro story, but deals with the colored politicians of those days instead of the colored race today.

Fear Censor's Ax.

One of the big distributors in Kansas City told a Topekan a few days ago that he had authentic information that the state censor board would "kill" the production.

(Continued on Page 2.)

KANSAS CUT OUT

(Continued from Page One.)

"It is politics," he exclaimed bitterly, "and the members of the appeal board and the official censor are afraid of the big colored vote."

W. D. Ross, the state superintendent of public instruction and state censor, has never given out any intimation that he would bar the film. Neither has the Rev. Festus Foster, another censor. Ross goes on the theory, he says, that he does not form an opinion of a picture until he sees it and he will make no action on "The Birth of a Nation" controversy until the proper time.

But the picture will never cross the state line. "The Birth of a Nation" is being shown in all the large cities at $2 prices. Not a state has barred it up to the present, although a bitter fight was waged upon it by several factions in Massachusetts. The producers will take no risk and Topeka and Kansas people will not see it unless they have the coin to take a trip to Kansas City this week.

"The Birth of a Nation" is booked at the Grand for a solid week early in December and also for a full week in a theater at Wichita. Roy Crawford, manager of the Grand, has already received inquires from dozen of out-of-town patrons who intended to come here.

One two-dollar movie production is now out of the question for Kansas. The scene shifts. The next one, "The Battle Cry of Freedom," will come on deck sooner or later. Will the producers dare bring that into Kansas?

Viewing "The Birth of a Nation."

There are plenty of reasons why "The Birth of a Nation" should arouse more comment than any other film composition. It is artistically the most imposing and inspiring film yet made. Criticism loves a shining mark. Of course most of the wrath hurled at Griffith's masterpiece is not primarily because of its artistry but because of its subject matter, because it enrages the negro race. And yet if "The Birth of a Nation" were not a splendid creation, if the same story were presented in a mediocre form, as so many telling themes are mauled and mangled in the pictures, it would have died an early, painless death long since. So that the artistry of the production after all is what keeps alive the debate concerning its morality and justice.

The division on these points is along racial lines. Although there are plenty of whites, notably old soldiers, who disapprove of the film because of its southern bias the negro has yet to be found who can see any good in the production. This is but natural since the fact of race is far more real to blacks than it is to whites. They resent the picture of reconstruction as untrue, consider that its exhibition makes the black man's lot harder in the present and future by keeping alive old hates which should be allowed to die for the good of both races. Nor is this antipathy softened in their eyes by the addition of scenes showing the progress of the negro race since reconstruction days.

Concerning the truth of the presentation the ordinary observer must be convinced that the author of "The Clansman" knew whereof he wrote. Much of the material is history; Dixon lived through the years he described. Yet that admission need not gall the negro race overmuch; in strict justice it should be said that any other outcome of such a sudden shift from slavery to full citizenship would have been impossible. The fault lay not upon the blacks but upon the whites north and south, the southerners because they had pressed the negroes down so long; the northerners because the best men among them misread the situation and the worst set out to profit by that error.

Wherever "The Birth of a Nation" has appeared negroes have petitioned city officials not to license the production. Official good sense is shown by not meeting that demand. No plea of racial or tribal interest should be allowed to interfere with the free expression of ideas. If "The Birth of a Nation" were prohibited the same reasoning would let the Hebrews kill off "The Merchant of Venice" and the Irish "The Playboy of the Western World." As light and airy a production as "The Merry Widow," Vienna born, is open to the same criticism because it reflects upon the Servians. When races live side by side each must bear with the whims of the other, cultivate stoicism and rest serene in the belief that the acts of daily living rather than words on the stage or pictures on the screen determine public opinion in the long run.

There are approximately 1,000 negroes in Grand Rapids. They work as hard and live as decently as any other 1,000 persons of equal estate and capacity. For the most part they keep out of jail, mind their own business and function honorably in useful labor. Just keep that in mind when you are viewing "The Birth of a Nation" and the anti-negro prejudice of the film will not affect you.

Owensboro Inquirer Wednesday Evening

ARMED OFFICERS GUARD THEATER

RUMORS OF PROPOSED NEGRO OUTBREAK AGAINST FILM AT HENDERSON FLY RAPIDLY

HENDERSON, Ky., Dec. 8.—Owing to street rumors that negroes would attempt by force to stop the showing of the picture, The Birth of a Nation which is booked for three nights at the Grand theater, local officers took the precaution to place extra officers at the theater Monday night. One rumor was that the theater would be dynamited, another that it would be set on fire and still another that a body of negroes would rush the playhouse and destroy the film. No one was found who knew who started the rumors. One report was that a negro preacher stated to his congregation at services Sunday that the theater would be damaged if the picture was shown and advised his flock not to attend the show.

Officers were busy all that day trying to run down some authentic report of the trouble, but could only find persons who heard some one else say they had heard that such and such was to happen.

Several officers who contemplated leaving Monday night with the special train for inauguration cancelled their reservation because of the threatened trouble. Among them were Chief of Police Graves and Jailer Mike P. Abel.

Several were seen today and asked if they had heard anything of the threats. All said they heard it from street talk but did not believe any such attempt would bemade. Officers were stationed at the theater heavily armed.

PICKS FLAWS IN PICTURE

Milligan to Order Parts of "The Birth of a Nation" Deleted.

"The Birth of a Nation," a moving picture play that is to be shown at the New Joplin theater, beginning tonight, will be censored if Nels Milligan, chief of police, has his way.

Mr. Milligan saw the play yesterday in Springfield. He said last night he believes two scenes are immoral. He will issue orders today to exhibitors of the pictures to eliminate these scenes.

Dr. A. D. Ball, a minister, J. W. Boyd, J. W. Freeman and Joseph Walker, representing the pastors' committee of the Bob Jones organization, yesterday petitioned Mayor Hugh McIndoe to eliminate the so-called immoral parts of the play.

Indianapolis News Dec 8

PROTEST AGAINST FILM, "THE BIRTH OF A NATION"

GURLEY BREWER SAYS IT IS APPEAL TO RACE PREJUDICE.

NEGRO IS MISREPRESENTED

To the Editor of The News:

Sir—The moving picture play, "The Birth of a Nation," which begins a run at English's December 13, will be met by a storm of protests from those who are against this appeal to race prejudice. Thomas Dixon, whose book, "The Clansman," is the basis of "The Birth of a Nation," states that if the protests are kept up his opponents will succeed in making him a millionaire. Nevertheless, protests should be continued, and no stone should be left unturned to check the course of this pernicious play.

"The Birth of a Nation" is one of the most costly and elaborate motion picture plays that has ever been produced. The first act is chiefly devoted to the civil war from the southern point of view. It includes many battle scenes and attempts to reproduce the assassination of President Lincoln. The second act is devoted to the reconstruction period in the south. It represents the emancipated negroes in political control, disfranchising the whites and indulging in continual orgies of dissipation, abuse of white people, destruction of property and bent on intermarriage with the whites. Assaults and attempted assaults on white girls by colored men are given long and startling prominence, and throughout the play the colored people shown are vicious and disgusting.

Misrepresentation Alleged.

The only good negroes are of the most servile type and spectacular and harrowing scenes are presented at great length, showing colored people in the worst possible light, grossly misrepresenting as well as exaggerating the history of the period which the play pretends to faithfully represent. Meantime the white people of the south are represented by the finest and most attractive men, women and children. The Ku Klux Klan appears to have been organized by the chivalric flower of the Southern manhood, to rescue and avenge the white girl victims of black brutes, to quell negro riots, to disarm the blacks and to restore the government to white citizenship. Incidentally lynching is glorified and the Ku Klux Klan apepars in impossible legions of semi-religious crusades with the emblem of the cross.

The alleged purpose of the authors of this production is to present with historical accuracy the facts of the reconstruction period, and to stop the mixing of white and colored blood, which they represent is sought by colored people generally through intermarriage. It is also claimed that the play teaches peace, removes sectionalism and honors Lincoln.

Play Distorts, Is Charge.

As a matter of fact the play distorts, exaggerates and grossly misrepresents the historical facts of the reconstruction. It misrepresents the negro, because he does not seek social equality through intermarriage, nor does he seek to overthrow the government and establish black supremacy. It is a species of imbecility for a man or group of men to become obsessed with the idea that 10,000,000 negroes, practically defenseless, could measure arms with 90,000,000 people commonly called white people, and arrest their progress by destroying property, womanhood or any of the elements of power that make for a mighty people.

To associate the name of Lincoln with such a base purpose as this play contemplates, is travesty upon an attempt at dramatic effect. As a matter of fact, the play encourages mob law and lynching, causes sectional feeling, brings out the influences of a base immorality and causes race prejudice against the American negro in its most vicious and wicked form. It is untruthful, un-American, undemocratic and un-Christian.

GURLEY BREWER.

Indianapolis Star Dec 9

NEGROES AGAIN PROTEST PLAY

MEMBERS OF AFRICAN BAPTIST CHURCH PASS RESOLUTIONS AGAINST "BIRTH OF A NATION."

The third written protest against the production of the photo-play "The Birth of a Nation," was registered Thursday, when the members of the Eighth street African Methodist Epispopal church, represented by J. C. Holman, Charles W. Hogan, B. F. Warren and E. C. Foreman, pastor of the church, presented a resolution to the city commission, imploring them that they prohibit the production, or at least censor the photo masterpiece.

Mayor Read stated that he would not deviate from his ortginal intention of reviewing the picture on its arrival in the city, and said that he would make known his decision following the inspection.

The resolution passed by the negro church follows:

To the Honorable Henry C. Read, Mayor, City Commissioners, Fort Smith, Ark.

Sirs:—In accordance with a motion which unanimously prevailed at our regular Official Board Meeting, held on Monday evening, November 29th, 1915, at the Eighth Street African Methodist Episcopal church, representing a good percentage of the better class of Colored people of the city, the membership of which is some two hundred and fifty (250), we, as a committee, were duly appointed to draw up and present to you the following resolutions:

"Whereas, the photoplay entitled "The Birth of a Nation" is billed to be shown at the New theatre on the dates of December 16th to 18th, inclusive, and

Whereas, this play has been censured, condemned and even forbidden to be shown by the city, county and state officials, and others, from one end of this country to the other, for the reason that the play is a gross misrepresentation of the negro character and is calculated to stir up ill feeling and race strife between the two races, as it has done heretofore, and

Whereas, the colored and white people have gotten along so nicely heretofore, and

Whereas, we desire to see that same feeling continue to exist,

Be It Resolved, That this church, through its officials, as a committee enter a vigorous protest to you against the presentation of the play and ask, beg and beseech you to prevent its being shown; and, if you do not prevent it, to at least censor same and have eliminated the objectionable parts of the play, to the end that the amicable relations may continue to exist between the two races as heretofore.

Respectfully,
J. C. HOLMAN,
CHAS. W. HOGAN, Sec.
B. F. WARREN,
E. C. FOREMAN, Pastor.

Joplin Globe Dec

FEW CHANGES MADE IN "BIRTH OF NATION" BY CENSOR'S WORK

COURT REFRAINS FROM INTERFERING WITH CITY'S ACTION.

Big Attraction Plays to Large Crowd On First of Seven Performances Here.

Changes in "The Birth of a Nation," a photoplay masterpiece that was shown last night in the New Joplin theater, were so slight that the spectators scarcely realized that a censor's power had been wielded against the films.

After a hearing in Carthage yesterday afternoon in division No. 2 of circuit court, Judge J. D. Perkins refused to grant a temporary injunction to prevent the city from interfering with the showing of the play. Judge Perkins held that the censorship law is valid, and that the chief of police can enforce reasonable demands that pictures be altered.

Affidavits Are Presented.

E. F. Cameron, city attorney, represented the defense, including Mayor Hugh McIndoe, Commissioners C. A. Patterson, C. A. Robinson, J. B. Hodgdon and D. R. Hill, and Chief Milligan and Edward Portley, chief of detectives. Applicants for the restraining order, including the Epoch Producing Company, L. M. Crawford, T. C. Behrung and C. V. Philly, were represented by A. W. Thurman.

Pro and con affidavits as to the morality of the pictures were introduced in court. T. K. Bowman, mayor of Springfield, several school teachers, a school superintendent and minister had sworn to papers that were introduced to support the play's morality. Affidavits that there were immoral scenes in the picture were introduced by the city.

"Jack Brehaney, manager for the photoplay producing comapny, had a conference with Mayor McIndoe, Chief Milligan and Mr. Cameron and made arrangements to eliminate a few objectionable scenes. The theme was not harmed to any appreciable extent by eliminating those sections.

"Joplin is the first city where we have had to change the pictures," said Mr. Brehaney last night.

"The Birth of a Nation" portrays reconstruction days in the south, contains thrilling battle scenes, shows a realistic reproduction of the assassination of Abraham Lincoln and operations of the Ku Klux Klan.

Show Pleases Crowd.

Two thousand persons were turned from the Landers theater, where the films were shown Wednesday night, and General Emmett Newton, manager of the theater, came here last night to attempt to arrange for a return engagement of the pictures.

"They met with general approval in Springfield," General Newton said. Six performances were given there.

A large crowd saw the performance at the New Joplin theater last night. Performances also will be given today, Saturday and Sunday, both matinee and night. Spectators at last night's show declared it to be the most spectacular and interesting film production ever presented in Joplin.

Huntington Herald Advertiser Dec 10

COLORED LEADERS FILE PROTEST ON BIRTH OF NATION

No Action Taken by City Officials on Protest Made Friday by Negro Leaders

REPEAT PROTEST ON MONDAY

Ministerial Association Joined by Men of Colored Race in Protest Against Movie

No definite action having been taken by city officials on protests filed with members of the board of commissioners by persons objecting to the presentation of the motion picture, "The Birth of a Nation", a formal protest will be filed Monday morning by prominent leaders of the colored colony in Huntington as well as the Huntington Ministerial association, asking the board of commissioners to review a presentation of the picture before allowing it to be shown on the screen in this city.

Protest was made before Mayor Edmund Sehon Friday afternoon by a delegation of colored men, prominent in negro circles here, headed by Dr. C. C. Barnett, who informed the mayor that the presentation of the picture is likely to result in "hardship for the negroes of the city," if it is allowed to be shown.

The delegation was informed by Mayor Sehon that he had no means at hands to take any steps toward the fulfillment of the request until he had personally seen the picture.

Each of the other members of the board of commissioners was then communicated with by the negro leaders, and asked to take some definite action on the picture.

Ground of Objection

The grounds of objections to the picture are stated by leaders of the negro race here to be to numerous scenes in the picture depicting what is claimed by persons raising objections here as "an erroneous impression of the history of that time."

Leaders of the colored race here, learning that the picture was proposed to be presented in Huntington, secured from persons in Boston a synopsis of the photodrama. This will be presented to the board of commissioners Monday morning for examination, and a request will be made that the board constitute itself into a board of censorship before the picture is allowed to be shown.

"We are willing to leave the decision of the propriety or impropriety of the picture to the commissioners themselves," said Dr. Barnett today, "but we expect to enter a solemn protest against its presentation here because of the erroneous impression which it will arouse among unthinking people and the consequent hardship which will follow among members of our race here."

Scenes Condemned

Scenes objected to by local negroes are described in a statement made before his death by Dr. Booker T. Washington, a leader of the negro race in America, as "the most dangerous thing that ever happened to the advance and improvement of the colored people," Dr. Barnett said today.

"The feeling between the races in Huntington has been and is now amicable," Dr. Barnett said today in discussing the objections raised to the picture, "and I look with apprehension upon anything which may be allowed to interfere with this feeling."

Representing the Huntington Ministerial association Dr. S. W. Walker, pastor of the Johnson Memorial church, appeared informally before city officials several days ago and urged that the picture be reviewed by city officials before it is allowed to be presented to the public.

Object to Scenes

The grounds of objection on the part of the ministerial association are said to center about a scene depicting a negro in pursuit of a white woman and her subsequent capture and assault. No definite action was taken on the request of the ministerial association by city authorities.

"Of course the city doesn't want anything to happen that will prove a detriment to our citizens. However, we shall wait until we can review the protests which may be made before our meeting Monday morning before taking any action whatever."

The picture is announced to be shown here all of next week.

Pittsburgh Leader 12

"BIRTH OF A NATION" TO MAKE $2,000,000 IN ITS FIRST YEAR

"BEN HUR'S" 15-YEAR RECORD ALREADY SMASHED.

Jock Br-r-r-rahaney, in Charge of Reels, Lands Big Job in the West.

If you were told to interview the most modest man in America, where would you look for him? In church, in a monastery, in the country, yes; but in a theater, no. Yet that is where he may be found today.

Jack Brehaney—Br-r-r-r-ra-a-haney—is his name; Irish is the blood that courses through his veins, and happiness is his chief characteristic. Managing "The Birth of a Nation," a photoplay that will close an engagement of seven performances in the New Joplon theater here tonight, is his job.

Daly to Be Manager.

John P. Daly, who will become manager of the company here and who has known Mr. Brehaney twenty years, says he is the most modest man. Anyway, an interview with Mr. Brehaney became a talk with Mr. Daly, and it brought out these highlights on "The Birth of a Nation:"

The profits of the Epoch Producing Corporation, owned chiefly by D. W. Griffith, producer of the picture, will be $2,000,000 at the close of the first year's showing.

Return engagements will be had in the next two years, every town clamoring for another showing of the pictures.

The play will not gravitate to five and ten-cent theaters.

The play already has made more than "Ben-Hur made in fifteen years.

Twelve companies are on the road.

Burned by Negroes.

Two sets of films, each valued at $1,000, are carried as a precaution against accidents or violence. In Mason City, Ia., negroes are said to have stolen one set of reels and burned them.

"The play never has been attacked from a morality standpoint," Mr. Daly said, "but because wealthy eastern negroes believed it will create race prejudice."

Mr. Brehaney will leave tomorrow to become manager for Elliott & Sherman of Minneapolis, who have obtained rights for the pictures in seventeen states west of the Missouri river.

Louis F. Ballard, manager of the New Joplin theater, said more than one hundred thinking women of Joplin have commended him for showing the attitude here and that he has not received one complaint.

Indianapolis News Dec 1-4 Newark

"The Birth of a Nation" at English's.

The long heralded film spectacle, "The Birth of a Nation," produced by David W. Griffith, was shown for the first time in this city at English's last night. The theme is that of "The Clansman," Thomas Dixon's much discussed novel of the reconstruction period in the south. The scenes pictured by Mr. Griffith are of a nature to create race prejudice, and, as a side feature, the theater and foyer were filled with policemen last night, but there was no more need for them than there is demand for skates in the Sahara. Of course, the prejudice-creating phases of the picture have served well for publicity, but, the truth is, that no rational man or woman would permit himself or herself to be swayed to violence because of the spell of this motion picture.

"The Birth of a Nation" is a well acted, well photographed play. It is full of big scenes in which fine horsemanship is the thrilling feature. The portrayal of incidents in battle also serves to make the spectators sit under the spell of stirring photography and it was interesting to see a northern audience applaud the march of Confederate troops to battle while the orchestra played "Dixie." It was fine proof that the Mason and Dixon line has vanished from all patriotic American hearts.

Mr. Griffith has been daring in his portrayal of scenes famous in American history. He took his longest chance when he pictured the incidents leading to the assassination of President Lincoln and it must be said that it was effectively done, the stage manager having successfully shadowed the tragedy in Ford's theater so that its horror was not borne too closely to the vision of the spectator.

It is in the rides of the Ku Klux Klan that the photographer and stage manager have done their most effective work. The Klan was the result of dominating forces that gave the negroes rule in southern states following the civil war. The whites voiced their resentment by the organization of a secret society based on the principles applied by the Scottish clansmen. The flowing white robes and the masks of the Ku Klux Klan were sweet fruit for the motion picture photographer who worked on Mr. Griffith's production and he has made a thrilling and very realistic set of scenes showing the Klan riding to the rescue of the oppressed whites.

One of the real delights of "The Birth of a Nation" is the incidental music. Bugles, trumpets, drums and fifes work overtime in giving artistic shivers at the right moment. One splendid piece of concerted action between music and picture is the scene depicting the dancing of an old-fashioned rye waltz at a ball preceding the battle of Bull Run. "The Star-Spangled Banner," "Dixie" and "My Maryland" come in for a large share of the thrills supplied by the musicians. The orchestra is large and the music altogether pleasing.

"The Birth of a Nation" is a great piece of photography and stage direction. It took thousands of people to put on the big scenes and it is numbers and photography that make "The Birth of a Nation" notable. The spirit of race prejudice need scare nobody.

The engagement of "The Birth of a Nation" will continue through three weeks.

Mr. Griffith, the producer, was in Indianapolis last night on his way to New York. He is now at work on another historical spectacle but would not give its title or anything of its theme. His only word was that it would be even greater in magnitude than "The Birth of a Nation."

Following his visit to English's, Mr. Griffith spent almost an hour at the Keystone theater, witnessing for the first time the showing of the Triangle program in one of the smaler cities and he was an interested spectator.

ASSERT THEY WON'T HAMPER FILM SHOW

Colored Men Assure Chief Long "Birth of a Nation" Will Not Be Interrupted.

BUT POLICE WILL BE AT THEATER

Assurances were given to Chief of Police Long today that no attempt on the part of local negroes will be made to disturb the presentation of "The Birth of a Nation," which will open at the Newark Theater tonight. Cornelius M. Brown, who is employed in the city hall ard who claimed to speak for the colored people of the city, told the chief that there will be no demonstration of any sort against the showing of the pictures.

Brown yesterday issued a statement protesting against the picture exhibition. In the statement he said he and the other colored residents of the city would fight the production "to the last ditch." Chief Long had him in his office today to explain the meaning of "to the last ditch."

This, Brown told the chief, meant that they would do everything legal to prevent the pictures being shown, but, so far as he and other law-abiding negroes were concerned, "the last ditch" meant the injunction granted by Vice Chancellor Griffin.

"That is a ditch over which we will not go," promised Brown.

Despite this, however, Chief Long said he would have extra policemen at the exhibition of the film tonight to prevent any demonstration.

At the negroes' first protest meeting last week, Brown said, some of those present urged a general disturbance at the first showing of the film, as was done in Boston, but Brown said he and others prevailed against that sort of demonstration.

Will Appear in Court.

Local negroes will be represented November 23, when a hearing on a temporary injunction granted to the film producers last week will come up in Chancery chambers here. This was settled this morning when George A. Douglas, a colored lawyer retained to handle the interests of the negroes, had a conference with Spaulding Frazer, city counsel. It was agreed that Douglas should appear at the hearing.

The lawyer called on the city counsel to ask him if there would be any objection by the law department of the city to the appearance of negro representatives at the Chancery hearing. Mr. Frazer said there would be no objection.

Negro objectors to the Civil War photo-play met last night at 237 Halsey street to discuss plans for a protest against the picture and to talk over what they might do to aid the city in its arguments against the injunction granted by Vice Chancellor Griffin in Jersey City. It was decided to hold another meeting. This gathering probably will be held tonight in the Thirteenth Avenue Presbyterian Church.

Dec 10

Views of the People.

What The Star's Readers Are Thinking and Saying.

Must Have Been at Movie Show.

To the Editor of The Star:

It is in bad taste, outrageous and slanderous to have Northern congressmen pictured on the stage in company with a negro mistress, or picturing Northern public men favoring marriage between the races.

Lafayette, Ind. ALVA O. RESER.

Fairness to Negroes.

To the Editor of The News:

Sir—Realizing the great influence of the press in the life of a people, its power for good or evil, its almost weird influence as a molder of public opinion, its ability to mar or make a career, and, more important still, its place as the voice of the people in the affairs of a great city, I feel that I should send you a word of thanks for the fair and impartial stand of your great paper in all things pertaining to the doings of the colored people, and in this connection I make special reference to your editorials and news matter on the occasion of the death of Dr. Booker T. Washington and the recent memorial held by the colored citizens of Indianapolis. I am not unaware that a great paper like The News, interested only in giving to the public good reading matter, may regard an expression of this kind as out of place and uncalled for, yet I feel that you must agree with me, when I say that no people in all the world suffer more from misrepresentation through the daily press than do the negroes of America, misrepresented, because all the petty crimes and vicious acts of irresponsible members of the race get prominent front page notice and space, while the many commendable acts and good deeds of the great mass of church-going and tax-paying colored people are unpublished, unknown. True, we have papers of our own, but these are seldom read by our white neighbors, hence their estimate of negro life in America is based on facts gathered from the worst side of negro life. Therefore, think it not strange that I, after observing your fearless exposure of the wrongs done the negro here in Marion county, your splendid editorials and general attitude of fairness to all, address this expression of thanks and appreciation to you.

F. B. RANSOM.

THE CHARLESTON POST.

MAKE PROTEST AGAINST "MOVIE"

Colored Citizens Do Not Want "Birth of Nation" Shown Here.

A conference was in progress this afternoon at the mayor's office participated in by a committee of colored citizens, Mayor Breece, City Solicitor McClintic, General N. S. Burlew of the Burlew theater and a representative of the company producing the moving pictures, "The Birth of a Nation."

These pictures are billed for the Burlew theater for the week starting Dec. 20, and the colored people of Charleston are protesting vigorously against their being shown here. A delegation of more than a dozen colored men called on the mayor yesterday, complaining that the pictures are prejudicial to the race, have aroused wide-spread opposition on the part of colored people throughout the United States and have been suppressed in a great many places.

Mayor Breece advised the delega tion to select a smaller committ tion for a conference this aftern which was accordingly done about half a dozen, representing ministry, legal profession and bus ness interests presented themselv at the meeting. They brought w that in Ohio where there i censory commission over movi tures. "The Birth of a Nati not allowed to be show

Newspaper Cutting Bureau in the World

Courier

FINDLAY, O.

Address

DEC 13 1915

...hen the Corn Boys' party reach-... Philadelphia and was joined by ...overnor Willis a difficulty arose ...hich was settled only by the meet-...g of the governor's demands. Ar-...angements had been made by the ...onductor on the excursion to take ...ll the tourists to see "The Birth of ...a Nation," one of the most remark-...able and instructive motion picture ...plays ever filmed. A theater had ...been reserved for the afternoon per-...formance. Governor Willis insisted ...that none should be allowed to see ...the film, which by his orders had ...been refused admittance to Ohio af-...ter it had been passed by the Board ...of Censors. It is charged that the ...governor's action is taken as a politi-...cal plan to curry favor with the negro ...voters, but that as a matter of fact it ...is resented by the educated class. "The Birth of a Nation," has to do ...with the reconstruction period of the ...South and exemplifies the rise of the ...nation at the end of the war of the ...rebellion. The interference of Gov-...ernor Willis with the censor board's ...work has been resented, but the re-...sentment is more acute at an action ...taken in another state where the ...film has been voted entirely proper.

Instead of going to the theater as ...planned the Corn Boys' excursion ...had the pleasure of listening to a ...speech by Governor Willis, and as a ...substitute for the classic they were ...permitted to attend a vaudeville ...show in the evening.

THE CHARLESTON POST

MAYOR WILL STOP BIRTH OF NATION

Theater Declares Picture Will Be Shown as Advertised.

After making a trip to Parkersburg in company with City Solicitor McClintic to see the pictures of "The Birth of a Nation," Mayor Breece has decided not to permit the pictures to be shown in Charleston.

He announced this morning: "I do not think the pictures proper for exhibition and have decided to forbid their presentation here, under the city ordinance regulating such matters and authorizing the suppression of any public performance considered improper. That is all I care to say about the matter."

"The Birth of a Nation", is billed for all next week at the Burlew theatre and the management of the opera house will go ahead with arrangements to put the show on as ...led. The management stated to-... that while it is admitted that ...yor Breece is sincere in his belief ...at he is acting within his authority ...nd is sincere in his opinion of the ...picture, yet the show will be given, ...as legal advice has been obtained ...that the city government has not the ...necessary authority to prevent it.

A representative of the theatre said to the Post this morning that the theatre was under contract to produce the picture and since the management had been advised by its attorneys that there was no lawful way in which the production of the picture could be interfered with, the picture would be put on just as advertised.

The probabilities are that the matter will be thrashed out in court before the ultimate conclusion of the controversy has been reached.

The show was at Parkersburg last week and starts a week engagement ...Huntington tonight. It has played ...Wheeling for one week and the producers say they have a contract to return to Wheeling for another week's performance.

NEWS SCIMITAR

CENSURS APPROVE BIG PHOTO DRAMA "BIRTH OF NATION"

After consideration of a multitude of objections and as many favorable messages, the city board of censorship Saturday declared that the big motion picture spectacle, "The Birth of a Nation," would be permitted to show at the Lyceum theater as booked. The production is to be here early in January.

The picture has aroused both unfavorable as well as commendatory opinions since its production. Before presented here the picture will undergo an eliminating process. This, it is said, will not materially affect the big drama, but will remove the chief cause for objection from Southerners.

"The board of censors had previously decided that the picture should not be shown here," declared Secretary J. M. Dean, "but numerous protests coming from local citizens, as well as letters and telegrams from public officials and newspaper men in cities where it had been shown, again forced the question upon us.

"Upon reconsideration, Mr. Brinkley and Mr. Myers favored our approval of the production, provided certain eliminations, to be agreed upon, are made. While still strongly questioning the wisdom and rightness of permitting the picture to be exhibited here, even with the eliminations, I have merely acquiesced in the decision of the majority.

"Differences of opinion on our board have been few and far between. Our work together has been harmonious, and we want to keep it so."

BIRTH OF NATION PASSES CENSORS

"WORLD'S GREATEST PHOTO-PLAY PRODUCTION" OFFICIALLY SANCTIONED BY COMMISSIONERS.

IS HIGHLY PRAISED

MUNICIPAL FATHERS SAY THAT AS AN EDUCATIONAL PICTURE IT HAS FEW EQUALS IF ANY.

The photoplay production, "The Birth of a Nation," received the official endorsement of the city commission Friday, following a private run of the picture Thursday afternoon, when the commissioners, sitting as a board of censorship, viewed the production at the New.

Following is the resolution passed by the commission Friday morning:

"The Birth of a Nation.

"As an educational picture we feel it has few equals, if any, and should be seen by every person, young and old, white and black, who is interested in any way in the historical events connected with this country, especially the civil war.

"It portrays in the most striking manner all the horrors of war as well as showing the treachery resorted to by the professional politician in connection with the scheming and unscrupulous individual who is ever alert to take advantage of the ignorant and unsuspecting, irrespective of race or color. And to those who have asked us to censor this picture would respectfully say we feel that to see the picture will eliminate from their minds the idea of condemning the picture in any way, but will at once demonstrate to all fair-minded people the educational as well as entertaining features of one of the greatest photoplays of the age."

Roanoke Times 12/16

PUBLIC OPINION

Denounces "The Birth of a Nation."

Pulaski, Dec. 14.

Editor The Roanoke Times:

I notice that Roanoke is about to be visited again by that infamous photo drama by David W. Griffith and Thomas Dixon. From the interest shown in a return engagement being asked, the people of your city seem to enjoy the prejudical insults and lies heaped upon the negro.

That the production is a remarkable display of genius goes without question but it would seem to the least intelligent that a better use could be made of a brain than to try to review those old prejudices and hatreds that have begun to disappear, even in the far South.

The picture in no way portrays any actual facts concerning the negro, and in its entirety lies the work of years of getting together of the worst possible means of outraging an already downtrodden people, and if now or ever did the things occur that Mr. Griffith and Dixon point out, what was the cause? Let it be clearly understood that if the black man's living coupled with the white man's Christianity, civilization has proven him to be a brute, it is no lack of his own—if he has murdered, raped and pushed himself into the white man's presence against the white man's will, it is because he has been taught so by the white man's example. If he acquired education, property and became a noticeable object, it is because the white man's example taught it. We have not forgotten. Though history does not, nor ever will, record it, the thousands of black women and girls in this country sacrificing themselves to the greedy lusts of the white masters, bearing them sons and daughters, to be burned at the stake and hung up between the earth and heaven, and their limbs scattered to the winds, we are still reminded of the fact that we are segregated, jim-crowed, and disfranchised; yet called upon to help preserve from shame and dishonor a flag that never lets her spangled furls float over the home of a negro.

We are forced to ride in the filthiest railroad cars, and suffer any kind of an indignity that our white brother sees cause to offer. We cannot live peaceably in a decent section of the cities; we cannot own a farm in some of the (barbarous) rural sections of the country without being visited by Mr. Dixon's clansmen, or shot down for not moving out. You make laws of the meanest kind, and adjust them to suit yourselves, so as to leave us without any kind of protection. Our school systems are neglected; we cannot get into the public play grounds and parks, on the plea that our taxes are not large enough to warrant us permission, when the truth is it is nothing more than depriving us of manhood rights, prompted by race hatred and prejudice.

The book, the play and all its meaning is unprincipled, without any word of truth. Its mission is a bad one, and no people will asnction its appearance nor its principles that have the welfare of humanity at heart. Roanoke, the leading city of dear old Virginia, should be the last to accept the filth of a moneyed and race-hating scheme. It cannot, nor will not, serve any good. The United States has not entirely freed herself from savagery. If we may accept carefully collected figures, we learn that in 1913 as many as 79 colored men and women were killed by mobs and lynched without trial, because of "alleged" offenses, some of which were too trivial to even mention. In 1914 there were 22 lynched in the first six months of the year.

The play may appeal to theatre-going Roanoke, but if there is a spark of real Christianity and right thinking in them, they will no longer turn to such plays as a means of learning the truth about the negro, and Roanoke would do itself and the eight or ten thousand negroes there a real justice in barring such pictures.

J. E. TINSLEY.

Date? Place?

"BIRTH OF NATION" TO BE SROWN HERE

CONTROVERSY SETTLED AFTER DISCUSSION BY THE CITY COUNCIL YESTERDAY.

After quite an extended discussion of the subject of any racial prejudice that might be the outgrowth of the presenting here of "The Birth of a Nation," the city council yesterday afternoon, as intervenors between the Auditorium management and a negro organization that had been making objections, reached an amicable understanding and it is expected that the suit in chancery court will be dropped this morning and the subject dropped also. Manager Head stated that the matter had been thoroughly threshed out, and that all parties were satisfied.

(Note the word "meddle.")

Newark News Dec 7

POLICE, AS CENSORS, LOSE IN "BIRTH OF NATION" CASE

That the police department has no power to act as a censor of moving pictures or the stage, is the opinion of Vice Chancellor Howell expressed in a memorandum submitted yesterday to Conover English in the case brought against the Board of Police Commissioners by the Hyle & Behman Amusement Co. and the owners of the moving picture drama, "The Birth of the Nation." The vice chancellor's memorandum places of record his tentative decision given in an injunction order made a short time ago.

The order makes permanent the injunction restraining the police from interference with the presention of the motion play.

"I know of no power in our police department," says the vice chancellor, "to censor plays or theatrical exhibitions. None was cited in the argument before me and I therefore take it that none exists."

The vice chancellor goes on to say that he "cannot see where the police authorities get their right to meddle in such matters."

"I therefore hold," the opinion concludes, "that the action of the police commissioners in this case (ordering that the picture, 'The Birth of the Nation,' be not displayed) was not warranted and that it ought to be enjoined."

The vice chancellor stated that he had read the record of a similar case in Atlantic City against the department of public safety by the owners of the same film in which Chancellor Walker concluded that a permanent injunction against interference should prevail. Mr. English represented the firm owners in their injunction against police interference of the production of the play at the Newark Theater last month.

DESIRA going Woodruff

NEWARK EAGLE DEC 7

POLICE LOSE IN FILM INJUNCTION

ice-Chancellor Rules Against Right to Censor Theater Productions.

ILL CONTINUE, SAYS LONG

Picture or Drama Objectionable We Will Stop It," Declares the Chief.

hrough Vice-Chancellor Howell, in memorandum submitted yesterday, ared that the police department no power to act as censors of ving pictures or of stage produc-s. Chief of Police Michael T. Long n asked last night what the police ld do in the future said: "If there nything objectionable to a picture rama we will stop it."

he vice-chancellor's opinion con- the case brought against the rd of Police Commissioners by the e and Bohman Amusement Com- and the owners of the moving re drama, "The Birth of a Na-" through Conover English, of arter and English, as counsel.

e memorandum places on record vice-chancellor's tentative decision n in an injunction order made re-y. The order makes permanent injunction restraining the poli- interference with the presenta- of the motion picture.

en Chief Long was questioned the vice-chancellor's order he the above statement after de-g that he had no statement to , and concluded by saying that d not see the decision, but that ly referred to "The Birth of a on" production at the Newark ter.

Kalisch Refuses to Discuss Case.

y Attorney Harry Kalisch de-d to discuss the memorandum of vice-chancellor, but said he felt olice commissioners were acting n their rights at the time they ed that the picture not be shown notice that the picture could e shown was issued by the Po-Board. Lieutenant John F. Har-assigned to Chief Long's office, ssed the picture in New York n company with Police Commis-Frederic Bigelow. Later Pres-Fred C. Breidenbach witnessed icture in the metropolis.

tenant Harris and Lieutenant J. Quinn, also assigned to the office, have censored other pic-The general work of censor-ll to the lot of Patrolmen Wil-Douglas and Robert C. Law-both assigned at headquarters.

ight to Meddle," Says Chancellor.

now of no power in our police ment," says Vice-Chancellor l in his memorandum, "to plays or theatrical exhibitions. was cited in the argument be-e and I therefore take it that xists."

vice-chancellor goes on to say e "can't see where the police ities get their right to meddle matters."

erefore hold," the opinion con- "that the action of the police ssioners in this case (ordering e picture, "The Birth of the be not displayed) was not ted and that it ought to be d." iscussing the case, City At- Kalisch said:

only feature I had in mind at I failed to see where any ad a right to interfere with nicipal board's right in act-ording to law. The police cted on account of alleged of a breach of peace. I felt e police had the same right ny case to prevent such an .

her or not it was an unfair tion of the negro race I did sider. I felt that the board hin its rights in taking the did."

nderstood that "The Birth of " pictures will be seen again r date, probably Christmas this city.

DEFEAT EFFORT TO RESTRICT FILM

Theatrical Owners of Detroit Have Proposed Ordinance Withdrawn After Three-Hour Fight.

"BIRTH OF A NATION" THE ISSUE

(Special Dispatch to The Morning Telegraph.)

DETROIT, Dec. 20.

After a three-hour's verbal battle before the Council Ordinance Committee here this morning the local theatrical managers gained a victory over the reform element, who were striving to have a new ordinance adopted that would prohibit the presentation of pictures and plays that tend to create race prejudice or have unconventional plots. More than one hundrerd and fifty theatrical representatives, comprising the owners of legitimate, vaudeville and motion picture houses, appeared to argue for their side of the question, while the fight to put the ordinance through was conducted by the leading ministers and members of the negro race of the city.

The ordinance gained its inception by the impending engagement of "The Birth of a Nation," the sensational motion picture that deals with conditions in the South during the wartime. It was decided to leave the decision as to whether or not this film shall be permitted to appear with the Mayor. A delegation of ministers and attorneys will visit the city executive to-morrow afternoon to urge him to prohibit the film, it was said after the meeting to-day.

J. J. McCarthy and Theodore Mitchell, of New York, representing D. W. Griffith, the producer of "The Birth of a Nation," were present and spoke against the adoption of the ordinance. The ordinance was finally withdrawn upon the assurance that money would be appropriated in the near future with which the recently appointed recreation commission could carry on the work of censoring plays and pictures.

"The Birth of a Nation" is booked for a two-weeks' engagement at the Detroit Opera House, beginning on January 3.

Wy Morn. Telegraph Dec 21 1916

116

1916

VINDICATOR

YOUNGSTOWN

ESS

Alter "Birth of a Nation."

Ohio may yet get a chance to see "The Birth of a Nation." Some time ago the state board of moving picture censors refused to allow this exhibit to be shown, this action causing no little contention. The owners of the picture have made alterations in it and now hope to get it approved so that it can be shown in Ohio. When the picture was before the board, one of the three members voted to pass it with certain alterations, while the other two voted against it. There was much feeling on the part of the owner when the board refused to approve the picture, as it had been shown in many other states and had been pronounced by critics to be the greatest film ever produced.

JANUARY 6, 1916.

EVERY EVENING—WILMINGTON, DELAWARE.

Police Suppression of a Play.

The action of the Police Commissioners in prohibiting the presentation of the motion picture play, "The Birth of a Nation," at The Playhouse, because it is not pleasing to some negro citizens, is hardly in accord with public policy and the rights of the majority. How about other productions to which a small element of the community may object? Are they to be prohibited on account of this objection, even though a majority of the community should favor them?

Similar action was taken by police authorities in other cities in respect of this production, and for the same reason—partisan politics. But in each instance, even in Philadelphia, the courts overruled the police authorities, declared the production to be a proper one, and allowed it to be presented. Whether this course will be followed here remains to be seen.

No play that is clean and morally unobjectionable should be prohibited because any one class of the community objects to it. Those who do not like it may stay away from the place of production. To prohibit it is to deprive those who desire to see the play of their lawful rights, and therefore is an injustice.

EDITORIAL

Decatur (Ill.) Herald

January 10, 1916

PASTOR ATTACKS "BIRTH OF NATION"

"The 'Birth of a Nation' should not be exhibited in Decatur nor in any other place, according to the assistant corporation counsel in Chicago," said Rev. E. M. Antrim at the close of the sermon Sunday night at the First Methodist church. "According to what is heard, it tends to stir up race animosity and puts on the stage suggestive and indecent exhibitions. It does not put either the white man or the black man in the right light. It has been ruled out of Ohio, and has been said to have led to race riots in Boston and Philadelphia."

Mr. Antrim's evening subject was "Savonarola." This was the first sermon in the series on "The Great Evangelists." In the morning two Gideons, Mr. Huyck and Mr. Rylander, gave interesting talks on the work of the Gideons. The offering for them amounted to over $30.

respect

Parkersburg Sentinel Jan 7

The state board of moving picture censors of Ohio, yesterday, for the second time within three months, rejected the greatest of all moving picture films, "The Birth of a Nation," which was recently shown in this city for one week to appreciative audiences. The Ohio board rejected it on the grounds "that its effect would be harmful and tend to create race hatred." How it could create race hatred anyone who has been an unprejudiced witness of the picture is unable to understand. It is a fact that it shows some wicked men, but they are shown as belonging to one race as well as to the other, and while a few bad negroes are shown many of the faithful blacks are presented as standing by the whites of the South in a time of peril. The carpet-baggers, who are especially condemned in the picture, are the only ones who hold the contempt of the audience after the show is over. The real cause of the rejection of the film by the Ohio censors is that the members of hte Ohio board hold their rather pleasant and remunerative office through political appointment and they are afraid that the picture might in some remote manner affect them politically. Had West Virginia been possessed of a moving picture censorship board like Ohio it is quite probable that the State house gang would have prevented the people of this state from seeing the show. In Charleston an effort was made to prevent the show, but without success. No intelligent colored man who has seen "The Birth of a Nation" thinks that it would create race hatred. Nearly every show has its villian and "The Birth of a Nation" has several, but they are by no means confined to one race.

Belle

Milwaukee Daily Press

ALBANY, SATURDAY, JAN. 8, 1916.

REGRETTABLE FOLLY.

A photo play of much ingenuity in conception and execution, and of peculiar viciousness in the skill with which it instills false views of history and of the race problem, has been on exhibition in Albany. Probably no one at this late day grudges the south whatever comfort it can extract for itself from the great conflict it forced upon the country, costing the nation six hundred thousand lives. But when the effort is made to teach our youth falsely regarding the negro, a protest must be made.

Observation suffices to indicate the harm which this unjust attack has done to the kindly and dependent race which preserved securely all through the war the honor of southern womanhood—"safe in her sanctuary," as Henry A. Grady said, "because her slaves, sentinel in the silent cabin, or guard at her chamber door, put a black man's loyalty between her and danger."

"May God forget my people," exclaimed Grady, the prophet of the new south, "when they forget this." Yet a bright, young, innocent-faced Albany boy, the other day, trying to explain the feeling this southern moving picture stirred in his heart, exclaimed: "It makes you feel this way—that if you should meet a negro, coming out of the theatre, you would want to murder him!" And Grady pledged his word to us in Boston, in 1889: "We shall give them uttermost justice and abiding friendship."

Within a day or two an organization of college professors representing eleven southern states has addressed an open letter to college men of the south, which helps to make clear how unwarranted are the conceptions which this picture fosters. These men, alarmed and disheartened at the spread of mob law in the south, beg southerners of intellect and culture to do what they can to check this contagious social disease, which has developed into a habit that spares neither race nor sex, innocent nor guilty, in its wicked defiance of law and order. Here is a part of their appeal:

> "The records for 1914, compiled by three different agencies, give the total number lynched during the year as 52, 54 and 74.
>
> "It should especially be noted that of the fifty-two persons lynched, according to the most conservative report, only seven—two white and five colored—or thirteen per cent, were charged with the crime against womanhood. This shows clearly how far and how quickly the habit has spread beyond the boundaries set by those who first resorted to lynching as a remedy. According to states the lynchings were distributed as follows: Alabama, 1; Florida, 4; Georgia, 4; Louisiana, 12; Mississippi, 12; Missouri, 1; New Mexico, 1; North Dakota, 1; North Carolina, 1; Oklahoma, 3; Oregon, 1; South Carolina, 4; Tennessee, 1; Texas, 6.
>
> "The same agency which reports fifty-two lynchings for 1914 reported for 1915: Number lynched, colored, male, 51; female, 3; whites, 14; total, 68. This is an increase of sixteen or thirty per cent over the total number in 1914. It is worthy of note that in at least four cases it later was discovered the victims of the mob were innocent of the crimes of which they were accused."

This summons to southern manhood and justice is timely, and is worthy of the south we would like to admire. But when the south sends us pictures that inculcate in our youth the prejudices which the best part of the south is ashamed of, we are oblig[illegible] express resentment.

THE BIRTH OF A NATION

The city council will hold a meeting this afternoon for the purpose of passing judgment upon the showing of the great Griffith motion picture production, "The Birth of a Nation."

Some time ago the council was presented with a petition from colored residents of Hot Springs, asking that the showing of this picture be prohibited, and stating that they believed its showing would disturb the amicable relations of the white and black races in Hot Springs. At that time the council looked with favor upon the petition and took action which granted the prayer of the petition.

Since that time there has been much discussion of this matter and it has even been carried into the courts for settlement.

It has been shown unmistakably from sources that cannot be doubted that there is nothing objectionable in the showing of the picture either in the North or South. That fact seems to be established, and there is no need to discuss it further.

It has been stated that since the former action of the council, nine of the members have undergone a change of mind. The New Era hopes this is correct and that the council at its meeting this afternoon at 5 o'clock will lift the ban on this production and eliminate the necessity of court action and also to stop further discussion.

Hot Springs is a resort city. It is everybody's city. It is our city and the nation's city. It would be nothing short of a calamity for the news to go out that Hot Springs at the instance of its negro residents had prohibited the showing of this greatest masterpiece of the silent drama. At the behest of the better class of people we have already drawn the lines tight. They are tight enough now. Let's not let it be known to the world that any class or party that desires can dictate the policy of Hot Springs—can say to our visitors and residents what they can do and what they cannot do; what they can see and what they cannot see.

The New Era wants to see "The Birth of a Nation" shown, simply because there is no earthly reason why it should not be shown.

Views of the People.

What The Star's Readers Are Thinking and Saying.

Still Aroused Over "The Birth of a Nation."

To the Editor of The Star:

It is too much to expect that the photo drama, "The Birth of a Nation," which still continues to do violence to the salutary lessons of the war of the rebellion, would be without at least a few radical defenders. Such pieces of fiction as "The Clansman," "Can the Leopard Change Its Spots," and others of a similar, sinister type, which have of late years come into a certain vogue, supposedly portraying conditions in the South growing out of the civil war (and "adaptations" from them like "The Birth of a Nation"), but which, on the contrary, are distorted and biased views of their times, need to be read in the bright light of the truth of history if their effect is otherwise than highly harmful upon the minds of all readers, old or young.

The sooner that the national board of censors, without fear or favor, drive out and keep out of the public view such misleading, immoral and unnational plays as "The Birth of a Nation," the more secure will be our blood-bought heritage of the civil war, during which the spirit of national unity at length arose, shook its locks, and dealt blows that crushed, let us hope forever, the false doctrines of secession and the institution of human slavery.

R. H. RICHARDS, M. D.

Patricksburg, Ind.

Terre Haute Post Jan 8

SATURDAY

DEBS SAYS LOCAL ELECTIONS BAD AS ONES IN BIG MOVIE

Criticizes "Birth of a Nation" for "Insult" to Black Race, Saying Movie Is Worthy of a Better Purpose

Recent elections in Terre Haute have been as bad as those pictured in the "Birth of a Nation," which movie shows negro militia driving whites away from the polls in the south, according to a scathing criticism of the movie by Eugene V. Debs, noted Terre Haute Socialist. Debs' criticism follows:

"THE BIRTH OF A NATION."

Editor Post: The merits of this spectacular drama excite bitter comment whenever it is presented. There is no question that it is a wonderful production, that many of its scenes are tense and thrilling, and that there is much in the play to approve and commend, but if the author's studied purpose was to insult the black race and to revive and intensify the bitter prejudices which grew out of the war, he could not have better succeeded, and it would be passing strange if the colored people did not protest against certain shocking features of the drama as doing them and their race grossest injustice.

If it be absolutely essential to the play to present those harrowing rape-scenes, then why not round them out in their historic completeness and show the dissolute son of the plantation owner ravishing the black daughter before her parents' eyes?

For every white woman raped in the south by a black fiend, a thousand black women have been seduced and outraged by white gentlemen but no hint of this is given in the series of pictures composing "The Birth of a Nation." It is only the black brute that is guilty according to this and all other stories written about the negro by Thomas Dixon, the author, who also calls himself a minister of Christ.

Four Million Mulattoes.

There are four million mulattoes in this country, most of whom were born out of wedlock and all of whom have a white father or grandfather, and these white gentlemen are ready to fight at the drop of the hat for "white supremacy" and against "nigger equality."

The pretended reverence for Lincoln in the play does not at all square with the facts of history. Lincoln was hated with a savage hate by the slave-owners of the south, and it was this ferocious hate that culminated in his assassination, and the reverence now shown him on the stage is a convenient mask behind which the same blind hate may vent itself upon the unoffending negro.

Shameless Exploitation.

Let it not be overlooked that all our histories have been written by white men and that negroes had no hand in them. They simply had to take what was given them, but even at that there is no denying the fact that from the time the negroes were first stolen from their native land by white slave-traders whom it were flattery to call brutes, until the last law disfranchising them in the south was put into effect and the last "Jim-crow" car put into commission to attest their standing as live stock, the whole history of the treatment of the negro race is one of shameless exploitation and degradation, for which the white race can never atone in time nor eternity.

If the black people today could tell their story about "The Birth of a Nation," it would be replete with scenes infinitely more cruel and damning than those based upon Dixon's novel and flashed upon the screen to conceal the white man's crimes behind the negro's misfortune.

Klan Glorified.

The Ku-Klux-Klan are glorified in these pictures as spotless knights, the personification of chivalry and honor, and the audience applauds madly as they dash to the rescue of some imaginary white victim of a black fiend, but care is taken not to portray any of the outrages perpetrated upon defenseless, unoffending negroes by these same lawless night-riders.

The pictures showing the scenes about the polling places on election day, under negro domination, are especially calculated to subject the negro to ridicule and contempt and the white audience never fails to attest its appreciation by its sneers and cheers.

Like in Terre Haute.

It's true such election scenes with their black sluggers and their sodden corruption are disgraceful and revolting, but how much more disgraceful and revolting are they than the election scenes which have occurred in and about Terre Haute during the last few years scenes in which the sluggers were white instead of black, and insulted white ladies instead of black wenches; scenes unspeakably low and vile as everyone will admit, who bore witness to them. How would it do to make pictures of some of these and travel through the south with them, flashing them upon a screen to show the negroes in that section what an eminently respectable thing an election is when dominated by white men and by what pure and incorruptible methods the will of the people is expressed in a civilized white community?

Whites Also to Blame.

If the white race has demonstrated its "superiority" in any one thing, it is in its politics and elections, and if negroes should be disfranchised, the evident purpose of Dixon's pictures, because of their disgraceful conduct at the polls, then by the same token white men should also be stripped of the ballot and driven from the polling places.

The chief commercial statistics exhibited at the close of the play to show the progress made by the negro race is but a weak attempt to excuse the wanton insults heaped upon that race. Intelligent negroes will not be deceived. The Progress they have made is mainly due to themselves. They owe little to the white race as a whole save their exploitation and degradation.

Must Depend on Selves.

Let the colored people learn how to depend upon themselves, how to do for themselves, and to win their own way in the world. When they cut loose from the grafting politicians that use them as pawns in the political game and reward one of their number with a spittoon-cleaning job in recognition of their race, and stand together; when they begin in earnest to educate themselves to develop their minds and do their own thinking, they will then command the respect of the white race and of the world, but not before.

EUGENE V. DEBS.

Terre Haute, Ind., Jan. 6, 1916.

1/14

Hot Springs (Ark) Sentinel Record

CENSORSHIP BY CITY COUNCIL

WHETHER "BIRTH OF A NATION" MAY PLAY WITHOUT INTERRUPTION TO BE ANSWERED.

This Afternoon at 5 O'Clock There Will Be a Special Meeting Which Will Put the Question Squarely Up for Answer.

Whether the great photo play, "The Birth of a Nation," may be shown in Hot Springs next week without interruption, is a question that will be answered in so far as the city council is concerned in the matter, this afternoon at 5 o'clock at a special meeting to be held in the city hall.

The usual incident of a special meeting of the city council to pass on such a question was considered necessary yesterday. The council at a meeting some weeks ago went on record as being against the production. More recently it is said that nine of the council members have signed a statement in favor of the production.

The legal question is now in chancery court, where a decision will be handed down Saturday morning. Through Attorneys Martin, Wootton and Martin, the Auditorium theatre has asked for a restraining order to prevent any interference with the performance here.

Attorney Leo McLaughlin, representing a negro organization which is making an effort to prevent the production before the people of Hot Springs, will conduct the case in chancery court Saturday morning in their behalf, and probably represent the negroes at the council session this afternoon.

The fact that the negroes have attempted to interfere with the production has already stirred some feeling and many believe that feeling would be more stirred by the negroes depriving a community of seeing such a photo play, than would have ever been stirred had the picture come and gone without this unusual proceeding to prevent it.

J. T. T. Warren appeared in chancery court a few days ago and stated that he was the representative of the "Business Men's League," a negro organization, which had been holding meetings, and had gone on record as opposing the production here of this photo-play, and that they would have counsel to represent them in the proceedings later relative to the issue.

There was a report yesterday that at the special meeting of the council this afternoon a very large delegation of negroes would be present.

Jan 29/1916

Morning Telegraph

JANUARY 29, 1916.

"BIRTH OF NATION" SUED FOR PROFITS

Southern Amusement Company, as Alleged Sole Owner of Dramatic Rights, Demands $500,000.

PRESENTED IN PICTURE FORM

Epoch Producing Corporation Is Named as Defendant in Complaint Served on Treasurer Banzhaf.

"The Birth of a Nation" came in for more litigation yesterday, when the Southern Amusement Company began in the Supreme Court a suit to collect $500,000 from its sponsor, the Epoch Producing Corporation, alleging that the film has gathered in more than half a million dollars during its stay in New York at the Liberty Theatre.

According to the complaint, filed by Attorney Max D. Josephson, the Southern Amusement Company contends that prior to May 10, 1906, Thomas Dixon, Jr., conceived the idea of "The Clansman" and on that date turned over the producing and dramatic rights to the present plaintiff.

The plaintiff declares by virtue of this sale it became the sole owner of the dramatic rights, but despite that fact on March 3, 1915, the defendant caused "The Birth of a Nation" to be prepared from the book, and presented it in picture form.

The immediate success achieved by the film is a matter of theatrical history. But it is also a fact, states the plaintiff, that while over $500,000 was taken in at the Liberty Theatre, the plaintiff did not receive a cent of the money.

Judgment is demanded for that amount on the theory that the plaintiff, as per its claim, being the sole owner of the dramatic rights, all moneys received from "The Birth of a Nation" should be treated as accruing for its benefit.

An affidavit of service, accompanying the complaint, shows it was served on Max D. Banzhaf, the treasurer of the Epoch Producing Corporation, at 2 Rector street.

THE LANSING PRESS

Published Every Morning Except Monday by THE LANSING PUBLISHING CO. North Grand Ave. and East Ottawa St.

MEMBER OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

The Lansing Press is delivered in the city by carriers for eight cents a week or $4.00 a year; by mail, $2.00 a year in advance.

Entered as Second Class Matter at the Postoffice, Lansing, under the Act of March 3, 1879.

TELEPHONES

Bell 1500 Citizens 3135

Give operator name of department or person wanted.

Circulation Guaranteed
Audit Bureau of Circulations

"THE BIRTH OF A NATION"

Undoubtedly the members of the Negro Civic league of Lansing feel that they are working towards the elimination of racial prejudice by their strivings to prevent the showing of "The Birth of a Nation" at the Gladmer.

Agitation is a fine weapon against lethargy. Agitation serves well as a foe to ignorance. But agitation is no kind of a tool to employ in eliminating race prejudice.

"The Birth of a Nation" will be shown in Lansing. There isn't any question about it. It isn't obscene. It complies with every law that any legislative body would have a right to make. It has been shown from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and it won't be stopped in Lansing.

By letting themselves get all worked up over it, the negroes have done two things that they didn't want to do, without accomplishing anything that they wanted to accomplish. They have aroused a certain amount of racial prejudice by calling people's attention to the fact that there is such a thing. They are increasing the number of persons who will go to see "The Birth of a Nation," by "breaking" front page newspaper stories and editorials about it.

Mr. Howard Herrick, the business manager of the film, has been up against this same proposition before in New York, in Chicago, in Pittsburgh, and a dozen other places. He is probably chuckling a gleeful chuckle over getting so much free advertising for his production.

The thing for the negroes to do is to try to forget race prejudice. In time the old wounds will heal—but scabs should be let alone.

Morning Telegraph

SAGINAW ... Jan 29

DEMAND STATUS OF FILM PICTURES

Whether Classed With Drama or Newspaper, There Should Be No Censor, Screen Men Argue.

UP TO LOCAL COMMUNITIES

States Are Empowered to Deal With Vice in All Its Forms, Brief to Congress Says.

(Special Dispatch to The Morning Telegraph.)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.

Demanding the status of the motion pictures in the professional world, Attorney William M. Seabury, acting for the Motion Picture Board of Trade, has filed the most virile argument yet advanced against Federal censorship of motion pictures intended for shipment in interstate commerce.

"The status of the motion picture should be definitely fixed," asserts Mr. Seabury. "If we are not to be regarded as like the public press, at least in so far as the news motion pictures and serial motion pictures are concerned, to what may this class of pictures be compared and if the photo-play is not like the ordinary drama, to what may it be compared? In the application of these analogies, Congress ought to decline to assume the censorship of the news picture or the serial picture, just as it ought not to censor the public press; and it should decline to censor the pictorial drama, just as it has declined to assume to censor the living drama on the stage, leaving both subjects where they properly belong—to each local community."

The motion picture industry, now the fifth largest in the country, doing a gross annual business of $350,000,000 and catering to the amusement of 10,000,000 persons daily, has four great branches, all represented in the argument submitted to the House Committee on Education by the Motion Picture Board of Trade, the body which President Wilson addressed while in New York City on Thursday night.

These branches are, first, the manufacturers of cameras, raw film and projecting machines; second, producers of motion pictures, including photo-plays, dramas, current events and scenic subjects; third, rental exchanges doing a wholesale or jobbing business in machines and motion pictures, the latter of which are leased to exhibitors; and fourth, the exhibitors of motion pictures, being the owners or lessees of theatres who leased programs of pictures from the rental exchanges.

Argument Strong One.

Aside from the strength of its constitutional argument, the brief of the Motion Picture Board of Trade, after showing why the Hughes-Smith bill or any film censorship measure would be unconstitutional, if enacted by the Federal Government, is especially strong in setting forth the reasons why the proposed legislation, even if assumed, but not conceded, to be constitutional, is wholly unnecessary.

"Certainly," says the brief, "Con-

THE NEW ERA—LANCASTER, FRIDAY, JANUARY 28, 1916.

According to News-Scope need Lancaster, this is Congressman Griest's Organ.

4

The Muncie Star

People's Forum

THE BIRTH OF A NATION.

Editor Star:

The moving picture shows of today are the greatest agencies with which to mold public sentiments.

We are unknowingly supplied with an abundance of contorted history through the moving picture plays. The one fond hope of capitalism is to keep the white man and the negro hating each other, for as long as they delight in brutalizing each other they will not find time to study the perplexing social problems of their time. The audience that watches the negro criminal chase the little white girl from the spring where she is musing with a squirrel, those who see the falsehood of negro legislators, drinking whiskey and carrying banners with inscriptions asking for social equality will not feel better after Dixon vaccinates them with prejudice

The "Birth of a Nation" shows a burly negro overpower an innocent, defenseless woman because she will not consent to be his bride.

This part of the play is so enacted as to prejudice the white man against the negro.

Mr. Dixon poses as the friend of man, but in all his writings I detect that whenever the negro has been stabbed his dagger has been wet. Mr. Dixon says nothing of the 15,000 mulatto children born every year in America, which proves that the negro is lynched for attempting to do that which the white man has successfully done for 300 years. The negro criminal is the inevitable product of our social system, having been kept in ignorance and taught that misery and adversity here were essential to happiness hereafter. Thus he was taught that he could get forgiveness for even the most hideous crimes "between the stirrup and the ground," but we are learning that not even a God can, for the asking, erase the crimes of a criminal, nor the crimes against the criminal. I am not surprised to learn that some agencies of divine revelation look upon the "Birth of a Nation" as a blessing, for it helps to keep the switch open on the feed wires of intelligence. I am not apologizing for the negro criminal. He, like the white criminal, is only the reflex of criminal conditions. Where capitalism has exhausted the vocabulary of cunningness to keep the working class economically ignorant, for white, the negro remains in ignorance, with no library in his home and no chance for refinement and mental development. As long as he anchors his trust in the dark hereafter he will make a good strike breaker and can be depended upon to shoot straight when the money masters call the table son; where intelligence wanes and unionism forgets.

ROSS D. BROWN,
1003 E. Jackson St.

Jan. 14, 1916.

LANCASTER DAILY INTELLIGENCER,
, PA., THURSDAY, JANUARY 27, 1916.

GRIEST TRACTION COMPANY TO BENEFIT BY CITY RULING

Shutting Out of "Birth of Nation" Here and Showing at Columbia.

MEANS GREAT BOOST FOR TROLLEY COMPANY

Which Will Get 35 Cents Out of Each Lancaster Patron.

COURT REFUSES TO ACT

AND CASE WILL GO BY DEFAULT ON SATURDAY AT TIME FIXED.

Because of the attitude taken by the city authorities following a protest by Congressman W. W. Griest, (who by the way happens to hold a little job with the Conestoga Traction Company—its president) the man who wants to see "The Birth of a Nation," will have to pay to the trolley company the sum of thirty-five cents, unless he chooses to walk to the town in which it will be shown and in case he chooses Shank's mare he will have to start very early in the morning and get back very late at night.

The picture, the supression of which in this city has caused an almost volcanic outburst of public indignation, will open tonight in the Columbia Opera House and will show at matinee and night performances on Friday and Saturday.

This decision was reached late last night after Judge Landis had refused to grant a temporary injunction restraining the city authorities from interfering with the production here. George H. Atkinson, of New York general manager of the Epoch Production Company which owns the film, who is now in this city, this morning announced the owners had withdrawn from the case and would not appear at the hearing on the requested injunction which had been set by Judge Landis for Saturday morning.

Lancaster Ignored.

And so Lancaster is ignored and the river borough with only a fifth of the population of the county seat gets the greatest film production of the age. Lancaster misses—all because of the whim of——, seeing a show that is now playing to $110,000 business each week. Eleven companies are now touring the United States and each do an average weekly business of $16,000. A company is appearing nightly in London and doing record business, and there are now two companies on the high seas bound for South America and Australia.

On its original run in New York 802 consecutive performances were given and on Saturday night it will be shown in Gotham for the thousandth time. It was shown two hundred times in Philadelphia, three hundred times in Boston and the Chicago Company is now on its fortieth week and still playing to capacity houses.

Company Reaches Columbia.

The picture was shown in Lebanon last night and reached Columbia this morning. There are thirty people in the company which carries a large orchestra. Arrangements are being made to accommodate the public with special trolley service and to run a special train over the Pennsylvania railroad.

IN COURT.

Judge Landis at four o'clock on Wednesday afternoon refused to grant an injunction restraining the mayor, chief of police and the city of

GRIEST TRACTION

Continued from Page One

Lancaster from interfering with the showing of "The Birth of a Nation." He did grant a rule to show cause why an injunction should not be granted but made it returnable on Saturday morning at 10 o'clock. That late day prevents the show this week but on the result of the proceedings on Saturday will depend whether or not the show can be put on in this city at a future date.

In the bill filed it is set forth that the Epoch Producing Corporation are the owners of the Photoplay "The Birth of a Nation"; that the play is registered in Pennsylvania; that it was submitted to the Board of Censors of the State, who approved it as moral in character and proper for public presentation; that the pictures were shown 400 times in the Liberty Theatre, New York; 802 times in other theatres in New York; 20 weeks in Boston; 4 months in Chicago, 15 weeks in San Francisco, 17 weeks in Los Angeles, and in Philadelphia, Scranton, Wilkes-Barre, Mahanoy City and Pittsburgh in this State.

It is further set forth that there is nothing libelous in the pictures; that they do not tend to excite racial or religious prejudices or animosities, but the pictures are clean, wholesome and elevating in tone and sentiment; that a contract was entered into with Charles A. Yecker for the presentation of the pictures in the Opera House, owned by him and which is licensed; that the mayor of the city notified Albert H. D. Banzhof, the treasurer of the company, that the show would not be permitted, under a threat of revoking the license of Mr. Yecker, if he allowed the play to go on.

The prayer of the petitioner was that the mayor, chief of police be restrained from interfering with the production of the photoplay and from hindering or preventing the production thereof and from revoking the license of the Fulton Opera House company, if the play is produced.

Attached to the Bill is Exhibit "A", which shows that the play has the approval of the State Board of Censors.

Exhibit "B" is the contract between Mr. Yecker and the Epoch Producing Corporation, under the terms of which Mr. Yecker was to get 25 per cent of the receipts and the company 75 per cent.

After the bill in equity was marked filed, F. Lyman Windolph and B. F. Davis, attorneys, went in search of Judge Landis. He was not in his office in the Court House but was seen as he was crossing Duke street at Orange by the lawyers in the case.

They stopped the judge and told him their business, handing to him the bill in equity filed. He took the bill and fixed four o'clock for its presentation in court. At that hour counsel for the Epoch Company and City Solicitor Myers were present.

Mr. Windolph in opening the case for the company stated the Epoch Company was privileged to do business in Pennsylvania; that it had contracted with Mr. Yecker for the production of the play, which was of an educational character. The play has been seen by people in all sections of the country as one of the finest of moving picture exhibitions; that the production had the approval of the Board of Censors of the State and was shown in many cities of the state without objecting. In Philadelphia and Pittsburgh where objections were made, the courts ruled that it was a proper show.

The act of this city's administration was unwarranted as there is nothing objectionable in the play. The pictures for the state were carefully revised to meet existing conditions. The acts of the city officers, he stated, were unwarranted and arbitrary.

The Judge's Views.

Judge Landis said that in reading the bill in equity he failed to find that the petitioners for the injunction had a place in this city properly licensed. The city has a right to prevent any person who does not have a license from giving any exhibitions. The only person who would have standing in court for an injunction is Mr. Yecker, the owner of the Opera House, which is licensed. This contract calls for the delivery of the paraphernalia for this show to Mr. Yecker and he is the only one who could ask for an injunction.

Mr. Windolph took the position that a license was not required for this show, as the place it was booked for, is licensed.

The court answered the plaintiffs in this bill must show that you have a right to an injunction. The bill does not set forth that you have a place in this city, or a license to give any exhibition. The court read the city ordinance on the license fees for exhibitions and how they must be procured.

Mr. Windolph held that Mr. Yecker's license entitled the plaintiff to show in his Opera House and the court answered that Mr. Yecker was not asking for the injunction.

Mr. Davis said the only issue for the court to determine is whether the show is a proper one.

The court said the bill would not now be heard but would grant a rule to show cause why an injunction should not be issued as prayed for.

Mr. Davis asked that it be made returnable on Thursday morning. The court said they could not hear it on Thursday.

City Solicitor Myers said he wanted time to prepare an answer.

The court said that the plaintiffs in this bill must show that it has a right to an injunction; that the consent of Mr. Yecker was necessary before the pictures could be shown and Mr. Yecker is not asking for an injunction.

The court announced that testimony would be heard on Saturday morning on the rule to show cause why an injunction should not issue as prayed for.

MOTION PICTURE PEOPLE DROP THEIR INJUNCTION.

In view of the presentation of "The Birth of a Nation," in Columbia on the dates originally scheduled for Lancaster, the injunction proceedings instituted by the Epoch Producing Company, in New York, against the city of Lancaster have been dropped. The bill in equity, filed by local counsel, has beeen withdrawn and the costs amounting to $21.20, have been paid.

114

Hot Springs Sentinel Critical Record

CENSORSHIP BY CITY COUNCIL

WHETHER "BIRTH OF A NATION" MAY PLAY WITHOUT INTERRUPTION TO BE ANSWERED.

This Afternoon at 5 O'Clock There Will Be a Special Meeting Which Will Put the Question Squarely Up for Answer.

Whether the great photo play, "The Birth of a Nation," may be shown in Hot Springs next week without interruption, is a question that will be answered in so far as the city council is concerned in the matter, this afternoon at 5 o'clock at a special meeting to be held in the city hall.

The usual incident of a special meeting of the city council to pass on such a question was considered necessary yesterday. The council at a meeting some weeks ago went on record as being against the production. More recently it is said that nine of the council members have signed a statement in favor of the production.

The legal question is now in chancery court, where a decision will be handed down Saturday morning. Through Attorneys Martin, Wootton and Martin, the Auditorium theatre has asked for a restraining order to prevent any interference with the performance here.

Attorney Leo McLaughlin, representing a negro organization which is making an effort to prevent the production before the people of Hot Springs, will conduct the case in chancery court Saturday morning in their behalf, and probably represent the negroes at the council session this afternoon.

The fact that the negroes have attempted to interfere with the production has already stirred some feeling and many believe that feeling would be more stirred by the negroes depriving a community of seeing such a photo play, than would have ever been stirred had the picture come and gone without this unusual proceeding to prevent it.

J. T. T. Warren appeared in chancery court a few days ago and stated that he was the representative of the "Business Men's League," a negro organization, which had been holding meetings, and had gone on record as opposing the production here of this photo-play, and that they would have counsel to represent them in the proceedings later relative to the issue.

There was a report yesterday that at the special meeting of the council this afternoon a very large delegation of negroes would be present.

Jan 29/1916

My Telegraph

JANUARY 29, 1916.

"BIRTH OF NATION" SUED FOR PROFITS

Southern Amusement Company, as Alleged Sole Owner of Dramatic Rights, Demands $500,000.

PRESENTED IN PICTURE FORM

Epoch Producing Corporation Is Named as Defendant in Complaint Served on Treasurer Banzhaf.

"The Birth of a Nation" came in for more litigation yesterday, when the Southern Amusement Company began in the Supreme Court a suit to collect $500,000 from its sponsor, the Epoch Producing Corporation, alleging that the film has gathered in more than half a million dollars during its stay in New York at the Liberty Theatre.

According to the complaint, filed by Attorney Max D. Josephson, the Southern Amusement Company contends that prior to May 10, 1906, Thomas Dixon, Jr., conceived the idea of "The Clansman" and on that date turned over the producing and dramatic rights to the present plaintiff.

The plaintiff declares by virtue of this sale it became the sole owner of the dramatic rights, but despite that fact on March 3, 1915, the defendant caused "The Birth of a Nation" to be prepared from the book, and presented it in picture form.

The immediate success achieved by the film is a matter of theatrical history. But it is also a fact, states the plaintiff, that while over $500,000 was taken in at the Liberty Theatre, the plaintiff did not receive a cent of the money.

Judgment is demanded for that amount on the theory that the plaintiff, as per its claim, being the sole owner of the dramatic rights, all moneys received from "The Birth of a Nation" should be treated as accruing for its benefit.

An affidavit of service, accompanying the complaint, shows it was served on Max D. Banzhaf, the treasurer of the Epoch Producing Corporation, at 2 Rector street.

THE LANSING PRESS

Published Every Morning Except Monday by THE LANSING PUBLISHING CO.
North Grand Ave. and East Ottawa St.

MEMBER OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

The Lansing Press is delivered in the city by carriers for eight cents a week or $4.00 a year; by mail, $2.00 a year in advance.

Entered as Second Class Matter at the Postoffice, Lansing, under the Act of March 3, 1879.

TELEPHONES

Bell 1500 Citizens 3135

Give operator name of department or person wanted.

Circulation Guaranteed
Audit Bureau of Circulations

"THE BIRTH OF A NATION"

Undoubtedly the members of the Negro Civic league of Lansing feel that they are working towards the elimination of racial prejudice by their strivings to prevent the showing of "The Birth of a Nation" at the Gladmer.

Agitation is a fine weapon against lethargy. Agitation serves well as a foe to ignorance. But agitation is no kind of a tool to employ in eliminating race prejudice.

"The Birth of a Nation" will be shown in Lansing. There isn't any question about it. It isn't obscene. It complies with every law that any legislative body would have a right to make. It has been shown from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and it won't be stopped in Lansing.

By letting themselves get all worked up over it, the negroes have done two things that they didn't want to do, without accomplishing anything that they wanted to accomplish. They have aroused a certain amount of racial prejudice by calling people's attention to the fact that there is such a thing. They are increasing the number of persons who will go to see "The Birth of a Nation," by "breaking" front page newspaper stories and editorials about it.

Mr. Howard Herrick, the business manager of the film, has been up against this same proposition before in New York, in Chicago, in Pittsburgh, and a dozen other places. He is probably chuckling a gleeful chuckle over getting so much free advertising for his production.

The thing for the negroes to do is to try to forget race prejudice. In time the old wounds will heal—but scabs should be let alone.

My Telegraph

SA...

...not the transmission of newspapers by those publishing them, either through the mails or by common carriers, and what an absurdity it would be for Congress to pass a law prohibiting the transmission of the plates and matrices from which newspapers are printed. So it cannot be either proper or necessary here to prohibit the transportation of films from one State to another, when the only effort is to deal with and regulate the exhibition of the pictures or the films wholly within the several States.

"Nor, in dealing with the drama, has Congress thought it wise to interfere by legislation requiring the submission of manuscripts to any censor before they might be transported from one State to another, either through the mails or by the common carriers. Instead it has been declared any one who knowingly sends or receives through the mail any obscene, or improper book, pamphlet, picture, paper, writing, printing or other publication of an indecent character shall be fined not more than $5,000 or imprisoned not more than five years, or both.

"In reality, Congress cares nothing about the physical substance known as the film, either in its raw state before it receives its negative impression, or even after that event ocurs, or after the multiplication of positive prints or impressions from it.

"For practical purposes the motion picture film is harmless, so far as its ability to corrupt public morals is concerned, unless the message it depicts is published by means of the screen and projecting machine. It is not more capable of corrupting public morals in itself before publication than the talking machine records could be regarded as instruments of immorality, because they are capable of receiving impressions of and subsequently reproducing to the public ear an immoral discourse or song.

"It results that from a practical standpoint no motion picture film is capable of spreading immorality among the public unless the picture contained on the film is publicly exhibited by the aid of a screen and projecting machine; it will not be denied that the communication of the silent message of the film results from its public exhibition and not from introduction of the film in interstate commerce.

DEMAND STATUS OF FILM PICTURES

(Continued From Page 1.)

State Has Authority.

"At present," Mr. Seabury argues, "the whole subject of suppression of immoral exhibitions rests with the States and their minor political subdivisions. There is not a State, city, town or village without the inherent power, coupled with the ability, to suppress immoral exhibitions within their domains. These local communities are the judges of what is offensive to their ideals and harmful to their morals, and hitherto these communities have not required the guardianship of Congress.

"The proponents say, 'Make the exhibition of immoral films impossible by censorship,' while we say, 'Make it impossible by suitable provisions' in the criminal law prohibiting the transportation of such films in interstate commerce, leaving it to the local community to regulate, as they see fit, the motion picture exhibitions within their respective domains.'" My Telegraph

Jan 18 Pick

4

The Muncie Star

People's Forum

THE BIRTH OF A NATION.

Editor Star:

The moving picture shows of today are the greatest agencies with which to mold public sentiments.

We are unknowingly supplied with an abundance of contorted history through the moving picture plays. The one fond hope of capitalism is to keep the white man and the negro hating each other, for as long as they delight in brutalizing each other they will not find time to study the perplexing social problems of their time. The audience that watches the negro criminal chase the little white girl from the spring where she is musing with a squirrel, those who see the falsehood of negro legislators, drinking whiskey and carrying banners with inscriptions asking for social equality will not feel better after Dixon vaccinates them with prejudice.

The "Birth of a Nation" shows a burly negro overpower an innocent, defenseless woman because she will not consent to be his bride.

This part of the play is so enacted as to prejudice the white man against the negro.

Mr. Dixon poses as the friend of man, but in all his writings I detect that whenever the negro has been stabbed his dagger has been wet. Mr. Dixon says nothing of the 15,000 mulatto children born every year in America, which proves that the negro is lynched for attempting to do that which the white man has successfully done for 300 years. The negro criminal is the inevitable product of our social system, having been kept in ignorance and taught that misery and adversity here were essential to happiness hereafter. Thus he was taught that he could get forgiveness for even the most hideous crimes "between the stirrup and the ground," but we are learning that not even a God can, for the asking, erase the crimes of a criminal, nor the crimes against the criminal. I am not surprised to learn that some agencies of divine revelation look upon the "Birth of a Nation" as a blessing, for it helps to keep the switch open on the feed wires of intelligence. I am not apologizing for the negro criminal. He, like the white criminal, is only the reflex of criminal conditions. Where capitalism has exhausted the vocabulary of cunningness to keep the working class economically ignorant, for white, the negro remains in ignorance, with no library in his home and no chance for refinement and mental development. As long as he anchors his trust in the dark hereafter he will make a good strike breaker and can be depended upon to shoot straight when the money masters call the table son; where intelligence wanes and unionism forgets.

ROSS D. BROWN,
1003 E. Jackson St.

Jan. 14, 1916.

LANCASTER DAILY INTELLIGENCER,
, PA., THURSDAY, JANUARY 27, 1916.

GRIEST TRACTION COMPANY TO BENEFIT BY CITY RULING

Shutting Out of "Birth of Nation" Here and Showing at Columbia.

MEANS GREAT BOOST FOR TROLLEY COMPANY

Which Will Get 35 Cents Out of Each Lancaster Patron.

COURT REFUSES TO ACT

AND CASE WILL GO BY DEFAULT ON SATURDAY AT TIME FIXED.

Because of the attitude taken by the city authorities following a protest by Congressman W. W. Griest, (who by the way happens to hold a little job with the Conestoga Traction Company—its president) the man who wants to see "The Birth of a Nation," will have to pay to the trolley company the sum of thirty-five cents, unless he chooses to walk to the town in which it will be shown and in case he chooses Shank's mare he will have to start very early in the morning and get back very late at night.

The picture, the supression of which in this city has caused an almost volcanic outburst of public indignation, will open tonight in the Columbia Opera House and will show at matinee and night performances on Friday and Saturday.

This decision was reached late last night after Judge Landis had refused to grant a temporary injunction restraining the city authorities from interfering with the production here. George H. Atkinson, of New York general manager of the Epoch Production Company which owns the film, who is now in this city, this morning announced the owners had withdrawn from the case and would not appear at the hearing on the requested injunction which had been set by Judge Landis for Saturday morning.

Lancaster Ignored.

And so Lancaster is ignored and the river borough with only a fifth of the population of the county seat gets the greatest film production of the age. Lancaster misses—all because of the whim of——, seeing a show that is now playing to $110,000 business each week. Eleven companies are now touring the United States and each do an average weekly business of $10,000. A company is appearing nightly in London and doing record business, and there are now two companies on the high seas bound for South America and Australia.

On its original run in New York 802 consecutive performances were given and on Saturday night it will be shown in Gotham for the thousandth time. It was shown two hundred times in Philadelphia, three hundred times in Boston and the Chicago Company is now on its fortieth week and still playing to capacity houses.

Company Reaches Columbia.

The picture was shown in Lebanon last night and reached Columbia this morning. There are thirty people in the company which carries a large orchestra. Arrangements are being made to accommodate the public with special trolley service and to run a special train over the Pennsylvania railroad.

IN COURT.

Judge Landis at four o'clock on Wednesday afternoon refused to grant an injunction restraining the mayor, chief of police and the city of Lancaster from interfering with the showing of "The Birth of a Nation." He did grant a rule to show cause why an injunction should not be granted but made it returnable on Saturday morning at 10 o'clock. That late day prevents the show this week but on the result of the proceedings on Saturday will depend whether or not the show can be put on in this city at a future date.

GRIEST TRACTION

Continued from Page One

In the bill filed it is set forth that the Epoch Producing Corporation are the owners of the Photoplay "The Birth of a Nation"; that the play is registered in Pennsylvania; that it was submitted to the Board of Censors of the State, who approved it as moral in character and proper for public presentation; that the pictures were shown 600 times in the Liberty Theatre, New York; 802 times in other theatres in New York; 20 weeks in Boston; 4 months in Chicago, 15 weeks in San Francisco, 17 weeks in Los Angeles, and in Philadelphia, Scranton, Wilkes-Barre, Mahanoy City and Pittsburgh in this State.

It is further set forth that there is nothing libelous in the pictures; that they do not tend to excite racial or religious prejudices or animosities, but the pictures are clean, wholesome and elevating in tone and sentiment; that a contract was entered into with Charles A. Yecker for the presentation of the pictures in the Opera House, owned by him and which is licensed; that the mayor of the city notified Albert H. D. Banzhof, the treasurer of the company, that the show would not be permitted, under a threat of revoking the license of Mr. Yecker, if he allowed the play to go on.

The prayer of the petitioner was that the mayor, chief of police be restrained from interfering with the production of the photoplay and from hindering or preventing the production thereof and from revoking the license of the Fulton Opera House company, if the play is produced.

Attached to the Bill is Exhibit "A", which shows that the play has the approval of the State Board of Censors.

Exhibit "B" is the contract between Mr. Yecker and the Epoch Producing Corporation, under the terms of which Mr. Yecker was to get 25 per cent of the receipts and the company 75 per cent.

After the bill in equity was marked filed, F. Lyman Windolph and B. F. Davis, attorneys, went in search of Judge Landis. He was not in his office in the Court House but was seen as he was crossing Duke street at Orange by the lawyers in the case.

They stopped the judge and told him their business, handing to him the bill in equity filed. He took the bill and fixed four o'clock for its presentation in court. At that hour counsel for the Epoch Company and City Solicitor Myers were present.

Mr. Windolph in opening the case for the company stated the Epoch Company was privileged to do business in Pennsylvania; that it had contracted with Mr. Yecker for the production of the play, which was of an educational character. The play has been seen by the best people in sections of the country as one of the finest of moving picture exhibitions; that the production had the approval of the Board of Censors of the State and was shown in many cities of the state without objecting. In Philadelphia and Pittsburgh where objections were made, the courts ruled that it was a proper show.

The act of this city's administration was unwarranted as there is nothing objectionable in the play. The pictures for the state were carefully revised to meet existing conditions. The acts of the city officers, he stated, were unwarranted and arbitrary.

The Judge's Views.

Judge Landis said that in reading the bill in equity he failed to find that the petitioners for the injunction had a place in this city properly licensed. The city has a right to prevent any person who does not have a license from giving any exhibitions. The only person who would have standing in court for an injunction is Mr. Yecker, the owner of the Opera House, which is licensed. This contract calls for the delivery of the paraphernalia for this show to Mr. Yecker and he is the only one who could ask for an injunction.

Mr. Windolph took the position that a license was not required for this show, as the place it was booked for, is licensed.

The court answered the plaintiffs in this bill must show that you have a right to an injunction. The bill does not set forth that you have a place in this city, or a license to give any exhibition. The court read the city ordinance on the license fees for exhibitions and how they must be procured.

Mr. Windolph held that Mr. Yecker's license entitled the plaintiff to show in his Opera House and the court answered that Mr. Yecker was not asking for the injunction.

Mr. Davis said the only issue for the court to determine is whether the show is a proper one.

The court said the bill would not now be heard but would grant a rule to show cause why an injunction should not be issued as prayed for.

Mr. Davis asked that it be made returnable on Thursday morning. The court said they could not hear it on Thursday.

City Solicitor Myers said he wanted time to prepare an answer.

The court said that the plaintiffs in this bill must show that it has a right to an injunction; that the consent of Mr. Yecker was necessary before the pictures could be shown and Mr. Yecker is not asking for an injunction.

The court announced that testimony would be heard on Saturday morning on the rule to show cause why an injunction should not issue as prayed for.

MOTION PICTURE PEOPLE DROP THEIR INJUNCTION.

In view of the presentation of "The Birth of a Nation," in Columbia on the dates originally scheduled for Lancaster, the injunction proceedings instituted by the Epoch Producing Company, in New York, against the city of Lancaster have been dropped. The bill in equity, filed by local counsel, has beeen withdrawn and the costs amounting to $21.20, have been paid.

THE NEW ERA—LANCASTER, FRIDAY, JANUARY 28, 1916.

According to Reviewing the news Lancaster, this is Congressman Griest's Organ.

LANCASTER, PA., FRIDAY, JANUARY 28, 1916.

Daily Examiner

SUBMIT TO BOSS DICTATION OR HAVE YOUR BUSINESS RUINED

The Most Serious Phase of "The Birth of a Nation" Prohibition, and One That Merits Thoughtful Consideration of Every Citizen.

To the Editor of "The Examiner."

The action of the city authorities in preventing the exhibition of the motion picture entitled "The Birth of a Nation" ought to arrest the attention and thoughtful consideration of every citizen of Lancaster.

It appears Manager Yecker and his associates were prevented from giving this show, not because it was illegal or immoral, for it bore the stamp of approval of both the State and National censors, but because it offended the real or assumed sentiment of a political Kaiser.

Manager Yecker and his associates, large property owners, heavy taxpayers, men of reputation and standing in the community, who have never been charged with pandering what was low, indecent or degrading in the theatrical business, were allowed to expend much time and money in securing and preparing to stage what is regarded as being a magnificent specimen of motion picture work and of fair historical accuracy, an exhibition many of our best citizens were anxious to see.

The most offensive feature in the entire matter was the methods used to crush this exhibition. Manager Yecker was engaged in a perfectly legal undertaking, and yet he was informed that if he persisted in giving this show his license would be revoked and would not be renewed, and that he and all concerned would be prosecuted for libel; that is to say, although he intended doing a legal and approved thing, he was to be ruined in his business and his property rendered nearly worthless unless he respected the real or assumed sentimental wish coming from high political authorities.

This sort of treatment might be meekly submitted to by a subject of a Kaiser or Czar, but why unhyphenated Americans submit to such an outrage passes our understanding.

FAIR PLAY.

"BIRTH OF A NATION" ATTORNEY HAS WITHDRAWN BILL

Had Asked for Injunction Against City Authorities.

CASE WAS TO HAVE BEEN ARGUED ON SATURDAY

On Thursday afternoon F. Lyman Windolph, representing the Epoch Producing Company, the owners of "The Birth of a Nation" film, withdrew the bill in equity which was filed by that company on Wednesday asking the Court to issue an injunction to restrain Mayor Trout, Chief of Police Bushong and the city authorities from interfering with the showing of the production in Fulton Opera House this week. The costs of the bill, amounting to $21.20, were also paid.

As will be remembered, Judge Landis refused to grant the injunction and Saturday morning was fixed as the time for hearing the rule which was granted to show cause why an injunction should not be issued.

Inasmuch as the dates for Fulton Opera House were transferred to Columbia, and as the return of the rule granted in the case made it impossible to show the film here this week, the Court granted the injunction, the plaintiff had nothing else to do than withdraw the bill in equity.

UARY 30, 1916.

MEN SPLIT ON ENSORSHIP BILL

roup, Led by Paramount, rs Federal Regulation, Would Compromise With hes-Crafts Combination.

BILL INTRODUCED

entative Towner's Meas- to Grant Films Status as rature Favored by Board Trade Faction.

(Correspondence The Morning Telegraph.)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.

ost important development in the hip fight that is being waged be- e House Committee on Education split in the camp of the film inter- arly last week it became evident important group of motion picture ies has reached the conclusion that regulation of films is inevitable. as made plain when Arthur S. conferred with Chairman Hughes Committee on Education and in- the latter that certain companies cided that Federal regulation might ood thing.

e companies, he explained, were the ount Picture Corporation, the Fa- Players Company, the Jesse L. Feature Play Company, the World Corporation and the Equitable Mo- icture Corporation. Friend spoke ese companies in his conference Hughes and filed with Chairman s the draft of a bill as a substitute e Hughes bill and a statement set- orth the views of the motion picture nies.

statement is signed by Myers & attorneys for the Paramount Pic- Corporation; E. J. Ludvick and A. Kohn for the Famous Players Company, Arthur S. Friend for the L. Lasky Feature Play Company, Rosenthal for the World Film ration and Equitable Motion Picture ration.

To Do Away With Objections.

statement sets forth that "vicious res are increasing in number and if ndustry is to endure and decent peo- re to stay in the business this cancer be cut out. A Federal regulatory ission should prove a fearless sur- and we therefore favor such a com- on."

conference came as a surprise in of the fact that earlier in the week mber of the film men had gone on d as favoring a personal liability ure. At that time Representative es issued a statement of his attitude rd Federal regulation of interstate ent of motion pictures.

airman Hughes's statement was de- ed when it was suggested to him that interested in the motion picture in- y, in various centers in New York elsewhere, are fearful that the legis- that has been proposed in the es bill for Congressional action will harmful to the business—a business 000,000 annually to exhibitors of films, would not knowingly support any ation." Chairman Hughes said to- which would have the effect of in- g a legitimate business. This in- y has a tremendous potentiality for or evil, and representative citizens, men and women, from the various of the United States testified before committee that there are many vicious harmful pictures being shown and there is no effective way of reaching suppressing them except through a d of commissions, here in Washington. e presented this bill with a view to ing just that sort of picture and have had very complete hearings on measure.

has been brought out in the hear- that there are some of the manu- rers who have only a monetary con- ation at heart and who make vicious res with the sole purpose of attract- a monetary custom, not building to future. This practice is placing a ship on those attempting to maintain ent standard, for the risque pictures largely and are forcing more or the cleaner manufacturers to lower standard in order to meet the com- ion. The passage of the bill, in my ion, will result in the financial bet- t of this great industry. I would ure them, but help them to broaden usefulness by elevating their stand- thereby largely increasing their sage."

ever, the proponents of Federal ation are not to have things all own way. The motion picture in- y has split up into two camps hold- idely different views.

of these camps is headed by the e Picture Board of Trade, which is [illegible] quality and character of their productions. They are like miners who quickly exhaust the high-grade ore and leave the low grade on the dump. They are get-rich-quick artists, looking for a quick clean-up and a get-away. They find the opportunity for such methods in producing and exhibiting sensational productions which display scenes of lust and crime.

"Unfortunately, the public is not yet discriminating, and goes to see both bad and good, which are usually to be found on the program of the same theatre. Still more unfortunately, the vicious picture brings a larger return to exhibitor and producer, exhibited prior to its enacement, and films which do not contain any dramatic or fictional element, such as pictures of current events, commonly known as news films and topical views, and pictures of places and people, of geographical nature and commonly known as travel pictures.

"A provision granting discrimination to the commission to issue a permit under application for license. Such a provision would enable the commission to adjust the burden of temporarily accumulated applications by granting permits, in fact, temporary licenses, to producers, whose history and character entitled them to a presumption of complying with the law.

"As we are moved by the sincere purpose of co-operating with your committee in procuring the draft of an act which should prove effective and workable and, at the same time, fair to the decent people in the motion picture business, we respectfully request that when a bill is ready for action by the committee a copy shall be sent to us and we shall be given an opportunity to appear before the committee and make such suggestions and criticisms as may occur to us."

The above statement is signed by Meyers & Clark, attorneys for the Paramount Picture Corporation; E. J. Ludvich and Ralph A. Kohn, for the Famous Players Film Company; Arthur S. Friend, for the Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Company, and Moritz Rosenthal, for the World Film Corporation and Equitable Motion Picture Corporation.

Greater interest is being manifested by members of Congress generally in the proposed Federal regulation of the film industry. They are being deluged with telegrams and petitions for and against the legislation, all of which indicates that the various elements in the situation are exceedingly active. Opposition from an unexpected source was developed when Representative William Henry Carter, of the Thirteenth Massachusetts District, presented to the members of the House Education Committee a strong statement of his position in opposition to Federal censorship, and in favor of the Towner bill. Representative Carter is a new Republican member of Congress, who formerly served in the Massachusetts Legislature, also on the Republican State Committee. He is a manufacturer and the general manager of the William Carter Company, underwear manufacturers. He declared in part:

"I am heartily opposed to the Hughes censorship bill for motion pictures, and trust that your committee will not pass the bill.

"The ideal of the American people has always been for free speech, free press and a free stage. One of the most sacred guarantees of the Constitution has always been the freedom of expression.

"I believe that if this bill becomes a law it will only be the end of democracy in this country."

The Towner Bill.

The film faction led by the Motion Picture Board of Trade looks with favor upon the measure introduced by Horace M. Towner, Representative Towner of Iowa, a member of the Education Committee of the House, has proposed a bill to meet the problem of barring improper films by extending to the motion picture the provisions of Section 245 of the Penal Code of the United States, which prohibits the shipment, by express, freight or otherwise by common carriers, of literature unfit for circulation in the mails.

The Towner bill must not be confused as it apparently has been by some with the Crafts substitute bill. The Crafts substitute bill proposes to amend the Hughes bill in an effort to make it less objectionable to the film business as a whole, and perhaps acceptable to a certain portion of the manufacturing branch of the business. But the Crafts bill, while much less objectionable from the standpoint of opponents of the Hughes bill, and while proposing regulation for censorship, still retains the commission idea, and proposes to set up a rule or standard by which that commission would act in barring objectionable films from interstate shipment by refusing to grant them licenses.

The Towner bill contains no provision for a commission. It contains no provision or pre-publicity censorship, but would make it punishable by a fine or imprisonment after conviction for shipping an improper film. Under the Towner bill the film would have to be shipped in interstate commerce before the law would reach it. Under the Hughes bill, as well as the Crafts proposed substitute, the film could not be shipped until after it has been licensed by the Federal Commission. However, it is the tentative proposition of the Crafts substitute that the commission is not to have any power over film publicity exhibited before the bill becomes a law, if it should become a law.

Under the Towner bill, which provides that no unfit picture shall be permitted to be carried between the States, the question of unfitness is to be determined as the question of unfit mail or unfit express matter is now determinable by court trial after shipment.

The Towner bill will not be passed on by the House Educational Committee. As it seeks to amend an existing section of the United States Penal Code, the Towner bill has been very properly referred to the House Judiciary Committee. Judge Towner promises that he will soon appear before the Judiciary Committee and urge a favorable report on his bill. The Hughes bill deals with a subject that does not properly belong to the jurisdiction of the Educational Committee. It deals with interstate shipment of films, basing the power for enactment of such legislation on the commerce clause of the Constitution, which should properly be considered either by the House Committee on Interstate Commerce or by the House Judiciary Committee. But it was referred to the House Educational Committee; why? Because it proposes that the projected Federal Motion Picture Commission "shall be a division of the Bureau of Education of the Department of the Interior."

By proposing to set up this Commission as a division in the Bureau of Education, the Hughes bill was made referable to the Committee on Education, and for no other reason, although it in reality proposes to deal with interstate shipments of films under the power vested in Congress by the commerce clause of the Constitution of the United States.

Defining the status of pictures in the professional world Attorney William M. Seabury, acting for the Motion Picture Board of Trade, has filed the most virile argument yet advanced against Federal censorship of motion pictures intended for shipment in interstate commerce.

"The status of the motion picture should be definitely fixed," asserts Mr. Seabury. "If we are not to be regarded as like the public press, at least insofar as the news motion pictures and serial motion pictures are concerned, to what may this class of pictures be compared, and if the photoplay is not like the ordinary drama, to what may it be compared? In the application of these analogies Congress ought to decline to assume the censorship of the news picture or the serial picture, just as it ought not to censor the public press, and it should decline to censor the pictorial drama, just as it has declined to assume to censor the living drama on the stage, leaving both subjects where they properly belong—to each local community."

The motion picture industry, now the fifth largest in the country, doing a gross annual business of $350,000,000 and catering to the amusement of 10,000,000 persons daily, has four great branches, all represented in the argument submitted to the House Committee on Education by the Motion Picture Board of Trade, the body which President Wilson addressed while in New York City on Thursday night.

These branches are, first, the manufacturers of cameras, raw film and projecting machines; second, producers of motion pictures, including photo-plays, dramas, current events and scenic subjects; third, rental exchanges, doing a wholesale or jobbing business in machines and motion pictures, the latter of which are leased to exhibitors; and fourth, the exhibitors of motion pictures, being the owners or lessees of theatres who lease programs of pictures from the rental exchanges.

Argument Strong One.

Aside from the strength of its constitutional argument, the brief of the Motion Picture Board of Trade, after showing why the Hughes-Smith bill or any film censorship measure would be unconstitutional, if enacted by the Federal Government, is especially strong in setting forth the reasons why the proposed legislation, even if assumed, but not conceded, to be constitutional, is wholly unnecessary.

"Certainly," says the brief, "Congress never found it necessary to prohibit the transmission of newspapers by those publishing them, either through the mails or by common carriers, and what an absurdity it would be for Congress to pass a law prohibiting the transmission of the plates and matrices from which newspapers are printed. So it cannot be either proper or necessary here to prohibit the transportation of films from one State to another, when the only effort is to deal with and regulate the exhibition of the pictures or the films wholly within the several States.

"Nor, in dealing with the drama, has Congress thought it wise to interfere by legislation requiring the submission of manuscripts to any censor before they might be transported from one State to another, either through the mails or by the common carriers. Instead it has been declared any one who knowingly sends or receives through the mail any obscene, or improper book, pamphlet, picture, paper, writing, printing or other publication of an indecent character shall be fined not more than $5,000 or imprisoned not more than five years, or both.

"In reality, Congress cares nothing about the physical substance known as the film, either in its raw state before it receives its negative impression, or even after that event occurs, or after the multiplication of positive prints or impressions from it.

"For practical purposes the motion picture film is harmless, so far as its ability to corrupt public morals is concerned, unless the message it depicts is published by means of the screen and projecting machine. It is not more capable of corrupting public morals in itself before publication than the talking machine records could be regarded as instruments of immorality, because they are capable of receiving impressions of and subsequently reproducing to the public ear an immoral discourse or song.

"It results that from a practical standpoint no motion picture film is capable of spreading immorality among the public unless the picture contained on the film is publicly exhibited by the aid of a screen and projecting machine; it will not be denied that the communication of the silent message of the film results from its public exhibition and not from introduction of the film in interstate commerce.

State Has Authority.

"At present," Mr. Seabury argues, "the whole subject of suppression of immoral exhibitions rests with the States and their minor political subdivisions. There is not a State, city, town or village without the inherent power, coupled with the ability, to suppress immoral exhibitions within their domains. These local communities are the judges of what is offensive to their ideas and harmful to their morals, and hitherto these communities have not required the guardianship of Congress.

"The proponents say, 'Make the exhibition of immoral films impossible by censorship,' while we say, 'Make it impossible by suitable provisions in the criminal law prohibiting the transportation of such films in interstate commerce, leaving it to the local community to regulate, as they see fit, the motion picture exhibitions within their respective domains.'"

[illegible] ...ed to [illegible] ...ery, and then [illegible] ...rn times, with the same characters enact- ...ng the same drama in an up-to-date set- ...ting.

There is always a pleasing atmosphere of romance in any story of the knightly days, and this charm of costume and manner has been elaborately carried out in the picture. In fact, the whole production is characterized by an unusual richness and beauty of setting. This, however, is at times marred by poor photography. At other times the pictures are very clear, and a few artistic bits of color photography add materially to the effect. The cast has been wisely chosen, and the setting is above the ordinary.

Sir Errol is beloved by Elfrieda, the wife of his liege lord. Elfrieda dismisses her woman in waiting, Lady Maud Longson, who is betrothed to Sir Errol, and conspires with Lord Kerrigan for the death of her husband, that Sir Errol may become baron in his stead, and marry her. Sir Errol forgets his pledge to Maud, and enters into the conspiracy. Maud hears of the plot, and, disguised as a knight in armor, goes to warn the old baron. The assassins break in upon the baron, and Sir Errol, taking Maud for one of the men retainers, runs her through with his sword. On recognizing his dead love, he swears by the white rosette which she wears that he will atone for his crime if it takes a thousand years.

A thousand years roll by, and the picture shows Pierpont Carewe and his wife, Frieda, who has married him for his money. Carewe owns a small majority of stock in a profitable railroad enterprise. His enemies, led by Robert Van Kerr, need only fifty shares in order to swing the majority to their side.

Eric, a civil engineer in Carewe's employ, is presented by his chief with fifty shares of the stock. Eric is engaged to Joan Long, but Frieda, who loves him, seeks to separate the couple. On a pretext she borrows the young man's stock, and then lures him to her apartments. She confesses her love, and begs him to run away with her. When Eric refuses, she threatens to turn over his stock to her husband's enemies, and to accuse him of having forced his way into her rooms.

At the Carewes' fancy dress ball that night Eric appears in a family heirloom, the armor of his ancestor, Sir Errol. Joan is clad in the costume of the long dead Lady Maud Longson, and Frieda dons the dress of her forebear, Lady Elfrieda. In a modern setting the descendants of a bygone race meet under much the same circumstances as did their ancestors, but this time the outcome is different. Van Kerr goes to Frieda's rooms to receive the stock which he wants, and is discovered by Carewe. A fight follows, and Eric arrives just in time to save his employer from death. Carewe casts off his wife, and Frieda no longer has any hold over Eric, who marries Joan. So is the sin of Sir Errol explated by his descendant.

Helen Rosson is charming as Lady Maud and Joan Long. E. Forrest Taylor plays the parts of the knight and of Eric with a great deal of spirit, giving a consistent performance throughout, while Eugenie Ford, as the faithless wife, presents an artistically acted character study.—W.

"SONS OF SATAN."

Red Feather (5 Parts)—Universal.

CAST.

Normand .....Gerald Ames
Wm. Freshly, of Freshly's Detective Agency .....Lewis Gilbert
Arthur Felix.....Arthur Cullen
Winifred West.....Blanche Bryant
Dick Fenton.....Chas. Rocket
Earl of Littleborough....Windham Guise
Countess of Littleborough....Minna Gre
Detective Ransom.....Douglas Munro

Written by William Le Queux; produced by George L. Tucker.

If mysterious trap doors, drugged cigarettes, elaborately devised blackmailing scenes and villains with fiendish methods still thrill you, then "Sons of Satan" will be a rare treat. If you are too sophisticated to take melodramatic plots seriously, it is very likely that you will find the very frankness of this English production enjoyable. Whatever may be the fault of its crudities, it is certainly not stupid.

Featuring an old, the inevitable that

CAST.

Beatrice Mitchell.....Marguerite Snow
Coventry Petmore.....George Le Guere
Judge Mitchell.....James Lackaye
Rev. James Mitchell.....Frederick Sumner
Larry Price.....Frederick Sittenham

In this five-part Rolfe photo-play an attempt has been made to get away from the conventional form of motion picture. The attempt has been successful, and the play a good one, although it is far from the acme of either humor or interest.

The plot is novel. Coventry Petmore becomes a fanatic on the subject of divorce and "goes out into the world" to preach his theory that divorce is the cancer in the human social system. Just what his proposed cure is the film does not explain very clearly. Coventry after leaving his wife and children goes to his father, who perceives that his son's mental balance is somewhat askew. He arranges for Coventry to visit an old friend, Judge Mitchell, a famous authority on divorce, in the hopes that he will be able to straighten the young man out. Coventry upon his arrival at the Judge's finds himself in a perfect hotbed of divorce upon which he can practice his theory. The Rev. James Mitchell, son of the Judge, and his wife Beatrice are unhappy owing to the minister's belief that there should be no familiarity between husband and wife, as it only leads to divorce. Beatrice as a result decides to elope with the chauffeur, but is prevented by Coventry's discovery of the plan. He arranges a "test" of her husband's love.

If he

Morning Telegraph

Chronicle

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY, 3, 1916.

"Birth of a Nation" and the Censors

The white-hot fires of censorship through which "The Birth of a Nation" which returns to the Prince Theatre Monday for a week's engagement, has passed, have inflamed the American mind to the point of a sharp debate of the rights and wrongs of censorship.

To mot people, the entire question of censorship seems a novelty that originated with the moving picture only a few months, or, at the most, a few years ago. In reality the question is as old as the theatre itself.

Solon, as Plutarch relates, went to the theatre to see the Greek Thespis act—the same Thespis who gave us our word Thespian. As the play progressed, Solon, the law-maker, became more and more angry. When it was finished, he sought out Thespis and asked the tragedian if "he was not ashamed to tell so many lies before such a number of people." Thespis replied that "it was no harm to say or do so in a play." Solon angrily struck his staff against the ground and fairly shouted. "Ay, if we honor and commend such a play as this, we shall find it some day our business."

Solon's disciples have been legion. The Roman theatre was frequently censored, even by the infamous Nero. Shakespeare produced his masterpieces in spite of the handicaps of a sharp censorship that, among other things, restricted references to Deity and forbade the appearance of women on the stage. In the days of Charles II a formal censorship was established in England, which has developed into the strangling incubus that is being so valiantly fought by Bernard Shaw, Galsworthy, and the other energetic contemporary dramatists.

Feb 3

POST-STANDARD, SYRACUSE

UNOFFICIAL CENSORSHIP FOR "THE BIRTH OF A NATION"

"Jury" Appointed by Mayor and Public Safety Commissioner to View Film Here.

When "The Birth of a Nation" is shown for the first time in this city next week, an unofficial jury of censors appointed by Mayor Stone and Commissioner W. W. Nicholson of the Department of Public Safety, will see it.

If the charges made against the film yesterday afternoon by committees from Merriam and Sniper camps of the Sons of Veterans and the G. A. R. posts, who called on Mayor Stone, appear to be well founded, the production probably will be ordered modified or stopped.

The committee, headed by Captain James A. Allis of Lilly Post and Homer D. Call, former state treasurer and a Civil War veteran, told the Mayor and Commissioner Nicholson that while there was nothing immoral about the film, it was dangerous in that it nullified the patriotic teachings of the schools by its unlovely presentation of the acts of Northern soldiers and statesmen during the Civil War.

Mr. Call saw "The Birth of a Nation" in California last November. He said that General U. S. Grant was impersonated as a high class lout and General Robert E. Lee as a high class gentleman and soldier. He also said it idealized the Ku Klux Klan and that through it all there ran a thread of unfair criticism of the North. James Cruthers, the only other member of the delegation who has seen the film, corroborated Mr. Call.

Commissioner Nicholson and Sobert T. Friedrich, his deputy, saw the film in Rochester a week ago and declared it contained nothing which injured their feelings of patriotism or which reflected unfavorably on the Northern soldiers in the Civil War.

FEBRUARY 3, 1916.

Barred in Stevens's Home Town.

The managers of the Fulton Opera House were notified the other afternoon by Mayor Trout and City Solicitor Myer that if the films "The Birth of a Nation," booked for three days this week, was shown they would be prosecuted for criminal libel of the memory of Thaddeus Stevens, and the license of the opera house would be revoked. As a result of this notice the opera house management cancelled the show.

Congressman W. W. Griest, who is a great admirer of Stevens, several days ago wrote Mayor Trout protesting against the exhibition of this film in Stevens's old

FEB 3 1916

WOULD EXTEND CENSORSHIP TO SPOKEN DRAMA

Dr. Wilber F. Crafts, Superintendent of International Bureau of Reform in Washington, Files Brief With House Committee in Which He Declares Theatre Needs Supervision.

SHOULD BE LOCAL, HE SAYS

Situation Anent Film Measures Now Under Consideration Has Changed Radically Since Beginning of Hearings, Documents States—Links Issue With That of Prohibition.

(Special Dispatch to The Morning Telegraph.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.

Film censorship is not the only thing Dr. Wilber F. Crafts, superintendent of the International Reform Bureau of this city, is working for in his legislative propaganda, it developed to-day. He believes the censorship system should also be extended to the spoken drama, although he feels the latter should be a matter of local criticism rather than national, because of the aptitude actors have of changing their lines in various performances of the same piece.

The attitude of Dr. Crafts was made public to-day in a brief filed with Chairman Hughes of the House Committee on Education, in which he told the legislators the situation concerning the proposed laws for Government regulation of the motion pictures was "radically different" now from what it was when the hearings began, "because a whole group of the better class of producers have joined the churches and welfare societies in asking for Federal censorship, and have co-operated in making the bill more workable without asking the cancellation of any essential provision."

The portion of the highly unusual and in some respects interesting brief prepared by Dr. Crafts in behalf of his society, which directly concerns his opinions on the censorship of the drama, follows:

Need Local Censorship.

"Theatres need censorship, but it should be local censorship connected up with some bureau of information and warning. The film cans are as much an interstate matter as cans of beef—to which the Federal Government wisely applies free 'publicity censorship'."

This latter is an allusion to the Federal Meat Inspection law, which was never before described as a censorship proposition, and which deals not with the morals of slaughtered, but with the physical character of the resultant meat. The projected censorship bill does not seek to deal with the physical properties of films, but proposes to keep films from passing in interstate commerce on account of the moral messages they may convey, when exhibited.

According to the Crafts brief, the most important part of national preparedness is to "guard our youth, our future citizens, against the vicious influences that weaken body and mind, so that we may conserve the man behind the gun." And in declaring that from the standpoint of welfare workers the censorship bill is "one of the most important measures before Congress," the Crafts brief links it up with the prohibition issue by asserting that "even pending prohibition is not more important than furnishing a wholesome substitute for the rapidly diminishing saloons through censored motion picture halls, whose patronage we believe will be not less but far more than that of the photo-plays of to-day, which thousands have ceased to attend because never safe against insult for some foul scene."

Calls Them Better Class.

The allusion by Dr. Crafts to "a whole group of the better class of producers," in the opening of his brief, has reference to the Paramount Pictures Corporation, the Famous Players Film Company, the Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Company and the World Film and Equitable Motion Pictures corporations, with which Superintendent Crafts has been endeavoring to reach an agreement or a revised substitute for the Hughes bill. These companies have been denominated by Dr. Crafts as "the better class of producers" since they have indicated a willingness to support a revised bill calling for Federal censorship of films.

In addition to the Paramount, Lasky, Famous Players, World and Equitable companies, represented by Attorney Friend, Dr. Crafts declares in his brief he has received letters from four other film concerns indicating their approval of the censorship bill. The names of the four concerns are not made public.

Ny. Telegraph Jan 30

CHANNING POLLOCK LANDS HEAVILY ON FILM CENSORSHIP

Brilliant Critic Flays Foolish Stunts of Censors in Caustic Commentary, Excerpts From Which Have Been Placed in Hands of House Committee on Education.

CUT LOVE FROM DRAMA

Declares Ascetic Arbiters Would Bar Bible and Shakespeare if They Could Enforce Conformity With Their Methods of Arbitrary and Utterly Ridiculous Imitation.

(Special Dispatch to The Morning Telegraph.)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.

Channing Pollock, playwright and author, has thrown his weight into the scales against the censorship of motion pictures by the Federal Government in a clever and incisive commentary on the actual workings of censorship in the only three States where it now exists by State enactment—Kansas, Ohio and Pennsylvania. Citing a dozen examples of the "wisdom" of motion picture censors, showing how the ban of forbidden things runs the gamut from baby clothes to slippers, creating a condition that ceases to be funny when one reflects that these restrictions are imposed upon an art in its very infancy, Pollock predicts that if Shakespeare ever gets in the movies Ohio will never stand for the unmaidenly conduct of Juliet, or Kansas for the marriage of a colored man to a white woman in "Othello."

Mr. Pollock's caustic commentary on the ludicrous manner in which censorship has been enforced wherever its principles have been enacted into law against the films is embraced in advance sheets of an article prepared by himself for the Photo Play Magazine. Extensive extracts from this article has been presented to the House Committee on Education, as a most interesting and illuminating exhibit, with the brief filed by William M. Seabury, general counsel for the Motion Picture Board of Trade of America. These advance sheets were supplied to Mr. Seabury by the Motion Picture Magazine. In this article Mr. Pollock presents facts that demonstrate the ridiculous absurdity of censorship in actual practice.

Paternal Buss of Bashful Bullfighter.

What Mr. Pollock has to say will be printed and circulated, with the Seabury brief, among members of both houses of Congress.

"Considering that it is forty years since first she (Carmen) mouthed her mad love to the music of Bizet," says the Pollock portrayal of the situation, "Carmen might have expected the defence due old age. Beautifully filmed and beautifully acted by Geraldine Farrar, she came as a bolt from the blue and shocked and surprised 'boards' in Ohio, Pennsylvania and California. Her ancient kiss, that inspired the first big press agent story, was ordered cut to five feet. 'Just a little love, a little kiss,' warbled the Buckeyes, and nothing more than a yard and two-thirds of affection came within that allowance. All love scenes showing embraces between males and females were ordered measured and trimmed, leaving the cigarette maker to give her life for a proper pattern pick from the bashful bullfighter, Escamillo.

"[illegible] of it, [illegible] wasn't permitted to give her life [illegible] in Ohio or in California. A local board in the latter state objected to the killing of a woman by a man, though there is no opposition to the killing of men by women. After all girls will be girls! It is only the male who must not be encouraged! Pennsylvania banned the little set-to between Carmen and Frasquita and the duel between Morales and Don Jose. All this had taken place dozens of times in the opera in Philadelphia without appreciable effect upon the police records, but, apparently, the censors were comforted by the reflection that no one knows what an opera is about anyway. 'Camille' is fortified [illegible]

[illegible] in Chicago. To the contention [illegible] minors might read the book, answer was made that 'a child of simple training and pure thoughts could read "The Scarlet Letter" and, because of the purity and delicacy of its style, have no idea of its real meaning.' Charming prospect! To go through Hawthorne's masterpiece from cover to cover, without understanding a word of it.

"At least, no 'child of simple training and pure thoughts' would be likely to see in any picture what the censors seem to see. Few children are nasty-minded. A large section was cut from a photo-play called 'The Warning,' because there was a bed in the room adjoining the scene of action. Of course, a bed could have none other than an immoral purpose. How stupid of the producer not to have exchanged this obscene piece of furniture for a denatured divan! In the picturization of a celebrated play objection was made to a title covering pantomime in which a capitalist told a woman that he would employ her husband. The title read 'I've got a proposition to make to you.' It was cut. The censors couldn't imagine a business proposition.

Bible Quotation Blotted Out.

"The screen version of my own drama 'The Secret Orchard,' wonderfully filmed by Mr. Laskey, was stripped of a title quoted from the Bible. There had been no addition or alteration. There were expressions of horror, too, that a man drank wine from a woman's slipper. A shaving mug might have been all right. The Pennsylvania Board inveighed against what it called 'a feast.' If ever Fred Thompson carries out his intention of filming the Scriptures, goodness knows what Pennsylvania will do with Belshazzar! Mr. Lasky and I carried 'The Secret Orchard' to court in Philadelphia, where to our intense surprise, the censors discovered that the first scene took place in a bagnio. Agnes and Egerton Castle had written the novel, I had written the play, a reputable management has produced it and a reputable film company had photographed it without suspecting or finding any critic or spectator who suspected the awful truth.

"'Do you mean to say,' the Board's attorney thundered at me, 'that you do not recognize this as a brothel?'

"I admitted that I didn't.

"'The censors do,' said the attorney.

"'Which only goes to prove,' I replied 'that the censors know more about brothels than I do.'

"In the course of the case, the board sought to establish its contention by pointing out that several men were seen to embrace women. I inquired whether there was anything to indicate that the women were not their wives. The censors hadn't thought of that. Anyway, 'The Secret Orchard' was a story of seduction. 'Isn't "David Copperfield"?' asked the judge. The censors hadn't thought of that either.

Illegitimate Children Barred.

"The story of 'The Secret Orchard' can be told in seven words," I said. "It is, the wages of sin is death.' Do you call that immoral?'

"The judge didn't, and we are permitted to show our picture in Pennsylvania.

"However, another play with the same story never reached the films, because manufacturers knew too well what to expect of the censors. That play was Dario Nicodemi and Michael Morton's drama of deep and pure purpose, 'The Shadow,' enthusiastically praised when it was produced by that arch conspirator against public morals, Charles Frohman, with Ethel Barrymore as the star, at the Empire. 'The Shadow' mentions an illegitimate child, and illegitimate children are barred in Ohio and Pennsylvania.

"Edward Sheldon's 'The High Road,' as presented by Mrs. Fiske, has been censored, and so has Cosmo Hamilton's 'The Blindness of Virtue.' The Pennsylvania Board recently insisted upon reviewing that part of a film which showed nothing but an American flag waving in the breeze. If the American flag is to be censored, what will become of George Cohan?

"A certain melodramatic picture disclosed the execution of plans for an assassination in an isolated house. To complete the isolation and prevent the victim's summoning help, a villain cut the telephone wires. There was no objection to the assassination, but the film was held up because it might inspire small boys to tamper with wires.

"Am I carry out my agreement to be 'excruciatingly funny'?

Showed Contempt for Marriage.

"The farce, 'Bootle's Baby' was stopped in Philadelphia because a man got a letter from his wife and burned it. Tearing the letter would have been permissible, said the censors, but burning it showed contempt for the marital relations. Charles Kenyon's remarkable play, 'Kindling,' dealing with no sex problem, but with poverty and the race, was held up because a mother was shown making clothes for her unborn child. The child was not illegitimate; it was about to be born, with the greatest possible deference to the censors. What, then, was wrong with the exposition of a mother engaged in one of the most sacred and beautiful labors of motherhood? You'll never guess! The movies are patronized by thousands of children who believe that babies are brought by the stork, and it would be criminal to undeceive them!

"Honest.

"Dramatic art must encourage the infantile notion that babies are found in cabbage patches, or brought by storks, or it is dangerous and pernicious. God's beautiful way of perpetuating the race is quite too immoral. And, immoral or not, dramatic art must fit itself to the intellectual level of children 8 years old, or the Pennsylvania Board of Motion Picture Censors will know the reason why!

"In this case, the head of the exchange in Philadelphia, who had a sense of humor, argued that babies, even if brought by storks, required clothing, but the suggestion was ignored. Then he

Post St Ch

Syracuse Dispatch

...UARY 2, 1916.

...ON DISCUSSES BIRTH OF A NATION

...k Playwright, Former ...ous Man, Takes Issue ... Attorney General.

...itor of The Dispatch.

...r: In his analysis of "The ... Nation," Attorney General ...s failed to find one situa... ...haracterization of merit. I... ...if not monstrous; it is his... ...incorrect; therefore, it is a ...nd an insult to an intelligent

...eorge Washington cut down ...rbial cherry tree or did Wil... shoot the apple off the head ...n? If these big dramatic sit... ...are not actual history they ever be spoken of to the ... Facts. Facts for the stage ...ature.

... is there a play of the stage ...vel of history which does not ...e lily? All of Shakespeare's ...l plays and most of his trag... ...e based upon historic facts; ...adorns his tales eternally and ...' the facts.

...or's "Mary Stuart" and his ...are a distortion of historic ...as are Scott's "Ivanhoe" ...Kenelworth," and Rostands ...n" and Ford's "Janice Meri... ...nd the works of Dumas and ...torical novels of Dickens and ...ay. And how closely does ...ur," story and play, follow ... history?

...rney General Turner says: "A ... taken at General Sherman's ... in the marauding scenes ... the title of 'While the women ...ildren weep a great conqueror ...s to the sea.'" The purport ... line and this situation was ... entirely by the attorney gen... This line has been used to call ... a sympathetic response from ...ectators, and may hold up the ... to the horrors of war and ...er a great sermon upon the ...t. And in no whit is it a rebuke ... memory of Sherman.

...attorney general takes issue with ...traiture of General Grant. He ...s this character is shown with ... in his mouth tilted a la Uncle ...Sammon, and that he swaggers in ... of the dignified General Lee. Per... this episode never happened in ...ry. Whether it did or not it is ...tically correct. Traits of char... must be shown quickly and in ... upon the stage. To have missed ...ubiquitous Grant cigar would have ... a breach of dramatic detail and ...aracterization falling below the ...s. And big men smoke big cigars ...g moments. Any school boy ...ld expect Grant to smoke "Under ..."

...e honor Grant's memory. But he ... smoke. Pity the great Griffith ... not show him passing a cigar on ... General Lee. That would have ...wn a brotherly spirit, the spirit the ...rney general credits him with hav... ... bad, but would it have been in ...ping with the Grant character and ... situation Griffith meant to build? ...ther it would have been incongru... ... and created a laugh.

...urther says this student of his...ory: "Time after time the North is ...favorably contrasted against the ...outh. A fair daughter of the North ... wooed by a gallant son of the ...outh, who has but two competitors ...or her affections, one a leering lout ...ressed slouchily in Union blue, the ...ther a negro."

Now this man of history sees trag...dy in this leering lout, as he is ...leased to call this character. Evi...dently the attorney general is lacking ...n a sense of humor, for this leering ...out—in no wise a competitor for the ...affections of the fair daughter of the ...North—registers the most marked ...comedy bit of the whole performance. ...This poor soldier lad had been doing ...soldier duty—had been away from ...home, away from sister, mother, all. ...He is doing sentry duty in a hospital ...when a young girl passes. He sighs ...and shows his admiration for the girl. ...It is done with the dropping of an ...eyebrow and a shoulder. It is a ...subtle bit of comedy, a bit which is ...registered in a million minds today, ...for, though it always gets a smile, it ...sounds a pathetic note. Yet the at...torney general would call it tragedy, ...an insult to the Yankee. Rather it ...is a great tribute to a man.

No mention is made of the character of Lincoln which is exhibited, or his assassination in Ford's theater, or the spectacular battle scenes of the Civil war. And the attorney general missed the love interest and comedy. Either these are all trivial or they have met with his approval. He confines his argument principally to the aftermath of the war, the reconstruction period.

"This picture shows the South o have been right and the North to have been wrong," he says, and arrives at this conclusion not from witnessing the scenes of the actual conflict, but by impressions gathered by watching events which happened after the war. He confuses the carpet-bagger, the cheap politician, who preyed upon the negro after the war, with the Yankee of the North, whereas the carpet-bagger is a man without a home; consequently in neither of the North nor of the South. He is the "villian" of the play, and meets his just retribution.

This masterpiece shows the North winning; so how can it do the North wrong? The North is shown triumphant. And love, not only sexual love, but brotherly love is interwoven with these scenes of conflict. It depicts a little boy in gray and his little friend in blue—schoolboy chums—entwined in each other's arms, dying upon a great battle field. And this is the keynote of "The Birth of a Nation." It gets a sob. A sob which those who have seen carry away with them. And everybody knows that both the North and the South were wrong, and that all who engage in war are wrong. This is the lesson. It is a mere case of sympathy. This scene will do what literature cannot do, and instead of opening any controversy will help to make the North and the South mere points of the compass.

There are other features in this play which bring the North and South closer together and show up the horrors of war, they are the love of the Southern girl for the Yankee, an old story in American literature, but somewhat less common on the stage, and the devastation of the picturesque Southern home with its atmosphere of quaintness and beauty.

The attorney general is either a courageous man or a genius. At this time 100,000 people are witnessing "The Birth of a Nation" weekly at a weekly expenditure of $100,000. Hundreds of thousands of Yankees have seen it, but none have taken the attorney general's view of it, for if they had they would be conspicuous by their absence. "The Birth of a Nation" ran over 800 times in New York, and since then has been presented for ten weeks outside the Broadway district of New York. It has been running 40 weeks in Chicago and from 200 to 300 times in Boston and Philadelphia. It also visited Pittsburg and St. Louis for 12 weeks each, and is being presented within the larger cities of this country. For at least 20 weeks longer it will play within a radius of 20 miles of New York, and within four weeks will be shown in South America, Australia and London, England. These statements can be substantiated by affidavits.

And yet this great spectacle is barred from Ohio. Why? What is the motive?

Geo. H. Atkinson,
Former Student Ohio State University.

Syracuse Herald

HUGHES READY TO PRESENT HIS NEW CENSORSHIP BILL

Fifth Measure to Regulate Interstate Commerce of Motion Picture Films Will Be Introduced To-day or To-morrow—It Is Framed on Proposals by Paramount Counsel.

MANY CONFERENCES HELD

Second Effort by Board of Education Chairman Favors Federal Commission of Five Members to Be Appointed by President and Confirmed by Senate.

(Special Dispatch to The Morning Telegraph.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.

Chairman Hughes of the Committee on Education of the House of Representatives, who is leading the fight in Congress for Federal censorship of motion picture films destined for shipment in interstate commerce, has drafted a new censorship bill which he will introduce in the House to-day or to-morrow for consideration by his committee. The new Hughes bill will not be introduced as a committee bill, but as a basis for committee consideration. With the offering of the new Hughes measure there will be five distinct motion picture measures before Congress for consideration, as follows:

First—The original Hughes-Smith bill, on which the recent hearings were based, and which has now been abandoned by its author, on the basis of defects and shortcomings pointed out by opponents of the bill, and admitted by its authors during the hearing.

Second — The new Hughes bill, now ready for introduction, which proposes the same sort of censorship commission, with slightly different powers, although the word censorship is not used in the new draft.

Third—The Paramount bill drafted by Arthur S. Friend, of the Lasky Company, in conference with counsel representing the Paramount-Famous Players-World-Lasky-Equitable film combination, and which also proopses censorship by Federal commission.

Fourth—The Welfare Workers' draft of a modified Hughes bill, submitted by the Rev. Dr. Wilber F. Crafts of the International Reform Bureau, providing for Federal commission "regulation" of motion pictures in interstate commerce and declared by the Rev. Dr. Crafts to be a measure embodying changes "suggested by Messrs. Hodkinson, Lasky, Friend and others in the motion picture business, and Crafts, Chase, Barber and other welfare workers.

Fifth—The Towner bill, which is strongly urged and supported by the Motion Picture Board of Trade, and its affiliations, and is the only measure before Congres not proposing to saddle the motion picture industry with pre-publicity censorship by commision or otherwise, but which seeks to cure existing evils by amending the Federal criminal code so as to make it a criminal offense to ship an indecent film in interstate commerce.

Two Cardinal Ideas.

These five measures embrace the basic differences of opinion behind which the opponents or proponents of Federal film censorship are preparing to take their stand. In reality they represent two cardinal ideas:

First—Criminal prosecution of those who ship indecent films, after the films have been shipped, and cases proved in court, as proposed in the Towner bill.

Second—Pre-publicity censorship of films intended for interstate shipment by the Federal commission, and refusal to permit interstate shipment of all films rejected by the Federal commission, as proposed in both the original and new Hughes bills, the Paramount bill and the Crafts bill.

The original Hughes bill is now out of the equation and need not be considered. But the new Hughes bill, to be offered as a substitute, differs from the Paramount and Crafts only in detail administrative features. All three—Chairman Hughes, the Crafts group of welfare workers, and the Paramount group of censorship advocates—favor the basic idea of setting up a Federal commission to issue licenses without which interstate shipments of films may not be made. These three groups have for two weeks been trying to agree together on an identical bill with

---

Editorial
Sunday, Feb. 13/15

6

THE SYRACUSE HERALD

PHOTOPLAYS AND HISTORIC DISPUTES.

The famous photoplay, "The Birth of a Nation," now on exhibition in Syracuse, has excited exceptional discussion owing to the efforts, in some cities successful, to bar it from public reproduction. The complaint on which these efforts have been based is that the historical pageant, in its later stages, is a needless and irritating reflection upon the negro race. This protest is not without justice. Yet we should not regard the production as a fit subject for the ban of the censor. Historic reviews on the film are likely to beget controversy and sometimes angry criticism. But the objector can always make his objection felt by the simple process of remaining away.

Censorship of moving picture shows should be chiefly confined, we think, to moral effects. That is where the public, and particularly spectators of tender age, really need protection. Where entertainments of this character are objected to on social or political grounds, aggrieved citizens can apply an individual remedy by refusing to patronize them. But we do not see why the presentation of "The Birth of a Nation" should be legally interdicted any more than is the sale of Dixon's story, "The Clansman," on which it is founded, or of any authentic history of Reconstruction days in the South.

The title of this wonderful pictorial creation is in some vital respects a misnomer. It might more accurately be described as "The Epic of Reconstruction," or "The Story of the Ku Klux Klan." Mr. Dixon's idea is that the Civil war marked the disappearance of State sovereignty and the advent of a perfect nationalism. That was true enough, so far as State fostering of the institution of slavery was concerned. Beyond that limitation, the Dixon theory is fallacious. During the last few years the country has been strikingly reminded in several conspicuous ways that State sovereignty is still a vital political force. Only three years ago the United States was confronted by a critical turn in its relations with Japan by California's assertion of her right to deal as she pleased with her Japanese residents, regardless of the solemn provisions of our treaty with the Japanese government. Our national policies of railroad supervision and of regulating the great monopolies are constantly being embarrassed by State interference. Colonel Roosevelt has repeatedly insisted that the trust problem will not be solved until the Federal government assumes absolute control of it—an implied admission by a high authority that State sovereignty still stands in the way.

Other faults might be indicated in the scheme of this remarkable photoplay, as, for example, its unnecessary hint of a scandal in the life of "Thad" Stevens, the original of the thinly disguised "Stoneman," and the overweight of heroism loaded upon the Ku Klux Klan. The extremists of the North and South were almost equally responsible for the abuses, excesses and outrages that defaced the post-bellum pages of American history. But why should it be necessary to emphasize this particular chapter, to the exclusion of so many glorious phases of our national development that would lend themselves readily to exposition on the screen? On the whole, however, "The Birth of a Nation" is a mighty interesting experiment in a line of historic illustration which is bound to prove one of the greatest educational triumphs of movie reproduction.

Eve. Telegram

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 3, 1916.

Birth of a Nation and the Censors

The white-hot fires of censorship through which "The Birth of a Nation" which returns to the Prince Theatre Monday for a week's engagement, has passed, have inflamed the American mind to the point of a sharp debate of the rights and wrongs of censorship.

To mot people, the entire question of censorship seems a novelty that originated with the moving picture only a few months, or, at the most, a few years ago. In reality the question is as old as the theatre itself.

Solon, as Plutarch relates, went to the theatre to see the Greek Thespis act—the same Thespis who gave us our word Thespian. As the play progressed, Solon, the law-maker, became more and more angry. When it was finished, he sought out Thespis and asked the tragedian if "he was not ashamed to tell so many lies before such a number of people." Thespis replied that "it was no harm to say or do so in a play." Solon angrily struck his staff against the ground and fairly shouted. "Ay, if we honor and commend such a play as this, we shall find it some day our business."

Solon's disciples have been legion. The Roman theatre was frequently censored, even by the infamous Nero. Shakespeare produced his masterpieces in spite of the handicaps of a sharp censorship that, among other things, restricted references to Deity and forbade the appearance of women on the stage. In the days of Charles II a formal censorship was established in England, which has developed into the strangling incubus that is being so valiantly fought by Bernard Shaw, Galsworthy, and the other energetic contemporary dramatists.

Feb 3

POST-STANDARD, SYRACUSE

UNOFFICIAL CENSORSHIP FOR "THE BIRTH OF A NATION"

"Jury" Appointed by Mayor and Public Safety Commissioner to View Film Here.

When "The Birth of a Nation" is shown for the first time in this city next week, an unofficial jury of censors appointed by Mayor Stone and Commissioner W. W. Nicholson of the Department of Public Safety, will see it.

If the charges made against the film yesterday afternoon by committees from Merriam and Sniper camps of the Sons of Veterans and the G. A. R. posts, who called on Mayor Stone, appear to be well founded, the production probably will be ordered modified or stopped.

The committee, headed by Captain James A. Allis of Lilly Post and Homer D. Call, former state treasurer and a Civil War veteran, told the Mayor and Commissioner Nicholson that while there was nothing immoral about the film, it was dangerous in that it nullified the patriotic teachings of the schools by its unlovely presentation of the acts of Northern soldiers and statesmen during the Civil War.

Mr. Call saw "The Birth of a Nation" in California last November. He said that General U. S. Grant was impersonated as a high class lout and General Robert E. Lee as a high class gentleman and soldier. He also said it idealized the Ku Klux Klan and that through it all there ran a thread of unfair criticism of the North. James Cruthers, the only other member of the delegation who has seen the film, corroborated Mr. Call.

Commissioner Nicholson and Sebert T. Friedrich, his deputy, saw the film in Rochester a week ago and declared it contained nothing which injured their feelings of patriotism or which reflected unfavorably on the Northern soldiers in the Civil War.

FEBRUARY 3, 1916.

Barred in Stevens's Home Town.

The managers of the Fulton Opera House were notified the other afternoon by Mayor Trout and City Solicitor Myer that if the films "The Birth of a Nation," booked for three days this week, was shown they would be prosecuted for criminal libel of the memory of Thaddeus Stevens, and the license of the opera house would be revoked. As a result of this notice the opera house maangement cancelled the show.

Congressman W. W. Griest, who is a great admirer of Stevens, several days ago wrote Mayor Trout protesting against the exhibition of this film in Stevens's old

Morning Telegraph

WOULD EXTEND CENSORSHIP TO SPOKEN DRAMA

Dr. Wilber F. Crafts, Superintendent of International Bureau of Reform in Washington, Files Brief With House Committee in Which He Declares Theatre Needs Supervision.

SHOULD BE LOCAL, HE SAYS

Situation Anent Film Measures Now Under Consideration Has Changed Radically Since Beginning of Hearings, Documents States—Links Issue With That of Prohibition.

(Special Dispatch to The Morning Telegraph.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.

Film censorship is not the only thing Dr. Wilber F. Crafts, superintendent of the International Reform Bureau of this city, is working for in his legislative propaganda, it developed to-day. He believes the censorship system should also be extended to the spoken drama, although he feels the latter should be a matter of local criticism rather than national, because of the aptitude actors have of changing their lines in various performances of the same piece.

The attitude of Dr. Crafts was made public to-day in a brief filed with Chairman Hughes of the House Committee on Education, in which he told the legislators the situation concerning the proposed laws for Government regulation of the motion pictures was "radically different" now from what it was when the hearings began, "because a whole group of the better class of producers have joined the churches and welfare societies in asking for Federal censorship, and have co-operated in making the bill more workable without asking the cancellation of any essential provision."

The portion of the highly unusual and in some respects interesting brief prepared by Dr. Crafts in behalf of his society, which directly concerns his opinions on the censorship of the drama, follows:

Need Local Censorship.

"Theatres need censorship, but it should be local censorship connected up with some bureau of information and warning. The film cans are as much an interstate matter as cans of beef to which the Federal Government wisely applies free 'publicity censorship'."

This latter is an allusion to the Federal Meat Inspection law, which was never before described as a censorship proposition, and which deals not with the morals of slaughtered, but with the physical character of the resultant meat. The projected censorship bill does not seek to deal with the physical properties of films, but proposes to keep films from passing in interstate commerce on account of the moral messages they may convey, when exhibited.

According to the Crafts brief, the most important part of national preparedness is to "guard our youth, our future citizens, against the vicious influences that weaken body and mind, so that we may conserve the man behind the gun." And in declaring that from the standpoint of welfare workers the censorship bill is "one of the most important measures before Congress," the Crafts brief links it up with the prohibition issue by asserting that "even pending prohibition is not more important than furnishing a wholesome substitute for the rapidly diminishing saloons through censored motion picture halls, whose patronage we believe will be not less but far more than that of the photo-plays of to-day, which thousands have ceased to attend because never safe against insult for some foul scene."

Calls Them Better Class.

The allusion by Dr. Crafts to "a whole group of the better class of producers," in the opening of his brief, has reference to the Paramount Pictures Corporation, the Famous Players Film Company, the Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Company and the World Film and Equitable Motion Pictures corporations, with which Superintendent Crafts has been endeavoring to reach an agreement or a revised substitute for the Hughes bill. These companies have been denominated by Dr. Crafts as "the better class of producers" since they have indicated a willingness to support a revised bill calling for Federal censorship of films.

In addition to the Paramount, Lasky, Famous Players, World and Equitable companies, represented by Attorney Friend, Dr. Crafts declares in his brief he has received letters from four other film concerns indicating their approval of the censorship bill. The names of the four concerns are not made public.

Reg. Telegraph Feb 30

CHANNING POLLOCK LANDS HEAVILY ON FILM CENSORSHIP

Brilliant Critic Flays Foolish Stunts of Censors in Caustic Commentary, Excerpts From Which Have Been Placed in Hands of House Committee on Education.

CUT LOVE FROM DRAMA

Declares Ascetic Arbiters Would Bar Bible and Shakespeare if They Could Enforce Conformity With Their Methods of Arbitrary and Utterly Ridiculous Imitation.

(Special Dispatch to The Morning Telegraph.)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.

Channing Pollock, playwright and author, has thrown his weight into the scales against the censorship of motion pictures by the Federal Government in a clever and incisive commentary on the actual workings of censorship in the only three States where it now exists by State enactment—Kansas, Ohio and Pennsylvania. Citing a dozen examples of the "wisdom" of motion picture censors, showing how the ban of forbidden things runs the gamut from baby clothes to slippers, creating a condition that ceases to be funny when one reflects that these restrictions are imposed upon an art in its very infancy, Pollock predicts that if Shakespeare ever gets in the movies Ohio will never stand for the unmaidenly conduct of Juliet, or Kansas for the marriage of a colored man to a white woman in "Othello."

Mr. Pollock's caustic commentary on the ludicrous manner in which censorship has been enforced wherever its principles have been enacted into law against the films is embraced in advance sheets of an article prepared by himself for the Photo Play Magazine. Extensive extracts from this article has been presented to the House Committee on Education, as a most interesting and illuminating exhibit, with the brief filed by William M. Seabury, general counsel for the Motion Picture Board of Trade of America. These advance sheets were supplied to Mr. Seabury by the Motion Picture Magazine. In this article Mr. Pollock presents facts that demonstrate the ridiculous absurdity of censorship in actual practice.

Paternal Buss of Bashful Bullfighter.

What Mr. Pollock has to say will be printed and circulated, with the Seabury brief, among members of both houses of Congress.

"Considering that it is forty years since first she (Carmen) mouthed her mad love to the music of Bizet," says the Pollock portrayal of the situation, "Carmen might have expected the defence due old age. Beautifully filmed and beautifully acted by Geraldine Farrar, she came as a bolt from the blue and shocked and surprised 'boards' in Ohio, Pennsylvania and California. Her ancient kiss, that inspired the first big press agent story, was ordered cut to five feet. 'Just a little love, a little kiss,' warbled the Buckeyes, and nothing more than a yard and two-thirds of affection came within that allowance. 'All love scenes showing embraces between males and females were ordered measured and trimmed, leaving the cigarette maker to give her life for several paternal pecks from the bashful bullfighter, Escamillo.

"[illegible] to think of it, [illegible] wasn't permitted to give her life either in Ohio or in California. A local board in the latter state objected to the killing of a woman by a man, though there is no opposition to the killing of men by women. After all girls will be girls! It is only the male who must not be encouraged! Pennsylvania banned the little set-to between Carmen and Frasquita and the duel between Morales and Don Jose. All this had taken place dozens of times in the opera in Philadelphia without appreciable effect upon the police records, but, apparently, the censors were comforted by the reflection that no one knows what an opera is about anyway. 'Camille' is forbidden [illegible]

[illegible] in Chicago. To the contention that minors might read the book, answer was made that 'a child of simple training and pure thoughts could read "The Scarlet Letter" and, because of the purity and delicacy of its style, have no idea of its real meaning.' Charming prospect! To go through Hawthorne's masterpiece from cover to cover, without understanding a word of it.

"At least, no 'child of simple training and pure thoughts' would be likely to see in any picture what the censors seem to see. Few children are nasty-minded. A large section was cut from a photo-play called 'The Warning,' because there was a bed in the room adjoining the scene of action. Of course, a bed could have none other than an immoral purpose. How stupid of the producer not to have exchanged this obscene piece of furniture for a denatured divan! In the picturization of a celebrated play objection was made to a title covering pantomime in which a capitalist told a woman that he would employ her husband. The title read 'I've got a proposition to make to you.' It was cut. The censors couldn't imagine a business proposition.

Bible Quotation Blotted Out.

"The screen version of my own drama 'The Secret Orchard,' wonderfully filmed by Mr. Laskey, was stripped of a title quoted from the Bible. There had been no addition or alteration. There were expressions of horror, too, that a man drank wine from a woman's slipper. A shaving mug might have been all right. The Pennsylvania Board inveighed against what it called 'a feast.' If ever Fred Thompson carries out his intention of filming the Scriptures, goodness knows what Pennsylvania will do with Belshazzar! Mr. Lasky and I carried 'The Secret Orchard' to court in Philadelphia, where to our intense surprise, the censors discovered that the first scene took place in a bagnio. Agnes and Egerton Castle had written the novel, I had written the play, a reputable management has produced it and a reputable film company had photographed it without suspecting or finding any critic or spectator who suspected the awful truth.

"'Do you mean to say,' the Board's attorney thundered at me, 'that you do not recognize this as a brothel?'

"I admitted that I didn't.

"'The censors do,' said the attorney.

"'Which only goes to prove,' I replied 'that the censors know more about brothels than I do.'

"In the course of the case, the board sought to establish its contention by pointing out that several men were seen to embrace women. I inquired whether there was anything to indicate that the women were not their wives. The censors hadn't thought of that. Anyway, 'The Secret Orchard' was a story of seduction. 'Isn't "David Copperfield"?' asked the judge. The censors hadn't thought of that either.

Illegitimate Children Barred.

"The story of 'The Secret Orchard' can be told in seven words," I said. "It is, the wages of sin is death.' Do you call that immoral?"

"The judge didn't, and we are permitted to show our picture in Pennsylvania.

"However, another play with the same story never reached the films, because manufacturers knew too well what to expect of the censors. That play was Dario Nicodemi and Michael Morton's drama of deep and pure purpose, 'The Shadow,' enthusiastically praised when it was produced by that arch conspirator against public morals, Charles Frohman, with Ethel Barrymore as the star, at the Empire. 'The Shadow' mentions an illegitimate child, and illegitimate children are barred in Ohio and Pennsylvania.

"Edward Sheldon's 'The High Road,' as presented by Mrs. Fiske, has been censored, and so has Cosmo Hamilton's 'The Blindness of Virtue.' The Pennsylvania Board recently insisted upon reviewing that part of a film which showed nothing but an American flag waving in the breeze. If the American flag is to be censored, what will become of George Cohan?

"A certain melodramatic picture disclosed the execution of plans for an assassination in an isolated house. To complete the isolation and prevent the victim's summoning help, a villain cut the telephone wires. There was no objection to the assassination, but the film was held up because it might inspire small boys to tamper with wires.

"Am I carry out my agreement to be 'excruciatingly funny'?

Showed Contempt for Marriage.

"The farce, 'Bootle's Baby' was stopped in Philadelphia because a man got a letter from his wife and burned it. Tearing the letter would have been permissible, said the censors, but burning it showed contempt for the marital relations. Charles Kenyon's remarkable play, 'Kindling,' dealing with no sex problem, but with poverty and the race, was held up because a mother was shown making clothes for her unborn child. The child was not illegitimate; it was about to be born, with the greatest possible deference to the censors. What, then, was wrong with the exposition of a mother engaged in one of the most sacred and beautiful labors of motherhood? You'll never guess! 'The movies are patronized by thousands of children who believe that babies are brought by the stork, and it would be criminal to undeceive them!'

"Honest.

"Dramatic art must encourage the infantile notion that babies are found in cabbage patches, or brought by storks, or it is dangerous and pernicious. God's beautiful way of perpetuating the race is quite too immoral. And, immoral or not, dramatic art must fit itself to the intellectual level of children 8 years old, or the Pennsylvania Board of Motion Picture Censors will know the reason why!

"In this case, the head of the exchange in Philadelphia, who had a sense of humor, argued that babies, even if brought by storks, required clothing, but the suggestion was ignored. Then he

Feb 3 Ev

Syracuse Dispatch

UARY 2, 1916.

ON DISCUSSES BIRTH OF A NATION

k Playwright, Former ous Man, Takes Issue Attorney General.

ltor of The Dispatch.

r: In his analysis of "The Nation," Attorney General as failed to find one situa- haracterization of merit. It If not monstrous; it is his- incorrect; therefore, it is a nd an insult to an intelligent orge Washington cut down rbial cherry tree or did Wil- shoot the apple off the head n? If these big dramatic sit- are not actual history they ever be spoken of to the Facts. Facts for the stage ature.

is there a play of the stage el of history which does not e-bly? All of Shakespeare's l plays and most of his trag- e based upon historic facts; dorns his tales eternally and the facts.

's "Mary Stuart" and his are a distortion of historic as are Scott's "Ivanhoe" Kenilworth," and Rostands in" and Ford's "Janice Meri- nd the works of Dumas and torical novels of Dickens and ay. And how closely does ur." story and play, follow history?

ney General Turner says: "A taken at General Sherman's in the marauding scenes the title of 'While the women ildren weep a great conqueror s to the sea.'" The purport line and this situation was entirely by the attorney gen- This line has been used to call a sympathetic response from ectators, and may hold up the to the horrors of war and r a great sermon upon the t. And in no what is it a rebuke memory of Sherman.

ttorney general takes issue with ttitude of General Grant. He this character is shown with in his mouth tilted a la Uncle annon, and that he swaggers in of the dignified General Lee. Per- this episode never happened in ry. Whether it did or not it is tically correct. Traits of char- must be shown quickly and in upon the stage. To have missed bquitous Grant cigar would have a breach of dramatic detail and aracterization falling below the . And big men smoke big cigars big moments. Any school boy ld expect Grant to smoke "Under e honor Grant's memory. But be smoke. Pity the great Griffith not show him passing a cigar on General Lee. That would have wn a brotherly spirit, the spirit the rney general credits him with hav- had, but would it have been in ping with the Grant character and situation Griffith meant to build? her it would have been incongru- and created a laugh.

further says this student of his- ry: "Time after time the North is favorably contrasted against the outh. A fair daughter of the North wooed by a gallant son of the outh, who has but two competitors r her affections, one a leering loud essed slouchily in Union blue, the ther a negro."

Now this man of history sees trag- dy in this leering lout, as he ts deased to call this character. Evi- ently the attorney general is lacking n a sense of humor, for this leering out—in no wise a competitor for the ffections of the fair daughter of the North—registers the most marked omedy bit of the whole performance. This poor soldier lad had been doing oldier duty—had been away from ome, away from sister, mother, all. He is doing sentry duty in a hospital hen a young girl passes. He sighs nd shows his admiration for the girl. It is done with the dropping of an yebrow and a shoulder. It is a ubtle bit of comedy, a bit which is egistered in a million minds today, or, though it always gets a smile, it ounds a pathetic note. Yet the at- orney general would call it tragedy, n insult to the Yankee. Rather it a great tribute to a man.

No mention is made of the character of Lincoln which is exhibited, or his assassination in Ford's theater, or the spectacular battle scenes of the Civil war. And the attorney general missed the love interest and comedy. Either these are all trivial or they have met with his approval. He confines his argument principally to the aftermath of the war, the reconstruction period.

"This picture shows the South o have been right and the North to have been wrong," he says, and arrives at this conclusion not from witnessing the scenes of the actual conflict, but by impressions gathered by watching events which happened after the war. He confuses the carpet-bagger, the cheap politician, who preyed upon the negro after the war, with the Yankee of the North, whereas the carpet-bagger is a man without a home; consequently in neither of the North nor of the South. He is the "villian" of the play, and meets his just retribution.

This masterpiece shows the North winning; so how can it do the North wrong" The North is shown triumphant. And love, not only sexual love, but brotherly love is interwoven with these scenes of conflict. It depicts a little boy in gray and his little friend in blue—schoolboy chums—entwined in each other's arms, dying upon a great battle field. And this is the keynote of "The Birth of a Nation." It gets a sob. A sob which those who have seen carry away with them. And everybody knows that both the North and the South were wrong, and that all who engage in war are wrong. This is the lesson. It is a mere case of sympathy. This scene will do what literature cannot do, and instead of opening any controversy will help to make the North and the South mere points of the compass.

There are other features in this play which bring the North and South closer together and show up the horrors of war; they are the love of the Southern girl for the Yankee, an old story in American literature, but somewhat less common on the stage, and the devastation of the picturesque Southern home with its atmosphere of quaintness and beauty.

The attorney general is either a courageous man or a genius. At this time 100,000 people are witnessing "The Birth of a Nation" weekly at a weekly expenditure of $100,000. Hundreds of thousands of Yankees have seen it, but none have taken the attorney general's view of it, for if they had they would be conspicuous by their absence. "The Birth of a Nation" ran over 800 times in New York, and since then has been presented for ten weeks outside the Broadway district of New York. It has been running 40 weeks in Chicago and from 200 to 300 times in Boston and Philadelphia. It also visited Pittsburg and St. Louis for 13 weeks each, and is being presented within the larger cities of this country. For at least 20 weeks longer it will play within a radius of 20 miles of New York, and within four weeks will be shown in South America, Australia and London, England. These statements can be substantiated by affidavits.

And yet this great spectacle is barred from Ohio. Why? What is the motive? Geo. H. Atkinson,
Former Student Ohio State University.

Syracuse Herald

HUGHES PLAN TO CENSOR FILMS

A substitute, differs from the Paramount and Crafts only in detail administrative features. All three—Chairman Hughes, the Crafts group of welfare workers, and the Paramount group of censorship advocates—favor the basic idea of setting up a Federal commission to issue licenses without which interstate shipments of films may not be made. These three groups have for two weeks been trying to get together on an identical bill with the same administrative features, but have failed. Indications now are that they will not get together and that while all agree on censorship, they will fall out among themselves, over the manner in which the censorship is to be conducted and the scope of the commission's powers.

First, there was a conference between the Rev. Dr. Wilbur F. Crafts and representatives of the Paramount group, dur-

OVER

Theatre, Boston, in Henry W. ton, "Pom Pom."

OBJECT TO USE OF MUSIC WITH FILMS

That Is, When Selections Happen to Be Copyrighted and Producing No Royalty.

PUBLISHER ASKS INJUNCTION

A novel case, and the first of its kind on record, is scheduled for argument in the United States District Court on Friday, when G. Ricordi & Co., Incorporated, music publishers, through their attorney, Nathan Burkan, will ask that the court to issue an injunction restraining the Triangle Film Corporation from distributing further copies of incidental music with a film entitled "The Stolen Magic."

For "The Stolen Magic" music, it is charged, contains a copy of "Minor and Major Oriental Waltzes," written by Frank W. McKee, on which the plaintiffs controls the exclusive copyright.

The bill of complaint alleges that on February 5, 1915, McKee assigned his waltz piece to the plaintiffs for publication, and they duly copyrighted it and put it on the market. In addition, they charge, they spent quite a sum in advertising the waltzes and they have a pecuniary value in excess of $5,000.

It appears from the papers that the Triangle Film Corporation is in the habit of distributing with its releases, complete orchestrations of the incidental music that goes to make its photo-plays attractive. In the case at bar, the complaint says, all the cues are written into "The Stolen Magic" music, but it contains the plaintiff's composition in toto.

As performances of the films are given for profit, and the music is made part of the performance, Mr. Burkan points out, the Triangle Corporation is benefiting by the plaintiff's music without paying any royalty therefor.

The music house says it has no remedy at law, and hence an injuction is the only thing that will suffice. Damages of $1 each for every copy of "Minor and Major Oriental Waltzes" the defendants may have in his possession, and $10 for each infringing performance that has been given, in addition to a confiscation of every plate and copy the defendants may now have on hand are demanded.

On the plaintiff's representations Judge Mayer signed an order directing the defendant to show cause why "an injunction should not issue. The affidavit of service show the complaint was served on the defendant by leaving a copy with Walter N. Seligsberg, assistant secretary and director of the Triangle, at 145 Broadway.

The defendant corporation also maintains offices at 71 West Twenty-third street.

Editorial
Sunday, Feb. 13/15

6

Syracuse Herald

PHOTOPLAYS AND HISTORIC DISPUTES.

The famous photoplay, "The Birth of a Nation," now on exhibition in Syracuse, has excited exceptional discussion owing to the efforts, in some cities successful, to bar it from public reproduction. The complaint on which these efforts have been based is that the historical pageant, in its later stages, is a needless and irritating reflection upon the negro race. This protest is not without justice. Yet we should not regard the production as a fit subject for the ban of the censor. Historic reviews on the film are likely to beget controversy and sometimes angry criticism. But the objector can always make his objection felt by the simple process of remaining away.

Censorship of moving picture shows should be chiefly confined, we think, to moral effects. That is where the public, and particularly spectators of tender age, really need protection. Where entertainments of this character are objected to on social or political grounds, aggrieved citizens can apply an individual remedy by refusing to patronize them. But we do not see why the presentation of "The Birth of a Nation" should be legally interdicted any more than is the sale of Dixon's story, "The Clansman," on which it is founded, or of any authentic history of Reconstruction days in the South.

The title of this wonderful pictorial creation is in some vital respects a misnomer. It might more accurately be described as "The Epic of Reconstruction," or "The Story of the Ku Klux Klan." Mr. Dixon's idea is that the Civil war marked the disappearance of State sovereignty and the advent of a perfect nationalism. That was true enough, so far as State fostering of the institution of slavery was concerned. Beyond that limitation, the Dixon theory is fallacious. During the last few years the country has been strikingly reminded in several conspicuous ways that State sovereignty is still a vital political force. Only three years ago the United States was confronted by a critical turn in its relations with Japan by California's assertion of her right to deal as she pleased with her Japanese residents, regardless of the solemn provisions of our treaty with the Japanese government. Our national policies of railroad supervision and of regulating the great monopolies are constantly being embarrassed by State interference. Colonel Roosevelt has repeatedly insisted that the trust problem will not be solved until the Federal government assumes absolute control of it—an implied admission by a high authority that State sovereignty still stands in the way.

Other faults might be indicated in the scheme of this remarkable photoplay, as, for example, its unnecessary hint of a scandal in the life of "Thad" Stevens, the original of the thinly disguised "Stoneman," and the overweight of heroism loaded upon the Ku Klux Klan. The extremists of the North and South were almost equally responsible for the abuses, excesses and outrages that defaced the post-bellum pages of American history. But why should it be necessary to emphasize this particular chapter, to the exclusion of so many glorious phases of our national development that would lend themselves readily to exposition on the screen? On the whole, however, "The Birth of a Nation" is a mighty interesting experiment in a line of historic illustration which is bound to prove one of the greatest educational triumphs of movie reproduction.

CYRUS TOWNSEND BRADY OPPOSED TO CENSORSHIP

Clergyman and Author, Graduate of Annapolis, Missionary in Many States, Declares Argument for Proposed Federal Bill Is Not Sound.

(Special Dispatch to The Morning Telegraph.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.

Rev. Dr. Cyrus Townsend Brady of Yonkers, N. Y., one of the best known Protestant Episcopal Clergymen of America, author of some sixty-five books, writer of sea stories with an international reputation, and an authority on naval and seafaring history, has submitted to the House Committee on Education his views in opposition to Federal censorship of motion pictures from the dual standpoint of an author and clergyman.

Dr. Brady's statement, which promises to find strong support with a number of members of Congress, embraces a strong protest against the idea that the motion picture industry generally has been putting out immoral pictures to the public, asserts that it is not good business to put out bad pictures, characterizes the Hughes censorship bill as a measure of discrimination against the poor man for whom the movie is declared to be "the poor man's grand opera," and predicts that if the Federal Government once embarks on the censorship of motion pictures it will insert the "thin point of an entering wedge, which, by and by will involve the country in a censorship of everything that attempts to appeal to humanity."

The standing and reputation of Dr. Brady, both as a clergyman and an author, are bound to attract wide attention to the statement of his position to the members of Congress who, as members of the committee to which the Hughes bill has been referred, will soon be called together by the chairman of the committee to consider the project for censorship on its merits and in the light of developments during and since the hearings were held. Dr. Brady has had a remarkably attractive career. He is a graduate of the Naval Academy at Annapolis and obtained his degree of Doctor of Laws at historic St. John's College at Annapolis. Then he spent several years in the service of the Union and Missouri Pacific railroads along the frontier. Studying theology under Bishop Worthington of Nebraska, he became rector of Episcopal churches in Missouri and Colorado, was archdeacon of Kansas until 1895, archdeacon of Pennsylvania until 1899, and has been rector of St. Paul's Church, Overbrook, Pa.; of Trinity Church at Toledo and St. George's Church at Mount Vernon, N. Y., more recently.

When the Spanish-American War broke out he went to the front as chaplain of the First Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry. He is a member of the National Arts Club of New York, of the American Academy of Political and Social Science, of the Sons of the American Revolution, of the Military Order of Foreign Wars, of the Society of Colonial Wars and a good all-round American. Dr. Brady is author of "For Love of Country," "For the Freedom of the Seas," "The Island of Regeneration," "Stephen Decatur," "The Chalice of Courage," "The Corner in Coffee," "American Fights and Fighters," "The Grip of Honor," "When Blades Are Out and Love's Afield," "Border Fights and Fighters," "The Bishop," "Henry Morgan, Buccaneer," "My Lady's Slipper," "The Patriots," "The Love Test," "The Privateersman," "The Sword Hand of Napoleon," "Christmas When the W

(Continued on Page 5, Cols.

Was Young," "The True Andrew Jackson" and numerous other volumes.

After stating that "it will be a blow felt all over the country if you undertake to pass this bill," Dr. Brady, in his statement to the members of the House Education Committee, asserts that "the church is back of this desire for censorship," and that it is a mistake for the church to demand the assistance of the law to enable it to do what it ought to do by "the persuasional power that dwells within it and should dwell within it."

"What is back of this desire for censorship?" inquires the statement made by Dr. Brady to the House Committee. "Now this is serious, this is earnest, this is where I get in bad with everybody, more or less. What do I mean by that? If there is another thing besides the greatest amount of personal liberty consistent with the rights of man for which this country stands without regard for special privilege it is disassociation of church and State.

"The church has never been able thoroughly and completely to free itself from the idea it needed and must have, in some way, the co-operation of the State in order that it might do its lawful and legitimate business. The church is always calling upon the State to pass laws to make men righteous, when it is the business of the church to make men righteous, and then let them pass whatever laws they will.

Duty of the Church.

"There is no more pernicious tendency in American institutions than the tendency of the church as an organization to come up and demand the passage of laws to do what the church ought to do itself. That is a perversion of the old text, 'Go out and compel them to come in,' and use the secular arm for the compulsion. It is a matter of persuasion.

"If the church can not compete with the moving pictures, it is a sign that it is not using its influence in the right way.

"When I have a church I do not go to the law and say, 'I can not get a congregation, because my people have gone to the moving pictures.' I get the people. I have had amusement-organization men come to me and say, 'Won't you put the time of the church a little bit ahead of the moving pictures so that we can get an audience, and after it is over we will give you a free ticket.' That has been done many times. We all stand for morality. The church ought not to demand the assistance of the law to enable it to do what it ought to do by the persuasional power which dwells within it and which should dwell within it. You can not make men righteous by law. You can keep them out of jail or put them in jail, but you can not make them righteous. Mr. Thomas Mott Osborne has found that you can not make men righteous by law, but you can be exerting an influence such as he has exerted."

Protesting against the idea that immoral pictures are being put out by the trade generally to the public, Dr. Brady, in his statement to the House Committee, says: "It is easy to cry down motion-picture men; it is easy to cry down Congressmen, and even the ministers; but the moving picture people are just the same kind of people as you are, and in the main they are actuated by high principles filled with as good intentions as anybody on the face of the globe. It is not good business to make bad pic[illegible] of the[illegible] the fo[illegible] with the seven veils, but I have seen other people who have, and it did not seem to worry the police.

"Dancers can exhibit themselves on the stage with so little on that I hesitate to characterize what passes for a costume. One of the most sensuous of the grand operas is the one founded on the tale by Prosper Merimee, called 'Carmen.' In 'Carmen,' I am told, everything is done on the stage by the very person who subsequently presents it in the moving pictures, and nobody censors 'Carmen.' Everybody goes to see it and says 'Oh, what heavenly music'; but when it comes into moving pictures it is censored. I do not say that it ought not to be censored. I am holding no brief for it. There are undoubtedly pictures that need censorship, just as everybody else that engages the attention of the public sometimes needs censoring, but if you pass an act of this kind and appoint a board of censors you will be inserting the thin point of a wedge, which, by and by will involve the country in a censorship of everything that attempts to appeal to humanity.

Speaks for Himself.

"I am not authorized to speak for anybody, but I am quite certain that if you try to throttle this tremendous industry whose growth no man can foresee, whose appeal no man can begin to estimate in terms of possibility—if you attempt to throttle this great industry, which is trying its very best, making mistakes, of course, as we all do—your own record is not so clear and clean and free from error as to enable you to point to every incident in it with pride, although perhaps you go back and do it—who are trying earnestly and honestly to do what is right and proper—do you think they are going to stand by and see the daily press uncensored? What do you think about the daily papers? What do you do with your children in regard to the daily papers? Do you let them read everything they see there? Do you censor your papers? Do you even exercise discrimination as to what daily papers comes into your home? Do you take the one that has the pictures, the gaudiest headlines and the yellowist topics?

"The daily papers will be censored like the moving pictures, and the books will be censored, the publishers will be censored, the theatres will be censored, and we will even censor Congress and the church.

"This is a bill designed to control the amusements of the plain, common people and to let the rest go unwhipped of censorship. It is entirely unnecessary, to say the least, because the moving picture men will do it themselves. Give them a chance and let them see what can be done. This agitation is a little beyond the moving picture industry. It is just in its infancy now; the industry is just commencing.

Influence Uplifting.

"The moving pictures have already done more to elevate the standards of the people than almost any agency in this country, and I speak as a churchman having th[illegible]st profound allegiance and loyal[illegible] Master, and I will tell you [illegible] put out of business [illegible] cheap, com[illegible] tour the [illegible]

CLEVELAND PLAIN DEALER

OF Feb. 4

Ohio Only State to Bar Film on Racial Problem

OHIO has the distinction of possessing the only censor board that has turned down "The Birth of a Nation." Because of the overwhelming preponderance of opinion against the viewpoint of the Ohio censors, the producers of this great photo play spectacle are hopeful that Cleveland will see "The Birth of a Nation" next month.

The schedule arranged months ago brings the great David W. Griffith spectacle to the Opera House the last two weeks in March. The Opera House management has arranged for "The Birth of a Nation" to have a clear ten weeks' run at the Euclid avenue house, if the patronage warrants so long a run.

Writing from New York, Theodore Mitchell thus replies to the charge of the Ohio censors that "The Birth of a Nation" is a film likely to create racial trouble:

"There has been a great deal of misrepresentation regarding this stirring attraction. It emanates from a society of organized opposition.

"The truth is 'The Birth of a Nation' has never been interfered with in any city where it has been presented. It has never caused any prejudice or trouble anywhere with the exception of a single demonstration in Boston stirred up by a man who was ordered out of the White House for insulting the president of the United States, and in Philadelphia where a cheap political disturbance that lasted a few minutes was made just before election time by a crowd that was supporting a candidate for the mayoralty. This candidate was beaten at the polls by over 90,000 votes.

"'The Birth of a Nation' has passed every recognized censor board or judicial channel except one. This applies to the Ohio board of censors, which passed judgment on the production without letting the people see it. That matter will likely be adjusted in the courts."

Black

Feb 3

THE GAZETTE, YORK, PA.

NEGROES ASK FOR BAN ON 'BIRTH OF A NATION'

Urge Mayor to Prohibit Showing of Great Moving Picture in Opera House

MAYOR WILL SEE IT

Asking a ban on "The Birth of a Nation," a committee of more than a dozen prominent representatives of the city's colored population called on Mayor E. S. Hugentugler yesterday morning and stated their views and urged that the great moving picture be prohibited to be shown at the York Opera house next week, as has been advertised. They claim that the play itself shows prominent Americans in a false light and that it will have an evil effect on the minds of not only children, but many grownups who have not absorbed enough to detect the perversions; that it has and still is engendering race prejudice and incited riot, as for example "the recent deplorable affair in Philadelphia and elsewhere."

The spokesmen were B. T. Montgomery, Dr. George W. Bowles and Rev. W. Edward Williams. They signed a petition addressed to the mayor, in addition to Rev. J. A. S. Cole, George I. Reed, G. H. Chapman, G. W. Bell, William W. Gittens, M. D. W. L. Harr and Rev. George S. Burton. The petition sets forth the arguments in full, and closes with:

"Now, Mr. Hugentugler, with an abiding faith to a moral certainty in your sense of justice and humanity, and in your desire to prevent race prejudice or antipathy, we feel that with the known effects for evil and publicity this collossal enterprise, founded upon so unsavory and unchristianlike a subject, that you will render a decision in the premises."

FEATURES THEY OBJECT TO

The negroes claim the plot of the book, "The Clansman," represents Thaddeus Stevens in the character of Hon. Austin Stoneman as a vicious and profligate character. The Ku Klux Klan incidents of the play are especially objectionable to them.

Mayor Hugentugler assured the committee that he would give the matter his serious attention and render such decision as he deems best to all parties concerned.

Later in discussing the matter the mayor said he had conversed with an attorney from Columbia, who said there was not the slightest trouble or danger ahead if the pictures were shown, and he could not see why it should not be shown in this city. The Pennsylvania running [illegible] throughout the country and its name is censorship. Down in Washington the Reverend Wilber Crafts is trying to censor anything he can lay his hands on, but in particular he wants to censor the moving picture. The united efforts of the film industry have been directed to warding off this evil at the National Capital, and the battle has been so hot that other dangers have for the time been neglected. The batteries of the industry have all been pointed at Washington, with little attempt to guard the rear.

But just at present there is a grave danger threatening on the flank, and it is in the form of a State censorship bill presented at Albany by Assemblyman Frank Ahern. This measure proposes a board of three men, at a yearly salary of $[illegible] each, appointed for a period of six years, by the Governor with the consent of the Senate, to pass upon all films that appear within the State.

This matter of State and local censorship is of quite as much importance as Federal censorship. What good does it do if the picture industry successfully fights off national supervision, only to fall into the clutches of its enemies within the State?

As obnoxious as would be any attempt at Federal censorship, it is an open question whether local censor boards are not even worse. With the former there would be at least a fixed standard that would pertain to the country as a whole, while under the latter form of supervision there is not and never can be any uniformity. This has already been proved to the infinite trouble of the motion picture industry. A film is passed in one State, and received with gasps of horror in another. The same film, having received the sanction of the State board, is considered [illegible] by some local city or county body, which flatly refuses to allow its appearance. The result is that the producer of motion pictures does not know where he stands. He is involved in endless litigation that brings him nothing. It is like fighting an octopus which, when one tentacle is lopped off, always has another in reserve.

Besides its detrimental effect on the film industry, indiscriminate and scattered censorship works havoc with the very people that it is supposed to protect. A picture is passed in one place, censored in another. As a result the public is at sea as to the real merits or defects of the subject in question, and the only way they can reach a conclusion is to view the picture for themselves. Thus the very reason for the existence of censor boards is obviated. In time the public is bound to lose its faith in State and local censors, if it is not doing so at present, and eventually censorship of this sort will die a natural death at the hands of the people that brought it into being.

But it is not the part of the motion picture industry to stand quietly by and wait for that halcyon period. They must fight censorship with every weapon they possess. While they have centered their attention on Washington, one tentacle of the octopus has crept around their flank, ready to fasten itself upon their unprotected back if they are not vigilant.

The film interests should turn their minds to this new evil and fight it as vigorously and effectively as that at Washington.

A Grave Danger Threatens the Film Industry at Albany.

st Living Witness Tells of Shooting of Abraham Lincoln

Ferguson, Then a Call Boy in Ford's Theatre in Washington, Says Inaccuracies Have Crept Into History and Motion Pictures—He Saw Booth's Escape.

J. FERGUSON, only surviving witness of the nation of Abraham Lincoln at e Theatre, ington, on April 5, says that f the American es and all of notion pictures ing the famous ly give an alto- erroneous im- on of it.

Ferguson now ying the rôle of e Merrie, one of pirates, in sure Island," at unch and Judy tre, and in view e approaching ation of Lin- 's Birthday on t Saturday he rday described Wilkes Booth's er of the Presi- as he and Miss Keene saw it hat never to be tten night when Keene was play- "Our American in" for her own fit. Mr. Fergu- who knew Booth refers to him ys as "John." histories record fact that the box pied by the Presi- and Mrs. Lin- and their party situated at one e of the stage, ve feet above it, not in the audi- m, as boxes are nowadays. Its pants were look- down on the ac- using the same le of vision as hey were stand- in the wings.

A curtain was ped before the sident's chair," d Mr. Ferguson, d this completely cealed his feat- s from the audi- e. We on the ge could see him, those in front ld not, and for s reason the only rsons who actually w his assassination re the occupants his box and Miss

THE HOUSTON CHRONICLE

Censorship and Films

To the Editor of The Chronicle.

Every sane American is thought to be unconditionally opposed to censorship of any kind. No laws of censorship existing or proposed, state or national, can be considered anything but dangerous and a serious invasion of human rights. There are many reasons why persons concerned or identified with the motion picture industry should be opposed to censorship, but there are certain fundamental reasons why every citizen should fight censorship, whether it appears as a menace to free press, our free speech or motion pictures.

In the routine of life we are too much inclined to forget the painful progress by which our present liberty has been gained, the price that has been paid, and the value of the now commonplace institutions and facts of this liberty. This condition has kept the great body of the people from recognizing just what a serious menace the censorship of the motion picture is.

The public has accepted the motion picture just as it has accepted its newspapers, an acceptance, however, with only a superficial appreciation of its significance.

Yet, as a form of publication, of art expression and thought transmission, the motion picture is just as significant to our future as was the day when the cave man began to transmit thought with idiograph drawings scratched on the rock walls of his den. He was then paving the way for that more recent day, when, centuries ago, Guttenberg cut his initials on a beechnut and thereby invented movable type.

The whole human attainment is wrapped up in the possibilities of transmitting thought. Civilization depends on it, built up of the acquired and accumulating store of experience of the ages. The dark ages were the centuries when ignorance ruled, when the written word was suppressed, when libraries were burned and it was almost a crime to know how to read and write.

I do not believe that this nation today could exist without a newspaper and the institution of a free press or its practical equivalent, and the motion picture is part of this institution.

They have taken the hieroglyphical writings from Cleopatra's needle, breathed life into them on strips of celluloid. We have taken the words and pictures that go to make up the publications of ink and paper and made them into a publication of lights and shadows on the screen and from day to day worked in parallel with the newspapers in informing the public of all the current events. The motion picture is just the newest, latest and most effective method of doing today what the cave man, Guttenberg and all those inventors who stand along the path between the ages of ignorance and modern enlightenment were doing. Today the motion picture is one institution of publication and its rights are as fundamental as the one of the press. Nothing but indolent neglect on the part of the people makes any censorship of the motion pictures possible. If the same people could be awakened to the significance of this movement, our fight would be a short one. The enforcement of the existing laws sufficiently covers all the points along these lines to protect the public against any possible abuse of the motion picture rights of publication.

Of course it is a deplorable and significant fact that most of the theatre managers do not realize what censorship means. To them the gains derived from day to day is all they care for, entirely overlooking the terrible harm it will gradually work to their business. Most of them do not even consider this censorship worth while a serious thought, except occasionally when it comes crossing their personal business. They believe the manufacturers ought to fight the battle unaided, and even at times appeal to their patrons to stop this meddling with their amusements. As long as they can get pictures to fill their screens, they do not worry. Now, how thorough a misapprehension this is these theatre managers will realize before very long, as even the newspapers are taking a more interested stand against this public evil, as they feel the responsibility of the situation and the peril to liberty and freedom of public expression against he infringement of hypocritical freedom.

Now, our opposition to censorship is a matter of principle. We object as American citizens, because censorship is un-American, because we have no other censorship of any kind in this country and because one industry ought to enjoy as much liberty as another. Censorship is a disgrace to our free country, the refuge of our liberty-loving ancestors who fled from this evil in the old world. We do not want censorship. We want the same liberty today as our ancestors died and fought for. But, while we want liberty, we do not want license. This same liberty has been given to the press, the stage, and for this reason we have to have the same conditions of free expression for its principle and art. What we want is regulation, not license; not censorship, but regulation. We want regulation like for the press, so that the public may be protected against vicious pictures, which may be produced and shown by leeches inclined to prey upon every great industry.

Now, censorship and regulation are two entirely different things, although this difference seems to be misunderstood by even such an enlightened body as the committee of education at Washington, before the hearing began. In fact, most everybody seems to believe that censorship is the proper [illegible]

J. W. BINDER AMUSED.

Calls Dr. Crafts's Attack the Last Stand for Censorship.

J. W. Binder, executive secretary of the Motion Picture Board of Trade, was shown the statement concerning himself issued by the Rev. Dr. Crafts, printed in The Morning Telegraph. He was asked to comment on it. Laughingly, he replied:

"The worthy doctor does me entirely too much honor. Prior to reading the article you show me, I had no idea at all that I was a personage of so much power and importance. I can, it appears, with a wave of my hand, change the whole course of affairs. A meeting is held more than a year ago in the office of the United Managers' Protective Association. A resolution is passed favoring a single censorship instead of many. A committee is appointed. This committee proceeds to Washington to inform the President, presumably awaiting its coming with palpitant anxiety, of its momentous findings. It gets as far as the office of Secretary Tumulty. Then I interpose some magical and mythical 'influence' and, behold! the committee is balked, thwarted, foiled, and the whole course of the motion picture industry, bent as it was to have Federal censorship, is turned about and changed.

"My only serious comment upon a situation which so far as the advocates of censorship are concerned, is rapidly degenerating into a farce, is this: When a cause is in such dire straits that its leader descends to personalities, its condition is pitiable."

NO SPLIT IN RANKS OVER CENSORSHIP

Arthur S. Friend Issues Statement Explaining Paramount - World Attitude on Federal Measures.

DENIES FACTIONAL FIGHT

That certain opponents of the bills now pending before the Committee on Education at Washington, D. C., seeking regulation of the motion picture industry as it applies to interstate commerce, are defeating their own ends by spreading broadcast the propaganda that there is a serious break within the ranks of the motion picture manufacturers and distributors over the bill, is the contention of some of the proponents of the regulatory measure.

It became known Friday for the first time that subsequent to the committee hearings on the Hughes bill in Washington a conference was held in New York January 22. Representatives of the many companies who held divers opinions regarding regulation of the industry were present.

Meeting of Film Men.

This was several days prior to the filing with the committee of a brief signed by William M. Seabury in behalf of the Motion Picture Board of Trade. Among those at the office of W. W. Hodkinson, president of Paramount Pictures Corporation, were J. W. Binder, executive secretary of the Motion Picture Board of Trade; William M. Seabury, counsel; Mr. Hodkinson and Raymond Pawley of Paramount; E. J. Lüdvich and Ralph A. Kohn, counsel for Famous Players Film Company, and Arthur S. Friend, counsel for Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Company.

The efforts of those authorized to speak for the Motion Picture Board of Trade to swing to their viewpoint the companies which have been known in the matter as the "Paramount group" and the World and Equitable companies, we [illegible]ttle. Various aspects of the differen[illegible]ures pending in Washington were f[illegible] discussed at this meeting and [illegible]ssues clearly outlined.

With the filing by Mr. Seabu[illegible] of the brief in behalf of the Motion Pictu[illegible] Board of Trade with the Committee on Education, however, it was made to appear to both the Congressional members and the public that there was a serious factional fight within the ranks of the industry which was responsible for the difference of opinion as to Federal regulation, according to a belief expressed yesterday.

Arthur S. Friend, general counsel for the Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Company, who has appeared frequently during the past three weeks in Washington as spokesman for the Paramount, Famous Players, Lasky, World and Equitable companies, declared the confusion of facts required, in justice to honest opinions, a clarifying statement. Mr. Friend said:

"Speaking on behalf of all of those associated with me and for whom I spoke in regard to the proposed Federal legislation looking toward regulation of the motion picture industry, I want to say that we are extremely sorry that anybody connected with the industry should have attempted to make of our refusal to accept the views set forth by the Motion Picture Board of Trade, a factional fight. As a matter of fact there is no factional fight. We have the highest regard for many of the peop[illegible]bers of [illegible]ssed be[illegible]

My 2/16

That Night in Ford's Theatre, As Recalled by W. J. Ferguson

The proximity of the birthday of Abraham Lincoln has caused a strong patriotic tide to surge in the breast of W. J. Ferguson, one of the oldest actors known to Broadway. Mr. Ferguson states that he is the only living spectator of the shooting of President Lincoln at Ford's Theatre, Washington, on the night of April 14, 1865. In that capacity he emphatically begs to differ with D. W. Griffith, producer of "The Birth of a Nation."

The basis of the argument is Mr. Griffith's claim that his version of the assassination is exact and accurate to the minutest detail, and that the stage has been reproduced board for board. The claim appeared to amuse Mr. Ferguson considerably.

"A re-maker of history," he scoffed, meaning none other than the celebrated filmist, Mr. Griffith.

Ferguson, now one of the bloody pirates in "Treasure Island," was a lad in his teens at the time, employed about the theatre as a callboy, with occasional parts in shouting scenes, now and then a dog bark and no end of tasks in the "props" line.

On the night in question, as everybody knows, Laura Keene, supported by John Dyott and Harry Hawk, appeared in "Our American Cousin," the play which E. H. Sothern revived recently as "Lord Dundreary." Cortland V. Hess, who had the part of Lieutenant Vernon, was taken sick, and Mr. Ferguson understudied.

The President occupied a right-hand box, and was so seated behind a portiere as to be invisible to the audience. Only the actors on the stage could see him. The box was twelve feet above the stage, and built over it, not over the orchestra seats.

The setting for Act II, Scene 2, had just been arranged. Mr. Ferguson was standing with Miss Keene in the left entrance to the stage. Both were looking up at the President's party, all of whom were in plain sight to them, when a muffled report sounded.

"Hang it!" cried Ferguson. "There goes that cabinet top falling again!"

But just at that moment he saw Lincoln's head sag over on his chest. A man appeared from the back of the box and vaulted the railing. As he did so Major Rathbun, who was the President's guest, seized his coattails. The man made a slash at the major's hands, missing himself, but the spur on his boot caught in the bunting which [illegible]ked the box, and he landed out of [illegible] tion, fracturing his ankle.

[illegible] half ran, half limped, across the [illegible]. He passed between Ferguson [illegible] Miss Keene, who were standing too [illegible]ruck to move, to the back door. [illegible] his little yellow mare was waiting for him, and he mounted and was [illegible]e.

"It all happened so suddenly that [illegible]o one thought of making an outcry," said Ferguson. "As soon as the murderer landed on the stage I recognized him as Booth, who was well known to all of us in the theatre. He never cried 'Sic semper tyrannis!' and he never brandished a knife, as the school histories say. He just rushed out the back way, fast as his damaged foot would allow him.

"When the audience had been cleared from the theatre Mr. Lincoln's body was carried across the street, and I rang down the curtain in Ford's Theatre for the last time. That night the soldiers took possession."

With regard to the alleged errors in the Griffith production Mr. Ferguson had this to say:

"The curtain was down at the time of the shot, so none of the actors on the stage could see it. Because of the portiere on the President's box, behind which he always sat, no one in the audience could see him. Miss Keene and I were absolutely the only ones who had him in their range of vision at the time of the deed. Yet in the film version Lincoln is in plain view of every one. Also, the film shows a guard at the door of the President's box. There was none. Further, it shows Booth climbing a direct stairway to the box. As a matter of fact, the only way to get to his box was by way of the balcony, as I have said. Just think what a dramatic picture they could have made, with Booth sneaking along the wall in plain sight of every one in the balcony!"

HE SAW LINCOLN SHOT.

Ferguson as a "Treasure Island" Pirate.

My Bibliography

[illegible]morrow's Magazine Section. You Will Enj[illegible]
[illegible]cher," the Puzzle to Psychologists. The [illegible]

[illegible]ning Tele[illegible]

[illegible]K, [illegible]URDAY, FEBRUARY 5, 1916.

2 MORE [illegible]RESTS FO[illegible] ALLEGED PLAY PIRACY

Fight [illegible]nited [illegible]nagers' [illegible]tective [illegible] Associ[illegible]on Is [illegible]ging Thro[illegible]gh Att[illegible]ney Lig[illegible] [illegible]ohnson Ag[illegible]st V[illegible]lations o[illegible] Copyright Law[illegible] [illegible]s In[illegible]ctments in [illegible]e Middle West.

PURS[illegible] PRICE DISCLOSURES

Lists [illegible]scripts and [illegible]her Details of Self-Confes[illegible] Play Pirate T[illegible] to Court Here [illegible]ednesday Is Proving of G[illegible]t Value to the Federal Investigato[illegible]

With th[illegible]rest of two mor[illegible]atrical ma[illegible]rs in the Middle We[illegible] this week the [illegible]aign the United [illegible]nagers' Prot[illegible] Association is [illegible]ng against play p[illegible]ears to [illegible]aching a head, and [illegible]closures in this field are promi[illegible] within a few days.

Upon an assurance of lenient treatment, John R. Price, self-confessed violator of the copyright laws as relating to play piracy, on Wednesday turned over his complete set of manuscripts, lists of patrons and other details that are proving of the utmost value to the Federal authorities in conducting their investigations and, although the Government agents do not admit the raids in the Middle West are the outgrowth of Price's disclosures, it is rather a striking coincidence that [illegible] of the plays for which the indictments were obtained in the West we[illegible] numbered among the list of those re[illegible]d by Price.

[illegible]d Fictitious Titles.

The [illegible]en arrested are Otis Oliver and Ed[illegible]rd Williams, of the Oliver & Wil[illegible]ms stock company. The indictment [illegible]as obtained at Springfield, Ill., although Oliver was apprehended at Danville, Ill., and his partner was taken in at Topeka, Kan. They are accused of pirating copyrighted plays under fictitious names.

This is a new phase of the matter as the majority of cases brought to the attention of the Managers' Association to date have been out and out pirating examples, even the names of the plays being stolen. By renaming the shows, however, the small touring companies are enabled to operate sometimes for months without being brought to the notice of the authorities.

Although the Oliver-Williams case is an unimportant one in itself, since it has to do with a small stock company, it will be pushed quite as vigorously as any of the others that may be brought to light, according to Ligon Johnson, attorney-in-chief for the Managers' Association. This is in line with the drastic policy decided upon by Mr. Johnson and his associates to cut out the cancer of piracy from the figurative side of the playwrighting [illegible]

MISS MUR[illegible]

"Ziegfeld Frolic" Member Who H[illegible] to Be[illegible]

ATTACKS BINDER FOR OPPOSING CENSORSH[illegible]

Rev. Dr. Crafts Circulates Through the [illegible] Charges Against Executive Secretary of Mo[illegible] Picture Board of Trade and Stephen W. Bush.

(Special Dispatch to The Morning Telegraph.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.

As part of his campaign in favor of federal censorship of motion pictures Rev. Wilber F. Crafts, superintendent of the International Reform Bureau, is circulating through the United States mails what he describes as a "free syndicate article" attacking Messrs. J. W. Binder, executive secretary of the Motion Picture Board of Trade, and Stephen W. Bush, editor of the Motion Picture World, for their stand and activity in opposition to federal film censorship.

The article, which has been brought to the attention of the House Committee on Education, is entitled "How Messrs. Binder and Bush Turned Majority of Motion Picture Producers Against Federal Censorship," is represented by Superintendent Crafts as based partly on the files of the New York Morning Telegraph and partly on alleged "inside information" furnished to the moving spirit of the International Reform Bureau. The source of this "inside information" is not given by the Rev. Dr. Crafts, but the inference conveyed by the "free syndicate article" being circulated by him is that his source of information is some "one of the motion picture leaders."

request him in behalf of the film [illegible]ers to ask Congress to establish a [illegible] Picture Commission.

Fourth—That the commit[illegible] ten no further than preliminary [illegible]ences with the President's secretary [illegible] President being absorbed in war [illegible] when a new turn of affairs was [illegible]oped under the lead of J. W. Bi[illegible]

Fifth — That "Binder then [illegible] manufacture war scares" and [illegible] to organize the Motion Picture [illegible] Trade, "which was to kill all [illegible]sorship wherever it showed its [illegible]

Sixth—That Binder "[illegible] alarming the Eastman Kodak C[illegible] which is the chief film [illegible] sufficient extent to get a bi[illegible]tion, said to be $10,000, for his [illegible] fighting machine, and the Nicholas [illegible] Company, which makes a [illegible] the motion picture machine[illegible] sponded to the 'war scare' in [illegible] fashion."

Seventh—That "quite a [illegible] producers that had voted [illegible] eral regulation were [illegible] track in short order into the [illegible] from which, however, [illegible] group and some others [illegible]

Crafts Busy [illegible]

Thus the [illegible]

ENSORSHIP FIGHT IS GROWING BITTER

Dr. Wilber F. Crafts Attacks Activities of J. W. Binder—Motion Picture Board of Trade Challenges Paramount.

HUGHES HAS NEW BILL

Five Film Censorship Measures, Original and Compromise, Now Before Congress for Consideration.

(Special Correspondence The Morning Telegraph.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.

After a month of strife over the question of Federal censorship the principals have at last been reduced to mutual recrimination and personalities. In this respect Dr. Wilber F. Crafts is the worst offender, with a denouncement of J. W. Binder and W. Stephen Bush. On the other hand, the Motion Picture Board of Trade and its affiliations in a brief submitted to the House Committee on Education attack the stand taken by the Paramount-Lasky interests, characterizing it as a "holier than thou" attitude. Dr. Crafts has also widened the scope of his campaign and comes forward as a proponent of censorship of the spoken drama.

Chairman Hughes of the House Committee on Education has prepared the draft of a new bill, and with the offering of this measure there will be five distinct motion picture measures before Congress for consideration, as follows:

First—The original Hughes-Smith bill, on which the recent hearings were based, and which has now been abandoned by its author, on the basis of defects and incongruities disclosed by opponents of the bill, and admitted by its authors during the hearing.

Second—The new Hughes bill, which proposes the same sort of censorship commission, with slightly different powers, although the word censorship is not used in the new draft.

Third—The Paramount bill drafted by Arthur S. Friend, of the Lasky Company, in conference with counsel representing the Paramount-Famous Players-World-Lasky-Equitable film combination, and which also proposes censorship by Federal commission.

Fourth—The Welfare Workers' draft of a modified Hughes bill, submitted by the Rev. Dr. Wilber F. Crafts, of the International Reform Bureau, providing for Federal commission "regulation" of motion pictures in interstate commerce and declared by the Rev. Dr. Crafts to be a measure embodying changes suggested by Messrs. Hodkinson, Lasky, Friend and others in the motion picture business, and Crafts, Chase, Barber and other welfare workers.

Fifth—The Towner bill, which is strongly urged and supported by the Motion Picture Board of Trade, and its affiliations, and is the only measure before Congress not proposing to saddle the motion picture industry with pre-publicity censorship by commission or otherwise, but which seeks to cure existing evils by amending the Federal criminal code so as to make it a criminal offense to ship an indecent film in interstate commerce.

Two Cardinal Ideas.

These five measures embrace the basic ideas of opinion behind which the agents or proponents of Federal film censorship are preparing to take their stand. In reality they represent two cardinal ideas:

1—Criminal prosecution of those who present films, after the films have been shipped, and cases proved in court, as proposed in the Towner bill.

Second—Pre-publicity censorship of films intended for interstate shipment by the Federal commission, and refusal to permit interstate shipment of all films rejected by the Federal commission, as proposed in both the original and new Hughes bills, the Paramount bill and the Crafts bill.

The original Hughes bill is now out of the equation and need not be considered. But the new Hughes bill, to be offered as a substitute, differs from the Paramount and Crafts only in detail administrative features. All three—Chairman Hughes, the Crafts group of welfare workers, and the Paramount group of censorship advocates—favor the basic idea of setting up Federal commission to issue licenses without which interstate shipments of film may not be made. These three groups have for two weeks been trying to get together on an identical bill with the same administrative features, but have failed. Indications now are that they will not get together and that while all agree on censorship, they will fall out among themselves over the manner in which the censorship is to be conducted and the scope of the commission's power.

What New Bill Provides.

The new Hughes bill provides for the creation of a Federal motion picture commission to be composed of five members appointed by the President, but whose nominations must be confirmed by the Senate. One member of the commission will be designated as chairman. The commission is to be a division of the Bureau of Education of the Department of the Interior. So far the Hughes substitute, Paramount substitute and Crafts substitute are in accord. But the Paramount substitute proposed that "the chairman and at least one other member of the commission shall be attorneys or counselors at law duly admitted to practice in the State in which he resides," while the Crafts substitute stipulates that "at least one member of the commission shall be a woman," as in Pennsylvania's board of censors. The Hughes substitute will not stipulate that one commissioner be a woman, nor will it accept the Paramount suggestion that at least two members of the commission should be "lawyers."

Section 2 of the Hughes substitute will read:

"That each commissioner shall hold office for six years, except that [illegible] commission is first constituted [illegible] missioners shall be appointed for two years, two for four, [illegible]

[illegible] considered such evidence as the applicant for review has seen fit to offer.

The Hughes substitute will also embrace the idea of the Paramount substitute to the effect that should a license be refused after review by the main commission proposed to be established in Washington, the applicant may, at any time within ninety days from such refusal, appeal from the ruling of the commission to the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia. In making this appeal a petition, verified by the applicant, would be filed with the clerk of the court, setting forth a description of the film and a complete record of the original application for a license, the action taken by the commissioner or deputy commissioner and the action taken by the commission on review.

The Hughes substitute will provide that "the commission shall license every film submitted to it and intended for entrance into interstate commerce unless such film or any part thereof is obscene, indecent, immoral, inhuman or is a reproduction of an actual bullfight or prizefight, or is of such a character that its exhibition would tend to corrupt morals or incite to crime." This is the pre-publicity censorship feature of the new Hughes bill, which measure will, however, provide that "the commission may at any time by affirmative vote of not less than two of the commissioners issue a permit for entrance into interstate commerce of any film to be submitted to it, which permit, however, may be revoked by like vote of the commission on ten days' notice to the applicant to whom the permit was originally granted. Thereupon the film may be submitted for license, as though no permit had ever been granted or revoked."

License Must Accompany Film.

The Paramount substitute provided that upon the approval of films the commission must issue licenses to the film producer or importer, and that this "license" must accompany each film shipped in interstate commerce, under heavy penalty for not having the license along. Chairman Hughes does not like this idea, and in his substitute bill he will revive the idea of having each approved film stamped with the "seal" of the commission, this "seal" to be exhibited at the end of each exhibited film. The reason for this reversion to the seal form is that if the commission's seal were not stamped on the film and the license were lost in shipment some overly ambitious agent might halt the exhibition of a film without the accompanying license, unless there were visible evidence, such as would be offered by the "seal," that the film had been inspected and approved.

Responsibility for Shipments.

The idea limiting the scope of the bill to film "producers and importers" has been abandoned. The Paramount bill provided that no "producer or importer" should ship in interstate commerce a film without a license of permit from the commission. In the Hughes substitute this has been broadend so as to provide that no "person, firm or corporation" shall carry or transport, or cause to be carried or transported, any film in interstate commerce, that the commission has not favored with a license or permit. This would make the Hughes bill applicable not only to film "producers and importers," but also to exhibitors, theatre managers, railroads and others responsible for such shipments. But this part of the bill is to contain a proviso to the effect that it shall not be construed as prohibiting the carriage or transportation by the producer of his own film for purposes other than public exhibition.

The Hughes bill, like the Paramount and Crafts substitutes, will prohibit film exhibition in the District of Columbia or any territories or places under the jurisdiction of the United States, if they have not been licensed. It would not prohibit the exhibition of such unlicensed films in the several States if such exhibition can be made without shipment of the film in interstate commerce.

Challenge Paramount.

Presenting the objections of a majority of the factors in the motion picture industry to the project for censorship as planned by the Hughes-Smith bill and the proposed substitute for it, the Motion Picture Board of Trade boldly challenges the stand taken by the Paramount Pictures Corporation and certain of its allies. The brief filed with the House Education Committee by William M. Seabury on behalf of the Motion Picture Board of Trade deals with the support by certain prominent film companies of a proposed substitute bill, in the following words:

"During the last thirty minutes of the debate before the committee the proponents proposed an entirely new bill. The abandonment of the old bill is, of course, an acknowledgment of the defeat of its dangerous and destructive provisions. Surely a substitute so radically different, so hastily prepared, must bear evidence of its immaturity, and the danger of its hasty enactment is evident.

"Moreover, since the close of the debates the amendment to Section 245 of the Federal Criminal Code proposed by the Motion Picture Board of Trade has been proposed in the House of Representatives by Judge Towner, a member of the Committee on Education. This, we submit, is all that Congress should do in this regard, and with this provision enacted into law a Federal censorship statute is wholly unnecessary.

Suggested by Film Men.

"Many of the suggestions in this new censorship bill are supposed to have emanated from the Famous Players Film Corporation, the Jesse Lasky Company, production companies which distribute their products through the Paramount Picture Corporation, which also supported the new bill; the World Film Corporation and the Equitable Film Company.

"The unexpected support of Federal censorship in any form from these companies is clearly only a shallow attempt to appear before the committee in a 'holier than thou' attitude, since these companies stand alone in their position and are opposed by every reputable concern in the industry. But the shallowness of the pretext was made manifest by the opposition of these same companies to the amendment of Section 245 of the Federal Criminal Code.

"If these exponents of censorship are really virtuous and cleanly as they would have it appear, why do they fear and oppose the rigor of a provision which makes them criminals if they send on indecent film into interstate commerce? No company represented by the Motion Picture Board of Trade fears the enactment of Section 245 of the Criminal Code as proposed to be amended.

"Only those who wish to come as near the line of obscenity and impropriety as possible without incurring liability to a heavy fine and imprisonment in the penitentiary, welcome the immunity forom Federal criminal prosecution which Federal censorship would afford.

Welcome Irregularity.

"If, in the rush and pressure of business, or after the commission has been liberally educated in the 'moral lessons' taught by some immoral plays, an improper film could be put through the Federal Censorship Commission, so much the better from the standpoint of those who paint the border line of impropriety."

In this connection considerable interest [illegible] in Congressional circles in [illegible] position of the Eastman Kodak Company, which is the chief film producer, to a sufficient extent to get a big contribution, said to be $10,000, for his proposed fighting machine, and the Nicholas Power Company, which makes a large part of the motion picture machinery also responded to the 'war scare' in a similar fashion."

Seventh—That "quite a group of the producers that had voted to ask for Federal regulation were switched off the track in short order into the new scheme from which, however, the Paramount group and some others stood aloof."

Crafts Busy for Three Years.

Thus the Rev. Mr. Crafts—in the statement which he is circulating through the mails—attacks the Motion Picture Board of Trade and its executive secretary, J. W. Binder, for daring to oppose Federal censorship of motion pictures and endeavors to create the impression that if it were not for their activities the motion picture trade would be lined up in favor of Federal censorship.

However, the syndicate article circulated by the Rev. Dr. Crafts is silent as to the propaganda that he himself has been conducting for the last three years in favor of saddling the motion picture trade with Federal censorship. The record of the censorship battle at Washington now shows that the Rev. Dr. Crafts describes as "a whole group of the better class of producers," the group of five named motion picture producing companies that have gone on record before the House Education Committee in favor of Federal censorship of films, but is engaged in making what might be fairly described as a vicious attack upon Executive Secretary J. W. Binder of the Motion Picture Board of Trade, which is opposing the enactment of such legislation.

Letter by P. A. Powers.

But the record of the case before the House Education Committee also embraces a letter written by P. A. Powers, treasurer of the Universal Film Manufacturing Company, containing this reference to the assertion of the Rev. Dr. Crafts that it was due to a public demand that the Federal Censorship Bill was introduced:

"This demand has not been observed by any one but Dr. Crafts, as, to my personal knowledge, and from the facts which I have at hand, this gentleman has been working diligently for the past three years endeavoring to have the various Congressmen and Senators receive telegrams from parties in the locations represented by the members of the committee. Copies of these requests for such telegrams and letters the writer has in his possession, and which would show clearly how Mr. Crafts has conducted his propaganda and the idea for the necessity of censorship originated in his brain and his only; but during the time that he has been working on this propaganda the men who have their money invested in this business and who have the future of the business at heart have made wonderful strides to correct any tendency there might be in the busines which might encourage criticism, and to-day I will challenge Mr. Crafts or any one interested to produce one picture which would show immorality or a tendency to incite crime."

Would Censor Drama, Too.

Film censorship is not the only thing Dr. Craft is working for in his legislative propaganda. He believes the censorship system should also be extended to the spoken drama, although he feels the latter should be a matter of local criticism rather than national, because of the aptitude actors have of changing their lines in various performances of the same piece.

The attitude of Dr. Crafts was made public in a brief filed with the House Committee on Education, in which he told the legislators the situation concerning the proposed laws for Government regulation of the motion pictures was "radically different" now from what it was when the hearings began, "because a whole group of the better class of producers have joined the churches and welfare societies in asking for Federal censorship, and have cooperated in making the bill more workable without asking the cancellation of any essential provision."

Need Local Censorship.

The portion of the highly unusual and in some respects interesting brief prepared by Dr. Crafts in behalf of his society, which directly concerns his opinions on the censorship of the drama, follows:

"Theatres need censorship, but it should be local censorship connected up with some bureau of information and warning. The film cans are as much an interstate matter as cans of beef to which the Federal Government wisely applies free 'publicity censorship.'"

This latter is an allusion to the Federal Meat Inspection law, which was never before described as a censorship proposition, and which deals not with the morals of slaughtered, but with the physical character of the resultant meat. The projected censorship bill does not seek to deal with the physical properties of films, but proposes to keep films from passing in interstate commerce on account of the moral messages they may convey, when exhibited.

According to the Crafts brief, the most important part of national preparedness is to "guard our youth, our future citizens, against the vicious influences that weaken body and mind, so that we may conserve the man behind the gun." And in declaring that from the standpoint of welfare workers the censorship bill is "one of the most important measures before Congress," the Crafts brief links it up with the prohibition issue by asserting that "even pending prohibition is not more important than furnishing a wholesome substitute for the rapidly diminishing saloons through censored motion picture halls, whose patronage we believe will be not less but far more than that of the photo-plays of to-day, which thousands have ceased to attend because never safe against insult for some foul scene."

[illegible] shall [illegible] commissioner $7,500

In Favor of Bigge

[illegible] section is identic[illegible] second section of both [illegible]ute and the Paramount [illegible]ree are agreed that the censors should be double [illegible]plated in the original Hughe[illegible] on the theory that better ce[illegible] obtained for more pay.

Section 4 of the Paramount substitute provides that the Commission "shall establish and maintain a bureau or suboffice in New York City and Los Angeles, limiting it to two suboffices." The Crafts substitute provides for suboffices in New York and Los Angeles and that the Commission "may establish other suboffices at its discretion." Chairman Hughes's substitute provides that the Commission "shall establish and maintain a bureau or suboffice in New York City and Los Angeles, and such other places as may be found necessary." It is not believed by Chairman Hughes to be wise to limit these suboffices to New York and Los Angeles, because this would throw too much work on the main office at Washington and on the New York and Los Angeles branch offices.

The Hughes substitute, like the Paramount substitute, proposes in section 5 that, "Before any film shall be submitted to the Commission or to any bureau an application shall be made in writing on a form to be provided by the Commission, which shall set forth the name of the film to be submitted, the name of the producer, the name of the party applying for the license, and the number of linear feet contained in the film, and a short statement of the subject matter thereof."

The Hughes substitute will likewise provide that should any commissioner, or any deputy to whom the Commission may delegate the duty of considering an application, refuse to license any film, the applicant may file with the Commission in Washington an application for review, and "within five days, or as soon thereafter as practicable" of such filing and submission of the film the Commission must review the same and that the granting or refusal of the license must be determined by the concurring votes of at least three of the commissioners after each of those voting shall have attended throughout the exhibition of the film and heard and co[illegible]

[illegible] censo[illegible] struc[illegible] company favored [illegible] of the kind favore[illegible] advocated by the [illegible] statement of the [illegible] leaves no doubt t[illegible] Paramount bill, and [illegible] the Towner bill, i[illegible] position taken by [illegible] other opponents of [illegible]

As a result of th[illegible] Metro company, el[illegible] advocacy of the Pa[illegible] port for the Param[illegible] to be confined—so [illegible] industry have expre[illegible] fore the House Co[illegible] panies whose legal [illegible] the statement Attor[illegible] to Chairman Hughe[illegible] mittee last Wednes[illegible] they would suppor[illegible] Hughes bill.

Crafts Atta[illegible]

As part of his c[illegible] federal censorship, [illegible] superintendent of the [illegible] Bureau, is circulating [illegible] States mails what he [illegible] syndicate article," att[illegible] Binder and W. Step[illegible] stand and activity in [illegible] film censorship.

The article, which h[illegible] the attention of the [illegible] Education, is entitled "[illegible] and Bush Turned Maj[illegible] ture. Producers Again[illegible] ship," is represented [illegible] Crafts as based partly [illegible] New York Morning Te[illegible] on alleged "inside info[illegible] to the moving spirit o[illegible] Reform Bureau. The s[illegible] information" is not giv[illegible] Crafts, but the inferenc[illegible] "free syndicate article" [illegible] him is that his source [illegible] some "one of the motion [illegible]

The allegations contai[illegible] thus circulated through [illegible] Rev. Dr. Crafts are:

First—That in its issue [illegible] the New York Morning [illegible] a story to the effect that [illegible] sided over a meeting o[illegible] picture producers held a[illegible] in New York City to hea[illegible] special committee appoin[illegible] 18, 1915, to make an inv[illegible] censorship of motion pic[illegible]

Plans Under Cons[illegible]

Second—That The Mor[illegible] published report of Marc[illegible] that "the feeling was una[illegible] should be but one sup[illegible] which the manufacturers [illegible] deal," and that "the co[illegible] thorized to proceed with [illegible] fecting the creation of a [illegible] sion composed of men of [illegible] ber," but that "just how [illegible] done has not yet been de[illegible] there are several plans u[illegible] tion."

Third—That this "comm[illegible] Washington to see Preside[illegible] request him in behalf of the [illegible] to ask Congress to establis[illegible] ture Commission.

Fourth—That the committ[illegible] no further than prelimina[illegible] with the President's secret[illegible] dent being absorbed in war [illegible] a new turn of affairs was [illegible] the Dad of J. W. Binder."

Fifth—That "Binder then [illegible] ufacture war scares" and p[illegible] ganize the Motion Pictu[illegible] Trade, "which was to kill a[illegible] worship wherever it showed [illegible]

Sixth—That Binder "succe[illegible]

N.Y. Telegraph 2/25

16

BROOKLYN HOUSES ARE ALL CROWDED

Theatrical Prosperity Has Crossed the River and the Montauk Leads the Gay Procession.

BURLESQUE BOOMS THE STAR

Gayety and Casino Have Red-Letter Attractions and New Bookings Promise Well.

D. W. Griffith's wonderful photographic spectacle, "The Birth of a Nation," begins its final eight days at the Montauk Theatre to-day. Two performances will be given daily, afternoon at 2.15 and the evening performance at 8.15. Performances will be given as on week days this Sunday, and also the final day, Sunday, February 27. Popular prices prevail.

This big spectacle has now had a run of thirty-five weeks in Brooklyn. No theatrical presentation in a decade has created the wide discussion or proved so universally popular as has this masterpiece of pictorialized drama. In New York and Brooklyn it has proved a record-breaker. No legitimate attraction or other feature produced showed the receipts that this marvelous picture has. In Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago, Pittsburg and other large cities of the country it has established new records for length of run and daily attendance. Music supplies the absence of speech for the 12,000 feet of film that depicts the thrilling romance of the Civil War and the reconstruction period of the Southland.

"Daddy Long-Legs" will be the next attraction, commencing Monday, February 28. Seats will be on sale tomorrow morning.

BRADY PROTESTS FILM CENSORSHIP

Rev. Dr. Cyrus Townsend Brady, Noted Clergyman, Submits Views to House Committee.

FEDERAL BILL NOT SOUND

Calls It "Entering Wedge Which Will Eventually Involve Country in Censorship of Everything."

(Special Correspondence The Morning Telegraph.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.

Declaring himself opposed to Federal censorship, Rev. Dr. Cyrus Townsend Brady has submitted to the House Committee on Education a paper stating his views on the subject. Dr. Brady is one of the best known Protestant Episcopal clergymen in America, and his opinion on censorship will undoubtedly carry weight. Dr. Brady is also the author of about sixty-five books, and is an authority on naval history, so that his statement to the committee is written from the dual standpoint of an author and clergyman.

Dr. Brady's statement, which promises to find strong support with a number of members of Congress, embraces a strong protest against the idea that the motion picture industry generally has been putting out immoral pictures to the public, asserts that it is not good business to put out bad pictures, characterizes the Hughes censorship bill as a measure of discrimination against the poor man for whom the motion picture is declared to be "the poor man's grand opera," and predicts that if the Federal Government once embarks on the censorship of motion pictures it will insert the "thin point of an entering wedge, which, by and by, will involve the country in a censorship of everything that attempts to appeal to humanity."

Varied Career.

The standing and reputation of Dr. Brady, both as a clergyman and an author, are bound to attract wide attention to the statement of his position to the members of Congress, who, as members of the committee to which the Hughes bill has been referred, will soon be called together by the chairman of the committee to consider the project for censorship on its merits and in the light of developments during and since the hearings were held. Dr. Brady has had a remarkably attractive career. He is a graduate of the Naval Academy at Annapolis and obtained his degree of Doctor of Laws at historic St. John's College at Annapolis. Then he spent several years in the service of the Union and Missouri Pacific railroads along the frontier. Studying theology under Bishop Worthington of Nebraska, he became rector of Episcopal churches in Missouri and Colorado, was archdeacon of Kansas until 1895, archdeacon of Pennsylvania until 1899, and has been rector of St. Paul's Church, Overbrook, Pa.; of Trinity Church at Toledo, and St. George' Church at Mount Vernon, N. Y., more recently.

When the Spanish-American War broke out he went to the front as chaplain of the First Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry. He is a member of the National Arts Club of New York, of the American Academy of Political and Social Science, of the Sons of the American Revolution, of the Military Order of Foreign Wars, of the Society of Colonial Wars, and a good all-around American. Dr. Brady is author of "For Love of the Country," "For the Freedom of the Seas," "The Island of Regeneration," "Stephen Decatur," "The Chalice of Courage," "The Corner in Coffee," "American Fights and Fighters," "The Grip of Honor," "When Blades Are Out and Love's Afield," "Border Fights and Fighters," "The Bishop," "Henry Morgan, Buccaneer," "My Lady's Slipper," "The Patriots," "The Love Test," "The Privateersman," "The Sword Hand of Napoleon," "Christmas When the West Was Young," "The True Andrew Jackson" and numerous other volumes.

Church and State.

After stating that "it will be a blow felt all over the country if you undertake to pass this bill," Dr. Brady, in his statement to the House Education Committee, asserts that "the church is back of this desire for censorship," and that it is a mistake for the church to demand the assistance of the law to enable it to do what it ought to do by "the persuasional power that dwells within it and should dwell within it."

"What is back of this desire for censorship?" inquires the statement made by Dr. Brady to the House committee. "Now this is serious, this is earnest, this is where I get in bad with everybody, more or less. What do I mean by that? If there is another thing besides the greatest amount of personal liberty consistent with the rights of man for which this country stands without regard for special privilege, it is dissociation of church and State.

"The church has never been able thoroughly and completely to free itself from the idea that it needed and must have in some way, the co-operation of the State in order that it might do its lawful and legitimate business. The church is always calling upon the State to pass laws to make men righteous, when it is the business of the church to make men righteous, and then let them pass whatever laws they will.

"There is no more pernicious tendency in American institutions than the tendency of the church as an organization to come up and demand the passage of law. What the church ought to do itself is a perversion of the old text, 'and compel them to come in,' and secular arm for the compulsion. matter of persuasion.

"If the church cannot compete ... pictures it is a sign that ... influence in the right ...

"Now, I make a challenge to the law, and say: 'I cannot get a congregation because my people have gone to the moving pictures.' I get the people. I have had amusement-organization men come to me and say, 'Won't you put the time of the church a little bit ahead of the moving pictures so that we can get an audience, and after it is over we will give you a free ticket?' That has been done many times. We all stand for morality. You cannot make men righteous by law. You can keep them out of jail or put them in jail, but you cannot make them righteous. Mr. Thomas Mott Osborne has found that you cannot make men righteous by law, but you can by exerting an influence such as he has exerted."

Protesting against the idea that immoral pictures are being put out by the trade generally to the public, Dr. Brady, in his statement to the House committee, says: "It is easy to cry down motion picture men. It is easy to cry down Congressmen, and even the ministers, but the moving picture people are just the same kind of people as you are, and in the main they are actuated by high principles, filled with as good intentions as anybody on the face of the globe. It is not good business to make bad pictures. They have a certain appeal to some people, to be sure, but it is not good business; and you will find that the picture firms that do the best business are the ones that send out decent, fair and square, amusing and uplifting pictures.

Made for Strong Men.

"Pictures are not made wholly for women and children. Some of them are made for strong men, and in that particular they are similar to the best literary works of the world. There are books which are inspiring and stimulating and interesting which you do not put into the hands of your children. If you are a wise man you do not put such books into the hands of your children, because there are many things that your child should not read with profit.

"I am in favor of censorship and argue for it. I believe that everything which makes a public appeal to humanity should be censored under certain conditions. Under certain conditions I believe the clergy should be censored. I sometimes preach sermons which would be a little better off for censure, and sometimes I get it. I know lawyers who need a good deal of censoring, and Heaven only knows how many newspaper men have published newspapers that could have been censored. It is even conceivable that some members of Congress need censoring. We are only poor, weak mortals after all, except the authors and producers of pictures. Censorship should be exercised by the people, and by the people alone. Why should any venerable grandmother allow any child to go and see a play called 'Woman and Wine'? The fact that that play was passed by the board of censorship of Ohio indicates that after all the best censorship is in the minds of the people.

"I base part of my opposition to this proposition on the fact that it is a measure that is not universal; it is a discriminating measure; it discriminates against the poor man, for the moving play is the poor man's grand opera. It is the poor man's motor car; it is the poor man's trip to Europe; it is the poor man's golf club; it is his only recreation.

Makes a Comparison.

"If you ever go to the grand opera, in the pauses or between the demands of your Congressional duties—well, I will defy you to name five grand operas the story of which could be related in plain, black English without bringing the blush of shame to the cheek of modesty.

"I am pointing to the fact that grand opera, the greatest of the Wagnerian cycle, turns on the sex problem of the most atrociously frank and sensuous character, and yet nobody censors grand opera or even dreams of such a thing.

"I never saw Salome unveil herself with the seven veils, but I have seen other people who have, and it did not seem to worry the police.

"Dancers can exhibit themselves on the stage with so little on that I hesitate to characterize what passes for a costume. One of the most sensuous of the grand operas is the one founded on the tale by Prosper Merimee, called 'Carmen.' In 'Carmen,' I am told everything is done on the stage by the very person who subsequently presents it in the moving pictures, and nobody censors 'Carmen.' Everybody goes to see it and says 'Oh, what heavenly music'; but when it comes into moving pictures, it is censored. I do not say that it ought not to be censored. I am holding no brief for it. There are undoubtedly pictures that need censorship, just as everybody else that engages the attention of the public sometimes needs censoring, but if you pass an act of this kind and appoint a board of censors you will be inserting the thin point of a wedge which, by and by, will involve the country in a censorship of everything that attempts to appeal to humanity.

Speaks for Himself.

"I am not authorized to speak for anybody, but I am quite certain that if you try to throttle this tremendous industry whose growth no man can foresee, whose appeal no man can begin to estimate in terms of possibility—if you attempt to throttle this great industry, which is trying its very best, making mistakes, of course, as we all do—your own record is not so clear and clean and free from error as to enable you to point to every incident in it with pride, although perhaps you go back and do it—who are trying earnestly and honestly to do what is right and proper—do you think they are going to stand by and see the daily press uncensored? What do you think about the daily papers? What do you do with your children in regard to the daily papers? Do you let them read everything they see there? Do you censor your papers? Do you even exercise discrimination as to what daily papers comes into your home? Do you take the one that has the pictures, the gaudiest headlines and the yellowest topics?

"The daily papers will be censored like the moving pictures, and the books will be censored, the publishers will be censored, the theatres will be censored, and we will even censor Congress and the church.

"This is a bill designed to control the amusement of the plain, common people and to let the rest go unwhipped of censorship. It is entirely unnecessary, to say the least, because the moving picture men will do it themselves. Give them a chance and let them see what can be done. This agitation is a little beyond the moving picture industry. It is just in its infancy now; the industry is just commencing.

Influence Uplifting.

"The moving pictures have already done more to elevate the standards of the people than almost any agency in this country, and I speak as a churchman having ... most profound allegiance and loyalty ... Master, and I will tell you why. It ... it out of business nearly every low-cheap, common variety show that ... to tour the country and attract the ... of the country. They cannot compete with the moving pictures any more. There are still a few left in New York and other slums of humanity from which I come, but as a rule they are passing away.

"I will tell you another thing that it has done. I have lived in many parts of this country, and a great part of my time has been spent in small communities, as a missionary and evangelist, going round from place to place—but not of the Crafts kind—a minister of my own kind doing missionary work, and I know the conditions in rural communities.

"I know the lack of amusement. I know the monotony—the life of loneliness in those communities—and it can scarcely be imagined. Of all the lots in life the lot of the farmer's wife is especially hard. This is especially true in a Western community. She cannot look forward to anything more exciting than an occasional social at the church, which is, to say the least, not very thrilling. Now, the whole world has been brought to these people, the great playwrights, the great authors, the great cities, the great manufacturing industries—a world in all its splendid effervescence of science, art, literature, genius and joy has been brought to these people.

"You can establish a board of censorship, but if you do it will blot out a lot of that, and there will be not so many films left as you think for. Men will not be able to invest in things of that kind when there is hanging over them a shadow of a board of censors who may or may not have artistic sensibilities. It will be a blow felt all over the country if you undertake to pass this bill."

CLEVELAND PLAIN DEALER

OF ...

"Birth of a Nation."

"The Birth of a Nation" is the type of picture that cause skeptics to take notice and then go again and again. The Ohio board of censors has barred this picture from Ohio because of possible race prejudice. This holding of the Ohio censors has given the ministers of Buffalo a club with which to prevent the showing of "The Birth of a Nation" in Buffalo.

That the people of Buffalo have long awaited an opportunity to see this D. W. Griffith spectacle is proved by the many letters of protest being received by the newspapers. Meanwhile, "The Birth of a Nation" is teaching American history to thousands of people in every state in the Union except Ohio.

Lansing Mich. Tribune Feb 4

PHOTOPLAY IS ALL "O. K." SAYS BOARD OF CENSORS

Lansing's movie censors can't see anything the matter with "The Birth of a Nation." The portion of the film which is generally objected to was run off before a choice party yesterday consisting of the board of police and fire commissioners reinforced by City Attorney Joseph H. Dunnebacke and H. ... Kinney, who represented a committee. The verdict of the board was "O. K."

Representatives of the Civic league were not admitted to present their arguments before the board after the film was shown however.

"There is nothing against it," said James ... groes in the film," said James ... ey, president of the board of police and fire commissioners, last night.

"The play strikes the white ... and the carpet-baggers who ... negroes whiskey. The real villain is a white man."

The picture play was not cut at all and will be run exactly as shown.

All the members of the board of police and fire commissioners, with the exception of J. P. Edmonds, who was out of town, were present and were practically unanimous in their approval of the film as shown.

Feb 6

Critics Who Have Fa... Under Shubert Bo...

WOOLLCOTT, EATON, POLLOCK AND WOLF AMONG VICTIMS.

Interesting Instances of Advertising Bludgeon Over Heads of Editors in New York, Chicago, Boston—How the Bludgeon Has Been Found To Be a Boomerang.

By SAMUEL HOPKINS ADAMS.

"During all this period that this man has been writing ... about our plays and of the plays that were produced at our ... New York Times received on an average of from $600 to $700 ... advertising the very plays which this man condemned. We paid ... on an average of $35,000 a year."—From an affidavit by Lee ...

Between the lines of the passage quoted above may be ... gist and essence of the theory of dramatic criticism as conceived ... Shubert brothers, Lee and Jake: that newspaper opinion is ... advertising rates. With varying success they have practiced ... press of America, in cities where they control theatres and ... tising. The theory may be paraphrased as follows: "We pay ... so much per year to advertise our productions. Hence that ... its dramatic and news columns is bound to publish only what ... Otherwise we don't get our money's worth." In other words ... does not represent value received in advertising, but is paid ... pose of suborning what is supposed to be free and independent ... reviewing published for the benefit and information of the ... you have the Shubertian dogma of super-criticism. To what ... indignity it reduces the newspapers accepting it, is sufficiently ...

The "this man" of Lee Shubert's affidavit quoted above ... Woollcott, dramatic critic of The New York Times, at present ... many months exiled from all Shubert theatres for the crime ... honest opinion of Shubert performances. As the attempt ... the Times into handing over its dramatic columns to the Shuberts ... and Jake, is the most important of their many assertions ... and as its determination is likely to settle, once and for all, ... of independent dramatic criticism in America, the principle ... controversy have a special interest.

Almost immediately upon Mr. Woollcott's appointment ... matic department of the Times the Shuberts began to ... being "unfair." That is, he did not invariably enthuse over ... ductions. In fact, he evinced a regrettable independence in ... advertisers paying "on an average of $35,000 a year."

The trouble culminated in Mr. Woollcott's review of "Taking ... which opened at the Thirty-ninth Street Theatre last March. ... opinion as expressed in his Times review, while not complimentary ... production, could hardly be attributed to "malice, prejudice and ... the amiable motives ascribed by the Shuberts to Mr. Woollcott ... —since the worst said of the farce was that it was "not vulgar" ... that the plot was "quite absurd," that the second act was "tedious," and that the play in general was "a bed-room farce" ... persion upon their delicacy, however, rent the sensitive souls ... Jake, and they came out with an advertisement warning the public ... the notices, since "some of the critics, lacking in humor, may ... you believe that somewhere there is something just a little bit ... in 'Taking Chances.'" Having thus rushed to the defence of ... in print, they proceeded to get after Mr. Woollcott. A fine ... sentative informed him, semi-officially, that he was to be ... for the next Shubert opening were sent to the managing ... Times, with the proviso that they were not to be presented ... Woollcott.

Had they raked the New York newspaper offices with fine ... Shuberts could hardly have found a less promising subject ... periment in super-criticism than Mr. Carr C. Van Anda, managing ... of the Times. Mr. Van Anda holds to the old-fashioned ... newspaper should be edited by the editors, and not by the advertisers ... wasted no time on explanations to Lee and Jake—possibly ... they wouldn't understand, even with a diagram. He just sent ... tickets.

Rumors flew along Broadway next day that the Times ... the Shuberts and the Shuberts were going to "get even" with ... by the usual method of cutting out their advertising. If that ... intent they made a tactical error in pausing to consider, and ... their chance; for when, ten days later, Mr. Woollcott, having ... tickets to the Maxine Elliott Theatre, was denied admittance ... management presented the Shuberts with a second shock by ... line of Shubert advertising out of the paper. Mr. Woollcott ... suit to secure the right to enter Shubert theatres on ... Decision in this suit is still pending. In the court proceedings, ... some curious self-revelations of Lee Shubert as a Super-Critic ... nished in his sworn statements in that case. Concerning ... practice of dramatic criticism he has this to say, apropos of ... comment upon "Suzi," which he cites as exemplifying "the ... actuated every utterance which this plaintiff (Mr. Woollcott) ...

"I submit that it is not criticism to say 'Further discussion ... piece is absolutely useless.' If the man is a critic at all he ... public what its deficiencies are and not disgust the public ... play by simply saying that discussion of it is absolutely useless ...

Actually, what the Times—not Mr. Woollcott, for he ... this review at all—said of "Suzi," in addition to the sentence ... was this:

"Suzi is just hopeless Casino musical comedy, has stuff ... very little music."

Now, if that is not criticism then a new definition of ... sorely needed. Criticism of the Shubert species it evidently ... certainly fulfils one Shubert requirement. It tells the public ... play's deficiencies are in unmistakable terms. But let us ... the Super-Critic, deeper into definition.

"So, too, I say, it is not criticism for him to say, as he ... Daisy,' produced at the Shubert Theatre, 'Has a poor book,' ... other things quoted above. They are not criticism of its ... are not criticism of the acting. They are not criticism of ... They are just the utterances of a man actuated completely ... prejudice and hatred."

Another unfortunate citation, since Mr. Woollcott had ... criticism of "Miss Daisy." Aside from that, if the book ... production is not its theme, what is? Possibly the costuming ... judge from certain Shubert productions. But the most significant ... of the excerpt above is the "malice, prejudice and hatred" ... is so characteristic of the Shubert mind that it seems almost ... a delusion of persecution, as the alienists term it: this ... criticism of a Shubert play must of necessity arise not from ... belief of the reviewer, but from some mean, unworthy ... feeling against Lee and Jake personally. It crops out from ... affidavit, where he swears that either prior to his appointment ... matic critic of the Times, or immediately thereafter, ... "conceived a personal grudge or grievance against this ... or against his brother, Jacob J. Shubert, or against the ... cal Company, or Sam S. & Lee Shubert, Incorporated, or ... probably all of them"—or, as one might go on indefinitely ... Hoboken Ferry, or the Tropic of Cancer, or the binomial ... which Mr. Woollcott replied ... certainly has ...

... York. ... has shown his bitter feeling and ... mistake and has uniformly written scathing ... productions made by the defendants and ... of the ... productions made by the defendants and ... of the ... Mark that "uniformly." In their own advertising ... highly favorable extracts from the Times which ... Woollcott by name, concerning no less than five of ... quoting from him, without using his name, in ... Therefore, either the Shuberts must have garbled ... Lee practice well within the elastic range of their ... They could not have read their own advertisements ... There is a third alternative, but I do not impute ... Since it is perjury, against which a plea of poor ... defence. And, by the way, out of the sixteen ... Shuberts as evidence of unfair and prejudiced ... As a final touch of self-revelation, Lee Shubert ... graceful act of hiding behind the skirts of ... he pleads as justification for excluding the Times ... Terry wouldn't have gone on the stage in ... Mr. Woollcott was going to be present, so "terrified ... over his criticism of her in a former play. ... attack upon Miss Terry." What is this "attack" ... and ferocious portions of it which Shubert ... follows: "The most important role fall to ... She is not richly endowed with ... Terry's work is mechanical. ... she is not happy." On the theory that this ... witness, what word would Lee, the Super-Critic ... review? "Murder" maybe. And if stagey ... and stricken into the wings by such a ... then truly a reign of terror is ... Mr. Woollcott is still excluded from the ... Advertising is still excluded from the ... the dispute, a reference by Walter P. ... brought him into the super-critical ... Mr. Eaton took occasion to defend Mr. ... range of proper dramatic reviewing. ... table paper that he had been taboo ... Eaton communicated with A. Toxen ... Eaton communicated it were true. Without ...

were lowered, and he was admitted to the sacred precincts of super-criticism.

Less fortunate was Channing Pollock, the playwright, who also writes dramatic criticisms for various publications. Although he had been a Shubert employe, and had parted from the Shuberts on the best of terms (Jake presented to him, with a tearfully emotional speech of gratitude, a valuable gold and jewelled match box, which upon speech of gratitude, a a thin plate with paste sparklers), Mr. Pollock did not [illegible] to be of Shubert plays with the same frankness which he employed towards productions. Presently his supply of complimentary tickets to Shubert "first nights" was cut off. As his contributions are mainly to magazines, first-night tickets are not necessary to him, as he bought his own seats. All went well until he attended a performance of "Fanny's First Play" at the Comedy Theatre, as a guest of Gilbert Miller, the son of Henry Miller. As soon as he stepped into line at the entrance Mr. Pollock was greeted by Harry Hyams, manager of the theatre, who attempted to draw him out of line. Mr. Pollock jerked himself free.

Hyams then informed him that he could not enter the theatre.

"Why?" asked Mr. Pollock. "I have received no such notice. I am another man's guest and intend to see the play."

"Orders," replied Hyams. "You can't get in."

Mr. Pollock, however, stayed resolutely in line, but as he was about to hand his pasteboard to the ticket taker, Hyams ordered the latter to shut the door. The subordinate did so, slamming it upon the critic's foot. Mr. Pollock then jerked the door open in spite of the ticket taker, and as the play had begun took the first vacant seat.

Mr. Miller meantime, who was farther back in the line, had the door slammed in his face, jerked it open also and took the first vacant seat. During the intermission both found their places, bought and paid for, and took possession of them. After they were seated, John Sheehan, an executive employe of the Shuberts, attempted to beguile Mr. Pollock out between the acts, and, failing in this ruse, asked that the critic write headquarters next day that Hyams was not responsible for failure to execute the ban, which he did. Hyams was discharged that week from the Shubert payrolls.

Thereafter Mr. Pollock had others purchase his tickets whenever he wished to review a Shubert production, disguised himself, sat in the gallery, and used other means of escaping detection because of the unpleasant scenes that might have arisen if recognized. He still has others purchase his tickets for Shubert shows, but has experienced no inconvenience recently when entering their theatres.

Coincidence might possibly be invoked to explain the singular case of the Staats-Zeitung. In the review of the Winter Garden performance, last winter, the German daily deplored the absence of Germany from the parade of the nations in the finale of one act, and suggested that this was hardly in the spirit of neutrality to be expected from a public playhouse. Stirred to their souls' depths, the Shuberts sent out notices that the German costumes had been delayed, but that this feature would appear as soon as possible. Whether, as further testimony to their souls' agonies, or only by a curious chance, their advertisements disappeared from the columns of the Staats-Zeitung shortly, and, it is said, Mr. A. Toxen Worm, the press agent, turned upon the offending critic to the extent of cutting him off from the complimentary ticket list. Since then Mr. Wilstach, who is credited with being an able diplomat and composer of difficulties, has taken over the press agency activities of the Shuberts; tickets again go to the Staats-Zeitung, the Shubert advertisements again bloom in its columns, and the newspaper staff manifests a wise and proper reticence concerning the whole regrettable incident—or, shall we say?—co-incident.

The Shubert sensitiveness is not confined to criticism of their productions alone. To the dogma of super-criticism they undertake to add the principle of lèse-majesté. Some years ago Percy Hammond, then the dramatic critic of the Chicago Evening Post, suggested in a casual paragraph that, as the Shuberts were given to naming theatres after themselves or their associates, they christen their new theatre "The Onion," in honor of Jake. Thereupon the Shuberts put Mr. Hammond on the unfriendly list, and notified the Post that he would not be admitted to their theatres. Only for a short time was the decree enforced, and it might have been forgotten forever had not the critic of the now defunct Chicago Inter-Ocean suggested (with credit to Percy Hammond) that "The Orchid," a Shubert production, might more appropriately be named "The Onion." Of course, the Shuberts wrote to the Inter-Ocean, advising that some other critic be sent to their theatres. They received a letter of counter-advice from George Hinman, owner of the Inter-Ocean, counselling them to stick to the drama and leave the management of his newspaper where it belonged. The circumstance opened the old wound, however, and Mr. Hammond was again shut out, until he went over to the Chicago Tribune, in charge of its dramatic department.

Now, everybody in Chicago knows that it is more comfortable and salubrious to sit on a thistle and eat lighted matches than to tell the Chicago Tribune what not to do. But what is common knowledge to all the rest of mankind may yet be alien to the Shuberts. After a short respite they began to get discontented with the Tribune reviews, and said so. In fact, A. Toxen Worm went all the way to Chicago to say so, and when, on top of his arrival, Percy Hammond violated the rules of super-criticism by reviewing unfavorably a Shubert play, Mr. Worm took it up with James Keeley, then the publisher. He got so little satisfaction that, upon his departure, the Chicago office of the Shuberts called up Mr. Keeley and uttered dark hints about withdrawal of advertising.

"You needn't bother," said Mr. Keeley. "I'll fix it."

He fixed it by ordering all Shubert advertising out of the Tribune from that day. Subsequently the Shuberts got back into the paper, but not by any triumphal route.

Having three theatres in Boston, the Shuberts reasoned that their advertising bulked large enough to give them control of the newspaper columns in that city. Possibly they had made the essay before and found it practicable; these are secrets of journalism which do not come to light. In selecting the Boston Traveler as a suitable subject for bullying, however, the Super-Critics exhibited poor judgment. The occasion was Miss Salita Solano's review of "Just a Woman," presented at the Wilbur Theatre. To the average reader Miss Solano's observations would not appear to fall under the Shubert ban as being "actuated completely by malice, prejudice and hatred," though they were undoubtedly "unfair" in the Shubertian sense of being unfavorable.

"It is rumored," ran the Boston Traveler review, on December 14 last, "that Eugene Walter rewrote 'Just a Woman' three times, giving it a new title for luck at the end of each period of labor. After seeing the performance last evening at the Wilbur Theatre we would suggest that Mr. Walter go into seclusion with his play for a fourth time—or, better still, abandon it altogether."

Then followed a column of analysis of the plot and the acting, wherein the critic specified the grounds of her criticism. That she was not alone in her views is proven by the withdrawal of the play within three weeks. This was preceded by another Shubert withdrawal, the withdrawal of the advertising of all three Shubert theatres on the day following the publication of the "Just a Woman" criticism. No pictures of press matter were sent from these theatres for the customary Saturday theatrical page. From the Shubert representatives it was learned that the cause was Miss Solano's offending review. When, on the following Monday, a new production appeared at the Shubert Theatre no tickets were sent to the dramatic critic of the Traveler. As that paper considers a new play as news, interesting to its public, tickets were purchased and the play reviewed without reference to the incident. So matters went on for three weeks, the Shubert people evincing a total unconsciousness of the existence of the Traveler. At the end of that period a representative of the advertising department of the newspaper dropped in for a friendly talk with the local Shubert manager. The manager's edict was curt and decisive: Fire Miss Solano, or no Shubert advertising.

Now, a few years ago this sort of bludgeoning "went" with Boston newspapers, and there are still papers in that city, such as the Post, the Globe and the American, which habitually find anything unfavorable to an advertiser, and particularly a theatrical advertiser, too painful for utterance. On the other hand, the Traveler and the Herald (under the same ownership) have established their independence, as have also the Transcript and the Christian Science Monitor. Indeed, the Shubert man should have known that he was on dangerous ground, from a previous highly unsuccessful attempt to bludgeon the Herald for an unfavorable review of "The Road to Happiness" by Philip Hale. The Bourbon spirit, however, seeps down from the Shuberts to their employes; the spirit of which it is said that it forgets nothing and learns nothing.

The Traveler representative promptly replied that the paper could conduct its dramatic department without aid, assistance or interference from the Shuberts.

[illegible] said (paraphrasing [illegible]) that his organization was [illegible] discrimination, that the discretion for [illegible] Solano) must go, or the Shubert advertising would remain out.

The Traveler man said that, speaking for his superiors, there was no prejudice against the Shuberts or their shows in his office, but that there was a distaste for dictation by an advertiser, and that if the Shubert theatres were determined to withhold their advertising from the Traveler it would be well to consider the effect of its being evicted from the Traveler's associate publication, the Morning Herald and the Sunday Herald.

[illegible] upon the Shubert disciple saw a great light. In New York, with [illegible] against one newspaper, the odds were with the Shuberts. [illegible], with three theatres against three newspapers, it looked different. [illegible] advertising reappeared in the Traveler on the following day. [illegible] have had a wider and more varied experience with [illegible] than the Morning Telegraph, which prints more dramatic [illegible] any other daily in New York. For a time, some years ago, [illegible] largely Shubert press agent output. When the Telegraph [illegible] William E. Lewis of the Lewis Publishing Company [illegible] Shubert [illegible] in other theatres [illegible] Lee & Shubert were stockholders in the [illegible] Telegraph Company. [illegible] were adjusted and [illegible] to the Morning Telegraph. Not long [illegible] Mr. Lewis's office with a [illegible] mental process [illegible] in the Morning Telegraph that are [illegible] are written by members of the [illegible] Shuberts.

Feb 6

implied that paragraphs written about his productions were unfair and showed a hostile attitude.

"Will you treat me as you do all other theatre managers?" he finally asked Mr. Lewis, editor of the Telegraph.

"I shall do in the future as in the past," answered Mr. Lewis. "You will get the squarest deal you are entitled to, as do all the others."

"I will order my advertising back in the paper," said Lee Shubert.

"Never mind about the advertising," returned Mr. Lewis; "wait until you cool off. You may not think the Morning Telegraph treats you fairly, and may get into your head again that I am unfriendly. Don't put your advertisements in the Morning Telegraph until you are quite sure you wish to do so."

An agency sent Shubert advertising to the newspaper that midnight.

Everything was peaceful for several weeks following; performances, including those of Messrs. Shubert, were reviewed or reported, their advertising appeared daily in meagre quantities and a fair amount of Shubert publicity boosts, fresh from their press agents, was published.

This calm did not continue indefinitely, however, for Rennold Wolf, the Telegraph's dramatic critic, and other writers were constrained to tell the truth about some of the Shubert productions. Protests from the Shubert publicity and advertising departments were received, and finally the Shuberts requested that Mr. Wolf be discharged.

This was not the first time they had demanded Mr. Wolf's discharge. He had reported their productions conscientiously during these several years, had told Morning Telegraph readers his estimates of them, which in every case could not be complimentary because of the unsavory flavor which tainted many of their pieces, and during every passage at arms between this newspaper and Messrs. Shubert, Mr. Wolf's dismissal was demanded.

About this time the Shubert publicity manager sent in a two-column story for publication attacking other managers, in particular Henry W. Savage. The article was rejected, and it was explained that the franchise to advertise carried no right to attack competing managers. The Shuberts, through the ever active and adroit A. Toxen Worm, insisted that this story be printed, and intimated that their advertising again would be withdrawn. Thereupon Mr. Lewis rejected the daily advertising list of Shubert theatres, as well as the article.

As a matter of business such action on the part of newspaper publishers cannot be comprehended by the Shuberts, it seems, as money to them appears to be everything, completely overshadowing such incidentals as art, fair play and honor.

Later it was decreed by the Shuberts that no employe of the Morning Telegraph attend any of their theatres and that no advertising be placed in Mr. Lewis's newspaper. Possibly to avoid prosecution for premeditated discrimination the wording of their subsequent contracts was changed to read, in effect, that no advertising of attractions be placed in any newspaper without the consent of the managers.

The Shubertian practice of disciplining the newspapers by the withdrawal of advertising as punishment for unfavorable reviews may be safely left to the newspapers. There are enough daily and weekly publications with courage and sound professional standards to fight that battle to a victorious finish. Of far more vital importance is the other principle of Shubert super-criticism, the right to exclude from a public theatre any writer whose opinions are not servile to the immediate interest of the theatre management.

If that contention can be established and enforced it will mean the emasculation of dramatic criticism in America. No matter how offensive, indecent or vile a play may be, the public will have no general warning of its character. On the other hand, a good play will enjoy no advantage over a bad play, since all will be unqualifiedly praised and commended, according to the edict of the managers. The newspapers will become merely the paid claqueurs of the men who control stage productions. What our theatres may degenerate into with the Super-Critic in control, the critic writing to his dictation, and the honest reviewer barred at the door, is a prospect to stagger the boldest optimism.

SCENE FROM "THE BIRTH OF A NATION"

BIRTH OF A NATION' WINS PRAISE OF MANY MAYORS

Executives in Other Cities Wire to Mayor Meals That the Great Film Production Has Resulted in No Race Troubles

In making his decision to not interfere with the presentation of "The Birth of a Nation" at the Orpheum Theatre during the week of February 14, Mayor Meals was guided very largely by the recommendation given the picture by a number of Harrisburgers who witnessed it in other cities, and also by the unanimous verdict of the mayors and councilmen of other Pennsylvania cities expressed in telegrams sent to Mayor Meals.

When opposition to this play developed, Mayor Meals proceeded to a careful investigation of the experiences in other cities where this picture had been shown, with the result that a deluge of telegrams came from all directions from mayors and other city officials who had witnessed "The Birth of a Nation" in their own cities, and found that, while the opposition to this great spectacle was undoubtedly founded on sincerity, there was really no reason for any fear of trouble or racial prejudice resulting from its presentation.

The Mayor of Reading, where the play was shown to crowded houses during the entire present week, had remonstrances filed with him similar to those that were filed in Harrisburg, but after investigation, he permitted the play to be given. On Monday night, after its opening in Reading, he telegraphed to Mayor Meals that "The Birth of a Nation" had opened its engagement without any trouble, and that after seeing it, he considered that it would have been an injustice to the people of his city to have prevented it from being shown. He characterized it as a great work of art, and his opinion was substantiated in a list of 50 telegrams from other places. Among these telegrams were the following:

New Castle, Pa., Feb. 3, 1916.

Hon. Mayor,
Harrisburg, Pa.:

"Birth of a Nation" played here Nov. 18 and 20, and caused no racial feeling or disturbance whatever and no cause for any. Our opinion very educational.

Mayor A. H. NEWELL,
Chief M. L. YOUNG.

Lebanon, Pa., Jan. 31, 1916.

Mayor Meals,
Harrisburg, Pa.:

Understand war play, "Birth of a Nation." Permit me to say that "The Birth of a Nation" played Lebanon and stirred up no racial feeling or prejudice or any other disturbance. Can say was one of the best pictures ever played Lebanon. Will be a treat for the people of Harrisburg to see it.

G. P. SPANG, Mayor.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Feb. 3, 1916.

Mayor of Harrisburg,
Harrisburg, Pa.:

"The Birth of a Nation" is now playing its second engagement in Wilkes-Barre inside of two months. I consider it the greatest exhibition I ever witnessed. It created no racial feelings of any kind and a large number of negroes visited the theatre and witnessed the performance.

JOSEPH G. SHULER,
City Commissioner.

Shamokin, Pa., Jan. 31, 1916.

Mayor of Harrisburg,
Harrisburg, Pa.:

I have seen "The Birth of a Nation" and think it is the finest wonderful moving picture ever made. Everybody should see it and hope the manager of the Opera House, Mr. Quirk, gets a return date. Don't let your people miss seeing it.

J. IRVIN STEEL,
Editor Daily Herald.

Reading, Pa., Jan. 31, 1916.

E. S. Meals,
Mayor of Harrisburg, Pa.:

"The Birth of a Nation" was presented here this evening and delighted a large audience. It would seem to us that had we stopped the performance it would have been an injustice to our fellow citizens as it would have deprived them of the opportunity of witnessing a spectacle that is being shown throughout the United States. We consider it a play of great inspiration and educational interest and one that should not cause any racial prejudice or feeling nor be objectionable.

EDW. H. FILBERT,
Mayor.
WILSON S. ROTHERMEL,
District Attorney.

Easton, Pa., Jan. 31, 1916.

Mayor Meals,
Harrisburg, Pa.:

"The Birth of a Nation" was satisfactory to our people and caused no racial prejudices.

D. W. NEVIN,
Mayor.

Shamokin, Pa., Jan. 31, 1916.

Mayor of Harrisburg,
Harrisburg, Pa.:

"The Birth of a Nation" caused only favorable comment here. There are black heroes as well as white heroes, and white villains as well as black villains. It attacks not the negro race but the corrupt and scheming politician who seeks to use the ignorance and cruelty in men. Every good citizen ought to see it and learn its lesson.

MAYOR DRUMHEISER.

Hazleton, Pa., Jan. 31, 1916.

Mayor,
City of Harrisburg, Pa.:

There was absolutely no trouble here with presentation of "The Birth of a Nation." People of all classes regarded it as one of the season's best attractions. Thousands anxious for return date.

J. W. KRAFT,
Managing Editor of the Plain Speaker, Associated Press correspondent.

Hon. E. S. Meals,
Mayor, Harrisburg, Pa.:

This is to certify that I have witnessed the production of "The Birth of a Nation" in the city of Lebanon and regard it as one of the finest and most instructive productions I have witnessed. The public in general were grateful to Manager Spang in securing such an excellent entertainment which was attested to by the largest houses ever given any company in this city and are eager for its return in the near future.

Very truly yours,
JAMES E. FISHER,
Supt. Park and Public Property.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Feb. 1, 1916.

The Mayor of Harrisburg,
Harrisburg, Pa.:

I witnessed the performance of "The Birth of a Nation" on its previous engagement and consider it the greatest exhibition ever seen in Wilkes-Barre. The performance has created no racial feeling in any form and is this week playing a return engagement.

JOHN V. KOSEK,
Mayor City of Wilkes-Barre.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Feb. 1, 1916.

Mayor,
Harrisburg, Pa.:

My Dear Sir—The Birth of a Nation was shown here in December and no racial feeling exhibited. Nearly every one in the community attended. It has returned for the present week. The attendance last night was large. I have seen it and regard it as an [illegible] treat.

FRED H. [illegible]
City [illegible]

Lebanon, Pa., Feb. [illegible]

Mayor E. S. Meals,
Harrisburg, Pa.:

Mrs. Krause and I attended the production of "The Birth of a Nation" at the Academy of Music in this city Tuesday evening and thoroughly enjoyed the presentation of this marvelous series of pictures. I see no objectionable in the entire production as it seems to me, from my knowledge of history, that it is a truthful depiction of those stirring days [illegible] the Civil War and the period following, and this Nation play should be one of the greatest educators of the present day young and old.

GEORGE F. KRAUSE,
Supt. Streets and Public Improvements.

Hazleton, Pa., Jan. 31, 1916.

Mayor,
Harrisburg, Pa.:

Seen "The Birth of a Nation" in Hazleton. Thought it very instructive. Could see no cause for disturbance.

ALBERT H. JACOBS,
Deputy Sheriff Luzerne Co.

"The Birth of a Nation" will be presented at the Orpheum Theatre twice daily during the entire week beginning Monday, February 14. The spectacle will be presented here just as it was in the larger cities, with special music by a big orchestra, and the proper effects worked with the play. If the Harrisburg engagement of this attraction comes up to the standard that has been set in other Pennsylvania cities, the Orpheum will probably have a record-breaking week. "The Birth of a Nation" attracts crowds from distant points much the same as "Ben Hur" did in its earlier days.

The prices to be charged for "The Birth of a Nation" at the Orpheum will be the same as for other first-class attractions, ranging from 25 cents to $2.00. The seat sale will open on Tuesday of next week. Mail orders, accompanied by remittances, may be sent in at any time, and they will be filled at the opening of the sale. Telephone orders will be taken until the sale opens, and all seats ordered in this way will have to be paid for before the date of the performance for which they are purchased. The theatre management evidences that this is the only arrangement possible when crowds of the expected proportions are to be handled.

"The Birth of a Nation" will start at 2 and 8 p. m. sharp, and it is earnestly requested that patrons be in their seats prior to the beginning of the show.—Adv.

eep Wrong Things Out of the "Movies"

Glimpse Is Shown of the National Board of Censorship at Work; Some Curious Comments and Opinions Ventured HAT second kiss was a little too much, don't you think?" said the matronly looking member of the n picture censoring committee, usly regarding her fellow censors. trim little woman next to her d vigorously.

," she agreed. "For an innocent girl of twelve it didn't look exact- thing."

the young woman with bright s who sat in the end chair at the ring committee's meeting couldn't t in her heart to condemn that sec- iss.

an't see a thing wrong about it," emarked, turning wondering blue on her companions.

so the second kiss stayed in. Oth- the public would have had to the new "movie" which was on before the censoring committee one of its most thrilling moments d to a minimum.

trial of this particular "movie" milar to that undergone by almost motion picture film manufactured United States before it is sent out exhibited. There are 225 members national board of censorship, who vided into committees of from four elve. Before one or another of committees all motion pictures are ed, the object being to free them objectionable features before they own publicly.

not an easy task. To begin with, tional board of censorship doesn't for depotism. It is a strictly re- n institution, its intention being a consensus of good opinion on eral impressions likely to be gath- rom a picture by an average audi- To be sufficiently broad minded ognize the need for catering to different tastes and yet to keep e eye on the films so that nothing is damaging is left in, is the goal the board sets itself.

Admit Occasional Mistakes.

etimes we fail," admitted one of mbers. "Sometimes we let films that might better have been d. At other times we let things that we would like to see out, can't for the life of us find a reason for our feeling. But on ole our work has certainly proved ctive. In the six years that we een looking over the pictures I e can fairly say that tremendous ement has been made in the gen- aracter of the films sent out and details as well. We are working blic good and to give motion pic- akers the benefit of representa- ublic opinion, so that their pic- will contain nothing that will bad moral impression on an e audience."

eally looked to me as if she were him on," said the matronly cen- mly, breaking in on the discus-mind still lingered on the motion film in which the innocent 12- d had figured as a heroine.

age was not stated," she con- "but when the scene opened and s playing on the floor with the kin rug she certainly couldn't en a day over twelve, while in next scene she was gowned like ante and appearing at a grown- e and it was then that she him twice, only a few minutes e thought the tiger skin rug was live animal. Really it doesn't tural."

ever, my dear," warned the cen- the next chair, "you know we ere to say whether the pictures ural or not. All that we have to say whether or not they are that's different."

was one man in attendance on ticular committee and at this he entered the discussion. f course she was gringing him he remarked coolly.

e Men Always Suspicious?

nder if that's what the men al- ink?" gasped the young woman cheeks. "Why, I didn't think stringing him along at all. I she was an innocent child. She o beautiful when she was play- the tiger skin rug."

would imagine," said the one mestly, "that a little girl who mbol so beautifully was a mar- man, and yet they tell me that g actress who did that part real-nder why it is," asked the young with the red cheeks, "that who play children's parts are o much more childish than chil- ometimes real children don't ldish at all; they are often stern ical, and they never seem to believe in tiger skin rugs being real after they are two years old."

The matron who had condemned the second kiss bent forward and fixed a penetrating eye on the one man.

"And so you think she was stringing him along?" she demanded significantly; "and you are a man. You ought to know about such things."

"Not that that sort of thing would ever appeal to me," the one man hastened to say. "Never! But then I was thinking how the public would take it; personally, I should never be in the least attracted by an imitation child whose dark curls were so obviously pinned on in bunches."

The picture flashed on and flashed out. The committee filled up its ballots with painstaking marks of approval or otherwise, and from an anteroom a mysterious voice announced:

"'Ariadne,' a three-real picture by the Call and Curtain Company."

All the members of the committee hastily prepared their fresh ballots in order to deal with "Ariadne" as soon as she should be flashed on.

She came. She was really beautiful. Moreover she was classic. Her draperies, though Greek, were modest; her poses were charming. A delicate little mythological story was capably presented by her and her fellow artists.

"Really charming!" whispered the earnest matron, while the red-cheeked girl forgot she was a censor and sat forward eagerly watching the flying pictures. The one man also forgot his professional attitude in his enjoyment of the picture, and three other members of the committee poised their pencils eagerly prepared to mark on their ballots: Education value, excellent; art and skill of production, excellent; entertainment, excellent; moral effect, excellent—as soon as the end should come.

And Then the Art Poses.

But alas for human credulity; that wasn't all.

When the graceful and discreet Ariadne had played her part and vanished from the screen the picture kept right on going.

The alarming heading "Art Poses" appeared on the curtain.

The committee groaned. They had seen art poses before.

"I wonder if she will be as fat as the last art poser?" whispered a slender censor near the door.

She was. No previous siren of the screen could have outweighed her. She was not the first Ariadne of the picture at all, but a person much less lovely, much less graceful and much less discreet.

"Dragged in by the hair," moaned the comfortable matron. "Why will they do it?"

The committee waited ominously. When the picture was finished, after showing Ariadne from the Louvre, Ariadne from the British Museum, a particularly horrible sight; Ariadne from the Dresden art gallery, and, most terrible of all, Ariadne from the modern Munich school of art, the film concluded with Ariadne on the firing line.

The committee united pursed its lips and said as seven women and one man:

"Cut out the nude poses at the end, which have nothing to do with the picture anyhow and do not belong to the plot, and are just dragged in very obviously to cater to morbid taste, and the picture will go."

It sees a simple enough verdict, for, since the film is on trial, no great amount of money is lost in changing it, especially by the simple manner of curtailment indicated. Nevertheless the exhibitor present, who wanted to sign up for Ariadne, groaned heavily.

"Why," he lamented, "the poses at the end are just what we wanted the picture for—don't you know it? We could get great posters out of that stuff at the end for putting outside the theaters. We need that stuff."

A Ban on Nude Poses.

The committee looked at him accusingly. "Of course we saw why you wanted it," they assured him, "but it's what you must have. It is exactly that sort of thing which must be cut out. There isn't any reason for those poses and it is a very pretty story, beautifully put on, and both interesting and harmless. Now you propose to spoil it by dragging in these additional nude poses. They ruin the picture from an artistic standpoint, but of course we have nothing to do with that, except in this way—if one of those pictures was necessary to the plot of the picture we might regard it differently, we might hesitate to say, as long as it belonged there, that it should be cut out. But since not one of those additional poses is necessary, they must be taken out."

The exhibitor sighed, but none the less he knew that the film producer must bow to the will of the censors. If they don't and if the nude poses remain in that picture, some one of the many correspondents of the board of censorship will note the fact and report the matter to the board at once. These correspondents of the board of censorship reside in all parts of the United States, and when a picture has been passed by the board subject to specific eliminations, they are promptly informed of the name of the film, the name of the company and the eliminations required. Should this picture be produced unaltered the correspondents will be in position to enter a complaint at once with the authorities where it is shown, and this complaint invariably means that the film must be immediately withdrawn.

The national board of censorship of motion pictures is an unusual organization in many ways. In the first place it is made up entirely of volunteers, none of whom receive any pay, and among whom there are 185 men and women who all serve on committees which take up at least one afternoon or evening each week. These censors have no interest in moving picture shows other than that which relates to their improvement for the general good and the suppression of evil factors which would be injurious to the public. Without any authority from the state to enforce its rulings, the board is recognized by the producers of moving pictures as so powerful a force that practically the entire motion picture output of the United States is voluntarily placed before the committees for judgment before being placed before the public, and its strictures on any films shown are absolutely obeyed by the producers. In the new place, the great companies are themselves responsible for the organization and pay the office expenses involved.

Conditions Forced a Change.

Before the formation of the national board of censorship the character of motion pictures had become so notorious that the business of the better firms engaged in the production of pictures began to be seriously affected by the bad reputation of pictures generally. Mayor McClellan, in 1909, closed all the moving picture shows in the city, partly on the ground that they were held in buildings not properly protected from fire, but also with the intention when these theaters reopened under license of demanding that a better standard of morals should prevail. Partly as a result of this and in fear also of the rising storm of protest throughout the country over the nature of the films the Association of Moving Picture Exhibitors of New York went to the People's Institute and asked that a committee of censorship, made up of men and women of recognized position in relation to social conditions, be formed. The motion picture men bound themselves in a by-law of their organization to abide by the mandates of the committee. The People's Institute then invited a number of civic and social organizations to join with it in a board of censorship, which was made part of the institute on the administrative side. The main offices of the national board are in New York City, which is, of course, the center of the motion picture industry. But, although the board was originally located since October, 1910, it has censored practically all motion pictures issued in this country. The board operates by an agreement by which all pictures are submitted before they are placed on the market, and any change suggested in a given picture is carried out not only in New York City, but in the whole United States. Since the motion picture industry is now the fifth largest industry in the United States, it is easily to be seen that the board has its work cut out for it. To give some idea of the work involved, here are some figures for 1914-

Total number of reels inspected	9,4
Total number of feet of negative film inspected	9,498,0
Number of reels condemned in toto in the form presented by the manufacturer	1
Number of subjects condemned in toto in the form presented by the manufacturer
Number of reels condemned even after pictures had been remade by the manufacturer	8
Number of subjects condemned after reels had been remade by the manufacturer	3
Number of changes made by national board	1,197
Total number of feet eliminated from sample copies	101,955
Cost to manufacturers of negatives destroyed	$152,932
Total cost to manufacturers of negative, sample copies and sales copies kept off the American market	$513,853

The Work of the Committee.

The national board of censorship consists of the censoring committee and the general committee, to which is added the large body of volunteers co-operating in the cities of the country. Of these there are at the last reckoning 650. When, at a meeting of one of the censoring committees before whom films are shown, there is a disagreement of opinion as to the desirability of passing on some one picture, the matter may be referred to the general committee by even one member of the censoring committee who has been unable to convince —American Press Photo.

EARL BUTTONS.

e plaid gabardine are combined in this ited for Southern wear. The arrange- ite gives the appearance of a redingote ons and narrow roll collar are details

FORD SAYS

HEN APRON.

dation. Splash went the lard as I added a cupful of water, and the steam scorched my face, while the vicious little drops of grease covered me from head to foot, burning my arms and soiling my clothes.

I banged the oven door shut and centered my waning interest upon a salad. It should be lettuce with sliced hard-boiled eggs. The next thing for me to do was to prepare the eggs—a very easy process, although it began to look almost scientific to me as I went about the business of it. However, everything boiled merrily, and so encouraged was I that I began to associate a Yorkshire pudding with my delicious roast beef.

A Rude Interruption.

The cookbook was easily located, and off I went to the cool, comfortable living room to study the recipes. It seemed to me they called for portions enough to feed two regiments, so it took me a good half hour at mental arithmetic to figure down proportions enough for four. I might have been there yet with my pencil, paper and cookbook if there had not come a terrific explosion from the kitchen—a veritable bombardment.

In dismay I fled out of the room, and when I had reached the stove, to my horror the water had boiled off the eggs and by some strange chemistry which I had never known anything of, those insignificant little eggs had blossomed out and were reposing from the ceiling to the farthest corner of the kitchen.

I won't give space to the description of my feelings, but this is what we had for dinner: One very small scorched potato apiece, some roast beef, nearer shoe-leather than anything I can compare it to; plain lettuce salad and a stray vegetable or so, which looked very anemic and was almost raw at the core. Never had I been so tried, but dear mother and Lottie ate it without a word and complimented me extravagantly.

This I want to say to the housewives who can brag of their achievements in the kitchen—it takes greater genius to set a good supper upon the table than it does to become a moving picture star!

Mary Pickford.

(Copyright, 1915, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate. Entered at Stationers' Hall, London. All rights reserved, including rights of translation. Publication of this article in whole or in part is expressly prohibited except by special arrangement with the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

STORY for TONIGHT

F. A. Walker.

NCE—PART I.

stone began to get heavy on his shoulder. So he sat down on the side of the road. "If a great giant sixty feet high, with a big name like Balomackson, would come along," he thought, "I would get him to carry this grindstone for me."

In a short while a party of people coming from the city passed that way, and, seeing Janco sitting there, they asked:

"Why are you sitting here on the side of the road?"

"I am waiting for a great giant sixty feet high, named Balomackson," quietly answered Janco (forgetting what his father had cautioned him about answering), as though waiting for giants was an everyday thing with him. At this the people trembled. It was enough to make them tremble.

"Why do you wait here for a giant sixty feet high named Balomackson?" they asked, trembling some more.

"I will not tell you that," replied Janco, for he just then remembered what his father had told him about answering questions. Of course, this frightened the people still more, so they hurried back to the city and told the king about this Janco and the giant. The king, who was just taking a bath, was verse comment among those who do not know the circumstances under which the pictures are censored is the nature of the posters which are placed in front

STATE FILM CENSORS BILL TO GET HEARIN

Assembly Codes Committee Will Consider Ahern Measure on Feb. 23—Fight Expected.

(Special Dispatch to The Morning Telegraph.)

ALBANY, Feb. 8.

A hearing will be held before the Assembly Codes Committee February 23, on Assemblyman Fred M. Ahern's bill to establish a State board of motion picture censors. Great interest has been manifested in this proposed measure, and when the bill comes for discussion a warm debate is expected. A similar proposition was introduced at the last session of the Legislature by Assemblyman Mitchell. After several hearings on the measure it failed to receive the support of the committee and it was allowed to be shelved in the committee.

The Ahern bill provides for the appointment of a State board to be appointed by the Governor, with the consent of the Senate. It is to consist of three members, which shall examine all motion picture films or reels, and approve such as shall be moral and proper, and shall disapprove such as are sacrilegious, obscene, indecent or immoral.

It is made the duty of every motion picture producer to furnish to the board, whenever required, a description of any motion picture. The members of the Board of Censors will receive annual salaries of $5,000.

REV. DR. CRAFTS LOSING GROUND IN CENSORSHIP FIGHT

"Deserted and Disowned by His Former Friends; Branded by Them as Visionary and Impossible," Says J. W. Binder, Executive Secretary of Motion Picture Broad of Trade.

FEDERAL CAUSE POLITICAL

D. W. Griffith Shows Why Film Industry Can Make No Progress as an Art or Educational Medium if It Is Burdened With Censorship—Historical Subjects Arouse Enmity.

(Special Dispatch to The Morning Telegraph.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.

J. W. Binder, executive secretary of the Motion Picture Board of Trade, has made a terse rejoinder to the attack made upon himself in a prepared statement issued in Washington last Friday by Rev. Dr. Wilber F. Crafts, superintendent of the International Reform Bureau, as part of the latter's campaign, or rather propaganda, in favor of Federal censorship of motion pictures.

The full text of the Crafts statement in which he indulged in a personal attack on Executive Secretary Binder, and which was printed in The Morning Telegraph last Saturday morning, has been mimeographed in the offices of the Crafts Reform Bureau and is being given wide circulation through the United States mails, being sent by him to newspaper correspondents in Washington, and to newspapers and organizations throughout the country in an effort to bolster up the fight for censorship.

When Mr. Binder was asked to comment on the Crafts statement he replied, laughingly:

"The worthy doctor does me entirely too much honor. Prior to reading the article you show me I had no idea at all that I was a personage of so much power and importance. I can, it appears, with a wave of my hand, change the whole course of affairs. A meeting is held more than a year ago in the office of the United Managers' Protective Association. A resolution is passed favoring a single censorship instead of many. A committee is appointed. This committee proceeds to Washington to inform the President, presumably awaiting its coming with palpitant anxiety, of its momentous findings. It gets as far as the office of Secretary Tumulty. Then I interpose some magical and mythical 'influence' and, behold, the committee is balked, thwarted, foiled, and the whole course of the motion picture industry, bent as it was to have Federal censorship, is turned about and changed.

"Marvelous, Watson, marvelous.

Branded as "Visionary."

"My only serious comment upon a situation which, so far as the advocate of censorship is concerned, is rapidly degenerating into a farce is this: When a cause is in such dire straits that its father confessor descends to personalities its condition is pitiable.

"Deserted and disowned by his former friends of the Paramount, Lasky, Famous Players, branded by them as 'visionary and impossible,' he turns to that last resort of the beaten, personal abuse of myself and the splendid array of men and women who, contending for an eternal principle—freedom of expression—shattered his pitiful pretenses at the recent hearings at Washington.

"It is, indeed, 'to laugh.'"

An interesting new angle to the situation was disclosed to-day, when it became known that Representative Benjamin C. Hilliard of Colorado, a Democratic member of the House Education Committee, had received from J. W. Binder, executive secretary of the Motion Picture Board of Trade, a letter asserting that the only proponents of Federal censorship in the motion picture industry are the Lasky-Famous Players-Paramount group. Mr. Binder's letter reads as follows:

"New York, Feb. 5, 1916.

"My Dear Mr. Hilliard—"The only proponents of Federal censorship among the motion picture people, as will be proven by the printed record of the hearing, are the Lasky-Famous Players-Paramount group.

Based Upon Expediency.

"They represent, perhaps, less than 2 per cent. of the entire output of motion pictures in the United States. That their position regarding motion picture censorship is not based upon principle, but upon expediency, is proven by the attached copy of a telegram which reached me this morning from Los Angeles.

"The Motion Picture Producers' Association, whose committee signed the telegram in question, was organized by Messrs. Lasky and his general manager, Goldfish, about six weeks ago. It is composed of sixteen of the largest producing companies on the Pacific Coast. In its membership are included companies composing the Paramount group.

"When this association learned of the position taken by the founders of their association on Federal censorship, it called a special meeting and a committee was appointed to lay out a campaign opposing all forms of censorship. The position of the association on this matter is clearly shown by the telegram addressed to me, copy of which is attached hereto. I commend it to your careful consideration.

"It shows that the fifteen other corporations composing the Motion Picture Producers' Association do not endorse the Lasky-Famous Players-Paramount proposition with regard to Federal censorship. On the contrary, they directly oppose it.

"I am sending you this information believing that you are sincere in seeking for the truth. Yours very truly,

"J. W. Binder,
"Executive Secretary."

The same information has been submitted to other members of the House Education Committee. The telegram inclosed in Mr. Binder's letter reads as follows:

"Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 2, 1916.
"Motion Picture Board of Trade,
"18 East 41st St., N. Y. City.

"The Motion Picture Producers' Association representing sixteen producing companies is opposed to censorship. We believe that a proper understanding by the public of the evils of censorship will mean its elimination. We are preparing a campaign of education by means of slides and literature. This we will distribute to the exchanges and exhibitors to be displayed to the public with blank petitions to be signed by the patrons of theatres petitioning the various legislative bodies to abolish censorship. We ask your co-operation in this great educational work by urging your distributors and exhibitors to assist in this propaganda. Address 1715 Northwestern avenue, Los Angeles.

"Motion Picture Producers' Association.
"R. O. Davis,
"D. W. Griffith,
"Thomas H. Ince,
"P. D. Gold, Jr.,
"Committee."

D. W. Griffith's Position.

From Los Angeles David Worth Griffith, who put "The Birth of a Nation" before the public, has sent the following telegraphic statement of his position:

"The motion picture can never make any progress as an art or as an educational medium so long as it is burdened with censorship. Let us be given as American citizens the freedom given workers in other forms of expression—the speaking stage, the printed word, or the plastic arts, and with the workers in these other fields. If we sin, let us be punished; but we beg and plead with you that you await the sinning before you mete out the punishment. The greatest educators of the country have urged upon us to put away the slapstick comedies, the ridiculous sentimental mush stories, and go to the stories of history for our subjects.

"They have told us repeatedly the motion picture could impress upon a people as much of the truth of history in an evening as months of study would accomplish. As one eminent historian told me in person, 'It teaches history by lightning.' The reason for the slapstick and the worst that is in pictures is censorship.

"Let those who tell us to uplift our art invest money in a historic play. It does not matter with what reverence this be approached, they would find it could not be done without incurring the wrath of a certain part of our people, which would unquestionably find its reflection in the action of the censor. There is no vital period of history that can be truthfully produced in a motion picture that does not arouse the prejudice of some one of the present day. Yet no one would dare make such an attempt while censorship prevails.

"I was considering the production of the history of the American people this last year. It got into the papers. From all over the country I was strongly advised that this was not the time for a play on the American revolution because the English and their sympathizers would not take kindly during these emotional war times to the part the English played in the war of the American Revolution, and the pro-Germans would not care to see the Hessians play the part they would play in the story of our freedom.

"Already censorship is in the hands of the politicians, which means the Government happening to be in power absolutely controls the sentiment of the motion picture."

FILM CENSORSHIP IS CONDEMNED BY REV. THOMAS DIXON

Author of "The Clansman," Upon Which Is Founded Great Griffith Production, "The Birth of a Nation," Excoriates Attempt to "Put Shackles on the Human Mind."

CALLS EFFORT "INFAMOUS"

Declares It Duty of Congress to Abolish All Censors—John D. Bradley, President of Secular League, Says People Should Be Trusted With Respect to New Vehicle of Expression.

(Special Dispatch to The Morning Telegraph.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.

Rev. Thomas Dixon, Jr., author of "The Clansman," the book upon which is founded the David Worth Griffith production of "The Birth of a Nation," one of the greatest motion pictures ever produced, and who is also a classmate of President Woodrow Wilson, has gone strongly and squarely on record before the House Committee on Education in opposition to the establishment of Federal censorship of motion pictures. In two telegrams that have been made part of the record now before the committee, Mr. Dixon, internationally known as a novelist and playwright, advises the advocates of Federal censorship to "get rid of this bugaboo," asserts that censorship of motion pictures is "the most dangerous attack on American liberties since the foundation of the republic" and describes the project for censorship as a step backward into the Middle Ages, when Guttenberg's invention of the printing press was greeted with the shout, "This shall not be."

From a gentleman so beyond reproach the condemnation of the project for Federal censorship of films should be considered as important a factor in the situation as was the statement recently submitted to the House Education Committee by the Rev. Dr. Cyrus Townsend Brady, a Protestant Episcopal clergyman-novelist and author, who severely criticized the censorship project. Thomas Dixon, Jr., is a Southern man who entered the ministry and then gained fame in letters, just as the Rev. Dr. Cyrus Townsend Brady is a Northern man who has had a similar career of renown both in the church and as an author. These two prominent clergymen-novelists have clasped hands across Mason and Dixon's Line in a joint protest against censorship of the films, and especially against Federal censorship.

Son of a Clergyman.

Thomas Dixon is the son of a clergyman and was born in Shelby, N. C., in 1864. He is also a brother of Amzi Clarence Dixon, a Baptist clergyman who, after serving as pastor of important churches at Baltimore, Brooklyn, Boston and Chicago, went to London in the Summer of 1911 to become pastor of the Metropolitan Tabernacle. After being graduated from Wake Forest College in North Carolina in 1883 and taking a law course at the Greensboro (N. C.) Law School, Thomas Dixon, Jr., was admitted to the bar of all North Carolina courts and to the United States District and Supreme courts, after which, in 1883, he won a scholarship in history and politics at Johns Hopkins University at Baltimore.

There he was a classmate of Woodrow Wilson, who, between 1883 and 1885, was engaged in post-graduate work at Johns Hopkins University. In 1885 Dixon was elected to the North Carolina Legislature, but he resigned the next year to enter the Baptist ministry, serving as pastor of churches in Raleigh in 1887, in Boston in 1888, and in New York from 1889 to 1899. From 1889 to 1903 he was also a popular lyceum lecturer. He is a member of the Players and Lambs clubs, and wrote "The Leopard's Spots," "The One Woman," "The Clansman," "The Life Worth Living," "The Traitor," "Comrades," "The Root of Evil" and "The Sins of the Father." He also wrote the play, "The Sins of the Father," produced September 21, 1910, in which he played the leading role.

(Continued on Page 2, Column 3.)

KINGSTON'S (AT NEW

FEELING HEIGH... AT SEEING "BIRTH OF A NATION" BARBER AND NEGRO CLASH IN "NEAR RIOT"

Rumor says racial prejudice heightened by witnessing "The Birth of a Nation," caused a small sized riot between a "white" and "black" in the Looking Glass barber shop, East Michigan ave., early Thursday morning.

A hole a foot in diameter in the plate glass window and the badly disfigured face of the Negro porter are mute evidences of the encounter. The barber shop employes decline to talk about the fray but onlookers tell the following story:

"No nigger can—" said a barber, to Frank Burton, the colored porter, following some racial argument.

"What's that," cut in the Negro, throwing out his chest at the barber.

The porter stepped within range of a cologne bottle gripped in the barber's hand and stopped it with his forehead. The porter then grabbed a hair tonic container and heaved it at the barber as the later dashed out of doors. The bottle missed the mark and crashed through the window.

The cologne bottle cut a long gash in Burton's left cheek.

Paper? Date

Yes Bill ~~good~~ ~~Good~~ ~~Bad~~ Bad story
Good advertising

POST-STANDARD, SYRACUSE,

Movie Censorship.

One of the most meddlesome and dangerous bills before Congress is that which asks the appointment of a Federal Motion Picture Commission, to pass upon all photoplays before they are screened for the public.

At the present time there exist not only many state censorship boards, but there is a National Board of Censorship formed through agreement of the larger producers with social workers. This form of censorship has worked well; at least there has been less complaint over the type of photoplays shown in this country than over the type of spoken drama staged within recent years.

The present form of censorship is as satisfactory as we can hope for. There is no public demand or need of a Federal censorship. Its operation would be costly, it would do the same work that is now being done locally, and it would have no other effect than to embarrass the producers who, at least until the present time, have never attempted to give the public either immoral or obscene pictures.

The bill is a sample of unnecessary legislation that often creeps into Congress. It should be defeated.

FILM NOT BARRED THERE.

Louisville Declines to Censor "Birth of a Nation."

(Special Dispatch to The Morn... graph.)

LOUISVILLE, Feb. 9. ...yor John H. Buschemeyer to-day to... a delegation of citizens he would not take any action looking toward the prevention of the exhibition of the film "The Birth of a Nation," scheduled to show here next week. The Mayor's visitors were informed that in his opinion the film was of a purely historical nature and in no way might be construed as a reflection on the negro race of the present day. Opposition to the film was that it would have a tendency to arouse race prejudice.

Steps were taken some weeks ago by former City Attorney Clayton Blakey and other white men to bar the picture in Louisville. At that time David W. Griffith, the producer, who is a former Louisville man, announced that he would spend any sum of money necessary to exhibit the film here.

Telegraph

...THE MORNING TE...

...CENSORSHIP ...UNDEMOCRATIC

...n Haynes Holmes Discusses ...deral Bill at Church of Messiah.

...R SPEAKERS AGREE

...ate Censor Board Acting Only Under Stimulus of Public Opinion.

...t the Church of the Messiah, Park ave... and Thirty-fourth street, last week, ... movement to establish a mandatory ...ing picture censorship was denounced ...undemocratic and un-American.

...he speakers pointed out that a bill was ...ding in Congress to appoint a board of ...e persons to pass on the morality, de...cy and expediency of all moving pic...res in interstate circulation and to de...de "what 100,000,000 free American citi...ns shall think." This, the speakers ...eclared, was an entering wedge toward ...he abolition of free speech and a free ...ress.

Ohio and Pennsylvania have boards of ...ensors, but eleven other States refused ...o pass laws providing for them, but there ...s a growing feeling that the pictures ...hould be taxed in some way to make up ...or the deficit in excise taxes, caused by ...picture theatres putting the small saloons ...out of business.

The Federation of Churches and the Society for the Prevention of Crime favor censorship by legally constituted boards, or board, while the National Board of Censorship, which passes 99 per cent. of the motion pictures in an advisory and altogether voluntary capacity, is opposed to mandatory censorship.

In openeing the discussion, the Rev. Dr. John Hayes Homes, pastor of the church, declared that he was opposed to the general principle of mandatory censorship, but admitted that some pictures made him feel that he would like to have an hour, or even a half hour, to "smash some of these people" who are producing films. The two films that most thoroughly aroused his ire, he said, were "The Battle Cry of Peace" and "The Birth of a Nation."

Felt Like Throwing Bombs.

"If ever I wanted to throw bombs and smash theatres," he said, "it was on the two occasions that I saw 'The Birth of a Nation.' The film is a slander on the country."

"We all feel at times as though we would like to censor certain pictures," remarked Lester F. Scott, associate director of the People's Institute, "but the vital question is, not whether we like any particular picture, but whether that picture is bad for the community."

The practic... censorship plan in... acording to this... one co... give to between... work to p...

7

PRODUCERS REPLY TO CENSORSHIP CRITICISM

Paramount-World Group Explain Attitude Toward Federal Bill in Letter to Motion Picture Exhibitors' Association of Illinois.

Arthur H. Spiegel, president of the Equitable Motion Pictures Corporation and general manager of the ...ration, was the recipien... half of his companies, o... ficial notification from ... Exhibitors' Association ...

Immediately upon rec... cation Mr. Spiegel went ... sion with Mr. Hodkin... mount Company, who re... mount group interests ... ship controversy, with ... following correspondenc...

Chica...
Equitable Motion Pic...
130 West Forty-six...
New York, N. Y.

Gentlemen—At the ... ing of the Moving Pi... Association of Illino... Feb. 4th, at which ... election of officers too... lowing resolution w... passed by a very l... sentative gathering of ...

"That we, the Mot... hibitors' Association ... sire to go on record as ... posed to any form of ... ship, national or othe... we most heartily dis... recent attitude of the ... tion Pictures Corpora... the Metro and Paramo... dorsement of and fav... sorship."

The secretary was in... ward a copy of the ... to the feature film com... tion, and also the trade ... truly,

Motion Picture Exhibi...

By J. H. Frund...
Sidney Smit...

Mr. Spiegel responded, a... ence with Mr. Goldfish, as ...

Feb...

Motion Picture Exhibit...
57 E. Van Buren St.,
Chicago, Ill.

Gentlemen—We have ... the contents of your co... the 9th inst.

We regret that the ... company, as well as th... mount and Metro, has ... disapproval of your as... we wish to assure you ... opinion, our action will ... suit to the best intere... body engaged in the ... industry.

The companies mentio... letter who have expressed themselves as being in favor of proper national censorship gave this question most serious and thoughtful consideration before arriving at any definite conclusion, and our final decision was based on the fact that proper na...

Further than the above correspondence Mr. Spiegel would not commit himself on any of the statements contained in his letter to the Illinois Association.

...NEO, J. W. GOLDSWORTHY ...ROGER, HOWARD TRUESDEL

Compelling Drama of Love and High Finance

GLANCING AHEAD

FLORENCE TURNER IN "THE ELUSIVE ISABEL"

Popular Actress Returns to the Screen in a New Universal Picture.

"The Elusive Isabel," now being produced by Director Stuart Paton, is the costliest production ever made in the East by the Universal.

This is the picture that will serve to reintroduce Florence Turner to the screen.

The cost of taking the great ballroom scene, which required 200 people as guests, was estimated by the efficiency experts at Universal Heights, to be in excess of $1,000. The principals and extras had to work all day Sunday and well into the night before the scene was completed. In this scene Miss Lawrence wore some very expensive clothes, her evening gowns and lingerie being worth more than $5,000. And these were not "prop" clothes, nor were they used through the courtesy of some importer or well-known dressmaker, but are Miss Lawrence's own property.

"DEFENSE OR TRIBUTE?" SCHEDULED FOR RELEASE

Public Service Film Company Will Handle New Feature on Preparedness.

The Public Service Film Company releases "Defense or Tribute?" the five-part feature, this week. The picture is a lesson on preparedness, but the subject has been treated from a new angle of history for two thousand ... been drawn upon to supply ... of the picture.

The audience is shown the ... the Jews, the Gauls and No... Indians and other nations wh... unprepared and overwhelmed ... armed force. There is a rev... of the important events in ... tory, and all the Presidents ... States are shown on the scre...

NEW FAIRBANKS

He Wrote It Himself, Not Picked the T...

Douglas Fairbanks cast ... coming drawing-room clothe... Fine Arts production and ... blooded Arizonian, a con... character. And the unusual ... that he wrote his own stor... of the play has not as yet ...

As an author Mr. Fairb... vaudeville act to his credit, ... Man," which he himself h... and around New York bef... theatrical seasons. Mr. Fair... directed in his new play by ... and opposite him will appear ... Love.

The supporting cast will pr... sist of Sam de Grasse, Mar... Cannon and Fred Burns, c... champion American cowboy.

TO FILM "SWEET KITTY ...

Mae Murray, the Lasky st... rehearsals on the production, ... Bellairs," under the direct... Young. She will be suppo... Forman, James Neill and ... members of the Lasky o...

Congressman W. W. Hodkinson.

Springfield (Ill.) Journal

FEBRUARY 10, 1916

"BIRTH OF A NATION" DAMNABLE--FERRIS

Governor Says He Would Bar Further Exhibitions of Film, If He Had Power.

"If I had the authority as governor of Michigan, I would issue today an order to prohibit further exhibitions of 'The Birth of a Nation,'" said Governor Ferris after he had viewed the production at the Gladmer theater, Wednesday night.

"If you placed $50 on my desk and told me I could have that sum if I would witnesses another performance of that picture, I would flatly refuse the offer. The picture, although a masterpiece of the motion picture producer's art, is damnable in its idea and deals with a period in the nation's life that should best be forgotten.

"As an argument for peace it is a joke. You might just as well urge a husband and wife to recall all their troubles for a period of 20 years in order to live in peace and harmony in the future. This picture simply encourages race prejudice.

"I understand the film has been barred from the state of Ohio and I intend to write a personal letter to the board of censors of that state commending them for their good judgment."

...about."

Massachusetts has an ideal law o... subject, Mr. Scott said, and this provides that pictures that arouse objections when they are displayed shall be turned over to a board of censors to edit or suppress. This reduces the number of pictures to be passed on to so few that the full board can give the matter proper attention, and it does not interfere with what people think, since the board only acts under the stimulus of public opinion.

Censor Will Use His Own Ideas.

"Every man has his own standard of morality, vulgarity and decency," Mr. Scott pointed out. "The individual censor is likely to forget what others think and substitute his own views exclusively."

Orrin G. Cocks, advisory secretary of the National Board of Moving Picture Censorship, further explained the working of the Ohio and Pennsylvania boards of censorship. The woman commissioner of Ohio, he said, recently declared that she was able to pass on two films simultaneously and at the same time talk to friends, answer telephone calls and dictate articles for the home column of a Columbus paper.

Could Be No Appeal.

If the proposed Federal Bill goes through, he explained, the board of five appointed under it would be amenable to the wishes of the Administration in passing films, and there could be no appeal from its decisions. The result would be as in Ohio, where the board suppressed "The Strike in Coaldale," and in Pennsylvania, where the board suppressed "John Barleycorn" until the ministers and the labor people were able to arouse sufficient public opinion to force the board to reverse itself.

"The Birth of a Nation" was thrown out in Ohio, because it was feared that it would turn the negro vote against the party in power, but was allowed in Pennsylvania, where the negro question was not causing trouble.

"If the bill goes through," he said, "the members will have to pass on between 75,000 and 100,000 dramatic ideas, each involving questions of morality, decency, the likelihood of inciting to crime, &c., within nine months. That would be enough to tie the commissioners into a knot.

"Already the States have been aroused," he declared, "and messages have been sent to Congress protesting against the appointment of a Federal board with power to decide questions of morality and decency for their people.

"The whole agitation for censorship," he concluded, "is based on objections to certain pictures as mental food for children. Something might be done," he admitted, "leading to deciding what pictures should not be shown in theatres to which children are admitted."

Feb 11
Detroit News

THE NEWS-RETAILER

"BIRTH OF OUR NATION"

First Time Shown On Eastside.

An exceptional opportunity for the study of American history is available to lovers of the photo drama, in the presentation of the great eight-reel picture, "The Birth of Our Nation," at Our Theatre, corner of Crane and Kercheval avenues, tomorrow (Saturday) afternoon and evening.

In allegorical form the whole story of the nation's moving early days is shown, commencing with the time of Pocohontas, and down through the stirring times of the Revolutionary war, picturizing the attempt assassination of George Washington and his wonderful battles for the freedom of our country, to the terrific and passionate episodes of the days of Lincoln. The Ku Klux Klan and the story of the Camerons is given in detail, and the famous engagements between north and south wonderfully depicted in an amazing series of perfect photography.

Many film stars take part in the drama, including Ralph Nnce in his great impersonation of the martyred president, Mary Morrice, the grand old lady of the films, whose pleading for the life of her son has moved thousands to tears; Lillian Walker, Florence Lawrence, Owen Moore, Tom Moore, James Morrison, and other noted artists.

The management of Our Theatre has secured this picture at a heavy expense, the cost for one day being over $100.00, and patrons of this popular playhouse will mis an especial treat if they do not see "The Birth of Our Nation." Performances start at 3 p. m. and are continuous to 11 p. m.

Feb 11
Detroit News

DETROIT NEWS

FERRIS ASSAILS 'BIRTH OF A NATION'

Governor Declares the Film "Symbolizes Hell."

[FROM A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

LANSING, Mich., Feb. 10.—"It was the most damnable thing I ever witnessed, and not for $50 would I again sit three hours and watch such scenes," declared Gov. Woodbridge N. Ferris, in discussing the motion picture play, "The Birth of a Nation."

"If it were in my power I would issue an order today not to allow the pictures to again be shown in our state. It recalls to mind things that are past and gone, greatly overplays them and does no good, but plenty of harm. Words cannot express the contempt I feel for the entire matter.

"'The Birth of a Nation' is a gigantic, spectacular exposition of human hate and revenge. Here and there is an oasis—a hint of the beautiful and the wholesome.

"An effort to revive the awful scenes of the civil war and the reconstruction period after the manner of 'The Birth of a Nation' must prove harmful to the American people. 'The Birth of a Nation' is not only a positive insult to the colored people; it is an insult to the intelligence of the white race. Would that Dante could reappear on the earth long enough to see 'The Birth of a Nation,' he would tender his apologies to the film makers of 1916.

"With the exception of the culmination of the play, the majority of the scenes arouse anger, revenge, horror and hate. Is it possible that the American people hanker for this sort of thing? Human being do not grow sweeter and better because they employ every possible opportunity for rehashing the past—for recalling quarrels and conflicts of days gone by.

"'The Birth of a Nation' does not symbolize peace; it symbolizes hell."

PERRY.

Feb. 10-11-1916

THE WESTCHESTER NEWS, WHITE PLAINS, N. Y.

THE BIRTH OF A NATION

A Scurrilous Libel on the North and Should Be Prohibited

The Picture Shows Grant, With a Big Cigar, Shabbily Dressed, and Lee Erect and A Gentleman

READ WHAT ATTORNEY-GENERAL TURNER OF OHIO SAYS

"The Clansman" was a book written in the South for the South. It was Rebel through and through. It went back to the days preceding the Rebellion and took in reconstruction days. It lauded Jefferson Davis, General Lee and the Confederacy, while it scurrilously referred to President Lincoln, the Union Generals and the Union.

"The Birth of a Nation" the moving picture that has been so widely advertised to be shown here was worked out from "The Clansman," and it should not be allowed to be shown even in the South, as it is a scurrilously, lying production and an insult to the North. Why Northern censors allow it is an enigma. In Ohio the censors rejected it and the owners appealed to the Attorney General, who went and saw it and wrote an opinion, which sustained the censors, and we herewith give most of the opinion of Attorney-General Turner.

"After viewing the photo-play entitled 'The Birth of a Nation,' I am firmly of the opinion that the Board of Censors did right in not permitting this picture to be shown in Ohio.

"Over and above the treatment of the negro, the picture is an insult to the North and a contemptible distortion of well-known history regarding the Civil War. The proper title of this picture should be 'An Insult to a Nation.'

"In the face of the indisputable fact that the mulatto is the product of the South alone, the author of this picture has dared to attempt to attribute the actions of the leaders of the North to the influence of liaison with colored women.

"Typifying a Congressional leader, preceding, during and after the Civil War, as a low, coarse, vindictive negro worshiping advocate of mixed marriages having as a mistress a mulatto who wields an influence sufficient to justify the subtitle 'A Great Leader's Weakness That Is to Blight a Nation.' This immediately precedes Lincoln's call for volunteers. That there may be no mistakes as to who is meant by this coarse caricature, they pick out a cripple to unmistakably denote Thaddeus Stevens. For fear that some one might not understand, there is thrown upon a screen a subtitle stating that 'The executive mansion of the nation was transferred to this man's residence.'

"After glorifying the rebel flag and the flag of South Carolina, the author dresses a horde of the lowest type of bad land negroes in the uniform of Union soldiers and causes them to enact scenes similar to those of Gen. Early's Army at Chambersburg, Pa. Not satisfied with even this, the author labels Union officers as 'scalawag white captains.'

"A fling is taken at Gen. Sherman's memory in the marauding scenes under the titles of 'While the women and children weep a great conqueror marches to the sea' and 'The torch of war against the breast of Atlanta.'

"Gen. Grant, the man who, according to fact and real history, sent 25,000 rations to Gen. Lee's men and allowed those men to ride their horses and mules home so as to be able to cultivate the soil; the soldier whose terms of surrender had been so generous as to evoke from Gen. Lee the statement. 'This will have a very happy effect on my men;' the man who did not even wait to witness the formal surrender of the troops, this hero, not only of the Northland, but of the entire world, is pictured with a stogie-like cigar in his mouth titled at the angle chosen by cartoonists to represent Uncle Joe Cannon, and with his hand jammed down in his pants' pocket, is made to swagger over in front of Gen. Lee who remains the personification of dignity.

"Time after time the North is unfavorably contrasted against the South. A fair daughter of the North is wooed by a gallant son of the South, who has but two competitors for her affections, one a leering lout dressed slouchily in Union blue, the other a negro.

"Insult after insult is heaped upon the soldier's uniform made sacred by the boys in blue. Notwithstanding the historical fact that the negroes were the protectors of the white women and children of the South during the dark days of the Civil War and that no ravishment of white women by blacks during that period is recorded, a Union officer's uniform of blue is placed upon the lowest type of negro imaginable, and he is made to pursue a little white girl who jumps a cliff to her death, and there is then flashed upon the screen, 'for her who had learned the stern lesson of honor we should not grieve that she has found sweeter the opal gates of death.'

"The negro's lust for white women rather than the white man's lust to regain lost power is made the justification for that organization well known in history as the Ku Klux Klan. And what all history, including the reports of the courts, say was a band of outlaws, is made an organization of heroes under religious rights. Brush up your history and imagine if you can the Ku Klux Klan giving birth to this nation.

"Among this mass of false and distorted history there was flashed upon the screen the reason for the picture and the books which preceded it, 'Bitter memories will not allow the poor bruised heart of the South to forget.'

"After viewing this picture I read the brief of attorneys for the corporation, and found quoted therein purported indorsements of the picture by Claude Kitchin, L. P. Padgett, R. N. Page, and other sons of the South, who are now prominent in Congress. In addition there is quoted therein a long eulogy of the picture by a State Commander of the Sons of Confederate Veterans. In his indorsement of the picture this commander says: 'The Sons of Confederate Veterans to-day are working along two lines: first, to see that the Southern side of the controversy which led to the Civil War is correctly stated in history, which will demonstrate to the world that we are not sons of rebels, but sons of patriots.

"We of the North are asked to forget, yet at the same time, insulting our heroes and our cause, the promoters of this picture are asking the youth of the North to accept in this picture manufactured history. In this brief there is quoted letters purporting to come from children of this State, who had been shown this picture through the efforts of a man blinded by partisan politics. These letters show that these children are accepting the incidents of this picture as real history.

"This picture shows the South to have been right and the North to have been wrong. Our fathers settled that controversy in the arbitrament of arms, and no good can come from an attempt to reopen the question or distort its history.

"This picture is neither of a moral, educational, amusing nor harmless character, and the statute (Sec. 871-49 G. C.) specifically provides that only such films as are either of a moral, educational or amusing and harmless character may be passed by the Ohio Board of Censors"

Feb. 21st 1916.

TIMES, LOUISVILLE,

PREPARING INJUNCTION

William Heck's New Tack In Fight On "Birth of a Nation."

William Heck, the lawyer who swore to a warrant against Manager A. A. Bigelow, of Macauley's Theater, alleging that in presenting "The Birth of a Nation" an old statute was being violated, is preparing a petition for an injunction to be filed in a further effort to suppress the exhibition of the film. Mr. Heck holds that the picture excites race prejudice. He is planning to base the injunction suit on the proceeding brought in 1902 to prevent a fight between Terry McGovern and Young Corbett, which, he says, was a case parallel to that he is about to institute.

ORNING TELEGRAPH

PLEA FOR CENSORS SENT BROADCAST

Dr. Crafts Returns to Attack of Film Industry, Uncontrolled by Government, in Circular Letter.

OPPONENTS BEATEN, HE SAYS

(Special Dispatch to The Morning Telegraph.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.

Fearing that the united stand of a majority of the film men will delay, if not defeat, the enactment of legislation this session of Congress for Federal censorship of motion pictures, Rev. Dr. Wilber F. Crafts, superintendent and treasurer of the International Reform Bureau, to-night announced that he would go on the warpath in favor of State and municipal censorship of films in all parts of the country.

"The International Reform Bureau," said Superintendent Crafts, "will support movements for State and local censorship all over the country and will continue to do so until Federal censorship of films is assured. We intend to stir up the people all over the country in favor of getting State and municipal censorships. We will support the bills for film censorships pending in the New York and New Jersey Legislatures. I have to-day sent out letters in support of the New Jersey Holy Name Censorship bill. These letters have also gone to members of the International Reform Bureau and others in New Jersey, New York and other States where Legislatures are in session this Winter. If we are beaten in our fight in Washington for the creation of Federal censorship we will push and win the fight for State censorships everywhere, and especially before those Legislatures that are in session this Winter."

Legislatures are now meeting in ten States. There will also be a session of the Louisiana Legislature in May. Superintendent Crafts is sending his letter to all eleven of these States, scattering his propaganda broadcast through his "reform" connections in those States.

In the circular letter which he mailed brodcast to-night, Superintendent Crafts admits that most of the motion picture men are opposed to federal censorship and that the enactment of the Hughes-Smith bill, which was so severely attacked in the recent hearings that it had to be redrafted, may be delayed "unless a larger number of the high-grade film men rally to its support." This bears out the statement made in the letter from J. W. Binder, executive secretary of the Motion Picture Board of Trade, to Representative Benjamin C. Hilliard, of Colorado, printed in The Morning Telegraph this morning. In this letter Mr. Binder asserted that:

"The only proponents of Federal censorship among the motion picture people, as will be proven by the printed record, are the Lasky-Famous Players-Paramount group. They represent perhaps, less than 2 per cent. of the entire output of motion pictures in the United States."

Text of the Crafts Letter.

Here is the text of the letter which is going out over the signature of the superintendent of the Reform Bureau to "its members and others in New Jersey, New York and other States where Legislatures are in session":

"International Reform Bureau, Inc., a Bureau of lectures, literature and law for promoting moral and social reforms.

WASHINGTON, D. C.,
Feb. 9, 1916.

"Dear Friend: I see in the papers that the New Jersey 'State censorship bill of the Holy Name Society was opposed (at the State Legislature) by film men, on the ground that it was un-American, and for the further reason that a Federal law is now before Congress.' As the leader of the forces of all denominations that are asking Congress for Federal censorship, with the co-operation of the Paramount, Lasky, Equitable, World and Famous Players Film Companies, permit me to say to citizens and legislators of New Jersey and other States where Legislatures are in session, that, as the great majority of film men are fighting Federal censorship, and may delay its enactment unless a larger number of the high-grade film men rally to its support, we advise that the work for local censorship be vigorously pressed in every Legislature, and local censorship also, such as the Mayor of Orange has threatened unless the exhibition of vile pictures shall cease.

"Every mayor in the United States can suppress vile shows, either by canceling licenses or by the use of the police power, and should be asked to do so, on the ground that President [illegible] of the Universal Film Company [illegible] ed from a poll of exhibitors that more than half have asked for 'smuttier pictures' and that the five great companies above named have declared that 'the production of vicious pictures is constantly increasing' and that censorship is needed to protect decent exhibitors as well as the public. Local and State censorship will be needed until Congress provides one adequate Federal censorship, which practically all film companies saw was to their interest and asked for a year ago, before the Motion Picture Board of Trade was organized and swung most of them off into the plan of raising a big fund to fight all official censorship. Everywhere good citizens and high-grade film men should unite to suppress the shows that, if tolerated, will put this business and amusement under the same dishonor as boxing and horse-racing, both legitimate amusements, but made outcasts by disregard for moral standards.

"Yours for a 'better world,' here and now, Rev. Wilber F. Crafts, Ph. D.,
"International Reform Bureau."

State Censorship to Continue.

In a letter to Tarleton Williams, written May 13, 1915, Chairman Hughes of the House Education Committee, said: "There is no assurance that I can give that the other commissions—State and local—will be discontinued upon the creation of a national commission." This was Chairman Hughes's response to the direct question from Mr. Williams asking "will you outline for us just what assurances there are, that if the bill is passed, local censorship boards will not be formed in every State, county, village and hamlet?"

The letters now being mailed from the Reform Bureau and the propaganda conducted by Superintendent Crafts and his fellow-crusaders against a wonderful new industry fully bears out a prediction made in the brief recently filed by William M. Seabury, general counsel for the Motion Picture Board of Trade. Alluding to the statement of Dr. William Sheafe Chase of Brooklyn, one of the most active champions of Federal censorship, that a State censorship bill would be introduced in the New York Legislature, Mr. Seabury's brief said:

Now Attacks Leaders.

Superintendent Crafts to-day issued another broad-side attack on leaders in the fight against Federal censorship. The announcement says:

"The opponents of Federal censorship of films, defeated decisively in their main contention that motion pictures do not need additional censoring, a position rendered wholly untenable by the signed statement of five high-class film producing firms that 'the production of vicious pictures is constantly increasing,' are now making an effort which shows their desperation, to prove that 'there is no genuine public demand' for Federal censorship—that only one man really wants it—all other requests having been sent in, regardless of the merits of the case, at his bidding.

"A reprinted editorial of the Moving Picture World specifically named me as having more than imperial power. If this is true, the nation should follow China into monarchy and crown the men whose mere word can bring such a host of petitions, letters and telegrams from all parts of the land, regardless of the observation of the judgment of the petitioners, among whom we find religious conventions, conferences and churches, men's meetings, women's clubs, educational bodies and welfare societies.

"It would be very nearly correct to say the opposition to Federal censorship is the 'result of the activity of two or three people,' namely, Stephen W. Bush, J. W. Binder and Orrin Cocks. Mr. Bush says in an editorial on the first series of hearings: 'The only protest made at the hearing in Washington against the Smith-Hughes measure was made by the Moving Picture World'—that is, by Mr. Bush. He adds: 'Not a single producer, not a single exchange man, not a single exhibitor appeared before the Committee at its first hearing.' And we may add that when the motion picture trade did speak—it was on February 27, 1915, as reported in The Morning Telegraph—it made a unanimous 'demand' for 'one censorship' and that 'Federal.'

"That would have displaced the voluntary New York Board of Censorship, that called itself 'National,' two of whose salaried officers straightway got busy, Mr. Binder, in organizing a Motion Picture Board of Trade, to fight all official censorship and, incidentally, to furnish Mr. Binder a new job, and Mr. Cocks, in nation-wide crusading against all censorships save the imperilled one which supported him. The inside story, as it has come to me, shows that the opposition to Federal censorship is in a very literal sense 'the result of the efforts of these three possible.'"

WILL ASK WRIT AGAINST FILM

Further Steps To-day To Suppress "Birth of a Nation."

Judge Robinson Fines Negro Woman Drunk In Court.

COURTHOUSE HAPPENINGS

Further steps to stop the presentation of the photodrama, the Birth of a Nation, now showing at Macauley's Theater, will be taken this morning by W. A. Heck, according to a statement made by him last night, when he will appear before one of the Chancellors and ask for a temporary injunction against Anson A. Bigelow, manager of the theater, enjoining him from opening the theater to the public to witness the film production.

Heck spent most of yesterday going over the record in the injunction proceedings instituted in September, 1902, by Clifton J. Pratt, then Attorney General of Kentucky, to prevent the prizefight between Terry McGovern and Young Corbett, scheduled at the old auditorium. He expressed the opinion the conditions were similar.

Heck seemed to be ruffled over the action of Magistrate Dorsey last week in postponing the criminal proceedings against Manager Bigelow until Friday of this week. He said he would file the injunction proceedings in the name of the Commonwealth as a taxpayer without asking the aid of County Attorney A. Scott Bullitt or any other officer of the Commonwealth.

Heck formerly practiced law, but was suspended by Judge W. H. Field November 7, 1914, for alleged unprofessional conduct. He was charged with having collected money for S. I. I. Battiste, a negro physician, and not turning it over to him. The suspension was to run a year and until the amount of the alleged collections had been paid to Battiste.

CENSORSHIP MAY BE BOOMERANG

Walter W. Irwin Thinks Agitation Will Call Public Attention to Evils of Institution.

HAS UNITED INDUSTRY

Believes Mistakes of Local Boards Will Ultimately Result in Their Destruction.

That the hue and cry for legalized censorship now being made in Washington by professional reformers, and threatened in New York State, will not only result in its own undoing, but will so arouse public conscience that the censorship statutes in States such as Ohio and Pennsylvania will ultimately be revoked, is the prophecy of Walter W. Irwin.

Mr. Irwin is general manager of the V. L. S. E., Inc., chairman of the executive committee of the Motion Picture Board of Trade, and one of the most active opponents of pre-publicity censorship in both film and legal circles in this country.

"The efforts being made upon the part of a few misguided people to throttle the freedom of the screen," said Mr. Irwin, during the course of an interview last week, "will act as a boomerang—that is, will react to the advantage of the entire motion picture industry.

"Moreover, the censor boards themselves are unwittingly doing a great work for the industry in helping us overcome the trials and vicissitudes which all young and great industries must experience.

"In the first place, so ignorant, intolerant, arrogant—in some cases malicious and spiteful—have been the acts of these boards, that they are fast becoming the heedless instruments of their own destruction; for the very character of their conduct is gradually causing the busy American public to take notice, and to realize that such power in the hands of a few, is not only dangerous to the principles of liberty, but is an insult to our intelligence.

"In the second place, the acts of these censors is fast impressing upon the public the fact that the motion picture is the most important and powerful vehicle of thought transmission so far known to man; so powerful, that it is being punished for its very intensity; and that the industry itself possesses an intelligence and dignity so important to the educational welfare o fthe people, that they cannot afford to allow it to be subjected to injustice.

"In the third place, nothing so quickly makes for the destruction of jealousies and antagonism between the various branches of the industry, and for the creation of mutual respect and proper business ethics, as a fight against a common and unfair enemy.

Fighting Common Enemy.

"Almost up to the present time there has existed, either with or without cause, an unfriendly feeling, approaching hostility, between the manufacturers and exchange men on the one side, and the exhibitors on the other side. The most dangerous and common enemy, however, the enemy of censorship, has caused the manufacturers, exchange men and exhibitors to thoroughly realize that each branch is just as important as the other two; that the interests of the three are interdependent; that an attack upon one is an attack upon all; that each is entitled to respect and confidence; that working together they constitute a powerful protection not only for themselves, but for the public welfare, and that no longer must they be a house divided against itself.'

"[illegible] without the common enemy, the [illegible] Picture Board of Trade of America, [illegible] formed solely for the purpose of [illegible]mating all interests to promote or defe[illegible] propaganda benefiting or destructive to the industry as a whole, would not have come into being.

"Eventually, it must, and will come about, that every one in every branch of the business, interested in the welfare of the whole, will belong to the Motion Picture Board of Trade, so that, all together, we will present a united front in support or against any issue helpful or detrimental to the welfare of the public or to ourselves. This, however, will not do away with or lessen the importance of associations or organizations in any one branch. It will merely mean that such organiza-

Detroit Free Press
News Rev

THEATRE

Crane and Kercheval Aves.

Saturday, February 12, 1916

"THE BIRTH OF OUR NATION"

IN EIGHT PARTS

Continuous Performance, Commencing 3. P. M. to 11 P. M. All Seats 10c

Positively No Free List

Sunday, February 13, 1916

ANITA STEWART

IN A MULTIPLE PART FEATURE

"UNCLE BILL"

CHARLIE CHAPLIN'S TWIN BROTHER

LONESOME LUKE IN ANOTHER RIOT OF LAUGHTER

SOME SHOW SUNDAY

BOOSTER NITE
ONDAY, FEB. 14th.
Biograph all star three part feature
"THE IRON WILL"
5 parts
and two other good comedies.
With $15.00
in cash and merchandise.

TUESDAY, FEB. 15th
A HAM AND BBUD COMEDY
"Artful Artists"
Essanay 3 part drama
"DESTINY"
Biograph presents
"HIS WIFE KNEW ABOUT IT" and
Two other features.

WEDNESDAY, FEB. 16th.
"FREDDIE'S LAST BEAN"
featuring William Dangman, the Freddie Ferrit of the Goddess series.
Three reel feature.
George Ade Fable, and two other good fun films.

THURSDAY, FEB. 17th
Vitagraph offers
"JANE'S BASHFUL HERO"
A Selig-Blue Diamond masterpiece
"THE BLACK ORCHID"
in three acts.
A Hazard of Helen episode and two other good pictures.

FRIDAY, FEB 18th
Stingaree"
The episode of
"THE VILAGE WOR
A Knickerbocker comedy
"THE HEART-BREA with two more pi

Preceding the "Birth ouf Our Nation" there will be a special children's matinee, from 1:30 until 3 p. m., at which the management will give every child a pay-envelope. The envelopes will contain money, from one cent to one dollar. Admission 5c. Every child will receive money.

REV. THOMAS DIXON OPPOSES CENSORS

Brands Federal Supervision as Most Dangerous Attack on American Liberties.

RETURN TO MIDDLE AGES

(Special Correspondence The Morning Telegraph.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.

Rev. Thomas Dixon, a classmate of President Wilson, and author of "The Clansman," the book upon which is founded the D. W. Griffith production of "The Birth of a Nation," one of the greatest of motion pictures, has gone on record before the House Committee on Education as strongly opposed to Federal censorship.

In two telegrams that have been made part of the record now before the committee, Mr. Dixon, internationally known as a novelist and playwright, advises the advocates of Federal censorship to "get rid of this bugaboo," asserts that censorship of motion pictures is "the most dangerous attack on American liberties since the foundation of the republic" and describes the project for censorship as a step backward into the Middle Ages, when Guttenberg's invention of the printing press was greeted with the shout, "This shall not be."

From a gentleman so beyond reproach the condemnation of the project for Federal censorship of films should be considered as important a factor in the situation as was the statement recently submitted in the House Education Committee by the Rev. Dr. Cyrus Townsend Brady, a Protestant Episcopal clergyman-novelist and author, who severely criticized the censorship project. Thomas Dixon, Jr., is a Southern man who entered the ministry and then gained fame in letters, just as the Rev. Dr. Cyrus Townsend Brady is a Northern man who has had a similar career of renown both in the church and as an author. These two prominent clergymen-novelists have clasped hands across Mason and Dixon's Line in a joint protest against censorship of the films, and especially against Federal censorship.

The Telegram.

From Hollywood, Cal., Mr. Dixon sent this telegram, which has been filed with the Hughes Committee:

"The principle of censorship is the same as that for which patriots in all ages have been contending. For the right of free speech and a free press our fathers came to America and revolutions disturbed the peace of Europe, but freedom of expression was won at last in nearly every civilized nation of the world, most notably of all in the United States.

"If I write a book, no censorship board goes to my publisher and asks to see the proofs. If I convert the same ideas into a play and keep within the bounds of decency provided by the common law, no censor can interpose his 'I forbid.' Book, play and lecture are safe by the inalienable rights of a free people; but just wait until I make these over into a moving picture—the theory is the same for book or picture. The parchment is exposed to a slightly different process, and instead of the written word the living light and the mountains, the sea, the sky and humanity itself are imprinted upon it. Get rid of this censorship bugaboo and let the motion picture realize the brilliant future that in all right lies before it.

"Thomas Dixon, Jr."

Mr. Dixon has followed this telegraphic protest with a supplementary telegram sent from New York City to Senator James E. Martine, of New Jersey, and which has also been turned over to the House Education Committee.

The Message to Senator Martine.

"Censorship of motion pictures is the most dangerous attack on American liberties since the foundation of the republic. The motion picture is a process of recording thought on yellow parchment without the use of printer's ink, and is as great an advance on printing as Guttenberg's invention was over the quill pen. The printing press revolutionized the world by bringing knowledge within the reach of thousands. The motion picture brings knowledge within the reach of hundreds of millions. To strangle this great art in its infancy will be a crime against humanity. Free speech is the foundation of our republic. There is no reason for censorship. The motion picture is now cleaner than the spoken drama or the press. The police powers of the States are already ample. Any citizen can close any theatre within an hour if the laws of morality are violated. A censorship of opinion is the aim of our enemies. Our fathers fled the Old World to escape this and founded the republic to free the human mind from such shackles. Shall we go back to the Middle Ages?

"I first preached 'The Clansman' as a sermon. No censor dared to silence my pulpit. I turned my sermon into a lecture and delivered it from Maine to California without license. I turned the lecture into a novel, and no censor has yet stopped the press of Doubleday, Page & Co. I turned the play into a motion picture, and it has cost me $75,000 in lawyers' fees to fight the local censors the first ten months. This condition of affairs is infamous. It is the immediate duty of Congress to reaffirm the principles of free speech in America and abolish all censors.

"Thomas Dixon, Jr."

"The Birth of a Nation."

Mrs. CHARLES S. BULLOCK and C. W. CLARK.—The character of Stoneman in "The Birth of a Nation" is generally understood to be Dixon's adaptation of the historical personage Thaddeus Stevens.

FILM MEN TO FIGHT STATE CENSORSHIP

Motion Picture Board of Trade Obtains Hearing for Industry on Ahern Measure.

TWENTY-THIRD IS DATE SET

Following the introduction of the Ahern State Censorship Bill at Albany, the motion picture interests have been preparing to fight the measure. J. W. Binder, secretary of the Motion Picture Board of Trade, has been in charge of the matter, and has succeeded in gaining a hearing for the industry before the Assembly Codes Committee on February 23.

Upon hearing of the bill, Mr. Binder at once telegraphed to Fred M. Ahern, but found that the Assemblyman was already on his way to New York. Over the telephone Mr. Ahern told the Board of Trade secretary that he could not give him a private conference, but acquiesced to the hearing on the twenty-third.

Mr. Binder is gratified to find that the film interests are all behind the Board of Trade in its fight against State censorship, even the Paramount-Lasky faction, which seceded from the main group in the Washington fight, having fallen into line in the local matter.

The delegation which will appear for the film industry before the Assembly Codes Committee includes Samuel Trigger, national vice president of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America; Lee Ochs, president of the State branch of the same organization, and several clergymen of prominence who are opposed to film censorship. Every branch of the industry will be represented through the Board of Trade and the Exhibitors' League, and it is hoped that many outsiders who do not favor the measure will appear when the hearing is due.

The Ahern bill provides for the creation of a State board to be appointed by the Governor, with the consent of the Senate. It is to consist of three members, which shall examine all motion picture films or reels, and approve such as shall be moral and proper, and shall disapprove such as are sacrilegious, obscene, indecent or immoral.

It is made the duty of every motion picture producer to furnish to the board, whenever required, a description of any motion picture. The members of the Board of Censors will receive annual salaries of $5,000.

BINDER ANSWERS CRAFTS'S ATTACK

Declares Only 2 Per Cent. of Film Industry Favors Federal Censorship.

CRAFTS ALTERS TACTICS

(Special Correspondence The Morning Telegraph.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.

J. W. Binder, executive secretary of the Motion Picture Board of Trade, has made a terse rejoinder to the attack made upon himself in a prepared statement issued in Washington by Rev. D. Wilber F. Crafts, superintendent of the International Reform Bureau, as part of the latter's campaign, or rather propaganda, in favor of Federal censorship of motion pictures.

The full text of the Crafts statement in which he indulged in a personal attack on Executive Secretary Binder, and which was printed in The Morning Telegraph last Sunday morning, has been mimeographed in the offices of the Crafts Reform Bureau and is being given wide circulation through the United States mails, being sent by him to newspaper correspondents in Washington, and to newspapers and organizations throughout the country in an effort to bolster up the fight for censorship.

An interesting new angle to the situation was disclosed to-day, when it became known that Representative Benjamin C. Hilliard of Colorado, a Democratic member of the House Education Committee, had received from J. W. Binder, executive secretary of the Motion Picture Board of Trade, a letter asserting that the only proponents of Federal censorship in the motion picture industry are the Lasky-Famous Players-Paramount group. Mr. Binder's letter reads as follows:

"My dear Mr. Hilliard—The only proponents of Federal censorship among the motion picture people, as will be proven by the printed record of the hearings, are the Lasky-Famous Players-Paramount group.

Based Upon Expediency.

"They represent, perhaps, less than 2 per cent. of the entire output of motion pictures in the United States. That their position regarding motion picture censorship is not based upon principle, but upon expediency, is proven by the attached copy of a telegram which reached me this morning from Los Angeles.

"The Motion Picture Producers' Association, whose committee signed the telegram in question, was organized by Mr. Lasky and his general manager, Goldfish, about six weeks ago. It is composed of sixteen of the largest producing companies on the Pacific Coast. In its membership are included companies co[illegible] mount group.

"When this associat[illegible] position taken by the [illegible] association on Federal [illegible] a special meeting and [illegible] appointed to lay out a [illegible] all forms of censorship [illegible] the association on this [illegible] shown by the telegram [illegible] copy of which is attach[illegible] mend it to your careful [illegible]

"It shows that the fif[illegible] tions composing the M[illegible] ducers' Association do [illegible] Lasky-Famous Players-[illegible] sition with regard to I[illegible] On the contrary, they d[illegible]

"I am sending you th[illegible] lieving that you are sin[illegible] the truth. Yours very tr[illegible]

"Exec[illegible]

The same information [illegible] ted to other members o[illegible] cation Committee. The [illegible] in Mr. Binder's letter r[illegible]

"Los Angeles, C[illegible]

"Motion Picture Board [illegible]

"18 East 41st St., N[illegible]

'The Motion Picture I[illegible] ation representing sixte[illegible] panies is opposed to ce[illegible] lieve that a proper und[illegible] public of the evils of cen[illegible] its elimination. We are [illegible] paign of education by m[illegible] literature. This we will [illegible] exchanges and exhibitor[illegible] to the public with blan[illegible] signed by the patrons of [illegible] ing the various legislativ[illegible] ish censorship. We ask [illegible] in this great educational [illegible] your distributors and ex[illegible] in this propaganda. Ad[illegible] western avenue, Los Ang[illegible]

"Motion Picture Produc[illegible]

"R.

"D.

"Th[illegible]

"P.

D. W. Griffith's [illegible]

From Los Angeles D[illegible] fith, who put "The Birth [illegible] fore the public, has se[illegible] telegraphic statement of [illegible]

"The motion picture ca[illegible] progress as an art or a [illegible] medium so long as it i[illegible] censorship. Let us be g[illegible] citizens the freedom giv[illegible] other forms of expressi[illegible] stage, the printed word [illegible] arts, and with the worke[illegible] fields. If we sin, let us [illegible] we beg and plead with yo[illegible] the sinning before you a[illegible] ishment. The greatest [illegible] country have urged upon [illegible] the slapstick comedies, t[illegible] timental mush stories, an[illegible] of history for our subje[illegible]

"They have told us re[illegible] tion picture could impre[illegible] as much of the truth [illegible] evening as months of stu[illegible] plish. As one eminent [illegible] in person, 'It teaches [illegible] ning.' The reason for t[illegible] the worst that is in pictu[illegible]

"Let those who tell us [illegible] invest money in a histo[illegible] not matter with what [illegible] approached, they would [illegible] be done without incurrin[illegible] certain part of our peo[illegible] unquestionably find its [illegible] action of the censor. T[illegible] period of history that [illegible] produced in a motion [illegible] no; arouse the prejudice [illegible] the present day. Yet no[illegible] make such an attempt [illegible] prevails.

"I was considering the [illegible] history of the American [illegible] year. It got into the [illegible] over the country I was [illegible] that this was not the ti[illegible] the American Revolution [illegible] lish and their sympathize[illegible] kindly during these emo[illegible] to the part the English p[illegible] of the American Revolut[illegible] Germans would not care [illegible] sians play the part they [illegible] story of our freedom.

"Already censorship is [illegible] the politicians, which m[illegible] ment happening to be in [illegible] controls the sentiment o[illegible] ture."

Crafts Changes [illegible]

Fearing that the unite[illegible] jority of the film men [illegible] defeat the enactment o[illegible] session of Congress for F[illegible]

MARYLAND CENSORSHIP FOUGHT BY FILM M[illegible]

Ways and Means Committee of the Legisla[illegible] Hears Protest of Delegation Against Bryant Bill.

(Special Correspondence The Morning Telegraph.)

ANNAPOLIS, Feb. 17.

Constitutional freedom as opposed to the despotic censorship which has so degraded some foreign countries was argued valiantly before the House Ways and Means Committee of the Maryland Legislature at Annapolis to-day. Distinguished moving picture men from many parts of the country attended the hearing, and they made a profound impression on the legislators before whom they spoke.

The far-reaching and deep-seated issues which affect the whole national life were brought forward in a discussion of a bill introduced by Mr. Bryant of Baltimore County, chairman of the committee, to censor moving picture exhibitions. The speeches against the bill, which would place an iron hand upon the industry, the fifth in importance in the United States, were delivered by Guy L. Wonders, president of the Exhibitors' League of Maryland; J. W. Binder, secretary of the Motion Picture Board of Trade; Fulton Brylawski, representing the distributors of films in Baltimore and Washington; W. Stephen Bush, Paul Croemlein, president of the Cosmo Photo Film Company, and Howard Bennett.

In addition to the speakers there was a large delegation. Harry B. Wolf of the Baltimore bar was present as counsel. The opponents of the bill were prepared to present more arguments, but they were limited to one hour.

Present Protest

They presented a protest against the bill signed by the owners or managers of every moving picture theatre in Baltimore. The protest says:

"Believing that censorship is unwarranted and un-American in principle and theory, working an unreasonable and unnecessary hardship upon this industry and all engaged therein; basing the belief upon the failure of the censor boards of the States of Pennsylvania, Ohio and Kansas to perform the duties for which they were created, we do hereby respectfully and earnestly protest against the so-called 'Censor Bill,' now pending in the House of Delegates."

During the hearing Mr. Bryant, the author of the bill, offered to accept amendments which would insure the censorship of pictures before their purchase and showing.

Mr. Wilkinson, a member of the committee, asked questions which indicated that he is unwilling to vote for any measure that would place unnecessary hardship upon the industry.

Reformers' Delegation.

After the opponents of the bill had spoken for over an hour, beginning at 9 o'clock, a delegation representing the Holy Name Society of the Catholic Church was heard in support of the bill. Louis McKim Kines, a Baltimore attorney, was spokesman for the delegation. He said that it is the aim of the society to co-operate with exhibitors of moving pictures in producing clean, healthful, moral shows that would uplift and not degrade those who see them. He contended that many films are exhibited in which vice, crime and all objectionable features of life are displayed. He said such shows are unwholesome and nauseating and tend to create unhealthy sentiments. It is possible that there may be another hearing before the bill is reported.

In the opening speech for the opposition Mr. Wonders said:

"Our fight against censorship is a fight for artistic pictures. Censorship means that somebody else is doing the thinking for you. We are presenting clean shows. Patrons attend our shows daily. They are satisfied. If these pictures were [illegible] the moral standard they woul[illegible] patronized."

J. W. Binder, speaking next, [illegible] "Our objections to this princi[illegible] fundamental grounds. If I utte[illegible] libelous subjects I am liable t[illegible] ment. A new method of though[illegible] devised. It is the motion p[illegible] thought of to-day is thrown on [illegible] to-morrow and is seen by 15,000[illegible] If I am permitted to express [illegible] words or to write my thoughts [illegible] I should be permitted to use [illegible] thought. Not until I use or w[illegible] ous word am I liable to punish[illegible] should we not have the same [illegible] expressing this third thought [illegible] be prejudged? Shall we be [illegible] politically appointed body? S[illegible] Democrat, I should want to [illegible] campaign for the Democratic [illegible] show would I have if this p[illegible] is composed of Republicans? [illegible] sylvania and Kansas have m[illegible] take of enacting censorship la[illegible] police have the power to supp[illegible] pictures. Ours is a great [illegible] fifth in this country. It sh[illegible] made a football of legislation.

Distributors Affect[illegible]

Fulton Brylawski, represen[illegible] tributors of films, said:

"Your bill affects the exc[illegible] materially. There are 250 fil[illegible] tured every year. This would [illegible] of $500 per week in Maryla[illegible] ber of objectionable pictures [illegible] every one hundred. In othe[illegible] are taxing ninety-nine good [illegible] objectionable. If your bill t[illegible] there are between 25,000 an[illegible] in Maryland ready for na[illegible] impose a tax of $50,000 or [illegible] whole State. These are all [illegible] If the censors eliminate th[illegible] in a film you would destroy [illegible] film which cost from $200 [illegible] You had just as well cut o[illegible] ant pages in a book. Shall [illegible] films down to suit children o[illegible] of age? If you do you wil[illegible] sible the exhibition of our [illegible] The censors of Pennsylvan[illegible] cut out pictures representing [illegible] best plays. These plays have [illegible] to conform to censors' idea[illegible] suitable for boys and girls [illegible] A film showing a mother [illegible] for an unborn child was [illegible] censors say that children [illegible] lieve that babies are broug[illegible] storks or found in cabbag[illegible] censors said that children[illegible] not be destroyed.

"By the terms of your [illegible] posters and newspaper adv[illegible] you impose this hardshi[illegible] pictures the price of adm[illegible] to be increased, while ma[illegible] pelled to go out of busine[illegible]

No Complai[illegible]

Mr. Wilkinson asked i[illegible] interfere with Bennett's [illegible] said Mr. Bennett. "I h[illegible] films four or five weeks [illegible] advertise these films a[illegible] If they are to be disc[illegible] ship I shall be subject [illegible]

"Have you ever recei[illegible] on the character of ye[illegible] Mr. Wilkinson.

"No. I turned my t[illegible] resentatives of the Mot[illegible] reported that they fo[illegible] tionable. In ten yea[illegible] about fifty feet from [illegible] I thought might prov[illegible] My weekly operating [illegible] creased in ten years f[illegible] intendent of the Reform Bureau to "its members and others in New Jersey, New York and other States where Legislatures are in session":

"International Reform Bureau, Inc., a bureau of lectures, literature and law for promoting moral and social reforms.

"Washington, D. C.

"Dear Friend—I see in the papers that the New Jersey 'State censorship bill of the Holy Name Society was opposed (at the State Legislature) by film men, on the ground that it was un-American, and for the further reason that a Federal law is now before Congress.' As the leader of the forces of all denominations that are asking Congress for Federal censorship, with the co-operation of the Paramount, Lasky, Equitable, World and Famous Players film companies, permit me to say to citizens and other legislators of New Jersey and other States where Legislatures are in session, that, as the great majority of film men are fighting Federal censorship, and may delay its enactment unless a larger number of the high-grade film men rally to its support, we advise that the work for local censorship be vigorously pressed in every Legislature, and local censorship also, such as the Mayor of Orange has threatened unless the exhibition of vile pictures shall cease.

"Every Mayor in the United States can suppress vile shows, either by canceling licenses or by the use of the police power, and should be asked to do so on the [illegible] the

Topeka Daily State Journal — (Kans.)

FEBRUARY 14, 1916

FIRST GUN FIRED

Battle Is Begun by Owners of "Birth of a Nation"

To Force Censors to Permit Showing of Picture.

A CASE IS FILED IN COURT

Asking for Writ of Mandamus Against W. D. Ross.

Complaint Against Authorities Set Forth in Much Detail.

Owners of "The Birth of a Nation," heralded as the world's greatest moving picture feature film, threw away the light field artillery with which they have been fighting for the admission of the picture into Kansas and today unlimbered their heavy siege guns by taking the controversy into the courts. Suit for writ of mandamus to compel W. D. Ross, state motion picture censor, to affix his signature of approval to the film was filed in the Shawnee county district court this morning by owners of the film against Ross through Attorneys Edwin McKeever, J. J. Schenck and Edward Nelson. The latter attorney is a prominent member of the Minneapolis bar. Schenck and McKeever are well known Topeka lawyers.

Shortly before noon today attorneys for the owners of the film appeared before Judge Dana and asked for an alternative writ of mandamus which was granted. It commands W. D. Ross to appear before the court February 16 and show cause why he has not approved the film.

Although no definite date was set for hearing of argument of the writ, lawyers will probably argue the case before Judge Dana next Friday, it was said this morning. The most important question before the court will be: Is the film immoral or is it not. It is expected Schenck, McKeever and Nelson will call upon a goodly number of those in the audience when the picture was shown here to testify.

Several weeks ago, Ross, acting independently, it is said, turned down the film after it had been shown before a select audience of 200 state officials city and county officials, newspaper men and prominent men in Topeka private life. The mammoth production moved this audience—men and women alow to show emotion—to wild applause and unshed tears.

First in Kansas.

The suit today is the first of its kind ever filed in Kansas. Fight after fight has been made against the Kansas moving picture censorship on moral grounds but this is the first time that the action of the censor has ever been questioned in court.

Today's suit is sensational and detailed. It consists of seven pages. Legally and politely the petition gives the lie to Censor Ross in answer to his contentions that the film is immoral. But that is not all. The attorneys of the film owners in their petition brand Ross's act in turning down the film as "a capricious and unlawful act."

The petition further says:

"The plaintiff is engaged in the business of exhibiting said photo play in several of said states, and that the same has been shown by plaintiff in the states of Minnesota, Iowa, North Dakota, Montana, Wyoming, Nebraska, Colorado and Idaho, to large and enthusiastic audiences, and that the play has run in the city of Minneapolis, Minnesota, for more than two hundred performances.

Of Absorbing Interest.

"That said photo play, 'The Birth of a Nation,' consists of many thousand feet of films and the finished production thereof is of absorbing interest, of high artistic merit, and is moral and instructive; that both lovable and unworthy characters of both the white and black races are shown but in all instances true to human nature, without exaggeration, caricaturing or unkindness; that the characters and situations are depicted as they were during the period just preceding the Civil war, and during the period of reconstruction following it, no scene being shown of events later than the year 1871; that the play, 'The Birth of a Nation,' is in all respects, moral, instructive and proper; and it is not sacrilegious, obscene, indecent or immoral, nor does it tend to corrupt the morals and the film is in all respects fit for exhibition; that the beauty of the play is enhanced in the presentation of the same by plaintiff by synchronized music played by an adequate orchestra, making a superb setting for the play.

Historic and Dramatic Interest.

"Plaintiff states that he is informed and believes that the idea of said photo play was conceived on an un-[illegible] munificence and [illegible] dramatic interest of Griffith, the [illegible] employed many [illegible] and [illegible] for which said performers, or [illegible] picture actors as they are commonly known, were by the said Griffith paid liberal and munificent salaries, and that in addition to said leading performers or actors, many thousand men, women and children were employed in the production of the various scenes, and that many buildings, articles of furniture and apparel and other property forms, were purchased or leased by the said Griffith at a very great expense, for the taking of said picture, and the work of such preparation continuously occupied the time, energy and talents of said Griffith and said performers for a period of over eight months from after June, 1914, until the month of February, 1915, and the said Griffith paid out and incurred in and about such preparation large sums of money amounting in the aggregate to more than $100,000.

Shown in Many Places.

"Plaintiff states that he is informed and believes that since said month of February, 1915, said photoplay has been exhibited in the states of California, Oregon, Tennessee, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Wisconsin, Texas, Mississippi, Washington, Rhode Island, West Virginia, Indiana, Missouri, Florida, Virginia, Michigan, Arkansas, Oklahoma, North Carolina, New Jersey, Georgia, New York, Vermont, New Hampshire, Maine, Connecticut, Louisiana, Kentucky and the Dominion of Canada, and one company is now on the ocean on its way to exhibit the same in Australia; that although a price of admission has been charged far beyond any heretofore attempted in the case of any other photoplay, to-wit: $2 per person, said play has been and still is being displayed to hundreds of thousands of people in various cities throughout the country, having been viewed by over five million people and has just finished a run at Liberty theater at New York City, where it was played continually from March 3, 1915, having passed its forty-fifth week and having been seen for over seven hundred consecutive performances by more than six hundred thousand people in New York City; that it was seen for over four hundred consecutive performances in the city of Boston, Mass.; for over three hundred consecutive performances in Chicago, Ill.; for about two hundred performances in Philadelphia, Pa.; for over fifteen weeks in San Francisco, Calif., and for over twenty-two weeks in Los Angeles, Calif., and for over one hundred and fifty-two consecutive performances in St. Louis, Mo., and that said photoplay has been passed by the National Board of Censorship and by the State Board of Censors of the state of Pennsylvania.

Indorsed at Washington.

"Plaintiff further states that he is informed and believes that in the month of February, 1915, said photo play was exhibited at Hotel Raleigh in the city of Washington, D. C., under the auspices of the National Press club, at which were present as guests at said club many distinguished persons, in official life, consisting of the judges of the highest federal courts, senators and representatives in the congress of the United States, members of the diplomatic corps accredited to the government of Washington, and wives and daughters of the members of said club and their guests, all of whom recommended said production in terms of highest praise, for its fidelity in reproducing scenes, persons and places, its marvelous art and photography and its educational value and excellence."

McKeever, Schenck and Nelson, in answer to Ross's contentions that the picture is "immoral and indecent" promise further sensations when argument of the case is taken up during the latter part of this week. The attorneys expect to put prominent men and women who witnessed the exhibition at the Grand January 6 to testify that the film is not immoral and there is not the least sign of race prejudice, as claimed by the censors, whom they expect to "put under he gun" in a fight to the finish to show "The Birth of a Nation" before Kansas people.

TIMES, LOUISVILLE

Feb. 18 1916

SAYS PHOTOPLAY HAS STIMULATED RACE PREJUDICE

W. A. Heck Has Manager Bigelow, of Macauley's, Placed Under Arrest.

THINKS RIOT IS POSSIBLE

Trouble Grows Out of the Presentation of "The Birth of a Nation."

W. A. Heck to-day took out a warrant in Magistrate R. O. Dorsey's court against Anson Bigelow, manager of Macauley's Theater, charging a violation of the Kentucky Statutes. The charge is the outgrowth of the manager of the playhouse allowing the film, "The Birth of a Nation," to be shown. The warrant was served on Mr. Bigelow by Constable William Fulton.

Mr. Heck alleged that the film violated Section C of the Kentucky Statutes, 1378, which makes it unlawful to arouse antagonism between former master and slave or arouse race prejudice. The statute was enacted in 1906. Mr. Bigelow is treasurer of the Louisville Paper Company. Mr. Heck said that in his opinion there was no doubt but that the picture was arousing race prejudice.

Mr. Heck does not represent the Louisville branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. This organization asked Mayor Buschemeyer to stop the showing of the picture before its production here. Mayor Buschemeyer turned down the request.

* * *

Acts on Own Initiative.

Heck is an attorney, having office at room 218 Louisville Trust building, Fifth and Market streets. I took out the warrant upon my own individual responsibility," he said to a reporter for The Times.

"I consider the show, 'The Birth of a Nation,' demoralizing, anarchy breeding, and that it will stir up race hatred and riots. It is purely a violation of the Kentucky Statutes.

"The play includes scenes from 'The Clansman' and 'The Leopard's Spots.' I had an interview with Thomas Dixon, author of these books, at Norfolk, Va., in 1913, in which he stated that he intended to have the books reproduced in photoplays and hoped that when shown generally would stir up such race hatred that the negro would be driven from the United States.

"Since the 'Birth of a Nation' has been shown in Louisville I have heard threats on the streets both by negroes and whites. That is what prompted me to take out the warrant."

"I have seen the play twice this week and have called at the theater on two other occasions and found the theater crowded. I propose to take out additional warrants. Each performance is a separate and distinct violation of the law. I found the play so filled with race hatred that although I had provided her a ticket I have forbidden my wife attending."

Section C of the Kentucky Statutes, 1376, upon which the warrant against Mr. Bigelow is based, reads as follows: "Plays that excite prejudice forbidden—That it shall be unlawful for any person to present, or to participate in the presentation of, or to permit to be presented in any opera house, theater, hall or other building under his control, any play that is based upon antagonism alleged formerly to exist between master and slave, or that excites race prejudice."

The penalty for violation is a fine of not less than $100 or more than $500, or imprisonment in the county jail from one to three months.

HAWAII TERRITORY, HONOLULU,

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 17, 1916.

'BIRTH OF A NATION' MAY BE BARRED HERE

Mayor Lane Fears Picture Might Excite Racial Feelings

There is a possibility that the board of supervisors and the mayor will take a hand in not permitting the picture, "The Birth of a Nation," to be shown here, as advertised, unless they are convinced that it is one that is entirely proper to be shown in this cosmopolitan community.

Mayor Lane yesterday called on the treasurer of the city with a view to having him refuse to issue a license for the production of the play and that official took the matter under advisement, as it is not known yet whether the play is "immoral" as contemplated in the statute providing for the licensing of shows.

Mayor Lane is of the opinion that as the picture is one said to play on race prejudice, in a community of the kind Honolulu has it would be unwise to show it here.

Friday, February 18, 1916

Argument Against ederal Film Censorship

SYLVANIA has a State Board of Censors for moving picture s.

ast week these sapient guardians of the public ordered the Street Opera House, in Philadelphia, to cut out seventy-five lm because they contained pictures of Kaiser Wilhelm and rshal von Hindenburg.

Board of Censors says that it acted under authority of the rohibiting scenes that are "sacrilegious, obscene, indecent or r that tend to debase or corrupt public morals."

irst impulse is to laugh at the ridiculous officials who are able er something sacrilegious or obscene or injurious to public photographs of the German Emperor and his celebrated Field

e same ridiculous mental processes another equally absurd Censors would forbid showing photographic likenesses of rge or King Albert or President Poincare.

t, there would be no limit to the asinine decrees a sufficiently oard of Censors might promulgate.

for this very reason that The American earnestly protests e bill in Congress to establish a National Board of Censors of ctures.

aintain that the freedom of occupation and the liberty of pub- ould both be violated by such a censorship, and we cite this ylvania incident as ample proof that such violations of funda- stitutional rights do actually occur when a small number of e given arbitrary power to control the amusement and the of their fellow citizens.

is no reason to doubt that a Federal Board of Censors would rbitrary as a State Board of Censors.

is the inevitable result of bureaucratic authority that the become species of petty tyrants—a sort of two-for-a-cent usually wind up by adding corruption and bribe-taking to ous and absurd exhibitions of irresponsible authority.

he moving picture is at once a school, a university and a s, and by every dictate of common sense, as well as by the and guarantees of the Constitution itself, it should be left at rty to exercise its tripartite function of amusing, informing ting the people.

ws which regulate other schools and other publications are ce to regulate the moving pictures, to punish license and nd viciousness—and those laws are ample and sufficient as without any censorship whatsoever.

otest against this proposed censorship of the moving picture he same identical grounds upon which we would protest proposed censorship of the printed press.

nstitutional arguments against one are on all-fours with the al arguments against the other.

moving picture is not only an entertainment and an instruc- lso a moral force. It makes people innocently happier. And ppiness is as important to the best development of fine any other influence or virtue.

pecially is the usefulness of the moving picture evident in communities, where, from the very force of the circumstance pulation, the broadening influences of life have been some- g.

idents of these smaller communities now have brought hem the liberalizing effects of travel, of foreign scenery, of and habits of other peoples, of the social conditions of the imagine nothing else so liberalizing, so instructive, so character.

hus liberalizing, thus uplifting, thus popular, the moving t tell the truth and must be ALLOWED TO TEL THE will NOT be allowed to tell the truth if it is ever subject ctions of narrow-minded and stupid and bigoted and arbi- s.

mas Jefferson wisely and nobly said, the best governed least governed people.

ous Declaration affirms the right of every human being to and the pursuit of happiness." And every one of us has le right to choose the happiness that suits him best, subject ule that he must not injure others.

ave the guaranteed right to read and to talk as we please ve as we please and, as a natural corollary, to seek such t of the eye as pleases us in the moving picture theatre.

not a privilege, conceded by any Congress or granted by censors.

N INHERENT, INALIENABLE, NATURAL RIGHT, a xistence, born with us into the world.

ach one of you has the absolute right to select and to read rs and magazines which best please you, so each one of you ute right to choose for yourself what moving pictures you .

rightful board of censors is the public itself. And it is a ors which can be thoroughly depended upon to make bad pular and financial failures.

e theory of our national life is that the majority of the what is best for the people and are entitled, of right, to .

y of a censorship is that the majority of the people do not ood for them and must not have their way, but the way prescribed for them by a handful of wiser overseers.

We shall resist that un-American theory of govern life, in whatever form it shows its ugly features, as long can is printed.

In the name of individual liberty, in the name of the Consti guarantees, in the interest of good citizenship and of public happine and education and advancement, we protest to Congress against this undemocratic, un-American, reactionary, bureaucratic proposal to institute, in this free country, a Russian censorship over the amusements and instructions afforded to millions every day by the admirable device of moving pictures—the most effective entertainers and teachers the wit of man has ever conceived.

THE BEST JUDGE!

Copyright, 1916, International News Service

Feb 19

AVERS FILM PLAY VIOLATES STATUTE

Attorney Secures Warrant For Manager Of Theater Showing "The Birth Of A Nation."

HAS HEARD THREATS, HE SAYS; FEARS RACE HATRED

"Demoralizing, Anarchy-Breeding" Are Few Of Terms Used By William A. Heck.

In an effort to put an end to the engagement of "The Birth of a Nation" at Macauley's Theater, William A. Heck, an attorney, took out a warrant yesterday for the arrest of A. A. Bigelow, manager of the theater.

The warrant was served by Constable William Fulton and the case will be heard in Magistrate Dorsey's Court.

Mr. Heck alleges that the showing of the film is a violation of the Kentucky Statutes, Section 1376, which makes it unlawful to arouse antagonism between former master and slave, or to arouse race prejudice. The statute was enacted in 1906.

To reporters yesterday afternoon, Mr. Heck stated that in his opinion there was no doubt that the showing of the picture is arousing race prejudice, and that in swearing to the warrant he was not representing the National Association for the Advancement of Negroes, but was acting upon his own responsibility.

Says It's Demoralizing.

Representatives of the Negro Advancement Association appeared before Mayor Buschemeyer last week protesting the showing of the picture. The Mayor refused to accede to their requests, however.

Mr. Heck stated, "I consider the picture, 'The Birth of a Nation,' demoralizing, anarchy breeding, and believe it will stir up race hatred and riots. It is purely a violation of the Kentucky Statutes."

"Since the 'Birth of a Nation' has been shown in Louisville I have heard threats on the streets both by negroes and white persons. That is what prompted me to have the warrant issued. I propose also to take out more warrants."

Seen by Crowded Houses.

The attorney stated that he had seen the show twice since it had been in Louisville, and that both times the theater was crowded. He said he found the play so filled with race hatred, that altho he had provided a ticket for his wife, he had refused her using it.

The section of the Kentucky Statutes upon which the warrant against Mr. Bigelow was issued, is as follows:

That it shall be unlawful for any person to present, or to participate in the presentation of, or to permit to be presented in any opera house, theater, hall or other building under his control, any play that is based upon antagonism alleged formerly to exist between master and slave, or that excites race prejudice.

"The penalty for violation is a fine of not less than $100 or more than $500 or imprisonment in the County Jail from one to three months.

FEAR RACE FEUD; ARREST MANAGER

Louisville Lawyer Says "The Birth of a Nation" Will Enrage Negro Public.

BLACKS THREATEN THE SHOW

(Special Dispatch to The Morning Telegraph.)

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Feb. 18.

William A. Heck, an attorney, sprang a sensation here to-day when he caused the arrest of Anson O. Bigelow, manager of Macauley's Theatre, where the Griffith film, "The Birth of a Nation" has been showing since Monday.

Heck, who says he is acting on his own initiative, says the play is likely to lead to race hatred and riots and made the assertion that already much prejudice exists between the two races because Mayor John Buschmeyer refused to accede to the requests of colored citizens to bar the film from Louisville. The play is booked to run all next week.

Attorney Heck dug up an old "master and slave" statute on which his warrant was based. This reads: "Plays that excite prejudice forbidden—That it shall be unlawful for any person to present, or to participate in the presentation of, or to permit to be presented in any opera house, theatre, hall or other building under his control, any play that is based upon antagonism alleged formerly to exist between master and slave, or that excites race prejudice."

The penalty for violation is a fine of not less than $100 or more than $500, or imprisonment in the county jail from one to three months.

Regarding his action, Mr. Heck said: "The play includes scenes from "The Clansman" and "The Leopard's Spots." I had an interview with Thomas Dixon, author of these books, at Norfolk, Va., in 1913, in which he stated that he intended to have the books reproduced in photo-plays. Since 'The Birth of a Nation' has been shown in Louisville, I have heard threats on the streets both by negroes and whites. That is what prompted me to take out the warrant.

"I have seen the play twice this week and have called at the theatre on two other occasions and found the theatre crowded. I propose to take out additional warrants. Each performance is a separate and distinct violation of the law."

JURISDICTION OF SQUIRE DORSEY'S COURT ATTACKED

Case Against A. A. Bigelow, Manager of Macauley's, Is Continued to Friday.

Attorneys Edmund F. Trabue and S. L. Barker, representing A. A. Bigelow, manager of Macauley's Theater, who was arrested Friday, charged with violation of the Kentucky statutes in allowing the photoplay, "The Birth of a Nation," to be exhibited, filed a demurrer in Magistrate R. O. Dorsey's court at St. Matthews this morning, attacking the court's jurisdiction in the case.

Magistrate Dorsey took the demurrer under submission, saying he wished to look up the law and consult with the County Attorney before ruling on the demurrer. The case was continued until 10 o'clock Friday morning.

The warrant against Mr. Bigelow was taken out by W. A. Heck, an attorney. It charges Mr. Bigelow with violation of Section C, Kentucky Statutes 1376, which makes it unlawful to arouse race prejudice by stage representation. The complainant terms the photodrama "demoralizing and anarchy-breeding." He claims that threats he overheard on the street, made both by negroes and whites, prompted him to take steps toward suppression of the pictures in Louisville.

When the case was called to-day Heck announced that he had not been notified until last night that the warrant had been served and had had no opportunity to summon witnesses. He said that unless the defendant would agree to the submission of an affidavit he would ask a continuance. Mr. Bigelow's counsel filed the demurrer to the warrant, attacking the right of Magistrate Dorsey to try the case. Attorneys Heck, Trabue and Barker argued the demurrer a few minutes, after which Magistrate Dorsey took the question under submission and continued the case on the docket until next Friday.

The objection to the jurisdiction of Magistrate Dorsey in the case is based on Section 1093, of the Kentucky Statues, which provides that the jurisdiction of a Magistrate Court in a penal action is limited to those cases in which the punishment is fixed at a fine not exceeding $100, or imprisonment not exceeding fifty days, or both. Section C, Kentucky Statutes 1376, under which the action against Mr. Bigelow is brought, provides a penalty of not less than $100 and as much as $500, or imprisonment in the county jail of from thirty to ninety days, or both. The defendant claims that the maximum punishment for both the fine and imprisonment or for either of them is in excess of the jurisdiction of the court.

My American

Feb 19

Page

Mr. Littleton on Federal Censorship

MARTIN W. LITTLETON
Lawyer
140 Broadway
New York

To the Editor of The American:

SIR—I have just finished reading with much interest and instruction the editorial appearing in the New York American of date February 18, 1916, entitled, "An Argument Against Federal Censorship."

Inasmuch as I appeared before the House Committee on Education on January 19 last in opposition to the Hughes-Smith bill providing for Federal censorship of moving pictures, I take the liberty of sending you extracts of my remarks made before said committee at that time for your perusal or use.

MARTIN W. LITTLETON.

New York City, Feb. 18, 1916.

Following are extracts from Mr. Littleton's address referred to above:

"IF any man desires a picture prohibited in a city, town or place where theatres are licensed, he need not invoke even the police power of the State; he need not appeal to the censor board; he need only go to the license bureau from which is obtained the license to run the theatre building and convince that bureau that the situation is one that requires its interference, and that bureau will say to the lessees: 'You cannot have pictures produced here which offend the morals or decency of the community. If you do, we will revoke your license.'

SOME VITAL QUERIES.

"Have the States been prostrated? Is the police power debauched? Will the States not do their duty? Can you, gentlemen, can any member of the House say that his State is so dumb, so dead, so selfish, that it will not discharge its duty to protect the morals of its people?

"Have you no way of settling the matter in your own States?

"Have we really gone so far that we must appeal to Congress to protect the morals of the people of the various States? I believe no man is willing to say that his State will not do it. Then why this bill here? What is the necessity?

"You have said in the bill that the commission shall license every film submitted to it and intended for entrance into interstate commerce unless it finds that said film is obscene, indecent, immoral, inhuman, and so forth. Will you undertake to tell the commission what is indecent, what is obscene, what is inhuman? Yet this is the province of Congress if it has got any province.

"If it is finally said that there is a demand by the people of this country, and you are trying to carry out the demand, can you carry out the demand by turning over to five men to do something that you are unwilling or unable to do?

"Why do you tell five men: 'You can find out whether this is immoral or not.' Can you not write that in your Act? Can you give them any standard in the great region of morality? Who can tell what is moral and what is immoral? Can Congress tell?

"Are you discharging your duty if you are responding to the will of the people of this country by saying: 'W[illegible] the commission the pow[illegible] is indecent, immoral an[illegible] [illegible] ask you to write son[illegible] because that i[illegible] hich you a[illegible] write it d[illegible]

[illegible] call on [illegible] this question, and [illegible] turn, leave it to a body [illegible] answer it? What is an [illegible]ture or film which shall be [illegible] from the view of the public?

"Congress is speaking for the people. Will it write into the law an answer to this question, or will it remit us to an appointive board for the answer? Do the people demand that Congress shall enact laws prohibiting immoral films or pictures? If so, will Congress obey that demand and write a law setting forth what the people wish prohibited as immoral, or will it answer the demand by telling the people it has turned over that great question to five appointive and underpaid men?

"If all of this is answered by saying that Congress cannot define what is, or what is not, an immoral picture, and cannot write a law which will fix the standard, then how could we hope that five nominees of the President will be blessed with the wisdom or endowed with the genius to strike the line of cleavage between a moral and an immoral film or picture?"

My [illegible]

(Special Correspondence to The Morning Telegraph.)

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Feb. 21.

Plans for a monster campaign against censorship were completed at the last meeting of the Motion Picture Producers' Association. To exhibitors throughout the United States will be sent slips containing a vigorous protest against censorship. These slips will contain a blank space for a signature. They will be passed out to the theatregoers, who will be asked to sign as an indication of their antagonism to the censors. When the names are returned they will be formed into one great petition, which will be forwarded to President Wilson. There will also be put into circulation 15,000 slides showing censorship in its worst form. It is expected that the signatures obtained in this manner will run well into the millions and clearly show the attitude of the American people upon this really momentous question. A movement is also under way to have the Presidential candidates include in their platform their stand on motion picture censorship.

the [illegible]
[illegible]

Courier-Journal.

ALLIED PRINTING TRADES UNION LABEL COUNCIL

SATURDAY...FEBRUARY 19, 1916.

EFFORT TO SUPPRESS FILM CAUSES MANAGER'S ARREST

ANSON BIGELOW IS CHARGED WITH VIOLATION OF STATUTE.

LAWYER SAYS HE IS ACTING ON OWN ACCOUNT.

FEARS "BIRTH OF A NATION"

Steps for suppression of the motion picture play "The Birth of a Nation" were taken yesterday when Anson Bigelow, manager of Macauley's Theater, was arrested charged with a violation of the Kentucky Statutes. Constable William Fulton served a warrant on Mr. Bigelow at his office at the Louisville Paper Company, of which he is treasurer. He gave bond for his appearance this morning before Magistrate R. O. Dorsey at St. Matthews.

The prosecution was instituted by W. A. Heck, an attorney having office in room 218 Louisville Trust Company building. It was reported that Mr. Heck was representing the Louisville branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. This organization asked Mayor John H. Buschemeyer to stop the showing of the picture before its production here, but the Mayor turned down the request. Heck says his interest is personal and that he acted upon his own responsibility, denying he represents any organization. He said the case for trial this morning will be a test and that he intends to obtain additional warrants, maintaining that each performance is a violation of Section C Kentucky Statutes 1376, which makes it unlawful to arouse antagonism between former master and slave, or to arouse race prejudice. When he took out the warrant against Mr. Bigelow the complaining witness termed the picture play "demoralizing and anarchy breeding," contending that it stirs up race hatred. He claims that threats he overheard on the streets, made both by negroes and whites, prompted him to take steps toward its suppression in Louisville.

"I was at two performances," he said. "Some of the scenes are taken from the books 'The Clansman' and 'The Leopard's Spots.' I had an interview with Thomas Dixon, the author, in Norfolk, Va., in 1913, during which he stated that he intended to have the books reproduced in photographs.

"Such scenes as white women assaulted by negroes arouse race hatred and riots may result. Although I had provided a ticket for my wife I have forbidden her attending."

Section C reads "that it shall be unlawful for any person to present, or to participate in the presentation of, or to permit to be presented in any operahouse, theater, hall or other building under his control, any play that is based upon antagonism alleged formerly to exist between master and slave, or that excites race prejudice."

The law was enacted in 1906. The penalty for violation is a fine of not less than $100 or more than $500, or imprisonment in a county jail of from one to three months.

SAY CENSORSHIP IS UN-AMERICAN

New York Representatives of Photo-Play Interests Talk Plainly Before Committee.

AHERN'S MEASURE IS FLAYED

(Special Dispatch to The Morning Telegraph.)

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 25.

In opposition to the bill creating a State Board of Censors for the purpose of regulating the exhibitions of motion pictures, introduced into the Assembly by Fred M. Ahern of Kings, a large delegation representing the picture interests in the State of New York appeared at a hearing before the Assembly Committee on Codes, Wednesday, and in something over four hours presented the case for the motion picture industry in clear and effective form.

The New York delegation reached Albany at noon and held a conference at the Ten Eyck Hotel, prior to the Assembly hearing. At two o'clock the first speaker, Lee A. Ochs, president of the New York State Motion Picture Exhibitors' League, opened the assault upon the Ahern bill before the committee.

In his first words, the speaker forced the point that any form of governmental, pre-publicity censorship would be un-American and in violation of the ideals of the people of this country. The least of the resultant evils, he insisted, would be the vast monetary loss to a great and growing industry. He wished to correct a widespread fallacy, he declared, now prevailing in the public mind, to the effect that exhibitors of motion pictures were all either wealthy or rapidly becoming so. He asserted as a positive fact, supporting the statement by statistics, that fifty per cent. of the exhibitors in the State were not making a living and that less than thirty per cent. were breaking even, while a scant twenty per cent. were realizing a fair profit on their investment.

"Off Color" Pictures Fail.

A significant statement in the address of Ochs was to the effect that "off color" pictures, in the neighborhoods with which he was familiar were complete failures. Continuing, he said:

"There are certain neighborhoods, of course, where such pictures would draw good houses. But those of us who know New York City and the other centers of the State, and have confidence in our own citizenship, know that these neighborhoods are few and far between and count for absolutely nothing in the business of motion picture entertainment. I may say to this committee, with the authority of experience, that the Ahern censorship bill would destroy motion picture entertainment in this State—a form of entertainment and a means of education which reaches that great body of Americans known in political oratory as the common masses of the common people."

William M. Capes, of the Mayors' Conference, said he was opposed to the bill on four definite grounds:

First, there is no provision for court review; therefore the proposed measure is unconstitutional.

Second, as drawn, it was ineffective and undesirable.

Third, it would open the door to political, business and religious pressure, and would be made impossible of fair interpretation by a board of three members.

Fourth, it would be a physical impossibility for the board to review and censor all films produced.

Arthur S. Friend, of the Paramount, Famous Players, Lasky, World and Equitable organizations, after saying that he did not represent the Moroseo interests, pointed out that manufacturers of motion pictures are not now engaged in the production of pictures for any State or local community in the Union, and that State censorship would make impossible the production of the great pictures now demanded by the public. The better and bigger element among the manufacturers, he asserted, has no thought to realize quick and easy money from making bad pictures. The ultimate success of the industry, he was sure, depends entirely upon clean pictures. State censorship, he said, would put the majority of the manufacturers out of business.

Why Act is a Menace.

Assemblyman Davis of Rome interjected: "Why will it put them out of business?"

"If there were forty-eight different enactments there would be forty-eight differen standards and brands of censorship," was the reply. "It would be impossible to manufacture a picture which would please the majority of these forty-eight different boards. It now costs from $25,000 to $150,000 for a single production, which is sure to meet with general public approval. If such a film is censored, it becomes mere junk. The continuity of the story is lost. Then, too, if two, three, four or a dozen State boards ban a picture, all possibility of profit is gone. Operating under these conditions, there would be no first-class pictures."

J. W. Binder's address to the committee was short and to the point. He showed that pre-publicity censorship of motion picture films was fundamentally wrong, violating the basic principles of a free government maintained by a free people. He said: "There are three means of expression—speech, the printed word and the motion picture. The Federal Constitution guarantees the freedom of speech and the press. The third, newest and most vivid means of expression, the motion picture, cannot be shackled and the other two remain free. Twelve million Americans already gain entertainment and ideas daily from motion pictures, and the possibility of the sound development of screen uses are beyond the imagination of any man."

To bring out the absolute unfairness of any form of censorship, Mr. Binder called attention to a case in Pittsburg, where the Pennsylvania State Censorship law proved its absolute failure. Because, he said, the Board of Censors condemned a scene in "The Battle Cry of Peace," which shows a mother shooting her two daughters to prevent them from falling into the hands of the foreign foe, in New York, the management of the Pitt Theatre removed the scene from the picture and portrayed the action with living persons, over whom the Board had no control.

In reply to a question put by some of the clerical proponents of the bill, Binder quoted from the published statements of the Very Rev. Thomas Edward Shields, A. M., JhD., LL.D., of the Catholic University at Washington, to the effect that "the evil of the motion picture is constantly decreasing and the good increasing at a very rapid rate." Father Shields said: "I know of no other force in the last twenty years that has gained in power for good at the same rate as the moving picture." In other sentences, he said: "I am in favor of any legislation that would in any degree take away government for the people and by the people, and in its place substitute the conscience of any five men—I do not care if they are the best men in the land, because even if they are the best in the land, the fathers and mothers have the right to exercise authority over their children, and the pastors have the right to advise them. You cannot take away from the individual his right to judge, his right to freedom of thought, and put it into the hands of a commission. It would be a very dangerous thing for the Congress of the United States to attempt to override the individual and undertake to substitute a national conscience for an individual conscience."

Dr. Cranston Brenton explained that the word censorship, as used in the title of the National Board of Censorship was a misnomer and probably would be changed. He said the National Board, as constituted, was a Board of Review—an editorial and advisory board without legally constituted authority, which had been of great help to the manufacturers in the making of the right kind of pictures.

He said the Board passed upon 99 per cent. of all the pictures produced in the United States. There had never been a case within his knowledge, he said, where a manufacturer had refused to abide by the judgment of the National Board, which is made up of 225 representatives of civic, social betterment, economic and other organizations, none of whom received a cent of compensation, not even carfare in journeying to and from the places where the pictures are shown.

Time to Investigate.

Dr. Brenton called specific attention to Section 6 of the Ahern bill, which says: "The Board of Censors shall examine all moving picture films or reels and approve such as shall be moral and proper, and shall disapprove such as are sacrilegious, obscene, indecent or immoral, and that shall tend to debase or corrupt the morals."

"If a censorship board is to pass upon religious matters, it's high time to look closely at this business," declared Dr. Brenton.

W. Stephen Bush spoke in part as follows:

"You have talked about the bad in motion pictures," he said, "now let's talk about the good in motion pictures. Doesn't it appear to you gentlemen that the amazing development of motion pictures should invite your constructive statesmanship, instead of efforts to curb and harass the production of motion pictures? Censorship is not a new thing. It was tried for centuries, and for approximately two centuries has been rejected by all the English-speaking peoples. Public opinion is the only permanent and legal film of censorship known to a free people."

Samuel Trigger told the committee that the burdens inflicted upon New York State exhibitors were more than they could bear. In Bronx County there were 128 motion picture theatres in operation one year ago, he said. Now there are 64 in operation. State censorship would be the final blow. Addressing the committee as a whole, Mr. Trigger queried:

"How many of your constituents have complained to you personally of the motion picture exhibitions in your neighborhoods?"

It apeared that none of the members of the committee had received such complaints.

In reply to a question developed by a member of the committee, Mr. Ahern made the definite statement that he was "inclined to think that the Federal Government is without power to enact a motion picture censorship bill."

Labor's Voice is Heard.

The members of the committee gave strict attention to the voice of labor as sounded by James P. Holland and others. It was shown that in the State of New York there are more than 25,000 well-paid and contented workers in the motion picture industry. The workers are on a weekly and monthly salary basis, and do not include those who are given extra employment in the production of pictures. New York State censorship, the speaker said, would ruin an industry which has become one of the mainstays of labor in the Commonwealth.

The only speakers who favored the bill were the Reverend M. J. Mooney, of Albany, and the Reverend J. A. Dunney, of Albany, and Howard Clark Barber, of the Parkhurst Society.

Among those who journeyed to Albany to defend the interests of the motion picture industry were: Lee A. Ochs, president of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League, State of New York, this organization including the owners of 1,800 theatres; J. W. Binder, executive secretary of the Motion Picture Board of Trade of America, which represents 91 per cent. of the total motion picture production of the United States; William M. Capes, secretary of the Education Committee of the State Mayors' Conference; W. Stephen Bush, of the Moving Picture World; Arthur S. Friend, of the Paramount, Famous Players and Lasky producing organizations; Dr. Cranston Brenton, chairman of the National Board of Censorship; Orrin G. Cocks, advisory secretary of the National Board of Censorship; Samuel Trigger, vice president of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League; James P. Holland, president of the State Federation of Labor; James Lempke, of the International Alliance of Stage and Motion Picture Employees; Louis Bittner and E. O. Weinberg, of the Exhibitors' League of Troy; William McGill, of the American Federation of Musicians; William A. Johnston, Editor Motion Picture News; T. M. Alexander, of the Motion Picture Board of Trade of America, and others.

Fling at Sherman.

"A fling is taken at Gen. Sherman's memory in the marauding scenes under the titles of 'While the women and children weep a great conqueror marches to the sea' and 'The torch of war against the breast of Atlanta.'

"Gen. Grant, the man who, according to fact and real history, sent 25,000 rations to Gen. Lee's men and allowed those men to ride their horses and mules home so as to be able to cultivate the soil; the soldier whose terms of surrender had been so generous as to evoke from Gen. Lee the statement, 'This will have a very happy effect on my men;' the man who did not even wait to witness the formal surrender of the troops, this hero, not only of the Northland, but of the entire world, is pictured with a stogie-like cigar in his mouth tilted at the angle chosen by cartoonists to represent Uncle Joe Cannon, and with his hand jammed down in his pants' pocket, is made to swagger over in front of Gen. Lee, who remains the personification of dignity.

"Time after time the North is unfavorably contrasted against the South. A fair daughter of the North is wooed by a gallant son of the South, who has but two competitors for her affections, one a leering lout dressed slouchily in Union blue, the other a negro.

Misrepresents Negroes.

"Insult after insult is heaped upon the soldier's uniform made sacred by the boys in blue. Notwithstanding the historical fact that the negroes were the protectors of the white women and children of the South during the dark days of the civil war and that no ravishment of white women by blacks during that period is recorded, a Union officer's uniform of blue is placed upon the lowest type of negro imaginable, and he is made to pursue a little white girl who jumps from a cliff to her death, and there is then flashed upon the screen, 'For her who had learned the stern lesson of honor we should not grieve that she has found sweeter the opal gates of death.'

"The negro's lust for white women rather than the white man's lust to regain lost power is made the justification for that organization well known in history as the Ku Klux Klan. And what all history, including the reports of the courts, say was a band of outlaws, is made an organization of heroes under religious rights. Brush up your history and imagine if you can the Ku Klux Klan giving birth to this nation.

"Among this mass of false and distorted history there was flashed upon the screen the reason for the picture and the books which preceded it, 'Bitter memories will not allow the poor bruised heart of the South to forget.'

Whence Indorsements Come.

"After viewing this picture I read the brief of attorneys for the corpo- therein purported indorsements of the 'Insult to a Nation,' and found quoted therein purported indrsements of the picture by Claude Kitchin, L. P. Padgett, R. N. Page, and other sons of the South, who are now prominent in Congress. In addition there is quoted therein a long eulogy of the picture by a State Commander of the Sons of Confederate Veterans. In his indorsement of the picture this commander says: "The Sons of Confederate Veterans today are working along two lines: first, to see that the Southern side of the controversy which led to the civil war is correctly stated in history, which will demonstrate to the world that we are not sons of rebels, but sons of patriots.'

"We of the North are asked to forget, yet at the same time, insulting our heroes and our cause, the promoters of this picture are asking the youth of the North to accept in this picture manufactured history. In this brief there is quoted letters purporting to come from children of this State, who had been shown this picture thru the efforts of a man blinded by partisan politics. These letters show that these children are accepting the incidents of this picture as real history.

"This picture shows the South to have been right and the North to have been wrong. Our fathers settled that controversy in the arbitrament of arms, and no good can come from an attempt to reopen the question or distort its history.

"This picture is neither of a moral, educational, amusing nor harmless character, and the statute (Sec. 871-49 G. C.) specifically provides that only such films as are either of a moral, educational or amusing and harmless character may be passed by the Ohio Board of Censors."

Gen. Sir Ian Hamilton seems a master hand at making excuses. Gens. Grant, Sherman, Thomas and Sheridan never had to make excuses.

[redacted]

picture has dared to attempt to attribute the actions of the leaders of the North to the influence of liaison with colored women.

"Typifying a Congressional leader, preceding, during and after the civil war, is a low, coarse, vindictive negro worshiping advocate of mixed marriages having as a mistress a mulatto who wields an influence sufficient to justify the sub-title "A Great Leader's Weakness That is to Blight a Nation.' This immediately precedes Lincoln's call for volunteers. That there may be no mistakes as to who is meant by this coarse caricature, they pick out a cripple to unmistakably denote Thaddeus Stevens. For fear that some one might not understand, there is thrown upon a screen a sub-title stating that 'The executive mansion of the nation was transferred to this man's residence.'

"After glorifying the rebel flag and the flag of South Carolina, the author dresses a horde of the lowest type of bad land negroes in the uniform of Union soldiers and causes them to enact scenes similar to those of Gen. Early's Army at Chambersburg, Pa. Not satisfied with [illegible] this the

AVERS FILM PLAY VIOLATES STATUTE

Attorney Secures Warrant For Manager Of Theater Showing "The Birth Of A Nation."

HAS HEARD THREATS, HE SAYS; FEARS RACE HATRED

"Demoralizing, Anarchy-Breeding" Are Few Of Terms Used By William A. Heck.

In an effort to put an end to the engagement of "The Birth of a Nation" at Macauley's Theater, William A. Heck, an attorney, took out a warrant yesterday for the arrest of A. A. Bigelow, manager of the theater.

The warrant was served by Constable William Fulton and the case will be heard in Magistrate Dorsey's Court.

Mr. Heck alleges that the showing of the film is a violation of the Kentucky Statutes, Section 1376, which makes it unlawful to arouse antagonism between former master and slave, or to arouse race prejudice. The statute was enacted in 1906.

To reporters yesterday afternoon, Mr. Heck stated that in his opinion there was no doubt that the showing of the picture is arousing race prejudice, and that in swearing to the warrant he was not representing the National Association for the Advancement of Negroes, but was acting upon his own responsibility.

Says It's Demoralizing.

Representatives of the Negro Advancement Association appeared before Mayor Buschemeyer last week protesting the showing of the picture. The Mayor refused to accede to their requests, however.

Mr. Heck stated, "I consider the picture, 'The Birth of a Nation,' demoralizing, anarchy breeding, and believe it will stir up race hatred and riots. It is purely a violation of the Kentucky Statutes."

"Since the 'Birth of a Nation' has been shown in Louisville I have heard threats on the streets both by negroes and white persons. That is what prompted me to have the warrant issued. I propose also to take out more warrants."

Seen by Crowded Houses.

The attorney stated that he had seen the show twice since it had been in Louisville, and that both times the theater was crowded. He said he found the play so filled with race hatred, that altho he had provided a ticket for his wife, he had refused her using it.

The section of the Kentucky Statutes upon which the warrant against Mr. Bigelow was issued, is as follows:

That it shall be unlawful for any person to present, or to participate in the presentation of, or to permit to be presented in any opera house, theater, hall or other building under his control, any play that is based upon antagonism alleged formerly to exist between master and slave, or that excites race prejudice.

"The penalty for violation is a fine of not less than $100 or more than $500 or imprisonment in the County Jail from one to three months.

FEAR RACE FEUD; ARREST MANAGER

Louisville Lawyer Says "The Birth of a Nation" Will Enrage Negro Public.

BLACKS THREATEN THE SHOW

(Special Dispatch to The Morning Telegraph.)

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Feb. 18.—William A. Heck, an attorney, sprang a sensation here to-day when he caused the arrest of Anson O. Bigelow, manager of Macauley's Theatre, where the Griffith film, "The Birth of a Nation" has been showing since Monday.

Heck, who says he is acting on his own initiative, says the play is likely to lead to race hatred and riots and made the assertion that already much prejudice exists between the two races because Mayor John Buschmeyer refused to accede to the requests of colored citizens to bar the film from Louisville. The play is booked to run all next week.

Attorney Heck dug up an old "master and slave" statute on which his warrant was based. This reads: "Plays that excite prejudice forbidden—That it shall be unlawful for any person to present, or to participate in the presentation of, or to permit to be presented in any opera house, theatre, hall or other building under his control, any play that is based upon antagonism alleged formerly to exist between master and slave, or that excites race prejudice."

The penalty for violation is a fine of not less than $100 or more than $500, or imprisonment in the county jail from one to three months.

Regarding his action, Mr. Heck said: "The play includes scenes from "The Clansman" and "The Leopard's Spots." I had an interview with Thomas Dixon, author of these books, at Norfolk, Va., in 1913, in which he stated that he intended to have the books reproduced in photo-plays. (Since "The Birth of a Nation" has been shown in Louisville, I have heard threats on the streets both by negroes and whites. That is what prompted me to take out the warrant.

"I have seen the play twice this week and have called at the theatre on two other occasions and found the theatre crowded. I propose to take out additional warrants. Each performance is a separate and distinct violation of the law."

JURISDICTION OF SQUIRE DORSEY'S COURT ATTACKED

Case Against A. A. Bigelow, Manager of Macauley's, Is Continued to Friday.

Attorneys Edmund F. Trabue and S. L. Barker, representing A. A. Bigelow, manager of Macauley's Theater, who was arrested Friday, charged with violation of the Kentucky statutes in allowing the photoplay, "The Birth of a Nation," to be exhibited, filed a demurrer in Magistrate R. O. Dorsey's court at St. Matthews this morning, attacking the court's jurisdiction in the case.

Magistrate Dorsey took the demurrer under submission, saying he wished to look up the law and consult with the County Attorney before ruling on the demurrer. The case was continued until 10 o'clock Friday morning.

The warrant against Mr. Bigelow was taken out by W. A. Heck, an attorney. It charges Mr. Bigelow with violation of Section C, Kentucky Statutes 1376, which makes it unlawful to arouse race prejudice by stage representation. The complainant terms the photodrama "demoralizing and anarchy-breeding." He claims that threats he overheard on the street, made both by negroes and whites, prompted him to take steps toward suppression of the pictures in Louisville.

When the case was called to-day Heck announced that he had not been notified until last night that the warrant had been served and had had no opportunity to summon witnesses. He said that unless the defendant would agree to the submission of an affidavit he would ask a continuance. Mr. Bigelow's counsel filed the demurrer to the warrant, attacking the right of Magistrate Dorsey to try the case. Attorneys Heck, Trabue and Barker argued the demurrer a few minutes, after which Magistrate Dorsey took the question under submission and continued the case on the docket until next Friday.

The objection to the jurisdiction of Magistrate Dorsey in the case is based on Section 1093, of the Kentucky Statues, which provides that the jurisdiction of a Magistrate Court in a penal action is limited to those cases in which the punishment is fixed at a fine not exceeding $100, or imprisonment not exceeding fifty days, or both. Section C, Kentucky Statutes 1376, under which the action against Mr. Bigelow is brought, provides a penalty of not less than $100 and as much as $500, or imprisonment in the county jail of from thirty to ninety days, or both. The defendant claims that the maximum punishment for both the fine and imprisonment or for either of them is in excess of the jurisdiction of the court.

(Special Correspondence to The Morning Telegraph.)

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Feb. 21.—Plans for a monster campaign against censorship were completed at the last meeting of the Motion Picture Producers' Association. To exhibitors throughout the United States will be sent slips containing a vigorous protest against censorship. These slips will contain a blank space for a signature. They will be passed out to the theatregoers, who will be asked to sign as an indication of their antagonism to the censors. When the names are returned they will be formed into one great petition, which will be forwarded to President Wilson. There will also be put into circulation 15,000 slides showing censorship in its worst form. It is expected that the signatures obtained in this manner will run well into the millions and clearly show the attitude of the American people upon this really momentous question. A movement is also under way to have the Presidential candidates include in their platform their stand on motion picture censorship.

... call on ... this question, and ... turn, leave it to a body ... answer it? What is an ... ture or film which shall be ... from the view of the public? ... Congress is speaking for the people, will it write into the law an answer to this question, or will it remit us to an appointive board for the answer? Do the people demand that Congress shall enact laws prohibiting immoral films or pictures? If so, will Congress obey that demand and write a law setting forth what the people wish prohibited as immoral, or will it answer the demand by telling the people it has turned over that great question to five appointive and underpaid men?

"If all of this is answered by saying that Congress cannot define what is, or what is not, an immoral picture, and cannot write a law which will fix the standard, then how could we hope that five nominees of the President will be blessed with the wisdom or endowed with the genius to strike the line of cleavage between a moral and an immoral film or picture?"

Mr. Littleton on Federal Censorship

MARTIN W. LITTLETON
Lawyer
149 Broadway
New York

To the Editor of The American:

SIR—I have just finished reading with much interest and instruction the editorial appearing in the New York American of date February 18, 1916, entitled, "An Argument Against Federal Censorship."

Inasmuch as I appeared before the House Committee on Education on January 19 last in opposition to the Hughes-Smith bill providing for Federal censorship of moving pictures, I take the liberty of sending you extracts of my remarks made before said committee at that time for your perusal or use.

MARTIN W. LITTLETON.

New York City, Feb. 18, 1916.

Following are extracts from Mr. Littleton's address referred to above:

"If any man desires a picture prohibited in a city, town or place where theatres are licensed, he need not invoke even the police power of the State; he need not appeal to the censor board; he need only go to the license bureau from which is obtained the license to run the theatre building and convince that bureau that the situation is one that requires its interference, and that bureau will say to the lessee: 'You cannot have pictures produced here which offend the morals or decency of the community. If you do, we will revoke your license.'

SOME VITAL QUERIES.

"Have the States been prostrated? Is the police power debauched? Will the States not do their duty? Can you, gentlemen, can any member of the House say that his State is so dumb, so dead, so selfish, that it will not discharge its duty to protect the morals of its people?

"Have you no way of settling the matter in your own States?

"Have we really gone so far that we must appeal to Congress to protect the morals of the people of the various States? I believe no man is willing to say that his State will not do it. Then why this bill here? What is the necessity?

"You have said in the bill that the commission shall license every film submitted to it and intended for entrance into interstate commerce unless it finds that said film is obscene, indecent, immoral, inhuman, and so forth. Will you undertake to tell the commission what is indecent, what is obscene, what is inhuman? Yet this is the province of Congress if it has got any province.

"If it is finally said that there is a demand by the people of this country, and you are trying to carry out the demand, can you carry out the demand by turning over to five men to do something that you are unwilling or unable to do?

"Why do you tell five men: 'You can find out whether this is immoral or not.' Can you not write that in your Act? Can you give them any standard in the great region of morality? Who can tell what is moral and what is immoral? Can Congress tell?

"Are you discharging your duty if you are responding to the will of the people of this country by saying: 'W... the commission the pow... is indecent, immoral an... ...ask you to write som... because that i... ...hich you a... ...write it d...

Courier-Journal.

ALLIED PRINTING TRADES UNION LABEL COUNCIL

SATURDAY...FEBRUARY 19, 1916.

EFFORT TO SUPPRESS FILM CAUSES MANAGER'S ARREST

ANSON BIGELOW IS CHARGED WITH VIOLATION OF STATUTE.

LAWYER SAYS HE IS ACTING ON OWN ACCOUNT.

FEARS "BIRTH OF A NATION"

Steps for suppression of the motion picture play "The Birth of a Nation" were taken yesterday when Anson Bigelow, manager of Macauley's Theater, was arrested charged with a violation of the Kentucky Statutes. Constable William Fulton served a warrant on Mr. Bigelow at his office at the Louisville Paper Company, of which he is treasurer. He gave bond for his appearance this morning before Magistrate R. O. Dorsey at St. Matthews.

The prosecution was instituted by W. A. Heck, an attorney having office n room 218 Louisville Trust Company building. It was reported that Mr. Heck was representing the Louisville branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. This organization asked Mayor John H. Buschemeyer to stop the showing of the picture before its production here, but the Mayor turned down the request. Heck says his interest is personal and that he acted upon his own responsibility, denying he represents any organization. He said the case for trial this morning will be a test and that he intends to obtain additional warrants, maintaining that each performance is a violation of Section C Kentucky Statutes 1376, which makes it unlawful to arouse antagonism between former master and slave, or to arouse race prejudice. When he took out the warrant against Mr. Bigelow the complaining witness termed the picture play "demoralizing and anarchy breeding," contending that it stirs up race hatred. He claims that threats he overheard on the streets, made both by negroes and whites, prompted him to take steps toward its suppression in Louisville.

"I was at two performances," he said. "Some of the scenes are taken from the books 'The Clansman' and 'The Leopard's Spots.' I had an interview with Thomas Dixon, the author, in Norfolk, Va., in 1913, during which he stated that he intended to have the books reproduced in photographs.

"Such scenes as white women assaulted by negroes arouse race hatred and riots may result. Although I had provided a ticket for my wife I have forbidden her attending."

Section C reads "that it shall be unlawful for any person to present, or to participate in the presentation of, or to permit to be presented in any operahouse, theater, hall or other building under his control, any play that is based upon antagonism alleged formerly to exist between master and slave, or that excites race prejudice."

The law was enacted in 1906. The penalty for violation is a fine of not less than $100 or more than $500, or imprisonment in a county jail of from one to three months.

SAY CENSORSHIP IS UN-AMERICAN

New York Representatives of Photo-Play Interests Talk Plainly Before Committee.

AHERN'S MEASURE IS FLAYED

(Special Dispatch to The Morning Telegraph.)

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 25.

In opposition to the bill creating a State Board of Censors for the purpose of regulating the exhibitions of motion pictures, introduced into the Assembly by Fred M. Ahern of Kings, a large delegation representing the picture interests in the State of New York appeared at a hearing before the Assembly Committee on Codes, Wednesday, and in something over four hours presented the case for the motion picture industry in clear and effective form.

The New York delegation reached Albany at noon and held a conference at the Ten Eyck Hotel, prior to the Assembly hearing. At two o'clock the first speaker, Lee A. Ochs, president of the New York State Motion Picture Exhibitors' League, opened the assault upon the Ahern bill before the committee.

In his first words, the speaker forced the point that any form of governmental, pre-publicity censorship would be un-American and in violation of the ideals of the people of this country. The least of the resultant evils, he insisted, would be the vast monetary loss to a great and growing industry. He wished to correct a widespread fallacy, he declared, now prevailing in the public mind, to the effect that exhibitors of motion pictures were all either wealthy or rapidly becoming so. He asserted as a positive fact, supporting the statement by statistics, that fifty per cent. of the exhibitors in the State were not making a living and that less than thirty per cent. were breaking even, while a scant twenty per cent. were realizing a fair profit on their investment.

"Off Color" Pictures Fail.

A significant statement in the address of Ochs was to the effect that "off color" pictures, in the neighborhoods with which he was familiar were complete failures. Continuing, he said:

"There are certain neighborhoods, of course, where such pictures would draw good houses. But those of us who know New York City and the other centers of the State, and have confidence in our own citizenship, know that these neighborhoods are few and far between and count for absolutely nothing in the business of motion picture entertainment. I may say to this committee, with the authority of experience, that the Ahern censorship bill would destroy motion picture entertainment in this State—a form of entertainment and a means of education which reaches that great body of Americans known in political oratory as the common masses of the common people."

William M. Capes, of the Mayors' Conference, said he was opposed to the bill on four definite grounds:

First, there is no provision for court review; therefore the proposed measure is unconstitutional.

Second, as drawn, it was ineffective and undesirable.

Third, it would open the door to political, business and religious pressure, and would be made impossible of fair interpretation by a board of three members.

Fourth, it would be a physical impossibility for the board to review and censor all films produced.

Arthur S. Friend, of the Paramount, Famous Players, Lasky, World and Equitable organizations, after saying that he did not represent the Morosco interests, pointed out that manufacturers of motion pictures are not now engaged in the production of pictures for any State or local community in the Union, and that State censorship would make impossible the production of the great pictures now demanded by the public. The better and bigger element among the manufacturers, he asserted, has no thought to realize quick and easy money from making bad pictures. The ultimate success of the industry, he was sure, depends entirely upon clean pictures. State censorship, he said, would put the majority of the manufacturers out of business.

Why Act is a Menace.

Assemblyman Davis of Rome interjected: "Why will it put them out of business?"

"If there were forty-eight different enactments there would be forty-eight differen standards and brands of censorship," was the reply. "It would be impossible to manufacture a picture which would please the majority of these forty-eight different boards. It now costs from $25,000 to $150,000 for a single production, which is sure to meet with general public approval. If such a film is censored, it becomes mere junk. The continuity of the story is lost. Then, too, if two, three, four or a dozen State boards ban a picture, all possibility of profit is gone. Operating under these conditions, there would be no first-class pictures."

J. W. Binder's address to the committee was short and to the point. He showed that pre-publicity censorship of motion picture films was fundamentally wrong, violating the basic principles of a free government maintained by a free people. He said: "There are three means of expression—speech, the printed word and the motion picture. The Federal Constitution guarantees the freedom of speech and the press. The third, newest and most vivid means of expression, the motion picture, cannot be shackled and the other two remain free. Twelve million Americans already gain entertainment and ideas daily from motion pictures, and the possibility of the sound development of screen uses are beyond the imagination of any man."

To bring out the absolute unfairness of any form of censorship, Mr. Binder called attention to a case in Pittsburg, where the Pennsylvania State Censorship law proved its absolute failure. Because, he said, the Board of Censors condemned a scene in "The Battle Cry of Peace," which shows a mother shooting her two daughters to prevent them from falling into the hands of the foreign foe, in New York, the management of the Pitt Theatre rembved the scene from the picture and portrayed the action with living persons, over whom the Board had no control.

In reply to a question put by some of the clerical proponents of the bill, Binder quoted from the published statements of the Very Rev. Thomas Edward Shields, A. M., JhD., LL.D., of the Catholic University at Washington, to the effect that "the evil of the motion picture is constantly decreasing and the good increasing at a very rapid rate." Father Shields said: "I know of no other force in the last twenty years that has gained in power for good at the same rate as the moving picture." In other sentences, he said: "I am in favor of any legislation that would in any degree take away government for the people and by the people, and in its place substitute the conscience of any five men—I do not care if they are the best men in the land, because even if they are the best in the land, the fathers and mothers have the right to exercise authority over their children, and the pastors have the right to advise them. You cannot take away from the individual his right to judge, his right to freedom of thought, and put it into the hands of a commission. It would be a very dangerous thing for the Congress of the United States to attempt to override the individual and undertake to substitute a national conscience for an individual conscience."

Dr. Cranston Brenton explained that the word censorship, as used in the title of the National Board of Censorship was a misnomer and probably would be changed. He said the National Board, as constituted, was a Board of Review—an editorial and advisory board without legally constituted authority, which had been of great help to the manufacturers in the making of the right kind of pictures.

He said the Board passed upon 99 per cent. of all the pictures produced in the United States. There had never been a case within his knowledge, he said, where a manufacturer had refused to abide by the judgment of the National Board, which is made up of 225 representatives of civic, social betterment, economic and other organizations, none of whom received a cent of compensation, not even carfare in journeying to and from the places where the pictures are shown.

Time to Investigate.

Dr. Brenton called specific attention to Section 6 of the Ahern bill, which says: "The Board of Censors shall examine all moving picture films or reels and approve such as shall be moral and proper, and shall disapprove such as are sacrilegious, obscene, indecent or immoral, and that shall tend to debase or corrupt the morals."

"If a censorship board is to pass upon religious matters, it's high time to look closely at this business," declared Dr. Brenton.

W. Stephen Bush spoke in part as follows:

"You have talked about the bad in motion pictures," he said, " now let's talk about the good in motion pictures. Doesn't it appear to you gentlemen that the amazing development of motion pictures should invite your constructive statesmanship, instead of efforts to curb and harass the production of motion pictures? Censorship is not a new thing. It was tried for centuries, and for approximately two centuries has been rejected by all the English-speaking peoples. Public opinion is the only permanent and legal film of censorship known to a free people."

Samuel Trigger told the committee that the burdens inflicted upon New York State exhibitors were more than they could bear. In Bronx County there were 128 motion picture theatres in operation one year ago, he said. Now there are 64 in operation. State censorship would be the final blow. Addressing the committee as a whole, Mr. Trigger queried:

"How many of your constituents have complained to you personally of the motion picture exhibitions in your neighborhoods?"

It appeared that none of the members of the committee had received such complaints.

In reply to a question developed by a member of the committee, Mr. Ahern made the definite statement that he was "inclined to think that the Federal Government is without power to enact a motion picture censorship bill."

Labor's Voice is Heard.

The members of the committee gave strict attention to the voice of labor as sounded by James P. Holland and others. It was shown that in the State of New York there are more than 25,000 well-paid and contented workers in the motion picture industry. The workers are on a weekly and monthly salary basis, and do not include those who are given extra employment in the production of pictures. New York State censorship, the speaker said, would ruin an industry which has become one of the mainstays of labor in the Commonwealth

The only speakers who favored the bill were the Reverend M. J. Mooney, of Albany, and the Reverend J. A. Dunney, of Albany, and Howard Clark Barber, of the Parkhurst Society.

Among those who journeyed to Albany to defend the interests of the motion picture industry were: Lee A. Ochs, president of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League, State of New York, this organization including the owners of 1,800 theatres; J. W. Binder, executive secretary of the Motion Picture Board of Trade of America, which represents 91 per cent. of the total motion picture production of the United States; William M. Capes, secretary of the Education Committee of the State Mayors' Conference; W. Stephen Bush, of the Moving Picture World; Arthur S. Friend, of the Paramount, Famous Players and Lasky producing organizations; Dr. Cranston Brenton, chairman of the National Board of Censorship; Orrin G. Cocks, advisory secretary of the National Board of Censorship; Samuel Trigger, vice president of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League; James P. Holland, president of the State Federation of Labor; James Lempke, of the International Alliance of Stage and Motion Picture Employees; Louis Bittner and E. O. Weinberg, of the Exhibitors' League of Troy; William McGill, of the American Federation of Musicians; William A. Johnston, Editor Motion Picture News; T. M. Alexander, of the Motion Picture Board of Trade of America, and others.

Jan 20
Washington (Dc)

THE NATIONAL TRIBUNE.

"THE BIRTH OF A NATION."

We have hitherto omitted to give notice of that meretricious production, "The Clansman", and "The Birth of a Nation," based upon it. Both are so vile in spirit and treatment that it seemed that the people of the country would treat them with deserved contempt, and they would fail for want of patronage.

The book "The Clansman" had only a limited sale, among the unreconstructed worshipers of the Lost Cause, but "The Birth of a Nation," based upon it, has grown to be a public insult and nuisance.

The whole Ku-Klux-Klan idea was cowardly and venomous to the last degree, and it is a wonder that the good sense of the good people of the South endured its degrading nonsense as long as they did. With all the contempt that the Southerners pretend for the negro, with the lack of ability, world-knowledge and force of character, which has been attributed to the down-trodden race, yet the Southerners would make out an exalted heroism, in a war upon a race which was everywhere inferior in numbers to them, and still more, inferior in social positon and education. It was cowardly, because it was those who boasted their superiority, descending to sneaking midnight raids upon the humble huts of poor negroes, frightening and even killing them.

There never was a redeeming feature about the whole disgraceful Ku-Kluk-Klan system.

Owing to shrewd management, and much artistic ability, "The Birth of a Nation" has gained a wide publicity in the North, and its exhibitions are attended by immense crowds. In plain words, it is as vile and treacherous, as poisonous to the minds of the rising generation as anything can be. It degrades the sacred war for the Union, and the exalted courage of the men who fought to save the nation, into a shameful lust of conquest, with only the most debased of mankind engaging in it. There have been protests from the Grand Army and other patriotic organizations in cities where "The Birth of a Nation" has been exhibited, but these have not been as strong nor as many as the degenerate, mind-poisoning exhibition should have aroused.

Now, at last, decisive action has been taken. The patriotic sentiment of the grand old State of Ohio was so shocked by its slanders and willful lying as to the Union cause that the Board of Censors prohibited its exhibition in the good old Buckeye State.

The managers, who are coining money out of this, appealed from the decision of the Board of Censors, and Attorney-General Turner, to whom the appeal was made, has upheld the acton of the Board of Censors in a ringing opinion that will meet a warm echo in the hearts of every loyal and public-spirited man and woman in the country.

Attorney-General Turner's opinion is so apt and just that we reproduce it almost entire:

Sustains Censor Board.

"After viewing the photo-play entitled 'The Birth of a Nation,' I am firmly of the opinion that the Board of Censors did right in not permitting this picture to be shown in Ohio.

"Over and above the treatment of the negro, the picture is an insult to the North and a contemptible distortion of well-known history regarding the civil war. The proper title of this picture should be 'An Insult to a Nation.'

"In the face of the indisputable fact that the mulatto is the product of the South alone, the author of this picture has dared to attempt to attribute the actions of the leaders of the North to the influence of liaison with colored women.

"Typifying a Congressional leader, preceding, during and after the civil war, is a low, coarse, vindictive negro worshiping advocate of mixed marriages having as a mistress a mulatto who wields an influence sufficient to justify the sub-title 'A Great Leader's Weakness That is to Blight a Nation.' This immediately precedes Lincoln's call for volunteers. That there may be no mistakes as to who is meant by this coarse caricature, they pick out a cripple to unmistakably denote Thaddeus Stevens. For fear that some one might not understand, there is thrown upon a screen a sub-title stating that 'The executive mansion of the nation was transferred to this man's residence.'

"After glorifying the rebel flag and the flag of South Carolina, the author dresses a horde of the lowest type of bad land negroes in the uniform of Union soldiers and causes them to enact scenes similar to those of Gen. Early's Army at Chambersburg, Pa. Not satisfied with only this the

CENSORS UNNECESSARY EVIL," SAYS MME. KALICH

Distinguished Star of Fox Forces Opposed to Hampering Work—Is Delighted With Pictures—Sheds Real Tears for Screen.

"I have had to apologize to myself since I began posing for the screen," declared Mme. Bertha Kalich, latest addition to the galaxy of stars in the Fox Film Company's array of artists.

"In the days before I knew anything about the business at all I believed that motion picture work was degrading, and that I could never bring myself to appear in a film. Now—why, I am so deeply interested in it I want to learn more and more. I want to know all there is to know about the work, and I see tremendous possibilities that were never apparent to me before.

"Oh, I shall never give up the speaking stage—I belong to that, you see. But this I regard as an entirely different sort of thing, bringing into play new ideas, new avenues for the utilization of one's art.

"In my acting upon the speaking stage the thought of posing never entered my mind. I always have tried to feel the role, of course, to enter into the spirit of it and as nearly as possible, for the time being, live the life of the person I was endeavoring to represent. Well, in this new field I find that it is quite natural for me to do the work without effort, nor do I have to resort to pantomime to any extent. It is true there is no actual part to learn, but there are lines, and I naturally have the story of the scene I am doing in my head. Then every possible use of facial expression is made and new opportunities for the delineation of the character unfold themselves continually. Oh, it is deeply interesting. And I am quite happy in my engagement with Mr. Fox—I am planning some really splendid things in a pictorial way for later on—big, fine things.

"I have always had a goal—every one has, of course. I will not tell you the secret of my ambition. But I will realize it some day. I am an idealist in my work, you see! And in time, when I can do the things I really want most to do, I hope to be able to prove to managers that there is a possibility of producing plays of a sort they have never attempted, have not believed to be practical.

"As I say, I am interested. I am serious, naturally, about whatever I do. I'm afraid I haven't a great sense of humor. I love everything that is fine and beautiful. I love my home, my coterie of friends, my books—I am a great reader. I have little spare time—I always have been a busy woman. But when I have any leisure you will usually find me in a library or museum."

A Hard Test.

Under the tremendous brilliance of the studio lights Madame Kalich smiled whimsically. It is a hard test of a woman's beauty—that incessant glare, with the greenish pallor it casts. Then, too, she was made up for the screen, with that almost clownlike monotone, with just a touch of dark upon the lips. Yet she stood the test well. If there is one quality more than another that betrays itself upon her face it is fineness; a quiet repose, dignity, sincerity, and withal, an intensity that evidences itself in her work—these things, too, lend to her features a distinction that would mark her for greatness under almost any conditions. Her voice, rich and vibrant with the inherent quality of her Eastern parentage, is a gift that it were too bad to sacrifice, even upon so worthy an altar as motion photography. So that it is a source of satisfaction rather than otherwise to know she does not intend ever to entirely relinquish her connection with the spoken drama. She will doubtless alternate, bringing to each form of the art something that is of herself, that is thoroughly worth while.

Censors an Unnecessary Evil!

"What do I think of censors and censorship?" Madame Kalich laughed softly. "I think," she said emphatically, "that they are not a necessary but an unnecessary evil. Why should pictures be censored. Why should we be censored? We are perfectly decent people, living moral lives; married people, many of us, why should we be under the ban of a censor? Why, the motion picture producers and managers are not scoundrels and fools—they are men of intelligence and integrity. We are all a part of a great industry that is affording the public an opportunity to see fine things, played by fine players, for a trivial cost. It is an industry giving employment to thousands of hard-working, earnest, honest men and women—why should they be censored? From what I know of it—of censors, in general—I should say that the censor is always in the wrong place; always saying the wrong thing. He is never where he is most needed. The things that should be censored he never sees. He is, I repeat, an unnecessary evil!"

Having thus unequivocally disposed of the censors, Madame Kalich reverted to the work itself once more. She is an enthusiast, it is easy to determine that, and being possessed of more than ordinary intellect and a mind that is quick to grasp and hold impressions, she is learning, learning all the time. It is all new and fascinating to her, for this is just her second picture—the one she is now working upon.

Under the indubitably efficient direction of William S. Davis she, with the other members of the cast, are doing a strongly emotional drama at the Kalem studios out in Riverview, N. J., which has been leased by the Fox people. The new picture is one that must appeal because it has that strongest of sentiments as its basis—mother love.

Real Tears.

It may perhaps be something of a revelation to those who will later view the film to know that the tears which will undoubtedly be plainly discernible upon Madame Kalich's face in some of the most tense scenes are real tears, wrung from her eyes by stress of emotion. To reach this stage of emotion she was forced to simply lose herself in the character she was depicting; to forget the lights, the painted scenery, the clicking cameras in front and the director at her side, almost. She had to forget that it was all play after all—that the two kiddies she hugged to her heart were not her own. She had to forget everything but her role—that of a distracted mother about to be parted from her babes. And this she did so successfully that the tears gathered in her eyes, and brimming over fell upon her hands. When the scene was ended she was almost hysterical for a moment. Yet she had that scene to do four times or more before the director would pass it. Always some trivial fault, perhaps too quick or too slow a movement on the part of some one in the scene, would be sufficient to kill it, and the "bad" sign would be filmed and several hundred feet of film wasted.

"Mr. Davis has been a revelation to me," remarked Madame Kalich later. "I think he is the most marvelous director I have ever seen."

The actress hasn't learned to ice skate, nor is she given to dancing; not because she doesn't care for such things, but because she hasn't had time.

An Earnest Student.

Perhaps Madame Kalich is correct in saying she has no great sense of humor, but it does not seem to affect her charm in any degree.

"I am an earnest student," she confessed with a mysterious smile, "and I gain much pleasure from what I read. If I find a thing is silly I throw it aside; if it is serious, no matter what the book may be, I read it, if it interests me. I feel that way about literature, as I do about the stage and the screen—about all art. We do not have to read or hear or look upon things we do not like or which we think will degrade us. Therefore we do not need censors."

Bertha Kalich is an artist—that much has been admitted by critics since first she made her appearance in America. She is also a woman of intelligence and imagination. It is actresses of her type who will bring to the screen, as well as to the stage, the dignity, artistry and humanity that are its highest justification.

N Y Herald 2/23/16

FIGHTING FILM CENSORSHIP.

Opponents of Ahern Bill Appear Before the Assembly Codes Committee.

ALBANY, N. Y., Wednesday.—Organized opposition to the Ahern bill, designed to establish a State censorship of all motion picture films, was voiced by virtually every branch of the motion picture industry at a hearing before the Assembly Codes Committee to-day.

Opponents of the bill also included the Rev. Cranston Brenton and R. G. Cocks, president and secretary of the National Board of Censorship; James P. Holland, president of the State Federation of Labor, and other labor leaders.

Howard Clark Barber, of New York, president of the Society for the Prevention of Crime; the Rev. Father J. A. Fanney, supervisor of parochial schools in the Catholic Diocese of Albany, and the Rev. W. J. Mooney, rector of St. Joseph's Church, this city, favored the bill. They argued that a censorship would prevent the production of pictures offensive to public morality or tending to engender class hatred.

THE MORNING TELEGRAPH, SUNDAY, FEBRUARY 23, 1916.

ONLY ONE WAY TO SOLVE CENSORSHIP PROBLEMS

Establish a Federal Motion Picture Commission and Local Boards Will Cease to Exist, Says Hodkinson.

By WILLIAM W. HODKINSON.

President of the Paramount Pictures Corporation.

Federal control or legalized oppression? That is the question which confronts every one interested in the question of Federal censorship of film productions.

Earnestly have I awaited some solution from any source, so that I, too, can say with all the rest, "no censorship at all." But that solution has not been forthcoming. No one who cries forth that motto has given consistent and constructive reasons why there should be "no censorship at all." I do not say, "no censorship at all," but a commission in Washington that protects those in the industry who are trying to be clean, from others who are not, as well as protecting us from the evils of local censorship and the inevitable reaction that must come from offending the public's morals and intelligence, as we all know will come if unsuitable pictures are not checked.

Motion pictures are nothing more than the fulfillment of the demands of the amusement loving people of the whole world. This demand during the past few years has taken upon itself such an accelerated speed that in many cases the industry has gotten away from the controllers of it. This demand is not for more pictures, but the demand of the public from the theatre owner, and ge from the distributor and they from the producer for the best that is to be obtained in art, literature and science. This demand has gone even further. It is now the demand for clean pictures.

Clean pictures are those which will appeal to the people who desire to see the best, pictures that are representative of the desires and higher ideals of the great amusement loving people; pictures that are absolutely conducive to theatres which will be in conformity with the standard and quality of the entertainments; pictures that will be the means of perpetuating and strengthening the wonderful qualifications of the fourth greatest industry in the world.

Would not every producer of pictures of that calibre rather have Federal control than legalized oppression of their productions?

Foundation of Wholesomeness.

The picturing of life on the stage originally came into being through the necessity of the church. Thus the photo drama, which is a big step ahead of the legitimate stage, began with the foundation of wholesomeness. Its use then was for social purposes, and, irrespective of the elaborations that have followed the wake of its advancement from the church service to the photodramas, its appeal is the same to the public. Its value is determinable by the force of its appeal to the masses, and its longevity depends absolutely upon its wholesome qualifications.

The film industry is an institution. The theatres in which reel productions are shown are in a way a university, and attendance at these theatres is an education. The whole gamut of human experience is exploited upon the screen, and the careful observer, whose brain digests what he sees, will in time acquire a broad education, even though he never has any other means of cultivating his mentality.

It is the wholesome yet spirited photodrama that has body and value, and by virtue of that they are growing to be the reflection of American conditions and are being influenced by national characteristics, influencing in turn, every community. It is primarily essential that the public mind be directed toward proper, beneficial and wholesome photo plays; not to have the theatres closed to them, but to create in the minds and hearts of the many millions a desire for the enjoyment of the most wholesome pictures.

Would you, then, under existing conditions, socially and morally, not rather have Federal control than legalized oppression?

For myself, Federal control. My desire for a National Commission for the regulation of motion pictures, subject to appeal to the Federal courts in case of an unfair attitude on the part of such board, is due entirely to the belief that the establishment and conduct of such a board by the Government would put us in a position effectively to fight State or local censorship, and in no other manner can I see how the business will keep from being throttled by local boards.

Not Eliminate Local Boards.

It is true that a Federal board would not control nor eliminate local boards, but if we knew that our own skirts were clean, we not only would by removing unfit pictures take away the cause of the various local boards, but with a clean product we could successfully fight in the courts any attempt to persecute us or the industry on the part of the local bodies.

The solution opponents to Federal control are offering is that we govern ourselves.

"How?" is our query.

Why haven't we done it up to the present time?

Why did the picture business run along destructive lines until it was in a position to wreck everybody?

Why were we so long finding out that more than a nickel could be gotten for motion pictures?

If the industry cannot control itself in regard to its financial arrangements, it certainly is not going to arrive at a common viewpoint of the moral standpoint any more than all the varying censorship boards are.

Far preferable is it to have one responsible board or commission of high-grade men, appointed by the President who would work with us rather than against us; because it is not to be assumed that the President would appoint either fanatics or film men, but representative citizens who have a desire to protect our business, as well as the morals of the community.

The it would be that the means toward the ideal end would be attained, the ultimate strengthening of this great medium for good in the world to-day, a medium that can influence character and, in so doing, influence the whole people.

The appointment of a commission of men desirous of protecting the business of the motion picture industry and the moral welfare of the growing communities would have great effect. If it were very firm in its rules and eliminated everything that could be considered objectionable, the local boards, in my opinion, could not last as there would be no reason for their existence.

We have innumerable boards of censorship staring us in the face from all over the country, and as long as anybody is left free to put anything in films that they think might get the money we will continue to have such boards, and as long as we have such boards they will be largely dominated by people who will make it unpleasant and expensive for all of us, and really retard our progress.

A Reason for Censorship.

There is a reason to-day for their existence in the numbers of ultra-sensational and unfit pictures that go out. In case of Federal control all producers would have to be careful of their productions and there would be only one problem, that of working with the board in such a way as to get as much latitude as our conduct entitled us to, knowing that we would be protected against the type of producers who believe unclean subjects should be given the public because more of the masses patronize them.

The Paramount Corporation is not supporting any fanatic's bills, but our attorneys have approved and suggested some form of regulation looking to the establishment of a Federal Commission, from which the motion picture interests would have the right to appeal to the Federal courts.

This is, in my opinion, after a great deal of thought on the matter, the only reasonable and feasible solution of the whole censorship problem, and for over eight years I have been on the firing line and in the trenches of this business, dealing with the exhibitor, the exchange man and the manufacturer.

The indefinite assurance that public opinion and the film industry will together clean up these conditions does not strike a responsive chord, and if, in the near future, there is no Federal board or general consolidation of interests whereby the business may be controlled, it is my belief that all interests in the business who want to stay there will be taking my viewpoint a year from now.

Eve Sun Post 2/23/16 Legislative Council Urges

HOLIDAY DELAYS EFFORTS TO STOP PHOTODRAMA

Failure to get into communication with the Attorney General of the State yesterday, coupled with the fact that the office of the Circuit Clerk was closed to business because of Washington's birthday, prevented further steps being taken to stop the presentation of "The Birth of a Nation," the photodrama at Macauley's Theater, according to a statement made by William A. Heck, an attorney, who is seeking to prevent further performances of the motion picture on the ground that said yesterday that he was attempting to get Attorney General M. M. Logan to co-operate with him in filing injunction proceedings against Anson A. Bigelow, manager of the theater, to stop further performances of the picture, and that if he was unsuccessful in such an effort this morning he would file an action in the name of the Commonwealth as a taxpayer, asking the court to stop the showing of the picture. It was learned yesterday that in the event Heck attempts to file a suit in Circuit Court in the name of the Commonwealth without having either the Commonwealth's Attorney or the County Attorney to join him in the proceedings he will be forced to execute a bond to insure the payment of the court costs in the event the court decides in favor of the theater management and refuses to grant the injunction to be sought.

Bulk

THE NEW YORK PRESS.

OPPOSE FILM CENSOR BILL

Labor Leaders Join Motion Picture Men in Albany Hearing.

ALBANY, Feb. 23.—Organized opposition to the Ahern bill designed to establish a State censorship of all motion picture films was voiced by virtually every branch of the motion picture industry at a hearing before the Assembly Codes Committee today. Opponents of the bill also included the Rev. Cranston Brenton and R. G. Cocks, president and secretary respectively of the National Board of Censorship; James P. Holland, president of the State Federation of Labor, and other labor leaders.

Howard Clark Berber of New York, president of the Society for the Prevention of Crime; the Rev. Father J. A. Funney, supervisor of parochial schools in the Catholic diocese of Albany, and the Rev. W. J. Mooney, rector of St. Joseph's Church, this city, favored the bill.

Buffalo-Ny Evening News. 2/24

SAY CENSORSHIP WOULD DESTROY MOVIE INDUSTRY

Film Interests Rout Assemblyman Ahern at Hearing on His Bill to Provide State Board.

(NEWS Staff Correspondence.)

ALBANY, Feb. 24.—Moving picture interests routed Assemblyman Ahern before the Assembly codes committee yesterday afternoon at a hearing on his bill to provide a board of film censors. They showed:

That more than $500,000,000 are invested in the moving picture business.

That it employes upwards of 100,000 persons at good wages.

That 53[illegible] films are in use at the present t[illegible] not more than 60 of which ha[illegible] on the subject of complaint or[illegible]ism.

That t[illegible] largest industry in the Unit[illegible] would be virtually put out [illegible]ess by a system of state co[illegible] under which there might be 48 varying standards with which each picture must comply.

Police Power Sufficient.

Rev. Dr. Cranston Brenston, chairman of the national board of censorship, which, he explained, was really a board of editing, spoke in opposition to all forms of legalized censorship, declaring the police power sufficient to handle the situation. Ninety-nine per cent. of the moving pictures now on exhibition, he said, went before his board before they were displayed in public.

William P. Capes, secretary of the educational committee of the state conference of mayors, characterized the proposed law as unworkable as well as unconstitutional, inasmuch as it contained no provision for court review of the action of the board of censors.

Many Oppose Bill.

Others who spoke in opposition were: W. Stephen Bush, editor of the Motion Picture World; J. P. Holland, president of the New York State Federation of Labor; James Lempke, representing the stage hands, and Thomas McGill, speaking for the musicians; Lee A. Och, president of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' league, comprising 1800 theaters, and J. W. Binder, executive secretary of the Motion Picture Board of Trade, which handles 91 per cent. of all films shown.

The good effects that would follow rigid censorship were urged by Rev W. J. Mooney and Rev. J. A. Durry, local clergymen, and H. C. Barber, secretary of the Parkhurst society.

NEW YORK AMERICAN

Noted Men in Film Censor Fight

Albany, Feb. 23.

MOVING picture interests routed Assemblyman Ahern before the Assembly Codes Committee to-day at the hearing on his bill to provide a high-salaried board of film censors. They showed:

That more than $500,000,000 are invested in the moving picture business. That it employs upward of 100,000 persons at good wages.

That 58,000 films are in use at the present time, not more than sixty of which have been the subject of complaint or criticism.

That the fifth largest industry in the United States would be virtually put out of business by a system of State censorship, under which there might be forty-eight varying standards with which each picture must comply.

The Rev. Dr. Cranston Brenston, chairman of the National Board of Censorship, which, he explained, was really a board of editing, spoke in opposition to all forms of legalized censorship, declaring the police power sufficient to handle the situation. Ninety-nine per cent of the moving pictures now on exhibition, he said, went before his board before they were displayed in public.

William P. Capes, secretary of the Educational Committee of the State Conference of Mayors, characterized the proposed law as unworkable, as well as unconstitutional, inasmuch as it contained no provision for court review of the action of the Board of Censors.

Others who spoke in opposition were W. Stephen Bush, editor of the Motion Picture World; J. P. Holland, president of the New York State Federation of Labor; James Lempke, representing the stage hands, and Thomas McGill, speaking for the musicians; Lee A. Ochs, president of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League, comprising 1,800 theatres, and J. W. Binder, executive secretary of the Motion Picture Board of Trade, which handles 91 per cent of all films shown.

Rigid censorship, as provided in the Ahern bill, was urged by the Rev. W. J. Mooney and the Rev. J. A. Durry, local clergymen, and H. C. Barber, secretary of the Parkhurst Society.

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 24, 1916.

HONOLULU STAR-BULLETIN.

OPPOSES BIRTH OF NATION AS LOCAL FEATURE

Prof. Vaughan MacCaughey of t[illegible] College of Hawaii is one of the ma[illegible] Honolulans who believe that it wou[illegible] be unwise to have the moving-pictu[illegible] feature, "The Birth of a Nation[illegible] shown in Hawaii. Prof. MacCaugh[illegible] has had unusual opportunities to g[illegible] a first-hand knowledge of the effect[illegible] this photo-play, since last summer [illegible] was travelling and lecturing in ma[illegible] Southern and other American cit[illegible] where the picture had been shown [illegible] was being shown.

"The picture is such as to arou[illegible] racial prejudice and antipathy, de[illegible]ing animalistic passions grossly," he says. "It cannot be denied that parts of it are splendid and valuable, but other parts are such as to raise the race question between white and colored races and one cannot blame the colored people for resenting this arousal of prejudice. I feel that it would be very unwise to show it in Hawaii. Here we are trying to work for mutual good feeling. I sincerely hope the picture will not be shown here."

one feel pa[illegible] success in this industry possibility of success in this industry lies in brain, art, courage and money to produce those big pictures."

W. Stephen Bush of the Motion Picture World discussed the movie situation with a view to the children, and declared that it was a case for parental control and not censorship. Proper control over the children, he pointed out, would eliminate practically all objection to the movies at this time.

Rev. Dr. Brenton Condemns Bill.

Rev. Dr. Brenton condemned the Ahern bill as undemocratic and un-American, declaring that the National Censorship Board does its work thoroughly. If the present laws were en-

Ny Daily News Art

AHERN BILL IS DESTRUCTIVE

Photo-Play Factors Tell Assembly Codes Committee That Separate State Censorship Will Ruin the Business of the Silent Drama Unless It Is Standardized.

PRIESTS FAVOR THE MEASURE

Exhibitors Are Being Driven Into Bankruptcy Because of Divergent Rulings in Various Localities—Demand Uniformity of Restrictions and Specified Liberty of Projection.

(Special Dispatch to The Morning Telegraph.)

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 23.

The various interests of the motion picture industry were large represented at a hearing held before t[illegible] Assembly Codes Committee this afternoon to protest against the bill of Assemblyman Fred M. Ahern, which proposes to establish a State Motion Picture Censorship Board.

Leo A. Ochs, president of the Motion Picture Exhibition League, spoke first for the opposition forces with a declaration that censorship in this State was not needed. "In the first place," he said, "it is un-American, as it takes freedom away. The censors cannot tell us what the public wants. It is our business to find out, and we must, above everything else, cater to the people. The people are thoroughly competent to censor the pictures themselves and it is our experience that if a picture is not pleasing to the general public it rapidly becomes a losing proposition. Six or seven years ago censorship was needed, but the time has past.

"Censorship will drive the exhibitors out of business. Whatever expense there is to it will have to be borne by the exhibitors, and let me tell you that 50 per cent. of the exhibitors are not making a living to-day. Thirty per cent. are just making a living, and the other 20 per cent. are making money. Censorship will destroy entertainment, will hurt production and will ruin this industry."

Objects to the Ahern Bill.

Secretary F. Capes, of the State Conference of Mayors, said that he did not object to censorship, but he did object to the Ahern bill. He said that the mayors' conference was at present engaged in consideration of censorship and hoped to be soon able to draw up a bill that would cover the issue properly. He said that three censors, as provided in the Ahern bill, could never censor all the pictures shown in this State, and that the bill was undoubtedly unconstitutional in that it did not provide for court review of its decisions.

A. K. Friend, representing the Jesse L. Lasky feature play company, brought out the strongest arguments against censorship, when he declared that it would absolutely ruin the industry. He pointed out that censorship existed in many States at the present time, and predicted a future date when all States would have censoring boards each with a different standard. He pointed out that all the big moving picture productions at this time were designed for nation-wide exhibition, and if they were were made to conform with the standards of every censoring board there would soon be no moving pictures.

Wants Standard of Censorship.

"The best men of the motion picture industry," said Mr. Friend, "are just as keen about producing good, clean pictures as you are. This measure will not protect; on the contrary, it will destroy. We do not object to censorship. We have absolutely no designs upon the morals of the people. You must realize that any motion picture producing company that attempts to produce a picture that will conform with standards of a single State, and therefore be eligible for exhibition in that State only, will go bankrupt in six months. The day of cheap [illegible] pictures has passed. The only

LOUISVILLE NEGROES OBJECT TO "NATION" SHOWING

At a mass meeting of Louisville negroes, held at the Colored Y. M. C. A., ways and means were discussed to prevent "The Birth of a Nation" from appearing in Louisville. The objection to its presentation is based on the grounds that the story is unfair to the race and that it may arouse race enmity.

It was decided to bring the protest to the attention of Mayor Buschemeyer and to request him to take steps to prohibit the exhibition of the film.

Motion Picture News. Mar. 11-16.

"BIRTH OF A NATION" CENSOR SUIT STARTS

Cincinnati Postmaster Tells Court Film Is the Finest He Has Ever Seen.

(Special Dispatch to The Morning Telegraph.)

COLUMBUS, March 3.

The legal fight of the Epoch Film Producing Company against the Ohio State Board of Moving Picture Censors started to-day in the United States Court here before Judge Sater. The suit directed against the censor board grows out of the board's ruling that prohibits the exhibition of the motion picture play, "The Birth of a Nation."

During the hearing to-day attorneys for the film company asked United States Court Judge Sater to review the film drama through the medium of an exhibition of the film, which they proposed to give for the jurist. No decision on this subject was reached by Judge Sater to-day.

Affidavits of prominent Cincinnatians figured in to-day's hearing. Postmaster Joel L. Clore stamped the film as "the finest production of any kind he has ever seen and a play highly artistic, moral, entirely proper and not detrimental to any race."

The case will be argued further next week.

Movie Censors Flayed at Film Convention

Albany, March 1.

PLANS for an extended campaign against motion picture censorship and in favor of opening "movie" theatres on Sunday were discussed at a convention of the State Association of Motion Picture Exhibitors, which opned here to-day.

W. Stephen Bush, editor of the Motion Picture World, sounded the keynote in an attack on the Ahern Censorship bill, now pending before the Legislature. He said:

"Once before have we appealed from the neglect and opposition of statesmanship to the forum of public opinion. When the recent constitutional convention refused to put the motion picture screen on the same footing as the press we went to the electorate. We had 1,000 slides working on the screen to defeat the proposed constitution. We aroused the ire of the fathers of that constitution, and in the newspapers—I mean in advertising paid for by the proponents of the constitution—we were denounced as the chief opponents of that blessed instrument. We moving picture men will be heard from this Fall. We dug the political grave of the first father of censorship in this state. Our shovels are still good and our muscles are in fair shape. We are keen for the battle."

THE PACIFIC COMMERCIAL ADVERTISER
HONOLULU, TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 22, 1916.

MAY NOT EXHIBIT 'BIRTH OF NATION'

Heated Opposition Discourages Promoters — Alleged That Film Is Race Propaganda

The furore raised in Honolulu against the big motion picture, "The Birth Of A Nation" seems to have accomplished its purpose. It is extremely doubtful now whether the film will be shown at the opera house next month as intended. While it is believed by those interested in the plan that thousands of people here would like to witness the spectacle, the most wonderful thing of its kind yet produced in the realm of silent drama, the opposition is so heated and all but threatening in nature, say the promoters, that it is questionable whether the picture's display would be advisable.

One contention raised by a man whose opposition is unquestionably sincere, is that the picture is merely the continuation of a campaign of hatred against the colored race. He has asserted that the author of "The Clansman," Thomas Dixon, made a vow years ago that he would do all he could to counteract the effect of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" and similar books which tended to arouse feeling against Southern slave owners.

"The Clansman" is only one of several books written along the same general line by the author, though this was perhaps his most powerful work. "The Birth Of a Nation," is the film dramatization of "The Clansman," the change of title, says the Honolulu man, made it cover up the attempt which the novel sought but failed to accomplish. He argues that while the written story deals with a subject which today is regarded as a situation of remote history, the pictured version brings forth the subject vividly, making its spectators feel that it is really a present day condition, which he declares is distinctly erroneous and an intentional perversion of fact.

STUDIO CENSOR NEXT, HE SA

Edwin Thanhouser Suggests Filming the Deed Is No Worse Than Its Enactment by Players

MAYBE SIBERIA FOR OFFENDERS

Expert Discusses Dangers Ahead in Event of Passage of Ahern Bill and Indicates Inconsistencies

In a statement made at the request of a committee of New York motion picture exhibitors who are about to take up the Albany censorship fight, Edwin Thanhouser gave expression to the following original ideas in regard to the mooted question:

"I think that any judge sitting on the question," says Mr. Thanhouser, "will agree with me that to photograph as illegal act and reproduce it for exhibition is no greater a crime than the committing of the actual deed. That's simple. If the censors take exception, under Federal law, to a scene in the picture, the enactment of that scene is just as much a crime as its portrayal on the film. That being the case, the men who are charged to enforce the law must in all consistency see that nothing objectionable is enacted. This means a pretty state of affairs in the studios. Imagine a minion of the law stationed in the studio to see that nothing is done at which the lawmakers might raise their eyebrows. Every company going out on exteriors will have to carry an additional passenger in the form of a Federal officer representative. He will have to stand near to the director, and in order for the director to avoid arrest the officer will have to be given an account of the scene about to be enacted. Said officer will then sit down carefully in his mind, look up his precedents and rulings, and decide whether the scene shall go on. If for any reason it should be impossible for him to decide on the spot the director will have to postpone his work until the guardian of the people's morals can go to Albany or Washington for a ruling on the scene. This might seem far fetched, but it seems to me to be exactly what we are bound for in all this censorship agitation.

"It is unfair that a film maker be not given definite technical information as to what will be allowed and what not, under censorship laws. For instance, the Interstate Commerce law designates specifically every act or deed which may be considered a violation of the law. I believe that there is no intention on the part of those favoring censorship to draw up such a schedule. I grant that it is a very difficult task for them to do so; at the same time, without it the law remains absolutely incomplete and unfair, judging by all the various plans I have read. The element of discretion in rulings exists in most laws that are made, but I don't believe that the statute books of the country contain a law in which the element of discretion works greater hardships on a class of citizens than the proposed censorship laws.

"Consistency is a beautiful thing. The aim of law and regulation is to make things consistent, but if our pre-censorship friends should by any chance succeed the necessity of consistency will contribute a bite much larger than they can chew. The presence of a censor in a studio will be the next step to a nice little Siberia of our own for all offending scenario writers, actors, directors and film producers."

Tel Telegraph 3/5

TEST AGAINST ATE CENSORSHIP

York Exhibitors' League Adopts solution to Be Presented to the Legislature.

E FILM "CLEARING HOUSE"

(Special Correspondence The Morning Telegraph.)

ALBANY, March 3.

testing against any State censorship motion pictures and urging the forma- of a bureau of information for mo- picture exhibitors, to be located in York City, a resolution was unani- sly adopted by the Motion Picture Ex- tors' League of New York State at closing session of its convention here erday. This resolution is to be pres- d to the Legislature.

the big dinner, which was the clos- event, though many features of the ion picture business were discussed, er or later each speaker came to the ter of censorship, which was condemned n attempt to "trample upon the rights free American nation," and character- as a "blot on democracy."

he heart of the censorship question was ched by Frederick J. Herrington, pres- nt of the national organization of mo- picture men, who likened censorship the movies to the attempted censorship the press, and predicted that as cen- rship of the public press failed, so would sorship of the movies fail. Censorship, declared, was an attempt to deny the inciples of freedom to thought and ech.

"Those who have attempted to trample on the freedom of the press," he de- ared, "have died and have been forgotten, t men like Garrison, who fought for at freedom of the press, will never be gotten.

"If the motion picture industry is to ban sponsible for putting a censorship law our statute books I say prohibit the roduction of motion pictures first."

Mr. Herrington cited Albany as an ex- mple of the "absurdity" of the need of ensorship, declaring that in Albany he last six or seven years it was only ecessary to ask for the elimination of fi r six pictures, and the requests made he police officials were promptly heeded.

Leo A. Ochs pleaded for a stronger or ganization and a more effective co-operation in order to stem the tide of attempted censorship. Not only in the matter of censorship was co-operation necessary, he declared, but in bringing about better pictures. He asserted that the producers were putting too many so-called features on the market with a constantly decreasing respect for quality, emphasizing the point that a strong organization could go to the producer and be in a position to demand better pictures.

PROTEST AGAINST STATE CENSORSHIP

Telegraph

(Continued From Page 1.)

The "open market," which was the subject of a resolution adopted at the session Thursday, could be brought about, Mr. Ochs declared, through co-operation. At present the exhibitors are forced to accept all the pictures which form a "program" irrespective of the nature of the picture. Mr. Ochs stated that the exhibitor should be in a position to select his pictures, using only the part of a "program" if he so desired.

Such a condition, he declared, could be brought about with a strong and effective organization.

Samuel Trigger, national vice president, also told of his experience, and Addison D. Parker, Deputy Secretary of State, spoke in the absence of Francis Hugo, Secretary of State. J. Robert Rubin of New York, former Deputy Police Commissioner, and at present attorney for the motion picture people, impressed upon the exhibitors the grave responsibility which rested upon them with their business, which represented in the United States an investment of more than $500,000,000. He declared that a new generation was assuming control of the motion picture business, a generation which stood for honesty and cleanliness, and when this fact became fully impressed upon the mind of the public and the lawmakers censorship would be dead. S. J. Rothapfel also spoke of his experiences in the industry.

One of the pleasing events of the banquet was the presentation of a handsome gold watch to Toastmaster W. Stephen Bush.

The league went on record, in a memorial protesting against the Ahern censorship bill, as maintaining that the freedom of occupation and the liberty of publication would be violated thereby. The resolution is as follows:

"The motion picture is at once a school, university and a public press, and by every dictate of common sense, as well as by the commands and guarantees of the Constitution itself, it should be left at public liberty to exercise its tri-partite function of amusing, informing and instructing the people.

"The laws which regulate other schools and other publications are in full force to regulate the moving picture, to punish license and obscenity and viciousness, and those laws are ample and sufficient, as they stand, without any censorship whatever.

A Moral Force.

"We protest against this proposed censorship of motion pictures on the same identical grounds on which we would protest against any proposed censorship of the printed press. The motion picture is not only entertainment and instruction; it is a moral force. It picture you will go to see. The theory of a censorship is that the majority of the people do not know what is good for them and must not have their way—but the way prescribed for them by a handful of wiser overseers.

"We protest against this un-American theory of government and social life."

It is purposed that the bureau to be established shall be national in scope and be in a position to supply information, advice and assistance; to collect and compile a legal library concerning the legal status of the industry in every State.

In short, it is planned that it shall be a clearing house for the purpose of keeping the exhibitors informed of progress and what is going on in the motion picture business. It will have as another object the taking up of all grievances which may arise between exhibitors and distributing branches with the heads of producing and distributing companies in New York.

300 Delegates Present.

The convention, which was the fourth annual meeting of the league, opened Wednesday, and at the first session more than three hundred delegates were in attendance when called to order by State President Lee A. Ochs at the Hotel Ten Eyck.

Corporation Counsel Andrews of Albany delivered an address of welcome on behalf of Mayor Stevens. In concluding his address Mr. Andrews made a plea for pictures that were of an elevating nature. He asked the delegates to lend their efforts in that direction.

The following permanent officers of the convention were then elected: Chairman, Samuel H. Trigger of New York; secretary, L. A. Buettner of Cohoes; treasurer, W. H. Linton of Little Falls. Several committees were also appointed. George H. Wright of Albany was made chairman of the committee on grievances. M. Sucknо of Albany was selected as a member of the committee on constitution and by-laws.

The principal speaker of the first day's session was W. Stephen Bush, who spoke concerning "Present Perils of Censorship" in the State of New York. He said, in part:

"The very absurdity and weakness of the Ahern censorship bill disarmed our fears.

"Mr. Ahern says that this censorship question is a moral one, not one of dollars and cents," declared Mr. Bush. "I quite agree with him, and I challenge him here and now to point to a single instance in the history of the world where censorship has ever improved the morality of any nation or any individual. Are we in the twentieth century, in the most progressive country in the world, going to flout the experiences of the past, and are we going to resurrect the ancient machinery of censorship which the immortal John Milton, in his plea for a free press, has justly characterized as an engine of oppression and tyranny?"

According to the terms of the Ahern bill, he declared, three individuals would have to examine about 35,000 feet of film every day.

"Three men—or, worse yet, two men and one woman—regulating the morals of 8,000,000 people!" he exclaimed. "I have repeatedly passed from New York to Pennsylvania and from Ohio into Indiana. Have I discovered a superior brand of morality in the State of Pennsylvania, the home of censorship? Have I noticed a marked difference in the moral standards and the moral conduct of Indianapolis and Cincinnati? Have Ohio and Pennsylvania grown conspicuously moral since they fell under the stern guardianship of Maude Murray Miller and that great paragon of censorial wisdom, Louis J. Breitinger?

"Once before have we appealed from the neglect and opposition of statesmanship to the forum of public opinion. When the recent Constitutional Convention refused to put the motion picture screen on the same footing as the press we went to the electorate—we had 1,000 slides working on the screen to defeat the proposed constitution. We aroused the ire of the fathers of that constitution, and in the newspapers—I mean in advertising paid for by the proponents of the constitution—we were denounced as the chief opponents of that blessed instrument. We moving picture men will be heard from this Fall. We dug the political grave of the first father of censorship in this State. Our shovels are still good and our muscles are in fair shape. We are keen for the battle."

Frederick J. Herrington of Pittsburg, Pa., fresh from Oklahoma, where, he said there is well organized battle by motion picture exhibitors against censorship, recommended the establishment of a bureau of information, advice and assistance, national in its scope, to be located in New York City, to serve the exhibitors all through the country on all questions of their business, law and feature films, and to adjust grievances with the heads of the great producing and distribution companies.

Lewis H. Blumenthal of New York spoke of The needs and just grievances of the motion picture exhibitors, and dwelt on the unfairness of the exacting four weeks' order in advance for film service, and its unfair arrangement, because it left the exhibitor at the mercy of the producer, and once the exhibitor's money is placed on deposit he never can get it back again unless he takes out the equivalent in film service.

George W. Blair of the Eastman Kodak Company, Rochester, announced himself as bitterly opposed to the Ahern censorship bill. An exhibitor from Pittsburg, Pa., explained how they defeated the ordinance to segregate motion picture audiences; also how they took the sting out of the censorship law in Pennsylvania.

Prior to the calling of the convention Mr. Ochs said:

"This censorship bill proposed in our State is far more drastic and sweeping than either the Ohio or the Pennsylvania statute. For one thing, it makes the judgment of three individuals absolute and final, no provision being made for an appeal from the decision of the censors. The motion picture men in the censorship States have been hard hit by this new method of regulating their business.

"The censors have sterilized the comedies and emasculated the dramas, and as a result the motion picture has lost its entertainment value, and likewise its popularity. Laughter has become a lost art in Ohio and Pennsylvania. In one case they ruled out a filmed version of 'The Battle of Gettysburg' because it showed 'careless handling of firearms.' In Pennsylvania the board has adopted a rule which provides every comedy must be actuated by a serious purpose. If this Ahern bill becomes a law it will empty the motion picture theatres, reducing the number of them 50 per cent., and perhaps more."

At the closing session Leo A. Ochs of New York was re-elected president. Other officers selected to-day were: First vice president, L. Buettner of Cohoes; second vice president, Samuel Sucno of Albany; third vice president, John Whitteman of New York; secretary, Thomas Holland of Brooklyn, and treasurer, B. Emmett Cornell of Syracuse.

The following delegates were elected to the national convention at Chicago, July 11 to 16: Charles A. McCarty of Hoosick Falls, Bert Gibbons of Syracuse, Al Blumenthal of New York, John Whitteman of the Bronx and A. N. Wolff of Rochester.

The convention went on record as being in favor of the present State law, which allows the opening of motion picture theatres on Sunday.

N.Y. Telegraph March 10

CENSORSHIP FIGHT AT LOS ANGELES

"Uplifters" Are Trying to Obtain Right to Interfere With Motion Pictures.

DR. THOMAS DIXON HEARD

Woman in City Council Leads Fight for Freedom of Action by Managers.

(Special Dispatch to The Morning Telegraph.)

LOS ANGELES, Cal., March 9.

The proposal of the Public Welfare Committee to abolish the local board of censorship and substitute a single commissioner as censor came up for consideration before the City Council here yesterday. Councilwoman Lindsey, chairman of the Public Welfare Committee presided, and the council chamber was crowded with representatives of the moving picture industry, religious organization, women's clubs, civic associations and a number of social workers. As the ordinance calls for the expenditure of public funds for the payment of the salary of the single commissioner, it is required that at least seven of the councilors favor its passage.

Are Equally Divided.

At the close of the meeting they seemed about equally divided. The consensus of opinion seemed that the bill needed modification and that its chief fault lay in resting too much responsibility upon one man. No definite action was taken and rehearing will be given in one week. During that time the ordinance will be changed to meet the views of those councilmen opposing it only in its present form.

The introduction of the ordinance to the council brought forth a heated discussion. The church federation opposing the bill maintained that the censorship of motion picture films by a commission, the larger the better, was absolutely necessary to the moral welfare of the community and was demanded by a vast majority of the people of Los Angeles. The moving picture interests, led by Thomas Dixon, author of "The Clansman" and at present producing pictures in Los Angeles, speaking for the bill, declared that the censorship of motion pictures is unjustified, illegal, unnecessary, un-American and an entirely reprehensible procedure.

Dixon's Address Impressive.

Thomas Dixon made a very vigorous and impressive address. He pointed out that the censorship of to-day was a serious threat against not only the welfare of the motion picture industry, but against the liberties of the nation. He said there was ample power to prevent impropriety or indecency through the penal code. In closing he said: "We want Los Angeles to help in establishing throughout the United States the guarantees of privileges accorded by the Constitution. We are going to carry this campaign throughout the country and into every Congressional district. We want to establish in this city religious and political freedom and freedom of the press. And if necessary to bring this about to add another provision to the Constitution."

Councilwoman Lindsey made a stirring appeal for the abolition of censorship. She said that the city should protect itself from a host of Anthony Comstocks and that in her opinion the local censorship board had been a complete failure. Others speaking for the moving picture interests were: Jesse L. Lasky, W. J. Reynolds and Frank A. Garbutt of the Motion Picture Producers' Association.

ASSAIL FILM CENSORSHIP.

Motion Picture Men Call Ahearn Bill "Worst of All."

ALBANY, March 1.—The bill of Assemblyman Ahearn of Brooklyn intended to provide for censorship of motion pictures in New York was assailed by speakers at to-day's session of the annual convention of the New York State Motion Picture Exhibitors' League as "the worst of all censorship bills."

W. Stephen Bush, editor of the Motion Picture World, declared enactment of the bill into a law would ruin the motion picture business in the State.

ONTHS OLD O AT AUCT N

m Walnut Hall Farm Sets inter Sale at Madison Others Sell Well.

ASDIKIAN.

for higher prices, this is the highest price ever paid in auction for what is known as a "coming yearling"—that is, a youngster not yet twelve months old.

The record maker was the 9-month-old Saint Frusquin, a bay colt by San Francisco, dam by Walnut Hall, the contending buyers again being Walter Cox, the Dover (N.H.) trainer, and A. H. Cosden of this city. Bidding on the prize started unusually slow, but after reaching $[illegible] the two contenders stepped [illegible] a lively [illegible]it, each bid being at $100 up to $5,500, [illegible]r. Cosden's last bid, Co[illegible] being the win[illegible] at a $100 advance. The sale caused [illegible] long and loud ovation.

Thirty-one yearlings [illegible]om Walnut Hall Far[illegible] were sold yes[illegible]rday, making a total of [illegible] for the two days for $26,-280, or an [illegible]erage of [illegible]410 per head, said to be the [illegible]ighe[illegible] average ever recorded for 63 yearlings and one 2-year-old, not only from a single consignment, but ever sold in one sale. This average was about $[illegible] per head more than that for the [illegible]onsignment to the 1915 Midwinter [illegible]uction, when the average was $361.

The prices [illegible] this [illegible]gnment varied from $60 to $5,[illegible] and the [illegible]eneral result was therefore very s[illegible]isfactory.

While some you[illegible] by all of the farm's four [illegible]ions, b[illegible]ght good prices, yet the most [illegible]rilliant showing was due m[illegible]ly to S[illegible] Fra[illegible]isco, as three-fifths [illegible] the total [illegible]mount received was paid [illegible] youngsters [illegible] that stallion, eighteen s[illegible]ing for a tota[illegible]15,615, or an average [illegible] of $867.50 per head, and not one fully [illegible] months old. The only other yearling selling for $1,000 yesterday was Battle Spirit, by Walnut Hall, the buyer being W. H. Nelson, Mount [illegible]isco, N. Y., little known to horsemen.

$4,000 for a [illegible]-Year-Old.

Just before b[illegible]ing th[illegible] yearling at a record price, [illegible]alter Cox [illegible]ded a very promising [illegible]urity candidate [illegible] his stable by paying $4,000 for Mr. Ha[illegible]thorne, (2c, 2:19 1-4, a 3-year-old roan colt by Axworthy, dam the once famous race mare Hawthorne, 2:06 1-4, by Jay Bird.

(Continued on Page [illegible], Column [illegible])

SCREEN MAGNATES BOMBARD CENSORS

Motion Picture Exhibitors, in Business Conclave, Demand the Same Freedom as Press and Pulpit.

AHERN BILL IS DENOUNCED

(Special Dispatch to The Morning Telegraph.)

ALBANY, March 1.

Representatives of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' Association of the State of New York gathered here to-day for their fourth annual convention. Over 300 delegates were present when the first session was first called to order by State President Lee A. Ochs at the Hotel Ten Eyck this morning.

Corporation Counsel Andrews of Albany was then introduced and delivered an address of welcome on behalf of Mayor Stevens. In concluding his address, Mr. Andrews made a plea for pictures that were of an elevating nature. He asked the delegates to lend their efforts in that direction.

The following permanent officers of the convention were then elected: Chairman, Samuel H. Trigger of New York; secretary, L. A. Buettner of Cohoes; treasurer, W. H. Linton of Little Falls. Several committees were also appointed. George H. Wright of Albany was made chairman of the committee on grievances. M. Suckno of Albany was selected as a member of the committee on constitution and by-laws.

The principal speaker of to-day's session was W. Stephen Bush, editor of the Moving Picture World, who spoke concerning "Present Perils of Censorship" in the State of New York. He said in part:

"The very absurdity and weakness of the Ahern censorship bill disarmed our fears.

"Mr. Ahern says that this censorship question is a moral one, not one of dollars and cents," declared Mr. Bush.

(Continued on Page 2, Cols. 5 & 6.)

THE WEATHER.

[illegible] rain [illegible]-day, slightly warm[illegible] an[illegible] colder to-morrow; mode[illegible]te [illegible] fresh [illegible]st and southe[illegible]st winds [illegible]ecom[illegible] west.

N.Y. Telegraph

Ask Defeat of Film Censorship Bill

Albany, March 2.

A lengthy petition to the Legislature urging defeat of the Ahern moving picture censorship bill was adopted at an executive session of the convention of the New York State Motion Picture Exhibitors' League here to-day.

A resolution to name a committee to confer on matters of general interest with the motion picture board of trade was defeated until an apology is forthcoming for an alleged censorious letter attacking the exhibitors. Another proposition considered was to the effect that the large cash deposits left by exhibitors with the film makers should be subject to jurisdiction and control of the Superintendent of Banks or some other State official. It was declared that these sums run into the millions.

Going to Be One. JANET VALE Has ne of the Most Interesting Articles Tha

ning Te

ORK, FRIDAY, MARCH 3, 1916.

STATE FILM MEN FRAME PROTEST TO CENSORSHIP

Closing Session of New York Motion Picture Exhibitors Taken Up With Adoption of Resolution to Be Presented to Legislature—Proposed Law Un-American, They Say.

PLAN INFORMATION BUREAU

Will Maintain It in This City as Sort of Clearing House for Screen Industry—Will Be National in Scope—To Collect Legal Library on Photo-Play Trade.

(Special Dispatch to The Morning Telegraph.)

ALBANY, March 2.

At the closing session of the convention of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of New York State here to-day a resolution was unanimously adopted to be presented to the Legislature protesting against any State censorship of motion pictures, and for the formation of a Bureau of Information for motion picture exhibitors, to be located in New York City.

In the memorial protesting against the Ahern censorship bill the League went on record as maintaining that the freedom of occupation and the liberty of publication would both be violated by such a censorship. The resolution reads:

"The motion picture is at once a school, a university and a public press, and by every dictate of common-sense, as well as by the commands and guarantees of the Constitution itself, it should be left at public liberty to exercise its tri-partite function of amusing, informing and instructing the people.

"The laws which regulate other schools and other publications are in full force to regulate the moving picture, to punish license and obscenity and viciousness, and those laws are ample and sufficient as they stand, without any censorship whatever.

Protest Against Censors.

...protest against this proposed ... on the

IGHT UPON FILM MAY GO TO COURT

Protestants Against Showing of "Birth of a Nation" to Make Further Effort.

SAID PICTURE CREATES RACIAL PREJUDICE

Commissioners Have Received About Thirty Complaints—Legal Proceedings Investigated.

Following the decision of the District Commissioners that they are without authority to prohibit the presentation in Washington of the motion picture, "Birth of a Nation," which has aroused racial feeling in a number of cities, protestants today prepared to make an effort in another direction to prevent the showing of the picture here.

What this step will be they would not disclose, but it was broadly hinted that the courts might be appealed to.

"I cannot say what the procedure will be," stated Rev. J. Milton Waldron, who has taken an active part in seeking action by the Commissioners, but it is certain that we will do everything within our power to keep the picture from being shown in Washington. We will not violate the law, but intend to go as far as possible within the law to accomplish this end."

Have No Authority.

The Commissioners had been asked to give a hearing in the matter, but refused the request when informed by the corporation counsel that they had no authority to bar the picture from the capital.

Anticipating that the question of authority might be raised the District heads, said Rev. Waldron, had been requested, in the event of such a decision, to ask Congress for a law prohibiting the presentation of the picture here or, failing in this, to confer with the proprietor of the theater where it is to be shown with the object of having some of the scenes which have been particularly objected to eliminated.

It developed today that the Commissioners have received about thirty protests from associations and individuals, all of them based on the proposition that the picture tends to create racial prejudice and, for this reason, should not be shown.

Barred From Some States.

So far as could be learned, the Commissioners have not been presented with any records showing how the picture was received in other cities, but, according to Rev. Waldron, such information would have been presented at the hearing requested. He said that the picture has been barred from the states of Ohio, Kansas and Michigan and that it has caused disturbances in several cities, particularly in Boston, Philadelphia, New York and a number of towns in Pennsylvania.

Rev. Waldron also remarked that investigation is being made of the result of court proceedings instituted elsewhere to prohibit the showing of the film. He said he had been informed that legal action had been successfully instituted by opponents of the picture in several cities.

motion pictures on grounds on which we ainst any proposed cenprinted press. The mo-not only entertainment it is a moral force. It nocently happier.
ally is the usefulness of re evident in the smaller here, from the very force tances of minor popula-ening influences of life ewhat lacking. To the lifting and popular, the must tell the truth and ed to tell the truth. It owed to tell the truth if jected to the restrictions nsors.
ch one of you has the
to select and read the nd magazines which best each one of you has the to choose for yourself picture you will go to see.
f a censorship is that the
the people do not know for them and must not y—but the way prescribed a handful of wiser overt against this un-American ernment and social life."

to be established will be cope. It will be a bureau on, advice and assistance, the plans of the exhibitors,
d compile a legal library the legal status of the mousiness in every State.

e Clearing House.

ned as a clearing house of
to keep the exhibitors in-weekly bulletin of what is erally in the motion picture Another object will be to th the heads of producing buting companies of New evances which arise between and distributing branches.
ochs of New York was reident. Other officers selec were: first vice president, L.
Cohoes; second vice presiel Sucno of Albany; third

d on Page 2, Column 4.)

THE WEATHER.

cloudy to-day. Fair to-not much change in ure; light northwest

ver

Film Censors Branded as National Menace at Motion Picture Banquet

FEDERAL and State censorship of moving pictures was branded as a menace to the freedom of public thought and expression through the medium of the screen at a banquet given in the Hotel Astor last night by the Motion Picture Board of Trade of America to newspaper cartoonists and writers.

The moving picture men arranged a screen entertainment for their guests for the purpose of "showing up the censors." This consisted of the exhibition of parts of motion picture reels that had been expurgated by the censors, and was shown to prove to the newspapermen the uselessness of a National Board of Censorship.

Arthur James, the toastmaster, denounced the censors as the destroyers of art, the foe of advancement and the common enemy of all. He said that a censorship on motion pictures would be but the forerunner to a strict censorship of the spoken drama, the press and the pulpit.

PEOPLE MUST CONSENT.

Arthur Brisbane was called upon for the first address. He said:

"There will be no censorship without the consent of a majority of the people, and I do not think they will consent to any very extensive or universal censorship."

Mr. Brisbane said that the moving picture might be used with great success in politics.

"I believe," he said, "that in the next campaign the man that uses this method of campaigning will find it a large factor in the results of the election."

THE "MOVIE" IN POLITICS.

Mr. Brisbane said that for campaign purposes a political party might show a picture representing Tammany politicians at dinner in Delmonico's with a "close up" of Charles F. Murphy's fork with peas on the end o fit, or a pitcure of the city's deposits being given to Interborough lawyers and directors, or a picture of the Mayor going home in his automobile which the people have paid for, together with a picture of the people hanging on the straps in the subway.

He urged that the moving picture business be standardized and that more attention be given to educational films.

J. Robert Rubin, who followed Mr. Brisbane, said all that Mr. Brisbane asked the moving picture men to do in the way of producing educational films is being done.

"Moving pictures," Mr. Rubin said, "are no longer clap-trap melodramas, but our entertainments are arranged in programmes containing news events, cartoons, travel pictures and the highest type of drama. In this profession there is being used the best thought of the best literary men in the world. The motion picture producer has gone to the four corners of the world—he has penetrated the jungles—crossed the sea and climbed the mountain. He has explored the earth from Pole to Pole to provide entertainment for his audiences.

A SCHOOL IN ITSELF.

The motion picture to-day is a school in itself. It has made men wiser and humanity broader. It is the greatest food for mankind since the telephone. The people have not taken the interest in the censor that they should. The censor is the child of autocracy, nurtured by tyranny and despotism, the tool of these vices. The censorship of the motion picture to-day means the censorship of the press to-morrow. Censorship is undemocratic and discriminating and deprives a man of his inalienable rights to the pursuit of happiness.

"The motion picture of to-day speaks for the people and expresses the best sentiments of the people, and the gag rule of the censors who are woefully ignorant of the business that they are pretending to regulate should not be tolerated.

The affair was described as a dinner given by the "Fifth Estate" to the "Fourth Estate," and among those present were: Arthur Brisbane, Charles Dana Gibson, Charles Urvan, inventor of the kinemacolor pictures; Herbert S. Houston, president of the Advertising clubs of the world; J. Robert Rubin, J. Stewart Blackton, president of the Motion Picture Board of Trade; William M. Seabury, general counsel for the Board; J. W. Binder, executive secretary of the Board; Arthur James, chairman of the Publication Committee; Franklin P. Adams, Oscar Cesare, Winsor McCay, Fontaine Fox, Frederick Opper, Cliff Sterret, R. L. Goldberg, T. A. Dorgan ("Tad") Hal Coffman, C. A. Gilbert, Charles R. McCauley, Robert Carter, George McManus, Tom McNamara, L. M. Glacken, Gene Carr, F. A. Eaton, Burns Mantle, Frank J. Price, Reginald Foster, Charles Harding, Fred Hawley and Ewan Justice.

"BIRTH OF A NATION" MEETS MORE TROUBLE

Lexington City Commissioners Object to Public Showing of Griffith Film Spectacle.

Lexington's Board of City Commissioners to-day, by a vote of 3 to 1 (one member absent), recorded objection to "The Birth of a Nation," and requested the Lexington Opera House to "cancel and annul" pictures booking for the week of March 20. Action followed the protests on the part of negro citizens, supported by the feeling of certain influential whites that nothing should be shown here calculated in the slightest degree to engender race prejudice. Action is likely to be followed by an agitation in behalf of the picture from citizens whose forebears were prominent on the Confederate side during the Civil War.

N.Y. Telegraph March 10

CENSORSHIP FIGHT AT LOS ANGELES

'Uplifters" Are Trying to Obtain Right to Interfere With Motion Pictures.

DR. THOMAS DIXON HEARD

Woman in City Council Leads Fight for Freedom of Action by Managers.

(Special Dispatch to The Morning Telegraph.)

LOS ANGELES, Cal., March 9.

The proposal of the Public Welfare Committee to abolish the local board of censorship and substitute a single commissioner as censor came up for consideration before the City Council here yesterday. Councilwoman Lindsey, chairman of the Public Welfare Committee presided, and the council chamber was crowded with representatives of the moving picture industry, religious organization, women's clubs, civic associations and a number of social workers. As the ordinance calls for the expenditure of public funds for the payment of the salary of the single commissioner, it is required that at least seven of the councilors favor its passage.

Are Equally Divided.

At the close of the meeting they seemed about equally divided. The consensus of opinion seemed that the bill needed modification and that its chief fault lay in resting too much responsibility upon one man. No definite action was taken and rehearing will be given in one week. During that time the ordinance will be changed to meet the views of those councilmen opposing it only in its present form.

The introduction of the ordinance to the council brought forth a heated discussion. The church federation opposing the bill maintained that the censorship of motion picture films by a commission, the larger the better, was absolutely necessary to the moral welfare of the community and was demanded by a vast majority of the people of Los Angeles. The moving picture interests, led by Thomas Dixon, author of "The Clansman" and at present producing pictures in Los Angeles, speaking for the bill, declared that the censorship of motion pictures is unjustified, illegal, unnecessary, un-American and an entirely reprehensible procedure.

Dion's Address Impressive.

Thomas Dixon made a very vigorous and impressive address. He pointed out that the censorship of to-day was a serious threat against not only the welfare of the motion picture industry, but against the liberties of the nation. He said there was ample power to prevent impropriety or indecency through the penal code. In closing he said: "We want Los Angeles to help in establishing throughout the United States the guarantees of privileges accorded by the Constitution. We are going to carry this campaign throughout the country and into every Congressional district. We want to establish in this city religious and political freedom and freedom of the press. And if necessary to bring this about to add another provision to the Constitution."

Councilwoman Lindsey made a stirring appeal for the abolition of censorship. She said that the city should protect itself from a host of Anthony Comstocks and that in her opinion the local censorship board had been a complete failure. Others speaking for the moving picture interests were: Jesse L. Lasky, W. J. Reynolds and Frank A. Garbutt of the Motion Picture Producers' Association.

ASSAIL FILM CENSORSHIP.

Motion Picture Men Call Ahearn Bill "Worst of All."

ALBANY, March 1.—The bill of Assemblyman Ahearn of Brooklyn intended to provide for censorship of motion pictures in New York was assailed by speakers at to-day's session of the annual convention of the New York State Motion Picture Exhibitors' League as "the worst of all censorship bills."

W. Stephen Bush, editor of the Motion Picture World, declared enactment of the bill into a law would ruin the motion picture business in the State.

ONTHS OLD O AT AUCT N

m Walnut Hall Farm Sets inter Sale at Madison Others Sell Well.

ASDIKIAN.

for higher prices, this is the highest price ever paid in auction for what is known as a "coming yearling"—that is, a youngster not yet twelve months old.

The record maker was the 9-month-old Saint Frusquin, a bay colt by San Francisco, dam by W lnut Hall, the contending buyers again being Walter Cox, the Dover (N.H.) trainer, and A. H. Cosden of this city. Bidding on the prize started unusually slow, but after reaching $3,000 the two contenders stepped [illegible] a lively [illegible], each bid being at $100 up to $5,500, Mr. Cosden's last bid, Cox being the winner at a $100 advance. The sale caused a long and loud ovation.

Thirty one yearlings from Walnut Hall Farm were sold yesterday, making a total of [illegible] for the two days for $26,280, or an average of $410 per head, said to be the highest average ever recorded for 63 yearlings and one 2-year-old, not only from a single consignment, but ever sold in one sale. This average was about $[illegible] per head more than that for the consignment to the 1915 Midwinter auction, when the average was $361.

The prices for this consignment varied from $60 to $5,500 and the general result was therefore very satisfactory.

While some youngsters by all of the farm's four stallions brought good prices, yet the most brilliant showing was due mainly to San Francisco, as three-fifths of the total amount received was paid for youngsters by that stallion, eighteen selling for a total of $15,615, or an average of $867.50 per head, and not one fully [illegible] months old. The only other yearling selling for $1,000 yesterday was Battle Spirit, by Walnut Hall, the buyer being W. H. Nelson, Mount Kisco, N. Y., little known to horsemen.

$4,000 for a [illegible]-Year-Old.

Just before buying the yearling at a record price, Walter Cox added a very promising futurity candidate to his stable by paying $4,000 for Mr. Hawthorne (2), 2.19 1-4, a 3-year-old roan colt by Axworthy, dam the once famous race mare Hawthorne, 2.06 1-4, by Jay Bird.

(Continued on Page [illegible], Column [illegible])

SCREEN MAGNATES BOMBARD CENSORS

Motion Picture Exhibitors, in Business Conclave, Demand the Same Freedom as Press and Pulpit.

AHERN BILL IS DENOUNCED

(Special Dispatch to The Morning Telegraph.)

ALBANY, March 1.

Representatives of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' Association of the State of New York gathered here to-day for their fourth annual convention. Over 300 delegates were present when the first session was first called to order by State President Lee A. Ochs at the Hotel Ten Eyck this morning.

Corporation Counsel Andrews of Albany was then introduced and delivered an address of welcome on behalf of Mayor Stevens. In concluding his address, Mr. Andrews made a plea for pictures that were of an elevating nature. He asked the delegates to lend their efforts in that direction.

The following permanent officers of the convention were then elected: Chairman, Samuel H. Trigger of New York; secretary, L. A. Buettner of Cohoes; treasurer, W. H. Linton of Little Falls. Several committees were also appointed. George H. Wright of Albany was made chairman of the committee on grievances. M. Suckno of Albany was selected as a member of the committee on constitution and by-laws.

The principal speaker of to-day's session was W. Stephen Bush, editor of the Moving Picture World, who spoke concerning "Present Perils of Censorship" in the State of New York. He said in part:

"The very absurdity and weakness of the Ahern censorship bill disarmed our fears.

"Mr. Ahern says that this censorship question is a moral one, not one of dollars and cents," declared Mr. Bush.

(Continued on Page 2, Cols. 5 & 6.)

THE WEATHER.

Now [illegible] rain to-day, slightly warmer [illegible] and colder to-morrow; moderate to fresh east and southeast winds; [illegible] west.

N.Y. Telegraph

Ask Defeat of Film Censorship Bill

Albany, March 2.

A lengthy petition to the Legislature urging defeat of the Ahern moving picture censorship bill was adopted at an executive session of the convention of the New York State Motion Picture Exhibitors' League here to-day.

A resolution to name a committee to confer on matters of general interest with the motion picture board of trade was defeated until an apology is forthcoming for an alleged censorious letter attacking the exhibitors. Another proposition considered was to the effect that the large cash deposits left by exhibitors with the film makers should be subject to jurisdiction and control of the Superintendent of Banks or some other State official. It was declared that these sums run into the millions.

Going to Be One. JANET VALE Has ne of the Most Interesting Articles Tha

ing Te

ORK, FRIDAY, M... of August 28. ...3, 1916.

...ertainty and offici... announcement will be ma... in a few d...s.

It is no... certain tha... Walter Cox will have a... larger string... of horses racing over th... Eastern ha...-mile tracks this year than ... has ha... since the old days, when he ha... a... Grand Circuit fame. This stable will be under the personal management of the Boston writer, Frank G. Trott.

The last horse was taken out before 10 o'clock last night, and the Garden turned over by the employees of the Essig-Tipton Company. There were no accidents or losses of any kind, while only two horses were sick, both having colds. The fifth floor of the Garden ...er will now be very busy preparing ... the auction sale of pedigreed cattle ... be held in Philadelphia next Wednesday.

STATE FILM MEN PROTEST CENSORS

(Continued From Page 1.)

vice president, John Whitteman of New York; secretary, Thomas Holland of Brooklyn, and treasurer, B. Emmett Cornell of Syracuse.

The following delegates were elected to the national convention at Chicago, July 11 to 16: Charles A. McCarty of Hoosick Falls, Bert Gibbons of Syracuse, Al Blumenthal of New York, John Whittman of the Bronx and A. N. Wolff of Rochester.

The convention went on record as being in favor of the present State law which allows the opening of motion picture theatres on Sunday. The convention closed to-night with a banquet at the Hotel Ten Eyck. W. Stephen Bush, editor of the Motion Picture World, presided as toastmaster. Among the speakers were Walter Irwin of the Vitagraph company and Samuel R. Rothapfel of New York.

COURT UPHOLDS MERCEDES.

Prohibits Miss Crane From Using Name in Mystic Act.

(Special Dispatch to The Morning Telegraph.)

CINCINNATI, O., March 2.—Announcement was made here to-day that a permanent injunction had been issued in the courts of Ohio, prohibiting Elizabeth Mercedes Crane from producing or advertising her mind-reading and musical stage act, at the instance of Mercedes Cohen, the mystic. The previous action to the same end in the courts here was dismissed when Cohen, the plaintiff, failed to appear.

The contention of Miss Crane, who has been using her act on a rival circuit from Mercedes in court here, was that years ago she originated the act at the instance of her father, a Chicago newspaper editor. To-day's permanent injunction prohibits her use of the name "Mercedes" as a title for a mind-reading act on the stage.

...16.

...IGHT UPON FILM MAY GO TO COURT

Protestants Against Showing of "Birth of a Nation" to Make Further Effort.

SAID PICTURE CREATES RACIAL PREJUDICE

Commissioners Have Received About Thirty Complaints—Legal Proceedings Investigated.

Following the decision of the District Commissioners that they are without authority to prohibit the presentation in Washington of the motion picture, "Birth of a Nation," which has aroused racial feeling in a number of cities, protestants today prepared to make an effort in another direction to prevent the showing of the picture here.

What this step will be they would not disclose, but it was broadly hinted that the courts might be appealed to.

"I cannot say what the procedure will be," stated Rev. J. Milton Waldron, who has taken an active part in seeking action by the Commissioners, "but it is certain that we will do everything within our power to keep the picture from being shown in Washington. We will not violate the law, but intend to go as far as possible within the law to accomplish this end."

Have No Authority.

The Commissioners had been asked to give a hearing in the matter, but refused the request when informed by the corporation counsel that they had no authority to bar the picture from the capital.

Anticipating that the question of authority might be raised the District heads, said Rev. Waldron, had been requested, in the event of such a decision, to ask Congress for a law prohibiting the presentation of the picture here or, failing in this, to confer with the proprietor of the theater where it is to be shown with the object of having some of the scenes which have been particularly objected to eliminated.

It developed today that the Commissioners have received about thirty protests from associations and individuals, all of them based on the proposition that the picture tends to create racial prejudice and, for this reason, should not be shown.

Barred From Some States.

So far as could be learned, the Commissioners have not been presented with any records showing how the picture was received in other cities, but, according to Rev. Waldron, such information would have been presented at the hearing requested. He said that the picture has been barred from the states of Ohio, Kansas and Michigan and that it has caused disturbances in several cities, particularly in Boston, Philadelphia, New York and a number of towns in Pennsylvani...

Rev. Waldron also remarked that investigation is being made of the result of court proceedings instituted elsewhere to prohibit the showing of the film. He said he had been informed that legal action had been successfully instituted by opponents of the picture in several cities.

...protest against this proposed ... on the

The American 3/13

Film Censors Branded as National Menace at Motion Picture Banquet

FEDERAL and State censorship of moving pictures was branded as a menace to the freedom of public thought and expression through the medium of the screen at a banquet given in the Hotel Astor last night by the Motion Picture Board of Trade of America to newspaper cartoonists and writers.

The moving picture men arranged a screen entertainment for their guests for the purpose of "showing up the censors." This consisted of the exhibition of parts of motion picture reels that had been expurgated by the censors, and was shown to prove to the newspapermen the uselessness of a National Board of Censorship.

Arthur James, the toastmaster, denounced the censors as the destroyers of art, the foe of advancement and the common enemy of all. He said that a censorship on motion pictures would be but the forerunner to a strict censorship of the spoken drama, the press and the pulpit.

PEOPLE MUST CONSENT.

Arthur Brisbane was called upon for the first address. He said:

"There will be no censorship without the consent of a majority of the people, and I do not think they will consent to any very extensive or universal censorship."

Mr. Brisbane said that the moving picture might be used with great success in politics.

"I believe," he said, "that in the next campaign the man that uses this method of campaigning will find it a large factor in the results of the election."

THE "MOVIE" IN POLITICS.

Mr. Brisbane said that for campaign purposes a political party might show a picture representing Tammany politicians at dinner in Delmonico's with a "close up" of Charles F. Murphy's fork with peas on the end o fit, or a piteure of the city's deposits being given to Interborough lawyers and directors, or a picture of the Mayor going home in his automobile which the people have paid for, together with a picture of the people hanging on the straps in the subway.

He urged that the moving picture business be standardized and that more attention be given to educational films.

J. Robert Rubin, who followed Mr. Brisbane, said all that Mr. Brisbane asked the moving picture men to do in the way of producing educational films is being done.

"Moving pictures," Mr. Rubin said, "are no longer clap-trap melodramas, but our entertainments are arranged in programmes containing news events, cartoons, travel pictures and the highest type of drama. In this profession there is being used the best thought of the best literary men in the world. The motion picture producer has gone to the four corners of the world—he has penetrated the jungles—crossed the sea and climbed the mountain. He has explored the earth from Pole to Pole to provide entertainment for his audiences.

A SCHOOL IN ITSELF.

The motion picture to-day is a school in itself. It has made men wiser and humanity broader. It is the greatest food for mankind since the telephone. The people have not taken the interest in the censor that they should. The censor is the child of autocracy, nurtured by tyranny and despotism, the tool of these vices. The censorship of the motion picture to-day means the censorship of the press to-morrow. Censorship is undemocratic and discriminating and deprives a man of his inalienable rights to the pursuit of happiness.

"The motion picture of to-day speaks for the people and expresses the best sentiments of the people, and the gag rule of the censors who are woefully ignorant of the business that they are pretending to regulate should not be tolerated.

The affair was described as a dinner given by the "Fifth Estate" to the "Fourth Estate," and among those present were: Arthur Brisbane, Charles Dana Gibson, Charles Urvan, inventor of the kinemacolor pictures; Herbert S. Houston, president of the Advertising clubs of the world; J. Robert Rubin, J. Stewart Blackton, president of the Motion Picture Board of Trade; William M. Seabury, general counsel for the Board; J. W. Binder, executive secretary of the Board; Arthur James, chairman of the Publication Committee; Franklin P. Adams, Oscar Cesare, Winsor McCay, Fontaine Fox, Frederick Opper, Cliff Sterret, R. L. Goldberg, T. A. Dorgan ("Tad") Hal Coffman, C. A. Gilbert, Charles R. McCauley, Robert Carter, George McManus, Tom McNamara, L. M. Glacken, Gene Carr, F. A. Eaton, Burns Mantle, Frank J. Price, Reginald Foster, Charles Harding, Fred Hawley and Ewan Justice.

N.Y. Times 3/3

"BIRTH OF A NATION" MEETS MORE TROUBLE

Lexington City Commissioners Object to Public Showing of Griffith Film Spectacle.

Lexington's Board of City Commissioners to-day, by a vote of 3 to 1 (one member absent), recorded objection to "The Birth of a Nation," and requested the Lexington Opera House to "cancel and annul" pictures booking for the week of March 20. Action followed the protests on the part of negro citizens, supported by the feeling of certain influential whites that nothing should be shown here calculated in the slightest degree to engender race prejudice. Action is likely to be followed by an agitation in behalf of the picture from citizens whose forebears were prominent on the Confederate side during the Civil War.

LONE CENSOR NEW LOS ANGELES IDEA

Public Welfare Committee Proposes That One Man Replace Board. Warm Discussion Provoked.

MATTER PUT OVER FOR WEEK

Dr. Thomas Dixon Speaks and Councilwoman Lindsey Leads Fight for Abolition of Censorship.

(Special Dispatch to The Morning Telegraph.)

LOS ANGELES, Cal., March 7.

With a crowded council chamber, the attendance composed of representatives of the motion picture industry, women's clubs, religious organizations, civic bodies and a number of social workers, the proposal of the Public Welfare Committee to abolish the local board of censorship and substitute a single commissioner as censor, came up for consideration before the City Council yesterday. The session was presided over by Councilwoman Lindsey, chairman of the committee. The ordinance calls for the expenditure of public funds for the payment of the salary of the lone commissioner, and therefore at least seven of the councilmen must favor its passage. When the meeting ended they seemed about equally divided. The consensus of opinion seemed that the bill needed modification and that its chief fault lay in resting too much responsibility upon one man. No definite action was taken and a rehearing will be given in one week. During that time the ordinance will be changed to meet the views of those councilmen opposing it only in its present form.

Heated Discussion.

The introduction of the ordinance to the council brought forth a heated discussion. The church federation opposing the bill maintained that the censorship of motion picture films by a commission, the larger the better, was absolutely necessary to the moral welfare of the community and was demanded by a vast majority of the people of Los Angeles. The moving picture interests, led by Thomas Dixon, author of "The Cle[illegible]man" and at present producing pic[illegible] o Los Angeles, speaking for [illegible] clared that the censorship of [illegible] pictures is unjustified, illegal, unn[illegible]ssary, un-American and an entirely rep[illegible]hensible procedure.

Thomas Dixon made a very vigorous and impressive address. He pointed out that the censorship of to-day was a serious threat against not only the welfare of the motion picture industry, but against the liberties of the nation. He said there was ample power to prevent impropriety or indecency through the penal code. In closing, he said: "We want Los Angeles to help in establishing throughout the United States the guarantees of privileges accorded by the Constitution. We are going to carry this campaign throughout the country and into every Congressional district. We want to establish in this city religious and political freedom and freedom of the press. And if necessary to bring this about to add another provision to the Constitution."

Would Abolish Censorship.

Councilwoman Lindsey made a stirring peal for the abolition of censorship. She said that the city should protect itself from a host of Anthony Comstocks and that in her opinion the local censorship board had been a complete failure. Others speaking for the moving picture interests were Jesse L. Lasky, W. J. Reynolds and Frank A. Garbutt of the Motion Picture Producers' Association.

[illegible] OF THIS NEW SERIES

JERSEY TOWN CANNOT INTERFERE WITH "NATION" SHOWING

Following his ruling in other cases, Vice-Chancellor Howell of Newark, N. J., has restrained the town of Morristown, through any of its officials, from interfering with the production of "The Birth of a Nation," which has been advertised to be shown at the Park theatre of that place next week.

M. T. News, Mar 15-16

FILM TRADERS JOLTED BY A GUEST AT DINNER

Brisbane, Invited to Denounce the Censor, Refuses to Get Excited, "Spills the Beans" and Releases His Oratorical Efforts Amid Silence.

There was no set title for Arthur Brisbane's address at the Motion Picture Board of Trade's dinner of protest against movie censorship, held at the Hotel Astor last night, but undoubtedly "The Unkindest Cut In of All, or Spilling the Beans" would have been as good a title for the Brisbane effort as any.

Mr. Brisbane just dropped in as the Charlie Chaplin star of the oratorical part of the evening, got up and panned the modern movie, said he couldn't grow enthusiastic over the movement to abolish the movie censor, bowed his way out amid a silence that throbbed and beat it for the suburbs, while the spilled beans were still rolling to furthest corners of the room.

To make matters worse, the prominent movie manufacturers who composed the Motion Picture Board of Trade had made their dinner a sort of combination movie and newspaper function, the idea being, they said, that if censorship goes on unimpeded in their business the first thing the newspapers know the censors will put the papers flat on their backs also. And to lend greatest weight to their dinner of protest Mr. Brisbane was asked to be the chief speaker in what was expected to be an oratorical symposium on the general topic of down with the censor.

There was fervent applause when Mr. Brisbane was introduced as "the master of short expression—the greatest editor in the world." The outburst that greeted him, however, was the last applause wafted his way during the evening.

Brisbane Hasn't Seen 'em.

"As for your own business," said Mr. Brisbane, who gave one the impression that internally he was saying, "I'm not arguing with you about my right to spill the beans—I'm telling you I'm going to spill 'em," "I'll say that I know very little. I am one of the few living men who have never seen Mary Pickford or Charles Chaplin or Theda Bara or Miss Clarke. All I have seen is the Durbar, Scott's north pole pictures and 'Carmen,' which I couldn't escape because it was given in Mr. Hearst's house and I happened to be a guest there. [Mere polite laughter from the movie men.] Furthermore, I never read the Family Story Paper when I was a boy and I do not see why I should see Mary Pickford in 'Rags.' I believe it is, in my old age. [Absolute silence.]

"I have great respect for the men who are developing the financial value and the real genius of those people, but I don't think that I should be bothered about it. As to the censorship I do not think that I can become very much excited about it. [No applause.] The moving picture, so far as it is merely a melodrama, a story, a tragedy or a comedy, is only a money making proposition, and whether it is censored or not I don't in the least care. [Silence.] That part of the work is only in its infancy, and, as I say, I don't care in the least as to whether it is censored or not. [Probable mental comments such as, "Oh, we got you the first time."]

"All the moving picture amounts to to-day, at least the modern moving picture, is that it is an amusement. Its success is based upon the stupidity and lack of intellectual development of the human race." [Raucous laughter from the newspaper section of the diners only.]

Why the Movies Succeed.

With no interrupting applause from the movie men who had rested fondest hopes that "the greatest editor in the world" would smite the censor unmercifully the speaker went on figuratively to take the movie magnates into his lap and explain to them gently but firmly that as "we are a race of animals who have been standing on our hind legs only 500,000 years, using speech about 100,000 years" and really using the written word generally "only about fifty years," the success of the movie is understandable. The movie, in other words, saves humans the intellectual efforts of making their own pictures as they must when reading or listening to the spoken drama.

"The moving picture man," Mr. Brisbane continued, again going into the wails of the movie men about censorship, "has no more claim for sympathy than has the man putting up a public building who is told that the building is to be a certain number of stories high. [Utter lack of enthusiasm.] No liberty is interfered with. Based for its success on stupidity and the lack of intellectual development of the human race, a man who will not read Shakespeare now sits for an hour and a half in front of a screen ruining his eyes. [Fidgeting.]

"But if we have been using speech for only about 100,000 years we have used our eyes for 100,000,000 years. Lobsters with their eyes on the ends of sticks were our grandfathers back in remote ages. We use our eyes to select our wives and husbands, our pictures and dress and therefore we now look at Mary Pickford in 'Rags' and there is no necessity for mental effort.

"As for the movies and decency, there's more money in running a Childs restaurant than in running a Haymarket. So I'm sorry I can't be more enthusiastic about motion picture censorship. Censorship will not hurt the good among you and if it harms the evil they deserve it. [Tremendous silence.]

"One question I should like to ask is, 'Why have you not done anything great?' There is no trouble in making a list of sixty or a hundred great works in the various art forms, but when I asked the gentleman over there, a Colonel, I believe he is [Mr. Brisbane indicated the wholly unenthusiastic face of Commodore J. Stuart Blackton], and other gentlemen at this table to-night what were the six greatest motion pictures they agreed fairly well that 'The Birth of a Nation,' 'Carmen' and 'The Battle Cry of Peace' were among the six, but they couldn't agree on the three others. In an industry where hundreds of millions has been invested if you cannot list six or even sixty great works you haven't gone far." [Prolonged gloom.]

Educators, Some Day.

Just to show them that they were good fellows and pioneers in a great movement, however, Mr. Brisbane concluded by saying that although up to date the movies don't amount to shucks and therefore not worth worrying about whether they are censored or not the motion picture in time is going to play a great part in education, in politics and in other worth while fields. The motion picture men, he concluded, some day will be the "educators of the race, the editors of the nation."

Saying which Mr. Brisbane excused himself for hurrying away to catch his train. Not a soul stood up to say "Aw stick around, Arthur, and give us another earful."

The speeches which followed by J. Robert Rubin, counsel for the Motion Picture Exhibitors League; William M. Seabury, general counsel for the Motion Picture Board of Trade of America; Herbert S. Houston and Toastmaster Arthur James, all delivered after Mr. Brisbane had gone to the elevator unescorted by any noticeably large delegation, were along the general lines that it was too bad Mr. Brisbane was losing his pep. Mr. Rubin especially regretted that Mr. Brisbane had spoken the truth when the editor had said that he was growing old. Also Mr. Rubin rejoiced that he himself was young and saw things with the proper fresh buoyancy of youth.

But outside of that the protest against movie censorship was the howling success which its promoters had looked for.

Censored Films Shown.

The "Fifth Estate," as the motion picture world now knows itself, threw upon the screen during the evening for the benefit of its "Fourth Estate" guests—among whom were all the leading cartoonists and many of the humorous and other feature writers of the daily and Sunday newspapers—a number of movie pictures known as "cut outs," or scenes, mostly from movie comedies, which the censors had barred from public exhibition.

Although the series of censored "cut-outs" necessarily lacked continuity of plot Terry Ramsaye of the Mutual Film Corporation had written a title for the series. "The Blue Pencil—In Twenty (Overt) Acts," Mr. Ramsaye called the string of pictures. Willingly Wicked was supposed to be the name of the hero in all the pictures and Miss Naughty-Naughty was the heroine.

Because, explained a cut-in, the scenes to be projected upon the screen had been cut out for fear the pictures would tempt movie fans to commit arson, murder and similar highjinks, the representatives of both fifth and four estates were cautioned to restrain themselves once they had gone under the baneful spell of the cut-outs.

The scenes that had been censored, however, seemed depressingly virtuous to an audience that perhaps had been overexpectant. At any rate once the diners had witnessed the censored scenes of near crimes and misdemeanors nobody, so far as could be noted, tried to stick any of Herr Muschenheim's silverware under his coat or kill a head waiter or hat boy on the way out.

NO[illegible]

In [illegible] Mac[illegible] reste[illegible] Will[illegible] char[illegible] lowi[illegible] hibite[illegible] cisio[illegible] case.

The [illegible] stirre[illegible] sel fo[illegible] conte[illegible] trate's [illegible] cases [illegible] not e[illegible] trate[illegible]

Wh[illegible] magist[illegible] to get [illegible] prohib[illegible]

He [illegible] name [illegible] allegin[illegible] in violation of the statutes. The injunction asked for was denied by Judge Field.

M. T. News Mar. 15-16

BILL FOR STATE FILM CENSORS IS DEFERRED 3 DAYS

Wheeler-Cristman Measure, Providing for Appointment of Board of Motion Picture Arbiters by Department of Regents, Is Amended in Assembly After Heated Discussion.

HAMPERS SCHOOLS, IT'S SAID

Assemblyman Perlman, of New York, Objects to Proposed Legislation on Ground It Will Prove Handicap to Educational Values of Screen — Would Exempt Miniature Machines.

(Special Dispatch to The Morning Telegraph.)

ALBANY, April 13.

The Wheeler-Cristman bill, providing for the appointment of a State Board of Motion Picture Censors, by the State Board of Regents of the University of the State of New York, came up for final passage in the Assembly this afternoon and was the subject of a heated discussion. The bill was finally amended and reprinted, which will have the effect of deferring further action on the measure until Monday night, as in its amended form it will have to be on the members' desk for three legislative days.

Assemblyman Wheeler in advocating the passage of his bill declared he had received during the last ten days a great number of letters from individuals and organizations approving the censorship of motion picture films and expressing their interest in the effort to have clean and morally good pictures presented to the public. Mr. Wheeler said film producers make pictures as near the border line as they can and "get away with it," and as the matter now stands there is no censorship in this State except that of the manufacturers of films themselves. The proposed law will, he thinks, give the subject character and high standing.

Assemblyman Perlman of New York objected to the proposed legislation for the reason that it would add a heavy fee to the pictures exhibited in schools and money would have to be appropriated to meet the additional expense. He explained he had just succeeded in passing a law exempting miniature motion picture apparatus from being classed with other film machines and believed they should not be included in this bill.

He proposed to offer an amendment which would exempt the miniature motion picture machines and not exact a fee for the examination of films for school and educational purposes. Mr. Wheeler objected to the Perlman amendment. Assemblyman Aranow contended that the manufacturer paid the fee for the examination of films and that there was no reason for such an amendment, it having been introduced only for the purpose of delaying the progress of the bill.

The Perlman amendment was adopted by a vote of 54 to 49. Assemblyman Wheeler offered an amendment to his own bill eliminating the word "Regents," it being understood the State Board of Regents objected to this feature of the measure. Upon their request it has been stricken out, so that where it appears in the bill it will read "Board of Censors."

The bill will now be on Monday night's [illegible]r for final passage.

MARYLAND CENSORS BILL UP TO-DAY

(Special Dispatch to The Morning Telegraph.)

BALTIMORE, April 12.

While Governor Harrington has not committed himself, it is the belief he will [illegible]gn the bill providing for moving picture censors in Maryland to-morrow. [illegible]igorous protests have been made to the [illegible]overnor, and it is claimed if the bill [illegible] it

MARYLAND AGRICULTURAL ASSO[illegible]
[illegible] TO 14th INC[illegible]
MERA

mar 16

Y YORK HERALD

m Censor Bill Is Up for Passage ny Codes Committee Unanisly Reports Ahern Measure—rovides Three $5,000 Positions.

[SPECIAL DESPATCH TO THE HERALD.]

LBANY, N. Y., Wednesday.—By unanis vote the Codes Committee of the Asbly to-day reported the Ahern bill, creg a State Board of Censors to regulate motion picture exhibitions. This brings measure before the Legislature for nsideration and public hearings, and it thought here the proposition will arouse storm of protest.

Three new positions with $5,000 salaries e created. The Commissioners would ve sweeping powers in the regulation all motion picture exhibitions. Before picture could be shown anywhere in the tate the producer must exhibit his film. bsolute and final decision regarding the erits of the picture would rest with the tate Board.

Managers of motion picture theatres and ome of the largest producers declare that the bill becomes a law it would kill alf of their business. They declare they ould not afford to make pictures which ould be thrown out at the whim of a State official. The rejection of a few films might ruin a concern, it is stated. The bill is backed strongly by church and civic organizations and favorable consideration in the Legislature is regarded as likely.

The State Board of Censors, under provisions of the bill, shall consist of three members to be appointed by the Governor for terms of six years. It is provided that the Board "shall examine all moving picture films or reels and approve such as shall be moral and proper and disapprove such as are sacrilegious, obscene, indecent or immoral and as shall tend to debase or corrupt the morals.

Full and final power is given the Board to reject any film and the motion picture producer is compelled to submit a description of all his film subjects. Unapproved films cannot be exhibited in this State and heavy fines are imposed for disobeying this provision. Examinations are to be made free. It is provided the act shall take effect on July 1 next.

mar

ATIONAL TRIBUNE: WASHINGTON, D. C

— In the flamboyant advertisements of the atrocious "Birth of a Nation," it is said:

"There are other places where but the twang of a simple banjo to soothe the patients in the hospital is heard and still others in which the arousing trumpet calls of the Ku Klux Klan resounds and fills the stillnesses of the Southern night."

There were no "arousing trumpet calls" to the Ku Klux. Only sneaking whispers to the cowardly assassins to slip up on the poor negroes who were listening to the banjo and murder them in cold blood.

"THE BIRTH OF A NATION"

The Glorification of a Shameful Page in Our History.

Editor National Tribune: To one who is familiar with the scenes and incidents which transpired in many of the Southern States during the several years subsequent to the close of the civil war it is difficult to conceive how that lawless organization known as the Ku Klux Klan can be brought forward with such apparent commendation as is evident in the play now being shown in this city.

Historical facts and official records do certainly show that the title of the play as used therewith is a misnomer, thereby very misleading and extremely erroneous in its influence upon the minds of many young people who have seen the play, especially those who have not correctly familiarized themselves with historical facts bearing on the situation during the reconstruction days following the civil war.

The object of that criminal organization, Ku Klux Klan, according to the words of President Grant in his message to Congress, dated April 19, 1872, was by force and terror to prevent all political action not in accord with the views of its members; to deprive colored citizens of the right to bear arms, and of the right of a free ballot; to suppress schools in which colored children were taught and to reduce the colored people to a condition closely akin to that of slavery. He further said that these organizations were armed, and had rendered the local law ineffectual to protect the classes whom they desired to oppress; that they perpetrated many murders and hundreds of crimes of minor degree, all of which were unpunished, and that witnesses could not safely testify in the courts there unless the most active members were placed under restraint.

The result of the President's message was the enactment by Congress of what was known as the Ku Klux law, and to its enforcement is largely due the suppression of that barbarous organization.

It was also shown by testimony submitted to the Joint Committee of the Congress of the United States that investigated the Southern outrages that by terms of its oath none but Democrats could become members of the Ku Klux Klan.

The committee, in their report, gave the names of 90 colored people and 44 whites in the few Counties they visited, nearly all of whom had been whipped and others shot, robbed, hanged or driven from their homes.

It was also shown to this committee that over 100 crimes, ranging from murder to petty larceny, had been committed by the members of the Ku Klux Klan organization made up of the adherents of one political party, and that in no instance had there been a conviction or punishment imposed therefor. From the mass of testimony submitted to them by members of the organization who confessed, and by others that the conditions there in the locality where the Ku Klux Klan controlled affairs had gone so far as to present an issue between government and anarchy, and that the condition had reached a point wherein that issue there could be no neutrals.

With such an army of criminals at large with no power in the several States so effected to bring them to justice, with an organization oath, and secrecy baffling and defying all appliances of law and their numbers were sufficient to turn the scale of political power in favor of the party with which they acted so as their violence and intimidation were successful against those whom they saw fit to oppose.

Any person having any doubts as to the criminal and wicked depredations of the Ku Klux Klan in the South should read the proceedings and the remarks of the court, in connection with the cases of the Ku Klux Klan before the United States District Court, held at Columbia, S. C., in 1872. There were about 50 Ku Klux Klans who made confession at one session of the court, and after they were thru, the Judges said much of the confessions made referred to murder and rape committed, and the story was too indecent for public mention.

Historical facts and official records show that the Ku Klux Klan, as an organization, was one whose only excellence was cruelty, and whose only virtue was conceit.

The character shown in the play as that of the Hon. Austin Stoneman is not warranted by the facts connected with the time it seeks to represent, if it is intended to imply that he was a member of the House of Representatives of the United States, as many who have seen the play understand it.

In this respect it is very misleading, for there never graced the halls of Congress more honorable men than those that were leaders of Congress during that time, among whom were James G. Blaine and Garfield. That feature of the play is simply a bitter partisan reflection upon men that were brave enough and honorable enough to befriend and defend the Government and the Constitution of the United States as against the organizations that were at that time working in harmony and in the interest of the same idea as that of the Ku Klux Klan, such as the Knights of the Golden Circle, the pet organization of the late Senator Daniel Voorhees, of Indiana; also the Sons of Liberty should not have been slighted, neither the services of Mr. J. Thompson, special agent of the Confederacy, who, from his perch in Canada, sought to direct evildoers to burn Northern cities and get infected clothing to spread diseases thruout the Northern States.

I am reminded by some who admire the play that it has the sanction, if not the endorsement, of the present Federal Administration, and I also notice quotations used by the play from the literary works of our distinguished President, Mr. Wilson—to me that is not surprising at all when I remember his remarks and views expressed in his speech delivered a short while ago before a famous Democratic club in the City of New York.

I am further advised that respectable organizations commemorative of the Lost Cause give it their enthusiastic approval, to all of which my answer is that "birds of a feather flock together."—R. J. Jones, 2329 Humboldt Street, Denver, Colo.

The Ohio Veterans Strongly Approve Its Prohibition in the State.

(From the Union Veteran Legion.)

Hon. Frank B. Willis, Columbus, O.

Dear Sir and Governor: At a meeting of the "Union Veteran Legion" at Memorial Hall, held Jan. 23, the subject of the unpatriotic and debasing character of the motion film known as the "Birth of a Nation," was generally discussed. A unanimous vote was taken that a committee of three members be appointed to draft strong resolutions thanking Gov. Frank B. Willis and Attorney-General Turner, for the position they have taken to suppress and prevent the exhibition of this unlawful, unpatriotic, deceptive and insulting film.

This film as displayed is an intended insult to the 340,000 patriotic sons of Ohio, who fought in the War of the Rebellion to preserve this Union from disintegration and final destruction. It is a stab at every loyal, liberty-loving man, woman and child in this Nation. It is closely allied with the placing of statuary of distinguished rebels in the Capitol at Washington, and many other things that have been done and said, in a vain attempt to make treason and rebellion respectable.

It is in line with the bill now before Congress granting each Confederate soldier living and each widow of a Confederate soldier, a lump sum of $500 and $30 per month during their life time. They are asking a premium for a bold and bloody attempt to destroy the best and freest Government God ever gave man.

By this film we are to understand there is no premium on loyalty, but those who fought to destroy this Union are on a par with those who fought to preserve the Union.

They say the South is in the saddle now, and they intend to make hay while the sun shines. When the loyal people of this country have an opportunity to speak on this subject, there will appear a wide difference between loyalty and disloyalty.

Respectfully submitted,
M. YOUMANS.
JOHN W. OVERTURF.
GEORGE MOWRY.

(From J. C. McCoy Post.)

Gov. Frank B. Willis, State House, Columbus, O.

Dear Governor: At a regular meeting of the J. C. McCoy Post, 1, Grand Army of the Republic, Department of Ohio, held at Memorial Hall, Jan. 24, 1915, the matter of the moving film, wrongfully known as "The Birth of a Nation," was thoroughly discussed, after which it was unanimously resolved that we most heartily and earnestly commend the action of our patriotic and soldier-loving Governor, Frank B. Willis, and Attorney-General Edward C. Turner, in refusing the owners of this unpatriotic film the right to exhibit the same in the State of Ohio.

We regard this film as an insult to the Nation, and our comrades, living and dead, to their loyal sons and daughters, as well as to every man, woman and child of the State and Union; a misrepresentation of historical facts; a deliberate and premeditated attempt to deprave the Union soldier and the Union cause, and to exalt the Confederate soldier and treason.

We regard this picture to be a misrepresentation of a great and holy cause, and that it is intended to give a false impression to the youth of our country. It is intended to impress on their minds the wrongful fact that the Confederates were right, and that the Union cause was wrong; that the hellish deeds of the Ku Klux Klan was right and fully justified, and that the suppression of this wicked organization was wrong, whereupon the undersigned were named and appointed to present these resolutions to your excellency, and expressing the hearty wish that every State in the Union has so good and patriotic a Governor as has Ohio, and that the other States which have permitted the exhibition of this film may be led to see the error of their way and follow your example, and refuse to permit the exhibition of this vile and misleading picture film to be exhibited anywhere within the United States.

Respectfully submitted, events clustering about that history-making period must be pointed out and refuted by stubborn facts; and The News will, later, in a series of articles, endeavor to place the truth before its readers. We trust that the clergy, and the teachers in the schools, the patriotic societies, etc., will co-operate, to the end that the present and coming generations may not have thrust upon them, thru the modern device, 'movies,' the distorted idea that the Lost Cause at Appomattox was really the cause which stood for the country's betterment.

"The pictures were exceptionally fine, and well shown, all agree."

The Cowardly Crimes and Atrocities of the Ku Klux.

Pierce Burton writes to the Aurora, Ill., News Beacon:

The films also showed a wonderful exhibition of "night riders" or "The Ku Klux Klan," and the text represented them to be brave men trying to save Southern civilization.

The only case of a demonstration of these night riders in their costumes that I knew of in a residence of seven years among them, was at Eutaw, Ala., near where I lived. Five or six colored men had been killed for attending a republican convention. Three of the bodies had been found in an abandoned well. Alexander Boyd, the county solicitor or state's attorney, as we call them, had secured some evidence against the murderers and said he would try to enforce the law.

To prevent this there was a "gathering of the Klan" to the number of 60 who, with their horses, were disguised with white sheets. At midnight they surrounded the hotel where Boyd boarded. Thirty were placed on guard against imaginary foes outside the hotel. Thirty went inside and 15 went to Mr. Boyd's room, forced open the door and shot him in bed, each of the 15 putting a bullet thru his body. This is a sample of the "brave" work of the "brave Ku Klux Klan" to shield some of their murderous members and to "preserve Southern civilization."

Was Confederate Officer.

Mr. Boyd was born and brought up in Eutaw, had been a major in the Confederate army, had married the daughter of a wealthy planter in Eutaw, was a successful lawyer and highly respected in the community, but he committed the offense of trying to help reconstruct his State under the laws of the United States.

Friends of Mr. Boyd erected a monument to his memory on which is the inscription, "Killed by Ku Klux."

Such are the facts of history in contrast with the fanciful misrepresentations of "The Birth of a Nation."

LONE CENSOR NEW LOS ANGELES IDEA

Public Welfare Committee Proposes That One Man Replace Board. Warm Discussion Provoked.

MATTER PUT OVER FOR WEEK

Dr. Thomas Dixon Speaks and Councilwoman Lindsey Leads Fight for Abolition of Censorship.

(Special Dispatch to The Morning Telegraph.)

LOS ANGELES, Cal., March 7.

With a crowded council chamber, the attendance composed of representatives of the motion picture industry, women's clubs, religious organizations, civic bodies and a number of social workers, the proposal of the Public Welfare Committee to abolish the local board of censorship and substitute a single commissioner as censor, came up for consideration before the City Council yesterday. The session was presided over by Councilwoman Lindsey, chairman of the committee. The ordinance calls for the expenditure of public funds for the payment of the salary of the lone commissioner, and therefore at least seven of the councilmen must favor its passage. When the meeting ended they seemed about equally divided. The consensus of opinion seemed that the bill needed modification and that its chief fault lay in resting too much responsibility upon one man. No definite action was taken and a rehearing will be given in one week. During that time the ordinance will be changed to meet the views of those councilmen opposing it only in its present form.

Heated Discussion.

The introduction of the ordinance to the council brought forth a heated discussion. The church federation opposing the bill maintained that the censorship of motion picture films by a commission, the larger the better, was absolutely necessary to the moral welfare of the community and was demanded by a vast majority of the people of Los Angeles. The moving picture interests, led by Thomas Dixon, author of "The Clansman" and at present producing pic[illegible] in Los Angeles, speaking for [illegible] declared that the censorship of [illegible] pictures is unjustified, illegal, unn[illegible]ssary, un-American and an entirely rep[illegible]hensible procedure.

Thomas Dixon made a very vigorous and impressive address. He pointed out the censorship of to-day was a seri[illegible] threat against not only the welfare of [illegible] motion picture industry, but against t[illegible] liberties of the nation. He said there wa[illegible] ample power to prevent impropriety o[illegible] indecency through the penal code. In closing, he said: "We want Los Angeles to help in establishing throughout the United States the guarantees of privileges accorded by the Constitution. We are going to carry this campaign throughout the country and into every Congressional district. We want to establish in this city religious and political freedom and freedom of the press. And if necessary to bring this about to add another provision to the Constitution."

Would Abolish Censorship.

Councilwoman Lindsey made a stirring peal for the abolition of censorship. She said that the city should protect itself from a host of Anthony Comstocks and that in her opinion the local censorship board had been a complete failure. Others speaking for the moving picture interests were Jesse L. Lasky, W. J. Reynolds and Frank A. Garbutt of the Motion Picture Producers' Association.

[illegible] of this new series.

JERSEY TOWN CANNOT INTERFERE WITH "NATION" SHOWING

Following his ruling in other cases, Vice-Chancellor Howell, of Newark, N. J., has restrained the town of Morristown, through any of its officials, from interfering with the production of "The Birth of a Nation," which has been advertised to be shown at the Park theatre of that place next week.

M.T. News, Mar 13-16

FILM TRADERS JOLTED BY A GUEST AT DINNER

Brisbane, Invited to Denounce the Censor, Refuses to Get Excited, "Spills the Beans" and Releases His Oratorical Efforts Amid Silence.

There was no set title for Arthur Brisbane's address at the Motion Picture Board of Trade's dinner of protest against movie censorship, held at the Hotel Astor last night, but undoubtedly "The Unkindest Cut In of All, or Spilling the Beans" would have been as good a title for the Brisbane effort as any.

Mr. Brisbane just dropped in as the Charlie Chaplin star of the oratorical part of the evening, got up and panned the modern movie, said he couldn't grow enthusiastic over the movement to abolish the movie censor, bowed his way out amid a silence that throbbed and beat it for the suburbs, while the spilled beans were still rolling to furthest corners of the room.

To make matters worse, the prominent movie manufacturers who composed the Motion Picture Board of Trade had made their dinner a sort of combination movie and newspaper function, the idea being, they said, that if censorship goes on unimpeded in their business the first thing the newspapers know the censors will put the papers flat on their backs also. And to lend greatest weight to their dinner of protest Mr. Brisbane was asked to be the chief speaker in what was expected to be an oratorical symposium on the general topic of down with the censor.

There was fervent applause when Mr. Brisbane was introduced as "the master of short expression—the greatest editor in the world." The outburst that greeted him, however, was the last applause wafted his way during the evening.

Brisbane Hasn't Seen 'em.

"As for your own business," said Mr. Brisbane, who gave one the impression that internally he was saying, "I'm not arguing with you about my right to spill the beans—I'm telling you I'm going to spill 'em," "I'll say that I know very little. I am one of the few living men who have never seen Mary Pickford or Charles Chaplin or Theda Bara or Miss Clarke. All I have seen is the Durbar, Scott's north pole pictures and 'Carmen,' which I couldn't escape because it was given in Mr. Hearst's home and I happened to be a guest there. [More polite laughter from the movie men.] Furthermore, I never read the Family Story Paper when I was a boy and I do not see why I should see Mary Pickford in 'Rags.' I believe it [illegible] in my old age. [Absolute silence.]

in front of a screen ruining his eyes. [Fidgeting.]

"But if we have been using speech for only about 100,000 years we have used our eyes for 100,000,000 years. Lobsters with their eyes on the ends of sticks were our grandfathers back in remote ages. We use our eyes to select our wives and husbands, our pictures and dress and therefore we now look at Mary Pickford in 'Rags' and there is no necessity for mental effort.

"As for the movies and decency, there's more money in running a Childs restaurant than in running a Haymarket. So I'm sorry I can't be more enthusiastic about motion picture censorship. Censorship will not hurt the good among you and if it harms the evil they deserve it. [Tremendous silence.]

"One question I should like to ask is, 'Why have you not done anything great?' There is no trouble in making a list of sixty or a hundred great works in the various art forms, but when I asked the gentleman over there, a Colonel, I believe he is [Mr. Brisbane indicated the wholly unenthusiastic face of Commodore J. Stuart Blackton], and other gentlemen at this table to-night what were the six greatest motion pictures they agreed fairly well that 'The Birth of a Nation,' 'Carmen' and 'The Battle Cry of Peace' were among the six, but they couldn't agree on the three others. In an industry where hundreds of millions has been invested if you cannot list six or even sixty great works you haven't gone far." [Prolonged gloom.]

Educators, Some Day.

Just to show them that they were good fellows and pioneers in a great movement, however, Mr. Brisbane concluded by saying that although up to date the movies don't amount to shucks and therefore not worth worrying about whether they are censored or not the motion picture in time is going to play a great part in education, in politics and in other worth while fields. The motion picture men, he concluded, some day will be the "educators of the race, the editors of the nation."

Saying which Mr. Brisbane excused himself for hurrying away to catch his train. Not a soul stood up to say "Aw stick around, Arthur, and give us another earful."

The speeches which followed by J. Robert Rubin, counsel for the Motion Picture Exhibitors League; William M. Seabury, general counsel for the Motion [illegible] of the [illegible] after Mr. [illegible] Quarantty Trust Co., [illegible] Cuban Sugar mer- [illegible] money into Cube. [illegible] production to take in [illegible] of sugar refining? [illegible] truth [illegible] SHARES [illegible] RISING [illegible] AY

THE CURB MARKET.

[illegible]

NO VIOLATION TO SHOW "NATION" IN LOUISVILLE

In the case of A. A. Bigelow, manager of Macauley's theatre, Louisville, who was arrested recently on a warrant sworn to by William A. Heck, a Louisville attorney, charging a violation of a State law in allowing "The Birth of a Nation" to be exhibited, Magistrate Dorsey has given a decision that he has no jurisdiction in the case.

The accusation was that the photoplay stirred up race hatred and prejudice. Counsel for Manager Bigelow filed a demurrer, contending that the jurisdiction of a magistrate's court in a penal action is limited to cases in which punishment is fixed at a fine not exceeding one hundred dollars. Magistrate Dorsey sustained the demurer.

When the case was thrown out of the magistrate's court, Attorney Heck sought to get an injunction in the Circuit Court prohibiting the showing of the film.

He filed a petition, as a citizen, in the name of the commonwealth of Kentucky, alleging that the exhibition of the film was in violation of the statutes. The injunction asked for was denied by Judge Field.

M. T. News Mar. 13-16

BILL FOR STATE FILM CENSORS IS DEFERRED 3 DAYS

Wheeler-Cristman Measure, Providing for Appointment of Board of Motion Picture Arbiters by Department of Regents, Is Amended in Assembly After Heated Discussion.

HAMPERS SCHOOLS, IT'S SAID

Assemblyman Perlman, of New York, Objects to Proposed Legislation on Ground It Will Prove Handicap to Educational Values of Screen — Would Exempt Miniature Machines.

(Special Dispatch to The Morning Telegraph.)

ALBANY, April 13.

The Wheeler-Cristman bill, providing for the appointment of a State Board of Motion Picture Censors, by the State Board of Regents of the University of the State of New York, came up for final passage in the Assembly this afternoon and was the subject of a heated discussion. The bill was finally amended and reprinted, which will have the effect of deferring further action on the measure until Monday night, as in its amended form it will have to be on the members' desk for three legislative days.

Assemblyman Wheeler in advocating the passage of his bill declared he had received during the last ten days a great number of letters from individuals and organizations approving the censorship of motion picture films and expressing their interest in the effort to have clean and morally good pictures presented to the public. Mr. Wheeler said film producers make pictures as near the border line as they can and "get away with it," and as the matter now stands there is no censorship in this State except that of the manufacturers of films themselves. The proposed law will, he thinks, give the subject character and high standing.

Assemblyman Perlman of New York objected to the proposed legislation for the reason that it would add a heavy fee to the pictures exhibited in schools and would have to be appropriated [illegible] additional expense. He ex- [illegible] had just succeeded in pass- [illegible] exempting miniature motion [illegible] paratus from being classed [illegible] film machines and believed [illegible] ld not be included in this bill. [illegible] proposed to offer an amendment [illegible] would exempt the miniature mo- [illegible] icture machines and not exact a [illegible] or the examination of films for school [illegible] educational purposes. Mr. Wheeler [illegible] jected to the Perlman amendment. As- [illegible] emblyman Aranow contended that the manufacturer paid the fee for the examination of films and that there was no reason for such an amendment, it having been introduced only for the purpose of delaying the progress of the bill.

The Perlman amendment was adopted by a vote of 54 to 49. Assemblyman Wheeler offered an amendment to his own bill eliminating the word "Regents," it being understood the State Board of Regents objected to this feature of the measure. Upon their request it has been stricken out, so that where it appears in the bill it will read "Board of Censors."

The bill will now be on Monday night's [illegible] for final passage.

MARYLAND CENSORS BILL UP TO-DAY

(Special Dispatch to The Morning Telegraph.)

BALTIMORE, April 12.

While Governor Harrington has not committed himself, it is the belief he will sign the bill providing for moving picture censors in Maryland to-morrow. Vigorous protests have been made to the Governor, and it is claimed if the bill [illegible] it

[illegible] TO 14th INC[illegible]

MARYLAND AGRICULTURAL ASSO[illegible]

[illegible]IERA[illegible]

mar 16

YORK HERALD

Censor ill Is Up for Passage

Codes Committee Unani- Reports Ahern Measure— es Three $5,000 Positions.

AL DESPATCH TO THE HERALD.]

Y, N. Y., Wednesday.—By unani- the Codes Committee of the As- -day reported the Ahern bill, cre- tate Board of Censors to regulate n-picture exhibitions. This brings sure before the Legislature for ation and public hearings, and it ht here the proposition will arouse of protest.

new positions with $5,000 salaries ated. The Commissioners would weeping powers in the regulation motion picture exhibitions. Before re could be shown anywhere in the the producer must exhibit his film. te and final decision regarding the of the picture would rest with the Board.

agers of motion picture theatres and of the largest producers declare that bill becomes a law it would kill f their business. They declare they not afford to make pictures which be thrown out at the whim of a official. The rejection of a few might ruin a concern, it is stated, bill is backed strongly by church and organizations and favorable consid- ion in the Legislature is regarded as y.

he State Board of Censors, under pro- ons of the bill, shall consist of three mbers to be appointed by the Gov- or for terms of six years. It is pro- d that the Board "shall examine all ving picture films or reels and approve ch as shall be moral and proper and approve such as are sacrilegious, ob- ne, indecent or immoral and as shall d to debase or corrupt the morals. ull and final power is given the Board reject any film and the motion picture oducer is compelled to submit a descrip- n of all his film subjects. Unapproved ms cannot be exhibited in this State d heavy fines are imposed for disobey- this provision. Examinations are to made free. It is provided the act shall ke effect on July 1 next.

mar 9

IONAL TRIBUNE: WASHINGTON, D. C

In the flamboyant advertisements Nof the atrocious "Birth of a Nation," it is said:

"There are other places where but the twang of a simple banjo to soothe the patients in the hospital is heard and still others in which the arousing trumpet calls of the Ku Klux Klan resounds and fills the stillnesses of the Southern night."

There were no "arousing trumpet calls" to the Ku Klux. Only sneaking whispers to the cowardly assassins to slip up on the poor negroes who were listening to the banjo and murder them in cold blood.

"THE BIRTH OF A NATION"

The Glorification of a Shameful Page in Our History.

Editor National Tribune: To one who is familiar with the scenes and incidents which transpired in many of the Southern States during the several years subsequent to the close of the civil war it is difficult to conceive how that lawless organization known as the Ku Klux Klan can be brought forward with such apparent commendation as is evident in the play now being shown in this city.

Historical facts and official records do certainly show that the title of the play as used therewith is a misnomer, thereby very misleading and extremely erroneous in its influence upon the minds of many young people who have seen the play, especially those who have not correctly familiarized themselves with historical facts bearing on the situation during the reconstruction days following the civil war.

The object of that criminal organization, Ku Klux Klan, according to the words of President Grant in his message to Congress, dated April 19, 1872, was by force and terror to prevent all political action not in accord with the views of its members; to deprive colored citizens of the right to bear arms, and of the right of a free ballot; to suppress schools in which colored children were taught and to reduce the colored people to a condition closely akin to that of slavery. He further said that these organizations were armed, and had rendered the local law ineffectual to protect the classes whom they desired to oppress; that they perpetrated many murders and hundreds of crimes of minor degree, all of which were, unpunished, and that witnesses could not safely testify in the courts there unless the most active members were placed under restraint.

The result of the President's message was the enactment by Congress of what was known as the Ku Klux law, and to its enforcement is largely due the suppression of that barbarous organization.

It was also shown by testimony submitted to the Joint Committee of the Congress of the United States that investigated the Southern outrages that by terms of its oath none but Democrats could become members of the Ku Klux Klan.

The committee, in their report, gave the names of 90 colored people and 44 whites in the few Counties they visited, nearly all of whom had been whipped and others shot, robbed, hanged or driven from their homes.

It was also shown to this committee that over 100 crimes, ranging from murder to petty larceny, had been committed by the members of the Ku Klux Klan organization made up of the adherents of one political party, and that in no instance had there been a conviction or punishment imposed therefor. From the mass of testimony submitted to them by members of the organization who confessed, and by others that the conditions there in the locality where the Ku Klux Klan controlled affairs had gone so far as to present an issue between government and anarchy, and that the condition had reached a point wherein that issue there could be no neutrals.

With such an army of criminals at large with no power in the several States so effected to bring them to justice, with an organization oath, and secrecy baffling and defying all appliances of law and their numbers were sufficient to turn the scale of political power in favor of the party with which they acted so as their violence and intimidation were successful against those whom they saw fit to oppose.

Any person having any doubts as to the criminal and wicked depredations of the Ku Klux Klan in the South should read the proceedings and the remarks of the court, in connection with the cases of the Ku Klux Klan before the United States District Court, held at Columbia, S. C., in 1872. There were about 50 Ku Klux Klans who made confession at one session of the court, and after they were thru, the Judges said much of the confessions made referred to murder and rape committed, and the story was too indecent for public mention.

Historical facts and official records show that the Ku Klux Klan, as an organization, was one whose only excellence was cruelty, and whose only virtue was conceit.

The character shown in the play as that of the Hon. Austin Stoneman is not warranted by the facts connected with the time it seeks to represent, if it is intended to imply that he was a member of the House of Representatives of the United States, as many who have seen the play understand it.

In this respect it is very misleading, for there never graced the halls of Congress a more honorable man than [illegible] Lincoln, under whose [illegible] Garfield. The play is simply a bitter and [illegible] upon men that were brave enough and honorable enough to befriend and defend the Government and the Constitution of the United States as against the worst element of the Southern Confederacy.

[illegible] organizations that were at that time working in harmony and in the interest of the same idea as that of the Ku Klux Klan, such as the Knights of the Golden Circle, the pet organization of the late Senator Daniel Voorhees, of Indiana; also the Sons of Liberty should not have been slighted, neither the services of Mr. J. Thompson, special agent of the Confederacy, who, from his perch in Canada, sought to direct evildoers to burn Northern cities and get infected clothing to spread diseases thruout the Northern States.

I am reminded by some who admire the play that it has the sanction, if not the endorsement, of the present Federal Administration, and I also notice quotations used by the play from the literary works of our distinguished President, Mr. Wilson—to me that is not surprising at all when I remember his remarks and views expressed in his speech delivered a short while ago before a famous Democratic club in the City of New York.

I am further advised that respectable organizations commemorative of the Lost Cause give it their enthusiastic approval, to all of which my answer is that "birds of a feather flock together."—R. J. Jones, 2329 Humboldt Street, Denver, Colo.

The Ohio Veterans Strongly Approve Its Prohibition in the State.

(From the Union Veteran Legion.)

Hon. Frank B. Willis, Columbus, O.

Dear Sir and Governor: At a meeting of the "Union Veteran Legion" at Memorial Hall, held Jan. 23, the subject of the unpatriotic and debasing character of the motion film known as the "Birth of a Nation," was generally discussed. A unanimous vote was taken that a committee of three members be appointed to draft strong resolutions thanking Gov. Frank B. Willis and Attorney-General Turner, for the position they have taken to suppress and prevent the exhibition of this unlawful, unpatriotic, deceptive and insulting film.

This film as displayed is an intended insult to the 340,000 patriotic sons of Ohio, who fought in the War of the Rebellion to preserve this Union from disintegration and final destruction. It is a stab at every loyal, liberty-loving man, woman and child in this Nation. It is closely allied with the placing of statuary of distinguished rebels in the Capitol at Washington, and many other things that have been done and said, in a vain attempt to make treason and rebellion respectable.

It is in line with the bill now before Congress granting each Confederate soldier living and each widow of a Confederate soldier, a lump sum of $500 and $30 per month during their life time. They are asking a premium for a bold and bloody attempt to destroy the best and freest Government God ever gave man.

By this film we are to understand there is no premium on loyalty, but those who fought to destroy this Union are on a par with those who fought to preserve the Union.

They say the South is in the saddle now, and they intend to make hay while the sun shines. When the loyal people of this country have an opportunity to speak on this subject, there will appear a wide difference between loyalty and disloyalty.

Respectfully submitted,

M. YOUMANS.
JOHN W. OVERTURF.
GEORGE MOWRY.

(From J. C. McCoy Post.)

Gov. Frank B. Willis, State House, Columbus, O.

Dear Governor: At a regular meeting of the J. C. McCoy Post, 1, Grand Army of the Republic, Department of Ohio, held at Memorial Hall, Jan. 24, 1915, the matter of the moving film, wrongfully known as "The Birth of a Nation," was thoroughly discussed, after which it was unanimously resolved that we most heartily and earnestly commend the action of our patriotic and soldier-loving Governor, Frank B. Willis, and Attorney-General Edward C. Turner, in refusing the owners of this unpatriotic film the right to exhibit the same in the State of Ohio.

We regard this film as an insult to the Nation, and our comrades, living and dead, to their loyal sons and daughters, as well as to every man, woman and child of the State and Union; a misrepresentation of historical facts; a deliberate and premeditated attempt to deprave the Union soldier and the Union cause, and to exalt the Confederate soldier and treason.

We regard this picture to be a misrepresentation of a great and holy cause, and that it is intended to give a false impression to the youth of our country. It is intended to impress on their minds the wrongful fact that the Confederates were right, and that the Union cause was wrong; that the hellish deeds of the Ku Klux Klan was right and fully justified, and that the suppression of this wicked organization was wrong, whereupon the undersigned were named and appointed to present these resolutions to your excellency, and expressing the hearty wish that every State in the Union has so good and patriotic a Governor as her Ohio [illegible]

[illegible] and follow [illegible] to permit [illegible] and misleading [illegible] anywhere [illegible] prohibited [illegible] States.

Respectfully [illegible]

W. CLAY EVANS.

[illegible] "Conservation" of History: [illegible]

events clustering about that history-making period must be pointed out and refuted by stubborn facts; and The News will, later, in a series of articles, endeavor to place the truth before its readers. We trust that the clergy, and the teachers in the schools, the patriotic societies, etc. will co-operate, to the end that the present and coming generations may not have thrust upon them, thru the modern device, 'movies,' the distorted idea that the Lost Cause at Appomattox was really the cause which stood for the country's betterment.

"The pictures were exceptionally fine, and well shown, all agree."

The Cowardly Crimes and Atrocities of the Ku Klux.

Pierce Burton writes to the Aurora, Ill., News Beacon:

The films also showed a wonderful exhibition of "night riders" or "The Ku Klux Klan," and the text represented them to be brave men trying to save Southern civilization.

The only case of a demonstration of these night riders in their costumes that I knew of in a residence of seven years among them, was at Eutaw, Ala., near where I lived. Five or six colored men had been killed for attending a republican convention. Three of the bodies had been found in an abandoned well. Alexander Boyd, the county solicitor or state's attorney, as we call them, had secured some evidence against the murderers and said he would try to enforce the law.

To prevent this there was a "gathering of the Klan" to the number of 60 who, with their horses, were disguised with white sheets. At midnight they surrounded the hotel where Boyd boarded. Thirty were placed on guard against imaginary foes outside the hotel. Thirty went inside and 15 went to Mr. Boyd's room, forced open the door and shot him in bed, each of the 15 putting a bullet thru his body. This is a sample of the "brave" work of the "brave Ku Klux Klan" to shield some of their murderous members and to "preserve Southern civilization."

Was Confederate Officer.

Mr. Boyd was born and brought up in Eutaw, had been a major in the Confederate army, had married the daughter of a wealthy planter in Eutaw, was a successful lawyer and highly respected in the community, but he committed the offense of trying to help reconstruct his State under the laws of the United States.

Friends of Mr. Boyd erected a monument to his memory on which is the inscription, "Killed by Ku Klux."

Such are the facts of history in contrast with the fanciful misrepresentations of "The Birth of a Nation."

DATE NESS

Charlotte Post Dec 14

WILL NOT CENSOR "BIRTH OF NATION" IN HUNTINGTON

Thrilling and Interesting is Opinion of First High Priced Movie.

Nothing Indecent or Immoral, Mayor Sehon Declares.

HUNTINGTON, Dec. 14.—A large crowd at the Huntington theatre last night witnessed the initial performance in this city of D. W. Griffith's celebrated motion picture production "The Birth of a Nation," and it is not unsafe to predict that is presentation here during the remainder of the week will draw the biggest audiences of the present season.

That issue, raised in advance of the show here, as to whether or not it is calculated to arouse racial prejudice, was decided last night by the city commissioners, when after witnessing the play, they decided they had seen nothing to censor—nothing they said, indecent or immoral, except as some individual mind might pursue it in a very wrong way.

It was the city's first bow to high priced movies, but the show was a hit, and well worth the price, in the opinion of many who saw it.

All of the arts of the master of photoplay had been utilized, it seemed, with frank yet delicate fidelity, to portray in a vivid and gripping way the throes which attended the solidification of the states into a nation.

Care was taken in numberless ways which the screen affords, to present the theme in a truthful historical way, yet not to permit the drama to last any of its intensity by reason of hypersensitiveness to conditions as they were during the great struggle between the north and south and the reconstruction period that followed. To censor the film, it seemed to many in the audience, would be to abstract the drama's very heart.

Mayor's Comment.

When asked for his views of the show last night, Mayor E. Sehon declared he could see in it nothing indecent or immoral, except as some individual mind might pursue it in a wrong way. The mayor's views were taken to represent those of others of the commissioners who saw the play.

"It was a great show, and a wonderful production of that form of art," said the mayor. "Some of the scenes were overdrawn, as in the case of every picture show. I feel that it would be a very bad imagination or mind indeed that would leave such a spectacle more fully possessed of its bad features than its good. I don't believe there was a single man there who left the show having any less regard or feeling for the colored race than before they had seen it. Of course, some such scenes would be impossible today. They are based on historical events of fifty years ago, and represent a milestone to show how far the negro race has advanced in education and citizenship. I can see in it nothing indecent or immoral except as some individual mind might pursue it in a very wrong way. I can not see how any one would leave it with his mind affected unfavorable toward the negro."

BIG CROWD SEES PROTESTED FILM

Lancaster

No Disorder Accompanied Production Of "The Birth Of a Nation."

News-Journal

LOCAL PEOPLE ON HAND.

There is nothing wrong with "The Birth of a Nation."

The beginning of the United States of America as seen by a great moving picture producer, enacted by the ideals of movie actors, and accompanied by a wonderful orchestra, was presented in screen form last night to a great crowd of broad-minded Lancaster County people.

There was not that race feeling evident that was feared by those who barred the show here; not any antagonism; not any disorder. Rather, the show was viewed by an audience that had not only read and studied, but who knew the history of their own country, and some of the truths, sorrowful as they are, were adjudged and accepted as history, and history only.

Away upstairs, negroes sat and watched the film stars, black and white, depict the revolutionary times of OUR country. Not a sound was made,and not a comment was heard.It was an interested audience that was watching and learning the things that have been passed from father to son for years. They were seeing the truth as they never could have read it.

There was one lively outburst of applause, and that was when Generals Grant and Lee grasped each other's hands and brought about the everlasting adherance of the North and the South. The applause came from an audience of Americans, first, last, and always; an audience that was undisturbed and unmolested by the, maybe overdrawn in places, depiction of slavery.

The Birth of a Nation is as great as it was heralded. It is a powerful movie drama that teems with love and with emotion, and while certain scenes may work to a slight degree upon the super-emotional, it is, as a whole, a marvel to the eye and a revelation to the mind.

Even the highbrow domination of the negroes over the whites failed to produce a discord, and while a veritable flying squadron of the Klu Klux Klan swept over the south in maintaining order, not a cheer nor a jeer was heard.

President Wilson's own words are used to a great degree in forming the foundation plot of the story, and it was his name also that attracted hand approval from all present.

The greatest word artists that ever painted for a newspaper or a news association, were found wanting when the bloody scenes of battle were shot through the lens. They were not pictures that were repulsive, but were pictures that were educating. The imagination of what is going on over there where man is killing man, was intensified, and it had but one effect, "Isn't it awful," whispered man to woman and woman to man.

And over it all, over all that action and that re-action, there flowed a most beautiful story of love that was woven to bound together the North and the South. And it did.

Outside, little Tow Hill pickaninnies and urchin whites argued the matter, but they argued because they were ignorant. All the contention that was voiced came from the ignorant. And there was very little of even that.

The Birth of a Nation should have been shown in Lancaster, and now that it is in Columbia, it deserves the support of the people of this city. Its scenes stretch from the arctic to the tropics and are set at the most beautiful spots that could be found in either region.

So great was the crowd that was on hand last evening that Manager Daley of the show, said after the performance, a special Pennsy train may be run for to-day's performances.

A twenty piece orchestra which is an asset of the show, deserves especial laudation for their wonderful interpretation of the pictures, and all who were there declared the music well worth the admission.

Secure Injunction in "Birth of Nation" Film

Mayor Should Have Filed His Decision With City Clerk So That Plaintiffs Could Have Appealed to Council—Mayor Viewed Picture and Cut Out Certain of the Scenes Which Were Revolting and an Insult to Colored Race.

Justice George McCann this afternoon granted an injunction restraining the Mayor or the Chief of Police of this city from interfering with the production of the film, "The Birth of a Nation" at the Lyceum theater. The application for the injunction was made by Attorney H. C. Mandeville, representing the Epoch Producing Corporation, the producers of the photoplay.

Justice McCann in his decision states that while the Mayor gave a preliminary hearing to the complaint of certain residents of the city against the display of certain parts of the picture, he did not file his formal decision with the city clerk, in compliance with the charter, and thus the film company has no adequate remedy at law because it cannot appeal to the Common Council as provided by the ordinances of this city.

Justice McCann in his decision is not touching on the merits of the picture itself, but he declares that inasmuch as the Mayor has not filed any formal decision, the plaintiff had no adequate remedy at law, and thus, while it has complied with the request of the mayor to cut out a portion of the film as a matter of courtesy, the company is handicapped in the production of its picture.

Justice McCann states that the Mayor should have dealt with the situation summarily and then the plaintiffs would have had a chance to appeal to the Common Council before the picture ended its production here this week.

Justice McCann further says:

I think that the injuction should be granted, and an order may be prepared accordingly, but I wish it to be distinctly understood that the injunction in this case is granted on the theory that the plaintiff has no adequate remedy under the circumstances, to have the real merits of this question determined, to wit; as to whether or not the show in question is a proper one to be exhibited to the public.

Another part of Justice McCann's decision reads:

"I do not question the right of the City authorities to revoke the license which they have granted. Such revokation, however, can only be made after a hearing by the mayor, a determination by him, and an opportunity to appeal to the Common Council. The hearing was given, the determination was not made, hence the plaintiff has been deprived of its legal rights of appeal to the Common Council.

"The defendants are not without a remedy to suppress this show if it is sufficiently objectionable to resort to such method. The provisions of the Penal Law, Secs. 1140 A and 1141 A make it illegal to present obscene or vulgar exhibitions and if the exhibition in question is one of that nature criminal proceedings may be instituted.

...ing Bureau in the World

Cruse

NEW YORK CI...

JAN - - 19..

...een

In Spokane, Washington, Sam Glasgow, City Amusement Censor, allowed the play "Birth of a Nation" to be produced. The colored people organized and defeated him for re-election by fifty votes. This is effective censorship.

Dateless

Published every

LUMBIA WITH SANE EXECUTIVE SEES GREAT SHOW

irth of a Nation" Shown to Capacity House Without Disorder.

RGESS TAKES WIND UT OF DISSENTERS WITS

ves Orders for Order and Order Prevails as Show Goes on.

The Birth of a Nation was shown Columbia last night. It was shown a capacity house, many of whom re Lancastrians. To say of the protion, marvelous and stupenduous, rdly expresses the opinion of those o saw it. Lancaster county people vo never seen such a picture. It l be a long while before thy see ther its equal.

The Intelligencer can heartily recmend the exhibition to those readwho can afford to give the time d money, and who are content to ot "the sardine packed in a semiattle car" for nearly two hours to et there.

There was not the semblance of disorder at the theatre last night. Chief Burgess Sanderson W. Detweller, Princeton man, banker, and successful business man generally, put down all foolish attempts on the part of a few misguided negroes so quickly that it took their breath. A delegation called upon him to protest. It was a delegation of the Negro Waiters' Association. He listened respectfully and then he is quoted as saying:

Gentlemen:—I have seen the picture. I approve it. It will be shown here. The members of your race would be benefited by attending it. It would make better men of them

And he dismissed them.

Not content, they moved to the newspaper offices, with communications. The editorial force was too busy. They might have time to "run them next week." Later they returned with paid ads. But the composing room was too crowded to accept any late ads. Then muttering, they quietly wended their way to Tow Hill, declaring "dat they'se going to see de congressman about it."

Ordes Are Orders.

The bell on the theatre tolled seven. The police force, Chief Campbell, resplendent in a new uniform, and his assistants, slightly augmented for the evening were summoned before Chief Burgess Detweller for orders. And here they are:

"Chief, the people of Columbia are peace loving and law abiding. We must have nothing else. Our own people will give you no trouble. But if any of those Lancaster negroes come down here butting in, don't be saving with the 'billie.'

"I always obey orders," replied the chief, who handed out the "billies" that looked very much like the half of a pool cue, big end, and had the heft very much like they were loaded with iron.

So peace reigned. So much so that out-of-town newspaper men were disappointed.

And Then The Show

Chief characters: Stoneman, northern congressional leader, his children, mulatto housekeeper, and his mulatto protege, Cameron, southern gentleman, and children. Children learn to know each other at school, visit each other, youthful love affairs. Then the call to arms. And the balance of the first half of the picture is given over to the stirring scenes of the war. The pinch of poverty in the south; battles; Sherman's march to the sea; the firing of Atlanta, which is on so stupendous a scale, that wonderment runs riot with askance in the mind of the onlooker; Lee's surrender to Grant and the curtain falls on the first act. Hundreds of people and as many horses are used in the production.

At the opening of the second act, the South, beggared by war, begins to rebuild. Then comes the carpetbagger from the north, who with the ignorant negro, takes the reigns of government and adds insult and ruin to poverty. The carpetbagger regime is fostered by Stoneman, who as the officials of this city, would stigmatize Thad Stevens with, although the Stoneman of the film has a family. Stevens was a bachelor.

The assassination of Abraham Lincoln is shown with fearful reality; then the rise of Stoneman as the "almost supreme power and his "crush of the whites' program." Insulted, imposed on, their property in danger, their wives and daughters, the victims of the ignorant negroes, the Ku Klux Klan is organized. The activity of this klan and the [illegible] a lasting monument to the movie man—the great clock on the theatre tower tolls eleven bells and the curtain is drawn over the spectacular, to show the rise of the negro in the south since those stirring days. How under wise leadership by the people, who understand them, they have taken their places on the farm, at college, in the professions, and at the lathe. And last but not least, the reuniting of the house of Stoneman and the House of Cameron — love finds a way.

The music by a special orchestra of 20 pieces is a big feature.

There is nothing in the film that any sane man can find fault with. Tears may flow—and they do from many eyes—but there is no mental antagonism to the ignorant negroes of the play—only the few low down cusses who direct them.

The picture, it is a safe bet, will do one thing for Lancaster county. Every man of red blood, having been put to trouble and expense, to see the film, and by reason of its having been barred from the city, make it impossible for many to see it, will declare eternal war on the two or three men who succeeded in barring it from the city, which in the end will repay.

Philadelphia Contemporary's View.

"Down Lancaster Way" in a Philadelphia contemporary this morning says of "The Birth of the Nation":

"The Birth of a Nation" will not be seen in Lancaster, as had been promised. It will be recalled that years ago, when the "Clansman" had been booked to appear in Lancaster, Mayor McCaskey refused to allow it, and exercised his power, in accordance with his fixed determination, to have no reflection cast upon the memory of Stevens. Congressman Griest appeared in the present emergency, equesting the mayor to prohibit the exhibition in our midst of perhaps the greatest feat that has ever been accomplished by moving-picture artists and mechanics. Congressman Griest's requests within the domains of his county partake of the nature of orders, and, while many citizens and hundreds of admirers of Stevens would have been pleased to see the "Birth of a Nation," and had hoped to enjoy the rare privilege at comparatively little expense, our congressman says no and our mayor "me too." Along the same lines of consistent censoring, "Uncle Tom's Cabin" has likely been seen for the last time in Lancaster, and newspapers that caricature public men, impugn the motives of worthy officials and vilify decent people will not be permitted to circulate in this jurisdiction of Griest. In the meanwhile, Lancastrians who contemplate going to Reading, Lebanon, York, Harrisburg, Wrightsville or anywhere in the land of the free to see the "Birth of a Nation" had best watch out lest our worthy congressman should attempt to restrain them from leaving Lancaster for such a purpose.

Withdrew Suit.

All further proceedings in the bill in equity filed by the Epoch Producers Coporation for an injunction to restrain the mayor and chief of police from interfering with the showing of "The Birth of a Nation" in the Fulton Opera House, were discontinued on Thursday afternoon. The discontinuance was by F. Lyman Windolph, of counsel for the show. The costs, $21.20, were paid by the plaintiff. There will be nothing further in court, as the resul tof the withdrawal. There will be no testimony taken tomorrow morning the time fixed by the court.

My Telegraph 3/19

CARDINAL NOT IN FAVOR OF CENSORS

Crafts Misquoted Prelate on Federal Bill, Declares Binder of Board of Trade.

TOOK ADVANTAGE OF NAME

J. W. Binder, executive secretary of the Motion Picture Board of Trade of America, Friday received the following letter from L. O'Donovan of Baltimore, private secretary for Cardinal Gibbons:

"In reply to your letter regarding the Cardinal's opinion on Federal censorship of motion pictures, I beg to say that His Eminence is not familiar with the detail of the moving picture business, but knows that much good and much harm can come through these pictures. Hence in a general way he favors whatever will increase their healthful tone, as he is against the showing of immoral, degrading pictures."

Dated at the Archiepiscopal Residence, Baltimore, March 14.

Mr. Binder said last Friday: "Dr. Wilbur F. Crafts, leading light in the International Reform League at Washington, has quoted Cardinal Gibbons extensively in the last few days as being heartily in favor of Federal pre-publicity censorship of motion pictures. It appears from the Cardinal's letter that the head of the Roman Catholic Church in this country has not given voice to any such opinion, and that Dr. Crafts has simply been taking a chance on the use of a great name."

TEETH EXTRACTED FROM AHERN BILL

Word "Censorship" Is Almost Stricken From Albany Measure, Which Now Provides for "Censoring" Commission.

INTRODUCE NEW BILL

Provides for Censors Responsible Solely to State Regents—Film Interests to Have Hearing on March 21.

(Special Dispatch to The Morning Telegraph.)

ALBANY, March 17.

The word censorship has been almost diminated from the motion picture censorship bill introduced by Assemblyman Ahern and which has been reported favorably by the Codes Committee of the Assembly. At the time of its introduction the bill met with firm opposition from the motion picture interests. The amended measure is practically a new bill and the idea of censorship has been altered to a State commission of three to supervise the films. The powers of this body are to be nearly the same as was proposed before for the censorship bill, and the duties of the members are only slightly changed.

A feature of the new measure is the creation of deputies to be appointed by the commissioners and who will, apparently, do most of the censoring. They will share general powers with the commissioners. Here is a new clause in the bill:

"The commission or any member thereof shall examine all moving picture films or reels and approve such as are deemed to be moral and proper and shall disapprove such as are deemed to be licentious, obscene, indecent or immoral and such as shall be deemed to debase or corrupt the morals."

Each reel so approved shall bear the stamp of the commission, it is stated, and then appears this new paragraph:

"In any case where a moving picture film or reel has been disapproved by one commissioner, or by a deputy or deputies, vendors, lessors or proprietors may pe n in writing the commission within ty days after such disapproval for re- mission of such moving picture film or and said commission after such re- ission may by a majority vote thereof m or reverse the decision therein be made, and such decision or affirm- or reversal shall be final, except re otherwise provided for in this act."

addition to the above plan of review e is added another section which per the vendor or lessor to go to the me Court for a writ of certiorari to w the proceedings of the commission, the decision has been one of disapproval. Application for the writ must be made within sixty days.

Perhaps it is because the would-be moralists feel that the cause of the original Ahern bill is lost that they are introducing a new measure that is quite as absurd as any that has ever been brought forward.

The New Measure.

The new variety of bill for the establishment of a State board of censorship of motion pictures was introduced in the Assembly to-day by Heber E. Wheeler of Ontario. The measure provides for a board to consist of three members, appointed by the Board of Regents for terms of six years, at salaries of $4,000 per year.

The Board of Regents is to supply a secretary, clerks and agents for the censors, and fix their compensations.

The board is to examine all moving picture films and report its approval, or disapproval, to the Regents. The report of the censors may be adopted, or rejected, by the Regents. All films which they approve are to bear the words "Approved by the Board of Regents of the University of the State of New York." It is made a misdemeanor to use a film which has not been approved. A fee of $5 is fixed for each 00 feet of film examined and $5 for each duplicate film.

The same measure was introduced in the upper house by Senator Christman.

Film Men Get Hearing.

At the request of J. W. Binder, executive secretary of the Motion Picture Board of Trade of America, the Education Committee of the Assembly at Albany has granted a hearing on what Mr. Binder considers the weirdest of the motion picture censorship bills yet introduced in the Legislature of the State of New York. This proposed measure, fathered by Heber R. Wheeler of Ontario County, first saw the light of day on March 15. The hearing will take place in the Education Committee room in the Capitol at 2 o'clock on the afternoon of March 21, when the motion picture industry will be well represented.

According to Mr. Binder, the Wheeler bill may be classed as a mentally deficient and morally overfed younger brother of the Ahern bill, which, through the fine work of Assemblyman Ahern of Kings, escaped from the Codes Committee a few days ago—the committee of which Mr. Ahern is the chairman.

Regents May Kill Bill.

The Wheeler bill is, in a way, welcome to the motion picture interests because of its foolish and impossible provisions. It undertakes to saddle the State Board of Regents with a censorship job. The State Board of Regents, being one of the most respected and useful organizations constituting the State government, the Wheeler bill no doubt will be killed through the influence of the Regents themselves.

Baltimore Evening Sun

Perhaps It Is The Truth Which Hurts Those Who Object.

To the Editor of The Sun—Sir: I believe The Sun doubted the wisdom of presenting in moving-pictures the period of this country's history, which is attempted by the pictures known as "The Birth of a Nation," or at least, you suggested that the subject was open to serious question. It seems inconceivable that so much trouble, time and money should have been taken, 50 years after the war, to stir up the differences that divided the country in those days during the war and the period immediately following same by blazing before the people of this day and generation as a true history of those times a lot of selected scenes, so arranged as to make as revolting as possible the conditions which are given as justifying the reign of the Ku-Klux Klan, from the standpoint of the author of "The Clansman." Very few of this day know much about the history of the so-called reconstruction period, especially those who go to see these pictures, and the effect produced by the portion of the pictures given to "The Clansman" is far from edifying. My sister went to see the pictures and was evidently shocked at some of them and thought the effect upon the spectators was very bad. I believe, myself, if there was any adequate censorship of the movies, some of the pictures shown in this "Birth of a Nation" would be suppressed.

I am persuaded that if any true history of the reconstruction period was intended, that purpose is lost and the effect is to give a revolting story which degenerates into a negro hunt, in which the masked night riders are looked upon merely as a band of farmers, who might hunt a negro under similar circumstances and the crowds applaud the doings of these pictured "Ku-Klux Klan" without knowing or reading to know anything about their full and real history. The subject, from a historical point of view, is far too big for mov ig-pictures, and the sponsor for these pictures was very badly advised when he undertook to picture that period as he has done in this "Birth of a Nation."

I do not believe that any good purpose has been served by this pictured story, taken from a novel, and that such moving-pictures should never have been shown.

VERITAS.

Baltimore, March 19.

FILM CENSORS' BILL TO HAVE PUBLIC HEARING

Motion Picture Men Will Talk Before Assembly Committee at Albany To-morrow.

(Special Dispatch to The Morning Telegraph.)

ALBANY, March 21.

The motion picture interests have arranged for a public hearing before the Assembly Committee on Public Education Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock on the bill of Assemblyman Wheeler, which proposes to insert in the Education Law a new section establishing a State board of censors of motion picture exhibits. The board, which is to consist of three members, are to be appointed by the Board of Regents at salaries of $4,000 a year.

The board is to examine all motion picture films and report to the Board of Regents. The report of the censors may be adopted or rejected by the regents. All of the films which they approve are to bear the words "Approved by the Board of Regents of the University of the State of New York."

It is made a misdemeanor to use a film which has not been approved. A fee of $5 is fixed for each 500 feet of film examined and $5 for each duplicate film. Morell E. Tallett of Madison County is the chairman of the Committee on Public Education.

My Telegraph 3/22

Rocky Mount (NC) 3/23

EVENING TELEGRAM

CAPACITY BUSINESS AT FIVE PERFORMANCES "BIRTH OF NATION"

Five presentations of the film of "The Birth of a Nation" at the Masonic opera house, which brought a three-day's engagement to a close last night netted capacity business at the local theatre and established a new record for the amount paid a single company for a dating here. The five shows netted in admissions in excess of $4,000 a figure that even the most sanguine estimate didn't touch by many hundreds. Indeed the Griffith picture is easily the classic of the moving picture art and is a portrayal of a conception of a master mind.

It is a great pity that such a picture could not have been in the managerial hands that could have made friends for the Griffith organization and that would not have deprived them of prestige for the future that might have been expected, would be attendant from a performance of the kind of the "Birth of a Nation." There was much outspoken criticism of the purported dictation from a man aside and apart from the box office who attempted to direct the crowd and that went so far as to order people about and to make himself objectionable to those who sought seats. It is stated on authority of an employe of the house that the agent who mingled with the crowd in the selling of a history of the scenario became so insolent that it was necessary for an officer to remove him from the gallery, after he had been roughly handled by a spectator whom he insulted.

NEW YORK PRESS AGAINST FILM CENSORSHIP

League for Political Education Opposes Bill at Albany.

The League for Political Education is against the bill establishing a legal board of three censors for motion pictures. The bill comes up in Albany to-morrow.

The question has been submitted three times to the 3,200 women members of the league at meetings in the Hudson Theatre and Carnegie Hall and each time has been unanimously opposed. The morals of the youth of the State, the league contends, should not be put in the hands of three political appointees. A board of representative citizens is advocated.

Among the members of the league are Mrs. Andrew Carnegie, Mrs. J. Pierpont Morgan, Miss Anne Morgan, Mrs. Willard D. Straight, Mrs. John Jacob Astor, Mrs. V. Everitt Macy, Mrs. Charles B. Alexander and others.

My Telegraph

FILM MEN TELL COMMITTEE THAT CENSORSHIP FAILS

Representative Delegation of Motion Picture Producers and Exhibitors Talk Plainly and Furnish Convincing Facts at Joint Hearing of Senate and Assembly.

SAY METHOD IS ALL WRONG

Declare Responsibility Cannot Be Shifted From the Home to the State and That the Much Desired Protection of Child's Morals Is Not to Be Effected by Legislation.

(Special Dispatch to The Morning Telegraph.)

ALBANY, March 22.

A large and representative delegation of motion picture producers and exhibitors appeared here to-day, at a joint hearing of the Senate and Assembly committees on education, to oppose the Cristman-Wheeler bill, which proposes to establish a State board of motion picture censors, composed of three members to be appointed by State Board of Regents, and exact a minimum tax of $5 for the examination of all films.

The sponsors of the bill argued that censorship was proposed to protect the morals of the child, but opponents of the measure maintained that such censorship would fall short of its purpose. Assemblyman Fred M. Ahern of Brooklyn, who has a censorship bill now on the Assembly calendar, which proposes a board of censors to be appointed by the Governor, opposed the Cristman-Wheeler bill in form as unworkable, although he was in accord with the principle.

S. Stephen Bush, editor of the Motion Picture World, pointed out the failure of the censorship in Pennsylvania and Ohio, and maintained that the display of obscene pictures could be prevented under the present law.

Can't Shift Responsibility.

"If your object is to protect the morals of the child, you can't solve the child problem by such censorship," said Bush. "You cannot shift responsibility to the State from the home."

William H. Seabury, general counsel of the Motion Picture Board of Trade of America, believed that the question of the moral feature of a picture should be left to the community. "You can't improve Broadway any by regulating for the rural districts up-State," said Mr. Seabury.

Paul A. Cromelin of the Consolidated Film Company condemned the bill as unworkable and maintained that the bill would exact a toll of at least $720,000 a year from the motion picture producers in this State and would drive the industry into bankruptcy.

Lee A. Ochs, president of the New York State branch of the National Motion Picture Exhibitors, saw no necessity for censorship, believing that the exhibitor himself would be forced to display only clean pictures, in order to satisfy the majority of his patrons.

Labor Also Opposes Bill.

Opposition to the measure was also voiced by James P. Holland, president of the State Federation of Labor, on behalf of the stage employees and the motion picture operators, and by Charles B. Shay, international representative of the stage employees of the United States and Canada.

H. C. Barber, representing the Society for the Prevention of Crime, favored the bill, but was for it only because of the lack of Federal censorship of some kind, preferring the latter, he said.

"The trouble is that the motion picture industry is opposed to any form of censorship," said Barber. "The producer will sacrifice his personal standards for box office receipts. If an immoral picture will result in crowded houses the producer will manufacture this sort of picture." He was for pre-publicity regulation, no matter what the form, but insisted that the fee for examination should be reduced.

Senator Franklin W. Cristman of Herkimer urged favorable action on the bill. He said it was an [illegible] over the Ahern bill and was [illegible] purify the motion picture [illegible] State over.

Censors Interfere With Music.

Joseph Carl Breil in talking before a meeting of motion picture manufacturers brought up an interesting point in regard to the cutting out of certain portions of pictures by the censors. Mr. Breil wrote the musical score for "The Birth of a Nation" and is now engaged in doing similar work for the new Griffith production.

Mr. Breil said in part: "Musical scores are written to synchronize with the film, and when you cut about forty or fifty feet of the film, why the musical score must be also cut. Thus the continuity of the score is broken, for what follows may be in an entirely different tonality, and in absolutely unrelated form with the preceding part." For this reason Mr. Breil and his contemporaries are heartily against censorship in any form.

PENNSY CENSORS MODIFY DECISION

Kindly Consent to Allow Macauley Anti-Censorship Cartoon to Be Shown in the State, but Eliminate Subtitle.

STILL EXCEED AUTHORITY

Despite Concession Motion Picture Board of Trade Will Prosecute on Grounds of "Political" Censorship.

(Special Correspondence The Morning Telegraph.)

PHILADELPHIA, March 28.

The Pennsylvania Board of Censors has backed down from its stand that the Macauley Anti-Censorship Cartoon cannot be shown within the State. Headed by J. Lewis Breitinger, the board held a meeting yesterday afternoon at which its previous ruling was rescinded. Since Saturday, when the first decision was made by a single censor, believed to be Mr. Breitinger himself, somebody has evidently told the censors that they have exceeded their authority, with the result that the cartoon and its principal subtitle will be allowed to stand, the board still holding that the second sub-title must go. They have done this simply to save their faces.

The Macauley cartoon appeared first in the motion picture section of The Morning Telegraph of February 20, and at the time no attempt was made to suppress it. However, when the cartoon in animated form came before the member of the Pennsylvania board last Saturday he seemed to have no other idea than that the board had the perfect right to eliminate from it anything that it wished. Since then the board has decided that it would not take a chance on the suppression of printed or animated criticism of its actions and arbitrary rulings.

However, the censors to-day decided to cut out the second sub-title of the cartoon which reads, "Approved by the Motion Picture Board of Trade of America, Inc." The Board of Trade in its membership represents 91 per cent. of the total industry in the United States. This industry gives well-paid and permanent employment to more than 450,000 persons.

Want It Anonymous.

The Censor Board, it appears, could not see its way clear to permit the cartoon and its accompanying titles to go out before the motion picture public of Pennsylvania under the official approval of the Motion Picture Board of Trade. The censors did not suppress the cartoon or the "Defend a Free Screen" title, but they in any event want it to go out as an anonymous contribution toward the general propaganda against pre-publicity censorship of motion pictures.

M. Alexander, publication director of the Moving Picture Board of Trade of America, came to Philadelphia from New York yesterday and conferred with Stanley V. Mastbaum. Mr. Alexander declared that the practice of the Pennsylvania board in employing political censorship was a menace not only to the freedom of the screen, but to all of the fundamentals of a free government.

With Mr. Alexander was William W. Salbury of New York, general counsel for the Motion Picture Board of Trade, and C. Heisler, of the law firm of Gibb & Heisler of this city, was also engaged as counsel in the case.

Pending that the Pennsylvania Board, though it had reconsidered its decision to eliminate the title of the cartoon, still insisted upon deleting the second subtitle. Mr. Seabury decided to go ahead on the idea of bringing the arbitrary action of the censors before the courts of the State, and, if possible, into the federal courts. It is desired to bring the case before the Supreme Court of the United States for a final ruling. Should the Supreme Court decide against the censors, the various boards of censors, in the States where they now exist would become a thing of the past.

Based on Wording of Law.

The case of the Motion Picture Board of Trade against the Pennsylvania censors will be based upon the wording of the law creating the Board of Censors. It reads in part as follows:

"The board shall examine or supervise the examinations of all films, reels or parts to be exhibited or used in Pennsylvania; and shall approve such films or parts of films or views which are moral and proper, and shall disapprove such as are sacrilegious, obscene, indecent or immoral or such as tend, in the judgment of the board, to corrupt morals. This section does not apply to announcement or advertising slides."

It is maintained that the law provides that the board shall condemn pictures or parts of pictures only on moral grounds.

This is the second instance within a few weeks in which the Pennsylvania State Board of Censors has gone outside its jurisdiction and made political censorships, it is declared. In the William H. Durborough German war pictures, which were shown at the Chestnut Street Opera House, the board eliminated "close-up" pictures of the Kaiser and of General von Hindenburg. Search of the statute books reveals no legal authority for such action.

It was considered significant that recently the court has found occasion to overrule several of the censorship decisions of the State Board. Following is a partial list of pictures ordered out by the censors, the decisions being overruled by the courts:

"The Fool's Revenge."
"The Serpent."
"The Kreutzer Sonata."
"The Iron Cross."

The main sub-title, which it was the intention of the censors to eliminate, together with the statement: "Approved by the Motion Picture Board of Trade of America, Inc.," was a direct political appeal to the public for a free screen, and reads as follows:

"Political censorship of moving pictures is becoming so serious as to threaten the ruin of the whole industry. If you believe in the freedom of the screen, just as you believe in the freedom of the press, won't you write to your Congressman, your State Representative and your Mayor and demand a free screen?"

A Boon to the People.

In speaking yesterday of the strange situation which now confronts the people of Pennsylvania, Mr. Seabury said:

"The people of the United States first

CANNOT KEEP OUT "BIRTH OF A NATION"

Orders Served Upon Omaha Acting Mayor and Chief of Police.

OMAHA, Neb., March 27.—Acting Mayor Butler, City Commissioner Kugel and Chief of Police Dunn were served with restraining orders against stopping "The Birth of a Nation" at a local theatre.

The Council received a protest from Rev. John Albert Williams, who contended that this motion picture production incites race hatred within the meaning of a recent city ordinance.

PENSY CENSORS MODIFY DECISION

(Continued From Page 1.)

of all demand entertainment, and that they are getting through motion pictures. The best brains and the best inventive genius of the United States are to-day centered on motion pictures.

"But there is one fact that stands out and that is this: The pre-publicity censorship of motion pictures is undemocratic and un-American, and is harking back to the days of 300 years ago, when the English speaking people decided that they would have no more of censorship of the press or of public speech.

"The principle remains the same to-day, and the Motion Picture Board of Trade of America, Inc., intends to see that the State of Pennsylvania will have no more pre-publicity censorship as administered by a State board of politicians and uplifters who arrogate to themselves the rights of acting as censors for the whole public of Pennsylvania.

"The police laws, the mothers and the fathers, are sufficient to take care of the situation. If any fly-by-night dollar snatching outfit attempts to put on dirty pictures in Philadelphia the remedy is simple. Have this man arrested and thrown into jail."

"THE ROSARY" STILL A POPULAR PICTURE

Draws Large Crowds in This Country and Abroad During Lenten Season.

The frequently quoted comparison, "Improves with age, like wine," seems to apply aptly to "The Rosary," the Selig feature starring Kathlyn Williams, released through the V. L. S. E. on June 28, 1915.

"The Rosary" was one of the first pictures put forth on the V. L. S. E. program, June 28, 1915, and from its initial showing met with instant success, continuing to draw large houses at every exhibition. Even at the present time the photo-play is in great demand, and its popularity was never made more manifest than within the past few weeks, when its religious appeal to patrons during the Lenten season resulted in heavy booking for this old-time Selig favorite all over the country.

Not only in this country, but abroad has "The Rosary" figured as a reliable box office magnet. British exhibitors in particular are enthusiastic in their praise of the way it has packed their houses.

It is an odd coincidence that not long after its release on this side of the water, a similar record-breaking mark was made by the drama at Bellingham, Washington, at the American Theatre. The population of Bellingham is 30,000. Of this number more than 20,000 saw "The Rosary" within a period of two weeks. There was a constant crowd waiting for seats at all performances, despite the fact that a 20-cent admission was charged.

A NEW ANGLE ON CENSOR PROBLEM

Violet Mersereau, the Universal Player, Brings Out Another Side of the Question.

SHE RELATES AN INCIDENT

"Miss Violet Mersereau," an interviewer asked recently, "do you believe in censorship?"

Dainty Violet poised her make-up rabbit's foot in close proximity to her eyebrows and turned her head toward her inquisitor.

"To a certain extent," she replied, "but what right have censors to say what the public shall or shall not see? Every one must be his or her own censor. One takes out of a theatre just what one brings in. If one enters with an evil mind the evil in the picture, even though not apparent to others, will linger in the mind after other impressions have faded. If one naturally loves the beautiful that which is good in the picture will exert its appeal.

People Get What They Want.

"Just remember that the people never have anything forced upon them. They get just what they demand. If people want good pictures they'll get them. And in spite of censors, if they want evil ones they will get them. Happily, they want good pictures and the standard in picture making is steadily rising because of this demand for clean pictures. Producers and managers are keenly alive to the importance of pleasing the public and want to give them the thing that pleases them.

"Let me tell you of an incident, related to me by a close friend, that impressed me greatly and made me more determined to fight censorship.

"A certain woman of this friend's acquaintance was possessed of a violent temper. It was completely beyond her control and caused her husband and children much unhappiness. Upon the slightest pretext she would beat her children and they were growing to hate and fear her.

"She was giving a dinner party one night and my friend went to the dining room with her, to attend to the final details. A little tot, anxious to see the pretty table and unobserved by the mother, stood up tip-toe, clinging to the table cloth. Her brother tripped her, in passing, and she fell, jerking everything off the table. The mother, too angry to speak, sank weakly into a chair, lips set—hands clenched—deathly white and trembling.

"The friend, frightened, begged for the children, who huddled pitifully in a corner, and promised to replace everything at once. She refused to leave the room to bring the woman a drink, fearing to leave her alone with the children. When the mother could speak, she told her friend of the awful struggle she was making to control her temper. The thought that a blow struck in anger could kill had never occurred to her until she saw a photo-play in which it was depicted. She saw the awful remorse of the murderer, the sorrow and suffering that came as a direct result of uncontrolled temper.

"She had prayed constantly, since seeing the play, that God would help her; that He would not let her strike her children again. She was haunted by the thought that she might strike them in sudden anger, and, as in the play—kill them. She looked upon the picture as a lesson to herself. It showed her what punishment might be hers.

"She prayed—and—she won. A happier family cannot be found to-day. I went to see the picture that had caused this reformation. It was the cheapest kind of melodrama. Just the sort of thing that I, if a member of the National Board, would censor. It was, to me, rot. It showed murder and other deeds under the censorship ban. And yet—it did good!

"Now," continued Violet, "what right have I to say 'that picture shall not be shown.' How could I know that it would be the salvation of a family?"

PROVIDE FINE "STILLS"

New Irvin Cobb Story.

At a dinner one night recently Irvin S. Cobb told a story which has to do with "The Birth of a Nation." According to Cobb, the press agent of that picture was endeavoring to obtain testimonials from prominent citizens of Savannah, Ga. In this enterprise he approached Mrs. James Gordon, widow of General Gordon, who led one of the notable Confederate charges in the battle of Gettysburg.

"I really haven't seen the picture," replied Mrs. Gordon, "but my friends who have tell me that it is great. Also they say that it deals chiefly with the Civil War and is called 'The Birth of a Nation.' Now I lived through those four years of the Civil War, and if that was the birth of a nation it certainly wasn't any twilight sleep."

SENATE PASSES CENSORSHIP BILL

Cristman Measure for Appointment of Board Adopted by Vote of 34 to 5.

TO BE SUPERVISED BY REGENTS

(Special Dispatch to The Morning Telegraph.)

ALBANY, April 5.

By a vote of 34 to 5 the Senate today passed the Senator Cristman bill providing for the appointment of a board of motion picture censors by the board of regents of the University of the State of New York, to be composed of three members who are to receive an annual salary of $5,000 each.

The passage of the bill was opposed by Senators Josepha, Argetsinger, G. F. Thompson, Hefferman and Mullen. Senator Josephs said that he was in favor of censoring motion picture films, but was decidedly opposed to the censorship bill in the form as introduced by Senator Cristman. The tax to be imposed upon the film producers, he declared, was excessive and would amount to $700,000 a year, which he considered would present very serious problems to the motion picture industry, which would be overtaxed should this measure become a law. "Furthermore," added Senator Josepha, "I do not believe it would be physically possible for a board of three members to examine the vast number of films produced and make a just report to the board of regents."

Senator Argetsinger believed it unnecessary to establish a State board to censor motion pictures, and was in favor of each locality deciding what they wanted regarding the character of pictures to be displayed to the public.

Senator Cristman, in explaining his

SENATE PASSES CENSORSHIP BILL

(Continued From Page 1.)

bill, said if nothing but good and proper pictures were produced he would not have introduced this bill, but upon investigation he discovered that many of the pictures shown were obscene, immoral and had a bad effect upon the thousands of children who attended the picture shows daily, and in his opinion the tax was not excessive, but only a fair amount for the manufacturers to pay.

According to the provisions of the Cristman bill, the board of censors shall cause to be examined by its members, or agents, all motion picture films and report to the regents their approval of such films, or reels, as they find moral and proper and their disapproval of those that are immoral.

(Continued on Page 2, Column 1.)

E. M. Gintz, proprietor of the jewelry store on the first floor, he sent a call to Police Headquarters for help in guarding $1,500,000 worth of jewelry stored in his safes. Detectives from the First, Second and Third Branch detective bureaus were rushed in automobiles to the building to protect the jewels from thieves.

Considerable excitement prevailed in the Hotel Buckingham at Fifteenth street

Morning Telegraph 3/19

CARDINAL NOT IN FAVOR OF CENSORS

Crafts Misquoted Prelate on Federal Bill, Declares Binder of Board of Trade.

TOOK ADVANTAGE OF NAME

J. W. Binder, executive secretary of the Motion Picture Board of Trade of America, Friday received the following letter from L. O'Donovan of Baltimore, private secretary for Cardinal Gibbons:

"In reply to your letter regarding the Cardinal's opinion on Federal censorship of motion pictures, I beg to say that His Eminence is not familiar with the detail of the moving picture business, but knows that much good and much harm can come through these pictures. Hence in a general way he favors whatever will increase their healthful tone, as he is against the showing of immoral, degrading pictures."

Dated at the Archiepiscopal Residence, Baltimore, March 14.

Mr. Binder said last Friday: "Dr. Wilbur F. Crafts, leading light in the International Reform League at Washington, has quoted Cardinal Gibbons extensively in the last few days as being heartily in favor of Federal pre-publicity censorship of motion pictures. It appears from the Cardinal's letter that the head of the Roman Catholic Church in this country has not given voice to any such opinion, and that Dr. Crafts has simply been taking a chance on the use of a great name."

TEETH EXTRACTED FROM AHERN BILL

Word "Censorship" Is Almost Stricken From Albany Measure, Which Now Provides for "Censoring" Commission.

INTRODUCE NEW BILL

Provides for Censors Responsible Solely to State Regents—Film Interests to Have Hearing on March 21.

(Special Dispatch to The Morning Telegraph.)

ALBANY, March 17.

The word censorship has been almost eliminated from the motion picture censorship bill introduced by Assemblyman Ahern and which has been reported favorably by the Codes Committee of the Assembly. At the time of its introduction the bill met with firm opposition from the motion picture interests. The amended measure is practically a new bill and the idea of censorship has been altered to a State commission of three to supervise the films. The powers of this body are to be nearly the same as was proposed before for the censorship bill, and the duties of the members are only slightly changed.

A feature of the new measure is the creation of deputies to be appointed by the commissioners and who will, apparently, do most of the censoring. They will share general powers with the commissioners. Here is a new clause in the bill:

"The commission or any member thereof shall examine all moving picture films or reels and approve such as are deemed to be moral and proper and shall disapprove such as are deemed to be licentious, obscene, indecent or immoral and such as shall be deemed to debase or corrupt the morals."

Each reel so approved shall bear the stamp of the commission, it is stated, and then appears this new paragraph:

"In any case where a moving picture film or reel has been disapproved by one commissioner, or by a deputy or deputies, vendors, lessors or proprietors may petition in writing the commission within ty days after such disapproval for remission of such moving picture film or and said commission after such remission may by a majority vote thereof m or reverse the decision therein be made, and such decision or affirm- or reversal shall be final, except re otherwise provided for in this act."

addition to the above plan of review e is added another section wolch per the vendor or lessor to go to the eme Court for a writ of certiorari to w the proceedings of the commission, the decision has been one of disapproval. Application for the writ must be made within sixty days.

Perhaps it is because the would-be moralists feel that the cause of the original Ahern bill is lost that they are introducing a new measure that is quite as absurd as any that has ever been brought forward.

The New Measure.

The new variety of bill for the establishment of a State board of censorship of motion pictures was introduced in the Assembly to-day by Heber E. Wheeler of Ontario. The measure provides for a board to consist of three members, appointed by the Board of Regents for terms of six years, at salaries of $4,000 per year.

The Board of Regents is to supply a secretary, clerks and agents for the censors, and fix their compensations.

The board is to examine all moving picture films and report its approval, or disapproval, to the Regents. The report of the censors may be adopted, or rejected, by the Regents. All films which they approve are to bear the words "Approved by the Board of Regents of the University of the State of New York." It is made a misdemeanor to use a film which has not been approved. A fee of $5 is fixed for each 00 feet of film examined and $5 for each duplicate film.

The same measure was introduced in the upper house by Senator Christman.

Film Men Get Hearing.

At the request of J. W. Binder, executive secretary of the Motion Picture Board of Trade of America, the Education Committee of the Assembly at Albany has granted a hearing on what Mr. Binder considers the weirdest of the motion picture censorship bills yet introduced in the Legislature of the State of New York. This proposed measure, fathered by Heber R. Wheeler of Ontario County, first saw the light of day on March 15. The hearing will take place in the Education Committee room in the Capitol at 2 o'clock on the afternoon of March 21, when the motion picture industry will be well represented.

According to Mr. Binder, the Wheeler bill may be classed as a mentally deficient and morally overfed younger brother of the Ahern bill, which, through the fine work of Assemblyman Ahern of Kings, escaped from the Codes Committee a few days ago—the committee of which Mr. Ahern is the chairman.

Regents May Kill Bill.

The Wheeler bill is, in a way, welcome to the motion picture interests because of its foolish and impossible provisions. It undertakes to saddle the State Board of Regents with a censorship job. The State Board of Regents, being one of the most respected and useful organizations constituting the State government, the Wheeler bill no doubt will be killed through the influence of the Regents themselves.

Baltimore Md Sun

Perhaps It Is The Truth Which Hurts Those Who Object.

To THE EDITOR OF THE SUN—Sir: I believe THE SUN doubted the wisdom of presenting in moving-pictures the period of this country's history, which is attempted by the pictures known as "The Birth of a Nation," or at least, you suggested that the subject was open to serious question. It seems inconceivable that so much trouble, time and money should have been taken, 50 years after the war, to stir up the differences that divided the country in those days during the war and the period immediately following same by blazing before the people of this day and generation as a true history of those times a lot of selected scenes, so arranged as to make as revolting as possible the conditions which are given as justifying the reign of the Ku-Klux Klan, from the standpoint of the author of "The Clansman." Very few of this day know much about the history of the so-called reconstruction period, especially those who go to see these pictures, and the effect produced by the portion of the pictures given to "The Clansman" is far from edifying. My sister went to see the pictures and was evidently shocked at some of them and thought the effect upon the spectators was very bad. I believe, myself, if there was any adequate censorship of the movies, some of the pictures shown in this "Birth of a Nation" would be suppressed.

I am persuaded that if any true history of the reconstruction period was intended, that purpose is lost and the effect is to give a revolting story which degenerates into a negro hunt, in which the masked night riders are looked upon merely as a band of farmers, who might hunt a negro under similar circumstances and the crowds applaud the doings of these pictured "Ku-Klux Klan" without knowing or reading to know anything about their full and real history. The subject, from a historical point of view, is far too big for moving-pictures, and the sponsor for these pictures was very badly advised when he undertook to picture that period as he has done in this "Birth of a Nation."

I do not believe that any good purpose has been served by this pictured story, taken from a novel, and that such moving-pictures should never have been shown.

VERITAS.

Baltimore, March 19.

FILM CENSORS' BILL TO HAVE PUBLIC HEARING

Motion Picture Men Will Talk Before Assembly Committee at Albany To-morrow.

(Special Dispatch to The Morning Telegraph.)

ALBANY, March 21.

The motion picture interests have arranged for a public hearing before the Assembly Committee on Public Education Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock on the bill of Assemblyman Wheeler, which proposes to insert in the Education Law a new section establishing a State board of censors of motion picture exhibits. The board, which is to consist of three members, are to be appointed by the Board of Regents at salaries of $4,000 a year.

The board is to examine all motion picture films and report to the Board of Regents. The report of the censors may be adopted or rejected by the regents. All of the films which they approve are to bear the words "Approved by the Board of Regents of the University of the State of New York."

It is made a misdemeanor to use a film which has not been approved. A fee of $5 is fixed for each 500 feet of film examined and $5 for each duplicate film. Morell E. Tallett of Madison County is the chairman of the Committee on Public Education.

Rocky Mount (NC) 3/23

EVENING TELEGRAM

CAPACITY BUSINESS AT FIVE PERFORMANCES "BIRTH OF NATION"

Five presentations of the film of "The Birth of a Nation" at the Masonic opera house, which brought a three-day's engagement to a close last night netted capacity business at the local theatre and established a new record for the amount paid a single company for a dating here. The five shows netted in admissions in excess of $4,000 a figure that even the most sanguine estimate didn't touch by many hundreds. Indeed the Griffith picture is easily the classic of the moving picture art and is a portrayal of a conception of a master mind.

It is a great pity that such a picture could not have been in the managerial hands that could have made friends for the Griffith organization and that would not have deprived them of prestige for the future that might have been expected, would be attendant from a performance of the kind of the "Birth of a Nation." There was much outspoken criticism of the purported dictation from a man aside and apart from the box office who attempted to direct the crowd and that went so far as to order people about and to make himself objectionable to those who sought seats. It is stated on authority of an employe of the house that the agent who mingled with the crowd in the selling of a history of the scenario became so insolent that it was necessary for an officer to remove him from the gallery, after he had been roughly handled by a spectator whom he insulted.

NEW YORK PRESS

AGAINST FILM CENSORSHIP

League for Political Education Opposes Bill at Albany.

The League for Political Education is against the bill establishing a legal board of three censors for motion pictures. The bill comes up in Albany to-morrow.

The question has been submitted three times to the 3,200 women members of the league at meetings in the Hudson Theatre and Carnegie Hall and each time has been unanimously opposed. The morals of the youth of the State, the league contends, should not be put in the hands of three political appointees. A board of representative citizens is advocated.

Among the members of the league are Mrs. Andrew Carnegie, Mrs. J. Pierpont Morgan, Miss Anne Morgan, Mrs. Willard D. Straight, Mrs. John Jacob Astor, Mrs. V. Everitt Macy, Mrs. Charles B. Alexander and others.

MEN TELL COMMITTEE THAT CENSORSHIP FAILS

Representative Delegation of Motion Picture Producers and Exhibitors Talk Plainly and Furnish Convincing Facts at Joint Hearing of Senate and Assembly.

SAY METHOD IS ALL WRONG

Declare Responsibility Cannot Be Shifted From the Home to the State and That the Much Desired Protection of Child's Morals Is Not to Be Effected by Legislation.

(Special Dispatch to The Morning Telegraph.)

ALBANY, March 22.

A large and representative delegation of motion picture producers and exhibitors appeared here to-day, at a joint hearing of the Senate and Assembly committees on education, to oppose the Cristman-Wheeler bill, which proposes to establish a State board of motion picture censors, composed of three members to be appointed by State Board of Regents, and exact a minimum tax of $5 for the examination of all films.

The sponsors of the bill argued that censorship was proposed to protect the morals of the child, but opponents of the measure maintained that such censorship would fall short of its purpose. Assemblyman Fred M. Ahern of Brooklyn, who has a censorship bill now on the Assembly calendar, which proposes a board of censors to be appointed by the Governor, opposed the Cristman-Wheeler bill in form as unworkable, although he was in accord with the principle.

S. Stephen Bush, editor of the Motion Picture World, pointed out the failure of the censorship in Pennsylvania and Ohio, and maintained that the display of obscene pictures could be prevented under the present law.

Can't Shift Responsibility.

"If your object is to protect the morals of the child, you can't solve the child problem by such censorship," said Bush. "You cannot shift responsibility to the State from the home."

William H. Seabury, general counsel of the Motion Picture Board of Trade of America, believed that the question of the moral feature of a picture should be left to the community. "You can't improve Broadway any by regulating for the rural districts up-State," said Mr. Seabury.

Paul A. Cromelin of the Cosmofoto Film Company condemned the bill as unworkable and maintained that the bill would exact a toll of at least $750,000 a year from the motion picture producers in this State and would drive the industry into bankruptcy.

Lee A. Ochs, president of the New York State branch of the National Motion Picture Exhibitors, saw no necessity for censorship, believing that the exhibitor himself would be forced to display only clean pictures, in order to satisfy the majority of his patrons.

Labor Also Opposes Bill.

Opposition to the measure was also voiced by James P. Holland, president of the State Federation of Labor, on behalf of the stage employees and the motion picture operators, and by Charles A. Shay, international representative of the stage employees of the United States and Canada.

H. C. Barber, representing the Society for the Prevention of Crime, favored the bill, but was for it only because of the lack of Federal censorship of some kind, preferring the latter, he said.

"The trouble is that the motion picture industry is opposed to any form of censorship," said Barber. "The producer will sacrifice his personal standards for box office receipts. If an immoral picture will result in crowded houses the producer will manufacture this sort of picture." He was for pre-publicity regulation, no matter what the form, but insisted that the fee for examination should be reduced.

Senator Franklin W. Cristman of Herkimer urged favorable action on the bill. He said it was an improvement over the Ahern bill and would purify the motion picture industry in the State over.

Censors Interfere With Music.

Joseph Carl Breil in talking before a meeting of motion picture manufacturers brought up an interesting point in regard to the cutting out of certain portions of pictures by the censors. Mr. Breil wrote the musical score for "The Birth of a Nation" and is now engaged in doing similar work for the new Griffith production.

Mr. Breil said in part: "Musical scores are written to synchronize with the film, and when you cut about forty or fifty feet of the film, why the musical score must be also cut. Thus the continuity of the score is broken, for what follows may be in an entirely different tonality, and in absolutely unrelated form with the preceding part." For this reason Mr. Breil and his contemporaries are heartily against censorship in any form.

PENNSY CENSORS MODIFY DECISION

Kindly Consent to Allow Macauley Anti-Censorship Cartoon to Be Shown in the State, but Eliminate Subtitle.

STILL EXCEED AUTHORITY

Despite Concession Motion Picture Board of Trade Will Prosecute on Grounds of "Political" Censorship.

(Special Correspondence The Morning Telegraph.)

PHILADELPHIA, March 28.

The Pennsylvania Board of Censors has backed down from its stand that the Macauley Anti-Censorship Cartoon cannot be shown within the State. Headed by J. Lewis Breitinger, the board held a meeting yesterday afternoon at which its previous ruling was rescinded. Since Saturday, when the first decision was made by a single censor, believed to be Mr. Breitinger himself, somebody has evidently told the censors that they have exceeded their authority, with the result that the cartoon and its principal subtitle will be allowed to stand, the board still holding that the second sub-title must go. They have done this simply to save their faces.

The Macauley cartoon appeared first in the motion picture section of The Morning Telegraph of February 20, and at the time no attempt was made to suppress it. However, when the cartoon in animated form came before the member of the Pennsylvania board last Saturday he seemed to have no other idea than that the board had the perfect right to eliminate from a film anything that it wished. Since then the board has decided that it would not take a chance on the suppression of printed or animated criticism of its actions and arbitrary rulings.

However, the censors to-day decided to cut out the second sub-title of the cartoon which reads, "Approved by the Motion Picture Board of Trade of America, Inc." The Board of Trade in its membership represents 91 per cent. of the total industry in the United States. This industry gives well-paid and permanent employment to more than 450,000 persons.

Want It Anonymous.

The Censor Board, it appears, could not see its way clear to permit the cartoon and its accompanying titles to go out before the motion picture public of Pennsylvania under the official approval of the Motion Picture Board of Trade. The censors did not suppress the cartoon or the "Defend a Free Screen" title, but they in any case want it to go out as an anonymous contribution toward the general propaganda against pre-publicity censorship of motion pictures.

M. Alexander, publication director of the Moving Picture Board of Trade of America, came to Philadelphia from New York yesterday and conferred with Stanley V. Mastbaum. Mr. Alexander declared that the practice of the Pennsylvania Board in employing political censorship was a menace not only to the freedom of the screen, but to all of the fundamentals of a free government.

With Mr. Alexander was William W. Ashbury of New York, general counsel for the Motion Picture Board of Trade, and C. Heisler, of the law firm of Gibb & Heisler of this city, was also engaged as counsel in the case.

Pending that the Pennsylvania Board, though it had reconsidered its decision to eliminate the title of the cartoon, still insisted upon deleting the second subtitle. Mr. Seabury decided to go ahead on the idea of bringing the arbitrary action of the censors before the courts of the State, and, if possible, into the Federal courts. It is desired to bring the case before the Supreme Court of the United States for a final ruling. Should the Supreme Court decide against the censors, the various boards of censors, where they now exist, would be a thing of the past.

Based on Wording of Law.

The case of the Motion Picture Board of Trade against the Pennsylvania censors will be based upon the wording of the law creating the Board of Censors, which reads in part as follows:

"The board shall examine or supervise the examinations of all films, reels or views to be exhibited or used in Pennsylvania; and shall approve such films or views which are moral and proper, and shall disapprove such as are sacrilegious, obscene, indecent or immoral or such as tend, in the judgment of the board, to corrupt morals. This section does not apply to announcement or advertising slides."

It is maintained that the law provides that the board shall condemn pictures or parts of pictures only on moral grounds.

This is the second instance within a few weeks in which the Pennsylvania State Board of Censors has gone outside its jurisdiction and made political censorships, it is declared. In the William H. Durborough German war pictures, which were shown at the Chestnut Street Opera House, the board eliminated "close-up" pictures of the Kaiser and of General von Hindenburg. Search of the statute books reveals no legal authority for such action.

It was considered significant that recently the court has found occasion to overrule several of the censorship decisions of the State Board. Following is a partial list of pictures ordered out by the censors, the decisions being overruled by the courts:

"The Fool's Revenge."
"The Serpent."
"The Kreutzer Sonata."
"The Iron Cross."

The main sub-title, which it was the intention of the censors to eliminate, together with the statement: "Approved by the Motion Picture Board of Trade of America, Inc.," was a direct political appeal to the public for a free screen, and reads as follows:

"Political censorship of moving pictures is becoming so serious as to threaten the ruin of the whole industry. If you believe in the freedom of the screen, just as you believe in the freedom of the press, won't you write to your Congressman, your State Representative and your Mayor and demand a free screen?"

A Boon to the People.

In speaking yesterday of the strange situation which now confronts the people of Pennsylvania, Mr. Seabury said:

"The people of the United States first

CANNOT KEEP OUT "BIRTH OF A NATION"

Orders Served Upon Omaha Acting Mayor and Chief of Police.

OMAHA, Neb., March 27.—Acting Mayor Butler, City Commissioner Kugel and Chief of Police Dunn were served with restraining orders against stopping "The Birth of a Nation" at a local theatre.

The Council received a protest from Rev. John Albert Williams, who contended that this motion picture production incites race hatred within the meaning of a recent city ordinance.

PENSY CENSORS MODIFY DECISION

(Continued From Page 1.)

of all demand entertainment, and that they are getting through motion pictures. The best brains and the best inventive genius of the United States are to-day centered on motion pictures.

"But there is one fact that stands out and that is this: The pre-publicity censorship of motion pictures is undemocratic and un-American, and is harking back to the days of 300 years ago, when the English speaking people decided that they would have no more of censorship of the press or of public speech.

"The principle remains the same to-day, and the Motion Picture Board of Trade of America, Inc., intends to see that the State of Pennsylvania will have no more pre-publicity censorship as administered by a State board of politicians and uplifters who arrogate to themselves the rights of acting as censors for the whole public of Pennsylvania.

"The police laws, the mothers and the fathers, are sufficient to take care of the situation. If any fly-by-night dollar snatching outfit attempts to put on dirty pictures in Philadelphia the remedy is simple. Have this man arrested and thrown into jail."

"THE ROSARY" STILL A POPULAR PICTURE

Draws Large Crowds in This Country and Abroad During Lenten Season.

The frequently quoted comparison, "Improves with age, like wine," seems to apply aptly to "The Rosary," the Selig feature starring Kathlyn Williams, released through the V. L. S. E. on June 28, 1915.

"The Rosary" was one of the first pictures put forth on the V. L. S. E. program, June 28, 1915, and from its initial showing met with instant success, continuing to draw large houses at every exhibition. Even at the present time the photo-play is in great demand, and its popularity was never made more manifest than within the past few weeks, when its religious appeal to patrons during the Lenten season resulted in heavy booking for this old-time Selig favorite all over the country.

Not only in this country, but abroad has "The Rosary" figured as a reliable box office magnet. British exhibitors in particular are enthusiastic in their praise of the way it has packed their houses.

It is an odd coincidence that not long after its release on this side of the water, a similar record-breaking mark was made by the drama at Bellingham, Washington, at the American Theatre. The population of Bellingham is 30,000. Of this number more than 20,000 saw "The Rosary" within a period of two weeks. There was a constant crowd waiting for seats at all performances, despite the fact that a 20-cent admission was charged.

A NEW ANGLE ON CENSOR PROBLEM

Violet Mersereau, the Universal Player, Brings Out Another Side of the Question.

SHE RELATES AN INCIDENT

"Miss Violet Mersereau," an interviewer asked recently, "do you believe in censorship?"

Dainty Violet poised her make-up rabbit's foot in close proximity to her eyebrows and turned her head toward her inquisitor.

"To a certain extent," she replied, "but what right have censors to say what the public shall or shall not see? Every one must be his or her own censor. One takes out of a theatre just what one brings in. If one enters with an evil mind the evil in the picture, even though not apparent to others, will linger in the mind after other impressions have faded. If one naturally loves the beautiful that which is good in the picture will exert its appeal.

People Get What They Want.

"Just remember that the people never have anything forced upon them. They get just what they demand. If people want good pictures they'll get them. And, in spite of censors, if they want evil ones they will get them. Happily, they want good pictures and the standard in picture making is steadily rising because of this demand for clean pictures. Producers and managers are keenly alive to the importance of pleasing the public and want to give them the thing that pleases them.

"Let me tell you of an incident, related to me by a close friend, that impressed me greatly and made me more determined to fight censorship.

"A certain woman of this friend's acquaintance was possessed of a violent temper. It was completely beyond her control and caused her husband and children much unhappiness. Upon the slightest pretext she would beat her children and they were growing to hate and fear her.

"She was giving a dinner party one night and my friend went to the dining room with her, to attend to the final details. A little tot, anxious to see the pretty table and unobserved by the mother, stood up tip-toe, clinging to the table cloth. Her brother tripped her, in passing, and she fell, jerking everything off the table. The mother, too angry to speak, sank weakly into a chair, lips set—hands clenched—deathly white and trembling.

"The friend, frightened, begged for the children, who huddled pitifully in a corner, and promised to replace everything at once. She refused to leave the room to bring the woman a drink, fearing to leave her alone with the children. When the mother could speak, she told her friend of the awful struggle she was making to control her temper. The thought that a blow struck in anger could kill had never occurred to her until she saw a photo-play in which it was depicted. She saw the awful remorse of the murderer, the sorrow and suffering that came as a direct result of uncontrolled temper.

"She had prayed constantly, since seeing the play, that God would help her; that He would not let her strike her children again. She was haunted by the thought that she might strike them in sudden anger, and, as in the play—kill them. She looked upon the picture as a lesson to herself. It showed her what punishment might be hers.

"She prayed—and—she won. A happier family cannot be found to-day. I went to see the picture that had caused this reformation. It was the cheapest kind of melodrama. Just the sort of thing that I, if a member of the National Board, would censor. It was, to me, rot. It showed murder and other deeds under the censorship ban. And yet—it did good!

"Now," continued Violet, "what right have I to say 'that picture shall not be shown?' How could I know that it would be the salvation of a family?"

PROVIDE FINE "STILLS"

New Irvin Cobb Story.

At a dinner one night recently Irvin S. Cobb told a story which has to do with "The Birth of a Nation." According to Cobb, the press agent of that picture was endeavoring to obtain testimonials from prominent citizens of Savannah, Ga. In this enterprise he approached Mrs. James Gordon, widow of General Gordon, who led one of the notable Confederate charges in the battle of Gettysburg.

"I really haven't seen the picture," replied Mrs. Gordon, "but my friends who have tell me that it is great. Also they say that it deals chiefly with the Civil War and is called 'The Birth of a Nation.' Now I lived through those four years of the Civil War, and if that was the birth of a nation it certainly wasn't any twilight sleep."

SENATE PASSES CENSORSHIP BILL

Cristman Measure for Appointment of Board Adopted by Vote of 34 to 5.

TO BE SUPERVISED BY REGENTS

(Special Dispatch to The Morning Telegraph.)

ALBANY, April 5.

By a vote of 34 to 5 the Senate today passed the Senator Cristman bill providing for the appointment of a board of motion picture censors by the board of regents of the University of the State of New York, to be composed of three members who are to receive an annual salary of $5,000 each.

The passage of the bill was opposed by Senators Josepha, Argetsinger, G. F. Thompson, Hefferman and Mullen. Senator Josephs said that he was in favor of censoring motion picture films, but was decidedly opposed to the censorship bill in the form as introduced by Senator Cristman. The tax to be imposed upon the film producers, he declared, was excessive and would amount to $700,000 a year, which he considered would present very serious problems to the motion picture industry, which would be overtaxed should this measure become a law. "Furthermore," added Senator Josepha, "I do not believe it would be physically possible for a board of three members to examine the vast number of films produced and make a just report to the board of regents."

Senator Argetsinger believed it unnecessary to establish a State board to censor motion pictures, and was in favor of each locality deciding what they wanted regarding the character of pictures to be displayed to the public.

Senator Cristman, in explaining his

SENATE PASSES CENSORSHIP BILL

(Continued From Page 1.)

bill, said if nothing but good and proper pictures were produced he would not have introduced this bill, but upon investigation he discovered that many of the pictures shown were obscene, immoral and had a bad effect upon the thousands of children who attended the picture shows daily, and in his opinion the tax was not excessive, but only a fair amount for the manufacturers to pay.

According to the provisions of the Cristman bill, the board of censors shall cause to be examined by its members, or agents, all motion picture films and report to the regents their approval of such films, or reels, as they find moral and proper and their disapproval of those t...

(Continued on Page 2, Column 1.)

K. M. Gatto, proprietor of the jewelry store on the first floor, he sent a call to Police Headquarters for help in finding $1,200,000 worth of jewelry stored in his safe. Detectives from the First, Second and Third Branch detective bureaus were rushed in automobiles to the building to protect the jewels from thieves.

Considerable excitement prevailed in the Hotel Buckingham at Fifteenth street

WOULD WAGE CONCERTED FIGHT ON FILM CENSORS

Paragon Film Company Suggests That the Motion Picture Industry Co-operate in Coast-to-Coast Demonstration.

A suggestion comes from the Paragon Films, which is furthering the crusade against certain abusive phases of film censorship.

Apply a return postcard plan to their dissemination of the abuses and general idiosyncrasies of the censorship evil, the Paragon has collected several thund signed judgments from as many review of the staged drama in this country, opposed to legal censorship of any kin of performance given on a stage or on screen, the contention of the correspond ents being, in the main, that the criminal statutes in police guide books regulating and defining indecencies and their punish ments, adequately cover the subject and furnish the only logical means of handling the situation.

The Paragon Company suggests a general canvass of all film industries in America, with an invitation to each unit to stand by a common movement against legal supervision of films by States, counties, cities, towns and villages, and a policy not of defense but of attack, aggressive and persistent against all censor boards where flagrant conditions of bigotry or graft obtain, until the boards are dissolved and the review of films in offending States is put back into the hands of the local police, where the Paragon's propaganda maintains the question exclusively belongs.

As an earnest of its campaign in the interest of the exhibitor the Paragon is fast establishing a representative in each State, whose business it will be to keep the Fort Lee corporation informed in detail of all prosecutions and all other manifests of censorship activity in his or her particular section.

Representatives thus commissioned are already aligned in Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington, D. C.; Cincinnati, Columbus, Chicago, Milwaukee, Minneapolis, St. Paul, Cleveland, St. Louis and San Francisco.

The Paragon's plan includes conc deliberate action in each section the proselyting is going on agains sorship on the part of all exhibitors in that section, and unites all exhibitors in each zone in an agreement to move as one body in any common direction opposing film supervision. The movement further includes a massed anti-censorship action by delegates of this body at a date to be agreed upon, with public hearings on the same day in each city and State most affected, with newspaper publicity of censorship's evils the loud cry of the hearings.

One proposal of the Paragon crusade calls for the elimination of minors from all regular performances at film theatres, and the establishment of compulsory children's performances between regular shows.

The following letter accompanied the Paragon proposal:

"Editor Motion Picture Department,
"The Morning Telegraph, New York.

"Dear Sir—Inspired by the hope that after all State censorship of films may not be an ineradicable obstacle of the film art and the film industry, may we suggest that we, as a corporation, be among the active participants in a generally waged campaign against the censor injustice?

"As you will observe by some of the exhibits sent herewith, this corporation has been quietly gathering the opinions of a major part of the dramatic critics of the country, and we believe that if the bulk of filmdom would move as one compact body in some common movement the censorship evil could be swiftly and effectively eradicated from the list of hardships to which a new and struggling commerce is exposed.

"You will observe by even a cursory perusal of this correspondence submitted that almost without exception the dramatic critics of the regular stage of the country resent the legalized existence of any body of citizens empowered to decide the morality or immorality of films that must be submitted to its members before being permitted to be shown publicly in the State, city or town involved.

"You will notice that in the main the presence of these boards is regarded as suggestive of the Middle Ages, impossible of good, capable of much evil, ill balanced and bigoted by the very chance character of their composition, and tantamount to legalized outlawry.

"You will note one correspondent asks why it would not be as consistent to appoint censor boards in the same cities to pass upon the illustrations of semi-denuded men and women in department store advertisements in newspapers.

"The Paragon Company will give its best services toward supporting such concerted movement, give freely of its funds, and do everything in its power to aid in the final consummation of a comprehensive concerted attack upon legalized censorship. It is notorious that film manufacturers are beset at every angle by importuni s of one sort and another, threatening their existence and making prosperity hazardous. It is notorious that no business of the country addressing so large a percentage of national consumers is so harassed and bled, almost without restriction.

"The Paragon Company believes that the concerted action proposed, culminating in a round-up of all the interests of the business, each agreed to a policy of aggressiveness until censor elimination is assured, would result in a speedy victory uncensored films.

(Signed) "Maurice Tourneur,
"Frank Crane,
"Albert Capellani,
"John Ince,
"Robert Thornby,
"Henry Bayard."

STATE CENSORSHIP MEASURE FAVORED

Committee on Education Reports on Cristman Bill Providing Board.

UNDER CONTROL OF REGENTS

(Special Correspondence The Morning Telegraph.)

ALBANY, March 31.

The Committee on Education yesterday favorably reported to the Senate the bill introduced by Senator Cristman, which provides for a motion picture censorship board under the supervision and control of the State Board of Regents. The Cristman bill is identical with the Wheeler bill, which is on the order of a second reading in the Assembly. The board is to be composed of three members at a salary of $4,000 per year. All films which they approve are to bear the words "Approved by the Board of Regents of the University of the State of New York." A fee of $5 is fixed for each 500 feet of film examined and $2.50 for each duplicate film.

Senator Cristman expects his bill to become a law. The sentiment in the Assembly, however, is that neither the Ahern nor the Wheeler bill will receive favorable consideration.

"CHUM"

NEW YORK HERALD

STATE SENATE FOR "MOVIE" CENSORSHIP

Passes the Cristman-Wheeler Bill for Appointment of Board by the Regents.

[SPECIAL DESPATCH TO THE HERALD.]

ALBANY, N. Y., Wednesday.—By a vote of 35 to 8, the Senate to-day passed the Cristman-Wheeler bill calling for the appointment of a board of censorship of the de ing pictures. In the Assembly the proval. A ure was advanced to order of final made wit ge, but it is not believed that it will by further.

Perhap proposed board would be composed moralist three members appointed by the Board Ahern b Regents for six year terms, at salaries ing a new 00. An examination fee of $5 is pro as any that for the examination of every five d feet of film.

fathered by Assemblyman Ahern ing for the appointment of a aim- d by the Governor was killed in bly, the vote was 49 to 45.

Approved by Motion Picture

SEND DELEGATES TO FIGHT CENSORS

Representatives of Manufacturing Companies Will Attend Protest Meeting in Pittsburg To-day.

WIDE INTEREST IN CAMPAIGN

(Special Dispatch to The Morning Telegraph.)

PITTSBURG, Pa., April 1.

Motion picture manufacturers are interested in the mass meeting which will be held at the Pitt Theatre to-morrow afternoon to protest against the censorship of the screen. It is expected that the meeting will be one of the largest ever held in the city and its chief object is to open a State-wide campaign for the repeal of the law creating the Pennsylvania Board of Motion Picture Censors, now headed by J. Louis Breitinger of Philadelphia.

P. A. Powers of the Universal Film Manufacturing Company will probably represent that interest at the meeting, while Essanay will send a representative from its Chicago office. The Fox Film Corporation will be represented by Clyde Eckhardt, manager of the office here, and Mr. Schwerin, also of the local office, will represent the World Film Corporation.

Mr. McKibben, local manager of the Triangle Film Corporation, will be on hand for his company, as will Manager Walter Kinson of the Mutual. Other film companies are keeping in close touch and will have the reports of the meeting from delegates.

Philadelphia motion picture men have promised definitely to send a delegation, while the local Motion Picture Exhibitors' League has officially advised the Screen Club that a delegation from that body will be present.

Binder in Pittsburg.

J. W. Binder, executive secretary of the Motion Picture Board of Trade of America, Inc., arrived here to-day to attend the meeting. "If there is any person in Pittsburg who doesn't believe the motion picture interests of the United States are determined to rid the Pennsylvania statute books of the obnoxious law, I hope that person will attend the mass meeting learn the truth," said Mr. Binder. "The acts of Mr. Breitinger and his associates are becoming day by day more astounding, arbitrary, nonsensical, hysterical, unAmerican, undemocratic and unjust—to use only a few of the adjectives which apply.

SEND DELEGATES TO FIGHT CENSORS

(Continued From Page 1.)

"It is not going beyond the actual facts to state that the foolish and unexplained rulings of this board since its creation have cost the motion picture interests not less than $100,000 in actual money and a million dollars in time and trouble. But that is not the big thing. The rights of the people of Pennsylvania have been set at naught. Prepublicity censorship belongs to the dark ages, and it is now being realized generally that it has no place in this Commonwealth, whether in relation to motion pictures, newspapers, or in the public rostrum."

Mr. Binder told of the strange and unbelievable action of Mr. Breitinger on the famous Macauley anti-censorship cartoon, first printed in The Morning Telegraph and issued by the Motion Picture Board of Trade of America and now being shown in this city.

Mr. Binder continued: "I understand that only yesterday the censors slashed to death a Morosco picture which is considered one of the best ever produced—clean, moral and by no stretch of the imagination sacrilegious. The picture shows some Mexican scenes which for political reasons Breitinger doesn't approve.

"In Pennsylvania not long ago the Board of Censors ruled against the production of a motion picture film which the police had O. K'd. In other cities in this State censors in some instances gave their official disapproval of certain films while in yet other cities the same pictures received the full approval of the local board of censors, as represented by certain city officials.

Shakespeare Censored.

"In Ohio the State Board of Censors would not permit motion pictures to show the love-making scene between Romeo and Juliet because it decided that these two famous characters of Shakespeare, that have delighted millions of spectators during the last hundreds of years, exchange too many kisses. Really, Russia could be no more arbitrary and unreasonable. Capriciousness could go no further.

"The fact is, and it is a patent one which every person must recognize is based on common sense, that no manufacturer or producer of motion pictures is likely to go out of his way to run the great risk of being proceeded against for violating the law by producing immoral pictures, and also the risk of what might be termed contumacious publicity, while there would be the added danger of heavy financial loss through the prohibition placed on the production of the questionable film.

"Let the manufacturer be required to accept the fullest degree of responsibility, under the law, not to transgress that law, and then let him stand or fall by its provisions. A manufacturer would quickly learn when he was sailing too close to the wind and that it would be to his business interests to steer a clear and safe course.

"When the people of Pennsylvania fully realize that Breitinger is making the whole State ridiculous, that he is making free speech a byword, I have no doubt that he and his political supporters will be censored and abolished forever."

Pittsburgh Press 4/13

CENSORSHIP OF MOVIES IS HARD HIT AT MEETING

The censorship of motion pictures was vigorously protested against by a number of prominent motion picture men at a mass meeting in the Pitt theater yesterday afternoon under the auspices of the Pittsburg Screen club. The speakers declared censorship as it exists in this state to be a nuisance, unnecessary, an institution of the feudal days, a menace to the fifth industry of the United States and wholly un-American. Jacob W. Binder, executive secretary of the Motion Picture board of trade of America, of New York, who was present at the meeting, said:

"The motion picture industry today is not alone an amusement, but an educator, a newspaper and a great public forum. What it will eventually become, the future only may determine, considering withal the immense development and rapidly rising standards of the producers. The President of the United States placed his stamp of approval on the industry when he warmly indorsed it at our recent national dinner in New York.

"These things being true, it is essentional that the motion picture screen be as free from political and religious prejudices as the press of today. In order to attain this freedom we are appealing to the American people throughout the country, just as we are appealing to you here today."

Frederick J. Harrington, national president of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' league of Pittsburg, predicted an early death to censorship.

"The censorship shall not and cannot exist in the 'movie' business," he said. "The citizens are the best censors and they are the only right and competent judges. Let them determine that at the next election. The powers behind the censors are afraid of the tremendous economic force of the screen and we hope to pale them into insignificance."

"The history of all English-speaking peoples has demonstrated the futility of censorship, and the freedom-loving people have forced the censors into the background," said W. Stephen Bush, editor of "The Moving Picture World" of New York. "Censorship is no new thing; on the contrary, it is centuries old as an institution, but it has been tried and has failed conspicuously.

"The only speaker to mention any specific remedy, beyond seeking the cooperation of the members of the state legislature to repeal the censor bill at the next session, was Assemblyman A. C. Stein, an honorary member of the Screen club.

"One of the principal reasons why the censorship must fail," he said, "is that it is a menace to this big industry. How can a board of three persons at Philadelphia hope to pass on the tastes and likes and dislikes of all the people of the state? What pleases one may not please another."

Mr. Stein closed the speaking and indorsed the action of the Screen club in seeking to eliminate the censor by urging the repeal of the present bill.

John McAteer, chairman of the campaign committee of the club, presided, and closed with the remark that "this mass meeting is only the opening gun of a well-planned campaign to eliminate censorship in Pennsylvania."

Post Gazette 4/3

CHRONICLE TELEGRAPH

MOTION PICTURE MEN PROTEST FILM CENSORS

Audience at Mass Meeting in the Pitt Urged to Fight for Repeal of Bill.

PROMINENT MEN SPEAK

Motion picture men yesterday were urged, in a mass meeting held in the Pitt Theater to protest moving picture censorship in any form, "to go out as missionaries to convince others of the injustice of censorship and to use influence with state legislators to repeal the motion picture censorship bill at the next session."

The meeting was addressed by several men prominent in the motion picture world. The growth of the "movie" industry in the last 10 years was told by the executive secretary of the Motion Picture Board of Trade of America, J. W. Binder, of New York City. Mr. Binder said the industry he represented had made a place for itself as fifth in the country's industries.

Mr. Binder said in part:

There are $500,000,000 tied up in the motion picture industry. Unestimated thousands of people are given employment. There are thousands of motion picture theaters in this country. Motion pictures are the workingman's amusement, but not only this they are being used more and more as an educator of the masses, as a public forum for the discussion of topics of the day, as a news source, and in hundreds of other ways that are as yet embryonic. The principle of censorship is un-American, unjust, unfair and oppressive and is a relic of the days of tyranny.

Would the suppression of the freedom of speech or the freedom of the press be tolerated? It can only be that the public has not awakened to the meaning of this censorship, which, once started, may end no one knows where.

I can say anything I want about you, I can write or print anything I want about you. If what I say is libelous, obscene, hurtful or untrue you have redress in the courts and I can be arrested by any constable on the street. But when a motion picture concern produces a moving picture it must be shown to an arbitrary board that will not tell you what may be produced, but will condemn your production costing thousands of dollars for any number of reasons, or for no reason at all. Pennsylvania, Kansas and Ohio are the only states in the Union where censorship is tolerated and it will soon die there.

F. J. Herrington, national president of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League, spoke next. Mr. Herrington said in part:

All books are not good. All lectures are not good. All plays are not good. What do you do to people who produce the bad in these industries? Why not do the same thing to a man that produces or shows a bad motion picture, instead of trying to curtail the whole production? Motion picture censorship was born in iniquity, has lived in sin and will die in disgrace. The organization which I represent is unalterably opposed to any brand of censorship at all, whether federal, state, city, county or township. We do not want and will not have censorship in any form, except that which controls and safeguards other similar productions.

If Pennsylvania could have a board of censors, every state in the union could do the same thing and by the time a film had passed 48 individual boards there would be nothing left of a picture but the title, and maybe not that, said Attorney A. C. Stein, an honorary member of the Pittsburgh Screen Club.

Several films were shown between talks to illustrate points brought up by the speakers.

PICTURE MEN APPEAL TO MAYOR OF ROCHESTER

Ordinances Recently Jammed Through the City Council Will Be Protested at Public Hearing by Representatives of Film Industry.

(Special Dispatch to The Morning Telegraph.)

ROCHESTER, N. Y., April 5.

Mayor Hiram H. Edgerton of Rochester, N. Y., has granted the Motion Picture Board of Trade of America a hearing on the censorship ordinance jammed through the Common Council of that city, the hearing to take place at the City Hall next Friday morning at 11 o'clock. The Board of Trade will be represented by P. A. Powers, treasurer of the Universal Film Manufacturing Company; George A. Blair, of the Eastman Kodak Company. J. W. Binder, executive secretary, and others. The Motion Picture Operators Union will be represented by H. J. Smith of Rochester and the National Board of Review by Orrin G. Cocks, advisory secretary.

The Rochester ordinance is the first of its kind to be passed in New York State and, according to Willis C. Hubbard, secretary of the Rochester Motion Picture Exhibitors League, contains the worst features of the Pennsylvania, Ohio and Kansas State laws and various municipal enactments combined. The agitation for a censorship ordinance in Rochester was started some months ago by Philip Donnelly, an attorney representing the Diocesan Federation of Catholic Societies, in conjunction with the Rev. J. T. Cameron of the Spencer-Ripley Methodist Church, chairman of the moral reform committee of the Rochester Methodist Ministers Association. This agitation, it seems, was taken up by one of the Rochester newspapers for circulation purposes.

Before the Council.

In his statement before the Common Council, Walter H. Selye of the New Picadilly Theatre charged that in their campaign to sensationalize the motion picture the agitators had used every falsehood and canard developed in the United Staes within the last year in relation to the motion picture. "I deny that 50 per cent. of the pictures shown are shady," he said. "Managers are anxious to get the right sort. Who could censor the Scriptures? And yet there are chapters I would not read to my daughters. What we need is co-operation, something that does not quite so much resemble antagonism."

Lawyer Donnelly, in his address to the Council, made the flat statement that conditions in the motion picture business to-day were deplorable. Alderman Bradley Carroll, of the special committee, wanted something more definite than mere sweeping assertions that the films were bad. Mr. Donnelly could give him no such information, however. In fact, he admitted that he didn't go to see motion pictures because his eyes were weak. He knew they were bad because he had heard so.

Two Ordinances.

One of the Rochester ordinances is an administrative one, designating the Commissioner of Public Safety or any individual he may name as the censor, and the other is a penal ordinance making the same designation as to censorship and setting the penalty for violation of the ordinance at $150 or imprisonment for 150 days or both, or a penalty of not less than $5 or more than $500 to be recovered in a civil action. The administrative ordinance was drawn to stop any loophole of escape from censorship pending the final adoption of the penal ordinance, which must be advertised three times a week for two weeks in the official newspapers before it can become effective. That advertisement is in accordance with a charter provision.

The rush of certain elements in the administration to get the censorship ordinances through surprised a score of ministers, who said at the hearing that they had not made up their minds whether they favored any form of motion picture censorship. The point was made by the ministers that it might be exceedingly dangerous to delegate to any one man or body of men the power to decide for 250,000 people what they should or should not see. No attention was paid to the requests of the ministers for another hearing.

The motion picture theatre owners of Rochester denied absolutely that there was any public demand in Rochester for municipal pre publicity censorship.

Bradford (Pa.) Era 4/5

CENSORSHIP HARD HIT.

Monster Meeting of Movie Men Make Vigorous Protest at Pittsburgh.

There was a monster meeting in Pittsburgh this week of the motion picture men of the state for the purpose of completing arrangements for the campaign against state censorship of pictures. Every theatre manager has been asked to participate in this campaign, putting the issue squarely up to his patrons by means of films and slides.

The only speaker to mention any specific remedy, beyond seeking the co-operation of the members of the state legislature to repeal the censor bill at the next session, was Assemblyman A. S. [illegible], an honorary member of the Forum club.

"Onsed [illegible] the cause was principal reasons why [illegible] that [illegible] of [illegible] bill must fall," he said, "is [illegible] own [illegible] a menace to this big industry when prevalent [illegible] can a board of three [illegible] Philadelphia hope to pass judicial [illegible] tastes and likes and dislikes of [illegible] with [illegible] people of the state? What [illegible] pleases one may not please another.

"When the people of Pennsylvania fully realize that Breitinger is making the whole state ridiculous, that he is making free speech a byword, I have no doubt that he and his political supporters will be censored and abolished forever.

"The motion picture industry today is not alone an amusement, but an educator, a newspaper and a great public forum. What it will eventually become, the future only may determine, considering withal the immense development and rapidly rising standards of the producers. The President of the United States placed his stamp of approval on the industry when he warmly indorsed it at our recent national dinner in New York.

"These things being true it is essential that the motion picture screen be as free from political and religious prejudices as the press of today.

"The censorship shall not and cannot exist in the 'movie' business," he [redacted] sors and they are the only [illegible] competent judges. Let them determine t[illegible] the next election. The powers behind the censors are afraid of the tremendous economic force of the screen and we hope to pale them into insignificance."

N.Y. Post Post 4/8

No Censors Needed.

In passing the Cristman bill for a motion picture censorship the Senate has declared for two things—for a state control of films, to be handled by three employes of the Board of Regents, and for a tax on motion picture films under the guise of an examination fee. It is unlikely that any proposal to tax motion pictures would be made if the censorship feature were absent. That feature should be absent—so far absent as to be nonexistent.

Nothing could be stupider, as a matter of state policy, than to undertake to censor anything written, published or presented by pictures. And specifically there is now probably less real occasion for any interference with the commercial output of motion pictures, on the score of decency and morality, than there ever has been in the brief history of the industry. The manufacturers have learned that smut and suggestiveness don't pay.

It is instructive, in connection with this misguided measure, to recall the words used by the late Mayor Gaynor in vetoing an ordinance for a censorship engineered through the Board of Aldermen here by some well-meaning but unenlightened and ill-informed reformers. "There seem to be a few among us," wrote Mayor Gaynor, in his best controversial style, "who wish us to retrace our steps, and resort to censorships again in advance of publication, and make it a crime to publish anything not permitted in advance by the censor. Do they know what they are doing? Do they know anything of the history and literature of the subject? Do they know that the censorships of past ages did immeasurably more harm than good? Do they ever stop to think that such censorships now would do even more harm than they did in past ages, in comparison with what little good they might possibly do? I do not believe the people of this country are ready to permit any censor to decide in advance what may be published for them to read or what pictures may be exhibited to them. Our laws forbid the publication of any libellous, obscene, indecent, immoral or impure picture or reading matter. If any one does this he commits a criminal offence and may be punished therefor."

The people are no more ready for a censorship now than they were when Mayor Gaynor wrote his veto. In at least ten states recently bills proposing censorships have been killed as foolish, or useless, or both. The Cristman-Wheeler bill at Albany should encounter no kinder fate. The Assembly has already voted down the Ahern bill of similar purport. Such bills are dangerous in principle. If the authorities want to tax motion pictures, they may be able to justify that on economic lines. There is no possible justification for an attempt to set up a censorship over them in addition to what the law now provides.

3/20 CONNERSVILLE EVENING NEWS

COLORED PEOPLE LODGE A PROTEST

Against Appearance of "The Birth of a Nation"

NO INTERFERENCE

However, is Expected From the City Government—Attitude of the Protesting Group is Fully Appreciated.

A group of colored residents of Connersville, learning that the panoramic photo-production "The Birth of a Nation" was booked for presentation at the Auditorium next week, have approached Mayor Braun with formal protests against the appearance of this film in Connersville. How many persons of the race are actually in the group which makes the protest it was not learned, but it was believed that the action, at least insofar as it was an action, as distinguished from a sentiment merely, was not unanimous.

Hearing this protest the Mayor began making inquiries about the city, of those numerous citizens who have seen "The Birth of a Nation." Their opinion, in general, is that the pictures give no cause for serious objection to their appearance anywhere. There has not been any official decree in the matter as yet, but nothing is more sure than that the city administration will throw no barriers in the way of the showing of the films in the city.

It is to be said, in this connection, that the attitude of the colored residents who have made the protest is fully appreciated. They feel that the picture puts their race in a light which does it injustice. It is, however, the feeling here that the film is a recital of history, that it may be overdrawn in parts, and that, in any event, its appearance can have no detrimental effect upon the attitude of the one race toward the other race in Connersville.

The protest here is not a new move. Protests have been made against the appearance of this spectacle in almost every place in which it has appeared. At present "The Birth of a Nation" is forbidden to appear anywhere in the state of Ohio, but Ohio is the only state which has barred it.

3/30 Black

NEW YORK TIMES

Board of Censorship Changes Name.

The National Board of Censorship of Motion Pictures, which passes upon the pictures produced by a majority of the large producing companies, has changed its name to the National Board of Review of Motion Pictures, according to an announcement made yesterday. The change was made because "the word 'censorship' implies a type of official control and supervision that is deeply repugnant to the American ideal of free speech. It has come to the point," the statement continues, "where it would rather go out of existence than seem to stand for the kind of blue pencil that works in secret, and enforces its decisions on the public without ever giving the public a chance to decide for itself."

Motion Picture Section N.Y. Cor. Mail 3/25

PAGE 2

TWELVE THOUSAND A YEAR FOR CENSORS?

The Wheeler Bill Wants to Appoint Three at Four Thousand Each—Plus Clerks and Agents

At the request of the Motion Picture Board of Trade of America, the education committee of the Assembly at Albany has granted a hearing on the newest of the motion picture censorship bills yet introduced in the Legislature of the state of New York. This proposed measure is fathered by Heber R. Wheeler, of Ontario county, and first saw the light of day on March 15. The hearing will take place in the education committee room in the capitol at 2 o'clock on the afternoon of March 21 when the motion picture industry will be well represented.

The Wheeler bill is in a way welcome to the motion picture interests because of its foolish and impossible provisions. It undertakes to saddle the state Board of Regents with a censorship job. The state Board of Regents, being one of the most respected and useful organizations constituting the state government, the Wheeler bill will no doubt be killed through the influence of the regents themselves.

Board of Censors.

The state Board of Censors is hereby established, to consist of three members, to be known as moving picture censors. The members of such board shall be appointed by the Board of Regents of the University of the State of New York. The full term of office of any such censor shall be six years from the first day of January on which the term of his predecessor expires; except that the first appointment under this article shall be made for such terms and in such manner that the term of office of one censor shall expire on January 1, 1918; one on January 1, 1920, and one on January 1, 1922. Such Board of Regents shall have power to fill any vacancy in the membership of such Board of Censors for the unexpired term. The members of such board shall be persons having proper qualifications for performing its power and duties. The members of such board shall each receive an annual salary of $4,000. The Board of Regents shall employ a secretary and such clerks and agents for such board of censors as the Board of Regents may deem necessary or proper to carry out the provisions of this article, and fix their compensation.

Their Powers.

"Powers and duties of the board of censors. The Board of Censors shall examine all moving picture films or reels and report to the regents its approval of such films or reels as it shall find to be moral and proper, and its disapproval of such films or reels as it shall find to be sacrilegious, obscene, indecent or immoral or tending to debase or corrupt the morals. Each report submitted shall be accompanied with the film or reel to which it relates. The regents may adopt or reject any such report and approve or disapprove any such film or reel, without regard to the action taken by the board of censors. Upon each moving picture film or reel having the approval of the regents they shall cause to be placed the words "Approved by the Board of Regents of the University of the State of New York," accompanied with the date of approval and a serial number, to be assigned thereto by the regents and appended at the end of the film or reel. The regents may, in their discretion, by majority vote, revoke their approval of any such film or reel at any time.

"Examination fees. For each examination made by the board under this article the vender, lessor or proprietor of the film or reel examined shall pay to the secretary of the board a fee of five dollars for each five hundred feet of film, and for each major fraction thereof in excess of five hundred feet or of an exact multiple of five hundred feet, but the fee in any case shall be not less than five dollars. For the purpose of computing such fee all films and parts of films attached together upon one reel shall be deemed a single film. No film or reel shall be examined until such fee shall have been paid. If a duplicate of any approved film or reel be made by any such vender, lessor or proprietor and pictures be exhibited therewith, such vender, lessor or proprietor shall pay the secretary of the board an additional fee of five dollars for each duplicate thereof until all of the fees herein provided for shall have been paid. All fees collected under the provisions of this section shall be paid over monthly to the state treasurer as provided in the state finance law. The legislature shall appropriate annually the necessary moneys for paying salaries and expenses under this article.

"This act shall take effect immediately."

Shall it?

ENTS MAY BE FILM CENSORS

ent to Wheeler Bill Would Authority to Pass on Pic- With State Department.

UNDER EDUCATION HEAD

l Dispatch to The Morning Telegraph.)

ALBANY, N. Y., March 28.

ablyman Herbert Wheeler of On- day amended his motion picture hip bill, which was on the order d reading in the Assembly. The tion of the measure leads to the t will be well supported when it p again on to-morrow's calendar. Wheeler bill would provide for hip under the direction of the Board of Regents. The Regents appoint a board of three members censored pictures would bear the "Approved by the Regents of the sity of the State of New York." mendments offered by Mr. Wheeler were mainly technical and of a intended to make the measure te in every way.

Legislature already has before it introduced by Chairman Fred M. of the Codes Committee, and the ent of the backers of the Wheeler re against the Ahern bill is that tter is incomplete in many ways would not result in as satisfactory ctical application as the Wheeler ne of the legislators feel that one e other of the censorship bills may this year, although others are not nguine.

e of the arguments put forward for Wheeler bill in preference to the n measure is that the former does create a new State department, the latter does. Under the Ahern the State Board of Censors would n entirely separate and distinct ch of the government, like the Ath- Commission, while under the Wheel- bill, it would be a part of the De- ment of Education. In each bill the ber of commissioners is the same, e; but the salary in the Ahern bill 5,000, compared with $4,000 in the eeler bill, for each commissioner.

Under the Wheeler bill there would no exemptions to the films to come er the State board of censors, all to exhibited in the State must be cen- ed. In the Ahern bill films need

EGENTS MAY BE FILM CENSORS

(Continued From Page 1.)

t be censored, which are now in use manufactured before the bill takes fect, or filed censored by the Federal urt before the bill takes effect. In a Wheeler bill a review by the Board Regents is provided in case of dis- tisfaction with the ruling of the cen- rs. A court review is provided in the hern bill.

One of the chief features to which upporters of the Wheeler bill point in upport of their contention that this easure is more complete and carefully rawn than the Ahern bill, is the pro- ision for a payment of examination fees y the film producers. In the Ahern bill he fee is $2.50 for each "reel," without ny specification as to length, and no rovision for duplicate reels. In the Wheeler bill the fee is $5.00 for each 00 feet of film examined, with a fee of 2.50 for each duplicate 500 feet used. Another smaller feature is pointed out n that the Ahern bill simply provides or the stamping of each examined reel ith the words "Approved by the New York State Board of Censors."

The Wheeler bill, it is pointed out, goes carefully into this and specifies that the stamp of approval must be exhibited for at least six seconds on the end of each film approved, and serial numbers must appear at the beginning and end of each reel. The serial numbers provide a means of rapid identification in case of complaints or other reference to specific films being exhibited. Mr. Wheeler said yesterday that he has been assured the Board of Regents is willing to assume the new responsibility if the Legislature wishes to give it to the board.

Motion Pictures
Section
(Nyack mail)
3/25

NATIONAL BOARD ALL AGAINST CENSORSHIP

Chairman Brenton Points Out Absurdity and Impossibility of Legalized Boards.

The National Board of Censorship has come out officially as against legalized state or national interference with its work. Cranston Brenton, chairman of the board, spoke on the question at the Wurlitzer hall during the showing of the Raver Film Company's "Driftwood" and "The Fortunate Youth." Mr. Brenton said:

"It will be clear to all thinking persons that the National Board, representing as far as possible the popular judgment on pictures, can do more work and do it more efficiently than any smaller boards scattered throughout the country. After a picture has been passed by us, it is evident that there is nothing in it which should be censored by others. While we do not intend to use standards fit only for children in forming our judgments, we are careful not to allow anything which, in the opinion of the board, is indecent or liable to influence in any way even the most susceptible.

"The National Board sees practically every foot of film made. There are in New York city alone over two hundred censors, all of whom are working purely for the public interest. No salaries are paid, and they have no legal standing. Over the country are scattered subsidiary boards, and the number of persons connected is about ten thousand. It is clear that any more complete censorship is not only impossible but unnecessary.

"The fact that legal boards cannot act fairly, but are inevitably drawn into politics has been shown in all the three states where this exists. We urge you to protest against legalized censorship."

PICTURE CENSORS OF PENNA. MODIFY CARTOON DECISION

Conclude Not to Take a Chance on the Suppression of the Macauley Satire Which Appeared Originally in The Morning Telegraph and Which Was Banned When Offered.

STILL OBJECT TO TITLE

The Board of Trade Is Not Satisfied With the Concession Made and Will Appeal in Order That the Courts May Determine How Far the Censors May Go.

(Special Dispatch to The Morning Telegraph.)

PHILADELPHIA, March 28.

The Pennsylvania State Board of Motion Picture Censors, headed by J. Lewis Breitinger, at a meeting yesterday rescinded its action in regard to the Macauley anti-censorship cartoon and the sub-titles under the cartoon which had been barred from exhibition on the screens of Pennsylvania through the action of a single censor, believed to have been Mr. Breitinger himself.

The Macauley cartoon appeared first in the motion picture section of The Morning Telegraph of February 20, and at the time no attempt was made to suppress it. However, when the cartoon in animated form came before the member of the Pennsylvania board last Saturday he seemed to have no other idea than that the board had the perfect right to eliminate from a film anything that it wished. Since then the board has decided that it would not take a chance on the suppression of printed or animated criticism of its actions and arbitrary rulings.

However, the censors to-day decided to cut out the second sub-title of the cartoon which reads, "Approved by the Motion Picture Board of Trade of America, Inc." The Board of Trade in its membership represents 91 per cent. of the total industry in the United States. This industry gives well-paid and permanent employment to more than 450,000 persons.

Want It Anonymous.

The censor Board, it appears, could not see its way clear to permit the cartoon and its accompanying titles to go out before the motion picture public of Pennsylvania under the official approval of the Motion Picture Board of Trade. The censors do not suppress the cartoon or the "Demand a Free Screen" title, but they in any event want it to go out as an anonymous contribution toward the general propaganda against pre-publicity censorship of motion pictures.

T. M. Alexander, publication director of the Moving Picture Board of Trade of America, came to Philadelphia from New York yesterday and conferred with Stanley V. Mastbaum. Mr. Alexander declared that the practice of the Pennsylvania board in employing political censorship was a menace not only to the freedom of the screen, but to all of the fundamentals of a free government.

With Mr. Alexander was William W. Seabury of New York, general counsel for the Motion Picture Board of Trade. Roland C. Heisler, of the law firm of Gibb, Gibb & Heisler, of this city, was also engaged as counsel in the case.

Finding that the Pennsylvania Board, although it had reconsidered its decision to eliminate the title of the cartoon, still insisted upon deleting the second subtitle, Mr. Seabury decided to go ahead with the idea of bringing the arbitrary action of the censors before the courts of the State, and, if possible, into the Federal courts. It is desired to bring the case before the Supreme Court of the United States for a final ruling. Should the Supreme Court decide against the censors, the various boards of all the States where they now exist would become a thing of the past.

Based on Wording of Law.

The cast of the Motion Picture Board of Trade against the Pennsylvania censors will be based upon the wording of the law creating the Board of Censors, which reads in part as follows:

"The board shall examine or supervise the examinations of all films, reels or views to be exhibited or used in Pennsylvania; and shall approve such films, reels or views which are moral and proper; and shall disapprove such as are sacreligous, obscene, indecent or immoral, or such as tend, in the judgment of the board, to corrupt morals. This section does not apply to announcement or advertising slides."

It is maintained that the law provides that the board shall condemn pictures or parts of pictures only on moral grounds.

This is the second instance within a few weeks in which the Pennsylvania State Board of Censors has gone outside its jurisdiction and made political censorships, it is declared. In the William H. Durborough German war pictures, which were shown at the Chestnut Street Opera House, the board eliminated "close-up" pictures of the Kaiser and of General von Hindenburg. Search of the statue books reveals no legal authority for such action.

PENNA CENSORS CHANGE DECISION

(Continued From Page 1.)

It was considered significant that recently the court has found occasion to overrule several of the censorship decisions of the State Board. Following is a partial list of pictures ordered out by the censors, the decisions being overruled by the courts:

"The Fool's Revenge."
"The Serpent."
"The Kreutzer Sonata."
"The Iron Cross."

The main subtitle, which it was the intention of the censors to eliminate, together with the statement: "Approved by the Motion Picture Board of Trade of America, Inc.," was a direct political appeal to the public for a free screen, and reads as follows:

"Political censorship of moving pictures is becoming so serious as to threaten the ruin of the whole industry. If you believe in the freedom of the screen, just as you believe in the freedom of the press, won't you write to your Congressman, your State Representative and your Mayor and demand a free screen?"

A Boon to the People.

In speaking yesterday of the strange situation which now confronts the people of Pennsylvania Mr. Seabury said:

"There are three means of human expression—the printed word, the newspaper which represents the Magna Charta of all human liberties—the public speaking platform, including the pulpit and the political rostrum. Then comes the motion picture, which is the newest and most wonderful means of human expression, because it reaches the uneducated, the plain people such as Lincoln described.

"It means, speaking broadly, the motion picture is the first great ray of sunshine, which has ever come into the lives of all the common people.

"The people of the United States first of all demand entertainment, and that they are getting through motion pictures. The best brains and the best inventive genius of the United States are to-day centered on motion pictures. What the development of the next month, the next three months or the next year will be the imagination of no man can carry.

"But there is one fact that stands out and that is this: The pre-publicity censorship of motion pictures is undemocratic and un-American, and is harking back to the days of 300 years ago when the English speaking people decided that they would have no more of censorship of the press or of public speech.

"The principle remains the same to-day, and the Motion Picture Board of Trade of America, Inc., intends to see that the State of Pennsylvania will have no more pre-publicity censorship as administered by a State board of politicians and unlifters who relegate to themselves the right of acting as censors for the whole public of Pennsylvania.

"The police laws, the mothers and the fathers, are sufficient to take care of the situation. If any fly-by-night dollar snatching outfit attempts to put on dirty pictures in Philadelphia the remedy is simple. Have this man arrested and thrown into jail."

FILM MEN DECRY CENSOR MENACE

Pittsburg Screen Club Holds Mass Meeting and Unanimously Applauds Film Industry.

"CENSORSHIP UN-AMERICAN"

(Special Correspondence The Morning Telegraph.)

PITTSBURG, April 2.

At a mass meeting held to-day at the Pitt Theatre under the auspices of the Screen Club, censorship was ridiculed as "conceived in iniquity, born in sin and dying in disgrace." It was declared that motion picture censorship is a nuisance, a menace to a gigantic industry, un-American, and certain to be shortlived.

"The motion picture industry is an educator, a newspaper and a public forum," said Jacob W. Binder of New York, executive secretary of the Motion Picture Board of Trade of America. "The President placed his stamp of approval on the industry at our recent national dinner in New York."

Frederick J. Harrington of Pittsburg, national president of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League, said: "The citizens are the only right and competent judges."

"The history of English-speaking peoples has demonstrated the futility of censorship," declared W. Stephen Bush, of New York. "It is absurd to claim that the problem of the child may be solved by censors. More specializing in children's entertainments, rather than destructive work of the censor, is needed."

State Assemblyman A. C. Stein said: "How can three persons in Philadelphia pass on likes and dislikes of all the people of the State? This immense industry may be spoken of as interstate commerce and should be amenable to interstate commerce regulation."

ROCHESTER NOT TO HAVE CENSORS

Ordinance Provides Simply That Mayor and Commissioner Supervise Films.

PICTURE INTERESTS SATISFIED

Officials Explain That Measure Was Intended to Forestall Censorship Agitation.

(Special Dispatch to The Morning Telegraph.)

ROCHESTER, N. Y., April 8.

The atmosphere in regard to the censorship agitation here has been cleared away through the passage of the ordinance impowering the Mayor and Commissioner of Public Safety Andrew Hamilton to order the discontinuance of public exhibitions of films where, in their estimation, there is just cause for such action. When, a short time ago, a number of persons in the city aroused a clamor for censorship and suggested the formation of a board of censors in Rochester, the inadvisability of action of that kind became apparent to the Mayor and Commisioner. This resulted in the ordinance being passed. Motion picture interests, misinterpreting the exact purpose of the enactment, protested, but when, after a hearing in the Mayor's office Friday, they learned its real nature, and understood that it was simply a measure to forestall probable agitation for a censorship board, the objections were withdrawn.

It is not the purpose of the Mayor and Commisioner to examine all films prior to their release, but merely to note any flagrant violations that might possibly occur and to ask the co-operation of the exhibitors in removing them. Of course, in the event of refusal to co-operate, the officials will have the power to order the picture suppressed. The bulletins of the National Board of Review will be sent to the Mayor each week to aid in the supervision of films.

CENSORSHIP BILL PASSED BY SENATE

Cristman Measure Carries by Vote of 34 to 5—Provides for Board of Three.

HEAVY TAX ON FILM MAKERS

(Special Correspondence The Morning Telegraph.)

ALBANY, April 7.

Despite opposition by Senators Josephs, Argetsinger, G. F. Thompson, Heffernan and Mullen, the Cristman bill providing for the appointment of a board of motion picture censors by the board of regents of the University of the State of New York, was passed by the Senate Wednesday by a vote of 34 to 5. The board would consist of three members who are to receive an annual salary of $5,000 each.

The bill is now before the Assembly once more and a final vote will probably be taken to-morrow, when the measure will go to the Governor. The fact that an amendment to it was killed Friday gives reason to believe that the bill may be defeated altogether in the Assembly.

Senator Josephs in protesting against the passage of the bill in the Senate said he favored censorship, but not in the form provided for by the Christman measure.

The tax to be imposed upon the film producers, he declared, was excessive and would amount to $700,000 a year, which he considered would present very serious problems to the motion picture industry, which would be overtaxed should this measure become a law. "Furthermore," added Senator Josephs, "I do not belief it would be physically possible for a board of three members to examine the vast number of films produced and make a just report to the board of regents."

Senator Argetsinger believed it unnecessary to establish a State board to censor motion pictures, and was in favor of each locality deciding what they wanted regarding the character of pictures to be displayed to the public.

Senator Cristman defended his bill by saying that, if nothing but good and proper pictures were produced he would not have introduced this bill. He declared that, upon investigation, he had discovered that many pictures shown were obscene, immoral and calculated to have a bad effect upon the thousands of children who attend the picture shows daily. He believed the tax was not excessive.

CENSORSHIP BILL PASSED BY SENATE

(Continued From Page 1.)

According to the provisions of the Cristman bill, the board of censors shall cause to be examined by its members, or agents, all motion picture films and report to the regents their approval of such films, or reels, as they find moral and proper and their disapproval of those they deem to be obscene, indecent, immoral or tending to corrupt the morals. Upon each film having the approval of the regents they shall cause to be placed the words, "Approved by the Board of Regents of the University of the State of New York."

For each examination made by the board under this proposed law the vendor, lessor or proprietor of the film shall pay a fee of $5 for each 500 feet of film examined. For a duplicate of an examined film the fee is $2.50.

The bill introduced by Assemblyman Ahern, which was also designed to create a board of censorship for pictures, to be appointed by the Governor, was defeated in the Assembly by a vote of 49 to 45.

Assemblyman Aranow spoke in favor of the bill and attacked the manner in which the National Board of Censors supervise films. He declared the board was supported by the men interested in producing films themselves and was ridiculous in its purposes and a fraud upon the public. He also called attention to some vicious films which had been passed favorably upon by the so-called Board of Censors. Assemblyman Ahern spoke in favor of his bill and was disappointed to see it defeated by such a decisive vote, as he believed it would be acted upon favorably by the Assembly.

APRIL 11 1916

Censorship of Movies.

To the Editor of the Evening Mail:

Much discussion has arisen lately about the censorship of the movies. This is not as important a question as its promoters would have it appear; yet if we do have censorship we should have efficient and not inefficient criticism. Undoubtedly there is no more important factor in the world to-day than that of the moving pictures for the formation of character in the modern youth.

But the censorship must be of an effective nature and not that of a prejudiced or political type. A place on the board of censorship should be awarded to men who are capable of deciding what parts should be allowed to remain. A man should not be given a place on this board by means of his friends or because of his influence; but a man should be elected who has the ability and the impartial point of view. If this can be accomplished, the censorship of the motion pictures will be effective and at the same time will have the advantage of being an immeasurable power for good.

CLARK B. PORTER.

New York, April 6.

4/15/16

MORNING TELEGRAPH

ASK $48,000 TO RUN CENSORSHIP

Senator Cristman Requests Appropriation to Cover Salaries and Expenses.

BOARD TO GET $12,000 YEARLY

(Special Dispatch to The Morning Telegraph.)

ALBANY, April 14.

Upon the assumption that Assemblyman Wheeler's bill providing for the appointment of a board of censors for motion picture films by the State Board of Regents, will become a law, Senator Christman to-day introduced in the Senate a bill for the purpose of appropriating $48,000 to meet the expenses of the proposed censorship board, the money to be available for the year beginning July 1, 1916. In submitting his bill Senator Christmas filed a memorandum with the Senate which read as follows:

"The moving picture business is said to have reached the position of fifth in magnitude of the industries of the United States and it is estimated that the moving picture censor bill, if passed, will bring in a net income to the State of New York of approximately one million dollars. This appropriation bill of approximately forty-eight thousand dollars is for salaries and expenses necessary to the proper administration of the censor bill. All appointments to positions under the censor bill are to be made by the Board of Regents."

Besides the three members of the board, at a salary of $4,000 each, there will be five agents at $2,000, two clerks at $1,500, three stenographers at $900 and for office, traveling expenses and maintenance $10,000 is asked.

OPPOSE FILM CENSORSHIP.

Thousands Sign Petition to Congress for Freedom of Moving Pictures.

(Special Dispatch to The Morning Telegraph.)

BOSTON, April 14.—Several thousand signatures have been secured to petitions to be forwarded to members of Congress in Washington representing this section, protesting the provisions of the Hughes bill giving the right of consideration to a board of censors of films. The petition further states, regarding films:

"It is important to free institutions that this new and wonderful medium of information and appeal should be as free from the control of arbitrary power as that speech and the press shall be free; because the moving picture is itself a super-press."

MOTION PICTURE WEEKLY

NEW YORK, SUNDAY, APRIL 16, 1916.

"NICE LIL' ARTHA!"

"YOU DIRTY BOY!"

FROM MORNING TELEGRAPH, MCH 19.

ARYLAND SENATE PASSES CENSOR BILL

pite Belief of Film Men to the Contrary Measure Reaches Governor's Hands.

(Special Correspondence The Morning Telegraph.)

ALTIMORE, Md., April 12.—The Sen- has passed the censorship bill recent- passed by the House of Delegates of Legislature of Maryland at Annapolis, ch now is in the Governor's hands for signature. The measure passed its l reading in the Senate by a vote of to 6.

p to practically the last moment it had n confidently believed that the bill ld die in the Senate committee room. en a tip reached President Guy L. nders of the Maryland branch of the ibitors' League, to the effect that the asure would be reported favorably, he tily organized a delegation of Balti- e film men and hurried to Annapolis. day was spent in working to defeat bill, but without success. It is un- ood that the Governor favored the which probably caused it to be put ough.

he censorship bill provides for three nors, each of whom is to receive $2,400 a year salary. The State is to appropriate $12,000 for equipping an office, projecting room and screen room for the viewing of the film. The salaries of the office and the expenses are to be met by fees charged on the film. There will be a charge of $2 per reel for each picture censored and $1 per reel for every reprint.

There are also charges of 25 cents each for posters and slides to be used in advertising film. Applications from a number of Baltimoreans have already been filed in the Governor's office asking for appointment to the board.

OPPOSE HUGHES BILL.

Thousands Sign Petition Against Federal Censorship Board.

(Special Dispatch to The Morning Telegraph.)

BOSTON, April 14.—Several thousand signatures have been obtained for petitions to be forwarded to members of Congress in Washington representing this section, protesting the provisions of the Hughes bill giving the right of confiscation to a board of censors of films. The petition further states, regarding films:

"It is important to free institutions that this new and wonderful medium of information and appeal should be as free from the control of arbitrary power as that speech and the press shall be free; because the moving picture is itself a super-press."

ANSWERS MARKS' CENSORSHIP STAND

Theodore Mitchell, D. W. Griffith's Representative, Points to Unfairness of Federal Bill.

IT HAMPERS THE PRODUCERS

Mitchel H. Mark's interview in favor of Federal censorship of motion pictures published recently in The Morning Telegraph has called forth an answer from Theodore Mitchell, the New York representative of David W. Griffith, one of the foremost in the fight against any legal supervision of the screen. In his reply Mr. Mitchell says:

"As a proponent of this censorship scheme, which is really a usurpation of American rights, Mr. Mark asks for 'always, always clean, moral pictures.' What vampires of the screen are preying on exhibitors' consciences and forcing them to show anything else? There is surely ample opportunity for them to secure the clean subjects they seek. It strikes me that Mr. Mark will find in the statutes here ample police laws and protection for his houses against plays that offend public morals or infringe on decency providing he doesn't bar them of his own free will.

"Hasn't Uncle Sam enough troubles without protecting these innocent moving picture exhibitors from their wicked selves? If the history of their business shows that decency and honesty pays, as Mr. Mark asserts—and may the sun never rise on the day when we will doubt this—why should the Federal Government [illegible] a parental charge to make [illegible] business men appreciate the first tenets of their calling?

"One of the fatuous arguments put forth for censorship is that a Federal board will do away with 'the petty local and State censorships.' Has the enactment of the Interstate Commerce Law abolished a single State railway commission? Have the national pure food laws interfered with the rights of any State to establish its own food standards or pure food commissions?

"The present movement is manifestly unfair and it is wholly and totally un-American. Our newspapers, books, magazines, art galleries and libraries have worried along a good many years without this parental supervision. Why pick out the motion picture for special legislation? If we are so irredeemably bad that we have to be censored by our lawmakers let us do a good job of it and take in the newspaper, the novel, the stage, the art works, the magazines and by all means some newspaper cartoons and let the free born American citizen realize just what censorship means.

"What about the hampering influence of a flat chested censorship on men like Griffith and D'Annunzio, who have lifted the 'movie' above the level of the ancient Punch and Judy show and made it a form of art that is alive with brilliant promise?"

V. L. S. E. FILM AT BENEFIT.

The City Union of King's Daughters of Bellefontaine, O., selected a V. L. S. E. production, Selig's "House of a Thousand Candles," for a benefit performance at the Grand Theatre in that city, recently. Matinee and evening performances were given. The King's Daughters, is a semi-religious organization working in the cause of charity. Membership is composed of leading church women of almost every city of consequence in the United States. "The House of a Thousand Candles" proved a winner for the organi[illegible]

J. A. BERST IN FAVOR OF FEDERAL CENSORSHIP

Although Wrong in Principle, National Supervision Would Prove Beneficial to Industry at Present, Declares Pathe General Manager.

The fact that J. A. Berst, general manager of the Pathe Company, favors Federal censorship, and his reasons for believing in Governmental supervision of screen portrayals, will be received with interest by the entire trade.

Mr. Berst, while yet a young man, is so much of a pioneer in the motion picture business that in this country he is older than the industry itself. He has analyzed every stage in the growth of the industry since its birth, and his views, therefore, of so big a question as Federal censorship are of particular importance at this critical time.

In an exclusive interview given to The Morning Telegraph, Mr. Berst said:

"I favor Federal censorship, not as a desirable or necessary measure, but as a purely commercial move that will tend to stem the tide of petty censorship."

"Of course the formation of a Federal Commission will not legally prevent the formation of local boards, but as a matter of habit and practice, I believe that Federal censorship will eventually result in the discontinuance of State censorship, just as State censorship has already caused the dissolution of municipal boards, by proving them unnecessary.

Better One Board Than Many.

"The censorship question can no longer be treated solely from the viewpoint of political freedom. There is a commercial side that must be taken into consideration, and I am an advocate of Federal supervision as a means to an end. I would rather have one board of censors than one hundred boards.

"I believe that in accepting Federal censorship the industry will be taking advantage of that natural law that has ever caused big things to crowd out little ones.

"I would rather have no censorship at all. It is neither just nor necessary, but as a matter of pure business policy I sincerely hope a Federal Board will be appointed at the earliest possible moment.

"Last Sunday," said Mr. Berst, "The Morning Telegraph had an interesting cartoon on its first page that very forcibly illustrates my point. In this cartoon the motion picture industry is represented by a cow being milked by State censorship to the entire satisfaction of a complacent politician. There are ten pails in which the milk is now going; would it not be better to have one pail? Of course, if there was no pail at all the cow would remain nice and fat, but as long as there must be milking, then I prefer one pail."

Mr. Berst says that reputable manufacturers will not be hampered, or the progress of the industry retarded in any way, by the broad viewpoint that must of necessity be held by a commission that supervises a production for the entire country. He says that while Federal censorship is just as wrong in principal as any other form, it is an evil that may ultimately do good.

"Like typhoid fever," he says, "it is an evil; but we have heard of typhoid doing a man good. It cleans the system.

"Also," he continued, "if we must have it, pre-publication is better than post-publication censorship, because a picture can more easily be changed while the performers and scenes are just available.

"No manufacturer can afford to make a different picture for each State and municipality that has a local board," he continued, "and to cut the films to meet the varying rules so mutilates the subjects that the reputations of the producers are imperiled. The question of fees is also to be considered. This item has already become one of importance.

"No manufacturer has yet approved State censorship, but several have already indorsed Federal censorship as the lesser evil, and if such a law is enacted it will deprive local agitators and advocates of censorship of their only argument. If the Government is guaranteeing the cleanliness of pictures there will be no excuse for the formation of local censorship bodies."

Asked if he did not believe that the matter could be effectively dealt with by a manufacturers' agreement not to ship film into those States insisting upon censorship, and so arouse the millions of picture patrons that repeal of the laws would be demanded, Mr. Berst said:

"We have no right to take such a course, and if we had had the right, we could gain nothing by doing it. By cutting off the theatres in a certain State, we would inflict untold loss on our customers, and even if the motion picture interests could stand this loss, it would be unfair to put the thousands of men and women they employ out of work. Every picture company has hundreds of employees in every State, and it would be unjust to throw them out of employment through no fault of their own. Besides, this course would entail the rebuilding of our entire organizations in the affected territory, after the experiment had been tried, and it is doubtful if many manufacturers would care to stand the cost of this reconstruction.

"The fact must not be lost sight of," he continued, "that if the manufacturers came to an agreement of this kind, there are thousands of feet of inferior film lying on the shelves of many small exchanges that would be immediately put on the market. Films could also be imported from Canada, and while the quality of the shows would not be as good, they would be good enough to eventually throw the entire cost of the campaign upon the shoulders of those manufacturers who stood by the agreement."

On the National Board.

Asked if he favored the present National Board of Censorship, Mr. Berst replied that the National Board has done a great deal to elevate the industry. "It has performed great work," he said, "yet unquestionably it was a mistake in the first place to use the word 'censorship.' This name probably suggested the thought that gave birth to the numerous boards now in existence. That the founders of the board admit this seems evident, owing to the fact that they have recently changed the name.

"It was originally intended that 'Approved by the National Board of Censorship' would be a stamp known to all the exhibitors as marking morally clean films. Exhibitors of the country have come to realize this, but unfortunately the public has not been educated to a full appreciation of what National Board of Censorship approval means. The public wants clean films, and the only reason that the advocates of censorship find willing listeners to their arguments is because the public is not fully alive to the fact that the reputable manufacturers and reputable exhibitors are guided by the rulings of the National Board of Censorship. In a way the board has done harm. It has weakened the position of opponents of censorship in that it makes them look silly when they appear in opposition to censorship measures, when it is known to the law makers that the motion picture trade has been for years financing a board of censors of their own.

"The influence and the work of the National Board has been noble and uplifting. Its only mistake has been in its name; for I cannot help but feel that the present agitation was started by the constant appearance on the screen of the National Board's trade-mark bossing the objection-

Royalty at "Birth of a Nation."

Long cabled accounts have reached New York of the performance at the Drury Lane, London, on Friday of "The Birth of a Nation" for the benefit of the Women War Workers Fund. Seats brought as much as £3 each, and the gross returns were approximately £3,000.

Olga Nethersole was partly responsible for promoting the event, and she received the co-operation of England's most distinguished men and women. For instance, present at the performance were Queen Mary, Queen Alexandra, Princess Victoria, Princess Mary, Prince Henry, Prince George, King Manuel and Queen Amelia of Portugal, Grand Duke Michael of Russia, Lloyd George, Premier Asquith, the Russian, Belgian and Japanese Ambassadors; ex-Prime Minister Balfour, Bonar Law, the Duchess of Marlborough, Duchess of Hamilton, Duchess of Beaufort, Duchess of Norfolk, Duchess of Somerset, Duchess of Sutherland, Duchess of Abercorn, Duchess of Buccleuch and the Duke of Newcastle.

Queen Mary and Queen Alexandra received the patrons at the royal entrance, and the Duchess of Marlborough, Lady Randolph Churchill and Lady Cowdrey acted as ladies-in-waiting.

Throughout all this pomp and ceremony William Burlock, the American representative of "The Birth of a Nation," was exceedingly active. Mr. Burlock, it was known in advance, had equipped himself with an outfit from Bond street especially designed for this affair. In his official capacity it was necessary for him to mingle with royalty, and his greeting to Queen Alexandra, according to reports that reached D. W. Griffith's office here, was, "How do you do, Lady."

When presented to the Duke of Newcastle, Mr. Burlock is said to have uttered a wheeze prepared by him in advance. As the Duke bowed in acknowledgement of the presentation, Burlock grinned and said, "Ah, old chap, I know better than to take coals to you."

SOON TO DECIDE ON CENSOR BILL

(Continued From Page 1.)

the examination of films for school and educational purposes. Mr. Wheeler objected to the Perlman amendment. Assemblyman Aranow contended that the manufacturer paid the fee for the examination of films and that there was no reason for such an amendment, it having been introduced only for the purpose of delaying the progress of the bill.

The Perlman amendment was adopted by a vote of 54 to 49. Assemblyman Wheeler offered an amendment to his own bill eliminating the word "Regents," it being understood the State Board of Regents objected to this feature of the measure. Upon their request it has been stricken out, so that where it previously appeared in the bill it will now read "Board of Censors."

Upon the assumption that Assemblyman Wheeler's bill providing for the appointment of a board of censors for motion picture films by the State Board of Regents will become a law, Senator Cristman has introduced in the Senate a bill for the purpose of appropriating $48,000 to meet the expenses of the proposed censorship board, the money to be available for the year beginning July 1, 1916. In submitting his bill, Senator Cristman filed a memorandum with the Senate which read as follows:

"The moving picture business is said to have reached the position of fifth in magnitude of the industries of the United States and it is estimated that the moving picture censor bill, if passed, will bring in a net income to the State of New York of approximately $1,000,000. This appropriation bill of approximately $48,000 is for salaries and expenses necessary to the proper administration of the censor bill. All appointments to positions under the censor bill are to be made by the Board of Regents."

Besides the three members of the board, at a salary of $4,000 each, there will be five agents at $2,000, two clerks at $1,500, three stenographers at $900, and for office, traveling expenses and maintenance $10,000 is asked.

(Special Correspondence The Morning Telegraph.)

CLEVELAND, April 12.

At a recent meeting of the Northeastern Ohio Motion Picture Exhibitors' League at the headquarters in this city, National President Fred J. Herrington was a visitor. With him he brought several cut-outs that had been ordered by the Pennsylvania censors. These showed a smiling baby, the proud father and the parents gazing at the baby in its cradle. Mr. Herrington said the censors had objected to these because they were liable to destroy the illusion concerning babies being brought by the stork. Those present greeted the statement with laughter.

Mr. Herrington wanted to know who would "censor the censors."

Replies to Divine.

The meeting was an open one, and the most important business was the official reply of Cleveland President Ben J. Sawyer to attacks that had been made on film men by Rev. George Hugh Birney, who was present. The latter was described by Attorney Sawyer as a "good man gone astray."

Among other things he said: "He has lost faith in the power of Christ to draw men to Him, and he wants to substitute his own power. He has lost faith in the law of God, and he wants to rewrite it. He wants to revise the letters of Paul to the Christians in the new-born century and bring them up to date."

Continuing, Mr. Sawyer said:

"Dr. Birney, your criticism is unsupported by facts. It is an exaggeration that casts reflection upon your brother, that should cause you to blush with shame. Not a single case of delinquency has ever been directly or indirectly traced to a motion picture.

"How can a man tell what is going on in a world he does not live in? The picture men live among the people. They are of them. They know each other. And they resent as false the conclusions of Dr. Birney. The picture men believe they have as good a right to exercise their moral judgment as has Dr. Birney. If they are mistaken they want it proven before a jury of their peers, so that all mankind may be benefited.

"In future, Dr. Birney, when you have anything to criticise, come to us. We are not criminals. We do not merit public pillories. We will be only too glad to lend you a receptive ear."

Dr. Birney said he was glad to hear the exhibitors' side of the controversy, but protested that his motives were misunderstood. He intimated that he would reply in a sermon later.

Censorship or Freedom Doomed.

Speaking of censorship in general, Attorney Sawyer said:

"Either censorship must die or freedom must die." He declared no form of censorship could live in this country.

Exhibitor Samuel Rullock declared that more immoral pictures had been seen in Ohio since the institution of censorship than before.

Kate Davis, president of the International Peoples' Aid Association was present at the session.

To Film Fairy Tales.

The Babyland Film Company has been started in this city and is financed by several Cleveland men interested in the

Morning Telegraph 4/16-16

SOON TO DECIDE ON CENSOR BILL

Amended Cristman-Wheeler Measure Before Assembly To-morrow for Final Action.

SMALL MACHINES EXEMPTED

(Special Correspondence The Morning Telegraph.)

ALBANY, April 14.

After a heated discussion, the Cristman-Wheeler bill, providing for a board of censorship of motion pictures, under the supervision of the State Board of Regents, was amended Thursday, when it came up in the Assembly for final consideration, which necessitated its being reprinted and placed on the members' desks for three legislative days. Further action on the measure, which has been passed by the Senate, will probably be taken Monday, when it will in all likelihood be disposed of finally.

Assemblyman Wheeler, in advocating the passage of his bill, declared he had received during the last ten days a great number of letters from individuals and organizations, approving the censorship of motion picture films and expressing their interest in the effort to have clean and morally good pictures presented to the public. Mr. Wheeler said film producers make pictures as near the border line as they can and "get away with it," and, as the matter now stands, there is no censorship in this State except that of the manufacturers of films themselves. The proposed law will, he thinks, give the subject character and high standing.

Assemblyman Perlman of New York objected to the proposed legislation for the reason that it would add a heavy fee to the pictures exhibited in schools and money would have to be appropriated to meet the additional expense. He explained he had just succeeded in passing a law exempting miniature motion picture apparatus from being classed with other film machines and believed they should not be included in this bill.

He proposed to offer an amendment which would exempt the minature motion picture machines and not exact a fee for

(Continued on Page 5.)

4/16-16

LET THE INDUSTRY DECIDE ON FORM OF CENSORSHIP

Marguerite Bertsch Suggests Congress of Big Producers to Choose System of Supervision Best Suited to Industry.

Marguerite Bertsch, author-producer of big features for the Vitagraph Company, states logically and convincingly her simple solution to the disturbing question of Government censorship. For five years editor-in-chief of the Vitagraph Company, and thus keenly alive to the problem of censorship, both through the guarding of the Vitagraph output in this repect and through the necessary association during that time with the National Board of Censorship, Miss Bertsch goes on to say:

"With all its difficulties of decision, with all its arguments pro and con, there is rarely a question of such momentous importance as that of Government censorship for moving pictures, that presents so simple a solution.

"To insure to fatherless children a most reliable protection, we have turned them over to their natural guardians, their mothers, in the Widowed Mothers' Pension bill. To insure to any business the most painstaking and most faithful management, we entrust it to its owners. We make this choice without a moment's thought, and then sink back with relief, knowing that the work will be well done. Why? For the simple reason that it is in the care of those most interested in its welfare. Somewhere there is always someone who is more interested than any one else, financially or otherwise, in the advancing of any one cause that may present itself. Find this one person or persons, turn the same loose on the baffling entanglement that so vitally concerns them, and you have your battle more than half won at the start. Why suggest the appointment by the State or nation of a censoring body which may, or may not, have at heart the moral well being of the public, when we have in the very heart of the industry men who must observe—who dare not for the very safety of their capital involved, be indifferent to—the moral tone of their productions.

Government Censorship and Graft.

"Far be it from any of us to cast reflections on a Government-appointed censoring body; but all of us know that we might politically appoint a censoring body to inspect the moral status of photo-plays, a second body to inspect the first; a third to inspect the second and a fourth to inspect the third, and so on ad infinitum and yet we could not thereby insure an even justice without fear or favor. We might create a chain of political censorship which would reach clear around the world—which chain would be no stronger than its weakest link. Everywhere along the line, there would be openings for that most shameful of all vices of the day—graft! We are living to-day in a money-mad age, here are so many who would corrupt public morals for [illegible] consideration, and so many who would do the same for a very little. There is only one type of person of whom the human mind cannot conceive, and that is the sane individual who would refuse to do right, even for money.

"There are men who are being paid today to do right by the public morally, paid more than graft could ever yield them, and these men are the photo-play manufacturers.

"Only those who are on the inside of this great industry and art, can realize how fatal to the success of a production financially is an indecent tone. The few degenerate individuals who might be drawn to such a picture through morbid curiosity, are swept into oblivion by the great masses who would turn from it, and from their allegiance to that company which produced this thing, so offensive to their wholesome sense of decency. It is these wholesome-minded masses that the manufacturer must please in order to survive in the tight struggle for existence.

Let the Producers Decide.

"Now and then a producer arises who misjudges the public mind—who feels they want the unclean, the immoral. He pays the price in failure. Just as an immoral tone is fatal to the individual production, so an unwholesome spirit through pictures in general, would be the death of the industry. There is no one, therefore, who is so sincerely, so intensely eager for stringent censorship, as is the photo-play manufacturer. These are the men who can best establish that system of censorship which will protect the interests of the picture public and of themselves—which interests are so closely intertwined. Let these men assemble—the heads of this great industry—such men as Commodore J. Stuart Blackton and Mr. Albert E. Smith of the Vitagraph Company, as Mr. Lubin, Mr. Selig, Mr. Lasky, Mr. Frohman and all the other heads that crown this great field; and whatever system of censorship these men decide upon, may be trusted to be watertight; for they alone know the devious paths within the industry, whereby a weaker member might try to evade their law to the detriment of the profession. Such a congress would be ideal toward the speedy settlement of the disturbing question of censorship. So often those who have the knowledge and the power to serve a worthy cause, are guided by self-interest into other channels. So often those who mean well, blunder through insufficient knowledge of their province. It is very rarely indeed that knowledge and power are on the same side with an inevitable determination to serve the public interests. Where such is the case, why not seize on what a kindly Providence has given us? Why not arrive at the solution of our difficulty through the only men who can meet it satisfactorily? Let their decision as to the most efficient censorship be presented for public approval, and our problem is solved."

APRIL 20

CREATING 4/20 M CENSORS IN STATE, IS PASSED

mbly Concurs in Amendents to Cristman-Wheeler easure and Approves It by ote of 31 to 13—Board of egents Will Appoint Officials, t Is Provided.

POSITION PLAN FAILED

erstanding Among Members Not to Concur Goes Wild When Ballots Are Polled—Revenue Will Be About $2,000,000 Yearly, It Is Said—Senator Argetsinger Against Legislation.

(Special Dispatch to The Morning Telegraph.)

ALBANY, April 19.

By a vote of 31 to 13 the Senate tonight concurred in the amendments to Cristman-Wheeler bill, which purses to establish a State board of moa picture censors to be appointed by State Board of Regents.

The bill was passed in the Assembly 1 o'clock this morning, and it now es to the Governor for his consideraon.

There was an understanding, it is unrstood, among the members of the nate not to concur in the amendments opted in the Assembly, but through me arrangement the plan failed and e Senators came out strongly in its vor.

Senator Argetsinger in a speech opsed the measure, saying as now drawn is a bad bill, and in his opinion the nendment which exempts a certain ass of machine and films made it a l piece of legislation for the reason t no fees will be charged for the exination of films manufactured by a rtain motion picture concern.

"Which to my mind," said the Senator, a great injustice to other motion cture producing firms."

Senator Walters also objected to the ll as now drawn, saying that a great ght had dawned upon him and he could w see why the Perlman amendment d been incorporated in the bill.

Senator Brown, leader of the majority, vored the bill and characterized it a od one for the State. The revenue is id to be about $2,000,000 a year.

In the discussion on the measure Mr. Wheeler took the floor first. He roceeded to explain the merits of his roposed legislation for a State Board of ensors to be apointed by the State oard of Regents. He declared that the tate examiners as provided for in his ill would not in the least interfere with he cities' powers regarding the censor f motion picture films. Local authorities ould be deprived of nothing as far as his bill would affect their jurisdiction n the subject. He read a letter from . W. Binder, of the Motion Picture Board of Trade in which the latter conceded that the fee for the examination f films as provided in the bill was not xcessive.

To Popularize Censorship.

"It is all nonsense," said Mr. Wheeler, "that the proposed board cannot effectually do the work. The motion picture industry is the fifth in the State and can well afford to pay the tax, and it will prove only a slight burden upon them."

He quoted from a letter received from Mr. McCarty, who is connected with Mr. Griffith in the production of "The Birth of a Nation," indorsing the ibll. In the letter he said that "we are aiming too high, and the proposed measure will have the effect of popularizing censorship, and every State will soon follow us in establishing a high-class censorship board."

In conclusion, Mr. Wheeler declared that neither Senator Cristman nor himself had an axe to grind, their only desire being to have clean, wholesome and proper class pictures displayed throughout the State.

Assemblyman Powers admitted that motion pictures should be censored, but that the Cristman-Wheeler bill he believed to be unworkable, and that the Board of Regents would not appoint an efficient board to adequately examine all the films produced or exhibited in this State. And furthermore, each city should censor its own pictures as does the city of Rochester, which involves no expense, this duty being under the Department of Public Safety.

Assemblyman Taylor of Brooklyn spoke against the bill, saying that he was opposed to the State Department of Education having any further control in additional positions. He thought they were sufficiently taken care of in that respect already.

MOVIE CENSOR BILL PASSED

Assembly Votes Measure, 87 to 37, After Bitter Fight.

ALBANY, April 19.—The Assembly by a vote of 87 to 37 passed the Cristman-Wheeler bill this morning providing for a State board of motion picture censors. The board is to be under the direction of the State Board of Regents.

My Telegraph 4/23-16

PARAGON STILL FIGHTS CENSORS

Wants 100,000 Names to Petition Asking Governor Whitman to Veto Cristman Measure.

WOULD AWAKEN PUBLIC

Copies of Request Will Be Circulated in Motion Picture Houses Throughout New York State.

Although the Cristman-Wheeler censor bill passed the State Assembly at Albany by 49 votes more than the bill's champion needed, the Paragon Films will strenuously try to make the Assembly's action innocuous.

Through the medium of petitions, circulated primarily by the Paragon Corporation's playing, technical and executive staffs, the film company, with headquarters at Fort Lee, hopes to influence Governor Whitman to veto the bill.

The Paragon declares it will have not less than 100,000 names requesting the veto to present to the Governor within ten days. Already it has several thousand signatures representative of the best film elements.

The Paragon's stand against the bill is based upon its contention that "the measure is pernicious in effect and impossible of practice intelligently." The Paragon further states in its plea against the legislation that "the added charges to a business already sorely taxed must inevitably be paid by the moving picture patron."

It is the moving picture patron that the Paragon counts on for the bulk of its 100,000 names. To secure these, copies of the petition, with blanks for signatures, are being circulated among all the motion picture houses in Greater New York.

Taxes Prohibitive.

The Paragon points out to the Governor that the "tax of five dollars per 500 feet of film, provided for by the proposed measure, is absurdly prohibitive, entirely without even comparative precedent by any other State, and means in the final collection that the fifty dollars on a feature picture must, because of the small margin of profit now obtaining between the cost of production and rate of rental, be added to the rental rate by the manufacturer or his exchanges, and that the exhibitor or lessee of a motion picture playhouse must, in sheer self-defence shift this added cost to the consumer or motion picture patron; that this condition imperatively means that the admission rate to motion picture theatres must be increased to meet the increased operating charges.

The petition further goes on to say that the signers hope "Governor Whitman will not endorse this measure, which will add an extra cost to a commodity of almost universal consumption by the people of the State of New York."

House Peters, Originator.

The petition idea originated with House Peters, Paragon film star, who says:

"I hope the industry will take hold of this petition and not relax until the last name is secured. We who have followed the growing interests of filmdom for any lengthy period know what a struggle it has been for the manufacturers. It seems a pity that this new burden must be added to their lot. Of course, as the petition states, in the end the ridiculous fees charged by the bill for film examinations must come from the public; but before that end is consummated the manufacturer must go through the hardships of the friction with exhibitors that must ensue before the exhibitors tax the consumer.

"If the motion picture manufacturers will interest the consumer—the patron—in the present fight, the bill will never become a law."

FILM BOARD OPENS CENSORSHIP FIGHT

War on Cristman-Wheeler Bill Will Be Carried on Throughout the State.

ASK VETO BY THE GOVERNOR

The National Board of Review of Motion Pictures to-morrow will fire its first broadside in a vigorous campaign to bring about the vetoing by Governor Whitman of the Cristman-Wheeler Motion Picture Censorship bill. Anti-censorship propaganda will be distributed throughout the State, but it is obvious that most of the protest will be aired in this city.

The principal arguments upon which the motion picture producers will base their objection to the Cristman-Wheeler measure will be the failure of the legal censorship established in Ohio and Pennsylvania and the inevitable rise in admission prices because of the increase in production cost due to prohibitive assessments for the maintenance of the board.

The Board of Review yesterday issued the following statement summing up its stand in the controversy:

"The National Board of Review of Motion Pictures has arranged for a series of public protests against the signing of the Cristman-Wheeler bill, providing for legal censorship of motion pictures in the State of New York. The first of these protests will be made at the Forty-fourth Street Theatre on Monday evening, when Cranston Brenton, chairman of the National Board, will present facts showing the vagaries of legal censorship as indicated by the decisions of the State boards of Pennsylvania and Ohio, and will show the dangers which the motion picture as a great public entertainment would be subjected to in the State of New York should Governor Whitman sign the bill.

"The motion picture is to be considered at the convention of the Drama League of America at St. Louis, with a view to listing feature pictures with the drama on the bulletins of the Drama League. A State-wide movement is on foot among the leaders of public opinion to urge Governor Whitman to veto the bill.

"It is estimated that the tax levied through this bill on motion pictures will amount to more than half a million dollars a year, which will raise the price of admission to motion picture theatres to a prohibitive figure as far as the masses of the people are concerned.

"The National Board of Review has arranged for protests against this infringement of what has come to be the theatre of the people, to take place immediately at other theatres, pending the decision of the Governor."

State Assemblyman Wheeler, sponsor for the censorship measure, yesterday issued a denial of the report that in urging its passage he had told the house that J. W. Binder, executive secretary of the Motion Picture Board of Trade, approved the passage of the bill. Assemblyman Wheeler was said to have urged the passage of the bill on the ground that Binder's figures proved it would not affect the industry.

The legislator's statement follows:

"The minutes of the House will prove that I did not quote from the Binder letter in claiming censorship fees would not prove excessive. I did, however, quote his figures giving fees in other States and showing proceeds would exceed the cost of examination.

(Signed) "Heber E. Wheeler."

My Telegraph 4/23-16

TO GRANT HEARING ON CENSOR BILL

Governor Signifies Intention of Permitting Discussion of Cristman-Wheeler Measure Within Next Thirty Days.

IS DELUGED WITH PROTESTS

Board of Regents Denies Having Had Anything to Do With the Act Passed by Both Houses of the Legislature During Week.

(Special Dispatch to The Morning Telegraph.)

ALBANY, April 22.

The Cristman-Wheeler censorship bill having been passed by both the Senate and Assembly, Governor Whitman has received within the last few days something like 10,000 written and telegraphed protests against the signing of the measure which would provide a board of three to censor all motion pictures prior to their release in New York State.

In fact, so voluminous has this correspondence become that Franklin B. Lord, Counsel to the Governor, has caused a printed form of reply to be prepared.

In the message to J. W. Binder, executive secretary of the Motion Picture Board of Trade of America, sent to-day, the Governor signified his intention of granting a hearing, or a series of hearings, on the censorship measure within the next thirty days.

The letter received from Mr. Binder, upon which the Governor's assurance to give full consideration was based, reads:

April 21, 1916.

My dear Governor:

The attached telegram will confirm one sent you yesterday in connection with a hearing on the so-called Cristman-Wheeler bill creating pre-publicity censorship of motion pictures.

I sincerely trust that before acting upon this bill you will accede to this request. There are many reasons why this bill should not become a law entirely aside from the viewpoint of the motion picture people. You should know these. Very truly yours,

J. W. Binder,
Executive Secretary.

Hon. Charles S. Whitman,
Executive Mansion, Albany, N. Y.

Regents' Stand Important.

Perhaps the most important development in connection with the bill, however, is the fact that the State Board of Regents absolutely denied Friday that any of its members had had anything to do with the Cristman-Wheeler bill. Thomas E. Finegan, Deputy State Commissioner of Education, on this point sent J. W. Binder the following letter:

"The University of the State of New York, the State Department of Education, Albany.

"Thomas E. Finegan, Deputy Commissioner of Education and Assistant Commissioner for Elementary Education.

"April 21, 1916.

"Mr. J. W. Binder, Executive Secretary, Motion Picture Board of Trade of America, Inc., 18 East Forty-first street, New York City:

"Dear Sir—Your letter of April 15 addressed to Dr. Finley and copies of your telegrams to Chancellor Sexton and Regent Nottingham were duly received. I am directed by Dr. Finley to advise you that the legislation referred to was not proposed by the Education Department, nor was it proposed by the Board of Regents. The Board of Regents took no action what-

(Continued on Page 8.)

E. My American 4/23

Virginia Pearson's Views on Censorship

By VIRGINIA PEARSON.

WHEN Bernhardt, Nethersole, Mme. Kalich and women of their artistic and emotional capacity picture the Camilles, the Fedoras, the Saphos and other shady personages invariably there is loud outcry made against them.

For one, I recognize the personal opinion that is embodied in theatrical and picture criticism and do not take offense at these frankly expressed critical views when they are not in harmony with my own.

But I think that there are a great many persons who are too ready to denounce a play that depicts life and contains ideas, and also too many persons ready to denounce an actress unless she depicts soft and toneless characters.

Why do people go to see the plays they so heatedly denounce?

Having read all of these people know just what they are going to see in a play or a picture. And when they do go are they not just as open to denunciation as the actors who play in them? Do they not go in an attitude of "looking for trouble," and is not their complaint more frequently because they have not found things as broad as they hoped to find them, rather than that it was worse than they expected?

Remember this always about the theatres and the pictures. They are what their patrons make them—no more, no less. If there are faults in pictures and on the stage the fault must be found with the listener in the orchestra chairs.

Can you have any respect for those smug people who go to see plays or pictures that they know in advance are dealing with risky subjects and come away to pronounce them scandalous or indecent?

As a matter of fact, such plays and pictures are not dreadful, as so many of you are made to believe.

None of us condemn a newspaper as immoral that gives us the news. Should we be horrified by screen or stage that is quite as careful as the great newspapers of all the American cities and towns which print such news each day, of all kinds, as cannot be ignored?

Every day in our favorite newspaper are to be found stories of man's inhumanity to man—and to woman. These are rarely ever stories of the so-called "happy ending." They are stories of life as it is. But the screen and the stage, as real and actual as they try to be, dare not go as far as life itself goes hundreds and thousands of times each day. The dominant note in pictures is the happy ending—but that is not the dominant note in life, or in the news of the day.

I firmly believe it is the part of every newspaper to take sides firmly with the screen producers of America. The newspapers possess freedom guaranteed by the Constitution of the United States. As long as that Constitutional right is upheld, as long as it is sacredly regarded, there can be no abridgment of newspaper power and no curtailment of newspaper usefulness.

VIRGINIA PEARSON

There is the very closest kinship between newspapers and the motion picture screen. In many parts of the country efforts are being made to curb and hamper the makers of pictures. Seemingly, in places, this industry has incurred the enmity and opposition of bigots. Being a part of the life of the screen in America, a permanently employed figure in the activities of this silent stage, I make the definite prediction that if the narrow opponents of motion pictures succeed in abridging and restricting them the next attack that will be made will be on the liberties of the newspapers of this country.

Great movements in America start from small beginnings.

Time was when no one dreamed that the liquor traffic could be so curbed and abridged.

The fight for pure foods began on an infinitesimally small basis.

The fight on narcotics and the labeling of drugs grew overnight and largely accomplished its purposes.

These examples are just examples, nothing more. There is no similarity between them and newspaper freedom or motion picture freedom. But these small and widely separated fights being made here and there against screen liberty of expression, these small storms that blow up occasionally to threaten new curbs for newspapers, are quite liable to be unified and merged some day and spread ruin and destruction in the ranks of our influential publications and among our screen producers.

Nothing could be more senseless or silly or dangerous.

As a close reader of newspapers and one familiar with nearly every influential newspaper in America, I am glad to have this opportunity to call the attention of editors to a peril that should not be ignored or overlooked

BOOK ON CENSOR MENACE PUBLISHED BY GRIFFITH

"The Rise and Fall of Free Speech in America" Shows Dangers of Legalized Censorship.

David Wark Griffith, the noted producer, offers a powerful argument against the censorship of motion pictures in his book, "The Rise and Fall of Free Speech in America," just issued from Los Angeles, Cal. Censorship is attacked by the writer as a violation of the freedom of publication guaranteed by the Constitution of the country and of the States, showing that it springs from intolerance and that the press may be next in line for the muzzle.

The purport of censorship, he points out, is to forbid the portrayal of vice in any form, and, he intimates, that this piece of sophistry and injustice if enforced would preclude the possibility of showing any pictures of value, because the conflict between vice and virtue is the basis of all drama that seeks to portray life.

Included in the book, on alternate pages, are short, incisive arguments against the menace of censorship, illustrated by satiric drawings, showing the absurdity and hypocrisy of the censorious attitude of mind. The late Mayor Gaynor's veto of the New York censorship ordinance, and editorial expressions from newspapers, are quoted.

4-3-16

April 22, 1916

THE NEW YORK PRESS.

FILM HEAD ISSUES DENIAL.

D. W. Griffith Contradicts Assemblyman, Attacks Censor Bill.

D. W. Griffith last night issued a statement denying J. J. McCarthy, general representative of the Griffith interests in New York, ever said he favored the Censorship bill, which the Legislature passed in its closing hours, and added that McCarthy never wrote a letter to Assemblyman Wheeler on any subject. This was his reply to Wheeler's reported assertion on the floor of the Assembly that McCarthy favored the measure.

The producer says the proposed tax of $10 on each thousand feet of film examined and $5 for every duplicate is prohibitive. Pennsylvania having found $2.50 so excessive the rate was cut to $1. He asserts also that the Board of Regents, if it acts as a court of appeal from censors' decisions, will have to spend twenty-four hours a week on the work, to the neglect of its proper function.

EMMA GOLDMAN IN JAIL.

TO GRANT HEARING ON C...

My Telegraph

(Continued From Page 1.)

ever the relation to the legislation to which your letter relates. As you know, the bill has passed the Legislature and is now with the Governor. If the bill is approved by the Governor, the Board of Regents will, of course, meet such responsibility as the statute places upon it.

"Very truly yours,

"Thos. E. Finegan."

Letter to Dr. Finley.

The Board of Trade's letter to Dr. J. H. Finley read:

"April 15, 1916.

"Dear Sir—We have this day telegraphed the Hon. Pliny T. Sexton, chancellor of the university, and the Hon. William Nottingham, chairman of the regents' committee on legislation, urgently requesting on behalf of the motion picture industry that they accord the Board of Trade a hearing by the Board of Regents with reference to the enactment of the so-called Cristman-Wheeler motion picture censorship bill.

"The purpose of the hearing which we respectfully request is to inform the board of the character of the duties which would devolve upon its members in the event that the bill in question became a law, in the hope of inducing the board to see that the new duties which the act would impose upon the board are wholly foreign to the purposes for which the Board of Regents was organized and now exists.

"Not being familiar with the procedure usually followed in such matters, we took occasion to communicate not only with you, but with the gentlemen named. We beg to inclose for your information copies of the telegram which we have sent both Mr. Sexton and Mr. Nottingham.

"We respectfully request you to urge the Board of Regents to accord the hearing we have asked for. Very truly yours,

"J. W. Binder,

"Executive Secretary.

"Hon. John H. Finley, President of the University and Commissioner of Education, Albany, N. Y."

The Cristman-Wheeler censorship bill, after various amendments, was finally passed by the Assembly on April 19. It was rumored that there was an understanding among the members of the Senate not to concur in the amendments adopted in the Assembly, but through some arrangement the plan failed and the Senators came out strongly in its favor.

Says It Is a Bad Bill.

Senator Argetsinger in a speech opposed the measure, saying as now drawn it is a bad bill, and in his opinion the amendment which exempts a certain class of machine and films made it a bad piece of legislation for the reason that no fees will be charged for the examination of films manufactured by a certain motion picture concern.

"Which to my mind," said the Senator, "is a great injustice to other motion picture producing firms."

Senator Walters also objected to the bill as now drawn, saying that a great light had dawned upon him and he could now see why the Perlman amendment had been incorporated in the bill.

Senator Brown, leader of the majority, favored the bill and characterized it a good one for the State. The revenue is said to be about $2,000,000 a year.

Wheeler Defends Measure.

In the discussion on the measure Mr. Wheeler took the floor first. He proceeded to explain the merits of his proposed legislation for a State Board of C... appointed by the State ...

Mr. Wheeler was ... a letter from J. W. ... Picture Board of Trade ... ter conceded that the fee for the ... tion of films as provided in the ... not excessive.

Mr. Binder denied ... letter, and in a letter ... Wheeler said, in part:

"As you well know, I never ... such letter and never ... any such statement. In ... through the iniquitous Cristman ... censorship bill at the last ... that, if the newspapers ... resorted to misrepresentation and ... falsehood."

Thinks Bill Unworkable.

Assemblyman Powers admitted ... tion pictures should be censored, but ... the Cristman-Wheeler bill ... be unworkable, and that the Board of Regents would not appoint an efficient ... to adequately examine all the ... duced or exhibited in this State ... furthermore, each city should ... own pictures as does the city of ... ter, which involves no expense, ... being under the Department of ... Safety.

Assemblyman Taylor of Brooklyn ... against the bill, saying that he ... posed to the State Department of ... tion having any further control ... tional positions.

Assemblyman Bush said: "The bill ... good in some respects but ... some of its provisions."

Pass Salary Bill.

Following the passage of the bill ... both branches of the Legislature ... passed Senator Cristman's bill ... ing $48,000 to pay salaries and ... of the State Board of Motion Picture ... sors, as provided for in the Cristman-Wheeler bill. The board, which is ... prise three members, to be appointed ... the State Board of Regents ... a salary of $4,000 each. They ... lect three agents at $3,000 each ... stenographers at $900. The ... lars is to be used for other expenses ... Board of Censors.

Film Men Indignant.

Film men throughout the State ... been stirred to indignation ... the terms of the bill ... termed "unfair methods employed ... ing it through the General Assembly.

According to the terms of the ... tax of $10 will be levied ... sand feet of film examined by the ... posed board and an additional ... for every duplicate of the original ... that is so examined. The bill also ... vides that in cases of an appeal ... decision of the Board of Censors ... Board of Regents shall act as ... last resort.

Statements attributed to ... Wheeler to the contrary notwithstanding ... the various heads of the motion ... industry were among the first ... a unit, almost, that they ... pressing their approval of the ... slides J. W. Binder's denial ... who produced "The Birth of a ... and J. M. McCarthy, manager ... ture, entered indignant protests.

J. M. McCarthy, general manager ... W. Griffith, denies that he wrote ... Assemblyman Wheeler favoring ... ship bill just passed.

Wheeler was quoted in the press ... Thursday as saying he had ... a letter.

Mr. McCarthy is indignant over ... representation and has sent a ... which the following is a part, ... Whitman:

"Hon. Charles S. Whitman,

Albany, N. Y.:

"Sir,—In the proceedings ... in the Assembly and Senate ... Cristman-Wheeler bill, ... State Board of Censors for motion ... productions, I note that ... Wheeler, in his speech ... passage of the bill and ... before the General Assembly, ... an alleged letter from me ... represented to the Assembly ... in favor of the bill. I wish ... that neither personally nor in ... capacity as representative of ... Griffith, have I written ... nature to Mr. Wheeler. ... met Mr. Wheeler in the ... there informed him ... Griffith and myself, I would ... that we were opposed to ... motion picture on the same ... lican grounds that we were ... sorship of the press, the stage, ... or any of the arts.

"I make this statement ... evidence of the unfair methods ... employed to rush the bill ... Assembly and Senate at the ...

Big Job for Regents.

"The most important point in the ... lating to the provisions that ...

LESS CENSORSHIP NOW FOR CHICAGO

Corporation Counsel Ettelson Declares Chief of Police Healey Is Censor Under Existing Law.

MEANS LIBERAL POLICY

(Special Correspondence The Morning Telegraph.)

CHICAGO, April 21.

The moving picture producers, theatre owners and the general public are rejoicing here to-day over the lifting of the strict censorship of films that has been in force in the city for many months.

The submission by Corporation Counsel Ettelson of an opinion to Mayor Thompson, in which it was held that Chief of Police Charles C. Healey and not Major M. L. C. Funkhouser, second deputy superintendent of police, has the full authority to pass on motion picture plays under the prevailing city ordinances, was the cause of the rejoicing. The opinion means that censorship in the future will be more liberal.

It was pointed out to-day by a city official that the new order of censorship does not mean that the bars are to be let down utterly, or that any sort of a play may be shown. It does mean, however, that more discrimination in the ordering of "cut out" will be displayed, and that every little incident in a filmed drama that involves the use of firearms or depictions of crimes will not be ordered cut out, as at present.

W YORK AMERICAN—
RIDAY, APRIL 21, 1916

LM LEADERS RGE VETO OF ENSOR BILL

ristman-Wheeler Measure Is Called Compromise with Falsehood and Political Chicanery

f Governor Whitman signs the ristman-Wheeler bill providing for tate censorship of motion picture s he will be making a compromise ich Binder declared the fee charged reason of the tactics of Assembly- n Wheeler."

This statement was made last night J. W. Binder, executive secretary the Motion Picture Board of Trade America.

In dispatches from Albany, Assemyman Wheeler was quoted as read- g a letter from J. W. Binder, in hich Binedr declared the fee charged the State for examination of films as not too large.

INDER'S CHALLENGE.

Mr. Binder sent a letter to Assemyman Wheeler yesterday declaring never wrote such a letter, and that has been biterly opposed to the nsorship bill.

"I make the broad statement, and hallenge contradiction, that fourths of the people of the State of ew York are opposed to pre-publicity nsorship of motion pictures by a oard of politicians, such as Senator hristman and Assemblyman Wheeler ave in mind."

D. W. Griffith also issued a statenent last night denying that his genral manager, J. J. McCarthy, had poken in favor of the censorship neasure, as Assemblyman Wheeler is uoted. Mr. Griffith said:

"This bill is as unfair to the prolucing managers of motion pictures s were the methods employed in ushing it through the Senate and Assembly.

"It provides for a tax of $10 for very thousand feet of film examined y the censors, and $5 fee for every uplicate of the original film.

CALLS TAX PROHIBITIVE.

"This charge is unquestionably proibitive. In Pennsylvania the State Board charged $2.50 for each thousand feet, but soon found this charge excessive, and it was reduced to $1.

"This bill is now before Governor Whitman for final action. It is un-American, and prohibitive in the charge placed on the manufacture of films. We appeal to the press to represent the facts to the people."

E. A. McManus, general manager of the International Film Service, said:

"The status of the film is analogous to that of the newspapers or magazines. No one has the right to say in advance what should be censored or passed.

"We have a free press, and as the motion picture is analogous with the newspapers we should not have a censorship."

Evening Telegraph
NEW YORK, FRIDAY,
APRIL 21, 1916

FILM MEN DIDN'T LAUD CENSOR BILL

Leading Men of Motion Picture Industry Indignant at Legislator's Alleged Statement.

E IS A BURDEN, SAYS BINDER

Statements attributed to Assemblyman Wheeler to the contrary notwithstanding, the various heads of the motion picture organizations of the State united yesterday in declaring they did not send letters to that legislator expressing their approval of the censors bill, which was passed on Wednesday night at Albany. Leading exponents of the film industry, including J. W. Binder, executive secretary of the Motion Picture Board of Trade; D. W. Griffith, who produced "The Birth of a Nation," and J. M. McCarthy, manager of that screen enterprise, were among those who issued indignant denials yesterday that they had written Mr. Wheeler or any other legislators commending the bill.

Mr. Binder sent the following letter to Assemblyman Wheeler last night:

"Hon. Heber R. Wheeler, Assembly Chamber, Albany, N. Y.

"Dear Sir—In the Albany dispatches to-day you are reported as reading a 'letter from J. W. Binder of the Motion Picture Board of Trade, in which the latter conceded that the fee for the examination of films as provided in the bill was not excessive.'

"As you well know, I never wrote any such letter and never thought of making any such statement. In your effort to jam through the iniquitous Cristman-Wheeler censorship bill at the last moment, it seems that, if the newspapers report truly, you resorted to misrepresentation and absolute falsehood. Yours truly,

"J. W. Binder."

Later in the evening Mr. Binder amplified his views on the censors bill, which now only needs the signature of Governor Whitman to become a law.

"If Governor Whitman signs the Cristman-Wheeler bill," Mr. Binder said, "he will be making a compromise with falsehood and political chicanery, by reason of the tactics of Assemblyman Wheeler. The bill, it is figured, will cost the motion picture industry of the State $300,000 a year directly; it will cost the people much more in loss of wholesome entertainment and the right to govern themselves. The tax on the young industry is overwhelmingly unjust and in-

(Continued on Page 2, Col. 1.)

THE SUN, FRIDAY,
APRIL 21, 1916.

FILM MAKERS WILL FIGHT CENSOR LAW

Unfair Means Alleged in Rushing the Measure Through the Legislature.

WHITMAN'S VETO ASKED

The Cristman-Wheeler bill enacted by the Legislature, establishing a State board of moving picture censors, to be appointed by the Board of Regents, has stirred film men throughout the State to indignation, not alone over the terms of the bill but what is called the "unfair methods employed in rushing it through the General Assembly."

According to the terms of the bill a tax of $10 will be levied for every thousand feet of film examined by the proposed board and an additional fee of $5 for every duplicate of the original film that is so examined. The bill also provides that in cases of an appeal from the decision of the Board of Censors, the Board of Regents shall act as the court of last resort.

As a result of such terms, which the picture manufacturers and directors maintain are beyond all reason, petitions are pouring in upon Gov. Whitman demanding that he veto the bill. The fight here is being led by William A. Brady, D. W. Griffith and other large film producers.

"The prohibitive nature of the fees to be charged as provided in the proposed new law," said Mr. Griffith yesterday, "would mean that the manufacturers, to meet the increased cost, would have to charge the exhibitors a higher price. The exhibitor, in turn, would be forced to raise the prices of admission to motion picture theatres.

"The bill is now before the Governor for final action. It is un-American, prohibitive in the charge placed upon the manufacturer of films and unfair in its thrusting on an honorable body like the Board of Regents the responsiblity of deciding appeals from the decision of censors, of which there would be many. The Board of Regents has neither the time nor the inclination to cope with such an undertaking."

Other motion picture men took a similar attitude. William A. Brady was of the opinion that pictures do not need censorship, asserting that the American public in the long run would refuse to accept pictures of questionable morality or inferior manufacture. The Motion Picture Board of Trade and other organizations which have fought against the passage of the bill are using every method to prevent it becoming a law.

Dep. Apl. 21

HE EVENING POST:

W. GRIFFITH ISSUES DENIAL.

s He Was Not in Favor of Motion Picture Bill.

. W. Griffith issued to-day a formal lial that either he or J. J. McCarthy, eral manager of his interests, speakfor him, had eevr favored the stman-Wheeler bill, providing for cenship of motion-picture films, which, ording to Mr. Griffith, has been "jamd through the Legislature at Albany." wo reasons which Mr. Griffith gives opposing the bill are that it provides a tax on films, which is "unquesably prohibitive," and that it places the Board of Regents duties and rensibilities which that Board has not time to assume.

LICE LIEUTENANTS PROMOTED.

Journal Ham 23
Rec'd Apl 21 Mailer
4/21/16

D. W. Griffith announced last night that the statement made by Assemblyman Wheeler, quoting J. J. McCarthy, Mr. Griffith's general manager, as favoring the censorship bill, was false and unfair. Mr. Griffith and his entire organization are opposed to the bill, which they consider unfair and un-American.

FEATURES OF STAPLE MARKETS

April 24-1916

THE MORNING TELEGRAPH, MONDAY,

MANY WILL ASK VETO ON FILM CENSORSHIP BILL

Moving Picture Theatre Audiences Requested to Sign Petition to Governor—100,000 Signatures Desired and Expected.

A good part of Greater New York's moving picture houses yesterday, through screen slide and oral announcements urged their patrons to sign a petition to Governor Whitman that was circulated among the audiences asking him not to sign the Cristman-Wheeler film censor bill that last Wednesday, after winning the indorsement of the State Senate, was passed by the Assembly by a vote of 87 to 37.

The petition is anti-censor propaganda of the Paragon Films (Inc.), which is released through the World Film Corporation, of which William A. Brady is president. Many thousands of signatures were appended to the Brady protest yesterday. By the end of the week it is confidently asserted at least 100,000 names will be lined up for presentation to the Governor.

Next Wednesday a group of Paragon film stars, led by Doris Keynon, will visit Albany and formally present to the Governor the signatures obtained by that time, and tender the assurance of the full 100,000 within the ensuing ten days.

The Paragon-Brady protest is, in part, as follows:

"Believing that the Cristman-Wheeler moving picture censor bill, which passed the Assembly, can serve no good purpose and that its establishment as a law through virtue of your signature would work ultimately to the injury of every moving picture patron in the State of New York, every player engaged in film presentation throughout the United States and elsewhere, every manufacturer of films, every producer of photo-plays, and every person whose livelihood is dependent upon the reasonable profit of an industry that ranks fourth among the commodities, we earnestly request that you veto said Cristman-Wheeler measure for the following reasons."

Among the reasons enumerated are these:

That the censorship aimed at is covered in effect by the penal code statutes governing regular theatrical performances;

That the five-dollar tax on 500 feet of film is without precedent and exorbitant to a degree not even remotely approached by the censor tariffs of other States; and that the margin of profit for producers of motion picture plays is now so small because of many and complex conditions that the measure must resolve into a great added hardship.

The signers were: Wm. A. Brady, Maurice Tourneur, Frank Hall Crane, Albert Capellani, Robert Thornby, Kitty Gordon, Alice Brady, House Peters, Mollie King, Doris Kenyon, Gail Kane, June Elvidge, Barbara Tennant, George Cowl, Edward Corbett, W. G. Bellew, Albert Dorris, Francois Doublier, J. Bezeul, Harry Haskin, A. G. Honey, C. L. Brown, John Van den Broek, Edmund Mortimer, Sol Polito, Lucien Andriot, John O'Mara, George Ingleton, Mrs. George Ingleton, Ben Carre and Barry Conzelman.

PROTESTS AGAINST OVER-CENSORSHIP

The follow letter on film censorship is self-explanatory:

Editor The Morning Telegraph:

We note the article published in the press recently quoting the views of Theodore Mitchel, New York representative of D. W. Griffith, on censorship, as against the attitude of the Mark Strand Theatre Company on this subject.

We have watched with keen interest for years the career and work of David W. Griffith in his chosen field. To him, more than any other man, the motion picture industry owes a lasting debt of gratitude. Too much cannot be said in praise of Griffith's elevating influence. He is to the producing end of the business what the Strand Theatre of New York is to the exhibiting end.

We therefore view with surprise his attitude on Federal censorship, as no one has less to fear from intelligent censorship than David W. Griffith. We do not recollect any work from this source that would not stand the test of strictest censorship. "The Birth of a Nation" had its troubles in some sections of the country for entirely different reasons.

Would Censor Press.

We hear much and read much of usurpation of American rights; striking the very roots of the principles of the foundation of our Government, free this, free that, free everything, and a great deal more twaddle along similar lines. If it were possible for a newspaper or magazine to illustrate to the life a brutal murder, or vicious or immoral act, how long would it be before rigid censorship would be applied to the newspaper or magazine, or anything else that tends to demoralize or degrade that portion of the public that is susceptible to such influences?

To our minds the main pressure we must bring to bear is to regulate censorship as censorship regulates us. In other words, we are now in process of being over-censored. If a form of entertainment must pass through the gamut of different boards of censors in the forty-eight States of the Union, which now seems imminent, we are likely to have forty-eight different versions of the same production. Therefore, does it not, on the face of it, look reasonable that the best friend we have to turn to is a Board of Federal Censorship, made up of the material referred to in our former article on this subject.

Producers to Blame.

We repeat, most of the producers are themselves to blame for the present unhappy situation. It is a mistake to think that the business cannot thrive unless fed with immoral and so-called vampire subjects. A few producers and some of their special productions have given the worst offense.

Follow the methods of Griffith and D'Annunzio and censor boards will not be the bugaboo that looms up before us. They will have naught but art to feed on, and art does not fill an empty stomach. Correct the present abuses, and in course of time the activities of censor boards will be curbed and should die of inanition.

The Mark-Strand Theatre Company,
By Mitchel H. Mark, President.
New York, April 23, 1916.

April 24. 1916

NEW YORK TIMES.

TO FIGHT MOVIE CENSORS.

Actress Will Present a Petition to the Governor.

Motion picture interests opposed to the Cristman-Wheeler bill to establish a State Board of Censors for motion pictures passed by the Legislature and awaiting the signature of Governor Whitman are organizing protests against the affixing of the Governor's signature. In the Forty-fourth Street Theatre tonight Cranston Brenton, Chairman of the National Board of Review of Motion Pictures, will explain some of the vagaries of the workings of separate State boards. Doris Kenyon, a picture actress, will go to Albany Wednesday with a petition asking the Governor to withhold his signature. The petition has already been signed by many men prominent in the industry, and it is asserted by Miss Kenyon that she will have 100,000 signatures when she presents her petition. This sets forth that the cost of censorship will eventually be paid by the movie patron.

Mitchell Mark, President of the Strand Theatre Company, issued a statement yesterday, in which he expressed himself in favor of Federal censorship as opposed to that by State boards. Mr. Mark said the solution of the problem rested with the producers, who could make any kind of censorship superfluous. He characterized as twaddle the assertion of some opponents that censorship of films was a usurpation of rights.

GREEN ROOM CLUB'S SHOW.

April 24-16

TO BEG WHITMAN TO VETO THE MOVIE TAX

Motion Picture Actors and Actresses Will Carry a Big Petition to the Governor.

A delegation of motion picture actors and actresses will carry to Albany Wednesday a petition asking Gov. Whitman to veto the Cristman-Wheeler bill providing for a State Board of Motion Picture Censors and taxing each 500 feet of film $5.

Miss Doris Kenyon hopes to present the petition to Gov. Whitman in person. The list of signatures is headed by that of William A. Brady, part owner of the Paragon Films, Inc.

Copies of the petition were circulated in 700 picture theatres in Greater New York Saturday and 100,000 signatures are hoped for. According to the movie men the public will have to pay the tax through increased rates of admission.

The National Board of Review of Motion Pictures (formerly the National Board of Censorship) will begin a series of meetings to protest against the bill this evening at the Forty-fourth Street Theatre, with Chairman Cranston Brenton the principal speaker. The board estimates the tax would amount to $500,000 a year and would raise the price of admission to movie houses to a "prohibitive figure."

Morning Telegraph
Apr 26

WHITMAN TO HEAR FILM MEN MAY 11

Governor Sets Date for Public Protest Against Cristman-Wheeler Censorship Bill.

REGENTS OPPOSE MEASURE

(Special Dispatch to The Morning Telegraph.)

ALBANY, April 25.

Governor Whitman to-night announced that he had decided upon Thursday, May 11, as the day when he will hold in the Executive Chamber a public hearing upon the Cristman-Wheeler motion picture censorship bill, which is before him either to be signed or vetoed.

All the large motion picture producing concerns have filed with the Governor their objections to this bill and desire to appear before him for the purpose of making their position known plainly before he takes final action.

It is said that the Governor has expressed the opinion that this bill, providing for a State Board of Motion Picture Censors, is not a good one, inasmuch as a million dollars may be collected annually by the Board of Censors to be selected by the Board of Regents, and that the Department of Education should not have charge of a revenue measure.

Also there is no more reason, he believes, why a censorship should involve the motion picture theatre than any other theatre. Another reason is said to be that the Governor ought to have the responsibility of appointing the Board of Censors instead of the Board of Regents.

The State Board of Regents will hold a meeting here on Thursday, when the matter of the appointment of a State Board of Censors will be taken up and thoroughly discussed. A representative of the board will attend the hearing arranged by Governor Whitman and may request the Governor not to sign the Cristman-Wheeler measure. The hearing will be held at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon.

It is said that the Board of Regents finds in the bill several features which are likely to involve their board in complications, which would be decidedly objectionable. One of these is that they would be drawn into legal controversy through court actions to decide what constitutes objectionable films. There are still other provisions of the bill which meet with the disfavor of the Board of Regents.

It is said the Regents were not consulted by the members of the Legislature or the advocates of the bill.

Telegraph
Apr 26

Post & Sentinel
Gettysburg
Washington Post
Times

CITY RULERS CAN'T BAR "NATION'S BIRTH"

Commissioners Answer All Protests Against Film, Saying They Have No Power to Act

That they are without authority to act is the statement made by the Commissioners today in answer to protests recently filed by colored residents against the presentation in Washington of the photoplay, "The Birth of a Nation."

A similar answer, it was said, will be given a committee of twenty-five appointed at a meeting of colored citizens in the Metropolitan Baptist Church last night to petition the board for a hearing. The Commissioners' stand is based on an opinion of the Corporation Counsel.

Resolutions adopted at the meeting last night set forth that the play "is bound to prove hurtful in its effect upon the morals of the community and is sure to engender strife and ill-will between the white and colored peoples of this city."

The Commissioners are asked, in the event such action is deemed necessary, to seek immediate legislation from Congress conferring on them authority to keep out of the District "public exhibitions of every character which seek to misrepresent or belittle any race or class of citizens, or which shall tend to stir up strife and ill will between races or classes of persons in this country."

It was decided to send copies to President Wilson, the Commissioners, and members of Congress. The committee of twenty-five appointed to present the resolutions to the Commissioners consists of Revs. H. Powell, M. W. Norman, W. D. Jarvis, Frank Washington, Joseph H. Lee, W. B. Johnson, B. H. Steptoe, E. E. Wiseman, J. Milton Waldron, and James F. Gregory, together with Dr. G. H. Cabaniss, Dr. W. H. Jackson, F. B. Moore, John W. Lewis, J. F. Wilson, E. B. Powell, Prof. Jesse Lawson, S. P. Walker, G. H. Oliver, W. O. Blackburn, Joseph Manning, F. P. Lee, and A. K. Harris.

The Rev. J. Milton Waldron presided. Addresses were made by the Rev. M. W. Norman, S. L. Corrothers, W. H. Jernogin, W. W. McCray, and Prof. Jesse Lawson.

—:o:—

CONDEMNS PICTURE PLAY AS UNFAIR TO NORTH

Virginian Voices Positive Disapproval of "The Birth of a Nation" in Letter to Gettysburg Friend

The subject appropriateness of the appearance of the picture play "The Birth of a Nation" in a Gettysburg playhouse, now provoking much comment in the town, is enlightened by the views of a representative man of the south who has seen the picture and who is broad enough to measure its value. Mr. W. P. Campbell, of Roanoke, Va., has been a frequent visitor to Gettysburg and has formed a number of acquaintances here. He is an intelligent man and on occasion of his last visit last fall engaged in conversation with a town man on general topics, during which this picture play was discussed. Following his return to his home, in a letter to his friend dated Dec. 18, 1915, Mr. Campbell referred to the subject as follows:

"I notice "The Birth of a Nation", which was here some time ago, is to appear during the Holidays. I must confess, while a part of the scenery is beautiful, that I do not approve of the entire play scene. It is out of place—out of date. Neither do I think it a proper treatment of the North. I know one thing: Suppose "Uncle Tom's Cabin" were sent down South; we would go into convulsions. So, then, do not send something North, that we would condemn as a partisan play if sent here. Do unto the other section as we would have that section do unto us."

Sounds like a positive indictment of the show from a fair-minded man.

EVENING JOURNAL
NEW YORK, APRIL 29, 1916

EDITORIAL PAGE OF THE

THE CRISTMAN BILL—WHAT IT IS

This bill which is before the Governor of the State is called a censorship bill.

It is in reality a graft bill and a blackmail bill.

It is a bill that selects a certain body of citizens engaged in important, legitimate EDUCATIONAL WORK, AND MARKS THEM OUT AS MEN ESPECIALLY TO BE WATCHED AND MISTRUSTED.

This Cristman bill professes to aim at pure morals.

The moving picture industry is one of the most important industries, and one of the most important and useful professions in the country. The fact that it is new is not a good excuse for harassing it with restrictions, limitations and suspicions that do not apply to other business.

Every enterprise can be conducted in two ways—good and bad.

It is not usual or reasonable to assume that a certain body of men are so prone to evil as to make it necessary for each to prove in every instance, before making a move, that his intentions are not vicious.

An artist is not required to take his painting before a special committee and get approval before exhibiting the painting. We take it for granted that the average artist is a self-respecting human being and allow him to proceed according to law—punishing him when he violates the law.

What reason is there for treating otherwise a man who has millions invested in moving pictures, who is giving employment to hundreds, entertainment to hundreds of thousands?

An immoral book is infinitely more dangerous than an immoral picture, because it can be read in secret, distributed secretly, free from observation.

Yet men are allowed to use the printing press, allowed to write and print in books and in newspapers what they choose—subject to punishment if they violate the law or publish harmful matter to morals.

The man who intends to write a book must not first go before a number of "censors" and ask permission to print what is written.

The law says to him, "You know what is right and what the law is. Obey the law, or be punished when we learn that you have broken it."

What good reason is there for treating otherwise men engaged in the motion picture industry?

There is no single reason—unless it be based upon the desire for graft, extortion or the exercise of favoritism—to be advanced in favor of this so-called "Cristman bill."

The bill would give to a few men the opportunity to discriminate against certain enterprising citizens in favor of others.

It would give to a few the opportunity to collect blackmail. For the censorship could utterly ruin a man without apparent discrimination against him, merely keeping him waiting in doubt. And thus it could compel a man to pay any price for fair treatment.

In one important direction, the censorship would utterly destroy the value—and perhaps the highest value—of the moving pictures.

It would prevent the use of the moving pictures in connection with ACTUAL NEWS.

News is news no more after it is a few hours old.

With a board of censors busy—out of town, down late and home early—it would not be possible to secure approval of news pictures in time to give them any value.

They would be news no longer, utterly worthless after the slow processes of censorship red tape.

Last, and most serious of all, as was pointed out by the editor of this newspaper at a public gathering some time since, CENSORSHIP WOULD PROTECT DISHONEST POLITICIANS FROM THE MOST POWERFUL WEAPON THAT THREATENS THEM.

The moving picture will be the great political weapon used by the people.

More vividly than any speech, any editorial, any cartoon, the moving picture will present conditions to the minds of the people.

The overworked factory girl, working on the screen, and then the owner of the factory and the politician whom he owns, riding home together in an automobile, paid for by the public—that kind of a picture will figure in campaigns to come.

This Cristman bill if it became a law would make it necessary for politicians, controlled by some other bigger politician, to give their sweet approval to political moving pictures before they could be shown.

What chance would the public have, if speeches, editorials, news articles and cartoons in political campaigns had to be "censored" by some man in office before being issued to the public?

This system would be pleasing to many politicians. Many a man trying to be RE-ELECTED would dislike to see his first term on a moving picture screen.

We take it for granted that Governor Whitman will not sign the Cristman bill for the reasons we repeat.

It opens a new field of graft and blackmail.

It assumes evil intentions on the part of one particular class of citizens, and is therefore shameful class legislation.

It is an interference against free expression of thought and ideas, and free dissemination of news.

It is undemocratic.

THE MORNING
GRAPH, SATURDAY, APRIL 29, 1916.

OX LETTER TO GOVERNOR ONTAINS GOOD ARGUMENTS

lm Magnate Asks Gov. Whitman to Consider the Facts Contained Before He Signs the Cristman-Wheeler Censorship Bill.

By GORDON TRENT.

he following letter, which speaks for ffi was sent to Governor Whitman William Fox:

orable Charles S. Whitman, overnor,
State of New York, Albany N. Y.

ear Sir—There is now before your llency a legislative enactment pop- ly known as the Cristman-Wheeler sorship Bill.

owner of twenty-two picture thea- and president of a large motion pic- producing corporation, I petition Excellency not to sign this measure. t is a most serious burden and ace not only to the great film indus- of this State, but to the thousands property owners who have their ey invested in motion picture thea-s a motion picture exhibitor, it has my experience that the public itself he most effective censor of motion ures. Those exhibitors in the past have been foolish enough to por- offensive pictures, have learned to sorrow that pictures of that char- r are ruinous to their business.

he motion picture is a new vehicle expression—alike in character to e other recognized mediums of ex- sion—the press and speech. The two er mediums are free from pre-pub- y. In other words one may say thing one likes; one may print or e printed anything one likes. Then, course, one is responsible after utter- e or publication. If what one says prints is libelous or indecent or ob- ne, he or she is amenable to the law. may be punished provided the charge proven in a court of law.

This new vehicle of expression—the tion picture—if subjected to pre-pub- y censorship, as called for in the stman-Wheeler bill, is the victim of rimination. If subjected to pre-pub- y. In other words, one may say s should be equally subjected to pre- licity censorship—for the three are e, fundamentally.

There are voluminous arguments inst State censorship, and I will not den you with enumerating them all. e, and perhaps the most important wever, aside from that which I have erred to above, is that the protection the morals of the public is a function tinctly of communities—cities and wns—rather than the legitimate func- n of the State itself.

The State, of course, has a certain po- power that it can exert in particular es. Censorship for motion pictures, wever, is not one of those functions. e protection of the morals of a com- nity is provided for already in the con- tution and character of every munici- lity in New York State.

Another argument against State cen- ship which has doubtless occurred to r Excellency is the danger of political trol of such censorship board In er words State censorship may open way to and encourage graft.

The motion picture is now recognized a medium of propaganda. "The Bat- Cry of Peace" is a frank argument national preparedness. Should State sorship prevail there might be the nger of a State censor board disap- ving the doctrine of preparedness. In t event it is not illogical to suppose t the State censor board would pre- t the showing of such a picture, al- ugh there were nothing immoral or in cent or obscene in the production.

If there must be official censorship er than that of the public itself, it is earnest belief that the most effective m of such official censorship would a Federal measure, making uniform standard of motion picture censor- p throughout the nation.

The present tendency toward State sorship imposes a manifold financia rden upon the motion picture pro- cers. The censorship fee that is pro ed by the Cristman-Wheeler bill wil pose a ruinous hardship upon an in stry already heavily taxed. This pro ed fee of $10 per 1,000-foot reel, fo ch original, and $5 per 1,000-foot re r each duplicate will result in drivin any motion picture production com nies out of New York State, as they uld not possibly exist under such a inous tax.

I trust that your Excellency will give reful consideration to the censorship asure that is now before you, and that u will take into consideration the facts at are enumerated above. Very truly ours, (Signed) William Fox, President Fox Film Corporation.

future of the Lasky and Famous Players interests, which the Lasky head emphatically negatives.

"I have read the stories in the newspapers,' said Mr. Goldfish, "and wish to say that the Lasky Company has no intention of releasing its productions through any other concern than the Paramount Pictures Corporation. The merger in which the Lasky Company is concerned is one of production only, and the marketing of its films will not be affected in any way."

4/29-16

PICTURE PLAY HAS NO APPEAL TO VETERANS

(Contributed).

Why is a moving picture show now being extensively advertised to appear in Gettysburg on May 1st, called "The Birth of a Nation"? When all sane men, both North and South, know full well that if the 'Lost Cause', (lost because it was born in the regions of the lost), had won out it would have been death to this glorious nation? We have been told by those who witnessed this show that all the scenes thrown on the screen laud, honor and magnify those who conspired against the life of this Nation, and hold up to the gaze of the public the men who fought under a bastard flag in an unhallowed cause, as the most gallant and patriotic specimens of mankind. And those who stood faithfully and loyally for one country and one flag, as utterly dissolute and depraved, and those of us who fought victoriously for an everlasting Union and for Universal Freedom, as the very lowest types of men, with only the instincts of brutish beasts, whereas, this army in blue which fought under Old Glory, as a class, were the most intelligent, moral, clean-heartmen who ever formed battle lines on this globe.

If you are a descendent or in any way connected with any one of the 3200 splendid young men who responded to the call of our Country in her hour of sorest need from this little county of ours, do not patronize a show so false to history.

"Our thin and tottering line of the Grand Army, are calling on all patriotic organizations and all of our loyal hearted people, men, women and children to help to decorate the graves of those who gave all they had and were for the salvation of our Republic and keep the 30th day of May sacred as a National Sabbath day in memory of our heroic dead. And for this reason do not dishonor their memory by adding your presence to those who are entire strangers to a single patriotic heart throb."

Still true to my oath taken under the dear old flag,

MONDAY, MAY 1, 1916.
NEW YORK HERALD.

"Movie" Actress as Goddess to Oppose Censorship Bill

Miss Evelyn Mansfield to Appear in Mythological Role at Motion Picture Exposition.

Prometheus bound was a myth, but Mettuccep manacled will be a real personage at the Grand Central Palace this week, beginning this afternoon, when a motion picture exposition will be opened there. What Prometheus might have done to the Cristman-Wheeler Censorship bill were he a live god and unbound, Mettuccep, who is to represent a composite incarnation of nine Grecian feminine divinities, hopes to do.

Mettuccep, by the way, in everyday life is Miss Evelyn Mansfield, of No. 10 West Sixty-fifth street, a motion picture actress. She was selected yesterday from a group of young women as the most likely personification of Melpomene, Terpsichore, Thalia and a half dozen other young women of the social register of mythology.

At the exhibition Miss Mansfield will be encumbered by a papier-maché ball and chain, handcuff and manicles. A make-believe State Board of Censors will hold the other ends of the chains binding the "movie" muse. Its members will be made up to represent Bigotry, Intolerance and Cruelty. Miss Mansfield will not be gagged, for her mission will be to obtain signatures to a petition to Governor Whitman requesting him to veto the Cristman-Wheeler bill passed by the State Senate and Assembly.

Mettuccep will have a court of minor goddesses, consisting of Misses Grace McEntee, Belle Parnell, Pearl Brown, Margaret Friscella, Hazel Boone, Daisy Egan, Françoise Miersoir, Alice Kelly, Ethel Lesney and Ruth Healey.

MISS EVELYN MANSFIELD. PHOTO BY HALL STUDIO

Times 5/1-16

THIRD MOVIE EXPOSITION.

Fight on the Censorship Bill Will Be Pushed at It.

The third motion-picture exposition under the auspices of the Exhibitors' League will begin this afternoon at 2 o'clock in Grand Central Palace. A special program will launch the exposition, the feature being music by the Strand Orchestra. A part of each day's receipts will be given to some charity. The British War Relief Association will be today's beneficiary.

The fight of the picture interests against the Cristman-Wheeler censorship bill will be pushed through the medium of the exposition. A beautiful young woman has been engaged to enroll the names of visitors to the fair who are opposed to the passage of the bill. An attempt is being made to have 100,000 signatures to the petition to forward to Governor Whitman by May 11.

A second exposition to be given under the auspices of the Motion Picture Board of Trade will be opened next Saturday at Madison Square Garden.

May 7-16

ASK CENSORSHIP VOTE.

100,000 Ballots Against Measure Expected at Exposition.

The International Film Service, Inc., is maintaining at its booth at the exposition of the Exhibitors' League, a ballot box into which visitors are requested to drop their votes upon the subject of censorship. These will be collected at the conclusion of the affair and sent to Governor Whitman in one lot.

It is expected that 100,000 votes will be registered in that time, which will form a powerful argument against censorship, for it is assumed that the majority will be opposed to the Cristman-Wheeler measure now in the hands of the Governor for his signature.

WEDNESDAY MORNING, MAY 3, 1916.
PUBLIC OPINION, CHAMBERSBURG, PA.

ABOUT ITS CREATOR

David Wark Griffith who startled the world with his wonderful combination of film and operatic drama called "The Birth of a Nation" is a native of Kentucky. He began his public career as an extra actor in a Louisville stock company. He also studied Grand Opera and developed a splendid baritone voice. He became interested in pictures as a scenario writer, but the technical side of the work fascinated him. In less than three years from his first entrance into a motion picture studio he was a promising figure of American directors. His numerous inventions and his wonderful judgment soon placed him at the forefront of the ranks. He is recognized as the greatest director of motion picture productions in the world today. He has gained this eminence in seven years and commands the largest salary ever paid a director of any amusement enterprise in this country.

SATURDAY, MAY 6, 1916
MORNING TELEGRAPH,

TO DEFER CENSOR BILL.

Federal Measure Not to Be Introduced Until Next Week.

(Special Dispatch to The Morning Telegraph.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 5.—Representative Hughes of Georgia, chairman of the House Committee on Education, informed The Morning Telegraph correspondent to-night that the Federal Motion Picture Censorship bill, in its modified form, will not be introduced in the House of Representatives until Monday. It will be referred to the Educational Committee, which has already voted to favorably report the bill to the House.

"It will take me several days to draft the report to be submitted to the House recommending passage of the bills," said Chairman Hughes. "The bill will probably be reported Tuesday or Wednesday."

The bill, when reported, will take its place on the calendar, and will not be reached for consideration by the House for several months, unless a special rule is reported.

U.S. CENSORSHIP BILL PLEASES FILM MEN

Famous Players' Attorneys Suggest Two Important Changes in Congressman Hughes's Measure.

The first definite step toward bringing Congress and the film industry together on the question of Federal regulation of motion pictures was taken yesterday by Dudley M. Hughes, chairman of the House Committee on Education and sponsor of the bill which bears his name, when he submitted a copy of the bill in its present form to the attorneys for the Famous Players Film Company with the request that they suggest any changes in the text which they thought advisable.

The bill already has been referred to the Committee on Education and will be favorably reported back to Congress by Mr. Hughes on Wednesday.

One serious objection to the proposed Hughes bill has been cited by the Famous Players attorneys. It is in the section which provides for the same licensing of films which are to be exported as those which are to be exhibited in the United States. It is pointed out that it is unfair to force American producers to compete with foreign films, where pictures of a more highly colored type are at an actual premium.

Another dangerous provision in the minds of the film representatives is that which states that the Federal commission shall distinguish between films that shall be shown to adults only and those which shall be exhibited to adults and children. It is argued that this practice has been established in Chicago, where a white permit is issued for pictures considered suitable for children and a pink permit for those deemed too risque for the juvenile mind. As a result the Chicago exhibitors are putting a premium on the "pink" pictures, thus defeating the very purpose of censorship.

Telegraph May 6

FILM CENSOR BILL IS STILL UNSIGNED

Governor Has Only Until Saturday to Approve Cristman-Wheeler Motion Picture Measure.

UNCONSTITUTIONAL, SAYS CULLEN

(Special Dispatch to The Morning Telegraph.)

ALBANY, N. Y., May 15.

Governor Whitman has taken no action on the Cristman-Wheeler motion picture bill, which is one of the thirty-day measures now in his hands for final action. The thirty-day period will expire Saturday, and if the Governor does not conclude either to sign or veto the bill before that time it will automatically be killed.

When the Governor was asked tonight what he intended to do regarding the bill, he said: "I have not decided yet." The Governor has been in consultation with Deputy Attorney-General Hinman regarding some of the provisions of the bill providing for a State Board of censors of motion picture films. It is believed the arguments presented by Former Chief Justice Cullen of the Court of Appeals relative to the unconstitutionality of the Cristman-Wheeler bill have received important consideration by the Governor, and that it has been necessary to obtain the opinion of the Attorney-General on this point of law.

Judge Cullen in his opinion called attention to the provision of the bill which states that the Board of Regents may in their discretion revoke the approval of the pictures at any time.

"The regents are thus authorized," said Judge Cullen," to revoke the license at any time and the revocation becomes complete on the service of a notice. There is no provision in the bill giving the proprietor of an exhibition of motion picture films any notice or a hearing, and his property may be destroyed without his ever having had an opportunity to be heard in its defense. This is plainly unconstitutional, for no man can be deprived of his property without a hearing."

Great Bear Spring Water. Fifty cents per case of 6 Glass Stoppered bottles.—Advertisement.

LOOKS BLACK FOR CENSORSHIP BILL

General Opinion Seems to Be That Governor Whitman Will Veto Measure.

BIG HEARING ON MAY 11

(Special Correspondence The Morning Telegraph.)

ALBANY, April 28.

That the hearing which Governor Whitman has granted on May 11, at which the merits of the Cristman-Wheeler censorship bill will be threshed out, will be effectual in dooming the measure to oblivion is the confident belief of a majority of those in the film industry who have followed the agitation from its inception.

Practically every part of the State will send representatives to oppose the bill, which would provide a board of three under the jurisdiction of the State Regents to censor all pictures before they are released.

Exhibitors' Meeting.

A meeting held Thursday night by the New York State Motion Picture Exhibitors' Association at Keeler's Hotel was attended by more than 200 exhibitors from the larger cities of the State. At this session Lee A. Ochs, president of the New York branch of the Exhibitors' League of America, and W. Stephen Bush spoke, the latter explaining the necessity of co-operation among exhibitors to protect their interests.

Resolutions were adopted protesting to the Governor against the signing of the Cristman Wheeler bill, now in his hands for that purpose, and representatives of the organization will be on hand to oppose it on May 11.

Mr. Ochs spoke of the harmonious basis upon which all matters concerning the New York State Exhibitors had been placed through the persistent efforts and concerted action of the league.

Following the business meeting a banquet was enjoyed.

Regents Not Enthusiastic.

Perhaps one of the most significant things in connection with the censorship bill is that the Board of Regents, under whose control the censorship would be placed if the measure is signed, is not, according to report, at all favorably inclined, believing that it would entail a lot of needless and objectionable complications. One of these is that they would be drawn into legal controversy through court actions to decide what constitutes objectionable films. There are still other provisions of the bill which meet with the disfavor of the Board of Regents.

It is said the Regents were not consulted by the members of the Legislature or the advocates of the bill.

All the large [illegible]

Telegraph May 6

The Morning Telegraph

May 7-1916

J. A. BERST PICKS FLAWS IN FEDERAL CENSOR BILL

Gives Dudley M. Hughes Strong Arguments in Keen Analysis of National Measure.

In connection with the Federal censorship bill now before the House Committee on Education at Washington, J. A. Berst, vice president and general manager of the Pathe Exchange, Inc., has written the Hon. Dudley M. Hughes, chairman of the committee, a letter subjecting the bill to a keen analysis. Mr. Berst's reputation as a broad-gauged, deep-thinking business man is well known, and as he has made a very careful study of the bill his views will have a very decided interest to every one in the film business. Certain defects in the bill, which have heretofore escaped notice, are dealt with by him briefly and to the point. The letter follows:

May 4th, 1916.

Hon. D. M. Hughes,
Chairman Committee of Education,
House of Representatives,
Washington, D. C.

My Dear Sir—I have read with great interest the notice that you sent me containing briefs and statements of the Federal Motion Picture Convention.

There are several matters which I would like to point out, and with your permission I will do so as briefly as possible.

I notice that the bill calls for the appointment of five commissioners to be located in different cities, and that these commissioners shall have the power to appoint deputy commissioners. I think this is wrong. For instance, if the appointed commissioner of New York be a clergyman, he might select for deputy commissioners all, or nearly all, clergymen, and that would be a very poor representation to censor motion picture films. I believe that the board should be composed of a certain fixed number of censors, and that a picture should not be rejected by the vote of one person only. This is important, as to-day the majority of the pictures are five-reel features, which cost an average of $20,000 each.

I believe also that the Board of Appeal should be composed of a fixed number of censors. All this is necessary in order that our industry obtain fair treatment.

The salary of commissioners and deputy commissioners should not exceed $5,000 and $3,000, respectively.

During the showing of the pictures to the censors, no one except the censors should be admitted in the room. Our experience has proven that in the past motion picture companies who sent a representative with forceful, persuasive ways, succeeded nearly all the time in having their films passed, while films of the same character of other companies were condemned. It is absolutely certain that a board can be influenced by persuasive talk and, therefore, in order that the board can act more freely it should have no relations with representatives of motion picture concerns.

Section 8 of the bill excludes bullfights and prizefights. This should be taken out of the bill. There is a real demand for prizefights and bullfights in certain States. Bullfights, for instance, are in good taste and wanted in New Mexico, Texas and Southern California. Prizefight films are in demand and make money in any State they are exhibited. It is easy for the censors to exclude from these films any part that might be offensive.

Section 9 requires the manufacturer to file a statement under oath that parts condemned together with the corresponding negatives have been destroyed. All manufacturers will be very much opposed to destroying negatives, as they have use for these negatives in foreign countries. It is a well-known fact that the wants of Americans is entirely different from that of the Spanish or Slavish countries, and it cannot be the intention of the Federal Board of Censors to pass judgment on films which are to be shown in Europe and South America.

Under Section 10, it is not quite clear if films can be transported through the several States for the purpose of export. I suggest that at the end of this section be added the words, "in the United States."

It would be quite necessary that topical films which have to be shown to the public immediately and very often on the same day they happen, be exempted from review by the censors. This would necessitate the modification of Section 11.

Under Section 12, the fees are fixed at $2 per reel. The fees are too small and will not cover the expenses of the commissioners. It should be $4 instead of $2.

In the appendix I notice that Section 9 provides that no copyright shall be issued for a film not licensed. This would be very injurious. For instance, many producers make films for releasing companies offering them for sale to several companies until they have found a purchaser. It is always up to the purchaser to attend to the censoring, as the film has to be reconstructed and retitled to meet his particular requirements. Therefore, it would work a hardship for the producer to have to attend to the censoring, as under this condition, he would place himself under the danger of having his production pirated, if he could not have it copyrighted.

Also, if an American manufacturer should want to make special films for foreign countries, which films would not be adaptable for the United States, this would prevent him from copyrighting his films.

Under Section 10, a manufacturer could not export his films unless they had been licensed. He could not even have his cameraman in all parts of the country shipping the film to him, and he could not transport exposed (but not developed) positives or negatives. This would practically put the motion picture news film out of business.

Section 12 would place a prohibitive fee on the whole industry. All manufacturers and exhibitors will be very much against paying a fee for each duplicate copy. This is superfluous, as the commission is not spending any time in looking into duplicate copies.

In the revised Smith-Hughes Bulletin, submitted by Dr. Crafts, I notice several things which are also objectionable.

In Section 5, I call your attention to the provision requiring condemned parts of films to be left in the custody of the commission. This should be eliminated, as these parts can be used for export by manufacturers. They cost money and should not be confiscated when they are submitted to a board for approval or refusal.

Section 7 provides that films can be licensed only on presenting the scenario. This is certainly wrong, as the scenario by no means gives an absolutely true reproduction of the motion picture.

Section 7 also provides for a tag to be attached to each container. This would be very troublesome, as the motion picture films do not remain all the time in the hands of the same individuals, but pass from hand to hand practically every day. It would be a hardship to impose this provision on the exchanges, because of this and also the carelessness of exhibitors in not returning the containers the tag on which corresponded with the motion picture within.

Believe me, Very truly yours,
Pathe Exchange, Inc.,
J. A. Berst,
Vice President & General Manager.

Readers Condemn "The Birth Of a Nation." Belasco's Plans for New Production.

5/7-16

By JULIA CHANDLER.

I dig my way to you this week out of an avalanche of anathemas born of the perfect sincerity of scores of deplorably prejudiced readers who would have me hanged without a quiver of conscience for what one protester is pleased to term my "fulsome praise" of "The Birth of a Nation."

The exactions of my work make a personal reply to each of some two hundred letters on my desk an impossibility, so that I am forced to take this medium of publicly commending the frankness of opinions which have been expressed to me whether they praise or damn me for my belief that in his great film, now on view at the New National Theater, D. W. Griffith has lifted the motion picture art to an artistic level deemed at its inception impossible for it, picturing the stress and storm which gripped the South after Abraham Lincoln's untimely death, not merely with fine dramatic sense but with an admirable faithfulness to history.

Expressing to me his "feelings of disappointment and amazement" born of my attitude toward the Griffith film, Mr. James C. Waters, jr., attorney at law in this city, protests "distorted episodes" and "propagandist features so hideously insidious in their character that if any racial group within the nation except the negroes were made the victim of their reflections, the house which dared to present the film would be dynamited," adding reproachfully to me:

"'And you, too, Brutus?' You who have taken such high ground heretofore? I am led by your writings on this film to believe more firmly than ever before that there come times when a man must catch a new grip upon himself lest he lose faith in humanity."

To the accusation against Mr. Griffith of "distorted episodes" it can but be said that with the selection of Thomas Dixon's graphic story of reconstruction in the South following the civil war for film production the sponsor for "The Birth of a Nation" entered upon a primary work of research stupendous in its character, for the very purpose of establishing the historical truth of its narrative. A half dozen professors of history from as many universities worked for three months in compiling for Mr. Griffith historical data that he might be spared the slightest inaccuracy in the presentation of his theme. These professors examined no less than 5,000 volumes of history and innumerable official records to secure the facts. Not satisfied with this Mr. Griffith visited the locale of the country which gave birth to the Ku Klux Klan and heard from men and women of the highest integrity the story of their personal experiences through the darkest hours of Southern history. Fortunately for the depiction of the period the years which followed the civil struggle are not so far distant but that innumerable eye-witnesses can be found today still living in that portion of the South which was saved from negro rule and supremacy by the Ku Klux riders.

Because history does not always tell a beautiful story there is no reason that it should be suppressed, or told only in such part as it coincides with individual ideas of things as they should be, or might have been, but were not.

Nor should a man who has spent a fortune in his effort to achieve accuracy in a production be maligned and condemned because he has the temerity to offer the world the result of his expensive investigation, specially when this man happens to be one of high artistic gifts who has the ability and the will to clothe his presentation in such raiment as D. W. Griffith has given "The Birth of a Nation."

That he sensed in Thomas Dixon's description of conditions confronting the South with Lincoln's death, and the power that saved the flower of its people from an unspeakably hideous fate, a subject of tremendous dramatic appeal and unparalleled possibilities for action in a film production is nothing to Mr. Griffith's discredit, nor aught of proof against the sincerity, honesty and dramatic beauty of his depiction.

Contention aside, the fact remains that "The Birth of a Nation" is a dramatic offering. As one of the many approving letters I have received states the matter:

"The Griffith picture is in the theater like any other production; advertised like any drama, without pretense or deception. Seeing it is compulsory to no one, so let he who is afraid to be told the truth in a beautiful and impressive manner stay home and nurse his weazened prejudices."

Which, in my estimation, is admirable advice succinctly given.

WILLIAM FOX IS AGAINST CENSORS

Governor Whitman Protest- in Matter of Cristman-Wheeler Bill.

WILL INJURE THE INDUSTRY

A letter of protest has been written to Governor Whitman at Albany by William Fox, President of the Fox Film Corporation, against the enactment of the Cristman-Wheeler Censorship Bill into a law.

Mr. Fox takes the broad ground that the motion picture is as much a vehicle of expression as the newspaper or actual speech. Neither of them is subjected to pre-publicity. He holds that if what one sees or prints is indecent, libelous or obscene, that person is amenable to the law and may be punished if the charge is proven.

"The protection of the morals of a community is already provided for," Mr. Fox wrote the Governor, "in the Constitution and charter of every municipality in the State of New York.

"Another argument against State censorship is the danger of political control of such a censorship board. In other words, State censorship may open the way to, and encourage, graft.

"If there must be official censorship, higher than that of the public itself, it is my earnest belief that the most effective form would be a Federal measure, making uniform, throughout the nation, the standard of motion picture censorship."

Mr. Fox concludes his letter with the statement that the inspection fee proposed of $10 per thousand-foot reel for each original and $5 per thousand-foot reel for each duplicate, will result in driving the motion picture industry out of New York, the fee being a ruinous tax.

5/7-16

EPOCH COMPANY SUES FOR REVIEW OF ORDER

Ohio Censors Charged With Unreasonable Action in Regard to "Birth of a Nation."

(Special Correspondence The Morning Telegraph.)

CINCINNATI, May 4.

The Epoch Producing Company of New York, owners of "The Birth of a Nation," has just filed suit in the Ohio Supreme Court for a review of the alleged unlawful and unreasonable order of the Ohio State Motion Picture Censors barring the production. Action was brought on the strength of the ruling of Federal Judge John E. Sater of Columbus, Ohio, that the legal remedy in the State courts should be exhausted.

The Industrial Commission and the censors are named as defendants and will be represented by Attorney General Edward C. Turner. The Ohio State Supreme Court judges may be asked to see the picture to decide the questions that will be raised in the petition, which was filed by Attorneys Joseph Heintzman and J. L. Sagmeister of this city. It is set out that the production has been attended by disturbances in only two centers and that these were instigated by enemies of the production, who conspired to prevent it from being produced.

It is generally believed in motion picture circles that this test of the power of the Ohio State Board of Censors will do much to destroy the alleged czarism existing in the censorship of films, not only in Ohio but throughout the country. The present action is receiving much attention in the newspapers. It also is set out that it was shown at a private performance of 2,000 men in a music hall on February 20.

... place ...
... it has ever kno...
... ount of both the producer ...

U. S. CENSORSHIP BILL PLEASES FILM MEN

Famous Players' Attorneys Suggest Two Important Changes in Congressman Hughes's Measure.

The first definite step toward bringing Congress and the film industry together on the question of Federal regulation of motion pictures was taken yesterday by Dudley M. Hughes, chairman of the House Committee on Education and sponsor of the bill which bears his name, when he submitted a copy of the bill in its present form to the attorneys for the Famous Players Film Company with the request that they suggest any changes in the text which they thought advisable.

The bill already has been referred to the Committee on Education and will be favorably reported back to Congress by Mr. Hughes on Wednesday.

One serious objection to the proposed Hughes bill has been cited by the Famous Players attorneys. It is in the section which provides for the same licensing of films which are to be exported as those which are to be exhibited in the United States. It is pointed out that it is unfair to force American producers to compete with foreign films, where pictures of a more highly colored type are at an actual premium.

Another dangerous provision in the minds of the film representatives is that which states that the Federal commission shall distinguish between films that shall be shown to adults only and those which shall be exhibited to adults and children. It is argued that this practice has been established in Chicago, where a white permit is issued for pictures considered suitable for children and a pink permit for those deemed too risque for the juvenile mind. As a result the Chicago exhibitors are putting a premium on the "pink" pictures, thus defeating the very purpose of censorship.

Telegraph 5/6

FILM CENSOR BILL IS STILL UNSIGNED

Governor Has Only Until Saturday to Approve Cristman-Wheeler Motion Picture Measure.

UNCONSTITUTIONAL, SAYS CULLEN

(Special Dispatch to The Morning Telegraph.)

ALBANY, N. Y., May 15.

Governor Whitman has taken no action on the Cristman-Wheeler motion picture bill, which is one of the thirty-day measures now in his hands for final action. The thirty-day period will expire Saturday, and if the Governor does not conclude either to sign or veto the bill before that time it will automatically be killed.

When the Governor was asked tonight what he intended to do regarding the bill, he said: "I have not decided yet." The Governor has been in consultation with Deputy Attorney-General Hinman regarding some of the provisions of the bill providing for a State Board of censors of motion picture films. It is believed the arguments presented by Former Chief Justice Cullen of the Court of Appeals relative to the unconstitutionality of the Cristman-Wheeler bill have received important consideration by the Governor, and that it has been necessary to obtain the opinion of the Attorney-General on this point of law.

Judge Cullen in his opinion called attention to the provision of the bill which states that the Board of Regents may in their discretion revoke the approval of the pictures at any time.

"The regents are thus authorized," said Judge Cullen," to revoke the license at any time and the revocation becomes complete on the service of a notice. There is no provision in the bill giving the proprietor of an exhibition of motion picture films any notice or a hearing, and his property may be destroyed without his ever having had an opportunity to be heard in its defense. This is plainly unconstitutional, for no man can be deprived of his property without a hearing."

Great Bear Spring Water. Fifty cents per case of 6 Glass Stoppered bottles.—Advertisement.

Telegraph May 6.

LOOKS BLACK FOR CENSORSHIP BILL

General Opinion Seems to Be That Governor Whitman Will Veto Measure.

BIG HEARING ON MAY 11

(Special Correspondence The Morning Telegraph.)

ALBANY, April 28.

That the hearing which Governor Whitman has granted on May 11, at which the merits of the Cristman-Wheeler censorship bill will be threshed out, will be effectual in dooming the measure to oblivion is the confident belief of a majority of those in the film industry who have followed the agitation from its inception.

Practically every part of the State will send representatives to oppose the bill, which would provide a board of three under the jurisdiction of the State Regents to censor all pictures before they are released.

Exhibitors' Meeting.

A meeting held Thursday night by the New York State Motion Picture Exhibitors' Association at Keeler's Hotel was attended by more than 200 exhibitors from the larger cities of the State. At this session Lee A. Ochs, president of the New York branch of the Exhibitors' League of America, and W. Stephen Bush spoke, the latter explaining the necessity of co-operation among exhibitors to protect their interests.

Resolutions were adopted protesting to the Governor against the signing of the Cristman-Wheeler bill, now in his hands for that purpose, and representatives of the organization will be on hand to oppose it on May 11.

Mr. Ochs spoke of the harmonious basis upon which all matters concerning the New York State Exhibitors had been placed through the persistent efforts and concerted action of the league.

Following the business meeting a banquet was enjoyed.

Regents Not Enthusiastic.

Perhaps one of the most significant things in connection with the censorship bill is that the Board of Regents, under whose control the censorship would be placed if the measure is signed, is not, according to report, at all favorably inclined, believing that it would entail a lot of needless and objectionable complications. One of these is that they would be drawn into legal controversy through court actions to decide what constitutes objectionable films. There are still other provisions of the bill which meet with the disfavor of the Board of Regents.

It is said the Regents were not consulted by the members of the Legislature or the advocates of the bill.

All the large producing concerns have filed with the Governor their objections to the bill and have signified their desire to appear before him to make their position plain in the matter before he takes final action.

It is said that the Governor has expressed the opinion that this bill, providing for a State Board of Motion Picture Censors, is not a good one, inasmuch as a million dollars may be collected annually by the Board of Censors to be selected by the Board of Regents, and that the Department of Education should not have charge of a revenue measure.

Also there is no more reason, he believes, why a censorship should involve the motion picture theatre than any other theatre. Another reason is said to be that the Governor ought to have the responsibility of appointing the Board of Censors instead of the Board of Regents.

The Morning Telegraph

THE UNSELFISH REFORMER.

NEW YORK, SUN DAY, MAY 30, 1915.

May 7-1916

J. A. BERST PICKS FLAWS IN FEDERAL CENSOR BILL

Gives Dudley M. Hughes Strong Arguments in Keen Analysis of National Measure.

In connection with the Federal censorship bill now before the House Committee on Education at Washington, J. A. Berst, vice president and general manager of the Pathe Exchange, Inc., has written the Hon. Dudley M. Hughes, chairman of the committee, a letter subjecting the bill to a keen analysis. Mr. Berst's reputation as a broad-gauged, deep-thinking business man is well known, and as he has made a very careful study of the bill his views will have a very decided interest to every one in the film business. Certain defects in the bill, which have heretofore escaped notice, are dealt with by him briefly and to the point. The letter follows:

May 4th, 1916.

Hon. D. M. Hughes,
Chairman Committee of Education,
House of Representatives,
Washington, D. C.

My Dear Sir—I have read with great interest the notice that you sent me containing briefs and statements of the Federal Motion Picture Convention.

There are several matters which I would like to point out, and with your permission I will do so as briefly as possible.

I notice that the bill calls for the appointment of five commissioners to be located in different cities, and that these commissioners shall have the power to appoint deputy commissioners. I think this is wrong. For instance, if the appointed commissioner of New York be a clergyman, he might select for deputy commissioners all, or nearly all, clergymen, and it would be a very poor representation to censor motion picture films. I believe that the board should be composed of a certain fixed number of censors, and that no picture should not be rejected by the vote of one person only. This is important, as to-day the majority of the pictures are five-reel features, which cost an average of $20,000 each.

I believe also that the Board of Appeal should be composed of a fixed number of censors. All this is necessary in order that our industry obtain fair treatment. The salary of commissioners and deputy commissioners should not exceed $5,000 and $3,000, respectively.

During the showing of the pictures to the censors, no one except the censors should be admitted in the room. Our experience has proven that in the past motion picture companies who sent a representative with forceful, persuasive ways, succeeded nearly all the time in having their films passed, while films of the same character of other companies were condemned. It is absolutely certain that the board can be influenced by persuasive talk and, therefore, in order that the board can act more freely it should have no relations with representatives of motion picture concerns.

Section 8 of the bill excludes bullfights and prizefights. This should be taken out of the bill. There is a real demand for prizefights and bullfights in certain states. Bullfights, for instance, are in good taste and wanted in New Mexico, Texas and Southern California. Prizefight films are in demand and make money in any State they are exhibited. It is easy for the censors to exclude from these films any part that might be offensive.

Section 9 requires the manufacturer to make a statement under oath that parts [illegible] together with the correspondence [illegible] been destroyed. All this is much opposed by exhibitors and others in expressing their aversion to the bill.

It is well known that the Mutual Film Corporation, New York, appealed before Governor Whitman for the purpose of filing with him a petition containing the names of 100,000 persons requesting the Governor not to attach his signature to the Cristman-Wheeler motion picture censorship bill. Due to the fact that the Westchester Country Board of Supervisors, in the large reception room, where more than 1,000 people had assembled, he received Miss Keuyon in his private office. The actress briefly explained her reasons for opposing the various features of the bill.

Governor Whitman said that he would give the matter his attention and that it would be considered fully at the hearing arranged on the Cristman-Wheeler bill before him on May 11.

In the petition submitted to the Governor it is stated that the censorship aimed at is covered in effect by the penal code statutes governing regular theatrical performances; that the five-dollar tax on 600 feet of film is without precedent and [illegible] amount to a degree not even remotely [illegible] tries, and it cannot be the intention of the Federal Board of Censors to pass judgment on films which are to be shown in Europe and South America.

Under Section 10, it is not quite clear if films can be transported through the several States for the purpose of export. I suggest that at the end of this section be added the words, "in the United States."

It would be quite necessary that topical films which have to be shown to the public immediately and very often on the same day they happen, be exempted from review by the censors. This would necessitate the modification of Section 11.

Under Section 12, the fees are fixed at $2 per reel. The fees are too small and will not cover the expenses of the commissioners. It should be $4 instead of $2.

In the appendix I notice that Section 9 provides that no copyright shall be issued for a film not licensed. This would be very injurious. For instance, many producers make films for releasing companies offering them for sale to several companies until they have found a purchaser. It is always up to the purchaser to attend to the censoring, as the film has to be reconstructed and retitled to meet his particular requirements. Therefore, it would work a hardship for the producer to have to attend to the censoring, as under this condition, he would place himself under the danger of having his production pirated, if he could not have it copyrighted.

Also, if an American manufacturer should want to make special films for foreign countries, which films would not be adaptable for the United States, this would prevent him from copyrighting his films.

Under Section 10, a manufacturer could not export his films unless they had been licensed. He could not even have his cameraman in all parts of the country shipping the film to him, and he could not transport exposed (but not developed) positives or negatives. This would practically put the motion picture news film out of business.

Section 12 would place a prohibitive fee on the whole industry. All manufacturers and exhibitors will be very much against paying a fee for each duplicate copy. This is superfluous, as the commission is not spending any time in looking into duplicate copies.

In the revised Smith-Hughes Bulletin, submitted by Dr. Crafts, I notice several things which are also objectionable.

In Section 5, I call your attention to the provision requiring condemned parts of films to be left in the custody of the commission. This should be eliminated, as these parts can be used for export by manufacturers. They cost money and should not be confiscated when they are submitted to a board for approval or refusal.

Section 7 provides that films can be licensed only on presenting the scenario. This is certainly wrong, as the scenario by no means gives an absolutely true reproduction of the motion picture.

Section 7 also provides for a tag to be attached to each container. This would be very troublesome, as the motion picture films do not remain all the time in the hands of the same individuals, but pass from hand to hand practically every day. It would be a hardship to impose this provision on the exchanges, because of this and also the carelessness of exhibitors in not returning the containers the tags on which corresponded with the motion picture within.

Very truly yours,
Pathe Exchange, Inc.,
J. A. Berst,
President & General Manager.

...AL INJURE THE INDUSTRY

...letter of protest has been written to ...ernor Whitman at Albany by William ..., President of the Fox Film Corporation against the enactmena of the Cristman-Wheeler Censorship Bill into a law.

...r. Fox takes the broad ground that motion picture is as much a vehicle expression as the newspaper or actual ...ch. Neither of them is subjected to ...publicity. He holds that if what one ... or prints is indecent, libelous or ob...e, that person is amenable to the law ... may be punished if the charge is ...en.

...he protection of the morals of a com...ity is already provided for," Mr. Fox ... the Governor, "in the Constitution ... charter of every municipality in the ... of New York.

...nother argument against State cen...ip is the danger of political control ...uch a censorship board. In other ..., State censorship may open the way ...d encourage graft.

